OETZMANN and PLUMBS INDIAN PIANOFORTE, made expressly to resist damp and insects. An immense stock of Cottage Pianofortes, from 16 guineas. Lists free.—27, Baker-street. Pianofortes for hire, with option of purchase, extreme climate, a serious objection. Packed in tinned cases and shipped for 25 guineas. Testimonials.—27, Baker-street.

PIANOFORTES.—OETZMANN and PLUMB have all descriptions for Hire. Terms will last 12 months. Lists free.—27, Baker-street. Pianofortes for hire, with option of purchase, if required. Old Pianos taken in exchange. Repairs and tunings by experienced workmen.
27, Baker-street, Portman-square, London, W.

HARMONIUMS. — ALEXANDRE'S best Instrument Can Claim, 4 rows of stops, 2 octaves + octaves, 64 pipes, 2 sets of vibrators, 2 knee swells, as usually rendered from 80 to 100 guineas, for hire, 1 year, 21 per month.—27, Baker-street.

CRAMER'S PIANOFORTE GALLERY, 207 and 209, Regent-street.
Every Instrument manufactured by the least capital in the description given of it. Exhibitor Instruments are carefully excluded from the stock.
Pianofortes by all the eminent English, Continental, and American Manufacturers, for Sale or Hire.

PIANOFORTES by Broadwood, Collard, or Erard, for SALE or HIRE—At CRAMER'S PIANOFORTE GALLERY (the largest in Europe), 207 and 209, Regent-street.

EASY TERMS OF PURCHASE.—CRAMER, BEALE, WOOD, and CO. undertake to arrange terms with those desirous to pay for a PIANOFORTE by easy instalments. Cramer's Pianofortes are guaranteed for five years.
207 and 209, Regent-street.

CRAMER'S ENGLISH PIANETTE, 57 guineas. Cramer and Co. manufacture this capital small Pianoforte for the English climate, and warrant it for five years. Cramer's Pianettes are strongly recommended. Purchased on the Three Years' System. In proceeding on this Pianoforte the degree of pressure to be employed will much more frequently than in other instruments mean twelve lbs and more in the hammer. In rosewood, 19 guineas, in walnut, 20 guineas.

CRAMER'S PIANOFORTE GALLERY.—This Instrument has not the common or single action, but the double or check action, which is the only action that can be used with safety in a Pianoforte.

CRAMER'S NEW SEVEN-OCTAVE, SEMI-OBLIQUE PIANOFORTES. Price 61 guineas in Rosewood. This Pianoforte is manufactured on the instrument pianoforte principle, and is the most perfect Cottage Piano ever made, and may be compared in elasticity of touch to a grand Pianoforte. The quality of tone, firmness and evenness of touch, and the capacity for bearing in tune are unrivalled. The tone may be compared to that of a fine-toned Grand Pianoforte, and is the most powerful Cottage Pianoforte in the market. In one case there is no hanselance, and no other is charmingly vocal qualities more with the Semi-Grand. The stringing is complete, there being three wires to each note throughout the entire compass. The trichord principle of construction is adopted in the treble and bass, and forward from the first gamut of the octave without risk of breaking the wires. The Pianoforte is warranted for five years. Cramer's Pianettes, 57 guineas. Cramer's Pianofortes, 207 and 209, Regent-street.

CRAMER'S INDIAN PIANOFORTE. A superior COTTAGE PIANOFORTE, 7 octaves, with check action, and all the latest improvements, including the effect of extreme climates. Nothing has been left, today to the planing. The resonance of the Pianoforte is such that it has been selected throughout by sirocco. Unusual skill and attention have been given to the manufacture of this Pianoforte, and the materials are of the best description, combining the utmost quality of tone and durability.

CRAMER'S ARTIST'S CONCERTINA, 30 guineas. This Concertina is manufactured by Lachenal, Edwards, and Co., and is the most perfect instrument in regard to quality of intonation, and general perfection of construction, these instruments are used by the principal performers in the metropolis, and retain their perfect tuning in any climate. Price 12 guineas, and upwards. CRAMER'S Pianofortes, 207 and 209, Regent-street.

REPAIRING PIANOFORTES.—CRAMER and CO. undertake the repairing of Pianofortes of every description. Pianofortes to be removed, and the instruments thoroughly repaired by experienced workmen.

CHAPPELL'S TWENTY-GUINEA PIANOFORTE is in solid mahogany or walnut cases, in the English manufacture, with perfect check action, the full compass, and all the latest improvements. CHAPPELL and CO. recommend this instrument as superior to any other pianoforte to or about this price now manufactured in London.
50, New Bond-street, and 15, Cornhill.

CHAPPELL'S SMALL FOREIGN MODEL PIANOFORTE, at 32 guineas, a new Oblique Piano, with trichord treble and check action, the perfection of touch, and an immense compass, from their celebrated Parma Models, but at a lower price. CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street, and 15, Cornhill.

CHAPPELL'S FOREIGN MODEL PIANOFORTE, at 42 guineas, a new Oblique Piano, with trichord treble and check action, the perfection of touch, and an immense compass, from their celebrated Parma Models, but at a lower price. CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

A LEXANDRE'S DRAWING-ROOM MODEL HARMONIUM, the best that can be made, price 50 guineas, in handsome Italian walnut case. CHAPPELL and CO. Ingress of Pianofortes and Harmoniums upon application to CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

SIX-GUINEA HARMONIUM, by ALEXANDRE, with two rows of vibrators, 5 octaves, 10 stops. These instruments are brave to price and superior to all other Harmoniums at present offered to the public.
CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

SECOND-HAND HARMONIUMS, by ALEXANDRE, only used a few months, at half-price.—CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

A LEXANDRE'S PRIZE EXHIBITION MODEL HARMONIUM, for the CHURCH, 18 stops, 2 rows of vibrators, and the knee swell, at the end of the right hand, in oak case, 70 guineas. A large assortment may be always seen at CHAPPELL and CO.'S, 50, New Bond-street.

SECONDHAND PIANOFORTES, by CHAPPELL and CO., have a large ASSORTMENT of PIANOFORTES for SALE, by BROADWOOD, COLLARD, ERARD, and other eminent makers, including many very returned pianos. Also, four instruments of every description.
50, New Bond-street, and 15, Cornhill.

PIANOFORTES at CHAPPELL'S.—The Pianoforte Warehouse of CHAPPELL and CO. is the best for fair or first.—50, New Bond-street.

CHAPPELL'S FOREIGN PLANING MODEL PIANOFORTE, at 50 guineas, with trichord treble and check action, the perfection of touch, and most perfect tuning, admirably adapted to Small Rooms, Yachts, Colonies, &c. Also, a Pianoforte, in Walnut, at 60 guineas, with the elongated Pianoforte, with check action and all the latest improvements.
50, New Bond-street, and 15, Cornhill.

CHAPPELL and CO.'S ENGLISH MODEL COTTAGE PIANOFORTE, at 35 guineas, a perfect English tone of the Broadwood or Collard quality, the English touch, and the English compass, 6½ octaves, and the check action, and the above makers, and therefore especially adapted to the country in which they are manufactured, and warranted to stand in any climate. In elegant rosewood cases, with full fret, similar in every respect to the Pianoforte sold by CHAPPELL and CO. at 50 guineas each.
Chappell and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

CHAPPELL'S FOREIGN MODEL PIANOFORTE, at 50 guineas, a perfect Oblique Piano, with trichord treble and check action, the perfection of touch, and immense compass of seven Octaves. It is strengthened by every possible means, and is therefore especially adapted to the Continental climates, and warranted to stand in any climate. In elegant rosewood case, full fret, and rich and powerful tone, similar in every respect to the Pianoforte sold by CHAPPELL and CO. at 70 guineas each. The Pianofortes in all respects comparable, but hitherto have made to order only, and at a much higher price. Pianofortes sent free to any part of the country without risk or trouble to purchaser.
50, New Bond-street, and 15, Cornhill.

BROADWOOD, COLLARD, and ERARD. The best Pianofortes of every description, including all the latest improvements, for SALE or HIRE, on the most liberal terms, by any and hired with option of purchase at the new Showrooms of CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street, and 15, Cornhill.

ENGLISH CONCERTINAS, by WHEATSTONE and CO., 20, Conduit-street, London, patentees, warranted, for her climates, and to keep well in tune, from the extreme cold to the heat of India.

BROADWOOD and CRAMER'S Pianofortes for SALE or HIRE.—CRAMER, BEALE, WOOD, and CO., 207 and 209, Regent-street.

CHISSHOLME and SON'S (from Broadwoods') Trichord Cottage Pianofortes, in rosewood or walnut, from 36 to 42 guineas. Check-action Diallo Pianos, to match, 28 guineas.—31, Berners-street, Oxford-street, W.

THE PARLOUR PIANOFORTE, 25 Guineas, by CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street, and 15, Cornhill, a Pianoforte of very small compass, but of full, rich, and powerful tone, possessing all the latest improvements, with check action, and every sound improvement; the case is handsomely made in rosewood, and elegantly finished throughout, and will be found a most useful instrument for a small room, or for a lady's practice.

Advertisements.

GARIBALDI IN ENGLAND: PRESENTATION OF THE ADDRESS OF THE SOUTHAMPTON TOWN COUNCIL TO GARIBALDI, IN THE TOWNHALL.

BROOK HOUSE, ISLE OF WIGHT, THE RESIDENCE OF MR. SEELY, M.P., VISITED BY GARIBALDI.—SEE NEXT PAGE.

GARIBALDI'S ENTRY INTO LONDON

THE welcome given to Garibaldi on Monday by the people of London was most enthusiastic. His reception was all that his warmest friends could have desired for him. The sun shone brightly and the population turned out in high good humour to welcome the distinguished Italian. The procession of working men extended to a considerable length, and the banners and devices which they bore gave to the spectacle a picturesque appearance, while the whole way from Nine Elms railway station at Vauxhall, the starting point of the procession, to Stafford House, where the visit is closed, was crowded with enthusiastic spectators, every window being filled with elegantly-dressed women. There were no political banners and few mottoes, the bulk of the working men being contented to bring to friendly societies, Odd Fellows, Foresters, and Tectotallers. Large bodies of foreigners were in the procession, but they carried no banners or mottoes.

THE JOURNEY FROM THE ISLE OF WIGHT TO LONDON.

Garibaldi, having concluded his visit to Brook House, the hospitable mansion of Mr. W. Seely, left Cowes on Monday morning on his way to London. The General, with Mr. and Mrs. Seely, Mr. Hunter, M.P., Mr. Ould, M.P., Mr. Dunlop, M.P., Colonel and Mrs. Jeffreys, Menotti and Ricciotti Garibaldi, and Mr. Left Brook House shortly before nine o'clock, and arrived at West Cowes in time for the boat.

The inhabitants in the villages between Brook House and Cowes were in time to greet the General as he passed. A considerable number of persons had gathered on and about the pontoon and its approaches, while not a few boldly threatened to be taken off in a flooded round the vessel, Garibaldi shaking hands with many of them and taking the nosegay as a quarter gun was fired. As the steamer passed through Cowes Roads a four-masted Dutch merchantman, which lay for some days has been lying at anchor, saluted the gallant General three hearty cheers. No further incident occurred until the arrival of the Medina near the railway station at Ryde. What a strange contrast to the appearance of the ship a week before, when men and boys lay out on the rigging, though without manning yards or cheering! Now the General with one of his companions stepped the greeting; and then the Medina, which had the Italian flag at the fore, steamed on to the pier, the band playing as she neared the union jack. Here the Mayor, with a few members of the Corporation, was standing with a body of police and a large number of other carriages. The General entering the first was, amid loud cheers, driven off at a rapid pace through the back of the battery from which thundered a salute of fifteen guns. Arriving at the railway station, which was profusely decorated with flags and evergreens, the General left the landau and passed into the refreshment-room, where he waited a few minutes and then was conducted to the platform of the station by the Mayor and Corporation, and his assistant had done their best with bunting and evergreens to get up a festive appearance. The train consisted of seven carriages, drawn by an engine which had the Italian flag upon it, and on which Mr. Ralph Dutton, Mr. Peel, took charge of the train. The leading carriage was festooned with flowers and evergreens, and into this the General was conducted amid loud cheers from the crowd assembled. At soon the train started amid cheers repeated again and again. At Winchester the train was again halted, and the Mayor, who had been played Garibaldi's Hymn, and the Mayor and Corporation, with the townspeople, with the banner of the arms of the city, waited and presented an address. Not only was there a large assemblage, but every demonstrative sentiment and cheering could make it, but all along the country there was a sprinkling which was the reception of the Garibaldi sentiment. Far away at cottage doors women waved their handkerchiefs, and the most lonely places were occupied by persons turned out. As the train neared London these signs thickened and swelled, and at a quarter past two the train drew up amidst a very great ovation at Vauxhall. Then the scene became one hitherto unprecedented—a scene that defies the pen of the writer to paint as it can be adequately described. For some minutes before the platform was reached the streets were blocked with people, who were to be seen above and below, and on every side; and the eye took in a wide sweep and bewildering vision of men and women, chiefly railway workmen and their wives on lines of trucks, with a sprinkling of well-dressed visitors, on roofs of dirty height, on walls and parapets, on mountains of luggage-waggons, on the bridges and on the roofs of the railway-station, intense with one emotion, expressed by feature, hand, and voice on the arrival of the long-expected, much-honoured, and beloved guest.

THE RECEPTION AT NINE ELMS.

Very early in the morning the ground was in gather in the streets, and "Seats to Let" and banners of all kinds cropped up plentifully enough along the route the General was to take. Those who intended joining in the procession, with their banners and devices, pressed forward towards the Wandsworth-road, past the Nine Elms station, where they were marshalled in order.

The goods-shed at Nine Elms was cleared of everything except a row of railway-travelling carriages, and by ten o'clock the band of the United Italians in London were marshalled by half-past twelve. Their banners, multitudinous, were in front of the band of them, on a part of the carpeted platform which ran the whole length of the building, were the place of honour and the addresses. The body of the shed and the platform on the other side were filled with the working people, and a few fashionably-dressed lady visitors. All around were flags, and opposite where Garibaldi was to stand were mottoes—"Welcome Liberator!" "The Pure Patriot," "His Hero of Italy," and "The Man of the People." The whole scene was a picturesque one, and, in his military cloak and red berretto, the more enthusiastic and demonstrative of the Italians, among the scenes of stripes of green, white, and red silk; the working men's committee were in a rondo-round in front of the table of honour, a portrait of Garibaldi, woven in silk, upon it; the City committee were clustered together in their official costumes and official medals. By two o'clock the place was filled in all its parts, and men crowded along the road that ran down the side of the front of the building, and others peered in from the glazed roof of the station.

At half-past two there were "Cheers for Garibaldi!" "The train approaches!" and the Italian band led off with Garibaldi's Hymn. The shouts of welcoming and the shrill treble of the ladies' voices could be distinguished heartily through the noise of the band, when the Liberator he has always appeared in public in this country—that which he wore at Naples—the red shirt and the cloak of Legion—plain gray capote and Garibaldi hat and red tunic. His reception was of the most hearty and enthusiastic description as he bowed, hardly vigour of his aspect, as compared with the tried and travel-worn man he was when last he left Caprera, added to his haunese, however, seemed as permanent as when he limped from the Lisbon, and when he stood on the deck of the steamer while walking would be a slow and most laborious effort. As he advanced by the platform to where he was to stand, he was greeted, and sometimes offered their hands to him over the barriers, and then his presence was announced, and the cheering was changed, as, with his usual courtesy, he turned to press the hand of a lady, or shook hands with a fair partisan, a score or two of English to thank for the honour they did him. A little child was lifted over the barrier, and he kissed it, and he carefully looked at the flowers, as with the most perfectly natural and unaffected manner he took the child in his arms, kissed it, patted its cheek, and tried as well as he was able to speak to it in English. The scene was one that was at once unexpected, and, above all, so perfectly simple and natural, that it did more than elicit applause—it seemed to establish familiar and domestic relation between Garibaldi and all the ladies present. For the rest of the way down the platform he seemed almost bewildered by the intense enthusiasm of his welcome; but once on the dais, so to speak, he turned with the simple dignity that is natural to him, and with his calm, melancholy look, remained to receive the Addresses.

The address from the City committee was read by Mr. Councillor Richardson, and is as follows:

SIR,—The inhabitants of the British metropolis rejoice to welcome you among them, rejoice in the opportunity this afforded them of testifying their enthusiastic admiration for the first of living patriots—the undaunted and illustrious champion of not only the freedom and independence of his own beloved and chosen land, but of civil and religious freedom throughout the world.

Free England welcomes with affectionate and heartfelt respect the great apostle of liberty; the heroic and chivalrous soldier, whose sword is never drawn but in a just cause; the conqueror of a kingdom, that he might deliver his people from oppression; poor himself whilst making others rich; the self-devoted, self-denying citizen, loving the rights and welfare of his own country and of the whole human family. Loving as he is loved, he is also pure-hearted, and upright man, whose private worth is only surpassed by his public virtues, and more than these latter combined and exalted.

We thank you, General, for thus honouring us by becoming for a time our guest. We thank you for your noble example, which has taught the world how to make a single patriot army, and how, with a mere handful of marvellous material, to preserve, amidst the greatest perils and dangers, a life so pure, so unselfish, so devoted to the cause of freedom, so full of moral courage and of strength, and enable you yet to accomplish all that your heart desires for the future, making that future, as it must be, glorious for your country and for you, in good and good works, and more beneficial to Italy and all other oppressed nationalities.

Such are your services to us, and to humanity, in the pursuit of applause, and most of all that which expressed the hope of future success, even to the fulfilment of all the hero's heart-desire. With difficulty silence was restored to the hall, when, with the utmost difficulty, he was speaking in an unfamiliar tongue, but with the clear, ringing voice of one who is stronger even than his years, he replied to the address as follows:

I am very happy to be enabled to-day to give my thanks to this noble nation for its great sympathy for me and for those of my country and for the cause of mankind. Long ago I wished for this day, and I am happy to-day to express to you all my gratitude.

The General proceeded a little, amidst renewed cheers; and then Mr. Hartwell, one of the secretaries of the working men's committee, stepped forward and read the following address, which was also in the course of its reading loudly cheered:

Illustrious Chief,—In the name of Britain's sons and daughters of toil, we hail your presence in our metropolis. We hail you as the representative of a rejuvenated and united Italy; and for the love we bear to that beautiful land and her glorious people, we hail you as the champion of Italy's rights and liberties and the vanquisher of her foes, who has rescued from the foreign oppressor—we bid you welcome. Your name is to us a household word, and your deeds of liberty, unselfishness, and heroism are familiar to us as "Home, sweet home," the cause of human progress; for your noble deeds we thank, love, and welcome you; and in the hearts of the people of this land of ours you have found, and will ever find, a home for the oppressed peoples, we give you a place, the first place, to our brotherhood, and with you we welcome the noble band of true men who have been associated with you in your glorious enterprises who are also deserving of our admiration and sympathy—Basile, Bovi, Bassini, Joseph Mazzini, who has done so much for Italy, freedom, and humanity. We thereby welcome the noble Hungarian, Kossuth, and the brave Polish exiles. We hear besides our fraternal delight at seeing you in our midst; and, expressing a fervent desire that you may long be spared to see the fruits of your labours in the world's freedom, once more, in the unbounded fulness of our love for you and liberty, welcome.

Before the General could reply an Italian lady, Mdme. Filopanti, walked straight up to the table, and presented a bouquet to him in a neat speech, part only of which was heard from a misapprehension that it was an interpreter's duty. The General replied: "Madame, I feel it a agreeable one, for the lady turned out to be related to one of Garibaldi's companions in the Sicilian campaign.

Welcome, welcome, Garibaldi! This good and generous people long to honour you for your bravery and your chivalry, for your generous and all-worthy sentiments. Welcome to the hearts of Englishmen and Englishwomen, who, in the name of their country, desire to be the most powerful nation in the world. By this expression of their feelings, they desire to express their love for you and for your Italianism, that is to say, your love for liberty, your humanity, and your liberty. I am overpowered with joy to witness this glorious day, and with the strong cause. And to you, Garibaldi, I express my gratitude for the welcome which you have so heartily greeted with enthusiasm, and I dare raise my voice in this assembly of distinguished men, to say that I am happy to see the cause of Italy for the honour they are bestowing upon you. Garibaldi, may your holy patriotism still animate generations, and may it be the watchword of the entire liberty against despotism. May your noble example exhilarate all hearts and contribute to the cause of liberty and civilisation. Long live Italy! Long live the cause of liberty, which will one day unite humanity in one happy family.

During the delivery of the address, which was of considerable length, but as it contained with enthusiasm, Garibaldi courteously bowed to the City, still standing, and at the conclusion of the expressive motions of the hand when reference was made to his merits.

When Garibaldi proceeded to acknowledge the working men's address he seemed bursting with emotion, and, with a voice expressive of his feelings with an effort, he stepped forward and said:—

I wish to say a few words in response to an address so grateful, and shall never in my life forget the welcome of a class to which I consider that I have the honour to belong. I like to call my brothers the workmen of every part of the world.

This address, touching from its simplicity and from the visible emotion of Garibaldi, was received with loud cheers, and the people, and of the people, and another vigorous cheer rang out, in the midst of which a general move was made to the table of the City address.

THE PROCESSION TO STAFFORD HOUSE.

There was the same scene at the departure of Garibaldi from the hall as at his arrival. Men were waving their hats, women in many ladies now were anxious to shake hands, not only with him, but after him with his companions, and the cheering was renewed as he passed from the Isle of Wight. At last the door leading from the shed was opened, and Garibaldi, with the Mayor, the Corporation, the Lord Mayor, and Mr. Seely entered an open carriage and four, which had been sent by the Queen from Osborne. In time it drove on through the gate of Nine Elms station, where the crowd was dense as possible, and swayed about, carrying people hither and thither with no object whatever. Here the Mayor of Battersea, who had not received his hand when it could, and in time made way for the procession which was to follow Garibaldi.

Round the General's carriage was a small body-guard of those who had served under him in Italy, and who had come from all parts of England from far to do this honour to him. They were supported by the Notting-Hill Volunteer Fire Brigade, who had the honour of the General's immediate escort.

As to the procession itself, it can only be said that it was made up of almost all the friendly societies in London. There were the Foresters in their picturesque dress; the Odd Fellows, who, perhaps, were the best organised body of all; the Tectotallers, with their banners, among which many young men who, we suppose, hope to be Old Friends one day. There were the Irish, the Scotch Highlanders, the Sons of the Phœnix, the Shoemakers' Society, Bands of Hope, and a host of others. The Italians, the Poles, the Hungarians, the Polish, Hungarian, German, and French contingents; and it was said the whole number of the processionists was three thousand. But the committee followed last in the procession to precede Garibaldi, but near the end of the route the General's carriage was driven on, and left off by the crowd and followed on behind. Another thing occurred to delay it. The Lord Mayor unfortunately immediately preceding the General's was drawn by some grey horses, one of which fell dead. It was taken out and moved, and then became unmanageable. The horses plunged and reared, and the Lord Mayor's carriage was blocked, during the crowd in here only to be pushed out there. But in time the carriage-procession came on, and Garibaldi's was again surrounded into other carriages coming on behind.

The procession passed from Vauxhall through Upper Kennington-lane, the Westminster-road, over Westminster Bridge, through Parliament-street, and by the Horse Guards into Piccadilly, and so to the General was to go to Stafford House, the residence of the Duke of Sutherland.

All along the line of march the streets were thronged, and the crowd became more dense as the procession drew near the West-end, and housetops were covered with spectators. The windows, too, were filled with people, and cheering and waving red was ready to be waved when the General should come. And when he did come the cheers rolled up from thousands upon thousands, and when the carriage turned from a smaller street to places where two or three roads met, the murmur that was heard gathering strength as the news of his coming was spread burst with tremendous volume as the carriage came in view. The broken places in the procession were filled by the mob, so that it ceased to be formed. The carriage containing the General left Westminster Bridge was perhaps the best of the whole. Not a single vehicle was in front of it; the strife began to be fierce as it got beyond the General saw the Houses of Parliament just as the sun was setting. The character of the spectators changed when the General had crossed the river: a better class of people came to welcome him. All the Government offices, the chambers of professional men, the trees standing in the neighbourhood, the stone roofs of public buildings became posts of observation. In one balcony was seen the First Commissioner of Public Works and the Under Secretary for Foreign Affairs; on a roof a little further on was the Irish Chief Secretary, and numberless others emanated and peeped out of vast pointed here and there, watching and welcoming Garibaldi. The crowd was dense in Parliament-street. Trafalgar-square was filled, and people were climbing up to and grasping the projections on the base of Nelson's column. One man actually had astride of Charles I.'s charger, and to steady himself clasped the monarch round the throat. At the corner of Regent-street the crowded also, and the cheers were many and loud there too. So eager were the people to get upon the carriage as the General's hand that to Pall-mall the rumble behind the carriage, in which were two of the Duke of Sutherland's servants, gave way to the pressure and suddenly came to the ground. It was about this spot that the Lord Mayor's carriage reached Stafford House—a journey of three miles from Nine Elms.

THE RECEPTION AT STAFFORD HOUSE.

The General entered Stafford House leaning on the arm of the Duke of Sutherland. Red cloth had been laid down from the door to the entrance-hall, and the staircase, at which point the Duchess of Sutherland advanced and cordially welcomed the illustrious guest. The Duchess Dowager of Sutherland also came forward to welcome him, and, after an interchange of compliments, the Duke conducted the General to the drawing-room. He appeared greatly fatigued by the excitement of the day. The Duke and Duchess of Argyll, the Duke of Shaftesbury, the Marquis and Marchioness of Ely, the Earl of Leopold Agar Ellis, Lady Blantyre, and the Hon. Mrs. Stuart, the youthful Baron de Tuyll, Lord Jarve, Lords Abert and Ronald Leveson Gower, Lord Richard Grosvenor, Colonel and the Hon. Henry Grosvenor, and others were on the grand staircase to witness the arrival of the General, but the Duke of Sutherland's immediate devotees were confined to the noble host and hostess and the Dowager Duchess. The dinner circle was composed of the Duke and Duchess, the Dowager Duchess of Sutherland, the Duke and Duchess of Argyll, and a small family party, being the principal persons present to meet the General.

On Tuesday the General went with the Duke and Duchess of Sutherland to Chiswick, and returned to Isleworth to luncheon. Duchess of Sutherland at Chiswick. On his way he called at Chatsbridge House, and remained a quarter of an hour with Lord Palmerston. As he passed along the streets the people warmly welcomed him. At Chiswick he received addresses from the university of St. Pancras and from the Polish refugees, to which he returned appropriate answers.

The Duke and Duchess of Sutherland gave a grand entertainment on Wednesday evening at Stafford House. A brilliant evening assembly followed, at which the Duke and Duchess of Cambridge, the Earl and Countess of Derby, Earl Granville, the Earl and Countess of Clarendon, the Duke and Duchess of Argyll, the Chancellor of the Exchequer and Mrs. Gladstone, and about forty personages of the highest rank and distinction in every walk of party, were invited to meet the gallant General.

On Thursday Garibaldi visited the Royal Italian Opera. The Floral Hall, which makes a grand appearance on Covent-garden, was thrown open. The performances in the opera of "Norma," and, most appropriately to the occasion, the two great acts of "Masaniello."

Garibaldi will visit the Crystal Palace to-day (Saturday) and on Monday next. At the request of the Italian residents in Garibaldi, accompanied by two swords for him and his son Menotti, to-day, the General will receive the gift of two swords of honour, which on the occasion at the north-west corner of the great transept, immediately facing the Handel Orchestra. Prior to the presentation an Italian concert will be offered to the General by the principal artistes of the Italian opera, and the Crystal Palace Company's band will be present at the Crystal Palace on Monday, and also the addresses of the corporate and other bodies of the metropolis to the General will be unable to visit. The profits on both days will be devoted to the testimonial fund.

It is understood that the ceremony of presenting the freedom of the City to Garibaldi will take place on Wednesday, the 20th inst., provided the state of the City authorities will allow. He will make the necessary arrangements for that day.

The members of the Working Men's Club intend to pay a tribute of respect to Garibaldi by inviting him to a banquet at their clubhouse in Pall-mall, Hanover-square, on the Italian patriot's arrival in London. The precise day is left for the General to appoint.

General Garibaldi has received an invitation to visit him personally by the Mayor of Birmingham to visit that town. The time has not been fixed.

ILLUSTRATIONS OF GARIBALDI'S VISIT TO SOUTHAMPTON AND THE ISLE OF WIGHT.

OUR Engravings of Garibaldi require but little commentary or explanation, since we reported last week the proceedings which had taken place at Southampton and in the Isle of Wight upon the occasion of General Garibaldi's visit to that neighbourhood. The Engraving on our front page represents the arrival of the Peninsular and Oriental steamer's mail-steamer Ripon at Southampton Docks on the Sunday afternoon. In a second illustration we show the Royal Victoria Hotel, in Southampton, at which the General took on the Monday, with a carriage-and-four, containing Garibaldi, his two sons, Mr. Seely, and Mr. Hunter, of Southampton, left the hotel, proceeding to the Townhall, amidst the acclamations of a crowd of people in the streets. The next Engraving is a view of the Townhall, an apartment over the Bargate, where the members of the Corporation assembled and presented Garibaldi and received from him address of welcome. The Town Clerk is here reading the address, for which the illustrious visitor listens, standing at the Mayor's right hand.

Two of our Illustrations are taken from scenes in the Isle of Wight. The first is a view of Brook House, near Freshwater, on the western end of the island—a pleasant mansion in a sheltered site, with much wild and picturesque coast scenery around it. The lord of the manor is Mr. Seely, M.P. for Lincoln, who has made himself the host of General Garibaldi for a fortnight. Upon the whole week, from Monday, the 4th inst. until Monday last. In the time of Henry VIII. the holy of the manor, Carisbrooke Castle, entertained that King in her house, where Mr. Seely's house now stands. The other Engraving represents the scene in front of the Townhall at Newport, when Garibaldi dined there with the Mayor and a large party on Thursday week. Great preparations had been made by that little town to celebrate his visit with the usual flowers and a triumphal arch on the road by which he entered. The sketch taken by our Artist at the moment when he showed himself on the balcony will perhaps give some notion of the unwonted state of enthusiasm which prevailed in the inhabitants of Newport when thrown.

In the last place, we publish an Engraving which, though it is not an illustration of Garibaldi's present reception in England, will be acceptable to all readers whose interest is just now directed to the personal history of this distinguished man. The Engraving to which we now refer is a portrait of Garibaldi as a boy of the house of Signor Giuseppe Garibaldi was born, in the year 1807—a large building which had always been in the family—an old-fashioned lodging-house for strangers visiting that port. The parents of Garibaldi are understood to have been Genoese.

The Star of India was presented to the Serpore Chief at Ajmere, on the 16th ult., by General G. in. P. Lawrence, C.B.

The Prussian Field Telegraph is an institution as useful and important to an army in the field as it is of novel and unique appearance. Such carriage contains, neatly coiled up, insulated wire of ten German miles in length (nearly forty-five English miles), and is drawn by a single horse, so that the wire can be unrolled and laid down at a swinging trot, if required to be done quickly; the reel-carriage and operators and soldiers in there are ten to each waggon—are all mounted, uniformed, and armed, wearing the same kind of helmet as the cuirassiers, but with a crest of only distinguishing mark being two white cords on the colour.

CURRENT LITERATURE.

The Works of William Shakespeare. Edited by Charles and Mary Cowden Clarke. (I vol. Bickers and Son.) Cowden Clarke is a name which we cannot but regard with respect and gratitude. It is a name by which we cannot but regard with respect and gratitude. It is sparkling fancy, and dashing ingenuity by many another, but it has in undoubted claim to the honour which is due to revered zeal, conscientious management, delicate appreciation, and laborious industry. It is well, therefore, that a name so honourably known in connection with the works of our greatest poet should appear once more before the public at this juncture, when sense or folly, here worship or self-worship, veneration for the poet or regard for the little living, just as any one's opinion may be, have given rise to a grand demonstration, which could scarcely be more honourable to the honour of him who, in the printed evidence of his own words, is a mountain not made of double thorn bronze," and also entrenched beneath a self-wrought canopy more lofty than the Pyramids. The present edition of Shakespeare has several special recommendations.—Portrait by Droshout; a tolerably extensive glossary; a full and accurate table of Shakespeare's life; a copy of Shakespeare's will; a copy of the "dedication prefixed to the folio of 1623;" a "verbal and sentential Memory;" and an index-finder. Every one of these is a good thing, and can comfortably without any exposure in the way of letters or type referring me to the many-sided opinions of many-sided editors or commentators. It is intended, in fact, for readers only, not for critics or collectors; and with that view "a new revision of the text" has—we are informed, and have no reason to doubt—been made. Of what the text, the bond, the binding, and the bevelled edges, combine to form a desirable volume.

The Life of Laurence Sterne. By Percy Fitzgerald. (2 vols. Chapman and Hall.) Two opposite opinions are current, and always will say—one for example, the other for setting up. Some one is continually showing that people old and young were not generally read by those to whom they have been attributed; and somebody else is the continual answering, or attempting to show, that the books dated attributed to departed worthies were never done—at any rate by those worthies' names. Which, however, is not the case with Sterne's champion; and now "the mountebank who invented the sentimental" has found a donkey of Nonsense to bray his praises, and the time-honoured bubble upon acid cash has met with—if not a vindicator—an apologist. Mr. Fitzgerald has written with infinite pains, good feeling, and unrivalled temper, diligently searched for, affectionately put together, and unrefined tempter, diligently which he considers justly him in putting forward "an opposite view of Sterne's life and character" to that which has been generally received. The two volumes are not beautifully sketch penned with all his caustic power by the late Mr. Thackeray. We do not say to what extent "the world but good of the dead;" we are only too willing to learn that the reverend, the husband, the sentimentalist, and the author stand the sobriest of the English Rabelais was not a bad son, a bad husband, a bad father, a bad friend, and a bad author. Therefore, listen not only patiently but anxiously to Mr. Fitzgerald's defence.

We are bound to say, as to the defence in extenuation, if he does not entirely clear the character of his client, he does, we think, perhaps, relieve him of a large amount of moral crime to one of moral weakness. Still Mr. Fitzgerald has had a hard task to perform, and he has performed it

GARIBALDI IN ENGLAND: ARRIVAL OF GARIBALDI AT THE TOWNHALL, BARGATE, SOUTHAMPTON.—SEE PAGE 374.

GARIBALDI IN THE BALCONY OF THE TOWNHALL OF NEWPORT, ISLE OF WIGHT.

GARIBALDI'S BIRTHPLACE AT NICE.—SEE PAGE 374.

ILLUSTRATIONS OF THE WAR IN DENMARK.

RETREAT OF THE PRUSSIANS FROM THE DÜPPEL FORTIFICATIONS, ON MARCH 28.

We have engraved this week a sketch by one of our own countrymen, who was a spectator of the sharp fighting in front of the Danish redoubts No. 4, No. 6, No. 7, and No. 8, on the heights of Düppel, early on the morning of March 28. In this sketch, taken from one of the Danish redoubts, the foreground is filled up with a breastwork, a group of soldiers, and a mounted field-piece. The prospect is towards the Avelsøy or Rubenberg hill on the left, the village of West and East Düppel in the centre, and the Bullé Koppel wood farther off on the right hand. The Prussian attack was headed by six in the morning, just when the masses of Prussian infantry, for the last time collected, were massed on the Schmeltz hill, and covered by the fire of Danish guns at once from the redoubts before them and from the war-vessel Rolf Krake, in the Alsen Sound. They were gently swelling ground to the left of our Engraving as the waters of the inlet called the Hetmansbek, and in the centre of the view the extensive the twin steeples of Broacker Church, with which our readers are already familiar. Early in the morning, when the Rolf Krake had steamed up the inlet, passing close under the lee of the Prussian batteries on the opposite cliffs of Broagerland, and anchored near the head of the Vemmingbund, the Prussian artillery is low, enabling her to commande the Prussians between the village of Arnkil and the Hetmansbek, so that they were forced to retreat. This took place about half-past six o'clock, after three hours' fighting between the Danish redoubts and the bodies of Prussian infantry in the hollow ground overlooked by the fortifications of Düppel. The small Danish garrison of the redoubts lies in the middle, having been destroyed some days before, when the Prussians first occupied the Düppel position, and offered of any shelter. They had formed their colonies at three o'clock that morning in the line village of Düppel, and had been in readiness to fall back on the Danish shells, and which is scarcely burning in one direction. At this village, at half-past three, cause the Prussians, driving in the Danish outposts, to retire. Redoubt No. 4 began with; but spreading thence up and down the valley in front of the neighbouring village of Düppel, it soon grew clear, that their object was not to make an immediate assault upon the redoubts, but to take possession of the village, and to hastily construct a line of parallel intrenchments and by regular siege to the Danish positions. The Danes, however, were not to be surprised with such effect upon the approaching foe, having first allowed them to come near to the hill that the guns of the redoubts had a free way and fled in disorder, refusing at length to face those terrible batteries again, were commanded by the Danish officers to go by they ran down the hill they were more than once pursued by the Danish troops, who came out into the open space between the redoubts and discharged volleys of musketry against the Prussian assaults. This went on all along the line from Redoubt No. 4 to Redoubt No. 8, until half-past nine, by which time the Prussians decided to abandon their attack on the right and centre of the Düppel position—that is, on Redoubts No. 4 and Redoubt No. 9, which had proved too strong for them, the redoubts there being so situated as to support each other. The Prussian attack was now turned against the left of the Danish position, which rested on Redoubt 5 and ended on the hill at No. 8. No. 7 and No. 8, being situated lower down, upon the shore of the Vemming Bund, could not attack it nor support the troops attacked from the land side. At this critical juncture, when the whole Prussian attack was gathered round the Rubenberg to advance towards Redoubt No. 4, the timely intervention of the Rolf Krake, as we have already described, put an end to the battle and completed the Prussian defeat. About eleven thousand of the Prussians were actually engaged, while the defence of the redoubts was performed exclusively by the four thousand men of the garrison, which, by the way, left them when the fight commenced. General Gerlach, the Danish Commander-in-Chief, had about twenty thousand men, however, in reserve, and did not find it necessary to employ them. It is said that the loss of the Prussians was quite double that of the Danes, in the presence of three or four Englishmen, who thus had an opportunity of witnessing their gallant behaviour in the repulse of this formidable attack. We are glad to profit by the opportunity to call our fellow-gentlemen to lay before our readers a correct representation of one of the most interesting episodes of the war.

VILLAGE OF BROAGER AND BRIDGE OF BOATS.

Our Special Artist has made a sketch of Eckernsunde, which is engraved this week, in anticipation of the expected attack which the Danish naval forces to cut off the Prussian communications at that point. The Rolf Krake is well represented in the deep waters of Eckernsunde, apparently with this purpose, on the 18th of February, but they not compelled by the fire of the Prussian batteries to withdraw. The piece of water shown in our Engraving is a narrow channel between the lagoon of the Nor, in the Sundewitt Peninsula, with the Golf of Flensburg, as described in our account of the operations between a View of which we published on Feb. 27. Gravenstein, which is situated just within the Danish frontier, between the Nor and the town of Flensburg and the extreme promontory of Düppel, continues to be the official residence of Marshal von Wrangel, the Commander-in-Chief of the allied German armies; but the head-quarters of the Prussian division immediately engaged in the attack on the Danish position are fixed in Broagerland, which is a peninsula, separated from the rest of the mainland by the waters of the Alsen Sound. It is evident, that, if the Danes could, by means of the Rolf Krake and their gunboats entering the waters of the Golf of Flensburg, succeed in destroying the bridge of boats at Eckernsunde, the Prussians would be in a critical road left open for them between Gravenstein and Broacker than the circuitous road which passes through Nordborg. The Rolf Krake, however, could lead to no important results, unless the Danish land forces were strong enough to force their way from Düppel northwards to Apenrade, which joins Broagerland to the mainland of Sundewitt. In that case the Prussian army in Broagerland would, indeed, be suffered one defeat. But the vast numerical superiority of the Prussians on land is the counterbalancing the advantage bestowed upon the Danes by their command of the sea.

VIEW OF DÜPPEL UNDER THE BOMBARDMENT OF APRIL 2.

The Engraving which we publish on the upper half of two of our pages is from a sketch taken by our Special Artist, Mr. Simpson, on the Saturday week, from the hill of Schmoel, at the head of the Vemmingbund inlet, where there is an old windmill, now converted into another war many ages since, and not used by either of the combatants on the present war, any of our readers will see that the pole map, however, be intended for a beacon in case of need. Several groups of the Prussian infantry are to be seen in the foreground, lounging about in this place; and our Artist is standing on the ancient parapet, sketching. Looking over the line of sight of the Danish redoubts, which are replying to the Prussian bombardment just commencing. We may observe that we have, in this sketch, a somewhat complete picture of the whole range of the Düppel heights and the approaches to them from the Prussian side. The position of the ten Danish redoubts, from No. 1, close to the shore of the Vemmingbund, No. 1 and 2, all the way up the seaward slope, and No. 4, near the windmill on the summit, to Redoubt No. 5, the crest of the hill to No. 5, 6, 7, and so on, is made out with tolerable certainty by the knowledge of smoke which ensued of the nearest battery, however, seen in our Engraving is that which the Prussians have lately erected on the hill which lies to the left of Redoubts Nos. 6 and 7. The lines of Prussian infantry are perceived gathering on the Rubenberg hill to the left of the village of West and East Düppel are hidden from our sight by the Rubenberg hill; but we observe a cluster of houses far to the left, which is Hyrtholm, occupied by the Prussians. The village of Schmoel lies in the foreground. In the left-hand corner is the Rolf Krake lying off, in the right-hand corner are the cliffs of the Broagerland shore, with Prussian batteries upon them, of which the most advanced is that on Gunnelsmark Point. The open sea far away to the eastern horizon, and the coast of the Isle of Alsen, with the Rolf Krake there anchored, and with the mouth of Alsen Sound, or Broacker Sea, where the town of Sonderburg is screened by a projecting point of Düppel, make up the remainder of this comprehensive view. The Prussian batteries on the hill of Rubenberg, when our Artist drew this sketch, was a combined fire at once from all the Broagerland batteries, from the new batteries on the Rubenberg or Avelsøy, and from the village of West Düppel. The latter were, of course, directed against the Danish redoubts on the crest of the hill. The fire was kept up all the morning, on that first evening, alone, there more than a hundred shells into the town of Sonderburg, aiming perhaps chiefly at the castle and at the bridge over the Alsen Sund, but effecting sad damage to the houses of the inhabitants of the townspeople. A great many families were driven from their homes in the course of the night and the following day. The streets of Sonderburg, and the roads leading out of that town to Ulkebøl in one direction, and to the end of the Alsen Sund in the other, with confusion and distress. Old and young, women and children, the strong and the feeble, were to be seen in the streets and roads, some loaded into the country, laden with such of their furniture and little wealth as they could carry, and others in search of a place of refuge and lodging for the night. Many slept in the small vessels and boats at Mövop Bay, All this night the bombardment went on without ceasing, and on the Sunday morning it was found that fifty-seven of the houses in Sonderburg had been destroyed by the fire, the remainder, the principal inns, and about twenty other houses, were wholly or partially burnt down, or otherwise demolished by the shells. The conflagration might have been still more extensive but for the extensive storm of wind, which beat down the flames instead of causing them to spread. Such was the fate of Sonderburg, the principal town of Alsen, which ended on the Monday morning, the 4th inst. This operation has since been repeated, as stated in our telegraphic news.

MUSIC.

Her Majesty's Theatre opened for the season on Saturday last. The opera selected for the occasion was Verdi's "Rigoletto," and its performance was the most unsatisfactory we remember of novelty. Giuglini appeared, for the first time, in the character of the hunchback jester of Mantua, and we are sorry to be obliged to him that it is surprising he has never performed it before." Giuglini is a singer of the first order, a famous air, "La donna è mobile," was encored with acclamations. Gardoni, Mdlle. Milli, and Mdlle. Lemaire were unsatisfactory in the character of Gilda. She is young, pleasing in face and person, gifted with a voice of great power, and considerable dramatic feeling. Another debutante, Mdlle. Bettelheim, appeared in the subordinate but important part of Maddalena. Her voice is of considerable power. She is handsome, has a fine and powerful voice, and her vocal and dramatic abilities are considerable. Her singing in the quartet, the character of the Jester was sustained, for the first time in this country, by Mr. Santley, who has originally written by the composer. This, as our musical readers are aware, is one of Rossini's most remarkable parts, and probably no other actor has ever rivalled him in the way in which he has made the most of him in tragic power, while the vocal portion of his performance is better. Mr. Santley's voice is in fine order, and his singing was warmly applauded by a full and fashionable house.

At the Royal Italian Opera, Madame Lucca, who had made so brilliant a debut in "Norma," achieved another triumph on Saturday, as "La Traviata." She sang splendidly, and acted with great beauty and feeling. She was ably supported by Mdlle. Trebelli, as Flora, and in the character of the Prelude, produced a great effect by his powerful voice and dramatic power.

At the Popular Concert of Monday last Signor Sivori, the great Italian violinist, who has been absent in England after a long absence, was the chief attraction of the evening. He led two quartets, Mozart's in G minor, No. 7, and Haydn's in B flat, No. 65; and played, with M. Benedict, Beethoven's magnificent Sonata in A major and violin; and in all these beautiful pieces displayed that exquisite purity and grace of style for which he has been celebrated. He was applauded, it is almost needless to say, with the utmost enthusiasm. Signor Sivori, we understand, will appear at the Monday concert on Monday next.

Master Willie Pape, the celebrated young American pianist, has been playing at Liverpool with extraordinary success. At a concert at St. George's Hall, on Saturday last, he performed, among other pieces, Liszt's "Grand Galop Chromatique," Rubinstein's Barcarolle in G minor, and Thalberg's fantasias on "Lucia," and "Moïse in Egitto," interweaving the former with extreme delicacy and interesting specimens of American and negro music. "Master Pape," says a Liverpool paper, "has a touch of the true quality and brilliancy; his execution seems equal to any difficulty; his repertoire is varied and extensive; his style is thoroughly that of the artist and the poetical maturity of one or two of our greatest masters of the piano, in characteristics of refinement, delicacy, and feeling, while it is wholly devoid of the trickiness usually found with juvenile players, and in all his other merits he adds a memory which enables him to dispense with his music throughout the whole of his wonderful programme."

THE THEATRES.

DRURY-LANE.—The performances at this theatre now close with a new farce by Messrs. Brough and Halliday, entitled "April Fool." It was produced on Monday last, the anniversary of the 1st of April, and is designed by way of discouragement to the absurd practice. The principal character, Mr. Tom Tiddler (Mr. Compton), is a similar dramatic development to St. Valentine's Day with great success, and therefore he is selected as the victim of the practical jokes. Mr. Sparks, represented by Mr. Rouby, is the hero who wishes to court the heroine (Miss Fanny Josephs) by entering into the loss manner prescribed by custom, and he accordingly has recourse to a greater fool than any he can make. He assumes to himself the world of knave, and by the aid of Mr. Bob Brierly (Mr. Compton) from drowning—a feat which has really been performed by Mr. Robbins (Mr. Rouby), who has been ducked in the river Lea on this holiday, has an archery festival, and otherwise makes his guests happy. The farce is not one of the strongest of its class, and is particularly on Mr. Robbins, who has been brought down to the fête by a hoaxing friend, and is then left by Mr. Sparks to the mercies of the ruffianly surveyor. The awkward young man is much amused, and hands the fête by Mr. Compton, who unconsciously is made to be misapprehend his person and conduct. But Miss Diana, disguised as a page to conceal her identity, is not deceived, and rewards the honest Peddles, to the mortification of Sparks. In the course of the piece Peddles has a scuffle with a chivalry boy of remarkable tenacity. Some cuts in the dialogue of Mr. Compton's part, which, perhaps, were what accidentally, a very funny incident.

On Saturday last there was given a performance took place on behalf of the Royal Dramatic College, and a brilliant performance of Sheridan's "School for Scandal" was given. The cast was exceedingly attractive. Mr. Phelps, as Sir Peter Teazle, was unusually lively and in the character of Lady Sneerwell Miss Addison supported Sir Oliver Surface with his wonted humour. Mr. C. Matthews, as Charles Surface, was unsurpassed in Charles Surface, and Mr. Creswick remarkably impressive in Joseph Surface. Mr. Buckstone, as Sir Benjamin Backbite, was great; and Mr. Compton, in Crabtree, "excellent good." Mr. Toole imported Farren's Sir Benjamin Backbite, and the rage of Mr. Walter Montgomery as Careless, Mr. Horace Wigan as Trip, and Mr. Benjamin Webster, in Sir Benjamin Backbite, as well as Mr. Matthews as Rowley. Mrs. Charles Mathews was Lady Teazle; Mrs. Buckingham, Lady Sneerwell; Mrs. Leigh Murray, Maria; and Miss Henrietta Simms, Maria. The orchestra was supplied with the musicians entitled the Royal Dramatic College Orchestra, led by Honourable Seymour Egerton. With so rich a cast the comedy was most satisfactorily acted throughout; and as audience was assembled, not only large in numbers, but distinguished for fashion and talents.

Information has been received in London respecting an enormous theft of gold, worth £10,000, from the sunken steamer Golden Gate, near San Francisco. The Golden Gate was wrecked in July, 1862, while on her voyage from Panama to San Francisco. The underwriters by whom the vessel had been insured dispatched an agent to the scene of the wreck, and a party of men who recovered a large portion of the gold lost. Returned with it. It is stated that the treasure has been forwarded to London. One of the recovered thieves has been taken into custody.

COLUMN FOR THE CURIOUS.

A SOUND lover of our olden literature, and a judicious collector of its priceless treasures, Mr. George Daniel, of Canonbury, died a few days since, in his seventy-fifth year. Mr. Daniel had assisted, during his long and active life, a library of rare books, rich in first folios and first editions of Shakspeare. From the delightful enthusiasm and veneration in which Mr. Daniel held the memory of our great dramatic bard it may be inferred that he would largely have shared in the spirit of the approaching Tercentenary festival had he been spared to witness it. Mr. Daniel had written on the drama and cognate subjects with discrimination and considerable acumen, in which his knowledge of the contents of his rare library pre-eminently qualified him. He was the reputed author of the "Memoir" prefixed to "Cumberland's Plays," published many years since. He possessed a rich vein of humour, and in 1830 published a "Modern Antique Novel," a satirical poem, which reached its sixth edition; and in similar vein "Merry Tales of the Three Wits of London," a quaint production, with "Notes Festivous" of great piquancy. He also contributed to Bentley's Miscellany a series of papers under the title of "Merrie England in the Olden Time," reprinted in two volumes, the dramatic scenes in which are highly comical concepts. That Mr. Daniel did not hoard his bibliographical wealth will be known to readers of many notices of the ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS. He was frequently a contributor, and many valuable contributors to the "Memorabilia," commenced in this Journal in the autumn of 1842. The Shakspearian relic of Ireland's Shakspearian ballad, by Tarlton, from the extensive and unique collection of black-letter broadsides formed by the late possessor of Mr. Daniel, who acquired three rarities some thirty years since from a private source. A descriptive catalogue of these black-letter ballads, seventy in number, was printed in this Journal, vol. xxix. "With the present collection (printed between the years 1559 and 1597, says Mr. Daniel) no other may compare for interest, variety, and number. They were originally in a large folio volume, of excellent condition, to have been rolled up, locked up, and entirely forgotten for more than two hundred years." Charles Dodd was among those who fully appreciated the interest and value of these black-letter broadsides. The Rev. Mr. Dodd was indebted to be rich in Bartholomew-Fair stores. He had a rare taste for the humour of the Fair, and Punch and Judy, and other such popular entertainments. Mr. Daniel, who acquired these

ROYAL INSTITUTION LECTURES.

PROFESSOR HELMHOLTZ'S second lecture "On the Law of the Conservation of Energy" (given on Thursday, the 7th inst.) was devoted to its essential applications. In the last lecture it had been shown that the energy required for carrying on any natural process must be taken from the great invariable store of nature. Water is lifted by the agency of the heat of the sun; fuel is produced by the influence of the light and heat in the same manner. We must not suppose that the energy of the sun is inexhaustible, however. Even in the educated power is exhibited in the motions of the planets round the sun under the influence of gravitation, and the tangential velocity (which was limited by means of a sphere and a circular pendulum). The planets would lose their energy if they approached the central body; but hitherto no such alteration of their orbits has been detected, and the law is proved with them as the system so far as natural attractions influence it. 2. Heat is the most important force for our terrestrial life. Its motion, like that of bodies in dispersion in distance from an 93,000,000 miles, its gravity between twenty-eight and twenty-nine times greater than that of the earth. It is 1,384,000 times as fourth, and its luminosity is between three and four times greater than that of the earth. Its mass is 324,000 times that of the earth. It rotates, revolving round the equatorial axis in from twenty-three to twenty-four hours, and round an axis which is inclined to the plane of the ecliptic (hence an absolutely motion of the sun's axis). The sun's surface appears swifter than Arcturus bullet. [Mr. Warren De la Rue's photographs of the photosphere were shown across, as "appearing like the rice grains." On July 18, 1860, were established by means of the electric lamp, all showing that the sun has an extended atmosphere in a disturbed condition. The solar spectrum is a continuous surface with dark lines, produced by the light of gold or bodies passing through an atmosphere colder than the sun. The dark lines produced by absorption, which compared with the bright lines, which are produced by the light of the sun itself. Iron, nickel, manganese, barym, chromium, nickel, cobalt, copper, zinc, and hydrogen have been determined in the solar atmosphere. The sun, therefore, contains a great many of the chemical elements found in the earth. It must be of a high temperature, which requires the highest degree of temperature that we can reach; but the principal part of the light proceeds from a layer of the solar atmosphere at a temperature much hotter than vaporized iron. Those substances, however, must exist in a greater mass, and must be present in greater density. Recent discoveries have shown the error of the opinions of Watson and Herschel with regard to the sun-spots, and the existence of a photosphere, sphere, dark clouds, and the shadowed dark body of the sun. Arago computed the luminous power of the photosphere to be equal to that of lime exposed that the surface of the sun might be excessively cool. But it is now proved that the sun-spots are hotter than the photosphere. The photosphere is extremely hot, as shown by the sun-spots appearing to be proximity process. In the different forms of the metal, bar or wrought malleable iron, pig or cast iron, steel, &c., according to the quantity of carbon varying from 0 to about 5). Other substances found with iron are manganese, silicon, phosphorus, and even oxygen compounds, such as by hydro-carbon (charcoal iron), but the principal element to be separated from the ores (or oxides) of iron, is oxygen. This was done by the ancients in the primitive primitive process of the agency of charcoal and the bellows, in a most simple form. Yet the principle was highly philosophical, and it is not to be made better than has existed in enlarging and raising the height of the furnaces, enlarging the bellows, and using coke instead of charcoal. The most important substitute for the coke blast, &c. These successive improvements were described in detail by Dr. Percy, aided by diagrams, some of the principles being shown by experiments. The result of the improvements during the present century, is the production of about 60 tons of iron per week, instead of 5 tons as formerly. The enormous amount of charcoal required for the furnaces led to the gradual use of pit-coal, beginning in the sixteenth century, by Earl Dudley and others. Percy stated that he considered Rossiere's process of manufacturing homogeneous iron on which the temperature of the metals is kept by burning as it could act; was not novel, and could not be successful, since it failed to eliminate the sulphur and phosphorus. Bessemer's process consists of a part of the process in the manufacture of steel by a process by very advantageous. Our readers will find the fullest detail of these interesting processes in Dr. Percy's book on the subject, recently published. It contains also a clear account of recent elaborate experiments, illustrated by engravings drawn to scale. Lord Wrottesley, vice-president, was in the chair.

PROFESSOR FRANKLAND resumed his course "On the Metallic Elements" on Saturday last, the 9th inst. He dealt with the elements of the alkali metals, properties of the metals, and the methods of obtaining the five classes—1, the metals of the alkalies; 2, of the alkaline earths (calcium, &c.); 3, of the earths (aluminium, &c.); 4, the metals whose oxydes are not reduced by heat alone (iron, &c.); and 5, the metals which are reduced by heat alone (mercury, silver, &c.). The metals of the alkalies are potassium, sodium, lithium, ammonium, and thallium. The first three were discovered by Davy, almost without any knowledge of the properties of the compounds of the metals of the fourth class. The alkaline metals are distinguished for their energetic affinity for oxygen, the simplicity of their compounds, their metallic elements; they are never met with native, and they are amongst the most difficult metals to obtain in the metallic state. They are obtained from their spectra, also are distinguished for simplicity. The discovery of potassium and sodium, by Davy, by Sir Joseph Lowthorpe, by Dr. Gilbert, and Mr. Children, by means of the electric lamp. The most useful compounds containing potassium are the carbonate of potash, the nitrate of potash, and the sulphate of potash, and when it is absorbed by plants it forms salts with organic acids, and when it is dissolved by plants it forms salts with organic acids. From lower bodies for the purposes. The carbonate of potash is boracic, nitrous, and with carbonic acid, and then boiled to dryness in a pan—whence the name of "pan-ash," or potash. Potassium with nitrous acid, potash is termed "prussiate;" potash obtained from the crust of port wine is termed cream of tartar, or bitartrate of potash. Sulphate of potash is obtained potash from sea-water, and a method in Germany of procuring from inorganic salts found in the mines. Potassium was discovered by accidentally Frankland, by the spectrum of granite, proved the existence of potassium and other metals in that substance, and in the atmosphere. The name is given from salt of tartar, heated with carbon. Potassium is solid at ordinary temperatures, and is soft like wax, and is white like silver. It is very volatile at a red heat, and burns with a green vapour. It takes fire when placed in water or on ice. When Dr. Percy exhibited the action of potassium, placed in the midst of ether, with a little water, on a piece of ice. Sodium, derived formerly from the ashes of marine plants, is now chiefly obtained from sea-water and rock-salt. Large quantities are made from rock-salt works in Lancashire and Cheshire, &c., by the agency of sulphuric and hydrochloric acid, a large amount of soda ash, chiefly used in the form of chalk, which add 2,000,000 annually to the income of the country. Sodium is now cheaply obtained by the decomposition of soda by the agency of charcoal by means of powdered coal. Sodium is not so energetic in its affinities as potassium, and is not so easily fusible. It is white like silver, and is harder than Potassium, and requires a red heat. Lithium is the lightest solid body known. It exists in an aggregate state in the mineral kingdom, in petalite, spodumene, and, probably, in the sea-water, and in the ordinary substances. It is white, fuses at 356 Fahr., and burns brilliantly in air and water. It was discovered by Arfwedson by minute experiments.

PROFESSOR HELMHOLTZ, in his third lecture "On the Law of the Conservation of Energy," given on Saturday last, the 9th inst., entered into consideration of the physical character of the sun. With regard to its light, he stated that it had been shown by recent calculations that it equals 146 times, and that of the electric lamp three or four times. In reference to the question, What is the source of the sun's heat? consideration of the solar ray's falling perpendicularly upon one square foot of the surface of the earth during one second of time, and communicating a certain quantity of heat to a cooling coal, and that the quantity of heat which would be raised from of the surface of the sun during one hour is equal to the heat produced by burning 1,919 lb. of coal per hour. Supposing the sun to consist of coal, solar heat was next considered at some length. The Professor said that it would not be due to "chemical action," since the sun's temperature would be much too high to exist in 4000 years. Professor W. Thomson has proved that the heat could not be produced by the friction of meteoric stones falling on the surface. Another theory is that the sun is a cooling body in process of contraction. It is contraction of the sun took place, diminishing the diameter one-hundredth part, it would have supplied heat for 2500 years. Professor Helmholtz proposes to go on till its density equalled that of the earth, the heat would be sufficient for 17,000,000 years. Another theory is that the sun's heat is due to the force of gravitation, through meteors falling into it. These bodies warm the sun by interplanetary space, and, according to the law of falling velocity, are heated in our atmosphere by friction, exploding, and sometimes reaching the earth. Calculations given for the fall of 1000 lb. 1000 deg. cent. 14 to 20 miles per second, 200,000 to 34 million deg. Finally, Professor Helmholtz considered the question of the gravitational power in the solar system (illustrated, as some suppose) due to the rectilinear motion of the great mass of the planets on or moving without sensible oscillation. The motion of Jupiter's moons round the sun, which, according to Newton, is 1916 in 1000, now requires only 1294 days. The motion of water in the tides also ceases friction, and thus loss of energy occurs in the solar system. It appears that the moon and other satellites owe their rate of rotation to this cause. "Less is going on, and it seems probable that at some former period, when the masses were not yet so completely collected and the planets were fluid." In the next lecture the action of the solar rays on the earth's surface will be considered.

CHESS.

TO CORRESPONDENTS.

G. W. G.—Beyond the fact that it was played by one of the parties without the chessboard the game has little to recommend it. The first player overlooks an obvious opportunity of winning a piece at the fifth move, and the ending is also subsequently are as if defended by himself.

G. WILLIAMS, Manchester.—The solution of the problem which has baffled you appears to be as follows:

WHITE.	BLACK.
1. B to K 5th	2. P to K 4th
3. Kt to Q 3rd (ch)	4. K to Q 5th
5. B to K 3rd

and Q mates next move.

CURIOUS.—You mention a rule, which the arbiters when you put the positions. We are barely had open to grind our own solutions. Try 1. P to K 8th (= Q), B to K 4th, &c.

J. H. S.—Your solution of the problem is correct. Thanks for the game, which we shall see to them anon; by 1. B to K 7th; the other is four moves, by 1. B to K 8th.

J. H. S., Bath.—Your solution is correct. Thanks for the game. We believe Mr. Staunton's recently published book on the openings of that problem. See the chapter for March 26.

THE GAME OF FREDERIC NO. 1016 by Chas. L.C.W., W.P., Guardsman, S.P.Q.R. of Serpent Lane, Mr. Staunton, Mr. Kipping, Mr. Wormald, Mr. Boden, Mr. Hampton, Mr. Lee, M.B., Corporal, F.R., Trask, Lacy, Adolph, C.P.S., P. G. S., Willard, Leslie, Mr. Lee, M.B., Mr. Hampton, Mr. Boden, Mr. Wormald, Mr. Kipping, Mr. Staunton, Mr. Frederic, G. Gosling, Carter, Q. D. Dubs, G. W. H. Ranbach, G. H. T., Mr. Lee, M.B., Mr. Boden, Mr. Hampton, Mr. Lee, M.B., Mr. Kipping, Mr. Staunton, Mr. Frederic, G. Gosling, Carter, Q. D. Dubs, G. W. H. Ranbach, G. H. T., Chertsey, Victoria, I. Birdfield, Clio, Fusilier, Grafe, W. W. V., Hilton, A. Clerk, W. F., Flyn, Mr. Lee, M.B., Mr. Boden, Mr. Hampton, Mr. Kipping, Mr. Staunton, Mr. Frederic, and Mr. Wormald.

SOLUTION OF PROBLEM NO. 1049.

WHITE.	BLACK.
1. Kt to K 7th	It takes Kt, or (a)
2. Kt mates accordingly.
If Black takes P with Kt, or takes Kt with Bishop or with Kt, White moves K to Q 4th, and mates next move.
Again, if Black plays 1. Kt to Q 3rd, the Kt is taken Pawn with Kt, checking, and then mates with Kt.

WHITE.	BLACK.
1. P to Q 4th	P takes P
2. Kt to K 6th (best)	It takes Kt
(a) 1.	It takes Kt
2. Kt to B 3rd	It takes Kt
3. Kt to K 3rd.

WHITE.	BLACK.
1. Kt to Q B 4th	P to K 4th
2. Kt to K 3rd	P takes P
3. P to K 4th

(If Black play 1. P takes B, then follow 2. Kt to K 3rd, P takes P, 3. P to K 4th.)

If he play 1. B takes Q, White evidently wins with the Rook next move.

SOLUTION OF PROBLEM NO. 1050.

WHITE.	BLACK.
1. Q to Q B 6th	2. Q takes B P (ch)
3. Kt to K 5th (ch)	4. Q takes Kt (ch)
5. Q to K 3rd	6. Q takes Kt—Black mates.

WHITE.	BLACK.
1. Q to Q B 6th	P to K 4th
2. Q takes B P (ch)	It takes Kt
3. Kt to Q B 3rd	P takes P
4. Q to K 3rd

(If Black play 1. P takes B, then 2. Kt to Q B 3rd, P takes P, 3. Q to K 3rd.)

If he play 1. B takes Q, White evidently wins with the Rook next move.

PUBLICATIONS RECEIVED.

By JULIUS MILLER.

BLACK.

WHITE.

White, playing first, gives mate in three moves.

A NEW RECORD OF OLD GAMES.

A capital little Game, between BLACK and an AMATEUR, the former giving the odds of his Q Kt—

(Remove Black's Q Kt from the Board.)

BLACK (Mr. D.)	WHITE (Mr.—)
1. P to K 4th	1. P to K 4th
2. B to Q B 4th	2. B to Q B 4th
3. P to Q 3rd	3. P to Q 3rd
4. P takes P	4. Kt takes P
5. Kt to K B 3rd	5. Kt to K B 3rd
6. P to Q B 3rd	6. P to Q B 3rd

(This last move was unnecessary, as we have brought out his King's Bishop, and thus lost a move.)

7. Q to Q Kt 3rd	7. Q to K 2nd
8. Q to Q R 4th (ch)	8. P to Q B 3rd
9. Q to Q R 4th (ch)	9. P to Q Kt 4th
10. Q to Q R 3rd	10. P takes P
11. B to Q 3rd	11. B to Q 3rd
12. P to K 5th	12. Kt to K 5th

(Black appears to have been ill-advised to play on the Kt square, as he has never otherwise would have thrown away his Queen's Knight's Pawn, and he has been played the Kt thus—)

12. Kt to Q 2nd	Q to K 2nd
13. Kt to Q 2nd	B takes B
14. Q takes B	Kt to K 2nd
15. K to R sq	Kt to K 3rd
16. Kt to K 4th

(This secures the advance of White's Queen's Pawn, and the game is virtually won. It is given from a great admiration of his opponent.)

16.	Q to K 2nd
17. Kt to K 3rd	Kt to K 4th
18. Kt takes Kt	P takes Kt
19. P to K 4th	P takes P
20. B takes P	Kt to K 3rd

21. B to Q 3rd	Kt to Q 5th
22. Q to K 3rd	Kt to K 3rd
23. Q to K 2nd	Kt to Q 5th
24. Q to K 3rd	Kt to K 3rd
25. Q to K 2nd	Kt to Q 5th
26. Q to K 3rd	Kt to K 3rd
27. Q to K 2nd	Kt to Q 5th
28. Q to K 3rd	Kt to K 3rd
29. Q to K 2nd	Kt to Q 5th
30. Q to K 3rd	Kt to K 3rd
31. B to K 4th	B takes B
32. Q takes B	Q to K 3rd
33. Q to K 2nd	Q to K 2nd
34. Q to K 3rd	Q to K 3rd
35. Q to K 2nd	Q to K 2nd
36. Q to K 3rd	Q to K 3rd
37. Q to K 2nd	Q to K 2nd
38. Q to K 3rd	Q to K 3rd
39. Q to K 2nd	Q to K 2nd
40. Q to K 3rd	Q to K 3rd
41. Q to K 2nd	Q to K 2nd
42. Q to K 3rd	Q to K 3rd
43. Q to K 2nd	Q to K 2nd
44. Q to K 3rd	Q to K 3rd
45. Q to K 2nd	Q to K 2nd
46. Q to K 3rd	Q to K 3rd
47. Q to K 2nd	Q to K 2nd
48. Q to K 3rd	Q to K 3rd
49. Q to K 2nd	Q to K 2nd
50. Q to K 3rd	Q to K 3rd
51. Q to K 2nd	Q to K 2nd
52. Q to K 3rd	Q to K 3rd
53. Q to K 2nd	Q to K 2nd
54. Q to K 3rd	Q to K 3rd
55. Q to K 2nd	Q to K 2nd
56. Q to K 3rd	Q to K 3rd
57. Q to K 2nd	Q to K 2nd
58. Q to K 3rd	Q to K 3rd
59. Q to K 2nd	Q to K 2nd
60. Q to K 3rd	Q to K 3rd
61. Q to K 2nd	Q to K 2nd
62. Q to K 3rd	Q to K 3rd
63. Q to K 2nd	Q to K 2nd
64. Q to K 3rd	Q to K 3rd
65. Q to K 2nd	Q to K 2nd
66. Q to K 3rd	Q to K 3rd
67. Q to K 2nd	Q to K 2nd
68. Q to K 3rd	Q to K 3rd
69. Q to K 2nd	Q to K 2nd
70. Q to K 3rd	Q to K 3rd
71. Q to K 2nd	Q to K 2nd
72. Q to K 3rd	Q to K 3rd
73. Q to K 2nd	Q to K 2nd
74. Q to K 3rd	Q to K 3rd
75. Q to K 2nd	Q to K 2nd
76. Q to K 3rd	Q to K 3rd
77. Q to K 2nd	Q to K 2nd
78. Q to K 3rd	Q to K 3rd
79. Q to K 2nd	Q to K 2nd
80. Q to K 3rd	Q to K 3rd
81. Q to K 2nd	Q to K 2nd
82. Q to K 3rd	Q to K 3rd
83. Q to K 2nd	Q to K 2nd
84. Q to K 3rd	Q to K 3rd
85. Q to K 2nd	Q to K 2nd
86. Q to K 3rd	Q to K 3rd
87. Q to K 2nd	Q to K 2nd
88. Q to K 3rd	Q to K 3rd
89. Q to K 2nd	Q to K 2nd
90. Q to K 3rd	Q to K 3rd
91. Q to K 2nd	Q to K 2nd
92. Q to K 3rd	Q to K 3rd
93. Q to K 2nd	Q to K 2nd
94. Q to K 3rd	Q to K 3rd
95. Q to K 2nd	Q to K 2nd
96. Q to K 3rd	Q to K 3rd
97. Q to K 2nd	Q to K 2nd
98. Q to K 3rd	Q to K 3rd
99. Q to K 2nd	Q to K 2nd
100. Q to K 3rd	Q to K 3rd

(Black now has a very fine game.)

101. P to K 4th	P takes P
102. R to K 8th	Q to K R 3rd
103. R to K 7th	Q to K 3rd

(Well played.)

104. It to K 8th	Kt takes B
(The situation is full of interest here.)
105. P to K 5th	Q to K 3rd
106. Q takes Kt	Q to K 5th
107. Q to K 3rd	Q to K B 3rd
108. P to K 5th	P takes P
109. R to K 6th

(The game is now very far Black almost by Q Kt.)

109.	Q to K R 3rd
110. P takes P

(As Q takes Queen's pawn would not win, simply taking the K Kt Pawn. So must have been without any object.)

110.	R takes P (ch) K to R sq
111. R to K 7th (ch)	K to Kt sq
112. Q to K 8th (ch), and mate next move.)

Black resigns.

110.	B to Q sq
111. R to K 6th (ch)	K to R sq
112. P takes B	Q takes P
113. P to K 8th sq	P to K B 4th
114. P to K 8th	R to K 4th and Black resigns.

CHESS ENIGMAS.

No. 1286.—The following position has been sent to us as the composition of White: K at Q R 3rd, Q at K B 3rd, Kt at K R 8th, P's at K 8rd and 7th, and K B 4th.

Black: K at K Kt 3rd, Q at K R 7th; Rs at Kt 7th and Q Kt sq; Bs at K B 8th and Q B 3rd; Kts at K 2nd and Q Kt 4th; P's at K Kt 4th, K 2nd and 3rd, Q 2nd, Q B 4th, and Q R 4th.

White to play, and mate in four moves.

No. 1287.—By Mr. LAVILLE (Rapon).

White: K at K Kt sq, Q at Q 7th, B at K 6th, Kt at K 8th; P's at K B 7th, K 4th, and Q 7th.

Black: K at K B 8th, R at K B sq, B at Q sq; P's at K Kt 2nd and 3rd, K 4th, and Q R 2nd.

White to play, and mate in four moves.

No. 1288.—By Mr. WORRALL.

White: K at K B 7th, Q at Q 7th, R at K B 4th, Bs at K Kt 8th and Q sq, Kt at K 2nd, P at Q B 7th.

Black: K at K 4th, Q at K B 8th, B at Q R 8th, Kts at K B 5th and Q sq; P's at K R 4th, K B 2nd, and Q B 2nd.

White to play, and mate in four moves.

OBITUARY OF EMINENT PERSONS.

THE HON. AND VERY REV. PITTOYY STANHOPE.

The Hon. and Very Rev. Pittoyy Henry Richard Stanhope, M.A., Dean and Rector of Lincoln, died on the 7th inst., and his remains were buried in the cathedral of Harrington, who died on the 7th inst., at his town house, 16, Hans-place, was the fourth son of Charles, fourth Earl of Harrington, by Lady Hester Pitt, daughter and sister of the Right Honourable Lord, of Brompton Park, Middlesex, and was brother of Charles, fourth Earl; and Leicester 16th Earl; and uncle of Sapperton, sixth and present Earl of Harrington. He was born April 24, 1787, and was educated at Trinity Hall, Cambridge, where he graduated M.A., in 1809. He was ordained deacon in 1811, and priest of Alton, and in 1819 Rector of St. Button, Cornwall, and was also made a Dean. He married, May 3, 1809, Caroline, daughter of the Hon. Charles Wyndham, by whom he leaves two sons, of whom the elder—who by his father's death succeeds to the courtesy title of Lord Petersham—is Charles Wyndham Stanhope, B.A., born in 1810, who married, in 1839, Elizabeth Sill, elder daughter of the late Rev. Edward Sill, D.D., Master of Trinity Hall, Cambridge, and has issue one son, Charles Sill, born in 1841, and two daughters. The only sister Phillips-Sommerville, is the wife of John Hughes, Esq., of the county of Carnarvon, and has issue Lady Hughes, wife of Sir Thomas Wyndham Stanhope has issue Charles Augustus, and many other children.

ADMIRAL SIR EDWARD TUCKER, G.C.B.

Admiral Sir Edward Tucker, G.C.B., whose death recently occurred at his town house, 17, Dover-street, Piccadilly, was the fourth son of Colonel Martin Tucker, formerly commanding the Green Horse, or 5th Dragoon Guards. He was born in 1777, and entered the Royal Navy in May, 1791. After serving in the Channel fleet, he was appointed to the Mediterranean, where he continued his commission to Lieutenant in May, 1799. He was present in August, 1798, at the reduction of Malta, and in the following year, 1799, was employed in several ships on the home station, he was appointed to the Cape Fleet, Captain Jonas Rose, and proceeded to the West Indies. He was made Commander in January, 1806, and Captain in August, 1808, and in July and September following was appointed to the Dover, 38. In that ship he served in the Baltic fleet in 1809, and in the same year was intrusted with the command of an expedition above for its object an attack upon the Molucras; he, he, 1810, captured Les Saintes, and in the same year of Amboyna, a station that important island soon afterwards surrendered to the force commanded him. The command of Java, and those under his command that was honourably mentioned in the despatches of Rear-Admiral Drury, the Commander-in-Chief, and of Sir Thomas Stamford Raffles, president and lieutenant-governor of those parts of the Dutch settlements, and he was warmly noticed in the despatches of Lord Minto, Governor-General of India, and of Lord Liverpool, Secretary of State for the Colonial Department. He returned to England, and in October, 1812, he was appointed to the surveillance. He afterwards commanded the Leander, 50, in the Mediterranean in 1814, and was his distinguished conduct on the East India station, made a Knight Commander of the Order of the Bath, and in 1815, and was also made a C.B. in 1815. In May, 1819, he obtained the rank of Rear-Admiral in 1841, of Vice-Admiral in 1851, and of Admiral on the 30th of July, 1857. From 1830 to 1832, Captain, Deputy of John Samuel Leake, Esq., of St. John's, Isle of Wight, and sister of Admiral Sir Henry Leake, R.N., which lady died in 1861.

COLONEL CHARLES BINGHAM, B.A.

Colonel Charles Bingham, B.A., Deputy Adjutant-General, who died on the 6th inst., at Bridgwater, was the fifth son of the late Rev. Sir Charles Bingham, Rector of Castlebar, and brother of the present Sir Charles Bingham, Somerville, and afterwards at Melcombe, in Dorsetshire. He was born in 1809, and entered the Charles Coe Regiment in 1827, and was appointed to the 1st Royal Regiment, Esq., and was first cousin of the present head and representative of the house, Richard Bingham, Esq., of Melcombe, Dorsetshire's Melcombe, in the county of Dorset. He was born in 1815, and, having entered the Army early in life, applied himself assiduously to the study of his profession, and soon acknowledged in the details of his branch of the service rendered him a valuable public servant. He, for six years, was Deputy Assistant Quarter-Master at Windsor, and was afterwards appointed Assistant Adjutant-General of the Royal Artillery, which he held for many years, and was promoted to the rank of Lieutenant-Colonel in 1845, a Lieutenant-Colonel in 1851, and a Colonel in 1861. Colonel Bingham married, in 1845, Henrietta, daughter of Lieutenant-Colonel Sir Alexander Dickson, K.C.B., R.A., who survives him, and has issue. Colonel Bingham served in the 12th instant, with military honours, his dog Hugh Hennessy the Duke of Cambridge, Major-General Commanding-in-Chief, and the officers of the Royal Artillery standing the funeral at Plumstead Church, Kent.

LIEUTENANT-COLONEL SURTEES.

Lieutenant-Colonel Surtees, of Hulam Park, in the bar at Lymington, aged eighty-five, had in early life gone through much hard service with great gallantry and credit, and had been wounded. Lieutenant in the Light Army in 1797, he was employed in 1800 with an Austrian corps d'armée, and was frequently engaged with the enemy's outposts in Italy and Germany. In 1801 he served in the Egyptian campaign, and took an active part, on the 13th and 21st of March, in the battle of Alexandria, where he was wounded. He received a double decoration for this campaign, when he was also appointed to the expedition to the Baltic, and was frequently engaged before Copenhagen. He subsequently served in the Peninsular war, and was present on the 31st of August, 1812, at the storming of Badajoz, where he was wounded. He was also present at the battle of Salamanca, and was wounded in the leg. He was also present at the battle of Vittoria, and was wounded in the leg. He was also present at the battle of Toulouse, and was wounded in the leg. He was also present at the battle of Waterloo, and was wounded in the leg. He was also present at the battle of Quatre Bras, and was wounded in the leg. He was also present at the battle of Ligny

NEW MUSIC.

SYDNEY SMITH'S CHANSON RUSSE. A beautiful and pleasing melody, greeted with remarkable favour and musician-like skill. A very favourite piece. Price 4s. ASHDOWN and PARRY, 75, Hanover-square.

SYDNEY SMITH'S DANSE NAPOLITAINE. A charming composition, and thoroughly effective piece, in the style of the Tarantella. 4s. net. ASHDOWN and PARRY, 75, Hanover-square.

SYDNEY SMITH'S FANDANGO. One of the most recent compositions of this talented and thoroughly popular composer. Price 4s. net. ASHDOWN and PARRY, 75, Hanover-square.

SYDNEY SMITH'S GAIETÉ DE CŒUR. A very spirited and brilliant Waltz; the most popular since the success of the composer's "Dream of Home." 4s. net. ASHDOWN and PARRY, 75, Hanover-square.

SYDNEY SMITH'S LE JET D'EAU. Played by the Composer at his Pianoforte recitals with great success. A brilliant, showy, and effective, and charming composition. Price 4s.—ASHDOWN and PARRY, 75, Hanover-square.

SYDNEY SMITH'S LA HARPE ÉOLIENNE. Effusely brilliant, one of the most popular and permanently successful pieces ever written. Price 4s. ASHDOWN and PARRY, 75, Hanover-square.

KUHE'S LA FAVORITA.—A remarkably effective and brilliant piece on the best melodies in Donizetti's popular opera of "La Favorita." ASHDOWN and PARRY, 75, Hanover-square.

CZANZ'S FURITANI.—A new and most admirable piece on airs from the splendid opera of Bellini. Price 4s.—ASHDOWN and PARRY, 75, Hanover-square.

CZANZ'S LA SONNAMBULA.—An elegant, pleasing, and most successful piece on Bellini's melodious and ever-popular opera. Price 4s. ASHDOWN and PARRY, 75, Hanover-square.

CZANZ'S QUI VIVE! Grand Galop. One of the most popular and brilliant pieces of the season. Illustrated London News, March 26. Price 4s. net. ASHDOWN and PARRY, 75, Hanover-square.

SING, BIRDIE, SING. GANZ'S popular Song, sung by Miss Poole at the Queen's Concert and other Concerts, with unparalleled success. Price 3s. ASHDOWN and PARRY, 75, Hanover-square.

Just published,

MY HEART IS WITH THINE. New Song. Words and Music by CHAS. W. GLOVER. Price 2s. 6d. CRAMER, BEALE, and WOOD, 201, Regent-street.

BRINLEY RICHARDS' BOLD MARCO. Sung by M. Sainton in "Sir Deniche." Transcribed for the Pianoforte by the Composer.—London: JOSEPH WILLIAMS, 11, Holborn-row; and 123, Cheapside.

W. KUHE'S BOLD MARCO. Sung by Sainton in "Sir Deniche." Transcribed for the Pianoforte. Brilliant and effective. 3s. London: JOSEPH WILLIAMS, 11, Holborn-row; and 123, Cheapside.

W. KUHE'S YE BANKS AND BRAES. Price 3s. A most effective and brilliant transcription for the Pianoforte, although far from being difficult of execution. London: JOSEPH WILLIAMS, 11, Holborn-row; and 123, Cheapside.

W. KUHE'S BOATMAN'S RETURN (on Spohr's popular song, "How, now, homeward we go"). Price 3s. London: JOSEPH WILLIAMS, 11, Holborn-row; and 123, Cheapside.

W. KUHE'S FANTAISIE DE CONCERT on Loder's Air, "Robin Adair" and "Coming thro' the Rye." Price 3s. London: JOSEPH WILLIAMS, 11, Holborn-row; and 123, Cheapside.

W. KUHE'S MY LODGING IS ON THE COLD GROUND. For the Piano. Price 4s. Brilliant and effective. London: JOSEPH WILLIAMS, 11, Holborn-row; and 123, Cheapside.

W. KUHE'S THE CAPTIVE'S GREEN MANTLE. Price 3s. Transcribed for the Pianoforte. London: JOSEPH WILLIAMS, 11, Holborn-row; and 123, Cheapside.

THE FRIEND'S GIFT.—A Collection of the most Popular Tunes arranged in a very easy and simple manner, and in the first position, for the Violin. Price 1s. 6d. Books (from 2 to 12 tunes in each). Price 3s. each. London: JOSEPH WILLIAMS, 11, Holborn-row; and 123, Cheapside.

W. H. MONTGOMERY'S BEL DEMONIO WALTZ. Performed at the Ordinaries, Cafés, Casinos, and Royal Balls of the Theatre Royal, Lyceum. London: JOSEPH WILLIAMS, 11, Holborn-row; and 123, Cheapside.

THE BOLD MARCO. Sung by M. Sainton in the popular drama "Sir Deniche." Performed by Brinley Richards' Band at the Crystal Palace. Price 3s. London: JOSEPH WILLIAMS, 11, Holborn-row; and 123, Cheapside.

C. H. MARRIOTT'S AVON QUADRILLE, composed expressly for the ball to be given by the Mayor of Stratford-on-Avon in commemoration of Shakespeare's birth. Band. Orchestral Parts in the press.—London: JOSEPH WILLIAMS, 11, Holborn-row; and 123, Cheapside.

REMINISCENCES OF SHAKESPEARE, for Orchestra. By C. W. MARRIOTT.
No. 1. THE FOREST.
2. THE BANQUET.
3. BALLET.
4. MACBETH.
With highly finished Illustrations to Shakespeare. Price 2s. each. METZLER and CO., 37, 38, 39, and 39, Great Marlborough-street, W.

THE AVON QUADRILLE, by F. BALL. Beautifully illustrated with Portraits of Shakespeare, Anne Hathaway's Cottage, Shakespeare's Monument, Stratford Church, &c. Price 4s. net. Solo, 2s. net. Septet, 2s. net. METZLER and CO., 37, 38, 39, 40, and 41, Great Marlborough-street, W.

AVON VALSES. By T. BROWNE. With superior chromolithograph of Stratford-on-Avon. Price 4s. Festival Set and Septet, 2s. net. METZLER and CO., 37, 38, 39, and 40, Great Marlborough-street, W.

Just published, the Twentieth Edition of the Celebrated Song,

GARIBALDI'S SONG, "On, follow me, brave Garibaldi!" By GEORGE LINLEY. METZLER and CO., 37, 38, 39, and 40, Great Marlborough-street, W.

CHRISTYS' MINSTRELS' MELODIES.
MOTHER, WOULD I COULD FORGET ME. Price 2s. 6d., post-free for 15 stamps.
METZLER and CO., 37, 38, 39, and 40, Great Marlborough-street, W.

NEWEST SONGS by POPULAR COMPOSERS.
"Hope." Virginia Gabriel ..... Price 2s. 6d.
"Sweet Memories." Virginia Gabriel ..... 2s. 6d.
"Oh, open my Door to Me." Virginia Gabriel ..... 2s. 6d.
"Fairy Bells." Virginia Gabriel ..... 2s. 6d.
"Invitation to the Dance." C. Wallworth ..... 2s. 6d.
"A Veil was Night" (Contralto). Ignace Gibsone ..... 2s. 6d.
METZLER and CO., 37, 38, 39, and 40, Great Marlborough-street, W.

NEW PIANOFORTE TUNES.
PFEIFFER'S LA RICHE (the Beehive) and THOSSEM'S MAUDELA DE SALON. Price 3s. each. Forty-eight Pianoforte Tunes, Quadrilles, Waltzes, &c.
METZLER and CO., 37, 38, 39, 40, and 41, Great Marlborough-street, W.

NEW SONG.—STARS THAT FAR IN HEAVEN'S DEEP SPHERE. COOKE and CO., New Burlington-street.

K U H E.—B A C H A N A L E, 4s.
KUHE.—A Bird de la Mer. Nocturne, 3s.
STUDIES MELODIQUES. Pianoforte Tutor, 4s.
SYDNEY SMITH.—Cascade de Roche. Morceau Elégant, 4s.
CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

MOUTRIE SMITH.—The Hunter. The Fairy Bell. 3s. each.
ASHDOWN and CO.'S Musical Library, 16, Newgate-st., and 84, Tot-tenham-court-road, Subscription, Two Guineas. Prospectus gratis.

THE ASYLUM FOR IDIOTS, Highwood Hill, Colney Hatch, and BLYTH HOUSE, Hayes, Middlesex, will be held, at the HANOVER-SQUARE ROOMS, on SATURDAY, the 30th inst., THURSDAY, the 5th of May, and SATURDAY, the 7th of May, under the Patronage of Her Majesty the QUEEN DOWAGER.
His Royal Highness the PRINCE OF WALES.
His Royal Highness the PRINCESS OF WALES.
The Right Hon. the EARL GRANVILLE, K.G.
ALLEN, Esq., Treasurer.
and other distinguished Personages.
Contributions are earnestly solicited in aid of Nothing for the poor, from knitting, painting, prints, books, autographs, photographs, minerals, shells, feathers, war, and paper flowers; wax flowers, embroidery, needlework, cabinets, boxes, writing desks, purses, glass, china, fancy articles, and any light manufactured articles, to be sent to the Asylum, Colney Hatch.
Contributions in money will be thankfully received by the Lady Vere.
JOHN CONOLLY, M.D., D.C.L., Hon. Secretary.
Offices, 26, Finsbury, E.C.

THE ALEXANDRA HOTEL, Hyde Park-corner, Belgravia, Pimlico, Fleet, Hampstead, and Kensington.—Bass's pale and strong ale, in casks and bottles, the lucerne and comforts of a private residence, with pure air and unadulterated wines, at the Alexandra Palace, in Victoria, Piccadilly, and Regents. Commercialisers to be addressed to the Secretary, Alexandra Palace, Victoria, Piccadilly, and Regents.

THE LONDON and NORTHERN BANK (Limited), 21, Old Broad-street, E.C.
Branches—Newcastle, Leeds, Sunderland, Stockton, Middlesbrough, and Alnwick.
Subscribed Capital, £600,000.
DEPOSIT ACCOUNTS are received on terms of five and twenty days' notice, and allowed for at the rate of 2 per cent. at the date, on all sums not subject to withdrawal upon shorter notice than the current rate of discount.
J. P. TURNER, Manager and Secretary.

TO PARENTS and GUARDIANS.—A CLERGYMAN, M.A., Oxford, of considerable experience, maintains principally amongst the nobility, clergy, and gentry, will be happy to receive TWO PUPILS to prepare for the Public Schools. Address the Rev. H. W., Messrs. Baker and Co., 168, Leadenhall-street, City, E.C.

A MARRIED MEDICAL GENTLEMAN, with a country residence residing within an hour from London, in one of the most picturesque villages of Buckinghamshire, is able to receive TWO YOUNG GENTLEMEN into his family, to board, clothe, and educate. Address, Dr. Hall, Post-office, Amersham.

For further particulars, apply, by letter, to "B. C. P." care of the Rev. Mr. Hall, Post-office, Amersham, Buckinghamshire.

MANILLA HOUSE, PECKHAM-RYE, S.E. Parents and Guardians desirous of obtaining for Youth a liberal EDUCATION, combined with the comforts of a happy home are respectfully invited to apply to JOHN DOUGLAS, Principal, as above mentioned.

THIRTY CHARMING COLOURED SILKS, Rainbow Shades, Checks, Stripes, and Plaids, in Baxter's celebrated patterns, are now sent post free for 24 stamps. Address, "The Queen," Baxter House, 74 to 81, St. Paul's-churchyard, London. Rich Broché Silks, the Morning Walk, Orphan at Self Possession, Dentition, Baby's Bedtime, Baby's Toilette, the Nursery, the Father's Return, Baby Bye, Baby's Dinner, Baby's Breakfast, Dentition, the Sisters Hem, Baby's Bedtime, the First Parting, the Nurse's Return, Baby's Toilette, Baby's Dinner, Baby's Breakfast, the Nursery, Baby's Bye, forming a set of twenty-four beautiful lithographs now published to the public. Address JOHN JEREMIAH BAXTER, Baxter House, 74 to 81, St. Paul's-churchyard, London.

BAXTER'S PATENT PICTURES in OIL COLOURS are now ready publishing, at 12, Northampton-square, London, and all booksellers, Price 1s. each, viz.:—

RODRIGUES' DRESSING CASES and TRAVELLING DRESSING BAGS, with silver or plated fittings, are the most complete and portable articles of the kind ever produced. Every article for the toilet, of the best quality. Elegant Nécessaires for Presentation.—RODRIGUES, 42, Piccadilly, W.

RODRIGUES' DESPATCH BOXES and the TRAVELLING DESPATCH CASE, in made or morocco, are the best quality. Elegantly Mounted Envelope Cases, Blotting Books, Writing Cases, &c.—RODRIGUES, 42, Piccadilly, W.

CARTE DE VISITE PORTRAIT ALBUMS, in splendid Binding, from 5s. to 10 guineas. Albums for Cabinet Portraits, Drawings, Autographs, Cartes de Visite, &c. Send size, as to RODRIGUES, 42, Piccadilly, W.

NO CHARGE MADE for STAMPING PAPER and ENVELOPES with Arms, Crest, or Monogram. Steel Illuminating Die, 5s. 6d. Arms Painted, 7s. 6d. Best Wedding Note full size, five quires for 4s. 6d. RODRIGUES', 42, Piccadilly.

A CARVING KNIFE and FORK, with a set of 300 CARDS printed, for 4s. 6d. Wedding Cards and Envelopes, the Queen's Head, Bride's Name, Date, and Monogram with Crest or Address at RODRIGUES', 42, Piccadilly.

JENNER and ENEWSTUB, to the Queen, the Prince of Wales, and the Royal Family, Manufacturers of Prize-medal Dressing-cases, Travelling, Dressing, and Writing Bags, Envelope Cases, Albums, Work-boxes, Tea-trays, Tea-caddies, Tea and Coffee Services, and Monogram and Seal Engraving. Illustrated paper, Lists free.—Jenner and Knowsley (late Price Mobbs awarded Prize Medal), 62, New Bond-street, and 33, Cornhill.

HAIR JEWELLERY.—G. HOOPER, Artist in Hair, 19, Gerrard-street, Soho, begs to inform the Nobility and Gentry that he has REMOVED from Leicester Square to 19, Gerrard-street, Soho, where he will be happy to receive their commands. Although I have only been established a few months, I have already secured the patronage of one half the royal charges. A beautiful collection of specimens, including Portraits of Her Majesty and the Royal Family, sent post-free.—Gerrard-street, 19, Prussian-street, London.

"RECONNOITRER" GLASS. 10s. 10d.! 1-inch best-free, wallet only 4 oz., and shows distinctly stations on the Thames 20 miles off. Sent to any railway station. An 8-inch gas lamp is available for twenty-five miles. (See test Advt.)

"RECONNOITRER" GLASS. 10s. 10d.! 1-inch best-free, wallet only 4 oz., and shows distinctly stations on the Thames 20 miles off. Sent to any railway station. An 8-inch gas lamp is available for twenty-five miles. (See test Advt.)

"RECONNOITRER" GLASS. 10s. 10d.! 1-inch best-free.—Gives complete satisfaction and is wonderfully portable. Sent to any railway station. Wallet only 4 oz. Sold by all opticians. Read the following test:—Shows distinctly the time on the Strasburg Cathedral clock, 52 miles off. Sent to any railway station, and found in fully equal to many which had cost more than £10 10s. Testimonials, &c., post-free.—Gun-maker, Birmingham.

"RECONNOITRER" GLASS. 10s. 10d.! 1-inch best-free.—Effective on the 100-yards range.—Gyptia Solar Cement Co. (Limited) have pleasure in stating that the above glass has given every satisfaction. Sent to any railway station. Wallet only 4 oz. Capstan. The MYTHE GLASS (No. 45) shows bullet-marks at 1000 yards. Sent to any railway station. Wallet only 4 oz. Price 21s. Sold by most Opticians, or 19, St. Vincent-place, Glasgow.

CAPTAIN ——'S CELEBRATED LORD BYRON TELESCOPE can only be had of J. E. RICHARD, Optician, 63, Strand, opposite Somerset House. Price 21s. Sent to any part of the kingdom, carriage paid. Also, a large assortment of Telescopes, Microscopes, Opera Glasses, &c.

THE PLANET JUPITER may be seen with a telescope magnifying 30 times, and the Belt Rings in the Full Moon is to be naked eye; and the other planetary bodies are distinctly visible with a telescope magnifying 30 times. Sold by Opticians in the Government Establishments.

THE PATENT SCRIBER, COMPASS, and THERMOMETER, all in one, the size of a watch, for telling the exact position of the sun, moon, and stars, and the time of day, by the pointers of the sun. Guaranteed for 12 months. Price £2 10s. and £3 3s.—J. and S. SOLOMONS, Opticians, 21, Almondsbury, Finsbury, E.C.

SPECTACLES.—The Patent Newly-invented SPECTACLE SPRINGS are patronised by the celebrity of the faculty, including Viscount Palmerston. They give extraordinary relief by day and night to weak, dim, and defective vision.
2, and 3, SOLOMONS, 21, Almondsbury-street, Finsbury.

DEAFNESS.—The Patent CONDUCTOR, for Deafness, is the most effective remedy ever invented. Sold by J. and S. SOLOMONS, and sent to any part of the kingdom, carriage free, for 10s. 6d. in stamps.—21, Almondsbury-street, Finsbury, E.C.

STAINED-GLASS WORKS, HEATING, GRATES, and BATHS have REMOVED to their New and Extensive Premises, King-street, Covent-garden, W.C.

TRELOAR'S COCOA-NUT MATTING and LINOLEUM FLOOR CLOTH WAREHOUSE, 42, Ludgate-hill, London.

ELECTRO-SILVER PLATE. — MAPPIN, BROTHERS, and CO., Manufacturers, guarantee the following to be of sterling quality, and exchange any article if not approved:—

	£	s.	d.	£	s.	d.
Table spoons or forks, per doz.	1	7	0	2	14	0
Dessert ditto	0	17	0	2	0	0
Tea spoons	0	10	0	1	4	0
Gravy and sauce ladles, per set	0	10	0	1	4	0
Dish covers, per set of four	3	10	0	10	10	0
Fiddle pattern table spoons	0	18	0	3	10	0
Fiddle pattern dessert ditto	0	14	0	2	16	0
12 full-size knives, in cases	1	15	0	3	15	0
12 full-size forks, in cases	1	15	0	3	15	0
12 full-size table knives, in cases	1	15	0	3	15	0
Bedroom Candlesticks, each	0	2	0	0	5	0
Silver ditto, each	0	12	0	1	10	0
Silver in all sizes, each	1	5	0	1	15	0
Cruet frames, 5 bottles	1	10	0	3	10	0
Ditto, 7 bottles	2	10	0	5	10	0

Tea and coffee sets, dish covers, corner dishes, and all other articles in the same proportion. Mappin Brothers, 71 and 72, Cornhill, City, are supplied daily from the Manufactory, 67, Royal Exchange, E.C., with the newest designs introduced for dessert and fine ornamental stocks in the United Kingdom. Cutlery Warehouse, 220, Regent-street, W.; Manufactory, Queen's-road West, 4, and 6, and 77, Sheffield.

PLATE.—A. B. SAVORY and SONS, Manufacturing Silversmiths, 11 and 12, Cornhill, London, respectfully invite attention to their new and elegant SPOONS and FORKS, Fiddle pattern, 7s. 6d. per ounce. Queen's pattern, 7s. 6d. per ounce. Kings pattern, 8s. 6d. per ounce. Lily pattern, 9s. 6d. per ounce. Fiddle, Thread, and Shell pattern, 10s. 6d. per ounce. A. B. SAVORY and SONS, 11 and 12, Cornhill.

	£	s.	d.	£	s.	d.
12 Table Spoons	1	17	6	3	15	0
12 Table Forks	1	17	6	3	15	0
12 Dessert Spoons	1	7	6	3	0	0
12 Dessert Forks	1	7	6	3	0	0
12 Tea Spoons	0	18	0	1	16	0
1 Pair Sugar Tongs	0	2	6	0	5	0
1 Sauce Ditto	0	1	6	0	3	0
1 Gravy Ditto	0	2	6	0	5	0
1 Fish Slice (pierced)	0	5	0	0	10	0
1 Pair Fish Carvers	0	5	0	0	10	0
1 Soup Ladle	0	5	0	0	10	0
1 Sauce Ditto	0	2	6	0	5	0
1 Marrow Scoop	0	2	6	0	5	0
1 Fish Slice (pierced)	0	5	0	0	10	0
1 Pair Fish Carvers	0	5	0	0	10	0
1 Soup Ladle	0	5	0	0	10	0
1 Sauce Ditto	0	2	6	0	5	0
1 Marrow Scoop	0	2	6	0	5	0

A pamphlet is published, with 350 Engravings, as a guide to the selection of Plate, Cutlery, Stoves, Fenders, Lamps, Baths, Bedsteads, Bedding, Bed-room Furniture, and Metal Goods, with prices and sizes of the most extensive and useful assortment of general plate for private use or presentation; also, of Cutlery, Stoves, Fenders, Lamps, Baths, and all other articles, Bedding, and jewellery. Gratis on application, and post-free to any part of the United Kingdom.

Orders above £2 forwarded carriage paid to any railway station. Arms, Crest, and Furnishing Orders promptly executed.
39, Oxford-street, 1, Newman-yard, and 4, Perry's-place,
Birmingham—Manufactory and Showrooms, Broad-street.
Established 1807.

GASELIERS in Crystal Glass, Ormolu, and Bronze. Dining Tables, Chandeliers, Lamps, and Candlesticks in vast variety. Every article marked with plain figures. WILLIAM S. BURTON, 39, Oxford-street, 1, Newman-yard, and 4, Perry's-place, W.

HANDSOME FURNITURE for an ELEGANT DRAWING-ROOM for £100, or to seen fitted up in WILLIAM S. BURTON'S Show-rooms, 39, Oxford-street, 1, Newman-yard, and 4, Perry's-place, W.

OLD OAK FURNITURE.—A Complete Suite of Dining-room Furniture, in handsomely carved antique oakboard, with plate-glass back, a fine dining-table, a sideboard to correspond, and a set of eight chairs, in rich old leather, for £50. Also, a Suite in Walnut-tree, Rose-wood, and other choice woods, in the Parisian manner, suitable for a library, or MODERN GREEK and GOTHIC FURNITURE, in great variety.

WALNUT SUITE OF DRAWING-ROOM FURNITURE, a great Bargain, of exciting quality, price £50. Also, a Suite in Rose-wood, Walnut-tree, and other woods, in every fashionable style, at 10 per cent. below the usual prices. Handsome Chimney Glasses, Pier Glasses, Console Tables, Ormolu Clocks, Candelabra, Lustres, Girandoles, Gilt Cornices, Curtain Poles, and other Furnishing Ironmongery, at WILLIAM S. BURTON'S, 39, Oxford-street, 1, Newman-yard, and 4, Perry's-place, W.

WALNUT SUITE OF DRAWING-ROOM FURNITURE, a great Bargain, of exciting quality, price £50. Also, a Suite in Rose-wood, Walnut-tree, and other woods, in every fashionable style, at 10 per cent. below the usual prices. Handsome Chimney Glasses, Pier Glasses, Console Tables, Ormolu Clocks, Candelabra, Lustres, Girandoles, Gilt Cornices, Curtain Poles, and other Furnishing Ironmongery, at WILLIAM S. BURTON'S, 39, Oxford-street, 1, Newman-yard, and 4, Perry's-place, W.

CHANDELIERS in BRONZE and ORMOLU for DINING-ROOM and LIBRARY, Candelabra, Modérateur Lamps, Table Glass, Dessert Services, Tea and Coffee Sets, Papier Maché Tea Trays, Tea Caddies, Urns, and Kettles.

OSLER'S GLASS CHANDELIERS, WALL LIGHTS, and Lustres, for Gas and Candles. Table Glass, Cut Glass Decanters for Spirits, Wines, and Cordials. OSLER'S Glass Dessert Services for 12 persons, from £3.
Osler's Crystal Glass Shades for Lamps.
Ornamental Glass Shades, Globes, Vases, Flowers, Fruit, Pendants, Rose, Export, and Furnishing Orders promptly executed.
OSLER, Manufacturer, 45, Oxford-street, W.
Birmingham—Manufactory and Showrooms, Broad-street.
Established 1807.

GASELIERS in Crystal Glass, Ormolu, and Bronze. Dining Tables, Chandeliers, Lamps, and Candlesticks in vast variety. Every article marked with plain figures. WILLIAM S. BURTON, 39, Oxford-street, 1, Newman-yard, and 4, Perry's-place, W.

HANDSOME FURNITURE for an ELEGANT DRAWING-ROOM for £100, or to seen fitted up in WILLIAM S. BURTON'S Show-rooms, 39, Oxford-street, 1, Newman-yard, and 4, Perry's-place, W.

OLD OAK FURNITURE.—A Complete Suite of Dining-room Furniture, in handsomely carved antique oak-board, with plate-glass back, a fine dining-table, a sideboard to correspond, and a set of eight chairs, in rich old leather, for £50. Also, a Suite in Walnut-tree, Rose-wood, and other choice woods, in the Parisian manner, suitable for a library, or MODERN GREEK and GOTHIC FURNITURE, in great variety.

WALNUT SUITE OF DRAWING-ROOM FURNITURE, a great Bargain, of exciting quality, price £50. Also, a Suite in Rose-wood, Walnut-tree, and other woods, in every fashionable style, at 10 per cent. below the usual prices. Handsome Chimney Glasses, Pier Glasses, Console Tables, Ormolu Clocks, Candelabra, Lustres, Girandoles, Gilt Cornices, Curtain Poles, and other Furnishing Ironmongery, at WILLIAM S. BURTON'S, 39, Oxford-street, 1, Newman-yard, and 4, Perry's-place, W.

HEDGES and BUTLER, 155, Regent-street, and 27, Duke-street, St. James's, W., beg to call attention to their varied Stock of WINES, amongst which will be found—

Sherry	at 16s., 18s., 24s., 30s., 36s., 42s., 48s., 54s. per Dozen.
Port	at 18s., 24s., 30s., 36s., 42s., 48s., 54s., 60s.	"
Champagne	at 30s., 36s., 42s., 48s., 54s., 60s., 72s., 84s.	"

Lists and Prices of all other Wines on application.
Originally established A.D. 1667.

WINES.—Cockburn's, Port, 40s.; Sherries, 30s. to 72s. Hunt, Roskell, and Co., 3, New Bond-street, by appointment to her Majesty the Queen and Royal Family, have obtained prize and clasp at the IMPERIAL WINE COMPANY, Paris, for their Sherries and Ports, and are now exhibiting remarkable pipes.

NATURAL WINES OF FRANCE, &c. JOHN ANDROTT and CO., of Bordeaux, and 15, Great Tower-street, London, Chateau and Shipping Agents, have now on sale a choice assortment of Vin Ordinaire, Cs., Médoc, 10s., 12s.; St. Julien, 14s.; Margaux, 16s.; Larose, 18s.; Lafitte, 20s.; Chateau, 24s.; Chateau Yquem, 36s. Sauternes, 12s., 14s.; Barsac, 16s.; Graves, 18s.; Sparkling Sauternes, 30s.; Red grapevine, 24s. to 30s.; 1st grapevine, 34s. to 36s.; Hermitage, 30s.; Burgundy, 30s.; Champagne, 36s.; Sparkling Burgundy, 36s.; Claret, 36s.; Hock, 36s.; Moselle, 36s.; Cape, 24s.; Marsala, 24s.; Sherry, 24s.; Port, 24s.; Madeira, 24s.; Vermouth, 24s.; Tarragona, 24s.; Roussillon, 24s.; Malaga, 24s.; Constantia, 24s.; Champagne, 36s. to 72s. Originally established A.D. 1667.

ALLSOPP'S ALE AND GUINNESS'S STOUT, in Bottle, of HIGH and MEDIUM Strength, Bottled and Corked best by the International Exhibition. Agents for Samuel Allsopp and Sons' Pale Ales and Guinness's Dublin Stout, Bottled and Corked by their Export Importers of Wines and Spirits. Offices and Stores, 61, Mark-lane, London. Pale Ales supplied on Draught Terms, for cash.

SAUCE.
LEA and PERRINS'
WORCESTERSHIRE SAUCE,
Pronounced by Connoisseurs
"The Only Good Sauce."
Rose genuine without the Name of LEA and PERRINS on Wrapper, Label, Bottle, and Stopper. Sold by CROSSE and BLACKWELL; Barclay and Sons; and by Dealers in Sauces throughout the World.

2280 AGENTS—Chemists, Confectioners, Perfumers, &c. or Booksellers—and HORNIMAN'S PURE TEA, in Packets, as imported, are appointed throughout the United Kingdom. Lists may be had on application to the Secretary.

J. S. FRY and SONS, Makers to the Queen and Prince of Wales.

FRY'S CHOCOLATE and COCOA. The Superiority of J. S. Fry and Sons' articles has been fully established by universal appreciation during a century.

FRY'S CHOCOLATE, IN STICKS for Use in the Navy.
DELICIOUS, ECONOMICAL, AND NUTRITIOUS.

MENIER'S FRENCH CHOCOLATE defies all Competition. The healthiest and most delicious dessert for breakfast. Unadulterated; highly nutritious. Annual consumption, 4,000,000 lbs. Sold in packets and boxes. Manufactory, Noisiel-sur-Marne, France.

TISON'S PEARL SEMOULE, for Puddings, Soups, &c. Nutritious, delicious, wholesome. Recommended by the faculty for the diseases of infants, invalids, and delicate individuals. Everybody requires it. Wholesale London Agents—RICHARDSON, Mathematical Instrument-street, Weeks, Lyncroft.

OSWEGO PREPARED CORN,
Prefer as Custards, Blancmanges, &c.
Sold by Grocers and Oilmen.
ILLUSTRATED PAMPHLET of Oswego, Hats of New York.

It is the offering of Nature herself, and is made established interest. Its wholesome and delicious qualities have rendered it a favourite with the people of England, and it is now used in every part of the habitable globe.

Sold by grocers in any of the institutions, has a four grain, and it is made from the choicest corn.

Prepared by the natural golden tinge, and not the chalk white produced by adulteration.

KERR, ROBINSON, BELLVILLE, and CO., London.

KEEN'S GENUINE MUSTARD, Sold by all Grocers, Oilmen, and Druggists throughout the World. We guarantee the perfect Purity of this Mustard.
KEEN, ROBINSON, and BELLVILLE, London.

LETTERS PATENT—PRIZE MEDAL 1851.
ROBINSON'S PATENT GROATS is the most valuable preparation of oats for making gruel, and for all kinds of delicate cookery. Numerous analyses have shown that this food is easy of digestion and highly nutritious.
ROBINSON'S PATENT BARLEY makes a most delicious transparent jelly, and is the best barley for thickening soups, broths, &c. Prepared as a non-glutinous flour, it is the most economical barley for mutton carving; and has long been used with great success for preparing infants' food.—KERR, ROBINSON, BELLVILLE, and CO., London.

Packets 1d.
BROWN AND POLSON'S
PATENT CORN FLOUR.
Much recommended for Children's Diet.

CANDLES.—Price Medal. PARAFFINE, 7d. per lb. Sperm, 8d. Composite, 6d. Wax, 8d. Moulds, 7d. Price Medal Candles are manufactured from the finest Sperm and Stearine, and received the Prize Medal, entitling the public security against any imitations. Price Medal is a registered mark, and is stamped on every candle. Sold by the Chandlers. Wholesale and for exportation at the Works, Belvedere-road, Lambeth. Price Medal Moulded Stair and Hall Candles. United Service Soap Company (Limited).

BEDROOM CANDLES.
PRICE'S CANDLES, which will not drop in the Candlesticks, are sold by Grocers, Oilmen, &c., in 1s. and 6s. each, are recommended as the best economists. PRICE'S PATENT CANDLE COMPANY, Belmont, Vauxhall, London.

PRICE'S CANDLES.—The Queen has graciously appointed SHERWOOD ROGERS HEDGLEY, in packets of 36 candles each, to be delivered at Windsor Castle. Sherwood Rogers Hedgley, Oxford-street, Pimlico, and Belgrave-road, Pimlico.

PRICE'S CANDLECTICKS to fit this candle, 1s. and 2s. 6d. each. Reading candles, made for the Duke of Wellington's use. Sold by Grocers, Oilmen, &c.

Patentee of Sperm Candle Company (Limited), London.

FIELD'S CELEBRATED UNITED STEARIC SOAP TABLETS, 4d. and 6d. each, sold by all Chandlers and Grocers throughout the United Kingdom. Field's Stearic Soap Tablets are the best for the Nursery, Bath, and Toilet. Wholesale and for exportation at the Works, Belvedere-road, Lambeth. Price Medal Candles are now by ordinance their Price-medal Pantiles Candles.

PRICE'S CANDLECTICKS TO BURN CANDLES TO A CLOSE. THE PRINCESS OF WALES.
GLENFIELD PATENT STARCH, used in the Royal Laundry,
Awarded the Prize Medal, 1862.

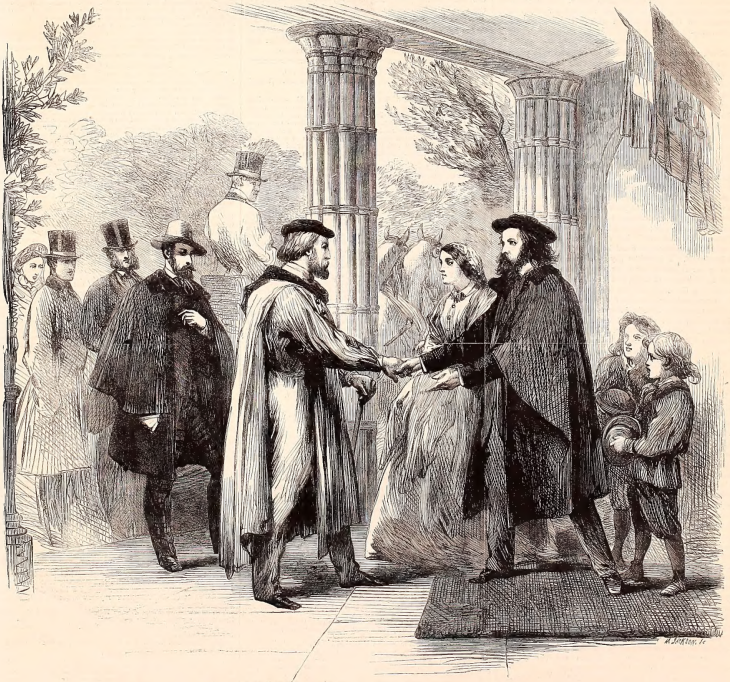
CARSONS' ORIGINAL ANTI-CORROSION PATENT, specially adapted for all outdoor work, as iron, wood, and canvas, and recommended by the Admiralty, Trinity House, Board of Ordnance, Board of Works, Railway Companies, and all the principal shipowners, dockyards, and engineers. Sold in red and white lead, ochres, and all colours, in dry powder, or ready for use, in oil, paste, or varnish, by the Patentees, CARSON and SONS, Manufacturers of Chemicals, Millwall, London, E.C., and 8, St. James's-street, S.W.

DYSPEPSIA.—MORSON'S PEPSINE WINE and LOZENGES are the most effective remedies for this popular remedy. Manufactured by T. Morson and Son, 31 and 46, Southampton-row, Russell-square, W.C., and sold by all Chemists. Pepsine Wine, 4s. 6d., 9s., and 18s. per bottle. Lozenges, 2s. 6d. per box.

ALL afflicted with WEAK EYES may obtain instant relief by using Dr. WARNEKE'S EYE WATER. It removes all inflammation without pain, and, by its cooling and tonic properties, it invigorates the weak and defective vision. Sold in bottles, 2s. 9d., 4s. 6d., and 11s. each.—Prepared only by Dr. Warneke, 9, Finsbury-circus, London.

SKIN DISEASE.—Dr. HARVEY'S CHARCOAL PURIFIER is a most valuable Preparation in all Skin Diseases. It is certain and safe in its effects. In pots, at 2s. 9d., and 4s. 6d. each.—Prepared only by J. L. THOMPSON, Boston. London Agents—Barclay and Sons.

Printed and Published at the Office, 198, Strand, in the Parish of St. Mary-le-Strand, in the County of Middlesex, by JOHN LOVELL, of No. 6, Upper Woburn-place, in the Parish of St. Pancras, in the County aforesaid.—SATURDAY, April 16, 1864.



THE ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS.

No. 1256.—VOL. XLIV. SATURDAY, APRIL 23, 1864. WITH A SUPPLEMENT, FIVEPENCE

ENGLAND'S WELCOME TO GARIBALDI.

WE do not wonder at the surprise excited abroad by the reception given to General Garibaldi by the people of this country. The demonstration has assumed proportions of grandeur which have astonished us at home. Since England became a nation, there never sounded forth such a thunder-peal of welcome to any stranger, whether of high or low degree, as that with which the hero of Marsala and the wounded soldier of Aspromonte has been received. We hinted, on his arrival at Southampton, not without a feeling of regret, that our fellow-countrymen might find some difficulty in selecting modes of giving to their emotions an utterance in harmony with the majestic simplicity and moral impressiveness of Garibaldi's character. We did them wrong. They have fully risen to the occasion. Their impromptu greetings have testified to their appreciation of their illustrious guest far more significantly, far more appropriately, than the most imposing ceremonies could have done. One of the sublimest spectacles which this world can witness is that which a great nation displays when suddenly surprised into showing its throbbing heart. We are a people of somewhat cold exterior, not readily excited, generous, for the most part, in our sympathies in the event of our expression of them. We are not adepts, as some other peoples are, in giving a fitting body to the soul which dwells within us. But when such an impassive nation starts up unbidden, as one man, and pours out in unrestrained freedom its inmost feelings, the effect is overwhelming. Garibaldi has touched the usually hidden spring of our national emotion as no man ever touched it before, and every nerve of the body politic has felt the thrill of a new life. The movement of that life has been entirely unaffected from in which to render itself fittingly visible to the world; it had but to show, in the most natural way, its own spontaneity, its universality, its fulness, and the moral power of this display was sure to strike the astonishment of surrounding nations.

THE MEETING OF GARIBALDI AND TENNYSON AT FARINGFORD HOUSE, ISLE OF WIGHT.—SEE PAGE 398.

They who look for some political mystery beneath the outburst of enthusiasm which has recently startled them would do well to bear in mind that no such demarcation can be got up to order in any country, least of all in this. It may be taken for granted that when the name of Garibaldi exerts a talismanic influence of unprecedented potency over all classes of society, and inspires a common sentiment of affectionate, we may even say passionate, admiration into the bosoms of the nobility, the middle classes, and the toiling millions, something more than a political purpose is needed to account for so unique a phenomenon. Neither rulers nor politicians can succeed in making English society throughout all its grades, and all its variety of interests, play the puppet. To sway all hearts towards the same object, as the leaves of the forest are swayed by the breath of heaven, is an endowment which neither diplomacy nor conspiracy is equal. The secret lies so near the surface, that politicians are apt to overlook it. They search for a design where no design is to be found. Our great dramatic bard might have taught them better. Three centuries ago he expounded in one pregnant line the law which fully accounts for the warmth with which Garibaldi has been welcomed—

One touch of nature makes the whole world kin.

And yet, after all, the magnificent reception so spontaneously given by all ranks to the illustrious hero has been very remarkable. The qualities he has exhibited in his career are not precisely those which one would have unhesitatingly pronounced the most likely to win the hearts of the English people, nor the enterprises in which he has borne so glorious a part just such as would strike their universal sympathy. England has no selfish interest in the fame of the great Italian patriot. His deeds have shed no special honour upon her other than the glory with which they have irradiated humanity, and which she shares with the other civilised nations of the world equally from no peril. He has added nothing to her security. His excites in her no expectations of future benefit. Her people, prosperous, contented, loyal, and free, crave nothing, and, indeed, have nothing to gain, from the career of the man to which he has consecrated his whole soul. She watched with over deepening interest the rapid formation into one kingdom of several Italian States: she hailed her new sister with undisguised gladness; she cherishes for her the warmest wishes; but it is questionable whether she could be persuaded to take up arms in her behalf. It is not by any identification of her own advantage, or reputation, or hopes, or ambition, with the unity and independence of Italy, and the next step indirectly to the exploits of Garibaldi, that she has been moved to fold him in her fervent embrace. Neither does he possess those attractions which are usually thought indispensable to the enthusiasm of the British people. No Royal blood flows in his veins. His rank is not with the nobility. He boasts of no ancestral domains. He is a plebeian, he is poor, he is a foreigner. Here, then, at any rate, there are no adventitious aids to enchanting in position or in possession calculated to dazzle the multitude. And yet England has discovered in this man somewhat that has wellnigh made her beside herself with enthusiasm, and the homage she pays to him, and the zest with which she has paid it, has been such as Kings might sigh for in vain.

The explanation is not very far to seek. Garibaldi's wonderful career has sprung out of that peculiar type of character which makes the irresistible appeal to the sympathies of men of the British race. Courage that never vaunts itself, but, when occasion calls, calmly dares any extremity of danger; energies that are ever seeking to expend themselves upon an object worthy of them; unquenchable fervour of liberty; devotion to his country, the purest and most unselfish; a heart as romantic for tenderness as for magnanimity; and a lofty superiority to everything like debasement sued to the world in every act of human nature; in a word, a soul glowing with the interested moral life—such is the combination of qualities which has mastered, without seeking to do it, the feelings which lie deep down in the bosoms of our fellow-countrymen. A more showy hero, even with a more romantic history than that of Garibaldi, would not have won them so easily or so completely. A less severely simple and self-sacrificing one might have attracted towards himself a gaze of curiosity and wonder; but it is the special feature of Garibaldi's visit to England that it has evoked an outburst of feeling in which affection is predominant, and of which admiration, though a considerable element. The man has glided into our hearts with a silent power which it delights them to feel; and, for the time being at least, has made us recognise in ourselves the force of those impulses which constitute the hidden and too generally neglected germs of all goodness and greatness.

The ultimate effect which the Garibaldian demonstrations will have upon the policy of certain Continental States has never, we venture to say, entered into the thoughts of one in a thousand of the population who have taken part in them. Nevertheless, it would be folly to contend that they have had no political significance, or that they may not be followed by important political consequences. The name of Garibaldi is at this moment the popular symbol of national unity, independence, and liberty; and the honour which has been paid to that name by all parties and all classes of society in England cannot but suggest grave matter for the consideration of foreign statesmen, while it will be sure to exert a liberalising influence upon the British Government, whatever may be allow the Government to speak for us—morally, the nation speaks for herself. Neither European Potentate nor people can henceforth remain in ignorance of the true national sentiment of Great Britain. The reception which has been given to Garibaldi is regarded as the purest representative; and the events of the last fortnight will probably be borne in mind by both Sovereigns and their Ministers in framing affairs shall compel them to decide whether they will advance to the liberalism or recede from it in the arrangements they may contemplate for the government of their respective peoples.

In conclusion, we have to express our intense regret, but not by any means our surprise, that Garibaldi's health appears to be unequal to the strain brought to bear upon it by the enthusiastic homage paid to him by his English friends—that his physician has uttered a word of warning—and that his instant return to Caprera seems to have been thought advisable. The admirers of the illustrious General in the provinces will suffer grievous disappointment by the carrying out of this decision, but it would, no doubt, be folly to think of leaving it removed at the expense of his health, his energies, or, possibly, his life. The moral effect of his visit, it is true, can hardly be increased by a prolongation of his sojourn amongst us. So far as regards the masses, the whole population of this kingdom has already grasped his hand and greeted him with reverential and affectionate admiration. But if, in any case, one could have wished that Garibaldi's progress could have been stayed, it is not for the sake of all the parties concerned, it is a matter of lively regret that the people of England cannot express all that they feel towards the magnanimous patriot of Italy without crushing his physical power beneath the weight of the admiration and honour they have it in their hearts to bestow upon him.

LATEST NEWS FROM ABROAD.

The following telegrams have been received through Mr. Reuter's office:—

THE DANO-GERMAN WAR.—Berlin, April 21.—The King has left for the seat of war. Advices from Rendsburg state that Marshal von Wrangel had arrived there. The town was decorated.

Berlin, April 22.—The Prussian attack, April 18, after loss on Monday in killed and wounded amounted to 60 officers and upwards of 1000 men. The Danish loss in killed, wounded, and taken is 1000 men. Eight hundred and eleven Prussians, many of whom are severely wounded, have been brought to Berlin, and are now in hospital.

Rendsburg, April 21.—The King of Prussia, accompanied by the Minister of War, Herr von Roon, arrived here this morning. His Majesty was received by the Governor, Count Waldersee, and Herr Wiggers addressed the King, who replied in cordial terms. Young ladies, dressed in white, with coloured sashes, strewed flowers before the King. The band played the Prussian national hymn.—Herr Reimers of Schleswig-Holstein amidst the cheers of the people. Salutes were fired from the fortress. The town was decorated with flowers.

Flensburg, April 21.—The King of Prussia arrived here at eleven o'clock this morning, and was received by the Crown Prince, Prince Frederick Charles, and Field Marshal von Gablenz. His Majesty drove through the town, which was decorated with flowers. Salutes were fired. The King lunched at the Hotel Ravch, and proceeded at 12 o'clock to the front.

New York, April 9, Morning.—A slight engagement, lasting three hours, occurred on the 28th ult., thirty-five miles above Alexandria, Louisiana, between 2000 Federals and the Confederates, who were estimated 12,000 strong. The Federals are reported to have captured 1000 prisoners, 10 cannon, destroying, and subsequently to bring on a general engagement. The Confederate ram Tennessee is reported to be at Fort Pats, Mobile, waiting for the Cable. The Senate has passed a resolution amending the Constitutions so as to abolish slavery throughout the States. The House of Representatives and the State Legislatures. In Louisiana the election for Governor has resulted in favour of Hahn. Ireland at Mobile, one hundred dead and 800 wounded were conveyed to the island."

The Times of Monday contained that day's telegraphed hostilities until six p.m. of that day, in order to allow the Danes to evacuate Sonderburg. The Danes were evacuating up to that time, the bombardment would be renewed. In the afternoon a large Danish force left Alsen, and commenced to land in Fynen, whereupon the Danes will still hold the island.

A Gravenhage telegram states that immediately after the storming of the tête-de-pont of Sonderburg the greater part of the troops and the artillery were ordered to cross into Fynland, to occupy the whole of that province and to besiege Fredericia.

The appointment of Lord Wodehouse and Odo Russell to arrive at the Conference in London took place at the official residence of the First Lord of the Treasury, on Wednesday; but no business could be transacted, in consequence of the absence of the Austrian and Prussian Ambassadors. They abstained from attending, it is understood, because, in their judgment, they could not assist at the task until the arrival of Mr. Bernstorff, the representative of the German Confederation. Prince Gortschakoff, however, was expected to arrive in a day or two, and the next meeting of the Conference was fixed for Monday next, the 25th instant.

THE MEXICAN EMPIRE.

Napoleon has formally recognised M. Hidalgo, the Minister of the Emperor of Mexico.

The correspondence between France and Mexico has been published. It states that the French troops are to be reduced as soon as possible to 25,000 men, that Mexico is to pay the charges, and that they will gradually evacuate Mexico according as the organisation of the army proceeds. Count Flahault is appointed ambassador, but not to intervene in Mexican administrative affairs. The expenses of the expedition, up to July, 1864, are fixed at 270 millions of francs, which Mexico is to begin paying off at twenty-five millions a year, and to pay 12 millions a year for each French soldier to be retained in her service after July. A committee is to be formed for the liquidation of French subsidies.

Count de Gormany, formerly governor of the Bank of France, is to be president of the commission of the Mexican administration of the foreign debts of the Mexican empire.

The Emperor and Empress of Mexico sailed from Miramar on Thursday week. Before starting, the Emperor signed decrees for the second and eighth loans, and for the issuing of banking tickets. His Majesties arrived at Rome on Monday and were received enthusiastically. From that city he issued his new empire on Wednesday.

A telegram from Mexico, published in the Monitor, says the army of Juarez no longer exists, and that the President is himself a fugitive in hiding. Only a few bands of robbers disturb the peace of the new regime.

SPAIN.

The Queen was to leave Madrid, for Aranjuez, on Friday (yesterday), accompanied by the King and Queen Mother.

The bill annulling the constitutional reform has been adopted in the Chamber of Deputies by 134 votes to 7.

Advices from Santo Domingo state that the town of Palmas and the insurgent garrison, together with the stores of provisions and munitions, had fallen into the hands of the Spaniards. The Government is preparing for a decisive campaign in the autumn.

ITALY.

The Parliament has resumed its sittings. In the Chamber of Deputies on Monday, the Minister of Finance presented his Budget for 1865, and a project for the conversion of the Consolidé up to the 1st of January, 1864. Several bills, among which was one for the reform of the Code of Commercial Procedure, have been brought forward. The Minister of Marine introduced a bill to raise a credit of 7,000,000*l.*, to be applied to the construction of iron-plated vessels, and to retain in force several of the articles of the law relating to brigandage was brought forward by the Minister of the Interior.

DENMARK AND GERMANY.

The Danish position at Duppel has fallen, as the telegram received last week foretold, and the Prussians are pushing the hold face up to Sonderburg by the Danes. Daily the Prussians draw nearer to the redoubts, and the last decisive struggle was made on Monday, the Prussians began the assault at ten in the morning; and the result, telegraphed from Berlin, is contained in the following:—"After the most desperate resistance of the Danes were taken, the bridge over the Sound destroyed, and fifty-one Danish officers, with 1000 privates taken prisoners. Upwards of 1000 Danes have been killed, and seven guns—two generals, sixty officers, and 600 privates killed or wounded. The Prussians have captured eighty-three guns and many flags. The fighting was evidently, therefore, very severe.

A despatch from Berlin says that the Prussian army encamped in that capital by salutes of artillery the same evening. Great crowds of people surrounded the King's residence, cheering the King and Queen and singing the Prussian national hymn. Their Majesties appeared on the balcony. Illuminations, in honour of the victory of Duppel, were given also for the army, and many houses were illuminated.

The King of Prussia, in the following despatch, announces to Prince Frederick Charles, whose head-quarters are at Spitzberg, near Gravenstein, on the East Coast of Schleswig, that he has issued the splendid army and thy leadership for the glorious victory of this day. Express to the troops my highest acknowledgment and my Royal thanks for their extraordinary bravery.—WILHELM."

A telegram from Copenhagen on Tuesday evening reports thus:—After a violent bombardment, the Prussians stormed the line of the redoubts, which was renewed with still greater violence at daybreak, our redoubts were then abandoned. Simultaneously, however, the fire, having been taken, a retreat commenced; but the attack was then so fierce that the troops could not be rallied (a gaining) and retreated with great loss. General Duplat was severely wounded and taken prisoner. The General commanding the artillery was also taken prisoner. The greater portion of the first brigade is missing, and scarcely one half of the eighth fell can be collected. The remnant of the eighth, after the compassion, effected more favourably, but also with great loss. The force occupying the tête-de-pont held it even after the batteries had been dismounted and the bridge had been cut. The Island of Alsen. One hundred dead and 800 wounded were conveyed to the island."

The Times of Wednesday contained that day's telegraphed hostilities until six p.m. of that day, in order to allow the Danes to evacuate Sonderburg. The Danes were evacuating up to that time, the bombardment would be renewed. In the afternoon a large Danish force left Alsen, and commenced to land in Fynen, whereupon the Danes will still hold the island.

A Gravenhage telegram states that immediately after the storming of the tête-de-pont of Sonderburg the greater part of the troops and the artillery were ordered to cross into Fynland, to occupy the whole of that province and to besiege Fredericia.

The appointment of Lord Wodehouse and Odo Russell to arrive at the Conference in London took place at the official residence of the First Lord of the Treasury, on Wednesday; but no business could be transacted, in consequence of the absence of the Austrian and Prussian Ambassadors. They abstained from attending, it is understood, because, in their judgment, they could not assist at the task until the arrival of Mr. Bernstorff, the representative of the German Confederation. Prince Gortschakoff, however, was expected to arrive in a day or two, and the next meeting of the Conference was fixed for Monday next, the 25th instant.

AMERICA.

The military news from America is of little interest. Heavy rains had fallen, and the roads in the mountainous districts of Virginia had made any movement; but General Grant had proceeded from Washington to Culpepper, to inspect the troops. Sherman's advance was still active in West Tennessee and Kentucky. The Federal expedition which ascended the Red River to Alexandria was continuing its advance towards Shreveport.

The Federal House of Representatives had passed resolutions deploring recent events in Mexico, and declaring that it can never accord with American interests to recognise a monarchy established on the ruins of a sister republic under the auspices of a European State.

The great metropolitan fair at New York in aid of the United States Sanitary Commission was inaugurated on the 4th inst. The City was decorated as a holiday in New York. Great thousands of dollars took part in the ceremony, and the people turned out en masse.

The Republican ticket has been elected by a large majority in Connecticut.

CHINA.

A telegram from Shanghai tells of the arrival there of Sir Harry Parkes, who had taken charge of the Consulate. Major Gordon had attacked Ishing, which was afterwards evacuated by the garrison. Frightful destruction is said to prevail in Northern China.

THE EMPEROR OF AUSTRIA has postponed the International Exhibition, which was to take place in 1864 at Vienna, assigning several reasons for the postponement.

An exhibition and sale of Polish jewellery is taking place at the private hotel of Prince Czartoriski, Paris, of a very affecting character. More than 600 female ornaments of every description, including even many wedding-rings, have been forwarded by Polish ladies, in disgust of for the sad and hoards of their suffering and wounded countrymen. The sale is expected to realise a considerable amount.

Captain Speke was entertained yesterday week at a meeting of the French Geographical Society. The meeting was presided over by Count Walewski, and was attended by a crowded audience. Captain Speke was received with rapturous applause.

GARIBALDI.

EARLY in the week it was buzzed about, and the rumours quickly assumed the consistency of fact, that the Chief of General Garibaldi to this country was to be brought summarily to a close. Since the General's stay in London he has been subjected to much excitement and has been compelled to undergo an amount of labour which would have tried the constitution of a young and vigorous man, and which, it is now discovered, has greatly retarded his recovery, if it has not jeopardised his health to a considerable extent. Although no fears were entertained to a late period last week that the General would be enabled to visit the north of England, and pay all the visits (thirty-two in number) which had promised to make, his medical advisers were imperatively urge the necessity for retirement and rest. From correspondence published it appears that Garibaldi has given up all his country engagements in obedience to the advice of his Professor Ferguson, who advises the Duke of Sutherland and Mr. Seely that their guest is suffering already from mental fatigue, and that to fulfil his engagements would "kill the stranger." Mr. Seely, therefore, according to present arrangements, leaves London at once to visit Colonel Peard in Cornwall, thence embarking in the Duke of Sutherland's yacht for Capreræ. Such is the necessary and unavoidable manner in which our hero has been spirited off the stage; and, to make confusion worse confounded, the surgeon in attendance on Garibaldi, his countryman, denies that the General's health is bad or in peril. In both Houses of Parliament, as will be seen in our Parliamentary report, the Ministers declined on the present moment that political reasons have nothing to do with Garibaldi's departure. So we are left each to his own conjectures, and to such elucidations of the mystery as may from time to time stray into question of the departure of Garibaldi from England was warmly discussed, on Wednesday evening, at a meeting of the joint committee—Mr. E. Miall in the chair. The Duke of Sutherland's explanation to the causes which had led the General to arrive at his determination, and especially denied that there had been any Government interference in the matter, was received with loud cheers. Numerous gentlemen expressed strong opinions that there had been occult influences at work. Finally, it was resolved that a deputation should wait upon the General, to ask him to defer his departure, and to visit the chief towns in the provinces, as he originally proposed. The deputation had an interview with the General at a late hour, when he promised to consider the matter maturely in communication with Mr. Edmond Beales next morning. We understand that Mr. Beales, though he received no letter on Thursday morning from Garibaldi, has received communications which have led him to think that the General adheres to his original determination to leave for Caprera, without visiting the provinces.

Meanwhile the people's favour towards Garibaldi has not cooled, as will be seen by our brief review of the events of the last few days.

Yesterday week (Thursday) Garibaldi, the Duke of Sutherland, preceded by the Midland Railway to Bedford, to witness some experiments in the cultivation of sewage by irrigation and intersection, which were conducted by Messrs. Howard, the well-known agricultural engineers of Bedford. Report of the day is favourable, and the General was much interested in this, to him, novel application of the sewage of towns. He left by the afternoon express, every spot at which a view of Garibaldi could be obtained was crowded with enthusiastic spectators. In the evening he dined with Mr. Panizzi, at the British Museum.

On Saturday morning Garibaldi visited the brewery of Messrs. Barclay, Perkins, and Co., in Southwark. The General was received at that establishment determined to make the occasion of this visit in every respect a memorable one to the firm. Mr. Barclay, one of there some years ago, and their conduct was on Saturday as warm and enthusiastic as it is for former occasions to be found in this city. He afterwards went to the Crystal Palace, where from 20,000 to 30,000 persons assembled in the Nave. The occasion of the reception" was mainly an Italian one. He received from bodies of his countrymen a sword, a staff, and a cap, and a flag bearing the motto "Rome and Venice." A sword was also presented to his son Menotti. The presentations were made in Italian and addressing Italians — Garibaldi threw off the reserve which he had hitherto maintained, and spoke with a freedom which contrasted remarkably with the cautious tone of his first public addresses which he had previously delivered. He warmly thanked the Government and people of England for the enthusiasm which he rendered to the cause of Italian unity, and bade his countrymen "imitate them, and abandon their unfortunate party quarrels and their imperishable love of liberty." He denounced the conduct of Prussia and Austria "in trying to put a little corner of Italy under the no assistance from anyone, and has only its native strength to resist the invaders" and said he yet hoped to be able to speak of Rome and Venice the sword which had been presented to him. In the evening he dined with Lord and Lady Palmerston at Cambridge House, and departed on Saturday.

On the last week Messrs. W. Moxon, Horace, and Augustus Platt, three brothers, who fought through a considerable portion of the 1860 campaign with Garibaldi, waited on him at Stafford House, and, though he was engaged at the time, the men were at once homes he sent for them, shaking hands warmly, and remaining in conversation for nearly half an hour.

An affecting scene occurred on Sunday at Stafford House on the occasion of General Garibaldi receiving a deputation from the members of the Lodge Philadelphes, of which the General is a member, headed by the Grand Master of the Lodge. The party was served with them in their respective languages—the deputation consisting of English, Italians, Poles, Germans, &c. The Grand Master all speaking a different tongue, the General exclaimed with evident emotion in the Italian, "What! is the whole world represented here?" and large tears rolled down the gallant General's furrowed cheeks. In the afternoon he made a round of visits. In the course of the day he visited Miss Nightingale in Park-street, and then going to dined with Signor Fabbricotti, at Lorando House, Clapham Park. Signor Semenzo and a circle of Italians were also of the party.

On Monday, as customary, the General was shout early. He gave audiences to several deputations, amongst others to that which was introduced by Mr. Harvey Lewis, M.P. A deputation from the Polish Lodge Sarmatia, of which Garibaldi is honorary and an honorary membership of the lodge, both of which he cordially accepted. A deputation of Italian operatives, to the number of audience, and presented an address, throughout the reading of which the General displayed the greatest interest. On its conclusion he expressed himself strongly in favour of the Dance. The visitors who called at Stafford House this day were numerous. General Garibaldi left at a quarter past ten, in the Duke of Sutherland's carriage, with Mr. Seely, M.P., for the latter's residence at Townshend-end, St. John's-wood, where he stopped for a short time, and afterwards paid a visit to M. Lenzo Rollin, at St. John's-wood house, Melina-terrace, St. John's-wood. Garibaldi paid a second visit to Crystal Palace. On the same day Mr. Anderson, chairman of the Peninsular and Oriental Steam Company, to thank him for the liberality of the company in giving him and his friends a free passage in the Hipon. At the palace from 20,000 to 30,000 of the middle and working classes were assembled to see him, and about sixty addresses were presented to him. The day was lovely, and Garibaldi had the opportunity, which was denied him on Saturday, of seeing the building and its grounds lighted up with brilliant sunshine. His reception was as enthusiastic as on any former occasion. After a rush of people to shake hands, the General set out of the building, and returned to London, going to Mr. Seely's town house, in Parliament, where he remained for the week. That evening he dined with the Marquis of Clanricarde.

In the course of Tuesday morning a large number of addresses were presented to Garibaldi. A numerous body of members of the House of Commons and other gentlemen met at Mr. Seely's, by invitation, in order to pay their respects to Garibaldi. At half-past seven o'clock Garibaldi, accompanied by his sons, Mr. Seely, and a large party, proceeded to Her Majesty's Theatre to witness the performance of the opera "Lucrezia Borgia." He had an enthusiastic reception.

On Wednesday morning Garibaldi proceeded to the Guildhall to receive the freedom of the City. His reception during the progress from Prince's-gate to the Guildhall was as flattering to him as any of his former welcomes. There was a brilliant assemblage of carriages along the line of the park to see him pass, and the streets all along the route were filled with a crowd patient enough to wait in quiet and as easily regulated, as that which greeted his entrance into London. General Garibaldi, accompanied by Mr. Seely, M.P., Mr. Peard, and other gentlemen, left Mr. Seely's house at Prince's-gate about twelve o'clock. He proceeded by way of Park-lane and Piccadilly, turning down St. James's-street, and so into Pall-mall, and straight along the route to the Guildhall, passing down the Strand, Fleet-street, Gallery, into the Strand. The carriages then passed through Temple Bar, along Fleet-street, Ludgate-hill, the south side of St. Paul's, Cheapside, turning up King-street, Cheapside, to the Guildhall, arriving at the Guildhall the General was received by Alderman Sir James Duke, Bart., M.P., Baron Rothschild, M.P., Mr. Alderman Lawrence, M.P., and Mr. Gibchen, M.P., the four members for the City; the Town Clerk (Cochrane), the Chamberlain (Sir Benjamin Hall), the Deputy Chamberlain, Remembrancer, City Solicitor, City Chamberlain, the High Bailiff of Southwark, and the Sheriffs and Aldermen, with the whole of the Aldermen and Common Councilmen, in their robes. The Council Chamber was crowded by the Lord Mayor and many of their friends. In the immediate locality of the dais, where the seat of the Lord Mayor was placed, the greatest interest was shown at the resolution, with Mr. B. Scott, the Chamberlain, took their places. After the General had entered the Court had been gone through, the Chamberlain read an address to the General, which was read by the past career, and then presented him, amidst tremendous cheers, with the gold box containing the freedom of the City, which was enclosed in the Court. The General subscribed his name as a freeman of the City's Company, and then received the scroll of the Chamberlain, taking hold of the hand of Ricciotti, the General's youngest son, saying, "Ricciotti, you are a Londoner." The Lord Mayor, as the Court of Common Council, I offer to you the right hand of fellowship and I shall have much pleasure in handing you the scroll of freedom by his father's side at Aspromonte and shed his blood for his country, and not get it—(cheers)—but he has got it, and I am happy to be present at this ceremonial." Ricciotti warmly pressed the City Chamberlain's hand and bowed to the Common Council. Garibaldi then, turning to the Lord Mayor, made the following reply in a spirited and feeling manner:—

It is certainly impossible to express my gratitude to you, the representatives of this glorious and renowned city of London, for the honour you confer on me to-day. I am deeply impressed with emotion when I see the honour which have gained in war; because I consider this to be the focus of the civilisation of the world and the home of liberty and freedom. Here there are no strangers, because every unarmed man is at home in England. I am, therefore, grateful not only for myself, but for the sake of my country; and my thanks to England for the sympathy which it has shown to Italy in her struggles. Americans never will forget to be grateful to the English people for the support, and sympathy, and assistance which they received from them in the late struggle by many I have been happy with the English people. I have been happy with you in many great and solemn moments in many times. In America I have claimed the protection of the English flag, and it has been to me a shield, and all round the world, a thousand times in the course of my life, I have received favours and kindness from Englishmen. I shall ever forget them. My love, my affection, for England is imperishable!

The gold box presented with the freedom of the City having been handed to Garibaldi, the Lord Mayor rose from his seat and shook hands with him in the most cordial manner. Garibaldi then, turning round to the audience, said in a loud voice, "I accept with the highest energy, "I feel proud to belong to you for my life" (Immense cheering). His Lordship then said, "I will now, Sir, introduce you to several of the aldermen. After the ceremony the General proceeded to the Mansion House, where he was received by the Sheriffs and the Lord Mayor. At a quarter-past four Garibaldi started on his return journey, taking the following route:—Cheapside, Newgate-street, proceeding through Prince's-street, Moorgate-street, Finsbury, City-road to the Angel, Islington, Pentonville-road, Battle-road, by Kennington, Vauxhall, from Portland and Langham places, into Oxford-street, through Hyde Park, and so to Stafford House. Throughout the route Mr. Seely's residence. The scene on the return of Garibaldi along this route was the same as that of the route described in his progress to the city. Thousands of people lined the roads, and cheered enthusiastically on all points, and the same orderly demeanour marked the assembled crowds. In the evening Garibaldi dined with Mr. Seely, M.P., at Prince's-gate, and Mrs. Gladstone.

Garibaldi breakfasted with the members of the Reform Club on Thursday afternoon. The people collected in Pall-mall to catch a glimpse of the General, and when he arrived at the door of entrance to the club and the saloon were filled with a large company of ladies. Mr. Sullivan with the band of the Coldstream Guards in front of Her Majesty's Theatre. About two hundred of the members of the club sat down to the banquet. The table was cold collation in the breakfast-room. Lord Ebury presided. The tables were handsomely decorated with flags of Garibaldian colours. The repast over, the proposed the health of General Garibaldi in highly complimentary terms. The health was received with loud and long-continued applause and cheering for some time. When the cheering had ended, the band of the Coldstream Guards struck up the air of "See the conquering hero comes" and the Garibaldi Hymn. The doors of the breakfast-room were thrown open, and the General was received from the room with admirable effect. Then Garibaldi rose and said—

My Lords and Gentlemen,—My gratitude to you for the great sympathy you have for me I shall never be able to express sufficiently. I am grateful to you for your kind sympathy to my poor country. (The members here rose en masse and cheered the General most heartily.) I am grateful now" (said the General, and the cheers were deafening) and certainly I am grateful to you for the honour you have done me by the presentation of my colonels' country; and I pray you to receive my thanks for your kindness, and be sure that I never shall forget the kindness I have received in this illustrious association (cheers upon cheers).

The health of the president was then proposed by Mr. Gore Langton, M.P., and was received with the greatest enthusiasm. General Garibaldi was then escorted from the club by the president, Lord Ebury, and Sutherland, and the members (during the preceding speech), and the principal members of the club. He was warmly cheered by the crowd as he left the club. The General left Mr. Seely's house at Prince's-gate, Hyde Park, to take luncheon with Earl and Countess Russell and a distinguished circle of the aristocracy. The Duke of Sutherland invited both Houses of Parliament, and subsequently he dined with the Duchess of Sutherland at Stafford House, Mrs. near London Bridge.

On Friday the meeting of a few friends of General Garibaldi, held at Stafford House on Tuesday, the following resolutions were unanimously passed:—"That a Garibaldi Company be formed that General Garibaldi ought not to be allowed to leave England without visiting Manchester, Leeds, Sheffield, Birmingham, and all other towns throughout the United Kingdom for his unselfish patriotism and disinterested services in the cause of Italian liberty. 2. That a fund be raised for the purpose of securing a permanent income to General Garibaldi, and to his family after him." It was also resolved that a subscription list be immediately opened, and a number of subscriptions, amounting to £1072, were at once handed to the chairman. The Duke of Sutherland was appointed chairman; Mr. Charles Seely, M.P., deputy-chairman; the Hon. A. Kinnaird, M.P., treasurer; and the following gentlemen a working committee:—Mr. Hepworth Dixon, carrying out the resolution —The officers, ex officio, Lord Shaftesbury, M., Mr. Alderman Lawrence, M.P., Mr. Peard, Mr. Edmond Beales, with power to add to their number. It was also resolved to request the Lord Mayor of London to assume the chairmanship of a committee to be formed in the City to co-operat: with this committee, and to give a similar invitation to the chief m: strates of the cities and towns throughout the United Kingdom.

METROPOLITAN NEWS.

At the Royal Horticultural Gardens, Kensington, on Wednesday, there was a splendid show of azaleas, roses, cinerarias, pelargoniums, &c.; and there was a vast influx of visitors.

The sale of the Brett Collection of objects of art and virtù was concluded on Monday by Messrs. Christie, Manson, and Woods. The total proceeds amount to £26,000.

In consequence of the large number of gentlemen who have applied to be elected members of the Athenæum Club, the committee have found it necessary to extend the list to 500 original members.

Mr. Mark Lemon is to give a dramatic reading at the Whittington Club, on Monday, the 8th of May, entitled "Hard Year One Hundred" for the benefit of the Printers' Almshouses.

On Sunday afternoon, being the first Sunday in Easter Term, the Lord Mayor, the Sheriffs and Under-Sheriffs, several of the City officers, Aldermen, and a large number of the Common Council, attended the City's Lodges at Divine service at St. Paul's.

It is right that the leader model of the statue of Sir Charles Barry—not the statue itself, as stated in this Journal last week—which has been experimentally placed in the vestibule of the inner hall of the New Palace at Westminster. The statue can hardly be completed for some months, though Mr. Foley has been working assiduously upon the marble block.

On Tuesday evening a choir of 600 children belonging to the different schools and asylums of refuge for children in the metropolis was a selection of music at Exeter Hall. The upper hall was densely crowded by a highly respectable audience, the lower part being almost wholly occupied by the children. Robert Hanbury, Esq., M.P., in the absence of the Earl of Shaftesbury, presided.

On Monday, in pursuance of orders, the officers, noncommissioned officers, and privates of the City of London Militia assembled at the extensive grounds in front of the armoury of the Honourable Artillery Company, City-road, and were inspected by Colonel Wilson, who brought twenty-one days' drill. There was a numerous attendance of the force, and the drill was performed in a very creditable manner.

Last week the births of 1972 children—1039 boys and 933 girls—were registered in London. In the corresponding week of the years 1854-5, the average number (corrected) was 2029.—The number of deaths in London last week was 1176. Of these 1 died from violence, 30 from want of years, 1854-55, 16, with a correction for increase of population, 1861, fourteen deaths were referred to typhus, which is forty-five to nineteen by certainty, thirteen to diphtheria, sixty to whooping-cough, and fifty-nine to typhus. Seven persons died of old age and infirmity at the ages of seventy-six and upwards.

Under the presidency of the Bishop of Oxford, the forty-ninth anniversary of the Artists' General Benevolent Institution was celebrated, on Saturday, at the Freemasons' Tavern, when the Right Hon. Bryce Pratt was supported by nearly two hundred and fifty friends of the Institution—a number which on former occasions has exceeded by many years. The object of the society is to afford relief to distressed and deserving artists, their widows and children. Since 1814 the institution has generally been in a flourishing condition, as well as to their widows and orphans," merit and distress constituting the claim. The number of annuitants on the establishment on the 1st of January, 1861, is fifty-two; fourteen have been granted, in sums amounting in the aggregate to £212,112. During the last year the sum of £1,000 has been added to the funds, the sum twenty-nine of whom were widows, and two the daughters of engravers, aged respectively eighty-seven and seventy-nine years. The amount of the annuity announced by the secretary was £1213, being more than £600 in excess of any former collection, and £1000 more than last year.

On Thursday morning, upon his return from visiting the seats of Lord Ducie and Lord Bathurst, Garibaldi spent three hours on the shore of the Serpentine, near the Humane Society's boat-house, in company with Admiral Fanshawe, R.N., who commanded the Channel squadron in 1848 and 1849, and with Mr. Edward Myers, civil engineer, who has invented a plan for the application of the invention of a new propeller, for steam-boats, now submitted to Garibaldi's inspection. A small model boat of about 3 cwt. was propelled by a screw-propeller in a sunken tank, and driven by a spirit-lamp, was set about by Mr. Myers, and made very good progress across the tank, and was then taken out and examined by Garibaldi. The principle of the combination of the propeller by which the water is drawn in is the useful. The principle of Messrs. Myers' and Forbes' patents is, to supersede both paddle-wheels and screw-propellers by a suction apparatus, which draws the water in at one end of long tubes, under the bottom of the vessel, and forces it out at the stern, or at both ends. The tube is a pair of tubes, one for each side of the boat, and the tubes are open at both ends; the boat, thus sucking in a double current of water at her bow and forcing it out behind her, is driven by the force of the reaction of the water. Garibaldi was much struck with the invention, and wished to have a small steam-boat on the principle constructed for him, to take with him to Caprera. He remained on the shore for some time while Garibaldi stayed there; but his presence was noticed with quite demonstrations of their respect.

NAVAL AND MILITARY INTELLIGENCE.

His Royal Highness the Field Marshal Commanding-in-Chief held a levee on Friday (yesterday). Yesterday week his Royal Highness paid a visit of inspection to Aldershot.

The Prince of Wales has consented to be present at the annual dinner of the Artists' General Benevolent Institution, which will take place at Rooms on May 28.

Rear-Admiral Frederick, one of the Lords of the Admiralty, has, for the fourth time, placed on the dinpoard of the council of the Royal Naval School, Penn-cross, his name as candidate for competition at the next election.

Rear-Admiral of the White the Hon. Charles Gilbert John Bruce Elliot, C.B., has been appointed to the Board of Admiralty Commander-in-Chief on the south-east coast of Scotland, in succession to Rear-Admiral the Hon. Keith Stewart, C.B., period of command has expired.

The colonelcy of the 66th (the Durham Light Infantry) has become vacant by the death of Lieutenant-General Robert Christopher Gardiner, C.B., who entered the service in September, 1804, as Lieutenant-Colonel, Clapham road, on the 5th inst., in his eighty-sixth year.

The 1st Royal Surrey Militia will be embodied next week presented to the 92nd Regiment (Gordon Highlanders) on the esplanade of Edinburgh Castle, by Lieutenant-General Sir Percy Lady Macdonald, of Auchtertyre, wife of General Sir John Macdonald, the Colonel of the regiment, and was acknowledged in appropriate terms by Colonel Lockhart.

LEWES SPRING MEETING.—TUESDAY.

CUCKFIELD Handicap.—Deception, 1; Diploma, 2; Flower Safety, 3.
TWO-YEAR-OLD Stakes.—Mr. Bland's Bland, 1; Mr. Mellor's, 2.
Selling Stakes.—Confusion, 1; Rose Leaf, 2; Fenella, 3.
Maiden Plate.—Mr. Bland's Bland, 1; Mr. Mellor's, 2.
Cattle Stakes.—Overcast, 1. Buckbound, 2. Macaroni's dam f., 3.
Handicap Plate.—Ballerina, 1. Rosebery, 2. Confederate, 3.

WEDNESDAY.

Innkeepers' Plate.—Narbonne, 1. Cornbreaker, 2. Diploma, 3.
Handicap Selling Stakes.—Fenella, 1. Rose Leaf, 2. Dilston, 3.
Lewes Spring Free Handicap.—Ballerina, 1. Douche, 2. Bland, 3. Nubia, 4.
Stewards' Cup.—Mr. Bland's Bland, 1. Mr. Mellor's Flower Safety, 2.
Scrogginns of Lewes.—Matured, 1. Izaak Walton, 2. Perfumer, 3.
Sweep Handicap.—Confederate, 1. Rose Leaf, 2. Whitebait, 3.

LATEST BETTING AT TATTERSALL'S ON THURSDAY EVENING.

THE DERBY.—7 to 1 against Wild Dayrell (t) and Filho da Puta (t), 4 to 1 agst Cigarmaker (t) and Caller Ou (t), 10 to 1 agst Rapid Rhone (t), 12 to 1 agst Ely (t), 14 to 1 agst Lord Clifden (t), 20 to 1 agst Mr. Ten Broeck (t), 25 to 1 agst Mr. Merry's (t), 30 to 1 agst Mr. Payne's (t), 40 to 1 agst Chevalier (t).

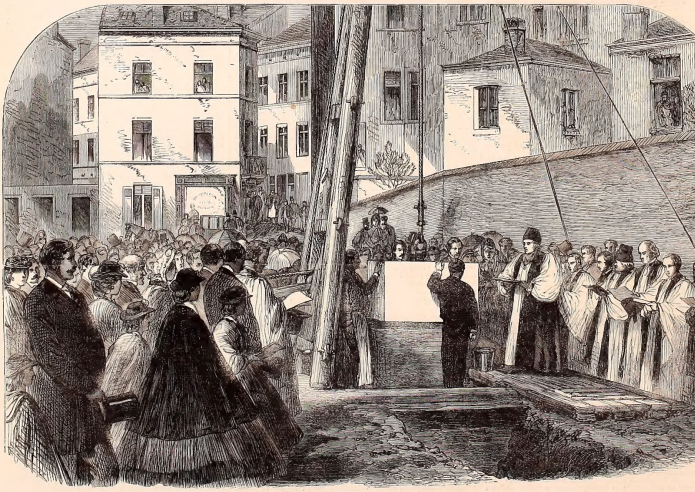
THE OAKS.—5 to 1 agst Chapel (t) (t), 7 to 1 agst Lord Zetland (t) (t), 10 to 1 agst Mr. Merry's (t), 12 to 1 agst Mr. Payne's (t), 14 to 1 agst Mr. Ten Broeck's (t).

THE DERBY.—7 to 1 agst Scottish Chief (t) (t), 10 to 1 agst Lord Zetland (t), 11 to 1 agst Mr. Merry's (t), 12 to 1 agst Mr. Payne's (t), 14 to 1 agst Mr. Ten Broeck's (t), 20 to 1 agst Perry (t), 100 to 15 against Ely (t), 40 to 1 agst Buccaneer (t), 50 to 1 agst Cigarmaker (t), 100 to 1 agst Rosebery (t).

It is proposed to hold a small-bore rifle match at Cambridge on the 16th and 17th of June, the match to be confined to the thirty best shots in the United Kingdom, who will be invited to stay at the University for the two days of the match. A dinner will be given to them in a college hall on each day, and the cost of the dinner and the accommodation will be offered to them for competition. In order to defray the expenses a committee has been formed, consisting of members of the University and others, and each member of the committee has subscribed the sum of £5. The ultimate object of the match is the formation of a Cambridge rifle corps; should it be upon a meeting assembly at Cambridge for a friendly rifle-match.

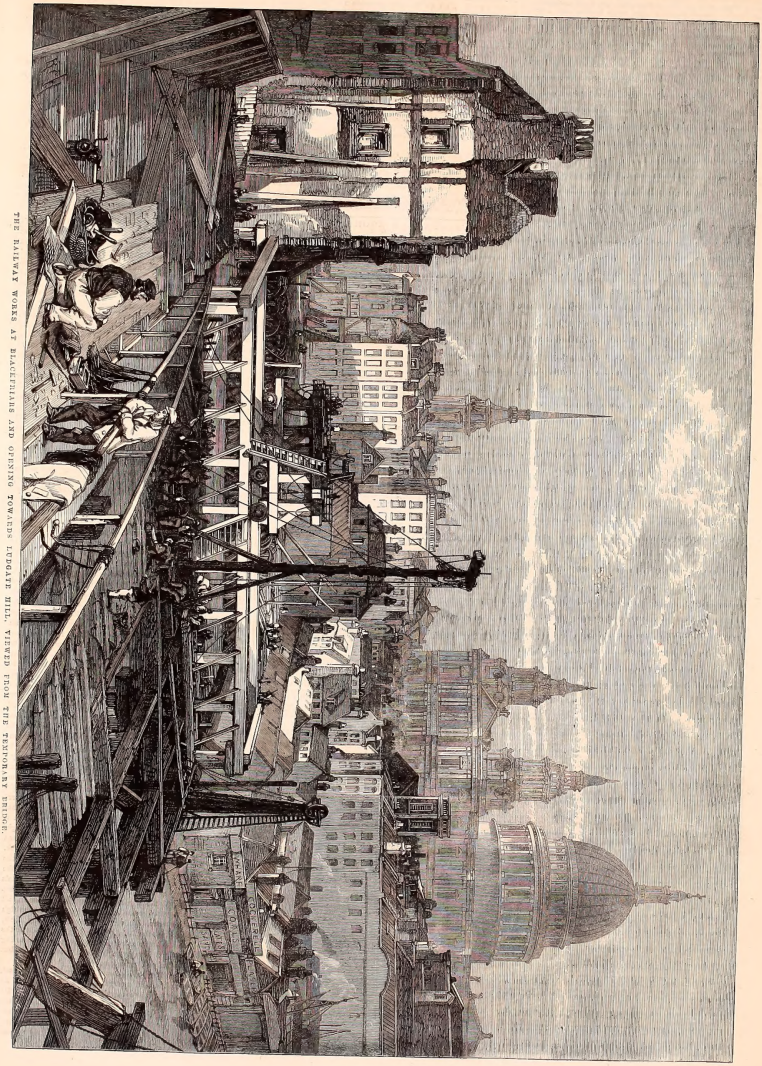
FERDINAND MAXIMILIAN, ARCHDUKE OF AUSTRIA, AND EMPEROR OF MEXICO.

We have engraved a Portrait of the new Emperor of Mexico, Ferdinand Maximilian Joseph, an Archduke of Austria, second brother of the Emperor Francis Joseph of Austria. He is now on his way to the country over which he has been invited to reign, accompanied by his Empress, Maria Charlotte, a daughter of Leopold, King of the Belgians. The Archduke Maximilian, as he has been hitherto commonly called, is in the thirty-fourth year of his age. He was Viceroy of the Austrian dominions of Italy, styled the Lombardo-Venetian kingdom, between 1857 and 1859. By the terms of a family arrangement just made in the Court of Vienna, the Archduke is obliged to renounce for ever all right of eventual succession to the throne of Austria, besides his share of the inheritance of the family estates, amounting to the value of twenty million florins. His renunciation, however, of the Austrian Crown may be revoked if he chooses to resign that of Mexico within the next six years.



FERDINAND MAXIMILIAN OF AUSTRIA, EMPEROR OF MEXICO.

THE NEW ENGLISH CHURCH AT BRUSSELS.



ONE of our Illustrations this week is an Engraving which represents the laying of the foundation-stone of a new English church at Brussels, on Wednesday, the 6th inst. It is from a photograph by Messrs. Ghémar, of that city. The Bishop of Oxford officiated on this occasion, accompanied by his chaplain, the Rev. T. V. Fosbery; the Rev. W. Drury, Chaplain to King Leopold; the Rev. C. E. Jenkins, Chaplain of the Chapel Royal at Brussels; the Rev J. C. Jenkins, and the Rev. R. Rowton. A numerous company of English residents and others had assembled to witness the ceremony, and to hear the Bishop's eloquent address. The new building, at his suggestion, is to bear the name of "Church of the Resurrection." The form of prayers here used was that which has been introduced for similar occasions in the diocese of Oxford. After reading the prayers the stone was lowered to its place, and struck by his Lordship three times in the name of the Holy Trinity. The Bishop further spoke at some length of the religious bearings of this interesting performance. The church, when erected, will prove a handsome and convenient structure, with accommodation for 700 persons; the total length of nave and chancel being more than 100 ft., while the roof internally is 70 ft. high. The architect is Mr. R. Jewell Withers, of London. The style is that of the thirteenth century, with some of the peculiar features of the Belgian and German church architecture of that period. The Revs. C. E. and J. C. Jenkins are to be the Chaplains of the new church.

VIEW FROM THE UNFINISHED NEW BRIDGE AT BLACKFRIARS.

IN the ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS of Feb. 27 we published an Engraving of the temporary wooden bridge over the Thames at Blackfriars, which is to be used for the ordinary traffic during the rebuilding of Blackfriars Bridge. The view on that occasion was taken from the point at the end of New Bridge-street, Blackfriars, where the temporary wooden bridge commences, on the left hand, while the road over the old stone bridge is continued to the right. It showed, therefore, the western side of the temporary structure along its whole length from the Middlesex to the Surrey bank of the river, with the narrow strip of water inclosed between the timber and the stone bridges. One of our Engravings this week presents a different view, taken from the timber or temporary bridge, and overlooking, on its eastern side, the permanent railway-bridge which the London, Chatham, and Dover Company are erecting, to bring their line south of the Thames—now open to the Elephant and Castle—into connection with its projected City terminus at Ludgate-hill, whence it is to have a communication with the Metropolitan Railway at the other end of Farringdon-street, giving access to the Great Northern at King's-cross. For the purpose of carrying the London, Chatham, and Dover line from Blackfriars Wharf to Ludgate-hill, a great many houses have been cleared away. To the north of Earl-street, which runs along the wharves from Blackfriars to Purfleet, was a region of narrow and intricate lanes and courts, forming quite a labyrinth, as far as Ludgate and Doctors' Commons. The western or lower portion of this quarter, adjoining New Bridge-street, Blackfriars, is now thrown open; the buildings on that side of New Bridge, except one or two at the corner of Lodgate-hill, have already been pulled down as far as Union-street, which is just opposite the Bridewell; and further on, towards the river, a free

THE BISHOP OF OXFORD LAYING THE FOUNDATION-STONE OF AN ENGLISH CHURCH AT BRUSSELS.

THE RAILWAY WORKS AT BLACKFRIARS AND OPENING TOWARDS LUDGATE HILL, VIEWED FROM THE TEMPORARY BRIDGE.

space has been made between the remaining houses of New Bridge-street, or Chatham-place, and the winding thoroughfare called Water-street. The railway viaduct, in traversing this ground, will pass very near the entrance of Printing House-square, occupied by the Times office, and close to Playhouse-yard, where Shakespeare's own theatre formerly stood—a place which deserves some memorial of its associations with our great English poet. It is not, however, shown in the present view, which, taken from the wooden bridge over the river, extends but a little way across Earl-street to the north. The noble and majestic dome of St. Paul's will appear more to better advantage than from this new point of observation, since the removal of some of the intervening houses and the enlargement of the portico when the spectator was upon old Blackfriars Bridge. The spire of St. Martin's, Ludgate, and the numerous spires of the Hospitals, which was built by Wren, are included in this View; but a more extended view from the same point would comprise a large latitude of City churches over which the matchless cathedral presides. To the right will be seen the bank of the river just above Puddle Wharf. This View exhibits some features of old and of modern in curious juxtaposition, and it is an illustration of the progress of one of the greatest works of railway communication in the City.

The Queen has appointed the Hon Frederic Henry Hoath, Attaché to her Majesty's Embassy at Berlin, to be third secretary in her Majesty's diplomatic service.

A decree of the Supreme Court of Constantinople, sanctioned by the Imâm, has just prohibited the sale of hashish, the dangerous narcotic which the Turks are so fond of smoking. Dispensing chemists may however, supply it as a medicine when prescribed by a physician. All other persons who may henceforth sell this drug will be punished with imprisonment.

On the 20th ult. a dinner was given by the English residents at Constantinople to Sir Henry Bulwer, on the occasion of his leaving that city, for the purpose of welcoming him, and of conveying the general sense of his personal worth and virtuosity, and his eminent abilities as a diplomatist. The dinner, corresponding to the feast of his own family, reviewed in a hospitable manner the principal events of his long and honourable career. Among these were the many important improvements in the condition of the eastern, and other departments, and highly enlarged the reforming character of the present Sultan, inducing even the interest which, as a commercial nation, we had in the prosperity of Turkey.

CALENDAR FOR THE WEEK ENDING APRIL 30.

SUNDAY, April 24.—Fourth Sunday after Easter. Death of Daniel Defoe, Author of "Robinson Crusoe," 1731.

MONDAY, 25.—St. Mark, Evangelist and Martyr. Establishment of the Bank of England, 1694. The first Scientific Balloon Ascent by Guyton Morveau, 1784. Birth of Princess Alice of England, Grand Duchess of Hesse, 1843.

TUESDAY, 26.—Death of the great Lord Somers, the associate of Newton, Locke, and Halifax in the encouragement of literature and science, 1716.

WEDNESDAY, 27.—Milton sells "Paradise Lost" by contract to Samuel Simmons for £5 down, and his wife's £5 more, 1667. Birth of Linnæus, 1707.

THURSDAY, 28.—Sir Joseph Banks, Captain Cook, and others land at Botany Bay, in New South Wales, 1770. Establishment of the metropolitan police force of the Napoleon III., 1855.

FRIDAY 29.—Birth of Alexander II., Czar of Russia, 1818. Peace proclaimed between England, France, and Russia, 1856. Moon's last quarter 6h. 38m. a.m.

SATURDAY, 30.—Foundation of Moscow, 1156; of the London University, 1827; revival of the Reformatory Union, 1856; Bank Holiday.

TIMES OF HIGH WATER AT LONDON BRIDGE,
FOR THE WEEK ENDING APRIL 30, 1864.

Sunday.	Monday.	Tuesday.	Wednesday.	Thursday.	Friday.	Saturday.
h. m.	h. m.	h. m.	h. m.	h. m.	h. m.	h. m.
0 30	1 0	1 30	2 0	2 30	3 0	3 30
M.	M.	M.	M.	M.	M.	M.
12 57	1 27	1 57	2 27	2 57	3 27	3 57

THE WEATHER.

RESULTS OF METEOROLOGICAL OBSERVATIONS AT THE NEW OBSERVATORY OF THE BRITISH ASSOCIATION.

Lat. 51° 28′ 6″ N., Long. 0° 19′ 47″ W.; Height above sea, 24 feet.

DAY	DAILY MEANS OF				THERMOMETER.				RAIN in inches.
	Barometer reduced to 32° Fahr.	Direction of Wind.	Velocity of Wind in miles per hour.	Amount of Cloud. 0=Clear. 10=Overcast.	Dry Bulb.	Wet Bulb.	General Direction.	Range.
April	Inches.				9-10	9-10
12	29·664	Calm	0·0	9·8	54·3	49·5	ESE. NE. E.	15·6	·000
13	29·761	NE.	1·7	9·4	47·7	44·4		12·0	·000
14	29·691	12 S	2·7	9·7	51·2	49·4	SSE. SW.	9·0	·000
15	29·716	12 W	2·2	7·2	49·0	46·6	W. WSW.	11·0	·000
17					47·5	47·1		2·2	·014
18	29·661	12 S	1·2	9·6	52·3	50·5		7·0	·000
19	29·863	12 W	2·8	9·1	0	53·8	54·6	S.	2·9	·000

The following are the readings of the meteorological instruments for the above days, in order, at half-past nine a.m. :—

Barometer in inches corrected 29·762 | 29·761 | 29·749 | 29·707 | 29·707 | 30·08 | 29·707
Temperature of Air ..... 49·5° | 51·0° | 51·0° | 47·0° | 47·0° | 47·0° | 51·0°
Temperature of Evaporation .. 46·0° | 48·0° | 48·0° | 46·0° | 46·0° | 46·0° | 48·0°
Direction of Wind ..... | N. | NNE. | NNE. | WSW. | W. | W. | WSW. | S.

THEATRE ROYAL, DRURY-LANE.—MANAGERS, Messrs. S. FALCONER and B. WEBSTER.—On MONDAY, and during the week, Shakespeare's Historical Drama of the Life of Richard III., with the cast of characters which has been so long and so highly approved by the public generally to be one of the most efficient representations of the present day. On Monday (for the last seven nights of the season) will be produced the new and original Drama, in three acts, entitled THE LIFE OF A STAR, by Walter Maynard, Walter Gordon, and Wilkie Collins. Characters by Mr. Charles Dillon, Miss Emily Wilmore, &c. Doors open at half-past Six. Performances to commence at Seven. Private Boxes, Stalls, and Tickets may be had of Mr. Austin, Box-office Keeper. On SATURDAY NEXT, APRIL 30, HENRY IV. and other Entertainments, for the BENEFIT OF MR. FISHER.

THEATRE ROYAL, HAYMARKET.—On MONDAY and during the week, the new Comedy, entitled CHARITY, by Miss CRAVEN and CHARLES REDDY. Tuesday, in consequence of the Haymarket Company being engaged to perform at Windsor Castle on Thursday, the Theatre will be closed. Wednesday, the Theatre will be opened. Thursday, 1864 (GRAND FESTIVAL IN HONOUR OF THE BIRTH-DAY OF HER MAJESTY). Twenty-fourth time! Mr. Rogers' Two Locomotive Mr. Burleigh; with the farce of LEND ME FIVE DAYS. Friday, Mr. Rogers' Two Locomotive Mr. Burleigh; with the new and original Comedy, entitled CHARITY. Saturday, Mr. Rogers' Two Locomotive Mr. Burleigh; with the new and original Comedy, entitled CHARITY. Doors open at half-past Seven. Commence at Eight. Private Boxes, Stalls, and Tickets may be had of Mr. Austin, Box-office Keeper.

ROYAL LYCEUM THEATRE.—Under the sole management of Mr. FECHTER.—On MONDAY and during the Week, the Performances will commence with A LITTLE PUSH, by Messrs. Brough and Halliday. Mr. Blanchard; and Miss E. Leonard. After which, Mr. John Brougham's original Comedy of PLAYING WITH FIRE. Characters by Mr. Fechter, Mr. Addison, Mr. Ryder, Mr. Pitt, Miss Charlotte Leclercq, Miss Amherst, Mr. Meadows, and Miss Woolgarden. Doors Open at Seven, commence at Half-past.

PRINCESS' THEATRE.—MR. RANSFORD'S SHAKSPEARE CONCERT AND DRAMATIC PERFORMANCE, THURSDAY EVENING, APRIL 28.—Shakespeare's COMEDY OF ERRORS. Principal Characters by Mr. Ransford, Mr. Fitzjames Knowles, Mr. Frank Matthews, Miss Cicely Nott, Miss Rose Coghlan, Miss Constance Heaphy, Miss Ransford, Miss Fanny Huddart, Miss Lydia Foote, Miss Marie George Pierce, Miss Wells, and Rachael. Grand Pianoforte, Miss Fyrao Concertina, Mr. Case. Violin, Mr. Blagrove. Violoncello, Mr. Lucas. Harp, Mr. Aptommas. Conductor, Mr. Land. Doors open at Seven. Commence at Eight. Private Boxes, Stalls, and Tickets may be had of Mr. Austin, Box-office Keeper, at the Theatre. On SATURDAY, APRIL 30, for the BENEFIT OF MR. DAVID FISHER, Kathleen, Mr. Caroline Carlos. Tickets, Stalls, and Private Boxes to be had at the Libraries, and of Messrs. Cramer, Beale, and Wood's, Regent-street.

NEW THEATRE ROYAL, ADELPHI.—Sole Proprietor and Manager, Mr. B. WEBSTER.—On MONDAY and during the Week, the Performances will commence with the new Farce, entitled A LITTLE PUSH. Characters by Mr. Wright, Mr. Billington, Mr. Paul Bedford, Mr. Webster, and Miss Woolgar. After which, Mr. John Brougham's original Comedy of PLAYING WITH FIRE. Characters by Mr. Webster, Mr. Wright, Mr. Paul Bedford, Mr. Billington, Miss Woolgar, Miss Fanny Huddart, Miss Cicely Nott, and Miss Rose Coghlan. Doors open at Seven, commence at Half-past.

ROYAL ST. JAMES'S THEATRE.—Under the sole management of Mr. BENJAMIN WEBSTER.—On MONDAY, and during the week, the new Comedy of the HOUSEKEEPER, written expressly for Mr. Webster, will be produced. Characters by Mr. Webster, Mr. Compton, Mr. Addison, Mr. Leigh Murray, Mr. Ashley, Mr. Rosenberg, Mr. Frank Matthews, Miss Oliver, Miss Carr, Miss Fanny Huddart, Miss Cicely Nott, and Mrs. Stirling. After which, the Farce, entitled A LITTLE PUSH. Characters by Mr. Wright, Mr. Billington, Mr. Paul Bedford, Mr. Webster, Miss Woolgar, and Miss Fanny Huddart. Doors open at Seven. Commence at Half-past.

MR. MACREADY will give DRAMATIC RECITALS at 49, QUEEN'S CONCERT ROOMS, Hanover-square, MAY 2, 9, 16, 23, 30, and 31, commencing at Three o'clock. Stalls, 7s. 6d.; Admission, 5s. Tickets for the Series, One Guinea, to be obtained at Mr. Macready's Royal Library, and at the Rooms.

THE SHAKSPEARE TERCENTENARY.

The ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS of SATURDAY NEXT, April 30, will consist of TWO WHOLE SHEETS, a considerable portion of which will be devoted to the Illustration and Description of the SHAKSPEARE TERCENTENARY FESTIVAL IN LONDON AND AT STRATFORD-ON-AVON.

Among the Engravings will be the following :—

Portraits of Shakspeare ;	Shakspeare Medal ;
Bird's-eye View of Stratford-on-Avon (Two Pages) ;	Seal of the National Shakspeare Committee ;
A Street in Stratford-on-Avon, with Shakspeare's House ;	Scene from "King Henry IV.," as played at Drury Lane ;
	Shakspeare Salver and Jug ;

Garibaldi receiving Addresses at the Crystal Palace on Monday ; Presentation of the Freedom of the City to Garibaldi at the Guildhall ; and Several other News Illustrations.

Price of the Number and Whole Sheet Supplement, Fivepence ; Stamped, Sixpence.

THE ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS.

LONDON: SATURDAY, APRIL 23, 1864.

On this day, the 23rd of April, known popularly as St. George's Day, all England, by the aid of press and speech, will celebrate the Man who, without having the Sanctus applied to his name, has yet had a more lasting effect upon our land, our literature, and our tongue than any saint of the calendar. Richard has not been known as a demonstrative country, and Erasmus has told us that the Englishman was one of close brows and secret counsels ; which Italian, Frenchman, or Spaniard can, and quiet, "with a brain which could shut off any emotion like a wheel," was the reception of Garibaldi, and the enthusiasm which Liverpool, Birmingham, Coventry, Stratford, and other cities and towns are showing, the shouting in Paris, in New York, in Berlin, in Calcutta, and elsewhere, to celebrate this day go far to prove the rest of Emerson's dictum, that beneath this quiet exterior there is a soul of fire, and that "they know how to wake up." This is great praise. It is well to "wake up" upon a worthy occasion, and we have one now. Here in the works of this Warwickshire man, born three hundred years ago, about whose plots, letters, life, picture, bust, there is a question and a doubt, there is the Man whom we possess the first poet and writer in the world ; nor that he is "above all Greek, above all Roman, fame." Not only is this a proud thing to remember, but we may have the consolation to reflect that, whilst we are paying homage to the greatest man our nation has produced, we are honouring one whom the Germans regard as the great Poet of the Teuton race, and who has been claimed as the High Priest of Humanity. Nor is he of this or that age. He was an age. He wrote Jonson ; and Coleridge says, "Shakspeare is of no age ; his is not the style of an age. I believe he was not a whit more intelligible in his own age than he is now to an educated man, except for a few local allusions of no consequence." If he is of no age, he is also of no party, nor sect of religion, nor profession. All Englishmen claim him as their own ; and so universal is his genius, that the lawyer, physician, schoolmaster, statesman, and a dozen others have each asserted that he was of their trade. But, whilst so equally balanced, evolving the body and substance of his works out of the unfathomable depths of his own "oceanic mind," we must not forget that this myriad-minded man was pre-eminently an Englishman and, above all, national. Hence, if he has done service to humanity in spreading a nobleness of purpose, a love of truth, a height of thought, and a depth of feeling to every one of his readers, he has done, moreover, excellent service to the land which gave him birth, in implanting a love of freedom, of order, constitutional government, of her history and her legends, to all her race. How much of the sound and pure tactics of our story would be a mere blank to many of us, and certainly to the populace, were it not for Shakspeare! He has been the great teacher in the struggle of the Roses and the kings, and he has minutely portrayed the history and the condition of the people. He has done this without bending to power, without flattering the multitude, without truckling to party ; he has done it as a free and open man, as the servant of Truth and as loyal to the great Spirit which inspired him. But there is yet more in Shakspeare ; he is pre-eminently the poet of women, without flattering her weaknesses or prejudices—nay, even whilst portraying her follies and her vices with no unsparing hand, he has yet given us such a gallery of beauties, such a company of fair ladies, of high, noble, and sweet natures, that to be one of Shakspeare's women has become, and will become, the very praise of the world. As maid, wife, and mother, he has portrayed her in all the beauty of truth and love, and in such lasting tints that the pictures will never fade, but become examples and models for all time. We might add to this : We might show that scholar, wit, man of the world, priest, soldier, statesman, all owe much to Shakspeare, a man born from the people, not of high lineage or great alliance, but living with them and among them, and teaching not from the Senate or the Bar, the Bench or the Pulpit, but from the lowly and despised Stage, and scattering his pearls not only to petty parcels and small driblets but with a largess universal like the sun.

It is for this that England does well to keep holiday, to feast, and to rejoice, and to hold merrymakings to his honour. At no place can this be more appropriately or more generally done than at Stratford-on-Avon, which has before been the scene of many a jubilee, and which claims, above all, the high honour of being his birthplace, his home, and his grave. In London it was as well, perhaps, to let the day pass without EGYPTIAN HALL, Piccadilly.—NOW ON VIEW, a GRAND APPROACH AT HASTINGS during the SUMMER OF 1864, painted by Charles Leaf ; before upon pictures of "The Crucifixion," 1857, by Hilt, extending 700 figures ; "The Queen Among Her Nobles," with 70 Portraits, Palaces and Public Buildings ; "The Death of Nelson," and two luxury rooms small, 1864, John Scarlett Davis's Original Exhibition of "Jerusalem, Bethlehem, and the Holy Places." Open, 10s till Five Admission, One Shilling.

MALVERN.—HYDROPATHY.—The Hydropathic Establishment lately opened by Dr. SUMMERS will be OPENED for the RECEPTION of PATIENTS on MAY 1. It is situated on the slope of the Malvern Hills, and was especially planned for the use of invalids, is provided with every accommodation required for the application of the Hydropathic treatment. Prospectus and terms may be had on application to Dr. SUMMERS, M.D., Peninsular Hotel, Malvern.

especial general rejoicing. The poet and the artist, the men of the pencil and pen, and the rich and noble admirers of the poet will rejoice after their own fashion. But a general holiday means actually a loss of time and money to the working men. Those, however, who are not constrained by such considerations will pay him homage in their own way. A tercentenary has at least the advantage of not occurring very often, and the real enthusiasts for the cause will not feel less warm if the many do not sympathise with and join them. We might, indeed, have wished that the London Tercentenary Festival had been fixed for some other day had been wiser in the choice of its executive, and that the warmth of feeling which all felt had found other safety-valves than those which let out the steam against their brothers of the pen. But, after all, we must take it out of and into this enthusiasm; wrong people may have rushed to the fore with noisy expression, but the feeling is right, and of it none need be ashamed. Perhaps, by the way, it is as well to say this, that where much love exists there lives also no little jealousy. All would have, indeed, regretted, if this day had been let go by without due honour, and as one not set in our calendar. It is not the first time that the memories of Shakspeare honours herself; since, as Coleridge puts it, when with four simple words he sums up the reason for the depth of love, esteem, and veneration we have for the poet, who has informed the world and entered into all our hearts—it is "We who are Shakspeare."

THE COURT.

The Queen was obliged to postpone the Court appointed to be held on Saturday last at Buckingham Palace, her Majesty not having yet recovered sufficiently from the fatigue of the late ceremonial and the severe attack of sciatica, from which her Majesty had suffered intensely during the week. Her Majesty's health has since greatly improved during the last few days.

On Saturday last Prince Alfred, Princess Helena, and Princess Louise, attended by Viscountess Jocelyn, Lady Caroline Barrington, the Hon. Mortimer Sackville West, and Lieutenant-Colonel Hay, left London. Princess Helena and Princess Louise visited the Exhibition of the Society of Painters in Water Colours, in Pall-mall East, and the French Fine-Art Gallery. Prince Alfred accompanied the Princesses to the French Gallery. Their Royal Highnesses drove thence to Buckingham Palace. Princess Louise returned to Windsor Castle in the afternoon. Prince Alfred and Princess Helena honoured the Royal Italian Opera, Covent Garden, with their evening patronage to the castle at night. The King of the Belgians, attended by General Count de Meyendorff, Colonel Count de Flahaut, and the Count de Lalaing, arrived at Buckingham Palace, and remained to dinner. Princess Helena and Princess Louise, attended by Lady Caroline Barrington, the Hon. Mortimer Sackville West, and Lieutenant-Colonel the Hon. Mortimer Sackville West went to London and were present at the Philharmonic Concert, in Hanover-square Rooms. Their Highnesses returned to the castle in the afternoon. Earl Russell had an audience of the Queen at Windsor Castle, and remained to see her Majesty at an audience by Earl Russell. M. de Billé, M. Quade, and M. Krieger were presented to the Queen by Earl Russell, and kissed her Majesty's hand. Prince Arthur, attended by Major Elphinstone, left the castle for Greenwich Park. The Duchess of Wellington arrived at the castle.

On Tuesday the Queen, accompanied by Princess Helena, walked and drove in the private grounds. Prince Arthur rode with Colonel Bell. The King of the Belgians took leave of her Majesty and left the castle for London, attended by Baron Brunow. Prince Alfred accompanied the King to London. Princess Helena and Princess Louise accompanied her Majesty in the afternoon to Frogmore. Prince Arthur, attended by Major Cowell and Lieutenant Haig, proceeded in the afternoon to Buckingham Palace, to see the King of the Belgians and Princess of Wales.

The Queen, accompanied by Princess Helena, Princess Louise, Princess Beatrice, and Prince Leopold, left Windsor Castle at a quarter to four o'clock on Wednesday, en route for Osborne. The suite in attendance on her Majesty consisted of Lady Augusta Bruce, the Hon. Emily Cathcart, Major-General Seymour, Colonel the Hon. Sir C. B. Phipps, and Sir J. M. Heathcote, Bart. At Ascot the Queen drove to the Windsor station of the Great Western Railway, where a large concourse of persons had assembled to witness her Majesty's departure. The Queen graciously acknowledged the loyal though silent greetings of the spectators. Her Majesty left Windsor at four o'clock in a special train under the charge of Mr. Kelly, via the Great Western Railway to Basingstoke, where a change was made at five o'clock. At this station the charge of the train was handed over to Mr. Saunders, the superintendent of the South-Western Railway, along which line the remainder of the journey was performed to Gosport, arriving at a quarter past six. The Queen embarked immediately on board the Royal Yacht Fairy and reached the Solent to Osborne.

The Queen will remain at Osborne about three weeks, and then return to Windsor for a few days, after which her Majesty will proceed to Balmoral.

THE KING OF THE BELGIANS.

The King of the Belgians, accompanied by Prince Alfred and attended by Colonel Count de Flahaut and Dr. Kreyer, left Windsor Castle at three o'clock on Tuesday en route for Brussels. The Earl of Caithness, Lieutenant-Colonel Hay, Major Elphinstone, and Sir Edward Cust accompanied his Majesty to Dover. The King was received at the Dover Railway Station by Admiral Sir Fleetwood Pellew, several of the officials belonging to the South-Western and South-Eastern Railways, the Mayor, and Corporation. His Majesty left the station saloon carriage, furnished by the South-Eastern Railway, attached to a special train proceeding along the South-Eastern line as far as Waterloo; Prince Alfred here took leave of his Majesty, and the train resumed its course by the London-bridge and Croydon Railway Bridge, thence by the South-Eastern Railway to Dover, arriving at six o'clock. The King proceeded to the Lord Warden Hotel, where he passed the night. His Majesty, who appeared in excellent health, left the Lord Warden Hotel at ten o'clock on Wednesday morning, and embarked from the Admiralty Pier on board the Belgian Government steamer Diamant, and crossed to Calais en route for Brussels. The King was saluted on departure by the Diamant. A guard of honour of the 53rd Regiment lined the Admiralty Pier. The King was received at Calais on his disembarkation by the suite which accompanied him from Windsor and General Daelli, General Ellis, Captain Bruce, the Belgian Consul, and the Mayor of Dover. His Majesty was loudly cheered by a large concourse of people.

THE PRINCE AND PRINCESS OF WALES.

The Prince and Princess of Wales continue at Sandringham House. Their Royal Highnesses attended Divine service on Sunday, at Sandringham Church. The Rev. G. B. Monon officiated. Prince Alfred arrived at Sandringham House on Tuesday. The Prince and Princess are enjoying their retirement in the country, and take daily rides and drives in the neighbourhood of Sandringham.

His Excellency the Belgian Minister and Mdme. Van de Weyer arrived at their residence in Grosvenor-square on Saturday from Loigs, Windsor Forest.

The Archbishop of Dublin and Mrs. Trench arrived in town on Tuesday from the Archiepiscopal Palace, Dublin, for the season.

His Excellency the Earl of Carlisle and the Dowager Duchess of Sutherland left Stafford House on Monday for Chiswick House.

The Duke and Duchess of Beaufort have arrived in town from Badminton for the season.

The Duchess of Manchester has arrived in Great Stanhope street from Kimbolton Castle, Huntingdonshire.

The Marchioness of Ailesbury and Lady Georgina Hamilton arrived at Chesterfield House on Saturday last from a tour in the south of France.

Earl and Countess Russell left Chesham-place on Wednesday for Pembroke Lodge, Richmond Park.

The Earl and Countess of Wilton have left town on a visit to the Earl and Countess of Craven, at Coome Abbey, near Coventry.

The Earl and Countess of Clanricarde have returned to town from Scotland.

The Earl and Countess of Clanearty have arrived in town.

The Countess of Harrington and Lady Anna Chandos Pole have arrived at Harrington House from Elvaston Castle, Derbyshire.

Viscount and Viscountess Hawarden have returned to town from Hitchfield for the season.

Viscount and Viscountess Folkestone have arrived in town on Wednesday from Longford Castle, Salisbury, for the season.

Viscount and Viscountess Stormont have arrived at their residence in Belgrave-square from Scone Palace, Perth.

Lord and Lady Londesborough arrived at their residence in Grosvenor-place on Sunday from Grimston Park for the season.

Baron and Baroness Lionel de Rothschild left Kingston House for Gunnersbury Park on Wednesday.

FASHIONABLE AND POLITICAL ENTERTAINMENTS.

The Duke of Cambridge entertained a distinguished party at dinner last evening at Gloucester House.

The Marquis of Ailesbury and Lady Georgina Hamilton arrived at their residence in Park-lane on Saturday evening last, from a tour in the south of France.

The Duchess Dowager of Norfolk entertained a select circle at dinner on Saturday evening last, at her residence in Grosvenor-place.

The Marquis and Marchioness of Clanricarde gave a banquet to a distinguished company at their residence in Grosvenor-place on Saturday evening. The Marquis and Marchioness received a select party at dinner on Wednesday last, and on the same evening entertained a select circle at dinner, on Wednesday evening, at their residence, Dorchester House, Park-lane. The Duchess of Somerset and the Right Hon. Chichester Fortescue, M.P., gave a grand dinner party on Wednesday evening at Somerset House. On the same evening the Countess received a brilliant circle of the aristocracy.

The Earl and Countess of Derby entertained a select circle at dinner on Wednesday evening, at Goodwood House, St. James's-square.

The Earl and Countess of Ellesmere gave a party on Wednesday evening at her mansion in Belgrave-square. The Chancellor of the Exchequer and Lady Westbury entertained a large party at dinner on Wednesday evening to meet General Garibaldi.

THE SHAKSPEARE FESTIVAL.

The Shakspeare Tercentenary performances began in London on Monday evening, with three of the principal theatres open. Drury-lane and Astley's Wells—the extremities were chosen with special reference to the occasion, the former being the scene of the Shakspeare Jubilee in 1769.

The Lord Mayor presided at a meeting at the Mansion House on the 5th inst., when it was resolved that the City should celebrate the tercentenary of the birth of Shakspeare by the erection of a statue to the poet, and by giving a monument to Shakspeare in the Green Park, at the side of Piccadilly, which should be worthy of the genius of the poet, and of the progress of the art of the nineteenth century. Something less than £1000 has been subscribed for the statue, and it is to be hoped that many of the citizens would put it in their shudders to the wheel, they would raise what was yet wanting. A committee has been appointed.

The Working Men's Shakspeare Committee have issued their programme of entertainments to be given in honour of the tercentenary festival, and of the tercentenary birthday of Shakspeare. "At one o'clock a.m. a grand salute of artillery will announce the day. At two o'clock a.m. and a guard of honour of the Queen's Bodyguard of Yeomen, with their band, will march, &c., and proceed in the following order through Bedford-square, Tottenham-court-road, Hampstead-road, Pancras-road, Euston-road, to Primrose-hill, where, having taken up the various stations respectively assigned to them, they will remain until the conclusion of the ceremonial. At the ceremonial oak, the gift of her Majesty, will be planted by Mr. Samuel Phelps in the presence of the Lord Mayor, Sheriffs, Aldermen, and Common Council, for the occasion by Ellen Cook, will then be spoken, and a variety of musical selections will be performed by the choir of the Royal Italian Opera, Alexandra Palace and the Royal Agricultural Hall, Islington, in connection with which a grand Shakspeare Festival will be celebrated on the 23rd inst. The programme will consist of a grand miscellaneous concert, in the course of which will be performed the most celebrated scenes from the tragedies of Shakspeare, and the comedy, the grand chorus, 'England's Minstrel Song,' and the National Anthem. The hall will be tastefully decorated with appropriate insignia and nearly one hundred Shakspearian banners; and in addition to the above, a grand display of fireworks, with appropriate devices, including the Bard's Head, Eastcheap (immortalised as the rendezvous of Sir John Falstaff and his merry men), Anne Hathaway's Cottage, the Interview in the Devil, and the Tabard in Southwark, will be revived, to supply, in addition to the above, a complete panorama of Shakspeare's dramatic works, and the duties and inquiries of the Rivarsteen era, the attendants being clad in the costume of the period. The whole to conclude with the representation of the Bard's Benediction."

The tercentenary celebration at Stratford-on-Avon will begin to-day (Saturday) and continue during the whole of next week. A letter from Mr. Charles G. W. Lettsom, Professor of Arabic at King's College, is to present an address from the Shakspeare Society of Constantinople to the Stratford Club; it will be transmitted from the Goethe house at Frankfort, and presented in the name of the Goethe Society of Germany, by Professor Braunfels. The address, which will be illustrated by scenes from the works of both poets, has been drawn up by Professor Braunfels, and translated into Latin by Dr. Schmitz, the Mayor and Alderman of Stratford-on-Avon, and is intended to be presented on the tercentenary day.

Mr. Vining, of the Princess Theatre, has issued a pamphlet containing "Shakspeare's Opinion of Kings, Lords, and Nobles" and "The Comedy of Errors," with illustrations by Mr. Gilbert, and "Shakspeare's Opinion of Love" and "Romeo and Juliet," with illustrations by Mr. Marks. The idea of the publication of Juliet. By this change of arrangement the public will have the opportunity of purchasing the illustrations of the plays separately, as each play will be complete in itself, and as originally announced.

The tercentenary of Shakspeare is to be celebrated at the Hartley Institution, Southampton, by select readings from Shakspeare's works by Mr. Henry Compton, and by the public reading of an address to the Bard, written by the head and chorus of nearly eighty local performers, selected by a military band, and by the performance of a grand miscellaneous concert, in the course of which it has attracted great attention. Mr. Compton, who is a nephew of Mrs. Siddons, has a peculiar interest in possessing on the eve of the tercentenary celebration the identical Bible presented by Queen Elizabeth to Shakspeare which the coming anniversary has called forth from the dust of ages. Mr. Compton's grandfather was Lord Mayor of England.—I donate to her this book, in honour of her pain. I do not flatter her, but indeed, and without any fear, praise her as she deserves to her own face, and without any fear of flattery, for she loves not."—VICTOR HUGO, Guernsey, Hautville House, 1864.

A tercentenary celebration of Shakspeare's birth will be conducted by the Rev. Dr. Brasenose, the historian of Bray, who is one of Shakspeare's schoolfellows and a great admirer of the bard, will give an address in German, on Shakspeare; and Professor Braunfels, of Frankfort, will give an address in Latin, on Shakspeare in English. After that will come the banquet, at which it is expected about 200 gentlemen will be present. In the course of the evening a grand concert will be played the "Winter's Tale," with appropriate music, composed expressly for the occasion. At the Scotch Gallery will be exhibited several curiosities of Shakspeare.

The state apartments of Windsor Castle will be opened to the public on and after Monday next, August 15.

One of the most successful all-comers' Enfield prize meetings took place last Saturday on the ground of the 1st Rochester Rifle Volunteers, Burton Mote. The manual of exercise for competition was 80 guineas, which was divided into twenty prizes—the highest being £4, and the lowest £1. The distances were 200 yards, 400 yards, 500 yards, and 600 yards, and £2 10s. divided into seven prizes at 30, each for the nine highest scores. There were 220 entries, 212 of whom competed. Private Alsopson, 4th Lancashire, won the first prize; Private Hopkinson, 1st Manchester, the second; Colour-Sergeant Twomlow, Liverpool R. B., the third; Private J. Shannon, 1st West Kent, the fourth; and Private Hodgson, 1st Durham, the fifth. For the four all prizes eleven of the competitors tied. The result of the shooting-off was that Private Hodsell, Private Harrison, Sergeant Emery, and Corporal Whittaking the winners.

His Excellency the Belgian Minister and Mdme. Van de Weyer arrived at their residence in Grosvenor-square on Saturday from Loigs, Windsor Forest.

The Archbishop of Dublin and Mrs. Trench arrived in town on Tuesday from the Archiepiscopal Palace, Dublin, for the season.

His Excellency the Earl of Carlisle and the Dowager Duchess of Sutherland left Stafford House on Monday for Chiswick House.

The Duke and Duchess of Beaufort have arrived in town from Badminton for the season.

The Duchess of Manchester has arrived in Great Stanhope street from Kimbolton Castle, Huntingdonshire.

The Marchioness of Ailesbury and Lady Georgina Hamilton arrived at Chesterfield House on Saturday last from a tour in the south of France.

Earl and Countess Russell left Chesham-place on Wednesday for Pembroke Lodge, Richmond Park.

The Earl and Countess of Wilton have left town on a visit to the Earl and Countess of Craven, at Coome Abbey, near Coventry.

The Earl and Countess of Clanricarde have returned to town from Scotland.

The Earl and Countess of Clanearty have arrived in town.

The Countess of Harrington and Lady Anna Chandos Pole have arrived at Harrington House from Elvaston Castle, Derbyshire.

Viscount and Viscountess Hawarden have returned to town from Hitchfield for the season.

Viscount and Viscountess Folkestone have arrived in town on Wednesday from Longford Castle, Salisbury, for the season.

Viscount and Viscountess Stormont have arrived at their residence in Belgrave-square from Scone Palace, Perth.

Lord and Lady Londesborough arrived at their residence in Grosvenor-place on Sunday from Grimston Park for the season.

Baron and Baroness Lionel de Rothschild left Kingston House for Gunnersbury Park on Wednesday.

FASHIONABLE AND POLITICAL ENTERTAINMENTS.

The Duke of Cambridge entertained a distinguished party at dinner last evening at Gloucester House.

The Marquis and Marchioness of Clanricarde gave a banquet to a distinguished company at their residence in Grosvenor-place on Saturday evening. The Marquis and Marchioness received a select party at dinner on Wednesday last, and on the same evening entertained a select circle at dinner, on Wednesday evening, at their residence, Dorchester House, Park-lane. The Duchess of Somerset and the Right Hon. Chichester Fortescue, M.P., gave a grand dinner party on Wednesday evening at Somerset House. On the same evening the Countess received a brilliant circle of the aristocracy.

The Earl and Countess of Derby entertained a select circle at dinner on Wednesday evening, at Goodwood House, St. James's-square.

The Earl and Countess of Ellesmere gave a party on Wednesday evening at her mansion in Belgrave-square. The Chancellor of the Exchequer and Lady Westbury entertained a large party at dinner on Wednesday evening to meet General Garibaldi.

THE SHAKSPEARE FESTIVAL.

The Shakspeare Tercentenary performances began in London on Monday evening, with three of the principal theatres open. Drury-lane and Astley's Wells—the extremities were chosen with special reference to the occasion, the former being the scene of the Shakspeare Jubilee in 1769.

The Lord Mayor presided at a meeting at the Mansion House on the 5th inst., when it was resolved that the City should celebrate the tercentenary of the birth of Shakspeare by the erection of a statue to the poet, and by giving a monument to Shakspeare in the Green Park, at the side of Piccadilly, which should be worthy of the genius of the poet, and of the progress of the art of the nineteenth century. Something less than £1000 has been subscribed for the statue, and it is to be hoped that many of the citizens would put it in their shudders to the wheel, they would raise what was yet wanting. A committee has been appointed.

The Working Men's Shakspeare Committee have issued their programme of entertainments to be given in honour of the festival, and of the tercentenary birthday of Shakspeare. "At one o'clock a.m. a grand salute of artillery will announce the day. At two o'clock a.m. and a guard of honour of the Queen's Bodyguard of Yeomen, with their band, will march, &c., and proceed in the following order through Bedford-square, Tottenham-court-road, Hampstead-road, Pancras-road, Euston-road, to Primrose-hill, where, having taken up the various stations respectively assigned to them, they will remain until the conclusion of the ceremonial. At the ceremonial oak, the gift of her Majesty, will be planted by Mr. Samuel Phelps in the presence of the Lord Mayor, Sheriffs, Aldermen, and Common Council, for the occasion by Ellen Cook, will then be spoken, and a variety of musical selections will be performed by the choir of the Royal Italian Opera, Alexandra Palace and the Royal Agricultural Hall, Islington, in connection with which a grand Shakspeare Festival will be celebrated on the 23rd inst. The programme will consist of a grand miscellaneous concert, in the course of which will be performed the most celebrated scenes from the tragedies of Shakspeare, and the comedy, the grand chorus, 'England's Minstrel Song,' and the National Anthem. The hall will be tastefully decorated with appropriate insignia and nearly one hundred Shakspearian banners; and in addition to the above, a grand display of fireworks, with appropriate devices, including the Bard's Head, Eastcheap (immortalised as the rendezvous of Sir John Falstaff and his merry men), Anne Hathaway's Cottage, the Interview in the Devil, and the Tabard in Southwark, will be revived, to supply, in addition to the above, a complete panorama of Shakspeare's dramatic works, and the duties and inquiries of the Rivarsteen era, the attendants being clad in the costume of the period. The whole to conclude with the representation of the Bard's Benediction."

The tercentenary celebration at Stratford-on-Avon will begin to-day (Saturday) and continue during the whole of next week. A letter from Mr. Charles G. W. Lettsom, Professor of Arabic at King's College, is to present an address from the Shakspeare Society of Constantinople to the Stratford Club; it will be transmitted from the Goethe house at Frankfort, and presented in the name of the Goethe Society of Germany, by Professor Braunfels. The address, which will be illustrated by scenes from the works of both poets, has been drawn up by Professor Braunfels, and translated into Latin by Dr. Schmitz, the Mayor and Alderman of Stratford-on-Avon, and is intended to be presented on the tercentenary day.

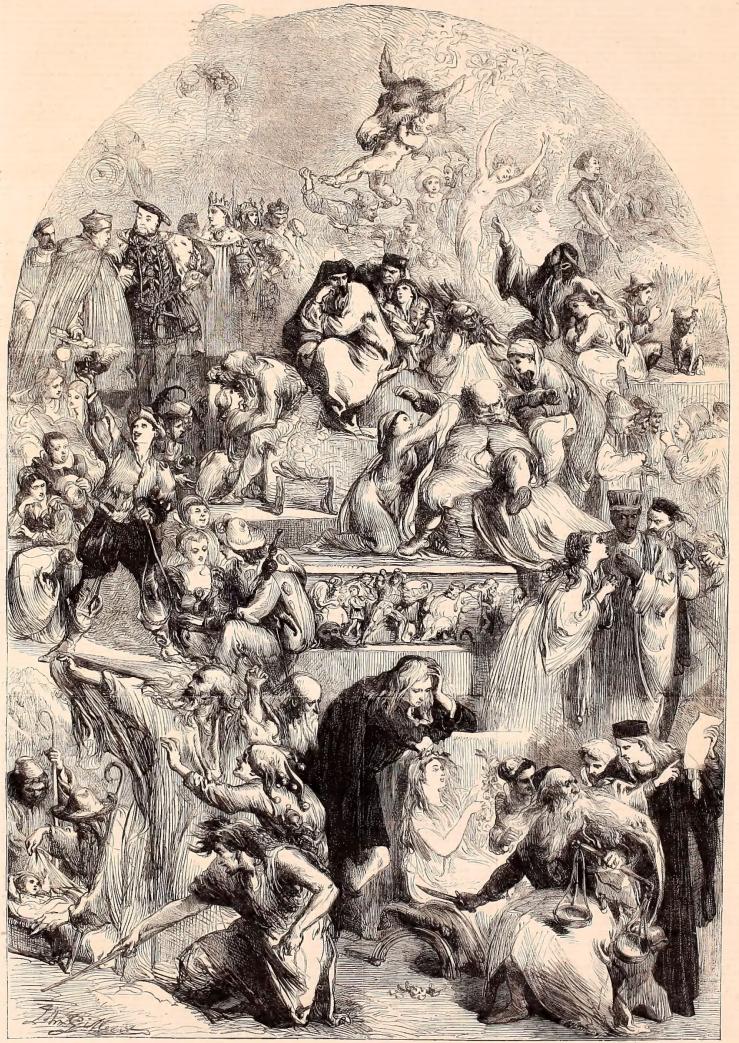
Mr. Vining, of the Princess Theatre, has issued a pamphlet containing "Shakspeare's Opinion of Kings, Lords, and Nobles" and "The Comedy of Errors," with illustrations by Mr. Gilbert, and "Shakspeare's Opinion of Love" and "Romeo and Juliet," with illustrations by Mr. Marks. The idea of the publication of Juliet. By this change of arrangement the public will have the opportunity of purchasing the illustrations of the plays separately, as each play will be complete in itself, and as originally announced.

The tercentenary of Shakspeare is to be celebrated at the Hartley Institution, Southampton, by select readings from Shakspeare's works by Mr. Henry Compton, and by the public reading of an address to the Bard, written by the head and chorus of nearly eighty local performers, selected by a military band, and by the performance of a grand miscellaneous concert, in the course of which it has attracted great attention. Mr. Compton, who is a nephew of Mrs. Siddons, has a peculiar interest in possessing on the eve of the tercentenary celebration the identical Bible presented by Queen Elizabeth to Shakspeare which the coming anniversary has called forth from the dust of ages. Mr. Compton's grandfather was Lord Mayor of England.—I donate to her this book, in honour of her pain. I do not flatter her, but indeed, and without any fear, praise her as she deserves to her own face, and without any fear of flattery, for she loves not."—VICTOR HUGO, Guernsey, Hautville House, 1864.

A tercentenary celebration of Shakspeare's birth will be conducted by the Rev. Dr. Brasenose, the historian of Bray, who is one of Shakspeare's schoolfellows and a great admirer of the bard, will give an address in German, on Shakspeare; and Professor Braunfels, of Frankfort, will give an address in Latin, on Shakspeare in English. After that will come the banquet, at which it is expected about 200 gentlemen will be present. In the course of the evening a grand concert will be played the "Winter's Tale," with appropriate music, composed expressly for the occasion. At the Scotch Gallery will be exhibited several curiosities of Shakspeare.

The state apartments of Windsor Castle will be opened to the public on and after Monday next, August 15.

One of the most successful all-comers' Enfield prize meetings took place last Saturday on the ground of the 1st Rochester Rifle Volunteers, Burton Mote. The manual of exercise for competition was 80 guineas, which was divided into twenty prizes—the highest being £4, and the lowest £1. The distances were 200 yards, 400 yards, 500 yards, and 600 yards, and £2 10s. divided into seven prizes at 30, each for the nine highest scores. There were 220 entries, 212 of whom competed. Private Alsopson, 4th Lancashire, won the first prize; Private Hopkinson, 1st Manchester, the second; Colour-Sergeant Twomlow, Liverpool R. B., the third; Private J. Shannon, 1st West Kent, the fourth; and Private Hodgson, 1st Durham, the fifth. For the four all prizes eleven of the competitors tied. The result of the shooting-off was that Private Hodsell, Private Harrison, Sergeant Emery, and Corporal Whittaking the winners.



ROYAL INSTITUTION LECTURES.

PROFESSOR HUXLEY, in his first evening lecture "On the Law of Succession of Insects," delivered on Thursday, the 14th inst., began with the consideration of the effects of heat on the inorganic terrestrial processes. The earth, he said, contains in itself a store of heat, probably remaining from its origin and produced by its condensation from the fluid to the solid state. The slow rate of cooling is shown in the case of lavas; since a stream which issued from Etna in 1787 emitted hot vapours in 1858. Experiments have shown that the temperature of the earth increases as we bore beneath the surface at the average rate of 1 deg. each in 90 ft. of depth. But springs reach the boiling point, the geysers of Iceland attain to 120 deg. cent., and volcanoes pour out melted lavas at a temperature of at least 1500 deg. cent. . . . A great loss to the earth, consisting of stuff, unyielding materials, could not, at a very early period, have been compensated by the supply of meteoric matter. . . . The mass of the earth must be considered in past geological ages as undergoing vast depressions and similar changes are now going on, partly in a quiet, imperceptible manner, and partly with sudden violence. The amount of heat now emanating from the earth's interior to the surface is estimated as sufficient to melt each year a layer of ice 100 feet deep, and to raise the surface of the climate one centesimth of a degree cent. The temperature of the surface depends only on the heat thrown to it from the sun by radiation to the air. To the unequal distribution of the former are due the long-lines of isothermal, and of climatic, variations of temperature, the latter at the equator rising from the warmest surface, like that in our chimneys. The trade winds are caused by the heated air rising at the equator, and the variations in temperature caused by the motion of the sea. The trade winds are rendered the ocean currents, one of which, the Gulf Stream, greatly modifies the climate of the British Isles. The warm air rising from the sea and wet soils carries with it watery vapours which are deposited as clouds, and rain, &c., when the temperature is lower, but chiefly upon the chains of mountains, the chief outlivers of rain or snow, which may become glaciers. The liquified water carries its way in the rocks, washing out their soluble parts and carrying them into the sea or inland lakes, and, in the latter case, depositing the same by evaporation, spilling and grinding them, and thus forming new strata. These facts show the enormous amount of change which is going on in the crust of the earth, and are its effects on the life of the globe. Of the latter, the most striking is the production of coal-beds. Seeds of plants contain a very small quantity of combustible matter; but in full-grown plants the amount is enormous in very great—as our fuel being derived from vegetable life, unsound or past (as coal); and the combustible matter of plants (wood, starch, sugar, gum, oils, resin, and various acids) is composed of carbon, hydrogen, oxygen, with a little nitrogen. Plants grow only under the influence of light, decomposing carbonic acid and water to carbonic acid. The blue and violet chemical rays are absorbed completely; and the whole energy of the green and yellow rays, but in burning, is restored by vegetable life and by the solar light.

Mr. F. A. Abel, F.R.S., Director of the Chemical Department of the Royal Arsenal, Woolwich, gave the Friday evening discourse on the 15th inst. "On the Application of Gun-cotton, and Applications of Gun-cotton" (which he had been investigating on behalf of the Government). After a brief history of the discovery of gun-cotton by Professor Schönbein, in 1846, to the present time, Mr. Abel described the manufacture of the charge produced by the action of nitric acid upon cotton wool, and showed that it was necessary, in applying a strong and somewhat concentrated nitric acid hydrate acids that the most highly explosive gun-cotton could be prodn ced; while the less explosive varieties were produced by the use of weaker acids, which, furnishing the important photographic material "collodion") might be employed by the use of less concentrated acids. An account was then given of the manufacture of gun-cotton, as perfected by General Von Lenk, a distinguished Austrian officer, and by Messrs. Prentice and Thomas, who are the proprietors of the Stowmarket factory. The main principles in this system resemble those laid down by Schönbein and Abel, but the cotton is subjected to a preliminary steeping in cotton boils to be acted upon by the nitrating mixture. The cotton is then carefully washed, and dried, and submitted to the action of a powerful hydraulic press, by which it is compressed in inverting its uniformity and density. Professor Abel then described the experiments which followed. The question regarding the perfect stability of gun-cotton can only be settled by time and long-continued experiments. Let Mr. Abel state that there is no doubt but that the purest and most explosive gun-cotton is less liable to spontaneous change than the less explosive kinds that was formerly suggested; and there is good reason to hope that when the former is properly prepared it will keep as well as that material. By experiments, exhibited the principal properties of gun-cotton as an explosive. It is insoluble in water, and is not affected by the hygrometric state of the air. Under the influence of moisture, the production of acid vapours by its spontaneous decomposition is greatly increased. Gun-cotton is not affected by the mechanical action of the ordinary gun-cotton material, economical as a motive power, and the various chemical reagents which are employed in its manufacture. It

GARIBALDI RECEIVING AN ADDRESS AT THE NINE ELMS RAILWAY STATION.—SEE PAGE 391

A TABLEAU OF SHAKSPEARE CHARACTERS, DESIGNED BY JOHN GILBERT.—SEE NEXT PAGE.

OUR TABLEAU OF SHAKSPEARE CHARACTERS.

The student of Shakespeare's plays will have no difficulty in recognising most of the figures dramatically grouped together on the page which precedes this. The skilful and imaginative artist who has drawn for us that beautiful design is known to be familiarly conversant with the world of human characters which the greatest poet of all time has created. Mr. Gilbert furnished one edition of Shakspeare with some hundreds of separate illustrations, which delight us by their ingenuity and grace, while they enter, by the force of profound thought and sympathy, more thoroughly into the conceptions of the author than most of his literary commentators have been able to do. The work now presented to our readers is worthy of Mr. Gilbert's pencil. Its publication will be one of the most welcome gifts conceivable as a tribute to the unapproachable genius of him who enriched mankind for ever with the best and purest of moral and intellectual treasures contained in the thirty-seven plays. A few only of the leading personages conceived by Shakspeare, attended here and there with other figures of less complete and typical of the various sorts and moods of human life, are exhibited in this tableau of Lear's kingdom. The "Lear" of the mode in which these groups are combined, do not allow of the introduction of more and accessory figures. The "Lear" of Shakspeare included in other pictorial representations, as well as in those of the stage, it may be partly for this reason, has a less whole fabric of circumstance and situation from which the principal event is brought forth. Readers may call to mind the privileged Fool, the noble character and sentiments of Hamlet; and Shylock owes to the insolent mockeries of his persecutors a portion of his tragic power and pathos. It is not so in the classical French tragedies, where the main affair depends upon the attitudes and dispositions of the personages, and the subordinate parts may be dispensed with. Yet there is quite enough in Mr. Gilbert's design, with the accompaniment of the complete work of Shakspeare, to bring to mind the chief characteristics of each play to which the figures belong. We will, for this preface, therefore, we shall leave our readers to peruse the tableau of Shakspeare characters here presented. In the foreground they will find the unhappy Queen of Denmark, reclining with his noble sorrow of a duty superformed, and despising the vain pleasures of youth; the fair Ophelia, bearing the fruits of her garden, plays with her silly posies, and sings her will song before she dies. They will find the sacrificial Iphigenia, shrinking from the poisoning he scales; while the fair young Doctor of Laws, pointing to the heroic one, bids her wish Shylock Christian, and so lose the murderous hand. On the other side, beneath the pelting of the pitiless storm, accompanied by the wise Fool, and the mad Tom, who, on the bare heath, old Lear declares the raging tempest less unkind than his ungrateful daughters, and bids it wreak all its fury on his homeless head. Above, the prudent Moor, turning a dreadful glance upon his innocent and imploring wife, receives the poisonous falsehood which is to harbor in peaceful breasts. In the upper scenes, inspired with all the gentle affections, and graceful joys, and humorous impulses of Shakspearean romance, Juliet, in her sad sweetness and the romantic knife, occupy the upper middle of the picture. The fair, the gay, the melodious old Knight of Arden, with his wife fool lines by the merry wives of Windsor; Petruchio, affecting a boisterous roughness, embodies his generous affections, and leads Kate into the air; the stupid host constable of Messina gives orders to the watchmen guarding their round. Above, the wise and gentle Prince disguised as a shepherd, with the unknown maiden, whom shepherds once picked up as a dropped blossom, a treaty being left in the wilderness, and who is now a princess, in a rural out-scene, exchange their sweet confidences with each other. The grave sailor-boy, her servant Viola, is near them. Just on the left hand King Henry VIII., leaning upon the shoulder of Wolsey, we expect the shapes of Anne Boleyn and Katherine in royal favour. On the right hand, just opposite these, a foolish footman, who wears the livery of Sigismund, King of Verona, is teaching his dog how to behave in genteel society at the Duke's palace. Higher still, we see the shapes of Ariel, Titania, and the fairy crowd and mythological figures in which the poet's teeming fancy delighted to revel. Below, we have the prominent figures of Lady Macbeth and Macbeth; here is Puck, laden with the ass's head to be fixed on the shoulders of that ass Bottom; here is Ariel, the impersonation of the sprite, however, of the magician's haunt. But human life is the staple matter of these dramatic illustrations. A tablet in the centre, engraved with "The Seven Ages of Man," is supported by the figures of satirist of Ardenne, sums up the "strange eventful history" of our race on earth.

WILLS AND BEQUESTS.

The will of the Right Hon. Lord Arthur Lennox, formerly M.P. for Chichester, was administered to in her Majesty's Court of Probate by his relict, Lady Charlotte Lennox, daughter of Major Gen. Sir Alexander Duff. Lord Arthur Lennox was a son of the late Duke of Richmond, K.G. He held the post of Lord of the Treasury and Board of Trade from 1852 to 1855, as well as Lieutenant-Colonel in the Army, formerly commanding the 72nd Highlanders and 16th Lancers. His lordship died on the 15th of last month, in his fifty-eight, having executed his will so far back as 1846, and a codicil of 1849, when he was unmarried. By the latter he left £1,000 to the daughter of his wife, by her first husband, upon her Ladyship's decease, and the residue equally amongst all their children.

The will of Mrs. Mary Dorothea Pemberton, relict of the late John Henry, Esq., of Shenfield, Essex, deceased, was proved, in the London Court, under £80,000 personalty; the executors being Thomas Charles Pemberton, Esq., of Lincoln's-inn, and Mrs. Ann Eliza Pemberton, widow of the late Rev. Charles Lee Pemberton, of Ashwell, Herts, and Mrs. Pemberton's nephews. Legacies are left to near relatives and friends; also legacies to servants. The residue of the testator's property is bequeathed to the eight children of Mrs. Pemberton, the estate of Shenfield Hall is devised to the said Thomas C. Pemberton, who also takes a moiety of the residue of the real and personal property, the other moiety being left between Mrs. Burdon and Mrs. Murray, the relicts of the testator's late husband.

The will of James Maxon, Esq., of Upper Grosvenor-street, was proved, in London, under £250,000 personalty, the executors being the testator's son Hon. Lady Caroline Fitz-Gerald, the testator, the relict, daughter of the late Earl of Berkeley, and Lady Caroline's son, the executors appointed by the will, all of which are appended five codicils. To his relict, Lady Caroline, the testator has bequeathed his real estate, and also a moiety of the residue of his personal estate (saving a sum of £150,000 to be held in trust for the payment of annuities to his two sons and unmarried daughter), the other moiety being at the interest in the surplus residue, which, upon her Ladyship's decease, will be divided in certain proportions amongst his sons and daughters, by virtue of the power reserved to him.

The late Mr. G. Daniel, of Canonbury, has bequeathed to the British Museum the famous cabinet saved from the mulberry-tree presented by the poet to Sir Hugh Clopton, and cut down by Mr. Gastrell, upon the occasion of the jubilee of 1769. He has also left to the British Museum the Gurrick correspondence, upon the re-sale of which the nation will pay, containing a fine miniature of Shakspeare under crystal and set in gold.

South Australia has determined on the addition of a tower to the Treasury at Adelaide, to receive the gold escort. The first stone was laid on the 15th of January.

A bill to unite Nova Scotia, New Brunswick, and Prince Edward Island under one Government and one Legislature passed the House of Assembly of Nova Scotia unanimously on the 18th ult.

A letter from Jerusalem in the Paris Monde says:—"The Duke de Luynes is exploring the Dead Sea on board a small steamer called the Segar, ten metres (thirty-three feet) in length, which he got built on purpose at Trevise. It was then taken to pieces and sent to Jaffa, whence it was conveyed to the Dead Sea on the backs of camels. The Duke de Luynes has explored the bed, which still emanates at the sight of this tiny vessel. It is said among the waters in a way inexplicable to science. The bituminous substance called asphalt (bitumen) which has risen from the bottom of the accursed Lake of Sodom.

SKETCHES IN PARLIAMENT.

WITH a Ministry which has no legislative programme, and depends on a successful Budget for tiding it through the Session, the House of Commons is justified in sparring. Whether the Opposition had or had not conceived the original idea of reducing the Government to extremes by cutting off its members in detail does not matter now; but it is clear that the plan is in operation. Curiously enough, it seems to be found out by the party most interested in not allowing it to meet take his place; and if, as has hitherto been the case, the retiring placemen have reason to be satisfied with the conduct of the Premier towards them on their retirement, they do not long into that kind of opposition, springing from wounded vanity, which may be designated Backbenchism—that feeling of injury derived from the want of preeminent sense with which respect—and are not converted into enemies by the mere fact of their new position. Thus supported into the Administration necessarily add to its strength, and the Ministry, powerful and compact, commands, they doubtless, draw closer to the Government any friends they may have got to leave it. Hence the Opposition, in endeavouring to carry out quasi obnoxious administrators from a Government is not without the changing chance of success, and the Ministry, which can afford to lose out of doors are not equally alive with those within to the restorative of the vitality which the loss of some members would be supposed to carry the circumstance that on the same night this week the House witnessed the sacrificial resignation of Mr. Lowe and a very skilful attempt to get rid of Lord Clarence Paget, the Secretary of Under-Secretary for War. Owing to the tact and ready resource of Lord Clarence the plan failed, but it is well for Ministers that it was carried out.

It is always easy to know when the House is about to assume itself, as in Victor Hugo's sense of the phrase, for the words "Le Roi s'assoie" stand as the Chairman's signal. Then the House of Lords is about to perform the most painful act of his public life, and his heart is full of sad emotion, and his mind is overwhelmed with the sense of a crowded house. In Mr. Lowe's case this might have been more than usually expected; but what was not expected was the result, which was, in a few words, this:—Mr. Lowe, in the course of that short speech which the rest of the House, which is at once a political and a play-going one, has pronounced the best he ever delivered, announced that the hard, cold, heartless stoic, as most men deemed him, could not be deeply affected by the loss of office, and that the force of good opinion was in him something very nearly a substitute for feeling and even fervour. Mr. Lowe, in fact, was cheered by his friends with inaudible delivery of "winged words," which darted from his lips like coloured sparks from a rocket, and which, perhaps, were only lightning, to which the cause of their creation sympathy; but when, in a pause, he paused to look for the effect of his thoughts fit expression, but never relapsing into that cool insolence of tone and demeanour which were wont to characterise him in the days of his power. Mr. Lowe, in the most logical severity, answered the case against him, he fairly carried the House with him, and Mr. Disraeli, who had risen to rebut, to justify the step he had taken in bringing on the motion which drove Mr. Lowe to resign, was compelled to do so in the face of that which he announced that resignation; and even from the reluctant lips of Mr. Disraeli, Mr. Lowe had not been left out in the cold as a mere distributor. Lord Palmerston, having had of late some practice in speaking in connection with the Government, was not equal to it. Although one could not but feel that there was something in Mr. Disraeli's taunt that Mr. Lowe had not been loyally supported by his colleagues.

By a sequence, which, if accidental, was apt, Mr. Disraeli immediately came forward to explain the circumstances of the policy of the fact of five Under-Secretaries of State sitting in the House of Commons. Mr. Disraeli, in the course of his speech, which was one he emphasises as a constitutional question, his solemnity is nearly ludicrous. He seems to be conscious that he is in a position of great nobleness, in the midst of which he is to stand self-possessed, bearing the weight of the Ministry on his back. Mr. Disraeli desires to embody the imposition forient raise of the poet; he is within an ace of the Ministry, and he is resolved to be justify the step he had taken in bringing on the motion which drove Mr. Lowe to resign. Well, it is very curious, and very bad taste, but, somehow, the House does not appreciate Mr. Disraeli in these moods. Nothing could be more clear than the case which he made on the occasion, and the entire part of it was duly listened to; but when Mr. Disraeli sat down, the House was not sure that its members grew talkative or sleepy, according to their momentary temper. Mr. Lowe, in the course of his speech, had referred to Mr. Disraeli's motion had been taken away by the arrangements of the Government in the course of the day, and Mr. Disraeli, in the act of denouncing the illegality it had ceased to exist, for there were actually there at that moment three members under-Secretaries in the House. As for the past, Lord Palmerston's candour, as is usual when he is candid, was overwhelming; and when Lord Palmerston is candid the House is not. Now, as an offence committed unwittingly, and which the silence of the House for a time removed, Mr. Disraeli's argument fell flat. It left the Mr. Disraeli but to content himself with the delivery of his great constitutional speech, which, considering the occasion and the certain sense, powerful limb of the Ministry was thus averted, and a vote of censure on the Government.

There has been, almost coincident with this "dying out" of opposition, a remarkable improvement in the tone of a few months the General retired, as did also the members of the House of Commons, to Canada, the ladies, many of them, remaining in the galleries and Corps Diplomatique.

THE APPROACHING CONFERENCE.—The Earl of CARNARVON called attention to the importance of the Conference assembling as soon as possible, and asked Earl RUSSELL for an explanation as to why it was now postponed until Monday.—Earl RUSSELL said her Majesty's Government were fully alive to the importance of the meeting of the Conference as speedily as possible. It was postponed from Wednesday until Monday in consequence of the non-arrival up to that time of M. de Bourg, the representative of the Diet.—After some observations from the Earl of MALMESBURY and Lord STANLEY de Bedcliffe as to the great importance of an immediate sitting of the Conference a sitting of the Conference for business, the subject dropped.

HOUSE OF COMMONS.—THURSDAY.

NEW MEMBERS.—Mr. Childers took the oath and his seat for Pontefract, in the room of Lord Milton.

GENERAL GARIBALDI.—Mr. HENNESSY asked the CHANCELLOR OF THE EXCHEQUER, in reply to a question from Mr. Kennard, stated that he felt obliged to his hon. friend for the opportunity he had afforded him of correcting some misrepresentations which had appeared in the public journals. He did not think that there could be anything more offensive to the British mind than the notion that a subject should be any secret interference or mystery in such a case in respect to the conduct of any public man. He stated the circumstances of the two interviews which had given rise to these incorrect and absurd rumours. On Sunday last the Duke of Sutherland intimated to him that a number of friends of General Garibaldi were beginning to entertain serious apprehensions for his safety, and that they were desirous that he should leave the Duke's. Her Majesty's Government wished him, however, to act in this matter entirely as he thought proper, and to refer to them only in case he objected to this irregular proceeding.—The SPEAKER ruled that the right hon. gentleman was in order. The CHANCELLOR OF THE EXCHEQUER then proceeded. He was requested to go to Stafford House that evening to consider what advice should be given to General Garibaldi on his departure. He considered that the Duke of Sutherland had not only exercised a princely hospitality to General Garibaldi, but had also shown a spirit of true kindness. He therefore felt that it was his duty to comply with his wish. At Stafford House he had a discussion on various points connected with the visit of General Garibaldi in a strictly confidential manner, and he declined to take any part in the matter, which was growing rapidly day by day, and there was the express declaration of Dr. Ferguson that the health of the General would not admit of the exhaustion of those public demonstrations, the effect of which most of them had once experienced. A difference in the views of the Duke and General Garibaldi might anticipate. The noble DUKE, the Earl of Shaftesbury, Colonel Fenwick, General Peard, and other friends of General Garibaldi had met together, and all came to the conclusion that it was their duty to advise General Garibaldi not to contract the very high honour of the Garter unconditionally, and so far it finally before he left London, in order that it might not be exhausted by future applications. This was the course he took on receiving the two of his friends, and he (the Chancellor of the Exchequer) was afterwards asked to see General Garibaldi at Stafford House. He had no hesitation in saying that the invitation would be received, and he thought it would be a pleasure for him to go through this laborious without grave injury to his health, which, he watered to add, he was glad to say, was that of a healthy man and one of his country. He ventured also to point out that there was some risk that the magnificent and national reception that was given to him by the great metropolis of England—which already formed a great national event—might possibly lose some of its real character by the ceremonial usually observable elsewhere. General Garibaldi heard him with great patience, and stated that in his opinion there was great loss in the ceremonial usually. He felt the difficulty in drawing a distinction between the claims and wishes of one town and another, and he thought that the best course for him to take was to leave London at once. He had, however, told General Garibaldi that it was his duty to honour for himself, but to render his thanks to the Government and people of England for what they had so evidently done for him personally. He was prepared to him that in visiting London he had visited the entire nation, and the purpose of his journey was accomplished. He was now quite recovered, and he was perfectly at liberty; but he hoped at some future time to come to England in a less formal manner. (Loud cheers.)—Mr. HENNESSY inquired of the Exchequer) the very busy and active imaginations of persons who had nothing better to do than to go about from club to club, and from one dinner party to another, which could have for a reasons for political motives being imported into this matter, and he was sure he had done a public service in stating, not only officially, he was sure before he left the House, but also in such a way as to lay the ground for the ridiculous reports that umbrage had been taken on the other side of the water at the reception of Garibaldi in England. Very little time often the cause of introducing a great deal of error, and the accidental circumstance of his being called upon to say a few words in reply to the toast of Garibaldi had been made the foundation of stories which he need hardly declare to be entirely false. (Hear, hear.)—Mr. DISRAELI said that Mr. SCULLY wished to know whether the right hon. gentleman intended to imply that the Secretary of General Garibaldi (the Hon. Colonel Forester, M.P. for Ireland as well as England (derisive cheers and laughter)—The CHANCELLOR OF THE EXCHEQUER said that he had no intention to make any such statement. He expected rather to the people of England or the people of Ireland, but left it to the General to decide for himself.

During the discussion upon the Lisbon packet question, General Garibaldi visited the house, accompanied by his two sons, Mr. Seely, M.P., and a number of his admirers. The gallery was densely crowded, and members had to tolerate any public recognition of his presence, but several hon. gentlemen personally known to him went and shook hands with him. General Garibaldi occupied a seat at the end of the second bench, close to and on the right of the entrance. He was dressed in a grey overcoat and a black wide-awake hat. His sons occupied places in the gallery, nearly over the clock. Having remained for about half an hour, he left the house in the same way he entered it. Wards Hotel was subsequently his destination.

THE LONSDALE ELECTION.—Mr. L. BUTT moved that the Select Committee on the Lonsdale Election be reassembled and that the vacancy occasioned by them by the House.—The motion, having been opposed by the Attorney-General and Mr. HUNT, was negatived without a division.

THE IRISH BANKRUPT BILL.—On the order of the day for going into a Committee of Ways and Means the CHANCELLOR OF THE EXCHEQUER, in explaining the proposals of the hon. members for Dudley and Evesham in respect to the Irish Bankruptcy Act, and expressed a hope that the House would not adopt them, as they would greatly interfere with the present financial arrangements. Mr. T. BUTT said that he would withdraw his motion in the hope that the Exchequer would be supporting the business of the House.—Mr. HUNT, in explain of the House, the duty upon fire insurances should be a uniform one of a shilling per cent on all descriptions of property.—Mr. DISRAELI thought the House divided, and the amendment was negatived by a majority of 179 to 117.

The House then went into Committee of Ways and Means.

The CHANCELLOR OF THE EXCHEQUER moved a resolution to reduce the fire insurance duty on stock in trade by 1s. 6d. per cent.

Sir H. WILLOUGHBY moved as an amendment a resolution to reduce the duty upon horses and buildings instead of stock in trade.

After a short discussion the amendment was negatived, without a division, and the original resolution was agreed to.

The CHANCELLOR OF THE EXCHEQUER moved the order of the day for going into Committee of Supply upon the Bill for Regulating the Inspection of Cattle. After some attention to the Channel Fleet, and the fleet in the home ports, which, he said, he had reason to believe were not in a state of efficiency which ought to be.—Lord C. PAGET assured the right hon. gentleman that the British navy was in an efficient condition, and that all necessary manning scouden by iron ships engaged the full attention of the Government.

The House then went into Committee of Supply, when the last votes were agreed to.

COUNTRY NEWS.

The Blackburn magistrates have fined a man £5 for kissing a lady against her will. The outrage was committed in a public thoroughfare, and the lady was going to a stranger to the town.

At an auction for ministers' money in St. Andrew's-street, Edinburgh, on Tuesday, at which 600 lots were disposed of, the prices were smashed and burned.

The National Horse Show of Ireland was opened at Dublin yesterday week. It is the first of the kind, and on the premises of the Royal Dublin Society and the national veterinary establishment, a room of a high class.

The Marlborough branch railway, which runs from Savernake (on the Swiss and Hants Railway) to Marlborough, a distance of about five miles, is opened for traffic.

The boats of the National Life-boat Institution stationed at Withernsea, near Hull, and Southwold, on the Suffolk coast, were launched on Saturday last, during stormy weather, in rescuing from destruction three fishing-boat crews, consisting of nine men, and their vessels.

Archbishop Trench appeared yesterday week for the first time before a fashionable audience in Dublin, and delivered a public lecture. There was a crowded assemblage. The subject of the lecture was "Dutch-and-Antiquity."

A young man, in the employ of an eminent firm of chemists to Liverpool, was committed on a charge of manslaughter last Saturday. He had mixed strychnine instead of James's powder in a prescription, and this caused the death of a patient.

Sir Robert Kane has resigned his office as President of the Queen's College, Cork, because the Government require that the President of the College shall be no longer non-resident.—It is said that Dr. Ballon, Professor of Surgery at the Queen's College, Cork, has sent in his resignation in consequence of the pupils refusing to attend his lectures.

The council of the Incorporated Society of the Attorneys and Solicitors of Ireland held a meeting, at the Four Courts, Dublin, yesterday week, for election of a secretary in the room of Mr. Joseph Ellis, deceased, when Mr. John Hawkins Goddard, solicitor, one of the late respected president of the society, was elected.

Mr. Stansfeld is to be invited to meet his constituents in the Fleece Inn, Bradford, on Wednesday, when a testimonial of not less than £300 will be presented to him.

The election for Devizes took place on Monday, when Sir Robert Bateson, Conservative, was elected without opposition as successor to the Hon. Mr. Addington, called, by his father's death, to the House of Peers as Lord Sidmouth.—Mr. Childers, the new Lord of the Admiralty, was re-elected without opposition for Pontefract, Saturday.

The death of "Old Jenny," a Southport celebrity, is announced. The deceased was ninety-two years old, and had travelled as the public carrier between Preston and North Meols for upwards of seventy years. She was the mother of eleven children, grandmother to forty-seven, great-grandmother to ninety-two, and great-great-grandmother to one child.

The Rev. Thomas Lawson, of Bolton, has died suddenly, weighing more than forty tons, was drawn by fifty horses to the Preston railway station, and thence by the Lancashire and Yorkshire express to Strashbridge, where it will form a portion of a monument to be erected over the remains of the late Rev. Patrick Brontë, father of the authoress.

Mr. Charles Fisher, the proprietor of the paper-mill at Dunworth, was, on Saturday last, giving some instructions to his workmen about, when he suddenly fell down dead. He was a man of great bodily strength, and was in the prime of life. His death, it is supposed, was caused by apoplexy.

Mr. Elton, a resident at Cromer-gardens, Worcester, while travelling by the express train from Worcester to Paddington, on Thursday fortnight, suddenly broke into a violent state of insanity and attempted to throw himself out of the window. He was overpowered by the guard, and on the train reaching Paddington he was conveyed to a cab, and from there his brother was stopped and Mr. Elton secured. It seems that Mr. Elton has long been deemed insane, but harmless.

MONETARY TRANSACTIONS OF THE WEEK.

From our City Correspondent.

THE Directors of the Bank of England have resolved to advance their minimum rate of discount from 6 per cent to 7 per cent, and the Chancellor of the Exchequer has accommodates having continued very active, and no foreign loans having been brought out, the Bank of England has been compelled to take this step in order to protect the bullion, which was rapidly disappearing; whilst the addition to the supply of stock afloat has been very small. The Bank rate of discount has been 6 per cent since November 5, 1857.

The supply of money in the General Discount Market is moderately extensive; and the rate of discount is from 6 per cent to 6½ per cent.

The Stock Exchange has been very dull, and prices have declined ½ per cent. Consols for account, 91¼, 91¼, 91¼, 91¼, 91¼, 91¼.

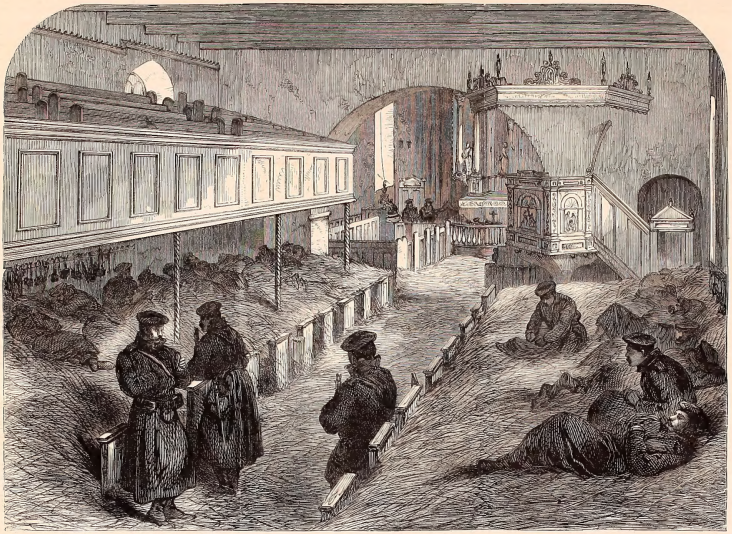
The last return of the Bank of France shows an increase of over £600,000 in the stock of bullion in that establishment. The Bank of Belgium follows this example, and has raised its rate of discount to 6 per cent.

Bank rate.	Open market.		Bank rate.	Open market.
Paris ... 6	5	Amsterdam ... 3	2½
Berlin ... 6	6	Trieste ... 5	4
Hamburg ... 6	5½	Madrid ... 5	4½
Frankfort ... 6	5½	St. Petersburg ... 5	5

Bullion for Portugal has been exported of £50,000 in bars, and £20,000 in Mexican dollars. The specie in the Bank of England on Thursday week was as follows:—

	1864.	1863.	1862.	1861.	1860.
Gold ...	£19,000,000	£18,000,000	£18,000,000	£18,000,000	£18,000,000
Silver ...	4,000,000	4,000,000	4,000,000	4,000,000	4,000,000

The last return of the Bank of England shows an increase of £600,000 in the stock of bullion in that establishment. The Bank of Belgium follows this example, and has raised its rate of discount to 6 per cent.



Bank rate.	Open market.		Bank rate.	Open market.
Paris ... 6	5	Amsterdam ... 3	2½
Berlin ... 6	6	Trieste ... 5	4
Hamburg ... 6	5½	Madrid ... 5	4½
Frankfort ... 6	5½	St. Petersburg ... 5	5

Bullion for Portugal has been exported of £50,000 in bars, and £20,000 in Mexican dollars. The specie in the Bank of England on Thursday week was as follows:—

	1864.	1863.	1862.	1861.	1860.
Gold ...	£19,000,000	£18,000,000	£18,000,000	£18,000,000	£18,000,000
Silver ...	4,000,000	4,000,000	4,000,000	4,000,000	4,000,000

The last return of the Bank of France shows an increase of over

THE WAR IN DENMARK. FROM SKETCHES BY OUR SPECIAL ARTISTS.

INTERIOR OF WEST DUPPEL CHURCH, USED BY PRUSSIAN SOLDIERS AS A DORMITORY.

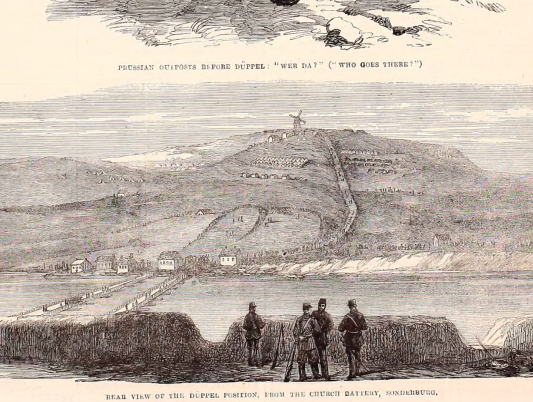
THE SOLE REAL, DANISH IRON-PLATED GUN-BOAT, IN THE VENNING BUND, FIRING ON THE PRUSSIANS BEFORE DUPPEL.

THE WAR IN DENMARK. FROM SKETCHES BY OUR SPECIAL ARTISTS.

Danish infantry on the side of Duppel hill coming out from their redoubts and sending volleys of musketry down upon the hesitating Prussians. Several of the forts are redoubts on the brow of the hill, as far as the windmill to the right hand, are here included.

DESCRIPTION OF THE ROLF KRAKE.

This vessel was built by the Messrs. Napier, of Glasgow, and left that port last July. She is 191 ft. 6 in. long, 28 ft. 2 in. broad (extreme breadth); she draws 10 ft. of water, and her capacity is 1200 tons' measurement; her engines are 250-horse power. She has attained a speed of 10·4 knots an hour at the measured mile. She is covered with 4½-inch armour-plating; and she has two cylindrical revolving turrets of iron, each of which turret is armed with two guns, 68-pounders Danish. She made a most satisfactory cruise in the Baltic last summer. In the war since commenced, her first notable performance was when she engaged the Prussian batteries at Eckernsunde. Private letters from a Danish officer inform us that "on this occasion the Rolf Krake was fired at during an hour and a half by three different batteries, containing altogether fifteen or sixteen guns, most of them 24-pounder rifled guns. Although the Rolf Krake was hit about a hundred and fifty times by shot, shell, and shrapnel, besides an immense number of rifle bullets; and although her rigging, bulwarks, funnel, and boats were a great deal cut up, yet, after the action, the hull, machinery, turrets, and guns were in perfect fighting order; and only three men had been slightly wounded. The indents in the armour-plates made by the shot were, in some instances, as deep as ¼ in., and the concussion occasioned by the striking of the shot against the ship's side was so strong that some of the bulk-heads in the cabin and gun-room fell down. The turning of the turrets and working of the guns were perfectly satisfactory." Again, a letter of later date says—"No inconvenience is found in taking aim from the turrets. The deck has not suffered at all from the concussion of our own guns. No inconvenience was found either from the concussion of our own guns or from the enemy's shot striking the turrets." Since this she has fought, as we have seen, her second action, and come off with no material damage. This is the only European iron-clad vessel that has been tested in actual warfare.



PRUSSIAN OUTPOSTS CHALLENGING A PASSER-BY.

The pair of martial figures which our Artist has drawn, standing with their rifle-muskets half raised, and already fingering the deadly triggers, are a couple of Prussian infantry soldiers, on outpost duty somewhere in the neighbourhood of Düppel. The metal helmet, surmounted with a spike, which is peculiar to the army of Prussia, should be well adapted to resist a sabre-cut, when they receive a cavalry charge, but must be an incumbrance at other times. Under the helmet they wear a head-covering of black cloth. They have high-collared coats, long over-coats, and black cloth gloves. Their word of challenge is "Wer da?" It is the German for "Who goes there?" One of those sentry-boxes, in which they lurk by the roadside and watch all that passes, is shown in this Engraving.

REAR VIEW OF THE DÜPPEL POSITION FROM SONDERBURG.

We are indebted to a gentleman who was the other day at Sonderburg for the sketch which furnishes the last of our four illustrations of the war this week. It is a view of the Hill of Düppel, seen from the Church Battery in the town of Sonderburg, close to the shore of the Alsen Strait. The aspect of this place must, of course, have been greatly changed by the events of the last few days, which have put the Prussians in possession of the whole of the Düppel shore. At the time when the sketch was taken the eastward or Sonderburg face of the hill showed, as in our Engraving, the tents and huts of the Danish soldiers, in the open fields on each side of the steep straight road which leads up to the summit. The windmill had not yet been knocked down; the redoubts along the westward brow of the hill were still occupied by their brave defenders; the two bridges of boats, which are seen in the foreground, still connected that fortified position on the mainland with the Isle of Alsen. All we can say about it now is Düppel fuit.

PRUSSIAN OUTPOSTS BEFORE DÜPPEL: "WER DA?" ("WHO GOES THERE?")

REAR VIEW OF THE DÜPPEL POSITION, FROM THE CHURCH BATTERY, SONDERBURG.

 The charge for the insertion of Births, Marriages, and Deaths is Five Shillings for each announcement.*

BIRTHS.

On the 14th inst., at 17, Cadogan-place, the wife of Major Affleck, of a daughter.

On the 16th inst., at Ashfield, Burnley, the wife of William Robinson, jun., Esq., of a daughter.

On the 16th inst., at Elm Lodge, East Sheen, the wife of Francis Day, Esq., Madras Medical Service, of a son.

On the 16th inst., at Canoe Redonda, San Paulo, Brazil, the wife of F. W. Sharpe, Esq., of a daughter.

On the 16th inst., at 3, Albion-street, Hyde Park, the wife of Lieut.-Thomas, 2nd Regiment, Royal Scots, Carabineers, of a son, stillborn.

MARRIAGES.

On the 17th inst., at Kilbarnock, near Glasgow, by the Rev. Henry Belfrage, Minister of Kilbarnock, son of Richard Belfrage, Esq., of Hyde Park-gardens, to Matilda Margaret, youngest daughter of Samuel Higginbotham, Esq., of Glasgow.

On Feb. 18, at St. John's Church, Pembroke, Bermuda, by the father of the bride, assisted by the Rev. J. Ross, Minister of Trinity Church, John T. Suster, Esq., Paymaster, H.M.S. Pelorus, to Ellen Jane, youngest daughter of the Rev. Joseph F. Lightbourn, Rector of the parishes of Pembroke and Devonshire.

On the 14th inst., at Frankfort, at the residence of the bride, by W. Walker Baldwin, Esquire, Consul for the United States of America, and afterwards at the English Church, by the Rev. Mr. Hall, Mr. Edward Wilson, of George Bonsall, New York, to Miss Mary Ann Hall, daughter of Eugene Sullivan, Esq., San Francisco.

On the 16th inst., at Horsell, Woking, by the Rev. Sir Charles Clarke, Bart., assisted by the Rev. R. Phillips, M.A., Isaac Phillips, Esq., of Mount-street, to Mary Sophia, daughter of the late Thomas Wood, Esq., of Hightown-place, Shoreditch.

DEATHS.

On the 14th inst., at Brighton, the Rev. Hulley H. Berrchall, aged 17.

On the 14th inst., Francis Nicholas Osborne, Esq., of Smithstown House, Drogheda, aged 56.

On Saturday afternoon, March 16, 1850, at the residence of his parents, Washington-avenue, Brooklyn, King's county, New York, John Wentworth Whitney, son of John B. and Helen B. Wilson, aged nine years, nine months, and four days.

On the 15th inst., suddenly, at Penzance Dock, South Wales, Henry Jones, Esq., aged 57, Commander of the Steamer Ivanhoe, of the Penzance and Plymouth Steam Packet Company, in the country of Meath, late 52nd Regiment, and Dublin Royal Northumberland Fusiliers, aged 57 years.

On Sunday, the 10th inst., at 69, Brewster-street, Commercial-road East, John George, the dearly-beloved son of John and Harriet George, aged 18½ months.

FRAMES FOR "RED RIDING HOOD."—Handsome Gilt Frames, complete, 3s.; Maple and Gilt, 3s. Every description of Frames and Mouldings kept in stock. Trade and Exportation at 1000. ESSE, 37, Drury-lane, and 24, St. Martin's-court, Leicester-square.

DENT, Chronometer, Watch, and Clock Maker to Her Majesty's Government the Admiralty, to H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, and Maker of the Great Clock for the Houses of Parliament, begs most respectfully to announce that he has REMOVED from 33, Strand, to 34, Cockspur-street.

GOLD CHAINS and FINE GOLD JEWELLERY.—A very chaste STOCK of GOLD CHAINS, in the following patterns, viz.:—Albert, Guard, Fancy Curb, Rope, Trace, Cable, Hunter, Vest, Neck, Purse, and Keeper Rings, 9s., 10s., and 12s.; Gem Rings, 10s. 6d. to 20s.; Gold Scarf Pins, 5s. 6d. to 10s. 6d.; Gold Brooches, 10s. 6d. to 21s.; Gold Scarf Pins, 5s. to 12s.—FRED. HAWLEY, Goldsmith, 141 Whitechapel-road, corner of Cambridge-street. Gold Lockets, nearly a Hundred Patterns, Jewellery, Silver, and Electro-Plate Goods purchased or taken in exchange. Jewellery repaired and Diamonds set. Price-lists free.

TO LADIES.

HAIR PLAITS in every variety of colour, length, and thickness, always ready for wear at the Alexandra Cash, Hair and Trimmer Store, 24, Regent-street, Waterloo Place, &c., can be forwarded by post, secure from observation, or exchanged for another; and samples of the quality and prices sent free by return.

STACEY and CO., Hairdressers and Manufacturers, 24, Cranbourn-street, W.C. London.

SHAKESPEARE IN HIS GARDEN.

FISHER and SUTTON have DISTILLED several FLOWERS, which, on account of their delicacy, are often allowed to go to Decay, and the great Bard's love of flowers and their perfumery will be seen in the following quotations:—

"Were not summer's distillations left
A liquid prisoner pent in walls of glass,
Beauty's effect with beauty were bereft
Nor it, nor no remembrance what it was;
But flowers distilled, though they with winter meet,
Lose but their show, their substance still lives sweet."

WHITE ROSE—PIESSE and LUBIN.

"Then will I raise aloft the milk-white rose
With whose sweet smell the air shall be perfumed." Sc. 84.

EGLANTINE—PIESSE and LUBIN.

"Let's have some sweets piled with luscious cowslips.
With sweet musk-roses and eglantine." Sc. 11.

NODDING VIOLET—PIESSE and LUBIN.

"The forward violet thus did I adorn,
Going to bed with her dear lord and sire,
If not three days I lived longer." Sc. 4.

MUSK.—PIESSE and LUBIN.

"Smelling as sweetly—all musk." Sc. 68.

AMBERGHIS.—PIESSE and LUBIN.

"Gloves as sweet as musk and ambre, Perfumed for to 'tice a lover." Sc. 68.

PIESSE and LUBIN'S HUNGARY WATER.

"Perchance, indeed, in sparkling wine." I've surprised
A health by fairies thunderstruck, their stamen, corymbum, bethroy anthers and pericarp, with the pulchrum flos Hungaricus mixed.
Peculiarly the rival for rare wonders for but and especial favour of the Queen of Mab." Vide Rosalind, Sc. 1.

2, New Bond-street.

RIMMEL'S TERCENTENARY

ESSENCE.—The Bard of Avon's Perfume, 2s. 6d. The Essence, in a handsome Shakspearian Bottle, with Medallion Bust, 5s.; Double, 7s. 6d.

2, Strand, 96, Regent, and 24, Cornhill.

NAPOLEON PERCH GOLDEN OIL for the Hair.—The first, the only, and the genuine. Sold in the Royal Exchange only at the Original Depôt, 24, where it is sold in exclusion. Price 1s. 6d., 3s., 5s., and 10s. per bottle.—37, Old Bond-street.

BEAUTIFUL HAIR.—CHURCHER'S NEW TOILET CREAM is the most delightful dressing for rendering and preserving the Hair, in tones, luxurious Infant Hair, gloss to Whiskers, and all Hairdressing and Cosmetic purposes. It FOUNDERS and SOUPS, 5, Great Marlborough-street, W., and 35 and 36, City-road, E.C.

HAIR DYE.—BATCHELOR'S Instantaneous Colourless Dye for the Hair, Whiskers, and Beard. No recoil; does not stain the skin. Price 6s. 6d., 7s., and 14s. per bottle. Wholesale and for Exportation at 1000. ESSE, 37, Drury-lane, and 24, St. Martin's-court, Leicester-square.

ROWLANDS' KALYDOR.

An Oriental Botanical Preparation.

Rowlands' Kalydor instantly allays Heat, Irritation, and Redness, eradicates Scurf and Dandriff, and produces a healthy and delicate bloom. Soothing, cooling, and purifying, it clears the skin of Cutaneous Eruptions and Discolorations. Price 4s. 6d. per bottle. Sold by A. ROWLAND and SON, 20, Hatton-garden, and Purfumers. Ask for "ROWLANDS' KALYDOR," and beware of spurious and pernicious imitations under the names of "Kalydor."

COLUMBIAN HAIR DYE changes Grey Hair to a Natural Brown or Black permanently the moment it is touched with the Dye. Price 3s. 6d., 7s., and 10s. 6d.

LOWDE and ALLEN, 71, Chancery-lane.

NEW BOOKS.

New Edition, 8s., cloth elegant; 15s., morocco antique,

SHAKESPEARE'S HOUSEHOLD WORDS. A Poem; more minutely printed in Gold and Colours from Designs by Owen Jones, and a Photographic Portrait taken from his House-at-Stratford. By CHARLES EDWARD MOTT.

GRIFFITH and FARRAN, Corner of St. Paul's-churchyard.

Price Half-a-Crown each, 2s. 6d. coloured,

TINY STORIES for TINY READERS. By the Author of "Poppy." Illustrated by Wm. Wood and Others.

MAMMA'S BIBLE STORIES. Twelfth Edition.

MAMMA'S LESSONS for LITTLE CHILDREN. Tenth Edition.

GRIFFITH and FARRAN, 172, Queen-street, West Cheapside.

SHAKESPEARE.

THE MOST AUTHENTIC LIFE OF HEMINGES.

REPRINT of the FIRST FOLIO EDITION, 1623.—DR. WILLIAM BOOKER'S SONNETS.

DOMESDEN. Price 10s. 6d.

THE TRAGEDIE of KING LEAR. Price 10s. 6d.

The TRAGEDIES will be ready shortly, and complete the work.

JOHN RUSSELL SMITH, 36, Soho-square.

Three hours and fourth fade, shall make the lasts
Ere thou can end them.

EDDIS, 12, Princes-street, Hanover-square, W.

THE DAY OF a DAISY BOY. Third Edition.

GRIFFITH and FARRAN, Successors to Newbery.

NEW BOOKS.

THE NEW AND POPULAR NOVELS.

JANITA'S CROSS. By the Author of "St. Olaves." 3 v.

SECOND EDITION OF BARBARA'S HISTORY. By AMELIA B. EDWARDS. 3 vols.

THE CLYFFARDS OF CLYFFE. By GEORGE MACDONALD. DR. JAMES. By the Author of "John and I." 3 v.

PECULIAR. Edited by WILLIAM ROWITT. 3 v.

MY STEPFATHER'S HOME. By LADY DUFFUS HARDY.

HURST and BLACKETT, Publishers, 13, Great Marlborough-street.

On Monday, April 29, in Two Vols.,

BERNARD SIM. A Novel. By the late S. P. B. JAMES, Author of "Richelieu" &c.

RICHARD BENTLEY, New Burlington-street.

Just ready, in post 8vo., 10s. 6d.,

IN SPAIN: a Narrative of Travel in 1853, with Sketches of Character.

RICHARD BENTLEY, Publisher in Ordinary to her Majesty.

Now ready, price 3d.

NEW SERIES of the ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS.

GARIBALDI at the Opera of MASANIELLO, Leader, BOSSINI, HARWOOD'S, 192, Piccadilly.

BUREAU SPECIAL DES PANNEMENTS

DE L'EXPOSITION LONDONIENNE, 1851.—Les Propriétaires de Maisons à louer, Appartements, Boutiques, Magasins, Hôtels, Auberges, et d'Habitations, de Villas, Bungalows, et d'Habitations, pour les Visiteurs, Amateurs, Exposants, et Employés de l'Exposition Londonienne, 1851, sont priés de vouloir bien adresser leurs applications pour obtenir de toutes les informations, à M. S. KIMBALL and CO., Secrétaires du Bureau Spécial de l'Exposition, 31, Gutter-lane, Cheapside.

CARTES DE VISITE, 12 for 2s. 6d. Forward your name on slides and 12 stamps, with address, to the PHOTOGRAPHIC EXHIBITION, 168, Piccadilly, W. Sold also at the Exhibition, 5, Coventry-street, Haymarket. You receive 12 the exact size and copy of original, which will be kept for future orders. Also at the Exhibition Stereoscopic Views, 2s. 6d. per dozen.

RODRIGUES' DRESSING CASES and TRAVELLING DRESSING BAGS, with silver or plated Articles, fitted complete, in Russia, Morocco, Crocodile, and Tortoiseshell, Ivories, and writing-table, and a choice selection of elegant Dressing Cases, from 2 to 50 guineas.

RODRIGUES' DESPATCH BOXES and DRESSING BAGS, with Locks of extra strength, of the best quality. Exquisite Enamelled Envelope Cases, Stationery, and Inkstands of all kinds, at RODRIGUES', 42, Piccadilly.

CARTES DE VISITE PORTRAIT ALBUMS, in splendid Binding, from 5s. to 2l guineas. Albums for Foreign Stamps, from 1s. to 10s. Portfolio of Gentlemen's Note Paper, 1s. each, at H. RODRIGUES', 42, Piccadilly, W. Catalogues post-free.

NO CHARGE MADE for STAMPING Arms, Crests, Initials, or Address. Steel Dies, Engraving, and Illuminating. Best Wedding Cards, 50 for 4s. Coronets, Crests, Note full size, five guineas for 4s. At H. RODRIGUES', 42, Piccadilly.

A VISITING CARD-PLATE ENGRAVED, and 100 Cards Printed, for 4s. Arms, Crests, Monograms, Envelopes, Seal Engravings, and Gilt or Fine-printed and stamped Note Paper at equally moderate charges. At H. RODRIGUES', 42, Piccadilly.

JENNER and KNEWSTUB, to the Queen, the Prince and Princess of Wales, beg to call attention to their Stock of Gentlemen's Dressing Cases, Writing and Work Boxes, Despatch Boxes and Dressing Boxes; together with their unequalled Stock of Papier-Mâché Goods, suitable for Presents. Jenner and Knewstub's Little Dressing Bag, with Fittings for Five Persons—Ladies' 2421, 22, St. James's-street; 66 and 67, Strand.

FOR FAMILY ARMS—the LINCOLN'S-INN HERALDIC OFFICE.—Sketches and Estimates Gratis, Painted, Executed, and Quartered. Sketch, 5s. 6d. or sharper. The Lincoln's-Inn Heraldic Office, 61, Chancery-lane. Observe the Name and Number.

LINCOLN'S-INN HERALDIC OFFICE.—Engraving in the Lines of Carter King-at-Arms. Crest on Seal or Ring, 7s.; Book-Plate, Arms, and Crest, with Name, 15s.

FOR FAMILY NAME and Name and Crest.—Search by Carter King-at-Arms and Clerks. Genealogy to CULLETON'S Handbook of Family Arms, Crests, and Mottoes, 5s. Sketch and Estimate Gratis. Culleton's Heraldic Office, 2, Regent-street, Waterloo Place. Observe the Name and Number. Culleton's Gold Pens and Pencil Cases, Presentation Plate, Dressing Bags, Envelope Cases, Writing Desks, Dressing Boxes, Seals, and Rings. Culleton's Library of Reference for Pedigrees, Arms, Crests, Mottoes, Domestic Book, and nearly every work published in connection with Heraldry. Arms painted on Vellum, or Emblazoned, or otherwise Artistically Executed. Culleton's Gentleman's Manual of Heraldry, 32mo., cloth, 5s.

FAMILY ARMS.—CULLETON'S HERALDIC OFFICE.—Every Name has its Proper Arms, Crest, and Motto, to the Sons of Gentlemen Under King-at-Arms, by authority. Crest on Seal or Ring, 7s. Sketch and Name, 5s. Arms Painted on Vellum, or Emblazoned for Framing, 1l. Culleton's Manual of Heraldry, 32mo., cloth, 5s. Culleton's Gold Pens and Pencil Cases, Presentation Plate, Seals, Rings, &c. Culleton's Library of Reference for Pedigrees, Arms, Crests, Mottoes, Domestic Book, and every work published in connection with Heraldry. Culleton's Gentleman's Manual of Heraldry, 32mo., cloth, 5s. Culleton's Heraldic Office, 2, Regent-street, Waterloo Place. Observe the Name and Number.

VISITING CARDS. Best quality.—A card-plate engraved and 50 cards printed, 2s. post-free. Wedding Cards, Envelopes, and Arms by first-class Artists. Mourning orders by next coffin coronet or crest booked.—T. CULLETON, 2nd floor, 2, Regent-street, Waterloo Place. Observe the Name and Number.

CULLETON'S PLATES for MARKING LINEN.—Crest, 3s.; Name, Set of Numbers, and Crest, 10s. Initials, 2s. Arms and Crest, 5s. Set of Movable Numbers, 1s. Culleton's Gold Pens and Pencil Cases. Observe the Name and Number.

DECALCOMANIE.—Arms and Crests of Families, Initials, Monograms, Addresses, Copies of Drawings, Prints, Music, Maps, Coats of Arms, Ornaments, Alphabets, Names of articles in China, Opal, Glass, and Wood for decorating them by the Decalcomanie Process. Instructions for Transferring. Sheets and 6d. to, 10d. Superb sheet, 2s.

DECALCOMANIE PHOTOGRAPHED on STEEL, painted contemporarily by LAFOX of CHANTILLY, Specialité for the Royal Family of France, Duchess Dowager of Kent, Duchess of Sutherland, Marchioness of Ormonde, Countess of Jersey, Lady Ashburton, &c. &c. MARION and CO., sole Agents, 22, Soho-square, with Illustrated Catalogue, post-free.

DECALCOMANIE.—Arms and Crests of Families, Initials, Monograms, Addresses, Copies of Drawings, Prints, Music, Maps, Coats of Arms, Ornaments, Alphabets, Names of articles in China, Opal, Glass, and Wood for decorating them by the Decalcomanie Process. Instructions for Transferring. Sheets and 6d., 10d. Superb sheet, 2s.

EVERY MAN HIS OWN PRINTER. The People's Printing Press, suitable for Letterpress, Lithographic, and Copperplate Printing, complete, 2l. 2s. A Sketch of the Art of Printing, One Shilling, or it stamps. Specimens, Catalogues, and Instructions, Two Stamps. ROBERT HARRILD, 59, Paternoster-row, London.

MUSICAL-BOX DEPÔTS, 56, Cheapside, and 15, Leadenhall-street, NICOLES' large Musical Boxes: 21 tunes, 10 guineas; 24 tunes, 12 guineas; Elegant tunes and airs, grand and pert-tone, on application to NICOLES and CO., as above. The largest Stock in London, with warranted manufacture.

CHISSHOLME and SONS (from Bramah and Nicholl), TURNERS' COMPANY, Finishers to the Queen, Prince Albert, Prince of Wales, Princess Royal, Princess Alice, and Royal Family, 12, Panton-street, Haymarket, and 201, Regent-street, W.

PENCILS, Black Lead and Coloured Chalks, Crayons, &c.

Specialité, LAMBERT, Pencil Repointer, sold by all Stationers and Artists' Colourmen.

Agents—HEDDERWICK and ROUGHTON, 5, Friday-street, London, E.C.

NO. 7, BANK-BUILDINGS, corner of Old Jewry, London, is the Chief Office of the ACCIDENTAL DEATH INSURANCE COMPANY. J. W. COLES, Secretary.

SMART'S SOLE WRITING INSTITUTION, 337, Strand, opposite Somerset House.—Mr. SMART, Sole Author of the Writing System of all upon received patronage, and has been taught at any time to write a splendid business hand in six lessons each. Six classes. Mr. Smart, Improvements in Writing Adapted to Various Purposes. Separate rooms for Ladies, to which the Private Pupils have free access. Terms, Private, 3l. 3s.; per annum. N.B.—Agent to the Worshipful Company of Stationers.

REMOVAL.—MESSRS. ALEX and JONES beg to announce their REMOVAL from 4, Bedford-street, Strand, to more commodious premises in the same neighbourhood, being regained by them, No. 10, Bedford-street, Strand.

TRELOAR'S COCOA-NUT MATTING and LINOLEUM, FLOOR-CLOTH WAREHOUSE, 42, LUDGATE-HILL, LONDON.

STAINED-GLASS WORKS. HEATON, BUTLER, and BAYNE have REMOVED to their New Works and Premises, King-street, Covent-garden, W.C.

DINERS A LA RUSSE.

MAPPIN BROTHERS.

SECONDHAND PLATE.—MAPPIN BROTHERS. The largest price given.

MAPPIN BROTHERS, Silversmiths and Cutlers, 222, Regent-street, Established 1810.

FURNITURE, CARPETS, and BEDDING, Carriage free, for our Illustrated Catalogue, containing 360 Engravings of Bedsteads, Bedding, Furniture, Carpets, and Oilcloths, with Prices attached thereto.—LEWIS CHAMOUX and CO., 457, Oxford-street, W., and 15, Newman-street, Oxford-street.

COSTLY FURNITURE for Drawing-room, 100 Dining-room, and Bedroom.—The RELIANCE FURNISHING COMPANY, 31, Oxford-street, opposite Argyll-street, is the only establishment in the kingdom where a separate Department for FURNITURE of a most expert mechanical character. The fronting-room, Dining-room, and Bedroom Suites are made in the best manner; the articles there only beautiful and very large drawings-room Suites, in Rosewood, Walnut-tree, Maple, Satin-wood, and Oak, consisting of Sofa, Couch, easy-chair, and six chairs, covered in rich velvet, tapestry, or damask, and complete all the rooms. The Cabinets in Mahogany, Rosewood, Walnut-tree, Maple, and

KING and CO., SILKMERCERS, &c., 243, Regent-street.
Rich brocé silk,
at large tenant fall-trade prices, originally 20s. and 25s. reduced to Extreme Price 12s.6d. per yard.
A special short silk produce in 6qd. in the parcel.
Large Lots of Rich Silks, Velvets, and Velveteens of the machine that would be dear at our price.
New Goods can be brought 271 lots in price.
King and Co., Regent-street, London.

THE NEW SPRING SILKS at KING'S. 243, Regent-street.
Patterns sent post-free.

PATTERNS POST-FREE.
WATERPROOF FOULARDS, £1 1s. a Dress, at KING'S, 243, Regent-street.

PATTERNS POST-FREE.
CHECKED SILKS, 1s. 9½d. a Yard, at KING'S, 243, Regent-street.

PATTERNS POST-FREE.
STRIPED SILKS, £1 5s. a Dress, at KING'S, 243, Regent-street.

PATTERNS POST-FREE.
MOIRE ANTIQUES, 3s. 6d. a Yard, at KING'S, 243, Regent-street.

PATTERNS POST-FREE.
GROS GRAINS, 2s. 11½d. a Yard, at KING'S, 243, Regent-street.

PATTERNS POST-FREE.
CHÉNÉ SILKS, £1 15s. a Dress, at KING'S, 243, Regent-street.

PATTERNS POST-FREE.
CORDED SILKS, 3s. 3d. a Yard, at KING'S, 243, Regent-street.

PATTERNS POST-FREE.
PLAIN SILKS, 2s. 3d. a Yard, at KING'S, 243, Regent-street.

PATTERNS POST-FREE.
£5650 WORTH of BLACK SILKS
to be sold per yard, at KING'S, 243, Regent-street.

PATTERNS POST-FREE.
£4763 WORTH of BROCHÉ SILKS,
Black, 3s. 6d. per yard,
at KING'S, 243, Regent-street.

PATTERNS POST-FREE.
£7542 WORTH of CORDED SILKS,
Black, 3s. 3d. per yard, Corded Silks,
at KING'S, 243, Regent-street.

PATTERNS POST-FREE.
£3759 WORTH of TRIPOUS SILKS,
£2 2s. the Full Dress,
at KING'S, 243, Regent-street.

PATTERNS POST-FREE.
£5642 WORTH of MOIRE ANTIQUES,
Black, 3s. 6d. per yard,
at KING'S, 243, Regent-street.

PATTERNS POST-FREE.
FRENCH LAWNS, 8s. 6d. a Dress, Extra Quantities, 1s. 6d.
Cremorne Muslins, 1s. 6d.
Spring Muslins, 1s. 6d.
Spring Cambrics, 1s. 6d.
New Jaconets, 10s. 6d.
Piques, 10s. 6d.
Address to KING and CO., Regent-street, London.

IMPORTANT SALE of SILKS, GRANT and GASK recommend the following lots of very cheap SILKS in the special pattern of their customers, of which Patterns will be sent free on application:—
Several Lots of New Silks, in New Fancy Stripes, variety of patterns, at 17s. 6d. for 12 yards, wide width.
Rich Glacés and Cros de Londres, in the New Colours, at 2½ guineas the Dress of 12 yards.
A large lot of very rich extra-wide Cord Silks, 2s. 6d. per yard (24 inches); extremely cheap.
The richest Plain and Broché Moire Antiques, in all Colours, at 2½ guineas the Dress of 12 yards; usual price 3½ guineas; the new cords 2½ guineas.
Plain Black Glacés and Black Brocé Silks, at 2½ to 10 guineas for 14 yards; these are the most fashionable for wear, and are recommended for wear.
Handsome Burmese Opera Muslins, in rich Silk Stripes, from 9s. 6d. per Dress.
Nos. 28, 29, 30, 31, and 32, Oxford-street; 3, 4, and 5, Wells-street Chapel.

JAMES LOCKE and CO.'S SPRING and SUMMER NOVELTIES.
Ladies will find upon inspection an abundant assortment of all the most recherché Novelties in Dress Fabrics, including Foulards, Poplins, and Mohair Alpacas. The Cord and Satin Fancy Poplins are also particularly worthy of attention, being replete with some most elegant and tasteful designs, and manufactured expressly for JAMES LOCKE and CO.
THE NEW WAREHOUSES,
107, 109, and 107, Regent-street.

THE NEW FASHIONS in MANTLES and SHAWLS for the PRESENT SEASON are NOW READY, and may be obtained, at respectively moderate PRICES, at GOODALL'S, 113, 115, 117, Regent-street, Italia Street Warehouse, Leicester-square, and 26, Haymarket (the Queen's Head, Haymarket).

BAKER and CRISP'S ALPINE KID GLOVES, 1s. 6d. pair; Best Cavendish, 2s.; Real Brussels Net Veils, 2s. 6d.
198, Regent-street, exactly opposite Conduit-street.

1500 BLACK SPANISH LACE SHAWLS, at 12s. 6d., 15s., and 1 guinea each, purchased last September. These goods will be worth double. Ray and Jones, Bonnet and Mantle and CRISP, removed to 120, Regent-street.

LAST YEAR'S SHAWLS, GRENADINES, &c., to be cleared out.
BAKER and CRISP, removed to 198, Regent-street.

SILKS RETURNED FROM AMERICA.
BAKER and CRISP are now selling upwards of 2000 pieces of RICH SILKS, returned from America, in Checks, Stripes, Corded Colours and Fashions, from 1s. 11½d. to 3s. 6d. per yard. Patterns free.
Baker and Crisp, 198, Regent-street.

BLACK SILKS! BLACK SILKS!
Rich, Bright, Wide, and Durable.
Patterns free.—BAKER and CRISP, 198, Regent-street.

THE NEW HEADDRESS,
Tyrol Beads, with Bonnet and Cable in all colours, 1s. 6d. and 2s. 6d. each. Four-fee stamps.
BAKER and CRISP, removed to 198, Regent-street, London.

NEW SUMMER DRESSES, &c.
Patterns Free to any part of the world.
The New Washing Grenadines, 1s. 6d. per Dress.
The New Washing Grenadines, 1s. 6d. per Dress.
The New Paris Robes, 21s. 6d. Full Dress.
The New Fashion Muslins, from 6d. per yard.
The New Organdie Muslins, in all colours.
The New Striped Muslins, 6½d. per yard.
The New Veil in Nuns, 10s. 6d. Full Dress.
BAKER and CRISP, removed to 198, Regent-street, London.

MRS. WASHINGTON MOON has returned from PARIS with the NEWEST and MOST RECHERCHÉ CONFECTION and Millinery Goods for MOURNING—CAPPETS and MOONS, Conforters, in appropriate R.S.V.P. Crapes, Flowers of Peace and Flowers Royal of Great Britain and Ireland, 166, Regent-street, London.

PATTERNS POST-FREE.
RICH SPRING SILKS.
PETER ROBINSON
Desires special attention to his present large Stock of New Patterns for the present, comprising many novelties, commencing at £1 5s. 6d. the Full Dress.
Broché and Chiné Silks, suitable for Walking and Dinner Wear,
at 1½ guinea the Dress.
Patterns free.—Peter Robinson's, 103 to 105, Oxford-street, W.

THE NEW REVERSIBLE SILKS, in every Colour, at
PETER ROBINSON'S,
Specially prepared for Spring, 11 yards.
RICH CORDED SILKS
£2 12s. 6d. the Dress of 11 yards.
Patterns free.—Peter Robinson's, 103 to 105, Oxford-street, W.

MOIRE ANTIQUES,
in Every Shade of Colour,
PETER ROBINSON
has just imported fifty-eight Pieces of this Make of Colour in BOTH PLAIN GLACÉ
at £1 19s. 6d. the Dress of 11 yards.
Patterns Sent—Peter Robinson's, 103 to 105, Oxford-street, W.

SPECIAL—SEVERAL CASES OF RICH FOREIGN DRESSES,
in the Satin Full Dress.
These goods have hitherto been sold at 45s.
Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON'S, 103 to 105, Oxford-street, W.

FRENCH BROCHÉ SILK POPLINES,
A NEW FABRIC,
£1 9s. 6d. the Satin Full Dress.
Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON'S, 103 to 105, Oxford-street.

Several Hundred Pieces of the MOZAMBIQUE BAREGE,
£1 9s. 6d. the Satin Full Dress.
Small patterns and Scarves.
Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON'S, 103 to 105, Oxford-street, W.

NEW SPRING SKIRTING,
Fast Colours Guaranteed, 1s. 6d. per yard.
Printed Cambrics, Brilliants, Piques, &c.
Patterns free, on application to
PETER ROBINSON'S, 103 to 105, Oxford-street, W.

NEW SPRING DRESSES,
Embroidered Muslins, British and French Manufacture, suitable for present and approaching season,
at prices ranging from 1s. 6d. to 5s. per yard.
Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 105, Oxford-street, W.

ALL LAST YEAR'S FRENCH ORGANDIE
MUSLINS, perfectly fresh, and many of them not to be had now at any price, 6½d. per yard.
Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON'S, 103 to 105, Oxford street.

MUSLIN CURTAINS.
Many hundred Pairs of new patterns to select from,
at 6s. 6d. per pair.
Sample Curtains, of any price, sent on approval,
Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON'S, 103 to 105, Oxford-street, W.

MANTLES for the SPRING of 1864.
MESSRS. JAY, having copied, for Mourning wear, the Patterns of the Choicest Novelties in Paris, have now ready for Sale a Stock of the Newest Goods, at less than the usual charge of Mourning Houses.
MESSRS. JAY, 247, 249, 251, and 253, Regent-street.

THE LOWEST SESSION OF PRICES.—The FASHIONS in Paris for this Season are NEW, CURIOUS, and entirely unlike any we have had for many years. Messrs. Jay have therefore, imported the greatest variety in this class of silks, suitable for the present season, at prices which will be found extremely moderate.
MESSRS. JAY, 247, 249, 251, and 253, Regent-street.

SOIERIES—Costume de J. BONNET et CIE, LYON, et JURISPRUDENCE.—The SILKS of these celebrated manufacturers are now ready for inspection at the Exhibition and foreign markets, very difficult as to be obtained. Messrs. Jay have purchased the whole of the Stock of the above Manufacturers, and have also received the Patterns of the richest and most expensive Bonnet and Co., that their Establishment shall always be supplied with the most recherché Silks of the Season. Messrs. Jay have also secured the whole of the Stock of Messrs. Bonnet and Co., consisting of the above trade mark impression in each piece of Silk, which is to ridiculed as to be an imitation of the genuine.
MESSRS. JAY, 247, 249, 251, and 253, Regent-street.

MILLINERY AT JAYS.—The French Bonnets are the most elegant and tasteful ever prepared for Parisian taste and wear, in black, white, and grey, are exhibited in current Stock.
MESSRS. JAY,
247, 249, and 251, Regent-street.

ARTICLES DE FANTASIE POUR DEUIL.
Sleeves, Bows, Flowers, Ornaments, Capuchon, Jupons, Robes de Chambres, Garnitures des Robes, &c., &c.
MESSRS. JAY,
247, 249, and 251, Regent-street.

HER MAJESTY'S ROYAL SCOTCH WAREHOUSE—SCOTT ADIE, Regent-street, has now in view the largest and most varied Stock of Scotch and TARTAN CASHMERE DRESSES, Silks, Silk and Irish Poplins, Tartan Shawls, Scarfs, Ribbons, Hosiery, Gloves, and every other Fancy Article connected with the country dress.—N.B. Export-street contains corner of Vigo-street.

NEW MANTLES FOR MAY.
A Choice Selection will be ready
on the 1st of May.
The MAGAZINE OF FASHION now ready.
Sent free by post.
NICHOLSON and ANCOT, Crystal Warehouses,
50 and 51, St. Paul's-churchyard.

WHITE LACE and MUSLIN CURTAINS,
the Stock of a Manufacturer,
at 6s. 6d. per pair, 2½ yards long,
1000 dozens of Cambric Handkerchiefs,
2s. 6d. to 12s. 6d. per dozen.
Patterns free.
Shrimpton's, 337, Oxford-street, opposite Bond-street.

LACE DRESSES EXTRAORDINARY.
600 New Robes,
Lot 1. All Silk Grenadine Robes, 21s.
Lot 2. Ditto. Worth 30s. for 25s. 6d.
Lot 3. Ditto. Worth 42s. for 35s. 6d.
Lot 4. Ditto. Worth 63s. for 42s. 6d.
NICHOLSON and ANCOT, Crystal Warehouses,
50 and 51, St. Paul's-churchyard.

NEW DRESSES FOR APRIL.
PATTERNS POST-FREE. ANY LENGTH CUT.
At the Lowest Prices.
At the New Spring Costumes,
At the New Spring Trimmings,
At the New Spring Silks,
At the New Spring Dresses,
At the New Spring Mantles,
At the New Spring Bonnets,
At the New Spring Hats,
At the New Spring Ribbons,
At the New Spring Flowers,
At the New Spring Feathers,
At the New Spring Gloves,
At the New Spring Hosiery,
At the New Spring Parasols,
At the New Spring Fans,
At the New Spring Handkerchiefs,
At the New Spring Veils,
At the New Spring Jewellery,
At the New Spring Perfumery,
At the New Spring Fashions,
At the New Spring Circular.
E. PHILPOTT, 77, Finsbury-pavement.

PUFFED HORSEHAIR JUPONS,
30s., 36s., and 42s.
"Admirable for the price."—Queen.
E. PHILPOTT, 77, Finsbury.

CRINOLINE.—The Patent ONDINA, or Watered Steel Crinoline, is the most graceful and elastic skirt ever worn; it will not stick, or get out of order, and has a very natural self-adjusting movement; it is also light, very durable, and the most reasonable in price. Observe the name on every hook. Sold by all Drapers.—Manufactory, 2, Queen-street, Cheapside, E.C.

THE IRON AGE! STEEL COLLARS!
PERFECT WHITENESS! PERFECT COMFORT!
Ladies' or Gentlemen's Collars, 1s. 6d. each.
Ladies' or Gentlemen's Cuffs, 2s. 6d. a pair.
Sold by the Trade.
Wholesale Depôt, 2, Queen-street, Cheapside, E.C.; and 91, Regent-street, W.
Sent by Post from the Patentee and Sole Manufacturer,
C. F. ATKINSON, 2, Queen-street, Cheapside, E.C.
A Collar for 37 stamps; Pair of Cuffs, 54 stamps.

ESTABLISHED TWENTY YEARS.
NICHOLSON and CO. are now prepared with 30-in. NEW STUFFS, or STUFFS SUFFICIENT, comprising 50,000 yards of choice and elegant designs, from 1s. 4½d. to 10s. per yard.—Nicholson and Co., 50 to 51, St. Paul's-churchyard, London.
No connection with any other Firm.

NEW PATTERNS POST-FREE.
7640 YARDS of LAST YEAR'S SILKS,
Patterns 1s. 6d. to 2s. per yard. Half their original prices.
Write to NICHOLSON'S, 50 to 51, St. Paul's-churchyard, London.

NEW PATTERNS POST-FREE.
9326 YARDS of PLAIN COLOURED GLACÉS, Thirty different Shades, 1s. to 4s. 6d., in 6qd. lengths.
Write to NICHOLSON'S, 50 to 51, St. Paul's-churchyard, London.

NEW PATTERNS POST-FREE.
8230 Yards New CHECKED and STRIPED SILKS, 1s. 6d. to 2s. 6d. per yard, in 6qd. lengths, Extraordinarily cheap. Patterns free.
Write to NICHOLSON'S, 50 to 51, St. Paul's-churchyard, London.

NEW PATTERNS POST-FREE.
£3400 NEW and MOIRE ANTIQUES, from £1 19s. 6d. the Dress of 12 yards, 1s. 6d. to 4s. 6d. per yard.
Write to NICHOLSON'S, 50 to 51, St. Paul's-churchyard, London.

NEW PATTERNS POST-FREE.
£2543 WORTH RICH BROCHÉ and RICH CORDED SILKS, Black and Coloured, from 2s. 6d. per yard.
Write to NICHOLSON'S, 50 to 51, St. Paul's-churchyard, London.

NEW PATTERNS POST-FREE.
£3400 BLACK SILKS.
Glacés, New Checks, Stripes, Lyons, and all the celebrated Makes, from 1s. 6d. to 4s. 6d. per yard.
Write to NICHOLSON'S, 50 to 51, St. Paul's-churchyard, London.

NEW PATTERNS POST-FREE.
15030 YARDS FOULARD SILKS
EXTRAORDINARY, warranted washproof, and perfectly unchangeable, Checked, Plain colours in figured patterns, £1 9s. 9d. Dress of 10 yards, 36 inches wide.
Write to NICHOLSON'S, 50 to 51, St. Paul's-churchyard, London.

NEW PATTERNS POST-FREE.
3000 YARDS of PLAIN COLOURED GLACÉS, 1s. 6d. to 2s. 6d. per yard. Half Price.
Patterns free.
Write to NICHOLSON'S, 50 to 51, St. Paul's-churchyard, London.

NEW MANTLES.—MESSRS. NICHOLSON and CO. beg to inform their Customers and Ladies generally that they have received their Selection of NEW MANTLES for the Season, and that Patterns of the same can be forwarded Post-free.
Nicholson and Co., 50 to 51, St. Paul's-churchyard.

NEW PATTERNS POST-FREE of the NEW CASHMERE DELAINES, MOHAIRS, and BARÉGE DELAINES, and all other pretty Fancy Dress Materials for the Season.
NICHOLSON'S, 50 to 51, St. Paul's-churchyard, London.

DO YOU WISH YOUR CHILDREN TO WELL DRESSED?—Buy Schweitzer's Cocoatine, from which a delicious beverage is instantly made. Sold in packets, 6d., 1s., and tins, 2s. 6d., 5s., and 10s. 6d. each, by all Grocers and Druggists. Sole Agent for New Zealand, Post-free, 36 stamps.—SCHWEITZER, 30 to 32, St. Paul's-churchyard.

REDMAYNE and CO., having completed the Refurbishing and Enlargement of their Premises, respectfully solicit an Inspection of their Extensive Stock of CARPETS, FURNITURE, MATTINGS, and DRAPERY, and all other goods Home Made or Imported.
REDMAYNE and CO., 26, 27, 28, and 29, Soho-square.

DO YOU WISH YOUR HAIR TO GROW?—Then use ROWLAND'S MACASSAR OIL, which produces the most beautiful growth of hair, whiskers, or moustachios, even in a single night, and is the only article that will restore grey hair to its original colour without dyeing it. Sold by all Chemists and Perfumers.

REDMAYNE and CO., 26, 27, 28, and 29, Soho-square.

NEW FRENCH SILKS, at 2s. 6d. the yard, made of Rich Glacé Silk, with the prettiest fur imitation of minniver furs in Paris and Lyons. Patterns forwarded stating exact colour required. Also a large lot of evening dress Silks for the opening reception, thereby avoiding the annoyance of being engaged to wear the same dress as your friend. Patterns forwarded. The Stock of Messrs. Jay, of Regent-street, purchased at the richest stated regardless of cost, and will be sold at a price considerably less than one-half the value.
MESSRS. JAY, 247, 249, 251, and 253, Regent-street.

MOIRE ANTIQUES.—SEWELL and CO. have the largest selection of STRAITSFIELDS MOIRE ANTIQUES in London, at the New Colours, 2½ guineas the Full Dress.—Compton House, Frith-street, Soho-square.

ORGANDIE MUSLINS, in par, yard wide, 6½d. per yard. Patterns free.
SEWELL and CO., 72 to 76, New Bond-street.

EARLY SPRING SILKS.
Rich Checked and Striped Glacés,
£1 10s. 6d. the 11 yards.
Rich Brocé Glacés,
£1 19s. 6d. for 12 yards.
JOHN HARVEY and SON, 7, Ludgate-hill.

EARLY SPRING DOUBLE MOHAIRS and a variety of useful dresses.
JOHN HARVEY and SON, 7, Ludgate-hill.

SILKS! SILKS! SILKS! SILKS!
ANOTHER DELIVERY of NEW SPRING SILKS,
at 1s. 6d. per yard.
Rich Checked and Striped Glacés, 1s. 6d. per yard, worth
Wide-width Rich Figured Glacés, 1s. 6d. per yard, worth
Wide-width Rich Figured Glacés, 1s. 6d. per yard, worth
Rich Checked and Striped Glacés, in the new shades, from 1s. 6d. per yard.
BLACK GLACÉS, CORDED SILKS, STRIPED, MOIRE
MILLINERY SILKS in the Newest Colours, SATINS, TRIPE VELVETS, &c.
Patterns Free.
Patterns post-free.
JAMES SPENCE and CO., Manchester and Retail Silkmercers, &c., 77 and 78, St. Paul's-churchyard, London, E.C.

LADIES WATERPROOF TWEED CLOAKS
Cloth, Velvet, and Fur Jackets, Crinolines, Petticoats, and Underclothing.
J. S. and W. PHILLIPS, 57, Wigmore-street, Cavendish-square.

BONNETS—MARKS and GAVELL, from Paris, have received the Newest Bonnets in every material. Wedding Orders executed. No shop. Showrooms, First floor, 10, Conduit-street, Regent-street, and 4, Princes-street.

SANSFLEXTUM CRINOLINES,
"Worn extensively now."—Court Journal.
E. PHILPOTT, 77, Finsbury.

GEMMA, or JEWELLED JUPONS,
30s., 36s., and 42s.
"A perfect fit for the money."—Queen.
E. PHILPOTT, 77, Finsbury.

GRATIS.—EIGHTEEN PORTRAITS, Post-free, illustrated Book, each Examination of Patterns, and Prices current. Ladies requiring Patterns of the prevailing fashions will be sent free on application, expressing the preceding fashions, will find the following an advantageous:—
SPRING SUITS—SAMUEL BROTHERS' Business Suits, 6in.; Cost, 11s.; Yard, 6d.; Tweeds, 12s. 6d. New Illustrated Books and Patterns free.
19, Ludgate-hill.

SPRING SUITS—SAMUEL BROTHERS' Cord, Tweed, Cost, Yard, 5d.; Tweeds, 12s. 6d. New Illustrated Books and Patterns free.
19, Ludgate-hill.

SPRING SUITS—SAMUEL BROTHERS' Hybrid Suits, Cost, Yard, 6d.; Tweeds, 12s. 6d. New Illustrated Books and Patterns free.
19, Ludgate-hill.

SPRING SUITS—SAMUEL BROTHERS' Cord, Vest, Trousers, and Overcoat, 21s.; Fashionable Cloths, New Illustrated Books and Patterns free.
19, Ludgate-hill.

SPRING SUITS—SAMUEL BROTHERS' Clerical and Professional Suits, 42s.; Tweeds, 12s. 6d. New Illustrated Books and Patterns free.
19, Ludgate-hill.

SPRING SUITS—SAMUEL BROTHERS' Suits for Young Gentlemen, 6s., 8s., 10s., 12s., 16s., 20s., 25s., 30s. New Illustrated Books and Patterns free.
19, Ludgate-hill.

SHIRTS.—ROWBING, ARUNDEL, and CO. beg to call attention to their new patterns in DRESS and NIGHT SHIRTS, Linen Fronts and Wristbands, with every variety for fit and comfort.
13 and 16, Bankside-street, S.C.; and 38, Cornhill, E.C.

SHIRTS.—Morning and Evening Shirts of every description, fitting with precision and ease, all moderate prices. Patterns and self-measurement sent free.—CAMPBELL and CO., 65, Cornhill, and 49, Conduit-street.

SHIRTS.—FOOD'S EUREKA SHIRTS.
"Stood only hopes to be appreciated."—Ibis. "The most perfect-fitting shirt we have worn."—Bell. Every superior quality for 42s. Prize-list and Instructions for self-measurement post-free.
Food's Emporium, 168, Fleet-street, E.C.

W. B. SHUTE, Youths' Tailor and Outfitter, 10, Old Change-street, Oxford-street.
All kinds of Youths' Clothing.
An extensive and fashionable stock—Observe, 10.

H. WALKER'S PATENT RIDGED-EYED NEEDLES for rapid sewing. These 3 resting like those for rapid sewing. These resting like those for hand-sewing, are unequalled for fit, post-free, of any dealer.—H. Walker, Queen's Works, Alcester; and 4, Foster-lane, London.

D R. DE JONGH'S
(Knight of the Order of Leopold of Belgium)
LIGHT-BROWN COD-LIVER OIL prescribed by the Faculty throughout the world as the safest, speediest, and most effectual
REMEDY FOR CONSUMPTION, BRONCHITIS, ASTHMA, RHEUMATISM, GOUT, GENERAL DEBILITY, DISEASES OF THE SKIN, GLANDULAR AFFECTIONS, and all forms of SCROFULOUS AFFECTIONS.
Is incontrovertibly the purest, most efficacious, and therefore most agreeable to nature.
SELECT MEDICAL OPINIONS.
"Dr. Granville, F.R.S., &c., &c., &c., Author of "The Spas of England," &c., &c., &c., pronounces Dr. de Jongh's Light-brown Cod-liver Oil to be the most efficacious he has ever met with in his extensive practice."
DR. GRANVILLE'S PAR.
"Dr. Granville has found that Dr. de Jongh's Light-brown Cod-liver Oil produces the most decided results in cases of Consumption, Bronchitis, Asthma, and other diseases of the chest, and that its administration is followed in consequence on the administration of the Pale Oil."
Dr. Granville's Testimonial, 1861.
President of the Medical Society of London, &c., &c.
DR. DE JONGH'S LIGHT-BROWN COD-LIVER OIL is sold only in Imperial Measures, in capsuled bottles, labelled with his stamp and signature, WITHOUT WHOM NONE IS GENUINE, by respectable Chemists throughout the United Kingdom.
ANSAR, HARFORD and CO., 77, Strand, London W.C.

PHYSICIANS' PRESCRIPTIONS promptly and accurately dispensed with pure Drugs only, at moderate charges, by qualified Pharmaceutists only, in strict accordance with the directions of the NEW BRITISH PHARMACOPŒIA, at SAVORY and MOORE'S, 143, New Bond-street, W.

INDIGESTION.—MORSON'S PEPSINE WINE, a perfectly palatable form for administering this popular remedy. Prepared by T. Morson and Son, 31, Southampton-row, Russell-square, W.C., in bottles at 2s. 6d., and imperial measure at 4s. 6d., 8s., and 14s. 6d. each.

NEW INVENTION.—ARTIFICIAL TEETH.—Those interested should see Messrs. GABRIELS' newly-invented system of fixing Artificial Teeth, which defies detection, and will last a lifetime. Consultations free. Established 1815. Gabriels' Principles on the Teeth free by post; original and only Work published. Messrs. Gabriels' Improved Method of Stopping Decayed Teeth, which renders them sound and useful for mastication, 10s. 6d. per Set. Messrs. Gabriels' Tooth Powder, 1s. 6d. per Box; and by all Chemists. Messrs. Gabriels' Improved Method of Extracting Teeth, 2s. 6d., and 34, Leicester-hill (over Samuel), London; 134, Duke-street, Liverpool; 15, Ludgate-street, Birmingham; 64, Grafton-street, Dublin.

TEETH.—Mr. ESKELL'S TOWN ADDRESS is 5, Berners-street, Oxford-street, where Mr. Eskell performs his painless operations. Patients from the country can have their Teeth Extracted, Stopped, or Fixed in a few hours. Consultations free.

CALVANISM v. NERVOUS EXHAUSTION, PAINS, PARALYSIS, &c.—ON LOAN, a new PERSONAL VOLTAIC BELT, with Improved Galvanic Appliances. Chris. Brand, Patent Receiver, &c., for self-application, without Shocks, Smell, or Taste. Sent on trial, Carriage-paid, by CHRISTOPHER and CO., Galvanic Instruments, 72, Cannon-street, London.

ELAM'S DOUBLE-ACTION SYPHON BOTTLE.—Elam's most valuable Invention. For use in cans, complete, with extra glass, 10s. 6d. Caution.—Domestic Appliances, Galvanic Batteries, Cannon-street, London.

TENDER FEET.—A sure Remedy is to be found in the use of Elam's Soothing Salt. Sold by Patent Medicine Vendors, and Perfumers, in half bottles, 1s. 6d., and bottles, 2s. 6d., 4s. 6d., and 8s. 6d. each. Elam's Soothing Salt, 1, Price-street, Birmingham.

TO MOTHERS AND INVALIDS.—ELAM'S ADMIRABLE SUPPORTERS, for corpulency, debility, pregnancy, &c., are recommended by the Faculty. Price from 10s. Illustrations forwarded.—99, Oxford-street.

SKIN DISEASE.—Dr. HARVEY'S SULPHUREOUS PILLS are a certain remedy for Scurvy, Scrofula, Blotches, Pimples, Eruptions, and all Impurities of the Skin. In 2s. 9d. and 4s. 6d. each box.—Procured only by J. H. THOMAS, Chemist, 4, Bridge-street, Blackfriars.

WANTED, LEFT-OFF CLOTHES, Uniforms, Furniture, Miscellaneous Property, &c. The highest price given by Mr. and Mrs. Lewis, 7, Duke-street, Grosvenor-square, W. Ladies waited upon, Residences, Public Offices, or Warehouses being sent, the utmost value in cash immediately remitted. Established 1815.

WANTED.—CLOTHES.—MR. and MRS. L. A. DAVIS, 3, Castle-street, Leicester-square, W., Purchasers of Ladies' and Gentlemen's Wardrobes, Uniforms, &c. Parties waited on by Mr. or Mrs. L. A. Davis; or Letters attended to. Orders punctual. Estab. 1806. Terms—Cash.

LEFT-OFF CLOTHES.—Uniforms, Jewellery, Miscellaneous Property, &c., of every description, purchased to the full value in Cash. Ladies waited upon at their residence. Oxford-street, Warehouse, Gentlemen waited upon. Parents sent, money orders enclosed. Established nearly 20 years.

NEW MUSIC.

SHAKESPEARE'S SONGS.—Just published, 13 SHAKESPEARE'S SONGS, with Piano Accompaniment for One Shilling, in No. 47 of "Chappell's Musical Magazine." Price One Shilling.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

GARIBALDI'S HYMN, with English Words, by JOHN OXENFORD. Esq. Price 3s. 6d.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

GARIBALDI'S GALOP. By CHARLES D'ALBERT. One of D'Albert's best Galops. Beautifully Illustrated with a Portrait of the great Hero. Price 3s. Solo or Duet; Septet, 4s.; Orchestra, 5s.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

GARIBALDI'S HYMN. Arranged for the Pianoforte by MADAME OURY. Price 3s.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

GARIBALDI MARCH, for the Harmonium. By JOSEPH ENSOR. Price 2s.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

MR. SANTLEY'S NEW SONG.
SOFT AND LOW. From Gounod's Opera, "Sapho." Sung by Mr. Santley at the Monday Popular Concerts. Price 3s.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

NEW PIANOFORTE PIECE FROM FAUST.
FAVARGER'S FAUST. A Fantasia on the most favourite melodies from Gounod's Opera. Price 4s.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

KUHE'S FAUST. Fantasia de Salon for the Pianoforte, on the favourite airs from Gounod's Opera. Price 4s.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

OSBORNE'S FAUST. A Fantasia on Favourite Melodies from Gounod's celebrated Opera, by the Composer. Price 4s.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

BRINLEY RICHARDS' BEETHOVENIANA. STRAUSS, from Gounod's celebrated Opera of "Faust." Arranged for the Pianoforte by him. Price 3s.; Duet, 4s.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

KUHE'S LEGGERO INVISIBILE. Just published, a Fantasia on Airs from Meyerbeer's Opera, "Robert le Diable," and Weglio's well-known song, arranged for the Pianoforte. Price 4s.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

KUHE'S SEMIRAMIDE. Grand Fantasia on the favourite Airs from Rossini's Operatic Drama. Price 4s.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

KUHE'S MASSANIELLO.—Just published, a Grand Fantasia for the Pianoforte on Airs from this charming Opera. Price 4s.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

BRINLEY RICHARDS' JUANITA. This popular Song arranged as a very striking drawing-room Pianoforte piece. Price 3s.; Duet, 4s.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

BRINLEY RICHARDS' MARAQUITA. This popular Ballad arranged as an easy and effective drawing-room Pianoforte piece. Price 3s.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

THE SOLDIERS' CHORUS in FAUST, as performed at the Opera, Arranged for Pianoforte by W. H. CALLCOTT. Price 3s.; Duet, 4s.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

W. H. CALLCOTT'S BEAUTIES OF FAUST. Each book contains an arrangement of Melodies from the Opera as Pianoforte Duets in easy style, containing many admired subjects not before published. Price 4s. each, or Duet, 5s.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

TREKELL'S LA PRIERE D'UNE MERE. Reverie pour Piano. Price 3s.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

TREKELL'S THE ANGELS' HARP. Rhapsodie for the Pianoforte. Price 4s. 6d.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

TREKELL'S WAVING LILY BELLS. Reverie—Nocturne for the Pianoforte. Price 3s.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

E. DE PARIS L'APPEL. Galop di Bravura for the Pianoforte. Just published. Price 3s.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

NEW TRIOS for THREE PERFORMERS on One Pianoforte. Each book contains an Arrangement of Melodies from the Opera as Pianoforte Trios by W. H. CALLCOTT. Price 4s. each.
No. 1. D'Albert's Paborita Quadrille.
No. 2. D'Albert's Traviata Quadrille.
No. 3. Kuhe's Grand Duke Waltz.
No. 4. Gounod's Valse from "Faust."
No. 5. Brinley Richards from 19th Mass.
No. 6. Brinley Richards' Juanita.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

THE GUARDS' WALTZ. By D. GODFREY. Played at the Ball given to the Princes and Princess of Wales, at Chatsworth, with immense success. Just published. Price 4s.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

THE MERRY TIME DANCERS. Twelve Easy Dances for Young Performers, arranged as the Quadrilles and Country Dances of the day. By CHARLES COOTE. Price 4s.; Orchestra, 3s.; Septet, 2s.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

H. W. GOODBAN'S EMMELINE. New Nocturne for the Pianoforte. Just published. Price 3s. 6d.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

H. W. GOODBAN'S BRIGAND'S DANCE. Characteristic Scene. For the Pianoforte. Just published. Price 3s. 6d.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

MRS. JOSEPH ROBINSON'S NEW SONGS, composed for the HAVERGAL FESTIVAL.
THE BURY. Morning Song ... ... Price 3s.
THE VILLAGE FIFE. Morning Song ... ... Price 3s.
CONSTANCY. Song ... ... Price 3s.
SPRING'S GLAD HOUR. Song ... ... Price 3s.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

COOTE'S FAUST WALTZ, on Airs from Gounod's Opera. Beautifully Illustrated. Price, Solo or Duet, 4s.; Septet, 2s.; Orchestra, 3s.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

COOTE'S FAUST QUADRILLE, on Favourite Airs from Gounod's Opera. Beautifully Illustrated. Price, Solo or Duet, 4s.; Full Orchestra, 3s.; Septet, 2s.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

COOTE'S FAUST GALOP, from Gounod's Opera. Beautifully Illustrated. Price, Solo or Duet, 3s.; Septet, 2s.; Orchestra, 3s.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

FAUST POLKA. By F. BECHSTEIN. Just published. Beautifully Illustrated. Price 3s., Solo or Duet; Orchestra, 3s.; Septet, 2s.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

THE STIRRUP CUP, MR. SANTLEY'S NEW SONG, expressly composed for him, by Napier Astley, and unprecedently encored, is now ready, in C, D, or F Keys. Price 3s. 6d.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

THE HARUM-SCARUM GALOP. By JAMES GLOVER. Composer of the Burlesque Galops. Just published, exceedingly Illustrated. Price 3s.; Duet, 3s.; Orchestra, 3s.; Septet, 2s.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

HELTER-SKELTER GALOP.—Just out, a New Galop, by CANDY, Composer of the Harum-Scarum Galop. Splendidly Illustrated. Price 3s.; Duet; Orchestra, 3s.; Septet, 2s.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

NEW MUSIC.

THE ORCHESTRA.—"The leading Musical Journal."—Morning Advertiser. Specimen Number, Quarter's subscription (stamped), 4s. 4d. Fortthcoms, Musical and Dramatic Events of Rome and Almack, Dandy, Servants, &c. Single copy, fourpence stamped.

CHE STOOPS TO CONQUER OPERA, in 2 A. MACFARREN. Complete Opera, 24s. net. All the vocal Pieces may be had separately. Pianoforte Arrangements by Brinley Richards, T. M. Mudie, F. Berger, W. Macfarren, Natalia Macfarren, Lindsay Sloper, and others. Vocalisation Edition by Cipriani Potter. Full Prospectus free.
CRAMER, WOOD, and Co., 201, Regent-street.

SHAKESPEARE'S TEMPEST, by SULLIVAN.
Complete Work, Instrumental part for four hands ... (not) 12s. 6d.
Second Duet. Ferdinand and Miranda. In Duet, 3s. 6d.
Second Duet. Ariel and Prospero. In Duet, 3s. 6d.
Roncon, Rhine, Maritime, Blessing. Duet for Female Voices 2s. 6d.
"Where the bee sucks." In Duet, 3s. 6d.
Full Score, Parts, separately. Price to be fixed.
CRAMER, WOOD, and Co., 201, Regent-street.

SWEET SPIRIT WALTZES, by F. BECHSTEIN. Beautifully Illustrated. A Friended on four of the most favourite Songs of the day.
CRAMER, WOOD, and Co., 201, Regent-street.

THE PRETTY BARMAID POLKA, from the "Rose of Tempest." By CHARLES COOTE. Illustrated. In Duet, 3s.
CRAMER, WOOD, and Co., 201, Regent-street.

COOTE'S "SHE STOOPS TO CONQUER" QUADRILLES. 4s. "Illustrated."
CRAMER, WOOD, and Co., 201, Regent-street.

COOTE'S "SHE STOOPS TO CONQUER" WALTZES. 4s. "Illustrated."
CRAMER, WOOD, and Co., 201, Regent-street.

BRINLEY RICHARDS' LEAH'S SONG. Splendidly illustrated. Price 3s.
CRAMER, WOOD, and Co., 201, Regent-street.

"THE PIPE." A Student's Song. Composed by Wallace Bennett. Sung by Mr. Santley. Price 3s.
CRAMER, WOOD, and Co., 201, Regent-street.

BOAT SONG. By VERDI. 2s. 6d. A splendid Concerted Piece.
CRAMER, WOOD, and Co., 201, Regent-street.

THE MAIDEN'S PRAYER. By VERDI. The Prayer from Act 2 of "I Due Foscari." Price 2s. 6d.
CRAMER.—CRAMER, WOOD, and Co., 201, Regent-street.

SUNG BY MR. SANTLEY.
THE BUCCANEER. 3s. The New Sea Song. By J. LARKOM.
CRAMER, WOOD, and Co., 201, Regent-street.

LITTLE GOLDEN-HAIR. A Venetian Ballad. By WILLIAM MAYNE.
CRAMER, WOOD, and Co., 201, Regent-street.

CARICATURE. Song. By CHARLES JEFFERYS. Words by Robert Lucas. Sung by Mr. Patten at Drury Lane. Price 3s.
HOPWOOD and CRAMER, 42, New Bond-street.

"ANITA." By BRINLEY RICHARDS. 3s. (Founded on a pathetic passage in the life of Garibaldi.)
CRAMER, WOOD, and Co., 201, Regent-street.

NOTICE.—HALF PRICE.—All Music, and the best Editions, at half the published price, net post-free. Catalogues gratis and post-free. Country Orders carefully attended to.
HOPWOOD and CRAMER, 42, New Bond-street.

THE PIANO PIECE FOR 1864.
KUHE'S SEE THE CONQUERING HERO COMES. Price 4s.
HOPWOOD and CRAMER, 42, New Bond-street.

GANZ'S SOUVIENS TOI. Valse de Salon. Price 4s.
"A most pleasing movement, equally simple and elegant."—Illustrated Times. HOPWOOD and CRAMER, 42, New Bond-street.

A REAL MERRY SET.
COOTE'S POLLY PERKINS QUADRILLE. Price 4s. Beautifully Illustrated. Solo or Duet, 4s.; Orchestra, 3s.; Septet, 2s. "Coote's Polly Perkins Waltzes." Price 4s. Solo or Duet, 4s.; Orchestra, 3s.; Septet, 2s. "Coote's Polly Perkins Galop." Price 4s. Solo or Duet, 4s.; Orchestra, 3s.; Septet, 2s.
HOPWOOD and CRAMER, 42, New Bond-street.

TRADITIONAL COMPOSITION.
COOTE'S ITALIAN PRINCE VALSES. 4s. Superbly Illustrated.
HOPWOOD and CRAMER, 42, New Bond-street.

COOTE'S SHAKSPEARE QUADRILLE, last arranged and performed at the Princess's Theatre, and to be performed, under the direction of the composer, at the Surrey Gardens Concerts, on Monday next. Illustrated with Portraits of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Kean in the favourite characters of the play. Price 4s. Solo or Duet. "Now these others would."—What shall we have that stirred the deer? Price 4s.—HOPWOOD and CRAMER, 42, New Bond-street.

SENSATION GALOP.
COOTE'S EXTRAVAGANZA GALOP. Price 3s. Beautifully Illustrated. Solo or Duet, 4s.; Orchestra, 3s.; Septet, 2s.
HOPWOOD and CRAMER, 42, New Bond-street.

THE BEST SET OF LANCERS ARE
COOTE'S CURE LANCERS. Price 4s. Beautifully Illustrated. Solo or Duet, 4s.; Orchestra, 3s.; Septet, 2s. "Coote's Cure Waltzes." Price 4s. Solo or Duet, 4s.; Orchestra, 3s.; Septet, 2s. "Coote's Cure Galop." Price 4s. Solo or Duet, 4s.; Orchestra, 3s.; Septet, 2s.
HOPWOOD and CRAMER, 42, New Bond-street.

COOTE'S KATE KEARNEY WALTZES, introducing "Kathleen O'Moore," "Dermot's Farewell to Kathleen," "Kathleen's Lament," "Kathleen's Return," Solo or Duet, 4s.—HOPWOOD and CRAMER, 42, New Bond-street.

THE NEW VALSE OF THE SEASON.
COOTE'S HUMMING BIRD. Price 4s. Coote's the best set of Waltzes we have published.
HOPWOOD and CRAMER, 42, New Bond-street.

OH! WOULD I WERE A BIRD. Duet Chorus for Soprano and Alto. 3s.
HOPWOOD and CRAMER, 42, New Bond-street.

MERRY SOUNDS. Have you seen the Bluebell? ... ... 2s. 6d.
Isabella with her Original Umbrella ... 2s. 6d.
Sweet Spring ... ... 2s. 6d.
Gipsey Queen ... ... 2s. 6d.
Lassigan's Ball ... ... 2s. 6d.
HOPWOOD and CRAMER, 42, New Bond-street.

SONG OF THE DAY.
POLLY PERKINS. By HENRY CLIFTON. Price 3s. 6d. Sung everywhere.
HOPWOOD and CRAMER, 42, New Bond-street.

CAPITAL SONG FOR BARITONE.
OH! IF I HAD SOME ONE TO LOVE ME. By CHARLES JEFFERYS. Price 3s. 6d. AT LAST I'VE FOUND SOME ONE TO LOVE ME, Will, beautiful, sleepy, Price 3s. 6d. Sung by Mr. Patten. Price 3s. 6d. Sung by Mr. Sims Reeves. HOPWOOD and CRAMER, 42, New Bond-street.

FRED. BUCKLEY'S NEW SONG FOR CONTRALTO.
FEAR BY LEAF THE ROSES FALL. Price 3s. 6d. "A really beautiful ballad."—Review. HOPWOOD and CRAMER, 42, New Bond-street.

C. H. OLIVER'S NEW BALLAD.
OH! BLOW ME A KISS ON THE WIND. Price 3s. 6d. "One of the best of the Queen's poet's songs." HOPWOOD and CRAMER, 42, New Bond-street.

WORKS BY LONSDALE.
THE RIVER. By C. M. E. OLIVER. Price 3s. 6d. A very pleasing ballad, beautifully Illustrated. HOPWOOD and CRAMER, 42, New Bond-street.

NEW MUSIC.

OTTO NICOLAI'S NEW OPERA, "THE MERRY WIVES OF WINDSOR."—The Kyrie, "Lord, save our Queen," to be performed at the Royal Italian Opera and at the Royal Albert Hall, Sydenham, on Whit-Monday, and Solo and Duet will have the following publications ready for delivery the day after the first performance in this latter house.
Solo and Duet.
1. In Italian, arranged for Soprano, by Signor Randegger.
2. In English, by Mr. Oxenford and Mr. Chorley.
1. The Overture ... ... 4s.
2. Duet, "Sul fil d'un soffio etesio," in two books ... each 4s.
3. Nine Songs ... ... each 4s.
4. "Quel Fazzoletto" ... ... 4s.
5. "Ah! Bella Facciamo Un Core" ... ... 4s.
6. Fenton's Serenade to Nicolini ... ... 4s.
DANCE MUSIC.
1. Quadrilles (Valse Obbligato) ... ... 4s.
2. Waltzes ... ... 4s.
3. Galop ... ... 4s.
DUETS.
1. The Airs, in two books ... ... each 6s.
2. The Overture ... ... 6s.
For Flute Solo, with Introduction, in sixth ... ... 3s.
Grand Selection ... ... 10s.
The Overture, arranged for Harmonium by the great ... ... 12s.
RICORDI and SONS, Holles-street.

BEHOLD MY LOVE! SHE SLUMBERS. The New Serenade by ALFRED MELLON, from Gounod's Opera of "Faustus." A most charming melody and effective song for Private Parties. Price 3s. net.
CRAMER, WOOD, and Co., 201, Regent-street.

HOME SAINTON DOLBY'S NEW SONG.
NORA'S TREASURE. New Ballad. By FRANK ROMER. Sung, and encored, at the Irish Melody and Song by Miss Sainton Dolby. Price 3s.
RICORDI and SONS, Holles-street.

SUSAN'S STORY. A New Ballad, by the Author of "Nelly Gray." Price 3s.
RICORDI and SONS, Holles-street.

CLARIBEL'S NEW SONG. "LITTLE BIRD, LITTLE BIRD, ON THE GREEN TREE" will become the favourite of the season. A present comes, Little bird, little bird, on the green tree, Little bird, little bird, what do you see? What is that glistening so bright on the sea? Loyal is none dearest me. RICORDI and SONS, Holles-street.

SIGNOR CAMPANA'S NEW DUET, "GIL SBARAZ TIENTEL"—companion to, and in the same style as, "Ch'Ebbro Tripudio," by the same Composer and Bevi. Price 4s.
RICORDI and SONS, Holles-street.

BY THE AUTHOR OF SAPPHIRA TOI.
CAPRICE ITALIENNE. Brilliante à la Minute. By the Composer of "Sapphira Toi." This admirable piece will well support Mr. Brinley Richards' reputation. Price 4s. Illustrated with Portrait.
RICORDI and SONS, Holles-street.

MISS HAWTREY'S NEW SONG. New and beautiful arrangement of "Auld Robin Gray." By the Author of "Isabella." 3s.
RICORDI and SONS, Holles-street.

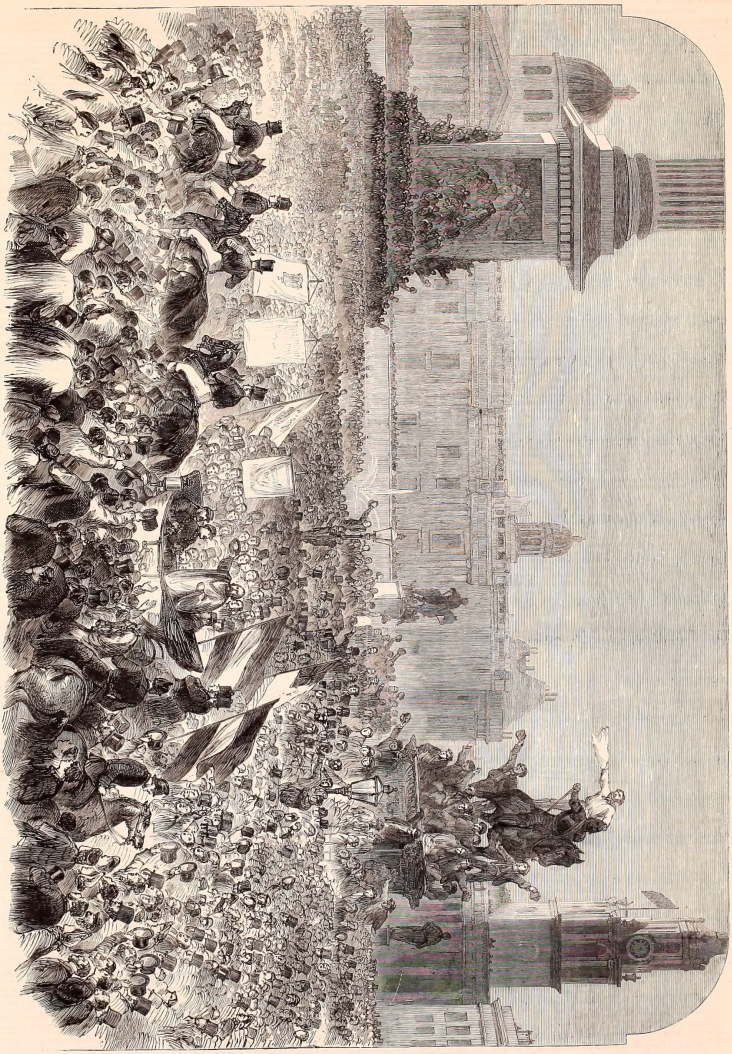
BRINLEY RICHARDS' JANET'S CHOICE. Ballad. Sung with great success at the orchestral Song, "Janet's Choice." By BRINLEY RICHARDS. Illustrated with Portrait. Price 3s.
RICORDI and SONS, Holles-street.

KUHE'S MAGGIE'S SECRET. The touching Ballad, with Music, Sung by Mr. Sims Reeves at Exeter Hall, has been transcribed by Mr Kuhe in his most popular manner. Price 4s. Illustrated with Portrait.
RICORDI and SONS, Holles-street.

BOOSEYS' LIBRARY.—Two-Guinea Subscription for twelve pieces of Music by town or country in the country, besides receiving gratuitously a gratuitous Volume of the Standard Operas. Prospectus free.
Second Edition. Floyd overtures. Dancel overtures.
THE MATRIMONIAL GALOP. By J. BENEDICT, Beautifully Illustrating the vicissitudes of Matrimonial Life. Portraits of Mr. and Mrs. Benedict, Courtship, Reflection, Affection, Alteration, Irritation, Altercation, Separation, and Reconciliation. Price 3s. BOOSEY and SONS, 24, Old Bond-street, and 295, Regent-street, Corner of Argyll-street.

Second Edition. Floyd overtures. Dancel overtures.
THE MATRIMONIAL GALOP. By A. BENEDICT. Beautifully Illustrated in Colours with Vicissitudes of Domestic Life. Price 3s. BOOSEY and SONS.

MUSIC. HALF PRICE and Post-free. Catalogues gratis and post-free. Country Orders carefully attended to. Best Editions at half the published price. The Country Trade supplied on sale or Sale Terms.
BOOSEY and SONS, 24, Old Bond-street, and at the most popular Music of every Composer and Publisher, Post-free, 18 stamps. Catalogues gratis and post-free. Country Orders carefully attended to. BOOSEY and SONS, 24, Old Bond-street, and 295, Regent-street, Corner of Argyll-street.



MUSIC, HALF PRICE and Post-free. Catalogues gratis and post-free. Country Orders carefully attended to. Best Editions at half the published price. The Country Trade supplied on sale or Sale Terms.
BOOSEY and SONS, 24, Old Bond-street, and 295, Regent-street, Corner of Argyll-street.

BOOSEYS' 17 GUINEA PIANOFORTE is recommended, as 27 guineas is Italian walnut, is in highly finished condition, and has the full compass, is in Walnut, and possesses an extraordinary fine quality of tone.
BOOSEYS' 20 GUINEA PIANOFORTE, in 7½ octaves, or 27 guineas in Italian walnut, is in highly finished condition, and has the full compass, is in Walnut, and possesses an extraordinary fine quality of tone. Boosey's 20 guinea pianoforte is the best 7½ octave pianoforte ever made, and is the most perfect instrument of that pure, full quality that especially distinguishes first-class pianofortes.
BOOSEYS' 35-GUINEA PIANOFORTE in 7½ octaves, or 35 guineas in Italian walnut, four fancy woods, or in Rosewood, is in highly finished condition, and has the full compass, is in Walnut, and possesses an extraordinary fine quality of tone, and is the most perfect instrument of that pure, full quality that especially distinguishes first-class pianofortes.
THE COTTAGE, or SIX-GUINEA, HARMONIUM, is recommended for its pure, sweet, singing, &c. BOOSEY and SONS, 24, Holles-street.

THE SCHOOL, or TEN-GUINEA, HARMONIUM, is recommended for its pure, sweet, singing, &c. BOOSEY and SONS, 24, Holles-street.

THE CHURCH HARMONIUMS, at 20, 25, 30, 35, 40, 45, 50, 55, 60, 65, 70, 75, 80, 85, 90, 95, 100 guineas, are recommended for their pure, sweet, singing, &c. BOOSEY and SONS, 24, Holles-street.

BOOSEYS' ENGLISH HARMONIUMS, by Bruce and other makers. An immense variety, new and secondhand, at 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11, 12, 13, 14, 15, 16, 17, 18, 19, 20, 21, 22, 23, 24, 25, 26, 27, 28, 29, 30, 31, 32, 33, 34, 35, 36, 37, 38, 39, 40, 41, 42, 43, 44,

GARIBALDI'S VISIT TO LONDON: ARRIVAL AT CHATSWORTH.

ILLUSTRATIONS OF GARIBALDI'S VISIT TO ENGLAND.

THE MEETING OF GARIBALDI AND TENNYSON.

THE Engraving on our front page represents the meeting of General Garibaldi and Mr. Tennyson at the door of Mr. Tennyson's house at Freshwater, in the Isle of Wight. The English poet has described, in nine-and-twenty verses, the lively English scenery of his home, and the English welcome afforded to his guest:—

Where, far from smoke and notes of town,
I watch the twilight falling brown
All round a careless-order'd garden
Close to the ridge of a noble down.

You'll have no scandal while you dine,
But honest talk and wholesome wine,
And only hear the magpie gossip,
Garrulous under roof of pine:

For growers of pine on either hand,
To break the back of winter, stand
And further on, the hoary Channel
Tumbles a breaker on chalk and sand;

Where, if below the milky sleep
Some ship of battle slowly creep,
And on the waters of night not shadow
Glimmer away to the lonely deep,

We might discern the Northern dip
Which made a sefest our height,
Shadow the chines, arrange the distance;
Emperor, Ottoman, which shall win;

Or whether War's avenging rod
Shall fleece the Russian in his blood.

This was written at the outbreak of the Russian War against Turkey, nearly ten years ago. But Mr. Tennyson's house or garden, we believe, still overlooks the waters of the Solent; and when he sees "a three-decker round by the hill," he must naturally think of war—loud war by land and by sea,

War with a thousand battles, and shaking a hundred thrones.

Mr. Tennyson, who wrote this, has now conversed with Garibaldi, the veteran warrior, who has fought battles and shaken thrones indeed. That mild and generous crusader of philanthropy is, like many great soldiers, an ardent lover of peace. They may have been reminded to talk of this theme, if the poem from fresh water led them to contrast the situation of the Isle of Alsen with that of the Isle of Wight. In the same hour, while they talked at Mr. Tennyson's table, the Prussians were bombarding Sonderburg, and the hapless barricades were pelted with "the rushing battle-bolts." We can scarcely doubt, therefore, that Garibaldi and Tennyson were glad to exchange their ideas upon the comparative merits of Peace and War. It is to be hoped that both agreed to like Peace best. Yet if we know Tennyson and Garibaldi, they could not long confer together without speculating on the progress of the successful assertion of the liberty of nations. Mr. Tennyson is a man of contemplative leisure, not a man of action and business; but he has a genuine sympathy with the practical habits and motives of English political life. No other English poet has so thoroughly comprehended the public spirit of this country; in none of our literary age is there more of the national fibre; in none is the love of freedom more richly tempered with a loyal respect for the ancient laws, customs, and institutions of old England, and her venerable traditions of "the storied past;"

Where freedom broadens slowly down
From precedent to precedent.

Mr. Tennyson is an Englishman in this as in everything else. To him the year of 1859, which produced the instant liberation of Northern Italy as far as the Quadrilateral, was merely "a storm in the South," as his charming poem of "The Daisy," which is wholly occupied with reminiscences of a tour in Italy, may look in vain for any expression of sympathy with the sufferings and aspirations of the Italian people. The omission could only have proceeded from a want of acquaintance at that time with the contemporary history of that land which Garibaldi has helped to set free. Mr. Tennyson was perhaps neither better nor worse informed than the majority of his countrymen, who, until very lately, never paid much attention to those affairs. The visit of Garibaldi should lead us to watch more carefully the proceedings of the friends of liberty among foreign nations, so that the moral force of our approbation may be rightly directed. It must be remembered that the annexation of the South to the Union of Italy, consequent on the marvellous exploits of Garibaldi, is but the crowning achievement of a series of patriotic efforts of Italians, which had been constantly pursued by a great number of Italians, at home or in exile, with such means and opportunities as they had, for thirty or forty years past. A great statesman, Cavour, and a great soldier, Garibaldi—the one by organising Piedmont and enabling her to assert the claims of Italy before the world—the other by raising a insurrection of the Two Sicilies in favour of an Italian unity—came in the fulness of time to accomplish that mighty task. The survivor is welcomed among us with such demonstrations of esteem as only a wiser foreign visitor has ever received. There is good reason to ascribe this outburst of generous feeling not less to a sincere appreciation of the wonderful fact of the revival of Italy than to the admiration excited by his personal virtues and his romantic adventures. Mr. Tennyson, our Poet Laureate, the first living poet of England, may fairly represent the national sentiment on this occasion. In his mind, we venture to believe, only were the mixed emotions that affected him when he clasped the hand of Garibaldi. He is not the man to be blind to differences upon such a spectacle as Italy presented for the last five years. He has told us what he felt to another friend:—

When I thought that a war would arise in defence of the right,
That an iron tyranny now should bend or cease,
Ah! I stood and heard my breath
With a loyal people's shouting a battle cry.

And God's just doom shall be wreak'd on a giant liar:
And many a darkness into the light shall leap,
And chain in the sudden making of splendid issues,
And the heart of a people beat with one desire,
And one voice be thought be free under the sun.

This is what the friends of Italy have felt; henceforth let them reckon Mr. Tennyson one of themselves. Meantime, he is the friend of Garibaldi. They are worthy of each other. It is right that the man whose life, and deeds, and manners, beyond all other example in this nineteenth century, seem to recall the pristine nobleness of the days of chivalry, should be known to him who has imagined King Arthur and the knights of Britain. It is natural that one whose earlier poems so often expressed his passionate longing for those scenes of adventurous peril which abound in the wilderness, or in the life of a sailor, or in that of warlike campaigns, should look with interest upon the hero of so many experiences of that kind, who by land and sea, in South America, among the Alps, on the walls of Rome, and on the Sicilian and Calabrian mountains, has done and dared all that can prove the courage and strength of manhood. Mr. Tennyson, we may be sure, "knows a man when he sees him," as Mr. Carlyle would say.

BOX IN WHICH THE FREEDOM OF THE CITY WAS PRESENTED TO GARIBALDI.

Ring in the valiant man and free,
The larger hope, the kindlier hand.

This, after all, is far more important than any considerations of Italian, European, or even English politics. Yet we are willing to close these remarks with an earnest anticipation, in which General Garibaldi, we are sure, will most heartily join, of that good time coming predicted by Mr. Tennyson, when there shall be no need to lay the liberty of the peoples with blood—a time as from dead to longer and the battle flag be furled,

In the Parliament of Nations, the Federation of the World.
When the common Sense of most shall hold the fretful realms in awe,
And the kindly Earth shall slumber, lapp'd in Universal Law.

GARIBALDI IN LONDON.

We have engraved four Illustrations of General Garibaldi's visit to London, each of them occupying a whole page of this week's Number. The first represents the interior of the large goods' shed at the Nine Elms station of the London and South-Western Railway, on the afternoon of Monday, the 11th inst., when Garibaldi had just arrived from Basing House, and was receiving the addresses of the City Committee, the Working Men's Committee, and the Committee of Italians resident in London. Our next Engraving represents the scene which took place at Charing Cross, several hours later on the same afternoon, when Garibaldi had arrived so far on his way to Stafford House. He is here seated in a four-horse carriage belonging to the Duke of Sutherland. Mr. John Richardson, the honorary secretary of the Working Men's Committee, and Mr. Beales, the Mayor of Southampton, were in the same carriage with him. His two sons, Menotti and Ricciotti, with one of his Italian secretaries and Sir Robert Nicholson, late a Captain in Garibaldi's army, followed in the next carriage. The third Illustration which we give of the General's sojourn in this metropolis represents the splendid entertainment provided by the hospitality of the Duke and Duchess of Sutherland, on the evening of Wednesday, the 11th. The superbly-decorated apartments of Stafford House were thrown open for the advantage of the guests, who crowded by this great assembly to do honour to an illustrious guest of the noble Duke and of the nation. On page 401 is an Engraving which shows Garibaldi at the Crystal Palace, last Saturday, in the box erected at the north-west corner of the great transept, where he received the address and the gifts of the Italian committee. Above are Engravings of the swords which the Italians then gave him and his son, and the box in which the freedom of the City was presented to him last Wednesday. The box, made by Hancock, of Bruton-street, is a massive gold one, ornamented with garlands of flowers and the arms of the city of London on the lid. There is the letter "G," in diamonds, with a gold star, on the front of the box. We refer our readers to another part of this Journal for a brief report of the proceedings on both these occasions.

SWORDS PRESENTED TO GARIBALDI AND HIS SON MENOTTI AT THE CRYSTAL PALACE.

A man brought a few days since to trial in France for the murder of his wife and mother-in-law put in quite a new plea, which, however, was overruled. "Remember, M. le Juge," said the man, who defended himself, "that I am fifty years old, was married very early, and my wife's mother has never left us, and yet I have never done the before." The circumstances were not considered sufficiently "extenuating," and the jury found the prisoner guilty.

CURRENT LITERATURE.

Frederick the Great. By Thomas Carlyle. (Vol. IV. Chapman and Hall). Mr. Carlyle, under his self-adopted name of Smelfungus, has arrived at a very interesting part of what by some persons is called his Frederickiady, and his "excerpts" and commentaries form a volume over which his admirers will pore absorbedly, and over which even his detractors will linger pleasurably. His style, of course, remains unchanged; it is perfectly generis. It is sometimes grand, sometimes grotesque, but always rugged and always picturesque. One can fancy him sitting with a sardonic grin over his materials, and arranging them, after his manner, in six couch piles and fantastic forms. And yet, if his portraits are a little after the manner of Hogarth's caricatures, he has also all Hogarth's truthfulness, and the underlying accuracy of detail is discernible throughout his work. He divides his fourth volume into three books, of which the first is devoted to a review of the circumstances attending the second Silesian War (1744-5); the second to Fredericksea (including the famous quarrel with Voltaire) during the Ten Years' Peace (1746-56); and the third to an account of the first campaign (1756-7) of the Seven Years' War (otherwise the Third Silesian War) of the "eye-opener," (to use a Carlyleese expression) which followed. "From the Mensel Documents, I know not after what circuitous gropings and searchings;" of the battle of Lobositz, when the Austrians claimed but lost the victory, and where so continuous was the firing that the Prussians completely spent their cartridges, and had to respond to Benda's cry, "strike in with bayonets, meine kinder; buttends, or what we have; heran!" of the "dismal scene" on which the Saxons set out on Pirna, and of the secret instructions (with a facsimile) from Frederick to the Lord von Finck. With whatever feelings an Englishman may peruse the narrative in the first book of Frederick's difficulties and exploits, no Englishman will be able to read without a glow of pride the story of his countrymen's gallant conduct at the battle of Fontenoy. It is true that Mr. Carlyle's language, "errons the laws of nature," that they exhibited a "mad method of fighting, like Barserks or Lapland-witches," that they were human creatures, and that at last "the wrathful English column, still into ribbons, can do nothing at manœuvring: blazes and rages, more and more clearly in collapsing degree, for about a dozen coils, and winds itself out of the field:" but one proudly recognises in them the spirit which could utter at the very crisis of command (given probably by a mistake) the "six hundred" code cheerfully into the jaws of death. It is not to be "a question but it is certainly to suppose" &c. By-the-way, one is tempted to wonder whether Marshal Soubise really made the remark upon the "Balaclava Charge" which is attributed to him, or whether "The French manœuvre (with their characteristic fire) was rarely invented and accredited him with it. For it is now pretty well established that "the Guard dies and does not surrender" has grown out of either nothing or something, for which Mr. Victor Hugo is authority, and all "elegant extracts" of the same kind seem destined to share a like fate. Mr. Carlyle therefore does well to attach "his" of modern chivalry "connected with the battle of Fontenoy. He calls it "a supreme gallantry which has procured us, historically, probably the highest point (or the lowest) it ever went to." Let Mr. Carlyle himself take the French to task for the publication and circulation of it:—"The head of the English column comes to sight, over the rising ground close by; the officers dart their hats into the air, shaking ours, who return the civility; was ever such politeness seen before? It is a fact, and among the unparalleled of things." Close by, a certain English officer of mark—Lord Charles Hay, the name of him valued, surely, in the annals of the Hay and Tweeddale house—steps forward out of the ranks, and, walking somewhat "off-hand" to him (says the accurate Espagnac) Marquis d'Autrecche, Grenadier Lieutenant, with air of polite interrogation, asks what he can be meant, made a step or two. "Monsieur,' said Lord Charles (Lord Charlo-hay), 'did your people fire (tuins pien tire) first, Monsieur, nous ne tirons iamais les premiers' (We never fire first.)

It is almost a pity to disturb an elegant historical passage of this kind, circulating round the world, in some glory, for a century past; but there has been a small irretrievable document come to me which modifies it to a good deal and reduces matters to a human form. This document is a letter written (" of dictated in sad spelling"—by-the-way is not the spelling more likely to be the affair of the writer than of the dictator?) from Lord Charles Hay to his brother, from which (with allowance of spelling) the following is an extract:—"It was our regiment that attacked the French Guards, and when we were within twenty or thirty paces of them, I advanced before our regiment, drank to them" ("to the French," explains Mr. Carlyle), "from the pocket-pistol one carries on such occasions"), "and told them that we were the English Guards, and hoped that they would not fire upon us then (!)" "Upon which I immediately turned about to my regiment, repeated them and made them hurrah." "I hope," remarks Mr. Carlyle, "with a will." "An officer of Auvergne," continues Mr. Carlyle, "with a will, no doubt; however, there were not above three or four in their brigade that did." Upon which Mr. Carlyle comments in these words:—"Very poor comment, and seems to me the least whisper of that sublime 'After you, Sirs!' but rather in confused form of quite the reverse." Hay, having been himself "shot at" (for had begun on my left;" Hay, totally ignorant on which side first), fired into, rather recklessly, and wounded the Duke of Grammont people, while he was still advancing with shouldered arms. . . . From all which one has to infer, that the mutual salutation by hat was probably a fact; that, for certain, there was some slight preliminary talk and gesticulation, but in the Homeric style, by no means in the Espagnac-French—not chivalrous epigram at all, more rough banter, and what is called "chaffing;" and, in short, that the French newscooks (with their eloquence to distort that way) had rounded off the thing into the current epigrammatic reduction; the authentic business form of it being roughly what is now given. In the end, we learn, when Frederick "declines the career of conquering hero, goes into late reform, and gets ready a cottage residence for himself" (Sans-Souci), we cease

Frederick the Great. By Thomas Carlyle. (Vol. IV. Chapman and Hall). Mr. Carlyle, under his self-adopted name of Smelfungus, has arrived at a very interesting part of what by some persons is called his Frederickiady, and his "excerpts" and commentaries form a volume over which his admirers will pore absorbedly, and over which even his detractors will linger pleasurably. His style, of course, remains unchanged; it is perfectly generis. It is sometimes grand, sometimes grotesque, but always rugged and always picturesque. One can fancy him sitting with a sardonic grin over his materials, and arranging them, after his manner, in six couch piles and fantastic forms. And yet, if his portraits are a little after the manner of Hogarth's caricatures, he has also all Hogarth's truthfulness, and the underlying accuracy of detail is discernible throughout his work. He divides his fourth volume into three books, of which the first is devoted to a review of the circumstances attending the second Silesian War (1744-5); the second to Fredericksea (including the famous quarrel with Voltaire) during the Ten Years' Peace (1746-56); and the third to an account of the first campaign (1756-7) of the Seven Years' War (otherwise the Third Silesian War) of the "eye-opener," (to use a Carlyleese expression) which followed. "From the Mensel Documents, I know not after what circuitous gropings and searchings;" of the battle of Lobositz, when the Austrians claimed but lost the victory, and where so continuous was the firing that the Prussians completely spent their cartridges, and had to respond to Benda's cry, "strike in with bayonets, meine kinder; buttends, or what we have; heran!" of the "dismal scene" on which the Saxons set out on Pirna, and of the secret instructions (with a facsimile) from Frederick to the Lord von Finck. With whatever feelings an Englishman may peruse the narrative in the first book of Frederick's difficulties and exploits, no Englishman will be able to read without a glow of pride the story of his countrymen's gallant conduct at the battle of Fontenoy. It is true that they exhibited a "mad method of fighting, like Barserks or Lapland-witches," that they were human creatures, and that at last "the wrathful English column, still into ribbons, can do nothing at manœuvring: blazes and rages, more and more clearly in collapsing degree, for about a dozen coils, and winds itself out of the field:" but one proudly recognises in them the spirit which could utter at the very crisis of command (given probably by a mistake) the "six hundred" code cheerfully into the jaws of death. It is not to be "a question but it is certainly to suppose" &c. By-the-way, one is tempted to wonder whether Marshal Soubise really made the remark upon the "Balaclava Charge" which is attributed to him, or whether "The French manœuvre (with their characteristic fire) was rarely invented and accredited him with it. For it is now pretty well established that "the Guard dies and does not surrender" has grown out of either nothing or something, for which Mr. Victor Hugo is authority, and all "elegant extracts" of the same kind seem destined to share a like fate. Mr. Carlyle therefore does well to attach "his" of modern chivalry "connected with the battle of Fontenoy. He calls it "a supreme gallantry which has procured us, historically, probably the highest point (or the lowest) it ever went to." Let Mr. Carlyle himself take the French to task for the publication and circulation of it:—"The head of the English column comes to sight, over the rising ground close by; the officers dart their hats into the air, shaking ours, who return the civility; was ever such politeness seen before? It is a fact, and among the unparalleled of things." Close by, a certain English officer of mark—Lord Charles Hay, the name of him valued, surely, in the annals of the Hay and Tweeddale house—steps forward out of the ranks, and, walking somewhat "off-hand" to him (says the accurate Espagnac) Marquis d'Autrecche, Grenadier Lieutenant, with air of polite interrogation, asks what he can be meant, made a step or two. "Monsieur,' said Lord Charles (Lord Charlo-hay), 'did your people fire (tuins pien tire) first, Monsieur, nous ne tirons iamais les premiers' (We never fire first.)

It is almost a pity to disturb an elegant historical passage of this kind, circulating round the world, in some glory, for a century past; but there has been a small irretrievable document come to me which modifies it to a good deal and reduces matters to a human form. This document is a letter written (" of dictated in sad spelling"—by-the-way is not the spelling more likely to be the affair of the writer than of the dictator?) from Lord Charles Hay to his brother, from which (with allowance of spelling) the following is an extract:—"It was our regiment that attacked the French Guards, and when we were within twenty or thirty paces of them, I advanced before our regiment, drank to them" ("to the French," explains Mr. Carlyle), "from the pocket-pistol one carries on such occasions"), "and told them that we were the English Guards, and hoped that they would not fire upon us then (!)" "Upon which I immediately turned about to my regiment, repeated them and made them hurrah." "I hope," remarks Mr. Carlyle, "with a will." "An officer of Auvergne," continues Mr. Carlyle, "with a will, no doubt; however, there were not above three or four in their brigade that did." Upon which Mr. Carlyle comments in these words:—"Very poor comment, and seems to me the least whisper of that sublime 'After you, Sirs!' but rather in confused form of quite the reverse." Hay, having been himself "shot at" (for had begun on my left;" Hay, totally ignorant on which side first), fired into, rather recklessly, and wounded the Duke of Grammont people, while he was still advancing with shouldered arms. . . . From all which one has to infer, that the mutual salutation by hat was probably a fact; that, for certain, there was some slight preliminary talk and gesticulation, but in the Homeric style, by no means in the Espagnac-French—not chivalrous epigram at all, more rough banter, and what is called "chaffing;" and, in short, that the French newscooks (with their eloquence to distort that way) had rounded off the thing into the current epigrammatic reduction; the authentic business form of it being roughly what is now given. In the end, we learn, when Frederick "declines the career of conquering hero, goes into late reform, and gets ready a cottage residence for himself" (Sans-Souci), we cease to the "Halcyon period" which Frederick had fondly hoped would last from Christmas Day, 1740, to the end of his life, not knowing that "the courage or strength of his life was beyond all expectation, found to be still lying ahead for him, awfully dubious for seven years there after!" The picture which Mr. Carlyle gives of the means at his disposal for making known Frederick's history during the ten years of peace is by no means a cheerful one. He speaks of "a jumbled mass of historical matter stores, presided over by Dryasdust and Human Stupor, unsorted, unlabelled, like a big lumber-room." He has, however, undertaken to sort, label, and tie up his materials in such fashion as to furnish his readers with a distinct view of things as they were, and to present his own words—"Courage, reader; by good eyesight you will catch some features of the matter, and by good will you may see little to be unintelligible manner, and keep the rest well hidden, if it is all you can do for you." With respect to the "Voltaire visit," Mr. Carlyle divides it into three acts; the first, which "comprises the whole history of the sun, and ended, by that Hirsch business, in wholesale of smoke and soot;" the second, which "lasted only a couple of hundred months, till autumn, 1752;" and the third (in which Maupertuis and Jacobi Koenig are the principal characters), "which is a tragedy, which, by further ill accident proved noisy in the extreme, producing world-wide smoke; from the very nature of the matter, and by other; which were answered by unlimited hooting, cat-calling, and ha-ha-ing from the entire front of the world-theatre, for the hissing, and the silent party, cat-calling not fallen quite dead to this day." Nor does Mr. Carlyle endeavour to conceal personal agitation. In this book, also, Mr. Carlyle introduces a Demon Newspaper, which professes to give "news of Providence," and, absent him roughly after the following fashion:—The Demon reports, "Frederick has left his boots on his legs all his life. He cannot walk with shoes." Upon which Mr. Carlyle's criticism is, "Do we not see that the Demon's information is commented upon all through in the same amusing style, except that he is sometimes serious, and that the point which will be most attended to in the third book will be the conduct of Frederick in the Saxon campaign, and the reasons of the Struppen. Upon this point Mr. Carlyle writes as follows:—"Very certain it is, Sunday, 10th October, 1756, that the sun rose and signed the night before, Frederick goes across at Nieder-Baden:

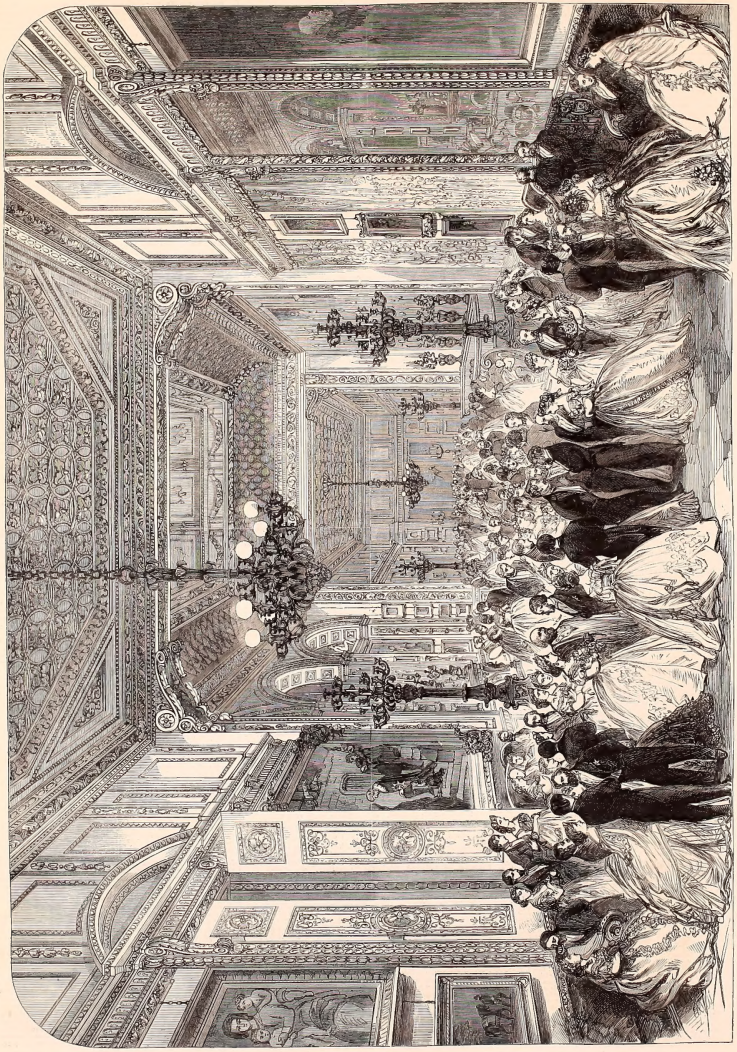
rides to the Height of Wallendorf, in the open country behind; and pauses there while the captive Saxon Army defiles past him, 18,000 down to arms at the feet. Towarned, and now under Prussian word of command, these ex-Saxon soldiers go on shouldering arms, under the chosen of Nieder-Baden; cross to Ober-Baden; and in the plainer country thereabouts, as I know not what length of the day continue, but in an incredibly short length, so swift is the management—changed without delay into Prussian clothing, and into Prussian every one of them!" Now Friedrich defended such hard conduct to the Saxons: Russia, he said, had begun the war of Necessity, urged on by Saxons and others, was hard as adamant upon Friedrich at the Peace Congress, and Friedrich had to choose be making any defence; and will have to take your verdict, such as it is." Quid hoc ad duas rosseatas? It is the only apology for the rape of the Saxons.

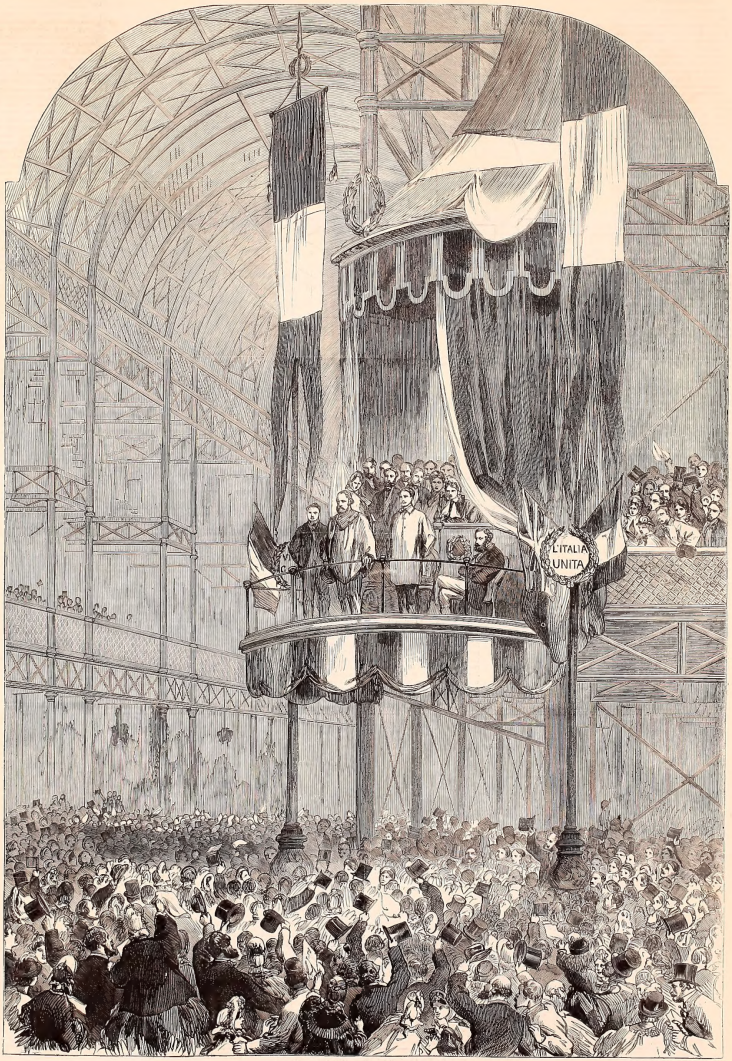
The Alexandra has been handed over to her owners by the Government.

Five gunning Parisian gentlemen have arrived in England to be educated at the expense of their respective States in the Royal Academy Mazeau Rise, the Persian Minister in this country.



A Parliamentary return has been issued which has had the total number of electors for cities and boroughs in England and Wales was 448,204 in 1865-6, and 487,304 in 1866-7. The number of registered electors was 134,016 in 1862-3, and 853,788 in 1866-7.

The Government and the Emperor of the French has sent to Mr. Benjamin Gerrans, late M.P. for Sunderland, a medal inscribed to that honourable gentleman as a mark of admiration for the energy of the part which he took in the establishment of the principles of freedom of commerce which led to the Treaty of 1860.



The Government emigrant-ship Ida, which sailed from Plymouth on the 4th of September with a number of emigrants on the 19th of January, having on board 21 married couples, 144 single and 152 single women, 2 boys and 14 girls between the ages of one and seven years, and seven infants, numbering in all 380 souls. Three births and three deaths took place on the voyage. The Government emigrant-ship Ida, which sailed from Plymouth on the 4th of October, arrived at Sydney on the 21st of January, with 381 Government emigrants, comprising 89 married couples, 144 single men, 76 single women, 26 boys and 14 girls between the ages of one and twelve, and seven infants. No deaths occurred during the voyage.

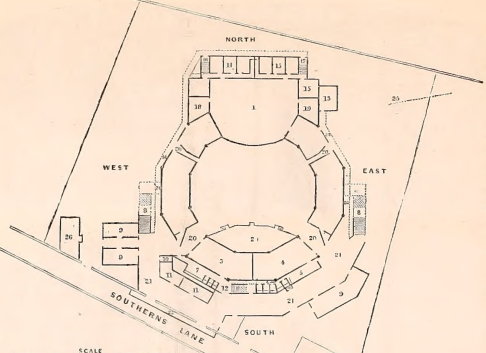
Mr. Lowe has resigned the office of Vice-President of the Education Committee of the Council in consequence of his retirement, and he is succeeded in the appointment by Mr. Bruce, who has been Under-Secretary for the Home Department since 1859. Mr. Bruce's successor, Mr. Hardy, has been appointed Under-Secretary of the Colonies, in order to relieve the Secretary of State, Lord Carnarvon, of some portion of the duties attached to the office. A new Under-secretary was constituted.—The Right Hon. Sir Edward Ryan, late Chief Justice of Bengal, has been appointed by Mr. Baines, M.P. for Leeds, to succeed him as Recorder of that borough and the state of his health), has been appointed Recorder of Wakefield, and has been sworn in a member of the Privy Council.

The Distress in Lancashire.—The usual fortnightly meeting of the Central Executive Relief Committee was held in the Townhall, Manchester, on Thursday, Mr. Alderman Heywood, J.P., in the chair. Mr. Bateman, the secretary, reported that £7221 had been received during the past fortnight, which, added to the balance in hand of £1,000, left a total of £8,208 available for distribution. Of this sum £7,000 in the form of clothing had been received, and one parcel had been sent off. Mr. Bateman's financial statement showed a balance in hand of £1,208. A grant of £600 to the number of persons receiving parochial relief in the cotton-manufacturing districts was made, and the following grants were also made:—Ashton-under-Lyne, £500; Dukinfield, £500; Leeds and district, £500; Mossley, £400; Oldham, £1,000; Rochdale, £500; Stalybridge, £1,000; Salford, £400; Holme, £100; Glossop and Hadfield, £1,200; Bacup, £500; Burnley, £500; Colne, £200; Haslingden, £200; Padiham, £100; Todmorden, £200; Barrow, £100.—The Relief Committee of Manchester yesterday week, Alderman Heywood in the chair, voted grants of money to the following districts:—Ashton-under-Lyne, £500; Bolton, £1,000; Bury, £500; Dukinfield, £500; Oldham, £500; Hyde

GARIBALDI AT STAFFORD HOUSE IN THE HOUSE OF MARCHIONESS

GARIBALDI AT THE CRYSTAL PALACE ON SATURDAY LAST.

THE SHAKSPEARE FESTIVAL AT STRATFORD-ON-AVON.



We have Engraved, for the convenience of the numerous visitors to Stratford-on-Avon next week, a map of that town and its neighbourhood for the southward and westward, including most of the places which are made interesting by their Shakspearean associations, on such an occasion as the Tercentenary Festival of the poet. The extent of country delineated in this map is about twelve miles, and its scale is two inches to the mile. We also present a ground plan of the Shakspeare Festival Pavilion. An interior and exterior view of this building, with a misconception of it, appeared in our Paper of April 2.

MUSIC.

The most interesting circumstances connected with the two great theatres since our last notice of their proceedings have been the visits paid by Gardiahi to both houses. On Thursday, last week, he went to Covent Garden, where he saw "Norma," with Mdme. Lagrua as the heroine; and on Tuesday last he visited her Majesty's Theatre, where Tiliens made her first appearance this season, in the character of Lucrezia Borgia. As might be expected on such occasions, the illustrious visitor engrossed the attention of the audience, the performances on the stage exciting only a secondary degree of interest. It was observed, however, that he himself was most attentive to them, and listened with evident delight and emotion to the beautiful singing of our prima donnas of both houses.

On Saturday last "Guglielmo Tell" was produced at the Royal Italian Opera for the first time this season. It was got up with a degree of splendour unequalled in any other theatre in Europe. The character of Arnold was sustained with triumphant success by Herr Wachtel, who astonished the public by the power and compass of his voice, and especially by the ease and brilliancy with which he emitted the indispensable ut de poitrine—a vocal exploit absolutely requisite for success in this part. Wachtel has made a vast progress in his art since last season, when he appeared here with very moderate success. He has not only gained a great increase of vocal power, but is greatly improved in purity of style. Still greater has been his progress as an actor. The only fault we suppose that he has been studying Hamlet's advice to the players, for he no longer "o'esteps the modesty of nature," but has learned to subdue his former violence and to temper energy with discretion. Within these twelve months this young performer has raised himself to a pre-eminent position on the German musical stage, and, though he certainly lacks the graceful flow and mellow sweetness of the Italian style, he nevertheless well deserves his success.

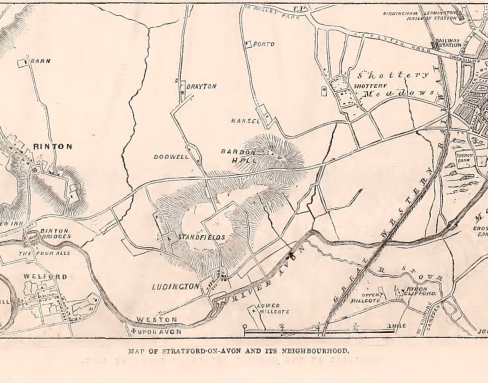
The Philharmonic Society's Concert of Monday last was announced as being in connection with the tercentenary anniversary of the birth of Shakspeare, and consisted chiefly of music written for, or suggested by, the works of the illustrious poet. The programme, accordingly, included Mendelssohn's beautiful music for the "Midsummer Night's Dream;" several airs and duets of Arne, Haydn, and Bishop, with Shakspeare's words; Beethoven's overture to "Coriolanus," and Nicolai's overture to "The Merry Wives of Windsor." A great orchestral symphony, however, is an essential feature of a Philharmonic concert, and the programme therefore included Beethoven's magnificent "Sinfonia Pastorale," and a violin concerto of Paganini, performed with exquisite grace and inimitable execution by Paganini's only living pupil and representative, Camillo Sivori. The singers were Miss Banks and Mrs. Lockey; the former is one of our most accomplished young singers, the latter (whom we were glad to hear once more after an absence of many years) retains her fine contralto voice, and sings as charmingly as ever. Prefaced to the programme were some verses written for the occasion by Mr. W. Bartholomew, the well-known friend and collaborator of Mendelssohn, and containing an elegant tribute to the memory of Shakspeare. The concert was honoured with the presence of the Princesses Helena and Louise, attended by Lady Caroline Barrington, the Hon. Emily Cathcart, the Hon. Lucy Lyttelton, and the Hon. Mortimer Sackville West. The audience was very large and fashionable.

GROUND PLAN OF THE SHAKSPEARE PAVILION AT STRATFORD.

1. Theatrical Stage.
2. Lower part of Orchestra removed during the performances of Dramatic Pieces.
3. Orchestra Seats(upwards during Oratorio and Ball), and for Spectators during Theatrical Representations.
4. Ladies' Seats.
5. Ladies.
6. Stairs to Gallery.
7. Gun-house.
8. Refreshment-room.
9. Gentlemen's Dressing-rooms.
10. Ladies' Dressing-rooms.
11. Clerk-of-the-Works.
12. Stairs to Orchestra.
13. Committee-room.
14. Ladies' Dressing-room.
15. Gentlemen's Dressing-rooms.
16. Offices for Sale and Exchange of Tickets.
17. Stairs to Saddlers'-Hall.
18. Queen-room.
19. Ground Dressing-room.
20. Entrance to Ground Floor of Building.
21. Ground Vestibule and Corridors round Entrance of Building.
22. Covered Platform.
23. Offices for Sale and Exchange of Tickets.
24. Clerk-of-the-Works.
25. Clear Street Approach to Pavilion.
26. Barriers and Guard Photographic Studio.

THE THEATRES.

SADLER'S WELLS.—On Monday "The Merchant of Venice" introduced Mr. Brooke in the character of Shylock to an Islington audience, by whom he was well received. He performed the character naturally, and with a certain dignity, such as gave a kind of patriarchal respectability to the conduct of the malignant Jew. In the passionate scenes he was decidedly effective. The play was well cast. The part of Bassanio was creditably sustained by Mr. Walter Joyce, who we now find has taken regularly to the profession, and will, no doubt, rise in it. Miss Marriott acted with her usual force and straightforwardness in Portia, and Miss Hamilton made a capital Nerissa. We should have mentioned that the performance of the evening was in aid of the Shakspeare Memorial Fund, and of the tercentenary celebration. It was, therefore, miscellaneous in part; and accordingly the leading play of the evening was followed by a fragmentary entertainment, in which Mr. George Cruikshank performed the dagger scene from "Macbeth." He was assisted in the situation by Miss Edith Heraud, whose lady Macbeth came out with great force, and led to a recall when the curtain. Mr. Buckstone also appeared in the popular farce of "Box and Cox," and kept the house in perpetual laughter. After this, Miss Cowsay recited a poetical and exceedingly appropriate address, which should have come earlier in the evening, so that all the audience might have heard it. This was followed by Mr. Linneus Banks' song of "England's Minstrel King," set to Macfarren's music and effectively sung by Miss Hamilton. It was encored, and the curtain fell on the entire company assembled to take part in the chorus. The house was unquestionably filled, but there was not the overflow that might have been expected on such an occasion. Considerable enthusiasm was, however, manifested, and the applause was frequent.



There was also a similar tercentenary celebration at the STRAND Theatre, and the occasion was distinguished by a performance of the latter scene from "Romeo and Juliet," and the fifth act of "A Midsummer Night's Dream," in addition to that of the comedy of "My Preserve," and the burlesque of "Orpheus and Eurydice." At the Lyric, likewise, a similar celebration was accomplished by the performance of "Catherine and Petruchio," in addition to "The Ticket-of-Leave Man."

Such is the tribute made to the sentiment of the time, nor certainly with that amplitude of arrangement which so important an event would fully justify, nor with that response on the part of the public which it ought to have commanded. But the people have yet to learn to look beyond the actor to the poet; and if these celebrations conduce to a reunion of the popular mind calculated to extend the appreciation more habitual for the future, they will not have been without their use.

Mr. Fechter has sent £103 to the Mayor of Sheffield for the sufferers by the Sheffield disaster, the proceeds of a benefit given by him at the Lyceum Theatre.

The committee of the Athenæum Club, in the exercise of their privilege to elect annually, as members without ballot, nine "persons of distinguished eminence in science, literature, or the arts, or for public services," have this year nominated the following gentlemen:—The Rev. W. G. Clark, M.A.; Captain Beaufort; Dr. A. A. Parker; Colonel Sir Herbert Edwardes, K.C.B.; Lord Dufferin; Professor H. T. S. Smith; Canon Robertson; Professor W. Pole, F.R.S.; and Mr. Anthony Trollope.

The three Japanese Ambassadors to Europe have arrived in France. On landing France they will proceed to England, Holland, and Switzerland. The Embassy is composed in all of thirty-three persons, who are accompanied by an interpreter from the French Legation at Japan. The following are their sophonious names:—Ambassadors—Jisuke Kokengo-no-kami, Kawadaro-kiten-no-kami, Kuruda Sagami-no-kami, Vice-Governor Ranske Kutichi. First Officers—Ranske Lentaro, Ranske Kinsaburo, Ranske Sabero. Second Officers—Hanje Kobongoro, Yokoo Kaoriro, Yokoo Kokenosuke, Yokoyama Kichi, Sougioura Akiro, Matsuzaki Gorusoke, Yamaguchi Rokuzaburo, Yano-jiroroku, Sike Simpachi, Haruka Guichi, Attendant of the Ambassadors—Koldsouni Yasoemon, Ouki Hanoske, Kanagami Sasoke, Journalisteurs, Ikeda-saijiro, Sakabad Bomisburo, Tsuuki Sanji, Sangamuni Himai.

MAP OF STRATFORD-ON-AVON AND ITS NEIGHBOURHOOD.

ECHOES OF THE WEEK.

As this is the important week which brings with it the tercentenary of our greatest poet, it is befitting that we should gossip of a flying visit to Stratford-on-Avon, called about this season the "Home and the Grave of the bard." One might write a long paragraph, such is the madness of the hour, with the head-lines of Shakspearean advertisements cunningly dovetailed together, relating that "Doom by Avon's flowing stream" "A grand bardic festival" "Commemorative of the tercentenary of England's King of Song," words wrote as "only bard can write," was about to be "inaugurated." These sentences, with a good spelling-book before them, have the advantage of being neither sense nor English, but which astonish the reader, would dismay little ingenuous boys, but would not quench the thirst will, however, prove how full of Shakspearolatry we are at present. Songs, advertisements, theatres, rubbers, fans, gaswares, and cooker—everything, from books to butter, and from hat to laudanum, is chuckfull of the "Bard." The enthusiasm here and elsewhere, however, looks for its own end, and is put forward to pay; but at Stratford everything is done simply, grandly, and generously and without affectation. The whole place is really a commemoration; there is no sham about it—the stage is as good a one as any in England; the Townhall is being re-decorated, and will contain a fine exhibition of pictures and works of art—the Siddons, by Reynolds; pictures lent by the Queen, the Shakespeare Relics, &c.; and Burnett Boots at the Shakspeare Arms to his Worship the Mayor, all the Stratfordians are alive with enthusiasm, and are working in one order, and showing that organisation which all Englishmen possess. This day have present to their worthy Vicar, Dr. Bloxam, to act as quartermaster-general, so that every visitor may be treated according to his income, and the "strictest care may be best bestowed." The programme of the entertainment is an excellent one.

On Saturday, London folk, our friends who are reading this hundreds of miles away in the country may like to know, will be invited to the the singing, acting, and general "bardic" kick-up in fancy dresses and inflated costumes, and over each table a "poetical dinner of ardent admirers, which we hope will be always held, that Mr. Phelps will, in the town of the Bard, play Falstaff, that Mr. Charles Kean, others, plant an oak on Primrose-hill. Let us hope that it will grow and flourish, and that it will be several times larger than Alfred Bunn's Wellingtonia, planted by the hands of Garibaldi, which has already been mutilated and shorn of two branches, which is obliged to be guarded from the people of England by a rural policeman.

No Garibaldi knows England after a short stay, being absolutely overwhelmed by the heartiness of his welcome. We thought that we had made enough to fear as opposite to the Yankee levées and the General has not the hard frame and endurance of President Lincoln, who handles Hall Hackney and Co. like Hercules. Wm. Ferguson and his physicians forbade any more excitement, and the Cornish Arrest Bill passed after another of the dinners of orders'

NEW MUSIC.

REMINISCENCES OF SHAKESPEARE
for the Pianoforte. By S. W. OLIVER.
No. 1. THE TEMPEST.
No. 2. TWELFTH NIGHT.
No. 3. HAMLET.
No. 4. MACBETH.
With highly finished Chromolithographs. Price 3s. each.
METZLER and CO., 37, 38, 39, and 40, Great Marlborough-street, W.

THE AVON QUADRILLE, by F. WALLERSTEIN, on the most favourite Airs introduced in Shakespeare's Plays, and beautifully illustrated (tinted), by PACKER. Piano Solo, 4s.; Septet Band, 2s.
METZLER and CO., 37, 38, 39, and 40, Great Marlborough-street, W.

AVON VALSES. By T. BROWNE. With superior chromolithograph of Stratford-on-Avon Church, and Shakespeare's Tomb. Price 4s.
METZLER and CO., 37, 38, 39, and 40, Great Marlborough-street, W.

New Edition, with splendid illustration, 2s. 6d.,
GARIBALDI'S SONG. "On, follow me." By GEORGE LINLEY.
METZLER and Co., 37, 38, 39, and 40, Great Marlborough-street, W.

CHRISTINE'S MINSTRELS' EASY DANCE MUSIC.
MOTHER WOULD COMFORT ME. Price 2s. net; card free for 14 stamps.
METZLER and CO., 37, 38, 39, and 40, Great Marlborough-street, W.

NEWEST SONGS by POPULAR COMPOSERS:—
"Ruby." Virginia Gabriel ... ... Price 2s. 6d.
"Ever of Thee I Sing Sweetly." Ditto ... ... 2s. 6d.
"Wish, sweet Sir, but so." Virginia Gabriel ... ... 2s. 6d.
"The Reproach." Miss Dory ... ... 2s. 6d.
"Springtime of the Heart." Wallworth ... ... 2s. 6d.
"A Wish We Both." Illustrated by Brandard ... ... 2s. 6d.
METZLER and CO., 37, 38, 39, and 40, Great Marlborough-street, W.

NEW PIANOFORTE PIECES.
DEFFEITES'S "LA RUCHE (the Beehive) and TROUSSENS MAURIKA DE SALDIS. Price 2s. each, Played by the composer with the greatest success.
METZLER and CO., 37, 38, 39, and 40, Great Marlborough-street, W.

ROBERT COCKS and CO.'S LIST OF NEW MUSICAL PUBLICATIONS.—
BUTTERFLY'S BALL. By R. M. LEVEY.
EUCKER'S New Ballad—THE WAVES WERE DANCING. 2s.
EUCKER'S New Ballad—THE SHIP ON FIRE. 2s. 6d.
THE CRUCIFIX AND MY MOTHER. By J. L. HATTON. 2s.
THE KNIGHT'S RETURN. By W. T. WRIGHTON. 2s. 6d.
IN TARRY TOWN. By Frank Mori. 2s. 6d.
GOOD SWEET HEART. Second Song. By CIRO PINSUTI. 2s. 6d.
THE SWEETEST FLOWER THAT BLOWS I CANNOT SEE NOSE. Second Edition. Illustrated. Price 2s.
WHITE QUESTIONS ON THEORY. Used by all Teachers. 2s.
THE PIANOFORTE TUTOR. Price 4s. Post free, 24 stamps.
THE PIANOFORTE PRECEPTOR. Price 10s. 6d.
PIANOFORTE FOR SALE OR HIRE, upon easy terms. Full catalogues and price-lists free. Prize-lists and thematics gratis and post-free.
CIRCULARS of New Music, Catalogues of Vocal Music and Dancing Music, gratis and post-free.
London: ROBERT COCKS and Co. New Burlington-street, W.
Publishers to the Queen, H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, and the Emperor Napoleon III. Agents for India—Messrs. RUDDERUTTUM and Co., Calcutta.

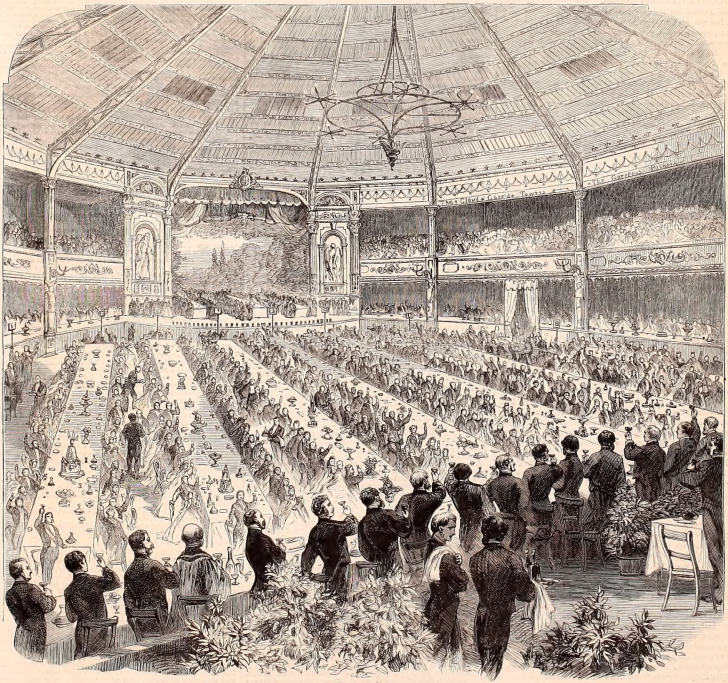
BEL DEMONIO VALSE (performed every evening at the Royal Lyceum Theatre), combining the melody of the song sung by Mr Fenton, and other favourite airs from the opera. Price 4s. Solo or Duet. Septet Band, 2s. Post for 14 stamps.
METZLER and CO., 37, 38, 39, and 40, Great Marlborough-street, W.

GARIBALDI'S TRIUMPHAL MARCH, for the Pianoforte. By STEPHEN GLOVER. Sent for fifteen stamps.
"Mr. Stephen Glover has produced a spirited composition, which is played by all military bands."—Court and Lady's Magazine.
METZLER and CO., 37, 38, 39, and 40, Great Marlborough-street, W.

NEW SONG—JESSY GRAY. By E. L. HIME. Sent for 15 stamps. One of the prettiest Ballads that has been published for some time. The melody is very charming, the words is very interesting, the melody remarkably touching and effective.—Orchestral Score, 2s. net.
METZLER and CO., 37, 38, 39, and 40, Great Marlborough-street, W.

PARFAIT AMOUR. Poetry by E. MIDE. Sent for 15 stamps. The most exquisite and sentimental romances we have ever heard.—Review. Duet and Harmonium, 2s. net. Post-free.
METZLER and CO., 37, 38, 39, and 40, Great Marlborough-street, W.

KUHE.—BACHANALE, 4s.—As heard to-night at the Monday Popular Concerts, St. James's Hall, by Miss ARABELLA GODDARD. Sent for 24 stamps.
"Herr Kuhe's Bachanale is a work of great merit."—Morning Post



THE ILLUSTRATED
LONDON NEWS.

No. 1257.—VOL. XLIV. SATURDAY, APRIL 30, 1864. TWO SHEETS, FIVEPENCE

THE CONFERENCE.

ALL obstacles having been at length removed the Conference of the representatives of the great Powers which has to consider the vexed question of Denmark and the duchies of Schleswig and Holstein is actually in session. It is to be hoped that at least one practical result will be at once attained, and that is the establishment of an armistice between the contending Danes and Germans on or about the disputed territory. Another end which will probably be gained will be the temporary suspension of discussion and of opinion on the subject in the outer world while the negotiators are, in Lord Palmerston's phrase, interchanging sentiments around a table covered with a green cloth. It cannot but be accepted as a happy circumstance that France and England enter the Conference with a complete understanding between them and a unity of purpose which will be directed to a peaceful solution of the question. On the other hand, the Conference that now Powers will together insist upon that temporary cessation of arms which would be a gain half way towards ultimate peace between the hostile parties. As it has happened, comparatively recent occurrences have operated favourably in that direction, and amongst the alterations which have of late taken place in the relations and the issues involved between Denmark and the German Powers, the fact of the cessation of hostilities is doubtless exercise a special influence. It may be remembered that hitherto Denmark has been the most repugnant of the Powers to consent to an armistice, and for very obvious reasons. As the weaker combatant, it would hardly have been consistent with the high courage and patriotic feeling which she has exhibited for her to have seemed too ready, or even ready at all, to accede to pacific overtures. There were many circumstances, which might have swayed the counsels of the Danish Government against the facile adoption of a peace policy while the enemy was actually in presence. It was not unreasonable for the Danes to count on the material assistance of at least one great State, however tardily it may have been rendered, and they may naturally have pictured to themselves the immediate effect in their favour in warlike operations which the first breath of a declaration which promised them palpable reinforcements would have produced—the ordering of a British fleet to the Baltic, for instance. Besides this, a few weeks ago there may have been a latent idea in the minds of the Danes that Austria was not so entirely at one with the hostilities to extremity as was Prussia; and they hoped that, if they could procrastinate their defence against the attack of the latter Power, their position would be materially improved when the time for final settlement and consideration of the claims and disputes on which they had been appealed to to arms. In both of these expectations they have been disappointed; and, having been unsuccessful in resisting the pressure of a overwhelming force, they have, with a wise forethought, listen to overtures for peace. Then, too, the successes which Prussia has acquired her belief in the military glory she has won may well cause her to enter the Conference with a complacency which could not have existed so long as her forces were entirely held at bay by the Danes: and she may fancy that she can now afford to play the part of a high-minded conqueror. Lastly, and to the world may think of the real state of the case, it will, at least, be advantageous to the interests of peace that she should take her place at the "table" in such a mood.

THE SHAKESPEARE COMMEMORATION: BANQUET IN THE PAVILION AT STRATFORD-ON-AVON ON SATURDAY LAST—THE EARL OF CARLISLE PROPOSING "THE MEMORY OF SHAKESPEARE,"
SEE PAGE 421.

There have been other considerations in the state of things since the proposal for the Conference was broached, and amongst the most important of them is the attitude of France.

In this Dano-German question France had for some time observed a hesitating reticence, which at one time well nigh landed no good to the peaceful solution of the difficulty. It was supposed that she was only biding the time when she should be called in as sole active arbitrator in the quarrel, and that she would have only to assert a settlement which she would back up by army on the Rhine; while Italy, at her instance, would have threatened Venetia. As a mode of assisting Denmark against Prussia and Austria the world, as a whole, would have looked on with derision. But, if what we hear be true, the mission of Lord Clarendon has changed all that, and France proceeds to the Conference with the most peaceful intentions, and, in accordance with England, she will be free from any ulterior conclusion of the matters at issue. It is true that there have been whispers of a proposal for settling the right of sovereignty to the duchies by the process of a plebiscite, which would be brought forward by France, in order to place Italy in a little acceptable to Russia, against whom it might ere long be quoted as a precedent when the question of Poland comes to be the subject of diplomatic action. It could hardly be more agreeable to Austria, with her vast Italian possessions always in her mind: while even Prussia, as participant in the original partition of Poland, would not relish the application of that principle to some of her acquired provinces. It is, however, well believed that France has no thought of placing such a proposition in the foreground of the negotiations, however it may be retained as an ultimate means of bringing about a final disposition of the troublous affairs of Denmark. It is therefore, be taken that France in conference will exercise her influence and direct her counsels towards an equitable, and, above all, a peaceful, termination of a question which ought not be allowed henceforth to trouble Europe.

If the expectations which have been indicated should be fulfilled; if England and France be actuated by this spirit in their action in the consultations which are going on, a deep responsibility will be cast on all the other Powers, if they seek to thwart so righteous an intention. Although the object of the Conference is simply and technically the consideration of the Danish question, it yet affords opportunity for laying down principles and concluding settlements which could not but operate as a pledge for the conduct of future international policy. Whatever differences may arise on matters of detail, it is not too much to say that the spirit in which the assemblage of her picked statesmen and diplomatists, large views will be entertained and temperate and judicious counsels will prevail. If there be amongst them any who are unable to understand or to appreciate the serious complications which may be avoided, and the advantages to be gained for the best interests of Europe and of civilisation, by the adoption of a policy of peace, who will stand up as the champions of the old plan, that they should take who have the power, and they should keep who can, they will fall into a dangerous error. Dissent from propositions which have for their object the putting out of the flame of war, which has kindled as yet only in a small portion of Europe, will tend materially to widen the question involved. The matter will cease to be one merely of Denmark and the duchies, but will rise into a consideration of the reconstruction of the map of the Continent; and this means perhaps a seven, perhaps a thirty, years' war. Preparatory to sending her representatives to the Conference, the great military Power of whose hands the issues of war or peace are tacitly admitted to lie has made a formal declaration of an adhesion to a policy of peace and retrenchment, and in so doing has notified to her neighbours that if they refuse the State of the Continent now reckon a period of such tranquillity as may enable them to take advantage of those means of development and prosperity which, in this particular instance, she has herself put within the reach of the nations she acts of peace. Surely it will not be that the enlightened policy of France and England will be met in the Conference with a cross and obstinate adherence to old-world traditions and an almost inhuman determination to exercise rights of force. Can it be that there are Governments who, by their representatives, will declare to their own peoples and to the civilised world that they prefer a policy of bloodshed and rapine? It is difficult, at least for Englishmen, to conceive such criminal insanity: for it is quite certain that, unless the Conference which has been brought together in this year of grace be productive of such results as it is the object of France and England to attain, the present Governments of Europe will have upon themselves such penalties as are deserved by those who madly and blindly attempt to stem the tide of human progress, which is now at its flood, which sees and will level that spirit of the noble social and political surface of the waters which the waters cover the deep.

FOREIGN AND COLONIAL INTELLIGENCE.

FRANCE.

It is announced that, on and after the 1st of May next, the Moniteur will publish an evening edition.

The banquet annually held at Paris in honour of Shakspeare has not allowed to take place. The French Government absolutely forbids the meeting of those Frenchmen who wished to pledge a toast to the memory of the great English poet. It is the second time in seven ago, and attached such conditions to the meeting of the English residents in Paris who desired to take part in the tercentenary celebration as virtually amounted to a prohibition. At first the Prefect of Police refused to grant the necessary permit; but the offered to allow it to take place provided none but Englishmen should be present. The committee of the English residents declined to accept the invitation, or, rather than cheerfully retract those invitations, they determined to put a stop altogether to proceedings which, in the form in which they were to be allowed, were calculated to be of a ridiculous character.

M. Barbieliwy was sentenced by the police court of Paris, yesterday week, to imprisonment for ten days, a fine of 50f., and the costs, for having permitted gambling to be carried on at the cafe of which he is proprietor, belonging to him without the authorisation of the Prefect of Police. The object of this prosecution was to ascertain the truth or falsehood of M. Garnier-Pagès as a representative for the fifth district of Paris to the Corps Législatif.

The international rifle-shooting match at Vincennes begins on May 27, and will last for a week.

The eulogium on Joan of Arc, on the occasion of the 436th anniversary of her delivery from the English, which was delivered this year, on the 8th of May, by Mgr. Dupanloup, Bishop of that see.

SPAIN.

The Queen has left Madrid for Aranjuez. Senor Mon accompanies her Majesty. The Queen Mother remains at the Duenas. Senor Mon of Spain was celebrated on Wednesday at Aranjuez by a grand reception. The Ministers and the Corps Diplomatique were present.

The banquet of the Progressist party is fixed for the 3rd of May. The question of the Progressist party is discussed. The Epoca says:—"The Progressist banquet will not disturb public tranquillity, although some of the speakers should be carried away."

The Ministry has received assurances from the chiefs of the different sections of the Progressist party that they will not by opposition from them.

DENMARK AND GERMANY.

Nothing of importance has of late occurred at Düppel. The Prussians are at work on the intrenchments and are strengthening the batteries on the heights. Their fire is kept up every day, and on the whole of the troops defiled before the King. At Rendsburg, there is no news. The Austrians are busy placing guns in position. A gloomy silence by the Danes, the King said:—"The cause of the Duchies is dearer to me than life. I am ready to make sacrifices; but such earnestness shall be completed in like manner. The people may be assured that I will not leave the Duchies in the lurch."

In Jutland the allies are pushing on, and they have had some encounters with the Danish troops.

A Berlin telegram brings an account of a small engagement, on the 29th, off the coast of Rugen island, in the Baltic, between a Danish armed pilot-boat and a Prussian gunboat. The latter, after a time, is stated to have suffered some injury.

The capture of the Danish position on the heights of Düppel, which was briefly reported in our last, has now been fully described. It took place Sunday morning and about o'clock in the morning of Monday the 18th inst. We have engraved on page 412 a sketch by our special artist, representing the attack on redoubts Nos. 5 and 6.

In Jutland the allies are pushing on, and they have had some encounters with the Danish troops.

A Berlin telegram brings an account of a small engagement, on the 29th, off the coast of Rugen island, in the Baltic, between a Danish armed pilot-boat and a Prussian gunboat. The latter, after a time, is stated to have suffered some injury.

The capture of the Danish position on the heights of Düppel, which was briefly reported in our last, has now been fully described. It took place Sunday morning and about o'clock in the morning of Monday the 18th inst. We have engraved on page 412 a sketch by our special artist, representing the attack on redoubts Nos. 5 and 6.

In Jutland the allies are pushing on, and they have had some encounters with the Danish troops.

A Berlin telegram brings an account of a small engagement, on the 29th, off the coast of Rugen island, in the Baltic, between a Danish armed pilot-boat and a Prussian gunboat. The latter, after a time, is stated to have suffered some injury.

The capture of the Danish position on the heights of Düppel, which was briefly reported in our last, has now been fully described. It took place Sunday morning and about o'clock in the morning of Monday the 18th inst. We have engraved on page 412 a sketch by our special artist, representing the attack on redoubts Nos. 5 and 6, which was the key to the whole position. It will be remembered by our readers, that the Danes had established a formidable fortify from our many previous illustrations, that the Redoubts Nos. 1 and 2, having the command of the ground in front of the Danish position, situated near the water, on the shore of the Vemmingbund inlet, and exposed to the fire of the Prussian batteries on the Bungerland, just across the Vemmingbund, while the Redoubts Nos. 3 and 4, connected with each other by a sort of parapet called a traverse, stood on the hill top, near the old Windmill, which has been so conspicuous a feature in most of our preceding Views; and that Redoubts Nos. 5 and 6 were posted on a high an easy passage to the rear of the Danish position. Several of the smaller fortifications, though called redoubts, were, in fact, mere bastions, open behind, and would be quite untenable as soon as the enemy should have passed beyond Redoubt No. 4. These alterations will explain the peculiar importance of carrying that earthwork, the assault upon which is represented by our sketch appeared on page 412. The Prussians had directed their batteries upon Redoubts No. 4 and No. 5 with so much effect that most of the guns in position there were disabled, while the Prussian outposts were within five hundred yards of them, and Prussian sharpshooters lay in their rifle-pits just outside the palisades. This was the insecure state of the Danish defences on the morning of the general attack. At four o'clock the enemy opened fire simultaneously from all the batteries in front and to the left of the mile-long line of redoubts. The defenders, for their part, did not fire a shot in return. We may now quote the narrative of the Times correspondent with the Prussian side, describing the manner of the actual assault :—

The appointed hour approaches—it wants only a few minutes of ten. Suddenly the fire of the batteries ceases, and the signal for the assault is announced by the bursting of a rocket. Bugles join together, and then the assault. Rousing up the flactue staircases on its inner side, and with them are the assaulting columns, the storming party. Arrived at the parapet, it is not sufficiently entire, for the men are crowded together, and some very slight delay ensues before they can get down. The Danes, in the meantime, have taken advantage of the pause, and all along their line, from the top of the redoubts and from behind the traverses connecting them, there exhales a show-er of rifles. Some Prussians fall; but the others are now upon the open ground, and forward they dash towards the Danish intrenchments. Here and there the latter prestcands strong across their bodies, and their treaty, rapid-firing rifles in their hands, they pour a deadly volley into the advancing enemy. But on the Prussians come; the latter, with their unloaded muskets clutched by the short butt, and use them as clubs. Those whose object is No. 1 make a half wheel to their right, that of No. 2 to their left, and the centre, in particular, the storm-ers straight forward or slightly incline in the direction of their respective destination. Against No. 1, which is the key to the position, there are 1,200 men, and the scene of my vision, and 4, which stands further back than its companions, is left for a little while in reserve. The Danes fight well and with determination against each first; their officers lead them gallantly on, and with them are those of the staff, some of whom are in full dress. From behind the parapet the Danes keep up a steady fire on to which the Prussians do not pause to reply, but, with their bayonets at the charge, rush on to the foe. Those in front go down, but the reinforcements behind them do not halt for the men, but soon contributed by those who have no such hesitation. They reach the point of the work; the latter, with the exception of telegraph wires, are cut right through. Below them, on a width of 12 ft., is a line of wooden pegs, cut sharp at the top and driven into the ground at an angle. They are broken down or cut quickly that the check they occasion is scarcely perceptible; in some places the materials are also found to be rotten or torn; in one or two instances the obstacle is specially surmounted, and in another half minute the Prussians are swarming on the interior slope of the redoubt. By my watch exactly one minute is used between them: here and there I note the discharge of a rifle, but the assailants are not to be stopped by any musketry fire such as this, and they are soon in full possession of the redoubt to deal a terrible slaughter amongst the defenders. Some few, in the confusion of the assailants on the inside, find an outlet by the gorge of the redoubt, but they were rallied by their officers, but there was too much to see for it to be possible to follow up the retreat. Some of the Prussians pass on, and the earthworks they fire down into them, and then many disappear, while others seem to remain in the work. I am told that the Danes, finding that there is no hesitation to a spectator, for it is impossible to see what passes within the work, and that the Prussians have established themselves, retired all detail as to the result of the conflict is removed by the appearance, in rear of the redoubt, of a Prussian battalion in column of companies. This is soon followed by the Prussians, and driven, without any stubborn resistance on the part of the Danes, from the redoubt. Some few Danes, who have been taken prisoner, have been hidden behind bridges leading over the ditch at the fall in the ground prevents further view. All is quiet now at forts 1 and 2 in the former of which the Danes are seen to be engaged in the business of carrying these, not which are also extremely strong, are also in the hands of the Prussians. No. 4 has also fallen into the hands of the latter; number of Danes, about 3 and 4, which are connected by a sort of curtain with traverses, and are at a short distance in the rear of No. 5. No. 5 is also in the hands of the Prussians, and, generally, with a redoubt repetition of the land horrah which had accompanied the capture of the others. Prussian colours are now seen on the pinnacle of the highest and best-defended of those earthen citadels.

In a quarter of an hour the whole line is in the hands of the Prussians. This correspondent saw no more, his position not giving him a view of the rear of the line. We learn, however, from a Prussian official report, that at eleven o'clock forts No. 7, 8, 9, and the newly-constructed work in front of the latter, were abandoned, and that also No. 10 capitulated. At half-past twelve the two strong works at the back-to-back were evacuated, but the bridges across the Alsen Sound was discovered by the enemy; the other was destroyed by the fire of the Prussian artillery. The enemy was then entirely driven from his staging position and confined to Alsen. The Rolf Krake made an ineffectual attempt to damage the Prussian right flank by throwing shells from the sea, but was driven off by the fire of the Vemmingbund; she had not got the range correctly, and, being hit several times by the Prussian artillery, she went out of action. Her place was taken eleven o'clock. On land the Danish army, when it was driven out of the entire position, had retired behind the line of the Flensburg Förde, leaving several thousand prisoners behind them, with most of their guns and ammunition. The losses were not proportionate. It was still in their power to make a stand in Alsen, they broke up their bridges and crossed over in the night, and made their way to Fünen, where otherwise there is little doubt but Danes and Prussians—the contenders and the former would have found their way across those bridges together, pell-mell, when one single day, and almost one hour, would have decided the fate of the Danish army on either side of the Sta:t. At all events, it was not to be again rigidly contested. The number of killed and wounded left in the hands of the Prussians was nearly equal to the whole force composed of the Danes who could who got over to Alsen, and three or four thousand were made prisoners. Of the 1848 Danes who had originally survived, a large part, from one cause, was comparatively trifling. Their formidable artillery gave them the advantage in the long-range fight. They used their artillery à l'outrance; they simply "took" the Düppel position; they fired, but hardly fought for it.

THE CONFERENCE IN LONDON.

The Conference met on Monday at the official residence of the First Lord of the Treasury, Downing-street. The Plenipotentiaries present were:—England—Earl Russell and Lord Clarendon. France—Prince de la Tour d'Auvergne and Baron Gros. Austria—Count Apponyi and Councillor Biegeleben. Prussia—Count Bernstorff and Privy Councillor Balan. Sweden—Count Manderstrom. Russia—Count Brunnow. Sweden—General Wachtmeister. Denmark—Baron de Quaade. M. Lucien Murat, Minister for Foreign Affairs, Brussels. Chevalier Krieger. The Conference unanimously appointed Earl Russell president, and Mr. Layard, M.P., secretary to the Conference. It is understood that, if only by the fact, when the Conference shall agree on an armistice or come to a definitive determination.

The several parties directly interested in the Conference, such as the Holstein and Schleswig deputies, the Diet of Frankfort, and the popular agitating bodies, have all sent representatives or delegates to London to watch the proceedings.

RUSSIA AND CIRCASSIA.

Advices received from Constantinople state that in a battle between the Circassians and the Russians, on the 1st inst., the former had 2000 and the latter 4500 men.

The Circassians are negotiating with the Turkish Government for permission to settle in Turkey.

All the foreign officers who assisted the Circassians escaped safely to Trapezund. A Turkish steamer was despatched to convey them to Sinope, Samsoun, and Varna.

AMERICA.

General Grant has joined the army of the Potomac. He has issued orders to revoke all furloughs, to send luggage to the rear, and to direct officers to leave their wives behind. Active movements are expected. Continuous rains, however, prevented any immediate movement. It was reported that Lee had sent his main army to Richmond—namely, by Grant across the Rapidan, Smith up the Peninsula, and Burnside via Newport News, and North Carolina—to co-operate upon. The army of the Potomac, it is said, has been largely reinforced. General Meade has moved his head-quarters to Culpeper.

On the 12th inst. the Confederates, under General Forrest, attacked Fort Pillow, a few miles higher up the Mississippi than Memphis; and, after some fighting, they compelled the garrison of 600 men to surrender. It was said that they had massacred the garrison. No certain information had been received, however, relative to this latter part of the affair. The Confederates had also taken Tuscaloosa, but had been shelled out of it again. The Federal expedition up the Red River had defeated a body of Confederates near Cane River, and had taken about 500 prisoners. The Confederate General

Marmaduke, with 3000 men, had made an unsuccessful attack on the Federal General Steele's division near the Little Missouri River. The Federal Arkansaw expedition is advancing towards Texas. It has had two successful skirmishes.

On the morning of the 5th the Confederates made an attempt to blow up the Federal flag-ship Minnesota, off Newport. The Minnesota was seriously damaged, but not sunk.

The Federal Senate has passed a resolution in favour of such an amendment of the Federal Constitution as shall for ever abolish slavery throughout the United States.

The Senate Committee on Foreign Affairs, with the approval of the President and the Cabinet, had decided to recognise the new republican of the House of Representatives relative to French operations in Mexico.

A scene has occurred in the Federal House of Representatives. Mr. Long, of Ohio, spoke in favour of peace, advocating the immediate recognition of the Southern Confederacy. Next day Speaker Colfax descended from the chair and moved Mr. Long's expulsion for treason. Mr. Harris, of Maryland, defended Mr. Long, and prayed that the South might never be conquered; whereupon Mr. Washburne, of Illinois, moved the expulsion of Mr. Harris. Eighty-seven were in favour and fifty-eight against the latter motion; but, there not being a majority of two thirds, the motion was lost. A vote of censure on Mr. Harris was immediately afterwards carried, on the motion of Schenck, Speaker-elect, and Mr. Harris left the House. The expulsion of Mr. Long was still under discussion. Several Democratic members have declared that they endorsed Mr. Long's opinions.

There has been almost a panic in the money market. Gold rose to 185, but afterwards declined and closed at 179½.

CHINA AND JAPAN.

In China Major Gordon has taken the field and captured a place called Yehsing. He had also effected a junction with the Futai's troops, and the combined forces were acting together against the rebels. The Taeping cause, for the moment, looked better, the siege of Nankin notwithstanding, and at all events the rebels do not seem to have beaten off the Imperialists. In the end, however, little doubt is entertained but that the combined forces of the Imperialists and foreign contingents would be more than a match for them.

There is little news from Japan. The Tycoon is generally considered Government is only temporising with foreigners, as they have lately received a supply of great guns from Macao, and the Ambassadors to Europe have taken large sums to purchase munitions of war.

GARIBALDI'S DEPARTURE.

The last day of Garibaldi in London (yesterday week) was spent in visits to various distinguished personages. The Duchess of Sutherland, the American Consul, where several ladies and gentlemen were presented to him; afterwards he drove to Gunnersbury, the Earl of Shaftesbury's, and then he went to Stafford House, where he's Royal Highness the Prince of Wales, and some of the Princesses, were waiting to receive him, and to have an interview with him and remained with him some time.

Garibaldi's visit to the Queen at Windsor on Saturday last was brief.

I offer my heartfelt gratitude and thanks to the English nation and their Government for the reception I have met with in this free land.

I came here with the sole object of making myself known to their sympathy for me and for my country, and this my first object is accomplished.

I have desired to be altogether at the disposition of my English friends, and to go to every place which might be desirable for me to visit, but I have now fulfil all these engagements of my heart.

If I have caused some inconvenience or disappointment to many friends I ask their pardon; but I cannot draw the line between where I could and where I could not go, and therefore for the present those are my thanks and my farewell.

Still I hope, perhaps at no distant time, to return to see my friends in the domestic life of my island. I do not endeavour to express my gratitude for the generous people of this country, which, with deep regret, I feel that I cannot now fulfil.

G. GARIBALDI.

26, Princes-gate, London, April 22.

On Friday afternoon the General drove to Cliefden, in Berkshire, the residence of the Duke of Sutherland. The grounds were all planted a crock-tree which had been presented to her Grace by the Duke of Buccleuch. At an early hour on Saturday the General left, moving about the grounds. About half-past eleven the General, accompanied by the Duchess of Sutherland, arrived at the Great Western Hotel, Paddington, where he was received by the Duke of Argyll, left Cliefden House in a carriage and four and drove to Windsor, where it was suspected that Prince and the Flemish Farm, the General taking a lively interest in both. A select party was entertained at Cliefden House in the afternoon, the company being invited to meet the Duke to luncheon. After which the same scene friends formed a bosting party on the Thames.

On Monday morning Garibaldi left Cliefden by road, after paying a brief visit to Eton College, took the train at Slough. At Didcot, Bath, and Bridgewater addresses were presented him. About half-past five o'clock he arrived at Weymouth, went on board the Edgar (Admiral Thomas Symonds), and steamed out of the Portland Roads. After a stay of a couple of hours he landed again, took train, and proceeded to Plymouth. The General was received at the station by a guard with the greatest enthusiasm. After passing the night at Penquite, Colonel Peard's residence, Garibaldi left for Plymouth, where several addresses. In his replies he said that England had the good wishes of all the nationalities of Europe, because she had no wish to take the property of others, and because she had always sympathised with the Italian Islands as proof of this.

On Wednesday Garibaldi went on board the Duke of Sutherland's yacht, the Undine, at Fowey, and, in company with the Duke and Duchess, sailed for Cowes, and arrived at Southampton. He was, however, driven by stress of weather back to St. Mawes Bay, which he left on the following day. At Exeter, on the way, he was again addressed a farewell to the English people (in addition to the one given above), in which he highly praised their institutions, and intimated that it is his earnest desire that Italy should imitate so glorious a copy on such continent. At the same time he frankly confesses that Italy will never be at rest till her two oppressors be removed. England is invited to help in this work, and in the course of time he who now writes will be seen on the soil of Italy, and we are assured that we shall have a powerful ally in France when that day arrives.

A graceful farewell to the pieces accompanies this epistle.

GARIBALDI AT THE GUILDHALL AND GUILDHALL.

Continuing the narrative of our Parliamentary Sketch, a visit to London, we present, on opposite pages of this Number, two Engravings, which depict respectively the scene in the Guildhall, when Garibaldi he went there for the second time, on the Monday, and the scene at Guildhall on the Tuesday, when he received the freedom of the city of London.

In the first of these illustrations we see the dais erected in front of the great orchestra, in the north transept, where Garibaldi seated while the various deputations hand to him their written addresses as they came forward in succession. In the rear of the deputation of Englishmen who served as volunteers in Garibaldi's army of 1859 in Tuscany, and who have also in our representation of the scene.

Our second Engraving shows the interior of the Council Chamber at Guildhall, with the assembled aldermen and common councilmen and the Lord Mayor, when Garibaldi received the box, containing his freedom of the City, from the hands of the City Chamberlain, Mr. Benjamin Scott.

The eldest son of the rich Elector of Hesse has just been released from prison, after almost a year's confinement for debt.

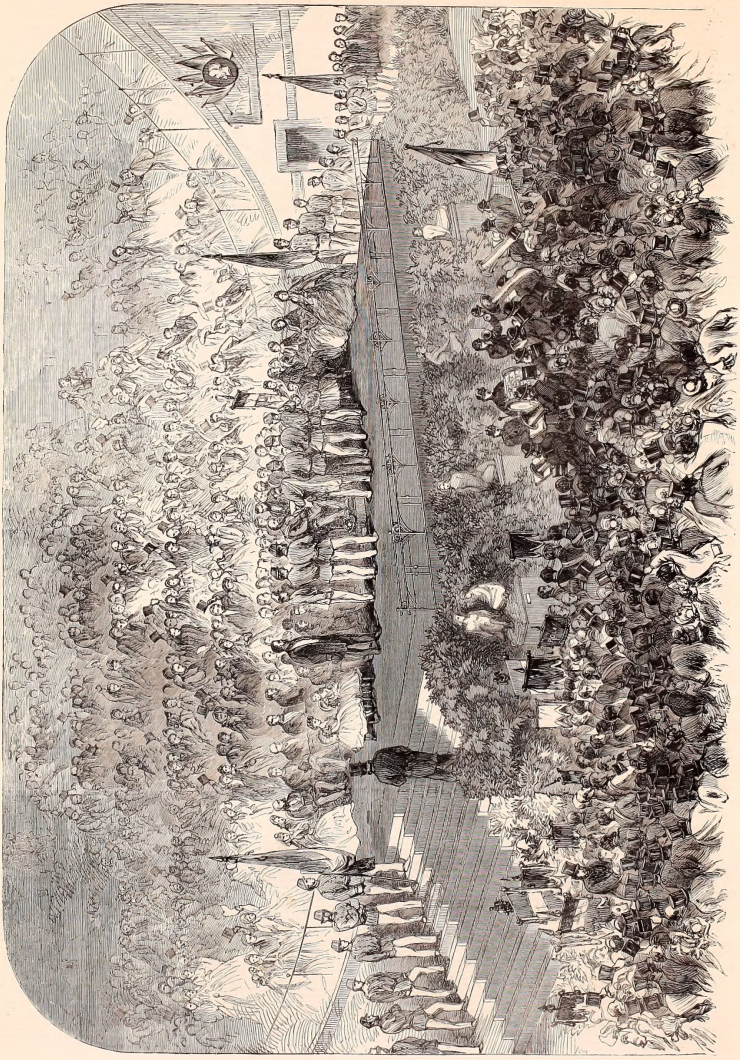
The Irishmen of California have sent a brick of gold and several bricks of silver to the Fenian fair at Chicago.

Advices from Athens state that the Canaris Ministry had resigned. It was stated that a new Ministry would be formed by M. Bulieis.

The Duke of Saxe-Coburg-Gotha, under the name of Count Heine Viedes, has just published a reply to the speech made by the Pope of Blasphemy on the question of the duchies.

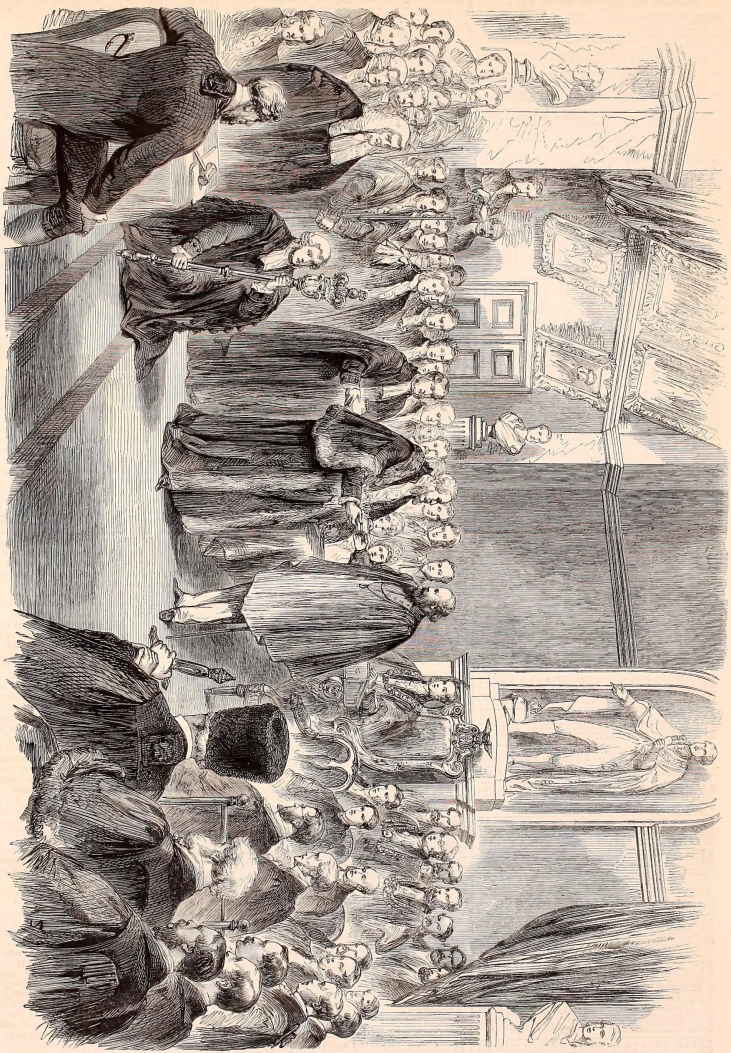
METROPOLITAN NEWS.

The annual meeting of the friends of the Cancer Hospital, at Brompton, was held yesterday week. During the past year 741 patients had been admitted, and there had been 640 outdoor patients. The chairman drew a gloomy picture of the financial condition of the charity. "How had no balance in their bankers; they had that day borrowed £100; and there was still due to Dr. Walker Meinhardt the usual honorarium.



The Metropolitan Board of Works met on Wednesday, in committee, to consider a proposal of Mr. George Gray, that the new establishment should be put under their management. The terms were, that the present supply of fire-escapes should be handed over to them free of charge, that the Government would contribute a certain sum, and that the fire-insurance companies should be bear fifty per cent of the expense provided the aggregate sum demanded of them did not exceed £10,000. An amendment was proposed and carried that the Metropolitan fire-insurance companies should not be limited by any maximum sum, and with this amendment the proposal was agreed to, and subsequently confirmed.

Last week the births of 2000 children—1033 boys and 967 girls—were registered in London. The average number of births in the years 1854-63 the average number (corrected) was 2932.—The deaths in London, which were about 1200 in the first week in January, had gradually declined to 1084 last week. The average number of deaths in the eleventh week in January, in the years 1854-63, was 1465. The deaths registered last week, from which the mortality declined from 29 and 30 in the two preceding weeks to 26 last week, corresponded to an annual rate of 1.4 per 1000 persons living. Fifteen deaths were referred to "Violence," of which 5 were from fractures and bruises, 4 from burns and scalds, 3 from drowning, and 3 from other causes. Scarlatina was returned in fifty cases; diphtheria in fourteen; whooping-cough in fifty-one; fever in sixty-two; and diarrhœa in 30. In the Westminster-bridge-road, the other in St. Pancras Workhouse—died at the age of ninety-five.



On Saturday evening, after the conclusion of the Shakspeare ceremonial, at which the Lord Mayor presided, he had an interview with the Prince of Wales, at Marlborough House, when the Prince presented to his Lordship a silver gilt vase, which had been subscribed for by the Lord Mayor, Aldermen, and Common Council of the City of London, as a mark of their esteem for his Royal Highness's conduct as a guest during his visit to the City of London. In the evening a great banquet took place at the Freemasons' Hall.

The opening of the new Patent Office Library, in the south wing of the collections of the British Museum and the Museum of Patents at South Kensington will be performed by the Prince of Wales on Friday next. A public competition was invited in February last by the Chief Commissioner of Works, for the best design for the new Patent Office Library, to cost not more than £40,000, £250, and £150. The instructions are to provide a plan for the galleries and the reading-room, and the latter is to be planned by the Government last year; but at the same time to show how buildings for the Natural History Museum, the Patent Office Museum, and the Library of the British of this kind may be carried out hereafter. The number of designs is thirty-two in all, many of them consisting of eight or ten sheets of plans, elevations, and sections. The competitors have been invited by the Office of Works to act as a commission to examine the designs and award the premiums. The commissioners are Professor Cockerell, R.A., Mr. Fergusson, Mr. Roberts, R.A., and Mr. Penrethorne. These gentlemen entered on their somewhat difficult duties on Monday last, and, after a consultation of some hours, they reduced the number of designs from thirty-two to seven. They then adjourned to Wednesday, when the premiums were awarded.

The annual general meeting of the Art-Union of London took place on Tuesday, in the Guildhall, the object of which at the council are to distribute the amount subscribed for the purchase of works of art—Lord Ranelagh presided. The report, which was unanimously adopted, stated that the number of subscribers for the present year was 3,000, and that the council will be entitled to receive a fine line engraving, by Lumb Stocks, A.R.A., after Mr. W. P. Frith, R.A., and a set of etchings, by Mr. Frith, Mr. Herbert, Mr. Horsley, R.A., and the retirement of J. B. Jones, Esq., left three vacancies in the council, which were filled up by the election of Mr. Alderman Cubitt, M.P., Mr. Beauchamp Walker, and Mr. Lancaster.—The Rev. Sir Thomas Hesketh was the sum of £41,140, and by its progressive accumulation, it will place the Art-Union upon a permanent footing. Mr. Ayrton, M.P., moved a vote of thanks to the retirement of Mr. Frith, on the ground that the Art-Union of London had been established for the purpose of encouraging the fine arts, and that the object being to bring them as much into communication as possible with the people, it was desirable that they should be kept in the Crystal Palace.—Mr. Lancaster, in seconding the motion, said that the Art-Union of London was the only institution in the metropolis, the chief

GARIBALDI RECEIVING ADDRESSES AT THE CRYSTAL PALACE.—SEE PRECEDING PAGE.

PRESENTATION OF THE FREEDOM OF THE CORPORATION OF LONDON TO GARIBALDI AT GUILDHALL.—SEE PAGE 406.

CALENDAR FOR THE WEEK ENDING MAY 7.

SUNDAY, May 1.—Egyptian Sunday. St. Philip and St. James, Apostles. Prince Arthur born, 1850. The International Exhibitions at London, 1862 and 1862.

MONDAY, May 2.—Hancock defeated at Chancellorsville; the Confederate General Stonewall Jackson mortally wounded, 1863. Royal Academy Exhibition opens, 1863.

TUESDAY, 3.—Invention (or finding) of the Cross by the Empress St. Helena, 326. Archbishop Sharp assassinated by the Covenanters under Balfour of Burley, 1679.

WEDNESDAY, 4.—Battle of Tewkesbury; the Lancastrians totally defeated, and Prince Edward murdered, 1471. Scringapatam taken by storm, and Tippoo Saib killed, 1799.

THURSDAY, 5.—Ascension Day. Holy Thursday. Death of Napoleon I. at St. Helena, 1821. Commencement of the New Irish Roman Catholic University, 1854.

FRIDAY, 6.—John the Evangelist ante Portam Latinam. Napoleon Bonaparte made Consul for Life, 1802. New Moon, 9h. 14m. a.m.

SATURDAY, 7.—Death of Socrates (day assigned), 399 B.C.

TIMES OF HIGH WATER AT LONDON BRIDGE,

FOR THE WEEK ENDING MAY 7, 1864.

Sunday.	Monday.	Tuesday.	Wednesday.	Thursday.	Friday.	Saturday.
H. M.	H. M.	H. M.	H. M.	H. M.	H. M.	H. M.
5 31	6 10	6 49	7 28	8 7	8 46	9 25
5 56	6 35	7 14	7 53	8 32	9 11	9 50

THE WEATHER.

RESULTS OF METEOROLOGICAL OBSERVATIONS AT THE OBSERVATORY OF THE BRITISH ASSOCIATION.

Lat. 51° 30′ 6″ N.; Long. 0° 10′ 0″ W.; Height above sea, 24 feet.

DAY	DAILY MEANS OF				THERMOMETER.		WIND.		RAIN in 24 hours, ending 10 A.M.
	Barometer corrected.	Dew Point.	Rain.	Ozone.	Highest.	Lowest.	General Direction.	Horary Velocity.
	Inches.	Deg.	Inches.	0–15.	Deg.	Deg.		Miles.	Inches.
(20)	29·938	42·7	0·0·0	·46	1	39·3	70·0	S.S.E.	·314 ·009
(21)	29·881	43·0	0·0·0	·53	1	39·2	70·0	S.S.E.	·315 ·003
(22)	29·761	43·3	0·0·0	·61	1	42·2	61·5	S.S.W.	·320 ·000
(23)	29·903	37·5	0·0·0	·63	1	30·2	62·0	N.E.	·320 ·000
(24)	30·118	35·2	·274	·71	1	29·0	53·9	E.	·317 ·000
(25)	30·128	41·1	·000	·71	1	34·0	57·2	ENE. to E.	·317 ·000
(26)	30·141	47·8	12·7	·71	10	41·3	54·9	NE. to NNE.	·178 ·000

The following are the readings of the corresponding days for the above days, in order, at half-past nine a.m.:—

Barometer (in inches corrected)	29·936	29·878	29·760	29·902	30·116	30·127	30·140	30·170	30·177
Temperature of Air	44·9°	42·7°	44·9°	36·9°	43·4°	49·8°	52·4°	49·8°	50·4°
Temperature of Evaporation	42·7°	42·3°	43·3°	35·8°	41·3°	47·3°	49·8°	48·2°	48·2°
Direction of Wind	S.S.E.	S.S.E.	S.S.W.	N.E.	E.	ENE.	E.	NE.	NNE.

THEATRE ROYAL, DRURY-LANE.—Managers, MESSRS. E. FALCONER and H. CHATTERTON.—MONDAY, and during the Season of Shakespeare's Plays, the Play will be performed, and the Performances conducted in the same manner as hitherto adopted by the present and by the public generally to be one of the most efficient representations of the Shakespearian Drama that has been witnessed for many years. MONDAY, May 2, will be produced, for the first time, a new and original Play, in five acts, entitled WOMAN'S WORTH, by Walter Montgomery. Walter Lacy (his first appearance), Mr. Phelps, Mr. Barrett, Mr. Ryder, Mr. Graham, Mr. Fredericks, Mr. Meagher, Mr. Ray, Mr. Cathcart, Mr. Bigwood, Mr. Hicks, Mr. Chippendale, Mr. Rogers, Mr. Clarke, Mr. Coe, Miss Sally Marston, Miss Heath, Miss Fanny Huddart, Miss Rose Leclercq, and Miss Carlotta Leclercq. After which, at Seven o'clock, a Shakespearian Play.

THEATRE ROYAL, ST. JAMES'S.—Under the Management of MISS HERBERT.—MONDAY EVENING, MAY 2, and every evening this week a new Farce with a sensation, by Leicester Buckingham, entitled, for the first time, THE MAN WITH THE BLACK BAG. Characters by Mr. Compton, Mr. Rogers, Mr. Rouse, Mr. Addison, Mr. Thomas, Mr. Bedford, Mr. Stephens, Mr. Bennett, Mr. Meagher, Mrs. Stephens, Miss Herbert, Miss Bessie Cleaver, and Miss Fanny Addison. To conclude with OUT OF DOOR; or, MUSIC—Mr. Charles Matthews and Mr. Frank Matthews. To conclude with UNDER THE GOSH.

NEW THEATRE ROYAL, ADELPHI.—On MONDAY and TUESDAY, May 2 and 3, will be performed, for the last Eight, LEAH—Miss Heenan. THE DANCE SISTERS—Miss Poole and Miss Rosina Wright. To conclude with ARIA BELLE—Messrs. J. F. Toole and Wm. Weston will appear in her great impersonation of the Servant-Maid with further notice.

MONDAY POPULAR CONCERTS, ST. JAMES'S HALL.—Mr. Benedict will conduct the Concert on MONDAY EVENING, May 2, when Mozart's Quartet in G major, Beethoven's Quartet in F minor, Spohr's Quartet in B minor, for flageolets, and Mendelssohn's Quartet in E flat, Op. 12, will be performed by Messrs. Sainton, Ries, Hill, and Piatti. Vocalist—Mr. Santley. Pianoforte—Miss Arabella Goddard. Violin, Signor Sivori; violoncello, Signor Piatti. Conductor, Mr. Benedict. Stalls, 3s.; Admission, 1s. Tickets at Chappell and Co.'s, 50, New Bond-street.

MR. SIMS REEVES will sing ADELAIDA at the MONDAY POPULAR CONCERTS, May 9, and ADELAIDA and THE YOUTH AND THE MAIDEN at the Concert of Mr. BENEDICT and Mr. SIMS REEVES, on MONDAY EVENING, MAY 9. Violin, Signor Sivori; Violoncello, Signor Piatti. Conductor, Mr. Benedict. Stalls, 3s.; Admission, 1s. Tickets and Programmes at Chappell and Co.'s, 50, New Bond-street.

QUEEN'S CONCERT-ROOMS.—HERR WILLEM CONINEN, MATINEE MUSICALE at the above Rooms, on WEDNESDAY, MAY 4, at Three o'clock. Vocalists—Madame Rudersdorff, Miss Poole, Mr. Henry Haigh, and Herr Wilhelm Ganz. Pianoforte, Herr Willem Coninen. Violoncello, Signor Piatti. Family, for Term, six guineas. Single Tickets, 7s.; of Herr Conine, and of Ewer and Co., 390, Strand.

MR. DRACON'S SECOND MATINÉE of CLASSICAL MUSIC will take place in the QUEEN'S CONCERT-ROOMS, Hanover-square, on MONDAY, MAY 2, commencing at three o'clock. Full particulars will be duly announced. Tickets, Family, for Term, six guineas; Single Tickets, 7s.; of Mr. Dracon, 3, Bruton-street; and of Ewer and Co., 390, Strand.

MESSRS. W. H. HOLMES and CHARLES HAMMOND'S SECOND PIANOFORTE and MISCELLANEOUS CONCERT, at the ROYAL BOTANIC SOCIETY'S GARDENS, Regent's-park, on TUESDAY EVENING, May 3, at Eight o'clock. Tickets (all reserved) to be had of Mr. W. H. Holmes, 30, and Mr. G. W. Hammond, 2, Gloucester-place, Hyde-park.

HERR OBERTHÜR'S MATINÉE MUSICALE will take place at the QUEEN'S CONCERT-ROOMS, Hanover-square, on MONDAY, MAY 2. Ribas, Lemmens-Sherrington, Mella, Hyde, Parker, Regondi, Oberthür, and Chatterton. Tickets, Family, for Term, six guineas; Single Tickets, 7s. 6d. A Few of Herr Oberthür's Pupils, and Mr. Hector Berlioz', Tickets-Stevens, Westbourne Park, W.

MR. and MRS. GERMAN REED, with MR. JOHN PARRY, will appear Every Evening (except Saturday) at Eight, and Wednesday and Saturday Afternoons at Three, in THE FIRST PERFORMANCE OF THE ENTIRE NEW AND ROSEBERY-LIFFIFE STEVENS PARTY, by Mr. John Parry.—St. James's Hall, Piccadilly.

JESSY LEA.—Continued Success, OPERA DI CAMERA. Company by G. A. Matthews, Esq. Mrs. Weiss, Mr. Weiss, Mr. Wallis, Mr. Sala Wilkinson, and Miss Poole. EVERY TUESDAY MORNING at Half-past Eleven, and EVERY SATURDAY AFTERNOON at Three, at WILLIS'S ROOMS.

MR. W. S. WOODIN'S ELOPEMENT EXTRAORDINARY and SUPPOSITIONS BOX—entirely NEW ENTERTAINMENT, EVERY EVENING (except Saturday) at Eight, and Wednesday and Saturday Afternoons at Three, at the ROYAL ADELAIDE GALLERY, Adelaide-street, Strand, opposite the Lowther Arcade. Stalls, 3s.; Area, 2s.; Amphitheatre, 1s.; Private Boxes, £1 1s. A Few of the Stalls may be had at the Box-office of the Gallery, 9 to 5. Prices of Admission as usual.

MR. ARTHUR SKETCHLEY will APPEAR at the ROYAL ADELAIDE GALLERY, in his New Entertainments, entitled PARIS, and SKETCHES FROM LIFE, EVERY EVENING (except Saturday) at Eight, and Wednesday and Saturday Afternoons at Three. Stalls, 3s.; Area, 2s.; Amphitheatre, 1s. The Box-office at the Hall opens between the hours of Eleven and Five daily.

MR. KENNEDY'S SONGS of SCOTLAND.—EVERY MONDAY, at Eight, MORNING CONCERTS, Instrumental and Vocal, Ancient and Modern, Popular, and Australian Songs. Second Season. Last, appearance of the celebrated Mr. Wilson. Admission, Fauteuils, 3s.; Balcony, 2s.; Area, 1s. Doors open at Seven. NOT IN LONDON ROUND on the SATURDAYS in MAY. On WEDNESDAY EVENING, MAY 4, Mr. Kennedy will give his Entertainment as the HERE AND THERE MAN. ST. JAMES'S HALL.

MDME. TUSSAUD'S HISTORICAL GALLERY, Established 40 years, at the BAZAAR, BAKER-STREET, PORTMAN-SQUARE.—Recent Additions—Arthur Orton of BUENOS AYRES, and his QUEEN, HENRY VI., and his QUEEN, and the CHRISTENING of PRINCE ARTHUR, and a Model of the Interior of the Temple of Jerusalem. Open from 1 to 5 and 7 to 10. Admission, 1s.; Extra Rooms, 6d.

CRYSTAL PALACE.—The GUINEA SEASON TICKET, Children, Half a Guinea. See great Advertisement for list of some of the special Announcements of the coming season.

CRYSTAL PALACE.—Arrangements for the Week ending Saturday, MAY.—Open from Ten till Dusk. Monday to Friday, One Shilling. Saturday, Half-a-Crown. Guinea Season Tickets admit to all days except before the Day's Admission on the Day. MONDAY, Sacred Tickets Free, now ready.

The New Guinea Season Ticket, available until MAY 1, 1865. The Tickets admit free to the Concerts of Sacred Music, to the Fine Arts Courts, to the Shakespeare Court, including the Illustrations by various Artists, to the Handel Orchestra, to the Monthly Concerts, and to all occasional Concerts and Entertainments given during the year. Sold at the Palace; at No. 2, Regent-Quadrant, at the usual Agents' Offices; and at Messrs. Cramer, Beale, and Co.'s, 201, Regent-street; Messrs. Keith, Prowse, and Co.'s, 48, Cheapside; and Messrs. Austin's, 154, New Bond-street.

THE SHAKSPERE GALLERY, containing the Shakspere Court, enriched by illustrations by various Artists, and the Handel Orchestra, are now open daily. Monthly sacred music, many editions of Shakspere's works, paintings, busts, &c., with the beautiful sculptures and decorations of the Palace, for One Shilling. Saturday, Half-a-Crown. Guinea Season Tickets admit. Open from Ten till Dusk. Illustrations of SHAKSPERE'S PLAYS, by various Artists, and SHAKSPERE'S PLAYS at SHAKSPERE'S HOUSE at Stratford, that it may be compared with the reproduction in the Crystal Palace.

SHAKSPERE HOUSE, COURT, and MONUMENT at the CRYSTAL PALACE, should be seen by every one.

QUEEN'S CONCERT ROOMS, Hanover-square, has the honour to announce that she will give MR. W. H. HOLMES A CONCERT on FRIDAY, MAY 13, 1864,
under the following distinguished Patronage,—
The Baroness Burdett-Coutts.

The Duchess of SUTHERLAND.

The Duchess of Sutherland.	The Lady Dunsany.	Lady Woodford.
The Duchess of Argyll.	The Lady Ely.	The Countess of Montgomery.
The Duchess of Athole.	The Lady Feilden.	Lady Pollock.
The Marchioness of Ailesbury.	The Lady Jane Hopton.	The Lady Rayleigh.
The Marchioness of Clanricarde.	The Lady Lyell.	The Lady Stanley.
The Countess of Aberdeen.	The Lady Lyttelton.	The Lady Wrottesley.
The Countess of Ashburnham.	The Lady Caroline Neville.	Mrs. Robert Glasgow.
The Countess of Caithness.	The Lady Ruthven.	Mrs. Hargreaves.
The Lady Dorothy Lascelles.	The Lady Mary Wood.	Mrs. Beaumont.
The Lady Ashburton.	The Lady Wynford.	Mrs. Bass.
The Lady Arthur Lennox.	Miss Coutts.	Mrs. Holmes.

Miss Coutts will be assisted by the following eminent artists:
Miss Arabella Goddard, Pianoforte. Mr. Lazarus, Clarinet. Mr. Hill, Violoncello.
Conductors—Signor Arditi, Mr. George Loder, Mr. Emile Berger, and Mr. Benedict.
Tickets to be obtained of Messrs. Cramer, Wood, and Co.; Messrs. Chappell and Co.; Messrs. Keith, Prowse, and Co.; Messrs. Austin; Messrs. Ewer and Co.; Messrs. Olivier and Co.; and of Mr. Austin's Ticket Office; and of Messrs. Mason, Davison, and Co., 244, Regent-street.

MUSICAL UNION.—TUESDAY, MAY 3. Half-past Three. M. SIVORI will make his first appearance this season. Quartets—Haydn, in E flat; Mozart, in C; Beethoven, in F minor (Posthumous). Sonatas; Mendelssohn Pianoforte, with Moscheles; Beethoven, violin, with Sivori. Pianoforte, Moscheles. Violin, Sivori. Violoncello, Piatti. Pianoforte, impromptu, Arthur Sivori. Trios, Weiss, and Jaconard (from Paris), Gautier, and Pratten. Vocalist, Madame Rudersdorff. Conductor, Mr. Ella. Subscription for the Season, £5 5s.; Single Tickets, 10s. 6d. Stalls at Chappell and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

ATOMMAS'S HARP RECITAL, consisting entirely of his own COMPOSITIONS, at the HANOVER-ROOMS, Hanover-square, on THURSDAY, May 5, at Three o'clock. Programmes contain selections by Beethoven, Chopin, Handel, and Mendelssohn, and several of his own compositions, including his new Fantasia.

MR. MACREADY will give DRAMATIC RECITALS at the ST. JAMES'S THEATRE, on Wednesday afternoons, May 4, 11, 18, 25, and 29, and Morning of the 30th. Stalls 5s.; Uncovered Seats, 2s. 6d.; Admission, 1s. Tickets at the Box-office of the Theatre, and at Messrs. Keith, Prowse, and Co.'s, 48, Cheapside; Mitchell's Royal Library, Bruton-street; Austin's, 154, New Bond-street; and other Musicsellers and Librarians.

EGYPTIAN HALL, Piccadilly.—NOW ON VIEW, SELOUS'S GRAND PICTURE of THE CRUCIFIXION (16 ft. by 10 ft.), containing 500 figures, the size of nature, painted expressly for the Exhibition. Also, the Original Sketches for the Picture, and the scenery round about. Mr. John Bowdler's Descriptive Lecture at Three, Four, and Five o'clock. Admission, 1s.

EGYPTIAN HALL, Piccadilly.—NOW ON VIEW, CARL HAAG'S NEWLY PAINTED ORIGINAL DIORAMAS of JERUSALEM, BETHLEHEM, and the SCENE of the CRUCIFIXION. Open Daily.

INSTITUTE OF PAINTERS IN WATER COLOURS.—On VIEW DAILY, from Nine till Dusk, at the GALLERY, 53, PALL-MALL (near St. James's Palace). Daily from Nine till Dusk. Admission, 1s.; Catalogue, 6d. GEORGE MUTLOW, Secretary.

SOCIETY OF PAINTERS IN WATER COLOURS.—The SIXTEENTH ANNUAL EXHIBITION is now open at their Gallery, 5, Pall-mall East, from Nine till Dusk. Admission, 1s. Catalogue, 6d. JOHN LINNELL, Secretary.

ROYAL NATIONAL GALLERY, 29, Great George-street, Westminster.—During the SHAKSPEARE CELEBRATION this GALLERY, containing the Illustrations of Shakspere, will be open Daily, from Ten till Dusk. Admission between the Hours of Ten and Four, 1s. Ryder, GEORGE SMART, Secretary and Keeper.

SMART'S SOLE WRITING INSTITUTION, corner of Bedford-row, Holborn, and 3, Percy-street, Tottenham-court-road. Persons of all ages received (privately) and taught as any time suiting their own convenience. Terms, one guinea per month. Testimonials from Professors Wheatstone, Faraday, Sir Henry Ellis, Baroness Rothschild, Baroness de Lotzbeck, private Secretary to the Emperor of the French, Mr. Bidder, Mr. Stephenson, Mr. Brunel, Mr. Hawkshaw, Mr. Rendel, Mr. Locke, Mr. Brassey, Mr. Peto, Mr. Betts, Mr. Jay, Mr. Hudson, Mr. Hudson, Jun., Mr. Cubitt, Mr. Hemans, Mr. Fowler, Mr. Hawes, Mr. Hall, Mr. Hall, Jun., Mr. Hall, Jun., Mr. Hall, Jun., affair to have been muzzled out. As our representative in Paris is rather a gracious ceremony than an entity, we do not see who can object to his Excellency the Earl of Malmesbury.

The difficulty, as we infer from the programme to which we allude, seems to have arisen in regard to the chancellorship. We admit that the question was grave. Comparisons are—similitudes; but people will make them. We have now, under the Palmerston Government, a Chancellor of first-rate abilities and a resolute reformer. He is utterly prepared to go with the profession, because he will not only reform, but will do so in the most unpleasant way. He treads on professional corns and scoffs at professional cant. He has done several remarkable things, and means to do more. To appoint as his successor such a man as Lord Chelmsford, a good-natured, fluent, pleasant gentleman, with a lively sense of the merits of his own friends, would be to challenge comparison. Yet the law claims on his part that the Lord Chancellor shall be a veteran judge who will retire and make room for Lord Chelmsford, and then Sir Hugh Cairns, who has a good reputation (nothing succeeds like success), may go up. This is the third important announcement, and the least satisfactory. The Bench has some good men on it, but has also some weak men, who are afraid to execute the criminal law with vigour, and whose conception of law is held in the profession to be very crude law indeed. Every new appointment ought to be made on professional grounds; and politics ought not, just now, to have a finger in that pie. Why not assign Lord Chelmsford the office of Ambassador to the Confederate States of America? He believes in them very heartily, and they would like a lord. The objection that they are not recognised is unimportant. The Conservatives are not yet in office.

This brings us to the point which we passed over, and to which we promised to recur. There is one thing which must be omitted if this programme is to be of any avail. Lord Palmerston must make the announcement which we have suggested, and must not say instead, "We shall take the earliest opportunity of appealing to the country." If these words are used instead of the others we shall not want the programme for a very long time, as Lord Palmerston will obtain a considerable majority, and all the little electioneering cobwebs will have to be spun over again. Meantime, it is courteous to return thanks for any information, whether it be or be not immediately useful.

THE COURT.

The Queen continues at Osborne, in the enjoyment of good health. Yesterday (Saturday) her Majesty walked out in the flower garden in the grounds adjacent to Osborne House. Princess Helena, attended by the Hon. Caroline Cochrane, the Rev. A. Connor, and Colonel the Major Cowell and Lieutenant Haig, arrived at Osborne.

On Saturday last the Queen, accompanied by Princess Helena and attended by Viscountess Jocelyn and Major-General Seymour, drove out. Yesterday (Sunday) Princess Helena, attended by the Hon. Caroline Cochrane, the Judge-Advocate-General had an audience of her Majesty. The Earl of Clarendon arrived at Osborne.

On Sunday the Queen and Prince Alfred, Princess Helena, and Princess Louise took an extended Divine service, performed at Osborne by the Rev. G. Prothero.

On Monday the Queen walked and drove in the grounds of Osborne. Later in the day her Majesty drove out with Princess Helena and Princess Louise sole out. This was the twenty-first anniversary of the birth-day of Princess Louise of Hesse. The Earl of Clarendon left Osborne.

On Tuesday the Queen, accompanied by Prince Alfred, Princess Helena, and Princess Louise, walked in the grounds. Lord Leopold drove out. Subsequently her Majesty held a Council, which was attended by the Duke of Somerset, Earl Granville, Lord Wodehouse, Sir Stanley of Alderley, Mr. A. Helps, Clerk of the Council, attended. The Right Hon. Sir James F. Wilde, Q.C., and the Right Hon. Henry Austin Bruce, M.P., were sworn into the Privy Council, and took their respective places at the board accordingly. After the Council the Ministers returned to town. Prince Arthur, attended by Major Cowell and Lieutenant Haig, left for London, en route for the Continent.

THE PRINCE AND PRINCESS OF WALES.

The Prince and Princess of Wales will leave Sandringham Houses on Monday next for Marlborough House.

On Saturday last the Prince drove to the Wolferton station and met the Duke of Cambridge, who arrived on a visit to their Royal Highnesses. Subsequently the Prince and the Duke rode out.

On Sunday the Prince and Princess and the Duke of Cambridge attended Divine service at Sandringham Church. The Rev. C. D. Moxon and the Bishop of Oxford officiated.

On Monday the Prince and Princess, accompanied by the Duke of Cambridge, the Bishop of Oxford, and Mrs. Knollys, and attended by the Hon. Mrs. C. Grey, Lieutenant-Colonel Keppel, Major Grey, Colonel Clifton, Mr. Fisher, Mr. Wood, and Mr. Holman, drove to Wolferton, returning to Sandringham House to dinner.

On Tuesday the Prince, accompanied by the Duke of Cambridge, and attended by Lieutenant-Colonel Grey and Mr. Knollys, left Sandringham at half-past ten o'clock and proceeded to Newmarket, returning to Sandringham in the evening. The Bishop of Oxford left Sandringham House for Ely.

Their Royal Highnesses will visit the University of Cambridge on the 2nd of June and leave on the 5th.

PRINCE ALFRED.

His Royal Highness Prince Alfred, attended by Major Cowell and Lieutenant Haig, left Osborne on Tuesday for London on his way to Dover, en route for the Continent. Prince Alfred will make short visits to Brussels, Hanover, Berlin, Coburg, and Darmstadt, and will then proceed to Marseilles to join her Majesty's ship Euryalus.

Lieutenant Haig, of the Royal Engineers, has been appointed by her Majesty to be in attendance on Prince Arthur.

PRINCE ARTHUR.

His Royal Highness Prince Arthur, attended by Major Elphinstone, left the Bungay Lodge, Blackheath, on Tuesday for Dover, and was present at a review of the troops in garrison. The batteries of Royal Horse Artillery, the Field Batteries, Foot Artillery, and the Woolwich division of Royal Marines Light Infantry, assembled on Woolwich common, at ten o'clock. Prince Arthur rode on the ground at half-past ten, and was received by the usual salute. The troops having been inspected, the evolutions of a field-day and sham fight were performed in an excellent manner. The proceedings terminated at one o'clock. The Prince subsequently visited the Royal Artillery Institution and other departments of the garrison, after which his Royal Highness returned to Blackheath.

The ex-Queen Marie Amelie will leave Claremont on Monday for Rieder's Victoria Hotel, St. Leonards-on-Sea, for a month, and the Duke and Duchess de Chartres will arrive next at the same hotel on Wednesday.

The Duchess of Grafton has left town for Paris.

The Marquis of Clanricarde and Lord Dunkellin have left town for Normandy.

The Earl and Countess of Bective have arrived at their residence in Grafton-street from Underley Hall, Westmorland.

Earl and Countess Granard have arrived at the Priory, Roehampton, from Ireland for the season.

Frances Countess of Albemarle and Colonel the Hon. Perpetua Coke arrived in town last Saturday from Torquay for the season.

The Earl of Wilton, and Viscount Grey de Wilton, and Viscount Elmpton have left town for Newmarket.

Field-Marshal Viscount Combermere and Viscountess Combermere will arrive in town the second week in May.

Viscount and Viscountess Strathallan have arrived in Devonshire, from Strathallan Castle, Perthshire, for the season.

Viscount and Viscountess Jocelyn have arrived in town, from Temple House, Maidenhead, for the season.

Viscount Castlereagh has left town for Newmarket.

The marriage of Viscount Powerscourt, eldest son of the Marchioness of Londonderry, with Lady Julia Coke, eldest daughter of the Earl and Countess of Leicester, will be celebrated at St. George's, Hanover-square.

PARLIAMENTARY AND POLITICAL ENTERTAINMENTS.

His Excellency the French Ambassador gave his first diplomatic dinner on Saturday evening at Albert-gate.

The Right Hon. the Speaker of the House of Commons gave a grand banquet in the Westminster Palace Hotel, on Saturday evening last. Many distinguished Conservatives were laid for fifty persons.

The Right Hon. Henry Labouchere gave a large party at dinner on Saturday evening last at her apartments in Kensington Palace.

The Lord Mayor and the Corporation of London received a select party at dinner on Wednesday evening at their residence at Prince's Gate.

The Conservative Club entertained a large party at dinner at the family mansion in St. James's-square. The function was attended by about 600 members of the club, and was given in honour of Lord Derby on the assembly of the noble Earl and Conservative Members throughout every part of England.

Earl and Countess Russell entertained a select party at dinner on Tuesday evening at their residence in Chesham-place.

The Countess of Pole gave a ball on Wednesday evening, which was fashionably attended.

Frances Countess of Waldegrave at the Right Hon. Chichester Fortescue, M.P.'s, entertained a distinguished party at dinner on Wednesday evening at their residence in Carlton-gardens. Later in the evening her Ladyship had an assembly, to introduce the Countess of Waldegrave to the world of fashion in her widowhood and the fashionable world.

Lady Ashburton entertained an assembly last evening at the family residence in Grosvenor-square.

Viscountess Palmerston held a reception on Saturday evening last at Cambridge House. The occasion was distinguished for a leading assembly of the political and fashionable world.

Viscount and Viscountess Strafford de Redcliffe received a select party at dinner on Wednesday evening at their residence in Grosvenor-square.

Lord Ebury entertained a large party at dinner on Tuesday evening at his residence in Grosvenor-place. Her Ladyship gave a second ball last evening.

Lord Ebury entertained a large party at dinner at his residence on Monday evening at their residence in Grosvenor-place.

Lady Dunsany entertained a select party at assembly on Thursday evening. Lady Egerton of Tatton gave her first assembly on Monday evening at the family mansion in St. James's-square.

COUNTRY NEWS.

The Exeter papers record the death, at the age of seventy, of Archdeacon Cleaver, Rector of Braunton.

The annual session of the English Presbyterian Synod was held at Newcastle-on-Tyne last week. It will be held at Liverpool.

Lord Palmerston has accepted the invitation to visit Aberdeen and lay the first stone of the new Exchange which is to be erected in that town. The journey is to be performed by sea in the royal steamer.

The Queen has approved of Mr. James Henry Hunt as Consul at Fernando Po, and of Mr. Charles Lennox Livingstone as Consul at Cadiz for the United States of America.

The Right Hon. Edward Cardwell, Secretary of State for the Home Department, who was recently appointed Vice-President of the Board of Education, vice Lord Lyveden, has been re-elected M.P. for Merthyr-Tydvil, on Monday morning, without opposition.

A series of entertainments was provided last week on the estate of Mr. Sotheby, at Ingmire Hall, Westmorland, in honour of the coming of age of his eldest son, Mr. Edward Bevers Lees. On Thursday week 700 of the tenantry sat down to dinner in a large tent, and on the following day a ball was given to the servants and labourers.

Major Guise has presented to the Royal Agricultural College his valuable collection of minerals and fossils. Many of the former are unique, and the latter are of the most interesting description, including a perfect specimen of the Pterodactyle Crassirostris. This, when added to the present collection—which consists of our geological formations, from the Oolite to the Carboniferous Limestone, with valuable specimens of the Coal Measures—will soon make the College museum, as remarked by the Rev. William Dempsey—readers the Geological Museum of Cirencester a formidable rival in the mineral department.

On Tuesday week a successful fine-arts, scientific, and horticultural exhibition was held at Ampleforce in the Yorkshire Society, which was brought to a close. Among the objects of interest were the Rev. Mr. Bailey's fishery, from the Ouse, at Naburn, and the Rev. Mr. Fawcett's, Dudley's, London and Witley collections. The display of scientific apparatus was also very extensive, and comprised microscopes, telescopes, and electrical machines. There was also a collection of examples of ornament applied to ancient and mediæval objects, and a case of Japanese curiosities. There was also a room from the Exhibition of 1862 found a place among the manufactured articles.

The ice-crop gathered last winter in America is said to be the largest ever stored.

A large supply of military stores and 500 muskets, chandestroy introduced into Lombardy, have just been seized by the police of Milan. The Austrian Government is highly incensed.

The Chamber of Deputies at Bucharest has granted a concession to Mr. Ward for the construction of a railway between Ibrail, Bucharest, and Giurgevo, with a branch to Kimpolung.

It appears from a Parliamentary return recently issued that 1,895 trees were cut down in the Royal Forests in 1863 for naval purposes, and sawn into

THE WAR IN DENMARK: THE ASSAULT ON NO. 4 REDOUBT AT DUPPEL.—FROM A SKETCH BY OUR SPECIAL ARTIST.—SEE PAGE 414.

THE SHAKSPEARE COMMEMORATION IN LONDON: PLANTING AN OAK ON PRIMROSE HILL.—SEE PAGE 422.

SKETCHES IN PARLIAMENT.

IT has been in the House of Commons alone that a voice has been, even indirectly, raised aloud against the great Italian obstacle whom all England else has delighted to honour. On the evening when General Garibaldi paid his visit to the Lower Chamber of the Legislature a mysterious discussion, on which his name was concerned, took place; and when no less a person than Mr. Gladstone was answering a question put to him which demanded a reply, an Irish member, remarkable for his eccentricity and his excitability, and whom it is not necessary to indicate further, got up in a towering passion, and began, as he always does, to shout and gesticulate. Of course, coming from him, this inspiration to roomside peace, quiet, and quietude provoked laughter, and was received according to the temperament of the laughers; but when he proceeded to insinuate treachery and to hint at corruption on the part of the Italian, the hapless House which was waiting to see the individual who was the subject of the demonstration allow his name to be openly recitally reared at the isolated and irritating member. This bad gentleman, who has professional illusions which lead him to see or endure any amount of gnats, coughing, and derisive cheers without being put down, behaved so brazen on this occasion that it was a terrible sometimes even for him to have to face the House before the indignation of the House. There was, at least, a touch of dignity in this impossible. Mr. Anthony Carlisle was momentarily expected to come into the house, and his sons and his wife were already sitting in the gallery, awaiting the moment the recalcitrant member was put down. His ill-fortune in exhibiting himself before Garibaldi's son-in-law was, therefore, a subsequent night, when, there being nothing else to do, the House resolved itself into an Irish Parliament for that evening, and listened to one of the secretaries or attachés, or whatever they may be, of one of the Plenipotentiaries of the Great Powers who are assembled at the Conference, was present. This gentleman was observed to listen to the discussion with an appearance of suffering on his countenance which, in an ordinary case, would have excited sympathy, and an unsuccessful one, to discover what all the talk was about. But in this case his pain was not sympathetic, for it was a dent mystification to a friend who accompanied him, who knew that he understood and spoke English perfectly well. The House of Irish members to whom we have already alluded rose and made a circle of half-theatrical display, and then the Secretary to the Plenipotentiary delivered himself, and cried, "Alas! I have hitherto thought that I understood the language of England, but I find that I am terribly mistaken." May not this be used as an argument against many others, known to those whom it may concern, as well as to frequent the Legislative Chambers, for the repeal of the Union?

It has certainly come to this, that the House of Commons as little affects discussions of Conference as it does those of the Italian affairs. Those amateurs who interest themselves in the respective merits of the Italian leaders have to go to the gallery of the Castle of Esquire and the rebellious Tuspings invariably display their entire disdain to an empty house, until such time as the members for the counge—rather remarkable in these days—to initiate a "count out." The Italian question has been the only one of any enduring case of Mr. Liddell, who, from long nursing of the subject, has become so remarkable upon it, that he can remember one day to see him with a long pistol and a cap with peacock's feathers, and the effect of the dangerous weapon was lessened in the adoption by an enthusiasm akin to that which induced the actor to plaited Othello to thicken himself all over. On this question Mr. Liddell expatiates. How pompous and how grand he looks! He modelled on a study of the statue of Grattan in St. Stephen's Hall, which he presides over. He has, indeed, much of the same personal vigour and awfulness; his speech becomes finest, his diction elevated, his flow copious, and his illustrations of the matter never mean to come to a check. In truth, on a recent occasion he made not only an able but a most interesting speech, which every one seemed to listen to, and which proved how identification with a subject can rouse a man from the unsatisfying vagueness of mere talk. However, Mr. Liddell's address stood out in favourable contrast to the sentimentalisations of Mr. E. W. B. Forster, and to the slipshod, facetawny, tumbling, head over-heels manner of Mr. Bernard Secretary for Foreign Affairs, who never sets himself up for a great speech that he does not lay an air of indifference over it, and who never appears to trapsid ungainly gambols on the surface of the waves. There was nothing improper or inappropriate about Mr. Liddell's speech in the place, for the debate had fallen into the hands of Mr. Fermad; and, as nobody who had been away with the House for the Easter holidays can possibly be discussing the interests of three hundred millions of people before the House, nobody cared, or, indeed, was able to pay attention to the member for Devonport.

The countenance of Mr. Gladstone doesn't seem now always to rouse in the minds of certain members has nevertheless been apparent in this instance, and Lord Robert Cecil has given notice of a motion the object of which is to curtail the right of interpellation privilege. It is to be observed, however, that most of the customs of the House of Commons, on examination, will be found to be based on good reason and good sense; nor is this power of stopping what must probably be business discussions an exception to the rule. It should be viewed merely as a mode of spiting or mauling a bore in order in an appreciation of its merits; but it often has the good effect in giving the go-by to an inconvenient elaboration of a subject as the device of the previous question, which, when carried, seems to be seldom objected to, at least in an irate manner. We believe that there is amongst the majority of members a tolerably correct appreciation of which will preserve it intact against the attacks of revolutionising spirits, and when, using the phrase in a purely conventional and special sense. It has been said that the Opposition did not intend to allow any "counts" this Session; and the movement of a proximate office-holder in a Conservative Ministry would be the last likely to be stifled to give colour to the statement.

A debate on the Volunteers gave opportunity to Mr. Cardwell to speak his maiden speech as Secretary for the Colonies. Stating first impressions of a debate, we may say that Mr. Cardwell's first matter the peculiar manner of the speaker, which is, to say the least of it, unhappy. He is a conscientious speaker, and evidently has the sensations of the Lady in the Heated Grange between his hearers and himself—for he is generally very popular—of a person very much weary. The effect of an inflated sing-song on the Parliamentary sensorium is peculiar. This time, however, Mr. Cardwell contrived that his treatment of his subject should cause it to be free from the influence of his unhappily monotonous and, so to speak, unrelieved delivery. All that he had to say was well thought, he was to painstaking, so precise, so comprehensive, and so reasonable as to be much impressive. The new responsibility, that, perhaps for the first time in his Parliamentary career, he accepted sympathetically. There is no doubt but he possessed a great State paper with excellent effect on the House. Everyone will confirm Sir John Pakington's assertion that the new Secretary for the Colonies will become a great debater.

Mr. Cardwell's first speech was a little marred by a reference to the chief of his department, who had come in just before the debate. Of all the right honourable gentleman has so long and so satisfactorily stood accustomed for criticism that it is to be regretted that he may well be excused if for a while he seems to decline to subside into positive eulogium. So far as listeners are concerned, it is good fun to hear an Under-Secretary pooh-poohing solemn and rectangular Secretary of State; but Mr. Fortescue will probably find that one long bow will do, and that during the independency of Mr. Cardwell's powers of officialism. It is to be noted that in this debate certain members could not refrain from a touch of Milla's speech. One heard a rumbling sound which, accompanied by a certain manner and by the utterance of a name, bestowed on which was said by those near him, argued the delivery of an earnest and systematised address; but the roll in the tones of the voice rendered most of it unintelligible to those a little apart from the speaker; and it was only when Mr. Buxton, in strangely exact and simple English, and with method and arrangement of matter, told the tale of the motion, that comprehension prevailed.

Since the night in which Mr. Gladstone at length overcame Mr. Sheridan in a set fight on fire insurance—that is, when he got a decisive majority against the rather irregular member for Dudley—the deposition of the House has been dull and the debates lethargic, as we own to the influence of the spirit of the moment.

IMPERIAL PARLIAMENT.

(The following abstract of the doings in both Houses of Parliament of Friday, the 22nd inst., appeared in our Town Edition last week.)

HOUSE OF LORDS.—FRIDAY, APRIL 22.

The Consolidated Fund (£15,000,000) Bill was read a second time.

CRIMINAL LAW.—Lord CAMPBELL moved the second reading of a Bill to empower the Home Secretary, from the sole responsibility of deciding whether the sentence of death should be carried out, to commute the punishment of the wilful murderer to penal servitude for the remainder of his life, by whole Cabinet and by the Sovereign. The bill did not propose to require that her Majesty should have the painful duty cast upon her, or even that she should be present at their consideration; but it proposed to receive the ancient report, and that the result arrived at should be embodied in an order of the Secretary of State. The noble and learned Lord explained the details of the bill at length; they would take it up themselves.—The bill was read a first time.

The Lord Chancellor moved the second reading of the Bill to amend the law relating to the Inclosure of Commons. The object of the bill was to facilitate the inclosure of waste lands, by providing for the construction of any new railway within the metropolitan district by the Metropolitan Board of Works, instead of by the Commissioners of Woods and Forests for the purpose of securing to the labouring classes a cheap transit to and from their work. The Commissioners of Woods and Forests would continue to have power to be required by the circumstances of each case. He considered that the bill would be a great boon to the metropolis.—The bill was read a first time.

The Earl of CARNARVON moved a resolution to the effect that the establishment of the commissioners as to the construction of harbours of refuge was unnecessary, and that it was the opinion of the House that the duties with regard to the construction of harbours of refuge should be undertaken by the Board of Trade.—Lord STANLEY of ALDERLEY entirely approved of the resolution, and thought that the Board of Trade was the proper body to undertake the duties.—Lord GRANVILLE suggested that the harbours should be named, that it should be ordered what harbours should be constructed, and that the commissioners should then do the work.—Lord DERBY said that the Government thought that there should be as much publicity as possible to companies coming to Parliament for additional powers, and that the Government would be prepared to state what harbours they thought ought to be constructed.—After some discussion Mr. M. GIBSON opposed both resolutions and argued against them, and the House divided, when the numbers were 30 votes to 19, and the resolutions were lost by 84 to 45 votes.

HOUSE OF COMMONS.—WEDNESDAY.

Mr. Bruce took the oaths and his seat for Merthyr-Tydvil.

Mr. Dunlop's Bill (Scotch Inclosures) was read a third time and passed.

Mr. Dunlop obtained leave to bring in a Bill to amend the Act for the Consolidation of Loids and Customs in Scotland.

The House went into Committee on the Troops (Ireland) Bill. The discussion was of a desultory character, and the Bill was reported.

The Select Committee appointed to inquire whether the Marquis of Hartington had been guilty of corruption during the office of Secretary of State reported that he had not.

CHURCH RATES.—After a motion for the second reading of the Church Rates Commutation Bill, Mr. HADFIELD raised an objection on a point of order. The bill referred to a previous measure which, he argued, had been originated in a Committee of the whole House.—The SPEAKER overruled the objection, and the bill was read a second time, and committed for April 28. Bills were read a second time for the Isle of Man and Saint Columbkille. It appeared that the charge should be acknowledged, and the Bill was read a third time. The Public Accounts Bill was read a second time, after a long debate, which an occupier might deduct from the rent.—Sir C. DOUGLAS moved that the bill be read a second time that day six months.—Mr. HADFIELD seconded the motion. After some discussion the second reading of the bill was negatived by 109 votes to 74.

BANK NOTES (SCOTLAND) BILL.—Sir J. HAY moved the second reading of this bill, the object of which was to prevent any bank note issued in order to supply the circulation which had ceased on the failure of the Western Bank.—Mr. M'LAGAN opposed the bill.—After some discussion, in the course of which the CHANCELLOR of the EXCHEQUER stated his opinion that the bill was unnecessary, the House divided, when the numbers were 76 Act of 1844, must be considered by a Select Committee, the bill was withdrawn.

HOUSE OF LORDS.—THURSDAY.

ROYAL COMMISSIONS.—The Royal assent was given by commission to the following bills:—Consolidated Fund (£15,000,000), Bills of Exchange and Promissory Notes (Ireland), Bank Notes (Scotland), Bank Notes (Ireland), Value Relief of Sick Commissioner, Warehousing of British Spirits, and a number of private bills.—The Lord CHANCELLOR, Commissioner.—The Chancellor, the Earl of St. Germans, and Lord Wodehouse.

INDIA.—In answer to the Earl of Ellesborough, Lord WODEHOUSE said that no official information had been received from India with reference to the orders given as regards the disposal of the dead. But Sir Charles Wood had received a telegram stating that the Viceroy had in no case been given, with the sanction of the Governor-General, to discontinue throwing the dead into the rivers. The Government agents had been told to burn the bodies of those whose friends were too poor to do so themselves, at the public expense. Information had been received from Bombay that the Parsees had not received that no relation had been come to to change the seat of Government from Simla to Calcutta.

THE BANK CHARTER ACT (IRELAND).—The Lord CHANCELLOR moved the second reading of this bill.—After some discussion, the motion was agreed to.

HOUSE OF COMMONS.—THURSDAY.

AMERICAN AFFAIRS.—Sir C. GREY, in reply to Mr. Hopwood, said it was not the intention of the Government to propose a conference of European Powers on American affairs, or to take any part in any such project such a proposal, as they were certain that the United States Government would not accept the offer.

A NEW ZEALAND QUESTION.—Mr. CHICHESTER FORTESCUE, in reply to Mr. Hall, said that the Government had determined upon the erection of a new National Gallery at the West End of London, and that the plans and estimates would be shortly laid before the House.

THE TUSCALOOSA.

On the order of the day for going into Committee of Supply,

Mr. FRANCIS called attention to the case of the Confederate vessel Tuscaloosa, and to the circumstances which led to the detention of the consul at Cardiff by the Governor of the Cape of Good Hope, dated the 6th of February, 1863, and the 6th of March, 1863, respectively, and to the papers and despatches relating to the case. The hon. member moved the data of Mr. W. Scott and other learned jurists as questions of international law, that the Tuscaloosa was entitled to the benefit of the proclamation of neutrality so exempt her from seizure under the Queen's Proclamation, and that the consular officer at Cardiff had been appointed law and ought not to have a Confederate cruiser, but as much right to commission her in that capacity as a commissioned ship of war. The question was therefore reduced to making the responsibility that rested only on themselves and endeavouring to cast it upon the shoulders of the Americans. He concluded by moving a resolution of November remained virtually unrepealed, and called upon the House to declare that the Tuscaloosa was entitled to the benefit of the rules of international law with regard to her capture, and when the case of a vessel under circumstances such as in the case of a strong Power. Supposing, for instance, that the Queen were at war with Spain, we could not discharge the country into war; and if against a weak Power, it would sever the country with international law. It was in the interest of the country that neither the House to assist in obtaining a revocation of those instructions, for as long as they stood unrepealed they were a source of danger to this country. In conclusion, the hon. member moved that the instructions contained in the despatch of the Duke of Newcastle to the Governor of the Cape of Good Hope, dated the 6th of March, 1863, were at variance with the principles of international law.

Mr. CARDWELL said that, in the opinion of the ministry, the case at present we were restrained, but the day might arrive when we should become belligerents ourselves, and then we should be glad to again exercised those rights it might be that another armed neutrality would be formed against us. Every Minister of the Confederate States for the purpose of being adjudicated upon: and the evidence showed, moreover, that the supposed commissioning took place only of one of the crew and not of the patriots. Sir R. Walker had no doubt about her real character from the first; and he was supported by the opinion of the Attorney-General of the Cape. In his (the Solicitor General's) opinion there was no doubt but that she was a prize of war, and that her supposed con version into a Confederate cruiser was a mere plan and pretence.

Mr. WHITESIDE contended that we had shamefully violated our alleged neutrality, as there could be no doubt whatever but that the Tuscaloosa was a prize of war, and was tender to the Alabama; but that the Alabama had legal commission, and that we had no right whatever to detain her. If the Tuscaloosa had been a prize of the Alabama instead of her tender she ought to have been warned off, but under no circumstances was her seizure to be justified.

After a lengthened debate, which was chiefly confined to the members of the legal profession, Mr. FRANCIS, in reply to Mr. Whiteside, declared that he should feel by a majority of 219 to 185.

The House then went into Supply pro forma, and soon afterwards adjourned.

NATIONAL SPORTS.

The opening day of the Newmarket Spring found Lord Glasgow and the Baron in their Craven form, the former beating the Admiral himself in a T. Y. C. match, and the latter winning a £50 plate with one of those King Tom fillies whose powers quite justifies the Baron in saying "Everything cost me nothing." The Gordian Knot, as called from his being accredited to three sires, had a very different lad on his back and performed very differently to what he did at Epsom; and, whatever disclosures the recent Dublin exhibition may have made as to the paucity of good blood in the stock, Irish breeding turned out quite a sturdy little gem in Banchee, by Claret, who got home a length in front of Solferino (who had won a Liverpool broke) for the £1500 Prince of Wales Stakes. Glendusk was giving the winner 7lb., but was quite out of his distance, and although Mr. Bushes-hill. On the Two Thousand day the streets of Newmarket were almost impassable, and the crowd on the course seemed to set nearly twice as large as it ever was before. Of course the rain made no appearance on the heath for the first time since he became a member of the Jockey Club, and consequently everybody was ready to enjoy the sport in peace. No one seemed to feel a healthy confidence in Fille de l'Air, and Mr. Jackson must have found it extremely lucrative for her, as he bore up for General Peel, like one of the old metallic heroes, the while they silenced the Saracen host with a few effusive £5000 to £4000 on him for the Derby against Cambuscan. He had won his trial in the face of day on the 1st, and although Mr. Ten Broeck brought his off almost before daylight, with most laborious secrecy, the tests have all shot it. In two days' time the Hollyhock Vase Claremont and both been well beaten in their Malton ordeal, and that Barcaldine, a son of Stockwell's dam (by Touchstone out of Australian), would err long be found in "the state cabin," vice Claremont, gone down to the yard. Copenhagen was not much likely to be saddled next the Stand; and Mr. Merry's Ely, who had been missed from the Ditch stables, had no class about him. Pain were as well as he looked; but he has all the appearance of a most elegantly-built miller. Fille de l'Air, who was quite "a viceless form of fair" to the jockeys in the front rank, looked perfection, and all but the finish, seemed very little improved since last year; but the sixteen-hand General Peel (whose congenital defect in the off fore hoof is pretty quite justified his good pause. He has immense substance, but is most evenly made throughout, and looks every inch a horse to carry. The course was so crowded that Aldcroft could hardly make a race to enter him; and when he did get him away he was very much as to his stride and fitness. The thirteen started from a walk, almost in a straight line; and Sam Rogers on Copenhagen, who had never seen a starting post before, did not know what to do. Mr. Merry's friend, who had, however, worked to the front by the time they were at The Rushes, and gave his companion the office to retire. The General Peel "commanded" the whole lot save Paris three hundred yards from home, and then Aldcroft sent him along a really fine finish to win a good length in front. Historian being beaten a length from Paris, and Hollyhock a neck from Historian. It was very hard to strong that he at once came to 5 to 1 for the Derby, and many an extempore prophet declared that, Fille de l'Air notwithstanding, he would "sweep the three," a feat which Cotherstone, Sir Tatton Sykes, and The Marquis have failed to accomplish. Then came the plates of Hollyfox and Historian (who was rather short of preparation) since that he had no great fault behind him, although he will deserve his first-favourite moment. Atlas, next to Fille de l'Air, was also a handicap at 6st 4lb. to Wednesday, and won it. Indigestion, one of the final, and the first of the Derby. Atlas is the fifth horse for the Two-year old Plate, in which North Lincoln was also represented; while the Irish division were lucky with Banchee, for Claret had won the Mile hall brother Bochus last year. Baron Rothschild, who has been elected a member of the Jockey Club, won the Trial Stakes for the One Thousand with Tomato and Recce, both of them by King Tom and both of them by the Oaks. The former is a bay colt of great size, and Recce's dam won this stake for the Baron in 1853.

Butterfly has had a chestnut Kingston colt by The Royal years' lings, twelve of which are colts, number twenty-five for the sub-on June 1; and Mr. Greville has ten fillies out of his fourteen. Among the thirty-nine are one Gladiateur, two Stockwells, Newcastle, and Blenheim colts. Eleven of them are by St. Albans and eight by Colonist. An interesting sale took place at Tattersall's on Monday and Musson's next Thursday of the celebrated Herring Collection—sixteen racing plates in one day. Among the entries for the Derby, "the four scores is "The Blue Ribbon of the Turf," and the six pictures of the British Stud, which will be the pleasantest key to some of the finest blood strains in the kingdom.

"The quickest mile race on record" was run on Saturday last at Manchester, between Stapleton, of Stalybridge, and Mills, of London. The first quarter of a mile was run in 1 min. 1 sec., the half in 2 min. 8 sec., the three quarters in 3 min. 16 sec., and the mile in 4 min. 26 sec. According to the Sporting Life, this beats Lang's greatest nine performances on three occasions. We have not a clear calculation on paper, but about nine yards in practice. The winner is twenty-four years of age, stands 5 ft. 9 in., and weighs 9st 7lb.

NEWMARKET FIRST SPRING MEETING.—MONDAY.

Sweepstakes of 10 sovs. each.—Privateer, 1, Jack, 2.
Handicap Plate of £50.—Gordian Knot, 1, Banchee, 2.
Sweepstakes of 10 sovs. each.—Lady Ann, 1, Puritan, 2. Blinks, 3.
Trial Stakes of 50 sovs.—Sophy, 1, Lady Elizabeth, 2.
Prince of Wales' Stakes.—Banchee, 1, Suburban, 2, Vivid, 3.
Plate of 50 sovs.—Pantera, 1, Dupuis, 2, Ely, 3.
Five Handicap Sweepstakes of 10 sovs.—Dead heat between Miss Armstrong and General Peel. Miss Armstrong disqualified.
Five Handicap Sweepstakes of 100 sovs.—Revolver, 1, The Knave, 2.

TUESDAY.

Sweepstakes of 100 sovs.—The Lord in Waiting, 1, Farce, 2, Splicote, 3.
Handicap Sweepstakes.—Recce, 1, Bonnie Scotland, 2.
Sweepstakes of 10 sovs.—Santa Claus, 1, Protectionist, 2, Sphynx, 3.
THE TWO THOUSAND GUINEAS STAKES.—Mr. Baron Rothschild's Tomato, 1.
Cobweb-cum-Stakes.—Mark Farrowell, 1, Lady Ann, 2.
Handicap Plate.—Action, 1, Bay Orla, 2, Warreny, 3.
Sweepstakes of 5 sovs.—Count de Lisa, 1, Lady Ann, 2.

WEDNESDAY.

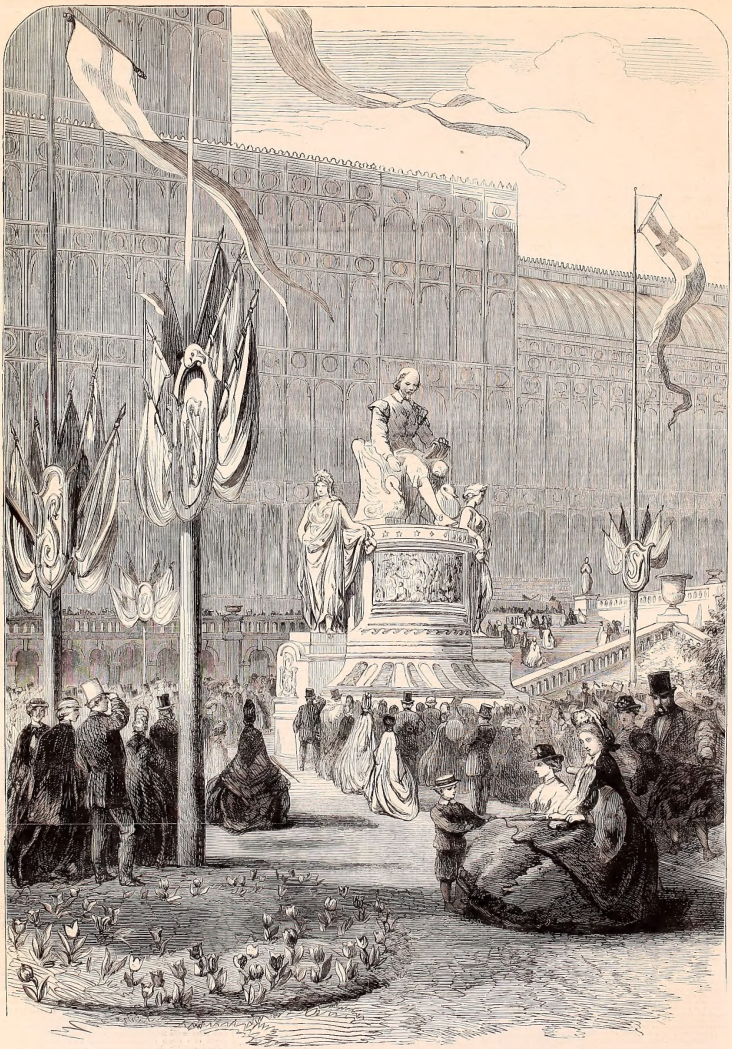
Prince of Wales's Stakes.—King of the Vale, 1, The Reserve, 2, Lady Superior, 3.
Handicap Plate of 50 sovs.—Atlas, 1, Disappointment, 2, Mosley, 3.
Sweepstakes of 10 sovs.—Warrior, 1, Proscia, 2, Isis, 3.
Sweepstakes of 10 sovs.—War Dance, 1, Ely, 2.
Newmarket Two-Year-Old Plate.—La Mechante, 1, Shrapnel, 2, Info Sweepstakes of 10 sovs.—Lavagnola, 1, Santa Rosa, 2.
Handicap Plate.—Action, 1, Bay Orla, 2, Warreny, 3.
Sweepstakes of 10 sovs.—Santa Rosa, 1, Lavagnola, 2.

THURSDAY.

One Thousand Guineas.—Tomato, 1, Recce, 2, Toni Toni, 3.
Sweepstakes of 10 sovs.—Usher, 1, Lady Abess, 2.
Sir Standish Handicap Plate.—Despair, 1, Dowry, 2.
Handicap Sweepstakes.—Clairvoyante, 1, Breitling, 2, Colmbra, 3.
JUBILEE.—Vivid, 1, Warreny, 2, Bonnie Scotland, 3.
Handicap Sweepstakes.—Antiochus, 1, Bradle, 2.
All Maiden Plate.—Capercaillie, 1, Bullock, 2, Brother to Guerrilla, 3.

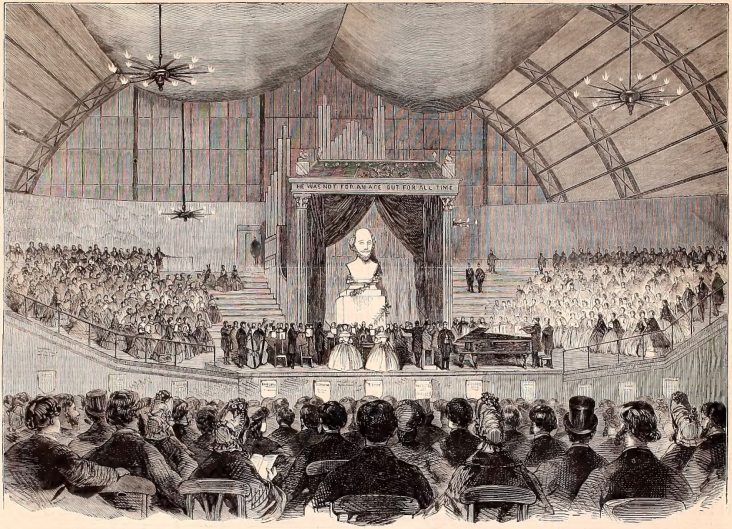
The days of nuggets have not yet passed away from Ballarat. The Compositum Company has unearthed a specimen weighing 11 lbs.

Disturbances have broken out in Tunis. France and England have dispatched a naval force to that country to protect their subjects.



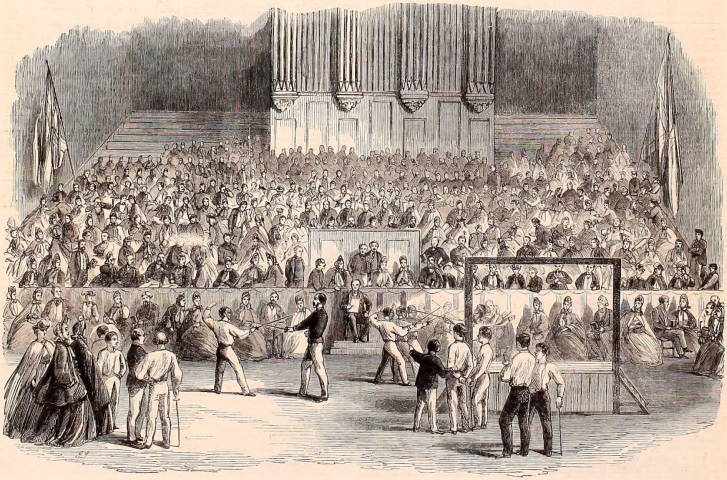
Everybody will hear with relief that the Rt Galantuomo is safe. A telegram from Turin, of Sunday's date, reports his arrival at Gibraltar.

SHAKSPEARE AND "NEW PLACE."—(To the Editor).—At a time when any new fact, however remote it may be, in the history of the Prince of Poets, is likely to prove of general interest, it may be worth while to mention that a stone mason, employed in repairing the premises lived, and probably died, in the house which for after years passed into the hands of Shakespeare. I have ascertained, from trustworthy sources of information, that Dorothy Hatton, the lady in question, who was first the wife of Richard Newport, of Hemelingham, in Warwickshire, after his decease was married to William Underhill, of the Inner Temple, of which society, it will be remembered, Sir Christopher Hatton was also a member. This William Underhill owned the mansion at Stratford-on-Avon known as "New Place" and of his son and heir it was purchased, at the close of the sixteenth century, by the immortal bard. Dorothy Hatton, the wife of the above-named gentleman, with the Underhills, may have been related to the poet in obtaining the friendship of the great courtier and the patronage of Royalty at a point for the latter to decide.—U. U. U., 109, Fleet-street.



NAVAL AND MILITARY INTELLIGENCE.

WAR OFFICE.



5th Dragoon Guards: Lieut. W. M. N. Hughes to be Captain; Cornet E. Murphy to be Lieutenant. A. J. Wyndham to be Cornet.
7th Dragoon Guards: Capt. J. R. Turnbull to be Captain; G. M. Gaskell to be Cornet. Sub. Lieut. J. K. Rundall to be Lieutenant. Staff Assist. Surg. W. H. Corbett, M.D., to be Assistant Surgeon.
8th Hussars: Capt. A. A. Goss to be Captain; Cornets W. H. Barker and H. Price to be Lieutenants. Lieut. and Adjutant H. Fenton and Lieut. R. Hamilton to be Captains. Lieut. W. H. Cornwall to be Lieutenant-General; Capt. D. F. Brown to be Major; Lieut. R. J. Wilkin to be Captain; Cornet H. Barker to be Lieutenant. Staff Assist. Surg. J. Hall, M.D., to be Assistant Surgeon. Dated 20th October, 1863. R. H. Hall to be Cornet. 16th: Capt. W. L. Pennyman to be Captain. Cornet H. Hall to be Lieutenant.
Royal Horse Guards: Lieut.-Gen. Sir Edward Cust, K.H., Major to be Colonel. Capt. and Lieut.-Colonel H. F. Hardyman and Cornet and Sub-Lieut. F. Pratt to be Lieutenant-Colonels. Lieut. and Captain H. Hamilton to be Major. Cornet and Sub-Lieut. H. Hamilton to be Lieutenant. Lieut. and Captain H. Hamilton to be Captain. Assist. Surg. J. Hall, M.D., to be Surgeon-Major. Dated 20th October, 1863. R. H. Hall to be Cornet.
1st Foot: Staff Surg. F. Hayes, M.D., to be Surgeon. 5th: Capt. W. J. Cleasson to be Lieutenant-Colonel. Lieut. and Captain H. Hamilton to be Major. Lieut. R. Kenyon to be Captain; Ensign W. Hamilton to be Lieutenant. 6th: Lieut. and Captain H. Hamilton to be Major. Lieut. R. Kenyon to be Captain; Ensign W. Hamilton to be Lieutenant. 7th: Lieut. and Captain H. Hamilton to be Major. Lieut. R. Kenyon to be Captain; Ensign W. Hamilton to be Lieutenant. 8th: Lieut. and Captain H. Hamilton to be Major. Lieut. R. Kenyon to be Captain; Ensign W. Hamilton to be Lieutenant. 9th: Lieut. and Captain H. Hamilton to be Major. Lieut. R. Kenyon to be Captain; Ensign W. Hamilton to be Lieutenant. 10th: Lieut. and Captain H. Hamilton to be Major. Lieut. R. Kenyon to be Captain; Ensign W. Hamilton to be Lieutenant. 11th: Lieut. and Captain H. Hamilton to be Major. Lieut. R. Kenyon to be Captain; Ensign W. Hamilton to be Lieutenant. 12th: Lieut. and Captain H. Hamilton to be Major. Lieut. R. Kenyon to be Captain; Ensign W. Hamilton to be Lieutenant. 13th: Lieut. and Captain H. Hamilton to be Major. Lieut. R. Kenyon to be Captain; Ensign W. Hamilton to be Lieutenant. 14th: Lieut. and Captain H. Hamilton to be Major. Lieut. R. Kenyon to be Captain; Ensign W. Hamilton to be Lieutenant. 15th: Lieut. and Captain H. Hamilton to be Major. Lieut. R. Kenyon to be Captain; Ensign W. Hamilton to be Lieutenant. 16th: Lieut. and Captain H. Hamilton to be Major. Lieut. R. Kenyon to be Captain; Ensign W. Hamilton to be Lieutenant. 17th: Lieut. and Captain H. Hamilton to be Major. Lieut. R. Kenyon to be Captain; Ensign W. Hamilton to be Lieutenant. 18th: Lieut. and Captain H. Hamilton to be Major. Lieut. R. Kenyon to be Captain; Ensign W. Hamilton to be Lieutenant. 19th: Lieut. and Captain H. Hamilton to be Major. Lieut. R. Kenyon to be Captain; Ensign W. Hamilton to be Lieutenant. 20th: Lieut. and Captain H. Hamilton to be Major. Lieut. R. Kenyon to be Captain; Ensign W. Hamilton to be Lieutenant. 21st: Lieut. and Captain H. Hamilton to be Major. Lieut. R. Kenyon to be Captain; Ensign W. Hamilton to be Lieutenant. 22nd: Lieut. and Captain H. Hamilton to be Major. Lieut. R. Kenyon to be Captain; Ensign W. Hamilton to be Lieutenant. 23rd: Lieut. and Captain H. Hamilton to be Major. Lieut. R. Kenyon to be Captain; Ensign W. Hamilton to be Lieutenant. 24th: Lieut. and Captain H. Hamilton to be Major. Lieut. R. Kenyon to be Captain; Ensign W. Hamilton to be Lieutenant. 25th: Lieut. and Captain H. Hamilton to be Major. Lieut. R. Kenyon to be Captain; Ensign W. Hamilton to be Lieutenant. 26th: Lieut. and Captain H. Hamilton to be Major. Lieut. R. Kenyon to be Captain; Ensign W. Hamilton to be Lieutenant. 27th: Lieut. and Captain H. Hamilton to be Major. Lieut. R. Kenyon to be Captain; Ensign W. Hamilton to be Lieutenant. 28th: Lieut. and Captain H. Hamilton to be Major. Lieut. R. Kenyon to be Captain; Ensign W. Hamilton to be Lieutenant. 29th: Lieut. and Captain H. Hamilton to be Major. Lieut. R. Kenyon to be Captain; Ensign W. Hamilton to be Lieutenant. 30th: Lieut. and Captain H. Hamilton to be Major. Lieut. R. Kenyon to be Captain; Ensign W. Hamilton to be Lieutenant. 31st: Lieut. and Captain H. Hamilton to be Major. Lieut. R. Kenyon to be Captain; Ensign W. Hamilton to be Lieutenant. 32nd: Lieut. and Captain H. Hamilton to be Major. Lieut. R. Kenyon to be Captain; Ensign W. Hamilton to be Lieutenant. 33rd: Lieut. and Captain H. Hamilton to be Major. Lieut. R. Kenyon to be Captain; Ensign W. Hamilton to be Lieutenant. 34th: Lieut. and Captain H. Hamilton to be Major. Lieut. R. Kenyon to be Captain; Ensign W. Hamilton to be Lieutenant. 35th: Lieut. and Captain H. Hamilton to be Major. Lieut. R. Kenyon to be Captain; Ensign W. Hamilton to be Lieutenant. 36th: Lieut. and Captain H. Hamilton to be Major. Lieut. R. Kenyon to be Captain; Ensign W. Hamilton to be Lieutenant. 37th: Lieut. and Captain H. Hamilton to be Major. Lieut. R. Kenyon to be Captain; Ensign W. Hamilton to be Lieutenant. 38th: Lieut. and Captain H. Hamilton to be Major. Lieut. R. Kenyon to be Captain; Ensign W. Hamilton to be Lieutenant. 39th: Lieut. and Captain H. Hamilton to be Major. Lieut. R. Kenyon to be Captain; Ensign W. Hamilton to be Lieutenant. 40th: Lieut. and Captain H. Hamilton to be Major. Lieut. R. Kenyon to be Captain; Ensign W. Hamilton to be Lieutenant. 41st: Lieut. and Captain H. Hamilton to be Major. Lieut. R. Kenyon to be Captain; Ensign W. Hamilton to be Lieutenant. 42nd: Lieut. and Captain H. Hamilton to be Major. Lieut. R. Kenyon to be Captain; Ensign W. Hamilton to be Lieutenant. 43rd: Lieut. and Captain H. Hamilton to be Major. Lieut. R. Kenyon to be Captain; Ensign W. Hamilton to be Lieutenant. 44th: Lieut. and Captain H. Hamilton to be Major. Lieut. R. Kenyon to be Captain; Ensign W. Hamilton to be Lieutenant. 45th: Lieut. and Captain H. Hamilton to be Major. Lieut. R. Kenyon to be Captain; Ensign W. Hamilton to be Lieutenant. 46th: Lieut. and Captain H. Hamilton to be Major. Lieut. R. Kenyon to be Captain; Ensign W. Hamilton to be Lieutenant. 47th: Lieut. and Captain H. Hamilton to be Major. Lieut. R. Kenyon to be Captain; Ensign W. Hamilton to be Lieutenant. 48th: Lieut. and Captain H. Hamilton to be Major. Lieut. R. Kenyon to be Captain; Ensign W. Hamilton to be Lieutenant. 49th: Lieut. and Captain H. Hamilton to be Major. Lieut. R. Kenyon to be Captain; Ensign W. Hamilton to be Lieutenant. 50th: Lieut. and Captain H. Hamilton to be Major. Lieut. R. Kenyon to be Captain; Ensign W. Hamilton to be Lieutenant. 51st: Lieut. and Captain H. Hamilton to be Major. Lieut. R. Kenyon to be Captain; Ensign W. Hamilton to be Lieutenant. 52nd: Lieut. and Captain H. Hamilton to be Major. Lieut. R. Kenyon to be Captain; Ensign W. Hamilton to be Lieutenant. 53rd: Lieut. and Captain H. Hamilton to be Major. Lieut. R. Kenyon to be Captain; Ensign W. Hamilton to be Lieutenant. 54th: Lieut. and Captain H. Hamilton to be Major. Lieut. R. Kenyon to be Captain; Ensign W. Hamilton to be Lieutenant. 55th: Lieut. and Captain H. Hamilton to be Major. Lieut. R. Kenyon to be Captain; Ensign W. Hamilton to be Lieutenant. 56th: Lieut. and Captain H. Hamilton to be Major. Lieut. R. Kenyon to be Captain; Ensign W. Hamilton to be Lieutenant. 57th: Lieut. and Captain H. Hamilton to be Major. Lieut. R. Kenyon to be Captain; Ensign W. Hamilton to be Lieutenant. 58th: Lieut. and Captain H. Hamilton to be Major. Lieut. R. Kenyon to be Captain; Ensign W. Hamilton to be Lieutenant. 59th: Lieut. and Captain H. Hamilton to be Major. Lieut. R. Kenyon to be Captain; Ensign W. Hamilton to be Lieutenant. 60th: Lieut. and Captain H. Hamilton to be Major. Lieut. R. Kenyon to be Captain; Ensign W. Hamilton to be Lieutenant. 61st: Lieut. and Captain H. Hamilton to be Major. Lieut. R. Kenyon to be Captain; Ensign W. Hamilton to be Lieutenant. 62nd: Lieut. and Captain H. Hamilton to be Major. Lieut. R. Kenyon to be Captain; Ensign W. Hamilton to be Lieutenant. 63rd: Lieut. and Captain H. Hamilton to be Major. Lieut. R. Kenyon to be Captain; Ensign W. Hamilton to be Lieutenant. 64th: Lieut. and Captain H. Hamilton to be Major. Lieut. R. Kenyon to be Captain; Ensign W. Hamilton to be Lieutenant. 65th: Lieut. and Captain H. Hamilton to be Major. Lieut. R. Kenyon to be Captain; Ensign W. Hamilton to be Lieutenant. 66th: Lieut. and Captain H. Hamilton to be Major. Lieut. R. Kenyon to be Captain; Ensign W. Hamilton to be Lieutenant. 67th: Lieut. and Captain H. Hamilton to be Major. Lieut. R. Kenyon to be Captain; Ensign W. Hamilton to be Lieutenant. 68th: Lieut. and Captain H. Hamilton to be Major. Lieut. R. Kenyon to be Captain; Ensign W. Hamilton to be Lieutenant. 69th: Lieut. and Captain H. Hamilton to be Major. Lieut. R. Kenyon to be Captain; Ensign W. Hamilton to be Lieutenant. 70th: Lieut. and Captain H. Hamilton to be Major. Lieut. R. Kenyon to be Captain; Ensign W. Hamilton to be Lieutenant. 71st: Lieut. and Captain H. Hamilton to be Major. Lieut. R. Kenyon to be Captain; Ensign W. Hamilton to be Lieutenant. 72nd: Lieut. and Captain H. Hamilton to be Major. Lieut. R. Kenyon to be Captain; Ensign W. Hamilton to be Lieutenant. 73rd: Lieut. and Captain H. Hamilton to be Major. Lieut. R. Kenyon to be Captain; Ensign W. Hamilton to be Lieutenant. 74th: Lieut. and Captain H. Hamilton to be Major. Lieut. R. Kenyon to be Captain; Ensign W. Hamilton to be Lieutenant. 75th: Lieut. and Captain H. Hamilton to be Major. Lieut. R. Kenyon to be Captain; Ensign W. Hamilton to be Lieutenant. 76th: Lieut. and Captain H. Hamilton to be Major. Lieut. R. Kenyon to be Captain; Ensign W. Hamilton to be Lieutenant. 77th: Lieut. and Captain H. Hamilton to be Major. Lieut. R. Kenyon to be Captain; Ensign W. Hamilton to be Lieutenant. 78th: Lieut. and Captain H. Hamilton to be Major. Lieut. R. Kenyon to be Captain; Ensign W. Hamilton to be Lieutenant. 79th: Lieut. and Captain H. Hamilton to be Major. Lieut. R. Kenyon to be Captain; Ensign W. Hamilton to be Lieutenant. 80th: Lieut. and Captain H. Hamilton to be Major. Lieut. R. Kenyon to be Captain; Ensign W. Hamilton to be Lieutenant. 81st: Lieut. and Captain H. Hamilton to be Major. Lieut. R. Kenyon to be Captain; Ensign W. Hamilton to be Lieutenant. 82nd: Lieut. and Captain H. Hamilton to be Major. Lieut. R. Kenyon to be Captain; Ensign W. Hamilton to be Lieutenant. 83rd: Lieut. and Captain H. Hamilton to be Major. Lieut. R. Kenyon to be Captain; Ensign W. Hamilton to be Lieutenant. 84th: Lieut. and Captain H. Hamilton to be Major. Lieut. R. Kenyon to be Captain; Ensign W. Hamilton to be Lieutenant. 85th: Lieut. and Captain H. Hamilton to be Major. Lieut. R. Kenyon to be Captain; Ensign W. Hamilton to be Lieutenant. 86th: Lieut. and Captain H. Hamilton to be Major. Lieut. R. Kenyon to be Captain; Ensign W. Hamilton to be Lieutenant. 87th: Lieut. and Captain H. Hamilton to be Major. Lieut. R. Kenyon to be Captain; Ensign W. Hamilton to be Lieutenant. 88th: Lieut. and Captain H. Hamilton to be Major. Lieut. R. Kenyon to be Captain; Ensign W. Hamilton to be Lieutenant. 89th: Lieut. and Captain H. Hamilton to be Major. Lieut. R. Kenyon to be Captain; Ensign W. Hamilton to be Lieutenant. 90th: Lieut. and Captain H. Hamilton to be Major. Lieut. R. Kenyon to be Captain; Ensign W. Hamilton to be Lieutenant. 91st: Lieut. and Captain H. Hamilton to be Major. Lieut. R. Kenyon to be Captain; Ensign W. Hamilton to be Lieutenant. 92nd: Lieut. and Captain H. Hamilton to be Major. Lieut. R. Kenyon to be Captain; Ensign W. Hamilton to be Lieutenant. 93rd: Lieut. and Captain H. Hamilton to be Major. Lieut. R. Kenyon to be Captain; Ensign W. Hamilton to be Lieutenant. 94th: Lieut. and Captain H. Hamilton to be Major. Lieut. R. Kenyon to be Captain; Ensign W. Hamilton to be Lieutenant. 95th: Lieut. and Captain H. Hamilton to be Major. Lieut. R. Kenyon to be Captain; Ensign W. Hamilton to be Lieutenant. 96th: Lieut. and Captain H. Hamilton to be Major. Lieut. R. Kenyon to be Captain; Ensign W. Hamilton to be Lieutenant. 97th: Lieut. and Captain H. Hamilton to be Major. Lieut. R. Kenyon to be Captain; Ensign W. Hamilton to be Lieutenant. 98th: Lieut. and Captain H. Hamilton to be Major. Lieut. R. Kenyon to be Captain; Ensign W. Hamilton to be Lieutenant. 99th: Lieut. and Captain H. Hamilton to be Major. Lieut. R. Kenyon to be Captain; Ensign W. Hamilton to be Lieutenant. 100th: Lieut. and Captain H. Hamilton to be Major. Lieut. R. Kenyon to be Captain; Ensign W. Hamilton to be Lieutenant. 101st: Lieut. and Captain H. Hamilton to be Major. Lieut. R. Kenyon to be Captain; Ensign W. Hamilton to be Lieutenant. 102nd: Lieut. and Captain H. Hamilton to be Major. Lieut. R. Kenyon to be Captain; Ensign W. Hamilton to be Lieutenant. 103rd: Lieut. and Captain H. Hamilton to be Major. Lieut. R. Kenyon to be Captain; Ensign W. Hamilton to be Lieutenant. 104th: Lieut. and Captain H. Hamilton to be Major. Lieut. R. Kenyon to be Captain; Ensign W. Hamilton to be Lieutenant. 105th: Lieut. and Captain H. Hamilton to be Major. Lieut. R. Kenyon to be Captain; Ensign W. Hamilton to be Lieutenant. 106th: Lieut. and Captain H. Hamilton to be Major. Lieut. R. Kenyon to be Captain; Ensign W. Hamilton to be Lieutenant. 107th: Lieut. and Captain H. Hamilton to be Major. Lieut. R. Kenyon to be Captain; Ensign W. Hamilton to be Lieutenant. 108th: Lieut. and Captain H. Hamilton to be Major. Lieut. R. Kenyon to be Captain; Ensign W. Hamilton to be Lieutenant. 109th: Lieut. and Captain H. Hamilton to be Major. Lieut. R. Kenyon to be Captain; Ensign W. Hamilton to be Lieutenant. 110th: Lieut. and Captain H. Hamilton to be Major. Lieut. R. Kenyon to be Captain; Ensign W. Hamilton to be Lieutenant. 111th: Lieut. and Captain H. Hamilton to be Major. Lieut. R. Kenyon to be Captain; Ensign W. Hamilton to be Lieutenant. 112th: Lieut. and Captain H. Hamilton to be Major. Lieut. R. Kenyon to be Captain; Ensign W. Hamilton to be Lieutenant. 113th: Lieut. and Captain H. Hamilton to be Major. Lieut. R. Kenyon to be Captain; Ensign W. Hamilton to be Lieutenant. 114th: Lieut. and Captain H. Hamilton to be Major. Lieut. R. Kenyon to be Captain; Ensign W. Hamilton to be Lieutenant. 115th: Lieut. and Captain H. Hamilton to be Major. Lieut. R. Kenyon to be Captain; Ensign W. Hamilton to be Lieutenant. 116th: Lieut. and Captain H. Hamilton to be Major. Lieut. R. Kenyon to be Captain; Ensign W. Hamilton to be Lieutenant. 117th: Lieut. and Captain H. Hamilton to be Major. Lieut. R. Kenyon to be Captain; Ensign W. Hamilton to be Lieutenant. 118th: Lieut. and Captain H. Hamilton to be Major. Lieut. R. Kenyon to be Captain; Ensign W. Hamilton to be Lieutenant. 119th: Lieut. and Captain H. Hamilton to be Major. Lieut. R. Kenyon to be Captain; Ensign W. Hamilton to be Lieutenant. 120th: Lieut. and Captain H. Hamilton to be Major. Lieut. R. Kenyon to be Captain; Ensign W. Hamilton to be Lieutenant. 121st: Lieut. and Captain H. Hamilton to be Major. Lieut. R. Kenyon to be Captain; Ensign W. Hamilton to be Lieutenant. 122nd: Lieut. and Captain H. Hamilton to be Major. Lieut. R. Kenyon to be Captain; Ensign W. Hamilton to be Lieutenant. 123rd: Lieut. and Captain H. Hamilton to be Major. Lieut. R. Kenyon to be Captain; Ensign W. Hamilton to be Lieutenant. 124th: Lieut. and Captain H. Hamilton to be Major. Lieut. R. Kenyon to be Captain; Ensign W. Hamilton to be Lieutenant. 125th: Lieut. and Captain H. Hamilton to be Major. Lieut. R. Kenyon to be Captain; Ensign W. Hamilton to be Lieutenant. 126th: Lieut. and Captain H. Hamilton to be Major. Lieut. R. Kenyon to be Captain; Ensign W. Hamilton to be Lieutenant. 127th: Lieut. and Captain H. Hamilton to be Major. Lieut. R. Kenyon to be Captain; Ensign W. Hamilton to be Lieutenant. 128th: Lieut. and Captain H. Hamilton to be Major. Lieut. R. Kenyon to be Captain; Ensign W. Hamilton to be Lieutenant. 129th: Lieut. and Captain H. Hamilton to be Major. Lieut. R. Kenyon to be Captain; Ensign W. Hamilton to be Lieutenant. 130th: Lieut. and Captain H. Hamilton to be Major. Lieut. R. Kenyon to be Captain; Ensign W. Hamilton to be Lieutenant. 131st: Lieut. and Captain H. Hamilton to be Major. Lieut. R. Kenyon to be Captain; Ensign W. Hamilton to be Lieutenant. 132nd: Lieut. and Captain H. Hamilton to be Major. Lieut. R. Kenyon to be Captain; Ensign W. Hamilton to be Lieutenant. 133rd: Lieut. and Captain H. Hamilton to be Major. Lieut. R. Kenyon to be Captain; Ensign W. Hamilton to be Lieutenant. 134th: Lieut. and Captain H. Hamilton to be Major. Lieut. R. Kenyon to be Captain; Ensign W. Hamilton to be Lieutenant. 135th: Lieut. and Captain H. Hamilton to be Major. Lieut. R. Kenyon to be Captain; Ensign W. Hamilton to be Lieutenant. 136th: Lieut. and Captain H. Hamilton to be Major. Lieut. R. Kenyon to be Captain; Ensign W. Hamilton to be Lieutenant. 137th: Lieut. and Captain H. Hamilton to be Major. Lieut. R. Kenyon to be Captain; Ensign W. Hamilton to be Lieutenant. 138th: Lieut. and Captain H. Hamilton to be Major. Lieut. R. Kenyon to be Captain; Ensign W. Hamilton to be Lieutenant. 139th: Lieut. and Captain H. Hamilton to be Major. Lieut. R. Kenyon to be Captain; Ensign W. Hamilton to be Lieutenant. 140th: Lieut. and Captain H. Hamilton to be Major. Lieut. R. Kenyon to be Captain; Ensign W. Hamilton to be Lieutenant. 141st: Lieut. and Captain H. Hamilton to be Major. Lieut. R. Kenyon to be Captain; Ensign W. Hamilton to be Lieutenant. 142nd: Lieut. and Captain H. Hamilton to be Major. Lieut. R. Kenyon to be Captain; Ensign W. Hamilton to be Lieutenant. 143rd: Lieut. and Captain H. Hamilton to be Major. Lieut. R. Kenyon to be Captain; Ensign W. Hamilton to be Lieutenant. 144th: Lieut. and Captain H. Hamilton to be Major. Lieut. R. Kenyon to be Captain; Ensign W. Hamilton to be Lieutenant. 145th: Lieut. and Captain H. Hamilton to be Major. Lieut. R. Kenyon to be Captain; Ensign W. Hamilton to be Lieutenant. 146th: Lieut. and Captain H. Hamilton to be Major. Lieut. R. Kenyon to be Captain; Ensign W. Hamilton to be Lieutenant. 147th: Lieut. and Captain H. Hamilton to be Major. Lieut. R. Kenyon to be Captain; Ensign W. Hamilton to be Lieutenant. 148th: Lieut. and Captain H. Hamilton to be Major. Lieut. R. Kenyon to be Captain; Ensign W. Hamilton to be Lieutenant. 149th: Lieut. and Captain H. Hamilton to be Major. Lieut. R. Kenyon to be Captain; Ensign W. Hamilton to be Lieutenant. 150th: Lieut. and Captain H. Hamilton to be Major. Lieut. R. Kenyon to be Captain; Ensign W. Hamilton to be Lieutenant. 151st: Lieut. and Captain H. Hamilton to be Major. Lieut. R. Kenyon to be Captain; Ensign W. Hamilton to be Lieutenant. 152nd: Lieut. and Captain H. Hamilton to be Major. Lieut. R. Kenyon to be Captain; Ensign W. Hamilton to be Lieutenant. 153rd: Lieut. and Captain H. Hamilton to be Major. Lieut. R. Kenyon to be Captain; Ensign W. Hamilton to be Lieutenant. 154th: Lieut. and Captain H. Hamilton to be Major. Lieut. R. Kenyon to be Captain; Ensign W. Hamilton to be Lieutenant. 155th: Lieut. and Captain H. Hamilton to be Major. Lieut. R. Kenyon to be Captain; Ensign W. Hamilton to be Lieutenant. 156th: Lieut. and Captain H. Hamilton to be Major. Lieut. R. Kenyon to be Captain; Ensign W. Hamilton to be Lieutenant. 157th: Lieut. and Captain H. Hamilton to be Major. Lieut. R. Kenyon to be Captain; Ensign W. Hamilton to be Lieutenant. 158th: Lieut. and Captain H. Hamilton to be Major. Lieut. R. Kenyon to be Captain; Ensign W. Hamilton to be Lieutenant. 159th: Lieut. and Captain H. Hamilton to be Major. Lieut. R. Kenyon to be Captain; Ensign W. Hamilton to be Lieutenant. 160th: Lieut. and Captain H. Hamilton to be Major. Lieut. R. Kenyon to be Captain; Ensign W. Hamilton to be Lieutenant. 161st: Lieut. and Captain H. Hamilton to be Major. Lieut. R. Kenyon to be Captain; Ensign W. Hamilton to be Lieutenant. 162nd: Lieut. and Captain H. Hamilton to be Major. Lieut. R. Kenyon to be Captain; Ensign W. Hamilton to be Lieutenant. 163rd: Lieut. and Captain H. Hamilton to be Major. Lieut. R. Kenyon to be Captain; Ensign W. Hamilton to be Lieutenant. 164th: Lieut. and Captain H. Hamilton to be Major. Lieut. R. Kenyon to be Captain; Ensign W. Hamilton to be Lieutenant. 165th: Lieut. and Captain H. Hamilton to be Major. Lieut. R. Kenyon to be Captain; Ensign W. Hamilton to be Lieutenant. 166th: Lieut. and Captain H. Hamilton to be Major. Lieut. R. Kenyon to be Captain; Ensign W. Hamilton to be Lieutenant. 167th: Lieut. and Captain H. Hamilton to be Major. Lieut. R. Kenyon to be Captain; Ensign W. Hamilton to be Lieutenant. 168th: Lieut. and Captain H. Hamilton to be Major. Lieut. R. Kenyon to be Captain; Ensign W. Hamilton to be Lieutenant. 169th: Lieut. and Captain H. Hamilton to be Major. Lieut. R. Kenyon to be Captain; Ensign W. Hamilton to be Lieutenant. 170th: Lieut. and Captain H. Hamilton to be Major. Lieut. R. Kenyon to be Captain; Ensign W. Hamilton to be Lieutenant. 171st: Lieut. and Captain H. Hamilton to be Major. Lieut. R. Kenyon to be Captain; Ensign W. Hamilton to be Lieutenant. 172nd: Lieut. and Captain H. Hamilton to be Major. Lieut. R. Kenyon to be Captain; Ensign W. Hamilton to be Lieutenant. 173rd: Lieut. and Captain H. Hamilton to be Major. Lieut. R. Kenyon to be Captain; Ensign W. Hamilton to be Lieutenant. 174th: Lieut. and Captain H. Hamilton to be Major. Lieut. R. Kenyon to be Captain; Ensign W. Hamilton to be Lieutenant. 175th: Lieut. and Captain H. Hamilton to be Major. Lieut. R. Kenyon to be Captain; Ensign W. Hamilton to be Lieutenant. 176th: Lieut. and Captain H. Hamilton to be Major. Lieut. R. Kenyon to be Captain; Ensign W. Hamilton to be Lieutenant. 177th: Lieut. and Captain H. Hamilton to be Major. Lieut. R. Kenyon to be Captain; Ensign W. Hamilton to be Lieutenant. 178th: Lieut. and Captain H. Hamilton to be Major. Lieut. R. Kenyon to be Captain; Ensign W. Hamilton to be Lieutenant. 179th: Lieut. and Captain H. Hamilton to be Major. Lieut. R. Kenyon to be Captain; Ensign W. Hamilton to be Lieutenant. 180th: Lieut. and Captain H. Hamilton to be Major. Lieut. R. Kenyon to be Captain; Ensign W. Hamilton to be Lieutenant. 181st: Lieut. and Captain H. Hamilton to be Major. Lieut. R. Kenyon to be Captain; Ensign W. Hamilton to be Lieutenant. 182nd: Lieut. and Captain H. Hamilton to be Major. Lieut. R. Kenyon to be Captain; Ensign W. Hamilton to be Lieutenant. 183rd: Lieut. and Captain H. Hamilton to be Major. Lieut. R. Kenyon to be Captain; Ensign W. Hamilton to be Lieutenant. 184th: Lieut. and Captain H. Hamilton to be Major. Lieut. R. Kenyon to be Captain; Ensign W. Hamilton to be Lieutenant. 185th: Lieut. and Captain H. H

THE SHAKSPEARE COMMEMORATION IN LONDON: MONUMENT OF SHAKSPEARE AT THE CRYSTAL PALACE.—SEE PAGE 429.

THE SHAKSPEARE COMMEMORATION IN LONDON: THE UNVEILING OF A BUST OF SHAKSPEARE AT THE AGRICULTURAL HALL.—SEE PAGE 423.

GYMNASTIC MEETING OF THE EDINBURGH SCHOOLS.—SEE PAGE 418.

 The charge for the insertion of Births, Marriages, and Deaths is Five Shillings for each announcement.

BIRTHS.

On the 25th inst., Mrs. John Palmore, The Lindens, Mowbray, of a son.

On the 23rd inst., at Ballykilbey House, in the county of Down, the wife of Wm. Johnston, Esq., of a daughter.

On the 24th of March, in the Fortress of Asseerghur, Presidency of Bombay, the wife of C. Ingoe, Esq., M.D., garrison surgeon, of a son.

MARRIAGES.

On the 21st inst., at St. Margaret's, Rodeyhall, Sir Asaph, by the Rev. R. D. Williams, M.A., Rector, uncle of the bride, assisted by the Rev. T. Wade, M.A., Rector of Wrenbury, Cheshire, Edward Cheshire, Cheshire, to Mary Catherine, youngest daughter of the late Rev. Edward Hugh Bevan, Rector of Ightfield, Salop.

On the 23rd inst., at the church of the Holy Trinity, Paddington, by the Rev. G. E. Prescott, of Ashley, Paddington, Charles A. Prescott, Esq., son of Frederick J. Prescott, Esq., of Ashley, to Sarah-Agnes, youngest daughter of William Harrison, Esq., of 92, Westbourne-terrace.

On the 28th inst., at St. Thomas of Canterbury, Fulham, by the Rev. Edward Ryder, Rector of Fulham, the Rev. Alfred Ryder, Vicar of Ashton-under-Lyne, to Jane Ann, only daughter of the late Rev. J. M'Osmiller, Rector of Ballasalee, Roxby, assisted by the Rev. J. M'Osmiller, Thomas Ryder, Esq., Barrister-at-Law, Commissioner to Margaret Chandos, youngest daughter of Sir Peter Van Notten Laurie, Bart., of Dodenham, Gloucestershire, and the late Lady Louisa Pole, and granddaughter of the late Earl of Limerick.

DEATHS.

On the 22nd inst., at his residence, Knight's-hill, Norwood, Thomas Henry Mawbey, Esq., of Lambeth, and of Bamford Lodge, Surrey, aged 72. Friends are requested to accept this intimation.

On the 21st inst., at Stoneygate, near Leicester, Alison, widow of the late John Worthington, Esq., of that town, in the 77th year of her age.

On the 21st inst., at Worthington, Georgina, the wife of Charles Edward Pollock, Esq.

On the 22nd inst., at Sandhurst, Mr. Thomas Shaw, Richmond, Surrey, Edwin Chancellor, Esq., aged 34; universally regretted by all who knew him.

On the 25th inst., at 18, Albany Villas, Clifton-ville, Brighton, William Smith Sandbach, Esq., aged 72 years.

LONDON AND LANCASHIRE FIRE AND LIFE INSURANCE COMPANIES.

Fire Capital, £1,000,000—Life Capital, £500,000.
London: 73 and 74 New Bridge-street, E.C.
Manchester: 1, Cross-street.
Liverpool: 49, Dale-street, Branches and Agencies throughout the World.
Chairman—F. W. Russell, Esq., M.D. Chairman of the National Provincial Bank of England.

The following extracts from the Report for 1863 show the amount of business done:—

Premiums	£357,962
Fire Reserves on the previous year	150,000
Life Premiums	20,000
And the sum added to the Reserve Fund, after payment of Expenses and Fire Duty	15,000
Life Reserves	9,500
The New Assurances number 78, at £213,500, and yielding in Premiums

DISTINCTIVE FEATURES.

Home and Foreign Fire Insurances undertaken on favourable terms.

Moderate Insurances at reduced rates.

Life Assurances with Profits.

Premiums Reduced to Meet the Peculiar Requirements.

Rates of Premium as low as consistent with safety.

Four-fifths, or 80 per cent, of the Profits divided Annually.

Participating Policy-holders.

W. P. CLINKARD, General Manager.
JAMES H. LOPES, Secretary.

THE ALEXANDRA HOTEL, Hyde Park-corner, London, overlooking Hyde Park, Belgrave-square, and Buckingham Palace, is now open for the reception of visitors. It has features and appointments unknown to any other metropolitan hotel, and is unsurpassed in its situation, in the salubrity of its atmosphere, and in the comfort and luxury of its arrangements. Apply to the Manager, Alexandra Hotel Company (Limited), Hyde Park-corner.

HIGH CLASS LIBRARY.

LE DAUGHTERS of GENTLEMEN.—The WIDOW of a CLERGYMAN receives a select number of YOUNG LADIES and affords them a complete with the highest educational advantages. Mrs. H. Thomson's Library, 154, Sloane-street, Knightsbridge, S.W.

TO BUTCHERS, FARMERS, and others.

By order of the owner, who is retiring, he is DESIRED TO OFFER TWO-and-THIRTY of the finest Shorthorn Cows and Heifers in Hertfordshire. The dairy consists in old-established and choice milkers, and the whole of the cattle are in excellent condition for fattening or for breeding. Any gentleman wishing to purchase, principals only may apply to Mr. Tomd, Oi, Gunnery-lane.

REMOVAL.—Messrs. ALEX and JONES

beg to announce that they have REMOVED to 10, Brook-street, Grosvenor-square, where they continue to execute all orders in Photography, Stereoscopic Portraits, Groups, Views, &c.

IMPORTANT FIRST-CLASS ENGRAVINGS,

by Artists of the highest celebrity, on SALE at reduced prices. Also, a Collection of Modern Engravings, Proofs and Prints, in fine condition. The valuable and extensive Collection of Engravings, Copper, & stamps.—PAUL JERRARD and SON, 110, Hosier-st., E.C. Established upwards of Half a Century. All the new publications as soon as published. Engravings from all sizes.

CHROMOLITHOGRAPHY.—Specimens of the best examples of the most celebrated artists—Sandby, Rubbs-stone, Cattermole, &c.—sent free by post on receipt of address. Estimates for work from artists' drawings. Catalogues, 2 stamps.—PAUL JERRARD and SON, Fine Art Publishers, 110, Hosier-street, E.C. Established 1808.

CHEAP FRAMES (Gold Bead), 2s. 6d. each;

Oval Gilt Frames, about size 12 by 10; size also 14 by 12, 3s. 6d. each; postage, 1 stamp extra. Mounts made to order, any size. Every description of Picture Frame kept in stock or manufactured to order.—PAUL JERRARD and SON, Fine Art Gallery, 110, Hosier-street, E.C.

A. GOSS, HAIR JEWELLER to the QUEEN, 3, Berners-street, Hanover-square.

HAIR JEWELS.—Illustrated Price-lists forwarded free by post. A. GOSS, 3, Berners-street, Hanover-square. Quality and workmanship prove him the cheapest recommended. Inspection invited.

HAIR JEWELLERY.—ARTIST in HAIR.

HAIR JEWELLERY (now to fashion Locks or Braids) in every style, elastic and elegantly mounted in Gold, Blue Enamels, Chains, Lockets, Brooches, Rings, Studs, Bracelets, Guards, Necklaces, &c., one hair for a head, country residents should send a few hairs to ascertain exact shade, sent for inspection. An Illustrated book sent post-free.—MARIE GRIGG, 2, Haymarket-arcade, London, S.W.

WATCHES and CLOCKS.—FREDC.

DENT, HEREDITARY CHRONOMETER and WATCH MAKER, by special appointment to his late Majesty George IV., to the Queen, to the Emperor of the French, and to H.R.H. the Prince Consort, 82 and 83, Strand, and 34, Cornhill, London, E.C. Regulator, £12 10s. to £30. Silver Watches, £3 10s. to £10 10s. Gold Watches, £5 5s. to £100. Chronometer Watches and Clocks of every description. Every Watch skilfully examined, timed, and warranted. (From the Strand and Cornhill-street). Established 1814. Manufactory, Marlborough-road, Bermondsey.

DENT, Chronometer, Watch, and Clock

Maker, by special appointment to the Queen and H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, and Maker of the Great Clock for the Houses of Parliament, 61, Strand (adjoining Coutts's Bank), and 33, Royal Exchange.

THE LARGEST GIFT FOR A LADY is one of JONES'S LEVER WATCHES, at £11 11s.; for a Gentleman, at £10 10s. Forwarded on the Exhibition of approval of production. Manufactory, 338, Strand, opposite Somerset House.

DENT'S CHRONOMETER, WATCH, and CLOCK.—M. F. DENT, 33, Cockspur-street, Charing-cross, Watch, and Clockmaker Most very respectfully solicits her Majesty the Queen, H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, and H.R.H. the Duke of Cambridge, to honour him with their commands.

HORTICULTURAL TOOLS.—DEANE and CO., 46, Old Wilton-street, London Bridge. Lawn-mowing Machines, from 30s. Grapes, Shallots, Sandwiches, Peacock's, and Hedge Shears, Pruning Knives, Budding Knives, Transplanting Trowels, and every requisite for the Garden. Deane's New Illustrated Catalogue gratis and post-free. Established A.D. 1700.

CRUBBS' LOCKS, FIREPROOF SAFES,

DOG LAVATORY, CATS and BIRD HOUSES. Pound Iron Gates, 37, St. Paul's-churchyard, London; 28, Lord-street, Liverpool; 16, Market-street, Manchester; and at Wolverhampton.

NEW BOOKS.

THE NEW AND POPULAR NOVELS.

JANITA'S CROSS. By the Author of "St. Olave's," &c.

SECOND EDITION OF BARBARA'S HISTORY. By AMELIA B. EDWARDS. 3 vols.

ADELA CATHCART. By GEORGE MACDONALD. 3 vols. [Ready at all the Libraries.

DR. JACOB. By Dr. ANDREW WYLIE, and J. "A striking original and powerfully drawn character Review.

MY STEPMOTHER'S CONFESSION. By CLARA LEE BLAKE.

JOHN GRESWOLD. By the Author of "Paul Ferroll."

ROBERT and HELEN. Published by A. Hall, Virtue, & Co., 25, Paternoster-row.

NOTICE.—The LOST SIR MASSINGBERD will be published This Day at all the Libraries and Bookselling Establishments throughout the Kingdom, in 3 vols., post 8vo.

Just published, price 2s. 6d., to the benefit of the Mission for Working Men.

THE NUN OF ENZELOSTERLE: a Story of the Rhine.

By Mrs. T. GOLLVER (wife of the Missionary).

London: JOHN F. SHAW, 48, Paternoster-row. New Red-street.

This day is published, price 10s. 6d.,

GARIBALDI and the UNITY of ITALY. By Lieut.-Colonel CHAMBERS.

LIFE, LABOUR, and LEISURE. By the railway stations and all Booksellers.

Just published, Illustrated by Millais, 5s., bound,

CHEAP EDITION of LES MISÉRABLES. By VICTOR HUGO. Authorised English Translation.

ROBT. and BROTHERS, Boston, U.S.; and Sampson Low, Son, and Marston, 47, Ludgate-hill.

SHAKESPEARE.

THE MOST AUTHENTIC OF MEMORIALS.

REPRINT of the FIRST FOLIO EDITION, 1623, of SHAKESPEARE'S DRAMATIC WORKS.

HISTORIES. Price 10s. 6d.

The TRAGEDIES will be published and complete the work. Printed from the True Original Copies.

Now ready, price 10s. 6d.,

SHAKESPEARE'S POEMS. Edited by the late Rev. Alexander Dyce.

Price 6s. each.

SHAKESPEARE'S PLAYS. Reprint-sheet, London, W.

A charming accompaniment to the above, or separately, a beautiful Photograph from the Original Picture.

SHAKESPEARE. Size 12 by 10, in a rich Oak Frame, 10s. 6d.

Published by Photographic Fine Art Co.,

10, Photographic Gallery, Regent-street, Lowndes.

Publishers originally at 20 guineas: now to be had for 2 guineas.

THE PICTURE of LONDON for 1864.

Corrected to the Present Time.

Photographed from Nature's Pencil.

Price 2s. 6d., in a neat Cloth Case, and complete the work.

Printed from the True Original Copies.

Now ready, price 10s. 6d.,

SHAKESPEARE'S POEMS. Edited by the late Rev. Alexander Dyce.

Price 6s. each.

SHAKESPEARE'S PLAYS. Reprint-sheet, London, W.

A charming accompaniment to the above, or separately, a beautiful Photograph from the Original Picture.

SHAKESPEARE. Size 12 by 10, in a rich Oak Frame, 10s. 6d.

Published by Photographic Fine Art Co.,

10, Photographic Gallery, Regent-street, Lowndes.

Publishers originally at 20 guineas: now to be had for 2 guineas.

THE PICTURE of LONDON for 1864.

Corrected to the Present Time.

Photographed from Nature's Pencil.

Price 2s. 6d., in a neat Cloth Case, and complete the work.

London: L. BOOTH, 307, Regent-st.; S. Appleby, 427, Oxford-st.

Now ready, price 1s. 6d., the Second Edition of A MONTHLY TRACT, uniform with the Original Edition of "Pickwick," by Lieut.-Colonel CHAMBERS.

Part I., April 30th, 1864, price 1s.

OUR MUTUAL FRIEND, By CHARLES DICKENS.

To be completed in Twenty Monthly Parts.

With Illustrations by MARCUS STONE.

CHAPMAN and HALL, 193, Piccadilly.

Ready this day.

DALZIEL'S ILLUSTRATED ARABIAN NIGHTS' ENTERTAINMENTS. Complete in One Volume. London: WARD and LOCK, 158, Fleet-street.

DALZIEL'S ILLUSTRATED GOLDSMITH. THE VILLAGE PREACHER. With Thirty Pictures by G. J. Pinwell, Engraved by the Brothers Dalziel. Fcap. 4to, price 7s. 6d. London: WARD and LOCK, 158, Fleet-street.

Now ready, price 1s., with Illustrations by Pinwell and Du Maurier, and Two Steel Illustrations of Verses, complete of CASSELL'S ILLUSTRATED EDITION OF SHAKESPEARE. Edited, with Notes, by Mr. and Mrs. CHARLES COWDEN CLARKE.

Published also in Weekly Numbers at One Penny, and in Monthly Parts at Sixpence. Part I. for April, now ready, price 6d.

Cassell, Petter, and Galpin, Ludgate-hill, E.C.

Weekly, One Penny; Monthly, Fourpence and Sixpence; Quarterly, Shilling Parts.

CASSELL'S ILLUSTRATED GOLDSMITH and BUNYAN.

Profusely Illustrated. Edited, with Introductions and a Life of Goldsmith, by Professor MORLEY.

Specimen Copy of Part I. free by post for Six Stamps.

CASSELL'S ILLUSTRATED BUNYAN. THE HOLY WAR. Complete.

The First Number of "The Holy War" is now ready.

Price Sixpence. Monthly Parts, Fourpence.

Cassell, Petter, and Galpin, Ludgate-hill, E.C.

THE BOYS' OWN MAGAZINE.

Specimen of No. 3 for MAY.—Engravings and Letter-press. A Boy's Life at Sea—Wild Sports of the World—The Boy's Military College, Southhurst—King Log—Anthony Waymouth; or, the Boy Sailor—Boy's Own Conjuring—Boy's Own Puzzle—Boy's Own Workshop—Boy's Own Stamp Album—Boy's Own Correspondence—Boy's Own Rebus—Boy's Own Arithmetic—Boy's Own Riddles, &c. &c. The Story of Little Dinah, by Mrs. Gaskell—The Story of Ned Newton, by Henry Kingsley—The Story of Tom Bowling, by Edmund Saul Dixon—The Story of Sir Ascot Cockburn, by Henry Downton—Sir Daniel Gallery—Sir Jasper Carew, by Dr. Doran—Sir Bevil Grenville, by Agnes Strickland—Sir Walter Raleigh, by Miss Pardoe—Sir Francis Drake, by Miss Pardoe, &c. &c. Price 6d. Monthly Parts, 7d.

Cassell, Petter, and Galpin, Ludgate-hill, E.C.

Double Number, Price, with Supplement, 2d.

THE ENGLISHWOMAN'S DOMESTIC MAGAZINE. Contents: Mrs. Beeton's Cookery—Needlework, A Family History—A History of Dictionary and the Dictionary Makers—Mrs. Beeton's Dressmaking—Mrs. Beeton's Model Cottage—Mrs. Beeton's Work Table—Mrs. Beeton's Letter-box—Mrs. Beeton's Gardening—The Book of the Month—The Fashions—The Equestrian Costume—Fashions for Children—Fashions for Gentlemen—Mrs. Beeton's Household Management—Mrs. Beeton's Cookery—Mrs. Beeton's Needlework

COVERS for FAMILY JARS, or Jars and Canisters, for Preserving Fruits, &c., imported direct from OSBORNE, ZEVORT, and CO., Patent-road Water, London E., & keep it up a wet free for four stamps.

SLACKS' SILVER-ELECTRO PLATE is equal in wear to Sterling Silver.
Tablespoons or Forks ... 30s. to 38s. per Dozen.
Dessert ... 24s. to 30s. ,,
Teaspoons ... 12s. to 16s. ,,
Catalogues gratis or post-free.
Richard and John Slack, Strand, London.

FURNITURE CATALOGUE.—The IMPERIAL FURNISHING COMPANY (LIMITED) have Edition of their ILLUSTRATED CATALOGUE is now ready, and may be had upon application. See the press notices of Saturday and Wednesday Evening Company (Limited), 24 and 31, Baker-st., W.

THE BURLINGTON FURNITURE WAREHOUSE, 31, 32, and 33, Oxford-street, W., and 4, Newman-street, Nos. 1 to 5, Perry's-place, Nos. 1 to 5, Barbican, and 150, Regent-street, Palace-yard of the Equitable Co., Cheltenham, &c.

DRAWING-ROOM FURNITURE, in rich carving or moderate ornamental brocatelle, silk, or walnut, style of Louis XIV., finished in the most superior manner, and of the best materials throughout. Also in rich walnut and gold, and in rich walnut and silk damask. Handsome suites in a elegant cabinet, beautiful centre, occasional, and fancy tables, and a large assortment of chimney and pier glasses, in every variety of fashionable and elegant design. Handsome Brussels carpets, 2 yards wide and 3 yards long, at 2 guineas. Tapestry Brussels carpets, 2 yards wide, 2 guineas. Tapestry Brussels carpets, 2 yards wide, 2 guineas. Tapestry Brussels carpets, 2 yards wide,

NEW MUSIC.

NEW DANCE MUSIC.

HAPPY MOMENTS VALSE. By GUSTAVE LAMBERT. Just published. Beautifully Illustrated. Price 4s.; Duet, 5s.; Septet, 5s.; Orchestra, 5s.
CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

THE FORGET-ME-NOT WALTZ By GUSTAVE LAMBERT. Just published. Price 4s.; Orchestra, 5s.; Septet, 5s.; CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

THE GUARDS' WALTZ. By D. GODFREY. Played at the Ball given to the Prince and Princess of Wales, and at Jullien's Concerts, with immense success. Just published. Price 4s. CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

THE MERRY TENNIS LANCERS. Just published. A new set of Lancers, composed on all the popular and merry tunes of the day. By JULLIEN. Price 4s.; Orchestra, 5s.; Septet, 5s.
CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

THE HARUM-SCARUM GALOP. By JAMES GODFREY, Composer of the Guards' Waltz. Just published, gorgeously Illustrated. Price 3s.; Duet, 3s.; Orchestra, 3s.; Septet, 3s.
CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

HELTER-SKELTER GALOP. Just out, a New Galop, by CARMONT, Composer of the new Quadrilles, Valses, &c., performed by Mr. Sidney Smith, Mr. Rose, Coote, Godfrey, &c.; Septet, 3s.
CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

COOTE'S FAUST WALTZ, on Airs from Gounod's Opera. Beautifully Illustrated. Price, Solo or Duet, 4s.; Septet, 4s.; Orchestra, 4s.
CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

COOTE'S FAUST QUADRILLE, on Favourite Airs from Gounod's Opera. Beautifully Illustrated. Price, Solo or Duet, 4s.; Septet, 4s.; Orchestra, 4s.
CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

COOTE'S FAUST GALOP, from Gounod's Opera. Beautifully Illustrated. Price, Solo or Duet, 3s.; Septet, 3s.; Orchestra, 3s.
CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

FAUST WALTZ. By F. WALLERSTEIN, Just published. Price, Solo or Duet, 4s.; Septet, 4s.; Orchestra, 4s.
CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

SHAKESPEARE'S SONGS.—Just published, THIRTEEN of SHAKESPEARE'S Songs, with Pianoforte Accompaniment for One Stringing, in No. 67 of "Chappell's Musical Magazine." Price 1s.; Post-free, 13 stamps.
CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

GARIBALDI'S HYMN, with English Words, by JOHN OXENFORD. Ry. Price 2s. 6d.
CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

GARIBALDI'S GALOP. By CHARLES D'ALBERT. One of D'Albert's best Galops. Beautifully Illustrated with a Portrait of the great General. Price 3s., Solo or Duet; Septet, 3s.; Orchestra 3s.
CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

GARIBALDI'S HYMN. Arranged for the Pianoforte by MADAME OURY. Price 3s.
CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

NEW TRIOS for THREE PERFORMERS on ONE PIANOFORTE.—The following Trios are now published as Trios for the Pianoforte by S. F. RIMBAULT. Price 4s. each:—
No. 1. D'Albert's Fashionable Quadrille.
No. 2. D'Albert's New London Quadrille.
No. 3. Coote's Faust Waltz.
No. 4. Coote's Faust Quadrille.
No. 5. Mount's Gleeful Trio 1863 Mass.
No. 6. Coote's Faust Galop. Price 3s.
CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

WE ALL CALCHER'S BEAUTIES OF FAUST. A new arrangement of the celebrated Quota for Pianoforte Solo in the most easily sustained and admired method ever before published as Duets. In two books, 4s. each.
CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

THE SOLDIERS' CHORUS in FAUST, as performed in the Opera. Arranged for the Pianoforte by W. H. HOWARD. Price 3s.; Duet, 4s.
CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

BRINLEY RICHARDS' COMPLETE TUTOR for the PIANOFORTE. The best, the newest, and the most easy, exercises, studies, and instructions, progressive, concise, exercises, and a great variety of the most popular melodies, arranged in the most effective form for the pianoforte. Price 4s. post-free.
N.B. A list of Brinley Richards' Popular Pieces will be sent on application.
CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

BRINLEY RICHARDS' JUANITA. This popular Song arranged as a very pleasing drawing-room Pianoforte piece. Price 3s.; Duet, 4s.; Septet, 4s.
CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

BRINLEY RICHARDS' MARAQUITA. This popular Ballad arranged as an easy and effective drawing-room Pianoforte piece. Price 3s.
CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

BRINLEY RICHARDS' SOLDIERS' CHORUS, from Gounod's celebrated Opera of "Faust." Arranged for the Pianoforte. Price 3s.; Duet, 4s.; Septet, 4s.; Orchestra, 4s.; Full Orchestra, 6s.
CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

NEW PIANOFORTE PIECES FROM FAUST.
TAVERNER'S FAUST. Arranged as an easy Fantasia on the most favourite melodies from Gounod's "Faust." Price 4s.
CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

KUHE'S FAUST. Fantaisie de Salon for the piano, on favourite Airs from Gounod's Opera. Price 4s.
CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

KUHE'S LEGGERO INVISIBLE. Just published. Price 3s. Also, the same, with Violin and Violoncello ad libitum. Price 4s. each.
CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

KUHE'S SEMIRAMIDE. Grand Fantasia on Airs from Rossini's favourite Opera, for the Pianoforte, by the celebrated pianist and composer. Price 4s.
CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

KUHE'S MASSANIELLO.—Just published, a Grand Fantasia for the Pianoforte on Airs from the charming Opera. Price 4s.
CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

OSBORNE'S FAUST. A Fantasia on Favourite Melodies from Gounod's celebrated Opera, by the above popular Pianist. Price 4s.
CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

TREKELL'S LA FRIPE D'UNE MERE. Just published. Price 3s.
CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

TREKELL'S THE ANGELS' HARP. Elegantly for the Pianoforte. Price 4s.
CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

TREKELL'S WAVING LILY BELLS. Morceau de Salon for the Pianoforte. Price 3s.
CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

E. DE PARIS' L'APPEL. Galop di Bravura for the Pianoforte. Just published. Price 4s.
CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

MR. SANTLEY'S NEW SONG.
SOFT AND LOW. From Gounod's Opera, "Le Médecin malgré lui." Sung by Mr. Santley at the Monday Popular Concerts.
CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

THE STIRRUP CUP, MR. SANTLEY'S NEW SONG, expressly composed for him by Sidney Nelson, and unprecedently encored, is now ready, in C to E flat. Free by 20 stamps.
CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

NEW MUSIC.

THE ORCHESTRA.—"The leading Musical Journal" (vide "Athenæum"). Office, 6d. Second-stamp. Quarter's subscription (stamped), 6s. 6d. Fenilletons, Musical and Dramatic News at Home and Abroad, Sunday Services, &c. Single copy, four stamps.

CDE STOOPS TO CONQUER OPERA, by G. A. MACFARREN. Complete Copies, 8s. 6d. All the Songs may be had separately. Pianoforte Arrangements by Brinley Richard, T. M. Mudie, F. Berger, W. Macfarren, Rosetta Wells, Lindsay Sloper, Osborne, Wallace and Lundbeg by G. Cooke. Rules by Benedict and Lindsay Sloper.
CRAMER, WOOD, and CO. 201, Regent-street.

SHAKESPEARE'S TEMPEST, by Complete Work, Instrumental Part for four hands :: text) 18s. 6d. Separate Songs, Duets, Trios, Quartets, Choruses, &c. Words by Bennett, Oxenford, Macfarren, Chorley, Bowring, Hay, Lee, Hewitt, Bolton Rooney, Bishop, Desmond Ryan, Hamilton, Reed, Lindsay Sloper, Oliver Montague, Blanchard, Dunn, Lee, Hewitt, Bolton Rooney, Bishop, Desmond Ryan, Hamilton, Reed, Lindsay Sloper, Oliver Montague, Blanchard, Dunn for Female Voices 2s. 6d. "Where the bee sucks," Duet, 3s. "Where the bee sucks," Trio, 3s. 6d.
CRAMER, WOOD, and CO. 201, Regent-street.

SWEET SPIRIT WALTZES, Founded on four of the most favourite Songs of the day, "Sweet Spirit," "Sweet Voice," "Sweet Thoughts," "Sweet Memories." By CHARLES COOTE.
THE PRETTY BARMAID POLKA. From the Stage to Country" By SIDNEY BELCHER. Illustrated. 3s.
CRAMER, WOOD, and CO., 201, Regent-street.

COOTE'S "SHE STOOPS TO CONQUER" QUADRILLES. 4s. "Illustrated."
CRAMER, WOOD, and CO., 201, Regent-street.

COOTE'S "SHE STOOPS TO CONQUER" WALTZES. 4s. "Illustrated."
CRAMER, WOOD, and CO., 201, Regent-street.

BRINLEY RICHARDS' LEAH'S SONG. The most popular song of the day.
CRAMER, WOOD, and CO., 201, Regent-street.

"THE PIPE." A Student's Song. By Blumenthal. A favourite Student's Song in the great Ed Illustrated.
CRAMER, WOOD, and CO., 201, Regent-street.

BOAT SONG, By VERDI. 2s. 6d. A splendid Quartett.
CRAMER, WOOD, and CO., 201, Regent-street.

THE MAIDEN'S PRAYER. By VERDI. Sung by Madame Lemmens Sherrington. 2s. 6d. Post-free.
CRAMER, WOOD, and CO., 201, Regent-street.

SUNG BY MR. SANTLEY.
THE BUCCANEER. 2s. The New Sea Song. By T. E. LAMACRAFT.
CRAMER, WOOD and CO. 201, Regent-street.

LITTLE GOLDEN-HAIR. A Venetian Song. By LINDSAY SLOPER. 2s. 6d.
CRAMER, WOOD, and CO. 201, Regent-street.

GARIBALDI'S Song. By ARDITI. Words by Desmond Ryan. Illustrated with Portrait. 2s. 6d.
CRAMER, WOOD, and CO. 201, Regent-street.

"ANITA." By BRINLEY RICHARDS. 3s. (Founded on a melodic pressure in the life of Garibaldi). CRAMER, WOOD, and CO. 201, Regent-street.

NOTICE.—HALF PRICE.—All Music, and the best Editions, at half the published price, sent post-free for one-third cash. CRAMER, BEALE, and WOOD, 201, Regent-street.

NEW CHARITY SONG. 2s. 6d.
OH! WOULD WERE A BIRD. Sung by Miss Poole at the Hanover Square Rooms.
HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

MERRY SONGS. Merry Maiden and Merry Bird ... 2s. 6d. Merry Maiden and Merry Bird ... 2s. 6d. Isabella with her Gingham Umbrella ... 2s. 6d. Rainbow Waltz ... 2s. 6d. Lucrezia's Ball ... 2s. 6d. HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

POLLY PERKINS. By HENRY CLIFTON. Price 2s. 6d. Sung everywhere.
HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

THREE GRAND SONGS.
OH! IF I HAD THE WINGS OF A DOVE ME. By Meyerbeer. Sung everywhere. Price 2s. 6d. AT LAST! By Meyerbeer. Sung everywhere. Price 2s. 6d. THE HAPPY HOUR. By Meyerbeer. Sung everywhere. Price 2s. 6d. HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

FRED. BULLEN'S NEW SONG FOR CONTRALTO.
LEAF AND ONE FLOWER. Price 2s. 6d.
HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

The pretitial drawing-room piece is GANZ'S SOUVENIR DE TOI. Price 3s.
MOST POPULAR SONGS by CHARLES COOTE, "Isabella" Illustrated News.—HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

The best arrangements of the Garibaldi Hymn for Piano.
COOTE'S Duet, 3s. Price 4s. Septet, 3s. Price 4s.
HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

KUHE'S "SEE THE CONQUERING HERO COMES" Grand Fantasia. Price 4s.
HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

NEW MUSIC.

COOTE'S POLLY PERKINS QUADRILLE. Price 4s. Introducing Clifton's celebrated Song, "Isabella." Illustrated with Portrait of Miss Poole. Price 4s.
HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

Trio forte et di spirale.
COOTE'S INFANT PRINCE VALSES. Price 4s.
HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

COOTE'S GRAND PARADE QUADRILLE, arranged expressly for the Promissory Festival (not to be confounded with the Jubilee Promissory, at the Royal Surrey Ball), containing "Where the bee sucks," "Come unto these yellow sands," "Full fathom five," "Hark! hark! the lark," "Where the bee sucks," "Come unto these yellow sands," and "Hark! hark! the lark." Price 4s.—HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

SEBASTIAN GALOP.
COOTE'S EXTRAVAGANZA GALOP. Price 3s. Second Edition. Ready soon.
HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

THE BEST SET OF LANCERS ARE
COOTE'S FAUST LANCERS. Price 4s. Introducing "The Pilgrim of Love," "My Pretty Page," "Be mine," "Sweet Spirit hear my prayer," "Sweet Voice," and "Soft and low." Six-hand arrangements complete without book. Always extemporaneous.—HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

COOTE'S KATE KEARNEY WALTZES, Introducing "Shamus O'Brien," "Rosaleen Dhu," "Kathleen Aroon," "Kate Kearney," "Seventeen Donkeys" Solo or Duet, 4s.; Septet, 4s.; Orchestra, 4s.; Full Orchestra, 6s.
HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

THE NEW VALSE OF THE SEASON.
COOTE'S HUMMING BIRD. Price 4s. Considered the best set of Valses by the popular Composer.
HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

C. M. S. OLIVER'S NEW BALLAD.
OH! BLOW ME A KISS ON THE WIND. Price 2s. 6d. Sung at the Hanover Square Rooms.
HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

WORDS BY LONGFELLOW.
THE RIVER. By C. M. E. OLIVER. Price 2s. 6d. Sung at the Hanover Square Rooms. Illustrated.
HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

NEW MUSIC.

OTTO NICOLAI'S NEW OPERA, "THE MERRY WIVES OF WINDSOR."—The Libretto, by Mosenthal, after Shakspeare's Comedy of the same name, and Otto Nicolai's new Overture, to be performed at the Royal Italian Opera, Her Majesty's Theatre (under the title of "Falstaff"). Every performance will have the following publications ready for delivery the day after the performance, at the Office of the Opera:—

1. In Italian, arranged for answers, by Signor Randeggio.
2. In English, with the Original Italian.
PIANOFORTE.
1. The Overture ... ... 4s.
2. The Duet, "La confessione, in two books ... each 4s.
3. The Quartett, "Presso a poco" ... ... 3s.
4. Falstaff's Drinking Song ... ... 3s.
5. Ferrante's Romance ... ... 3s.
6. Sergio's Bouquet de Matelda ... ... 3s.
7. Quadrilles (Valses and Galops) on MUSIC.
8. Quadrilles (Valses and Galops) on ... ... 3s.
9. Waltzes ... ... 3s.
10. Galop ... ... 3s.
DUETS.
1. The Aire, in two books ... ... each 4s.
2. The Overture ... ... 4s.
THE COMPLETE OPERA
For Piano Solo, without Words ... ... 30s.
MILITARY BAND.
Grand Selection ... ... 10s.
The Overture ... ... 5s.
"Y" Various other arrangements in the press.
RICORDI, 265, Regent-street, Piccadilly.

BEHOLD MY LOVE! SHE SLUMBERS. Sung by Mr. Santley at the Monday Popular Concerts. A most charming melody and effective song for tenors. Price 2s. 6d.
ROBERT COCKS and SONS, Hollis-street.

MIMIE SAINTON DOLKY'S NEW SONG.
NORA'S TREASURE. New Ballad. Sung by Madame Sainton Dolky at an Irish Melody and Song by Mimie Sainton. Price 2s.
ROBERT COCKS and SONS, Hollis-street.

SUSAN'S STORY. A New Ballad, by the Author of "Kathleen Mavourneen." Price 2s. 6d.
ROBERT COCKS and SONS, Hollis-street.

CLARIBEL'S NEW SONG, "LITTLE BIRDS ARE SINGING IN THE GREEN TREE" will become a favourite. Price 2s. 6d.
ROBERT COCKS and SONS, Hollis-street.

MOZART'S NEW DUET, "GIÀ NELLE SELVE ETERNE." Sung by Mdlle. Titiens and Mdlle. Lemmens Sherrington. Price 4s.
ROBERT COCKS and SONS, Hollis-street.

MISS HAWLEY'S IVANHOE. New and Popular Arrangements of "Rebecca's Hymn" and "Rebecca's Song." By the Author of "Sophia." Price 3s.
ROBERT COCKS and SONS, Hollis-street.

BRINLEY RICHARDS' JANETA DUET. Published this day, a Final Duet, founded on the celebrated Song, "Janet's Choice." By BRINLEY RICHARDS. Price 4s.
ROBERT COCKS and SONS, Hollis-street.

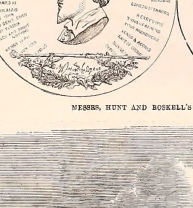
KUHE'S MAGGIE'S SECRET. A Clarke's beautiful ballad, which Miss Solomon has recently introduced with such success at the Monday Popular Concerts, and which will be sung by her at the Hanover Square Rooms.

BOOSEYS' LIBRARY.—Two-Guinea Subscribers have the use of twelve pieces of Music in town, 4 Music in the country, and exchange at pleasure. Prospectus, 4 Music in the country, and exchange at pleasure. Prospectus, 4 Music in the country, and exchange at pleasure. Prospectus

THE SHAKSPEARE COMMEMORATION.

THE SEAL OF THE NATIONAL SHAKESPEARE COMMITTEE.

is shown in a large Engraving which covers two pages of our Journal.



THE STRATFORD FESTIVAL.

The morning of Shakspeare's birthday was announced by no volleys of cannon or ringing of bells, but the streets were adorned with flags and banners; the townsfolk and visitors, for the most part, wore the Coventry-manufactured Shakspeare badge; and bands of music went up and down, filling the air with sounds of jubilation. Large numbers of people from a distance arrived by the morning trains, and spent two or three hours before the three o'clock banquet in examining the old house in Henley-street and the contents of the Shakspeare Museum; or the site of Shakspeare's mansion, called New Place, with its gardens, in another part of the town; or Anne Hathaway's cottage at Shottery, a short walk across the fields. These places, with Charlcote Lucy, are shown in the small Engravings appended to our Bird's-eye View of Stratford. In the Townhall was exhibited an interesting collection of pictures illustrative of Shakspeare's works and life. The Mayor of Stratford, Mr. Charles Flower, with the members of the Town Council, here received an address from the "Free German Institute of Arts and Sciences at Frankfort-on-the-Main," presented by Professor Max Müller, of Oxford, and Professor Leitner, of King's College, London. The former of these gentlemen spoke as follows:—

The city of Frankfort, the birthplace of Goethe, sends her greeting to the city of Stratford-on-Avon, the birthplace of Shakspeare. The old free town of Frankfort, which since the days of Frederick Barbarossa has seen the Emperors of Germany crowned within her walls, might well at all times speak in the name of Germany. But to-day she sends her greeting, not as the proud mother of German Emperors, but as the proudest mother of the greatest among the poets of Germany, and it is from the very house in which Goethe lived, and which has since become the seat of the "Free German Institute for Science and Art," that this message of the German admirers of Shakspeare has been sent across, which we are asked to present to you, the Mayor and Council of Stratford-on-Avon. What honour was there left to be done to the memory of Shakspeare? What could be added to the fame of Goethe? Nothing, but there is no poet so truly loved by us, so thoroughly our own, as your Shakspeare. He is no stranger with us, no mere classic, like Homer, or Virgil, or Dante, or Corneille, whom we read and admire and then forget. He has become one of ourselves, holding his own place in the history of our literature, applauded in our theatres, read in our cottages, studied, known, loved, "as far as sounds the German tongue." There is many a student in Germany who has learnt English solely in order to read Shakspeare in the original, and yet we possess a translation of Shakspeare with which few translations of any work can vie in any language. What we in Germany owe to Shakspeare must be read in the history of our literature. Goethe was Shakspeare's first and greatest disciple in Germany, and the whole nation affords to the debt of gratitude only which Germany owes to the poet of Stratford-on-Avon. I do not speak of the poet only, and of his art, so perfect because so artless; I think of the man with his large, warm heart, with his sympathy for all that is genuine, unaffected, beautiful, and good; with his contempt for all that is petty, mean, vulgar, and false. It is from his plays that our young men in Germany form their first ideas of England and the English nation, and in admiring and loving him we have learnt to admire and to love the people that may proudly call him their own. And it is right that this should be so. As the height of the Alps is measured by Mont Blanc, let the greatness of England be measured by the greatness of Shakspeare. Great nations make great poets, great poets make great nations. Many of the features in the English character which we respect the most, are England whose first ideas of this world in which they live and move are taken from his pages. That silent influence of Shakspeare's poetry on millions of young hearts in England, in Germany, in all the world, shows the almost superhuman power of human genius. If one looks at that small house, in a small street of a small town of a small island, and then thinks of the world-embracing, world-quickening, world-ennobling spirit that burst forth from that small garret, one has learnt a lesson and carried off a blessing for which no pilgrimage would have been too long. Though the great festivals which in former days brought together people from all parts of Europe to worship at the shrine of the Virgin Mary, or of some Saint, are gone for ever, the cause of England must that for the sake of Shakspeare, that this will not be the last Shakspeare festival in the annals of Stratford-on-Avon. In this cold and critical age of ours the power of worshipping, the art of admiring, the passion of loving what is great and good are fast dying out. May England never be ashamed to show to the world that she can love, that she can admire, that she can worship the greatest of her poets. May Shakspeare live in the hearts of the people, and may his memory long in England! May the growth of England keep continue to be nursed, to be fed, to be reproved and judged by his spirit! With that belief—that truly English, because truly Shakspearean, motive—the German nation will always be united by the strongest sympathies; for, superadded to their common blood, their common religion, their common battles and victories, they will always have in Shakspeare a common teacher, a common benefactor, a common friend.

SHAKSPEARE SALVER AND JUG.

MESSRS. HUNT AND ROSKELL'S SHAKSPEARE MEDAL.

THE three hundredth anniversary of Shakspeare's birthday was celebrated on Saturday last, with more or less appropriate festivities, in London and in many of the provincial towns. Several Illustrations of these proceedings will be found in this Number of our Journal. One of our Engravings represents an incident of the Shakspeare commemoration in London—the planting of an oak in the inclosure of Primrose-hill. But it was the town of Stratford-on-Avon which was the true metropolis of Shakspearean England on the 23rd of April, and the national demonstration of regard for the memory of our great poet was fitly centred in his native place. For this reason, and because the Stratford celebration assumed a degree of importance and dignity to which that of London could not pretend, we begin our account of the Shakspeare festivities with what was done in that town. A bird's-eye view of Stratford

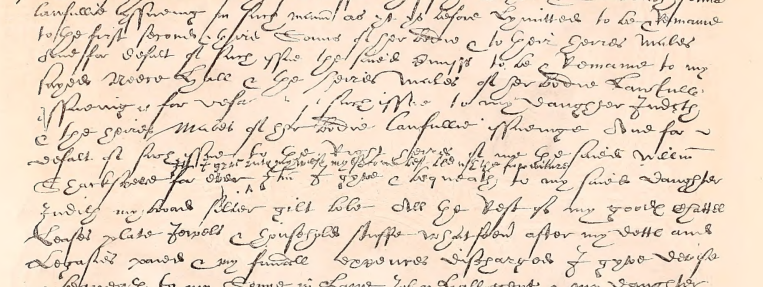
HENLEY-STREET, STRATFORD-ON-AVON, WITH SHAKSPEARE'S HOUSE

The address itself was signed by Herren Volger, Kress, Heyden, and Scheideck, the President, Vice-Presidents, and Secretary of the Frankfort Society, sitting in the room. In the centre, with him, he compared the respective merits of English and German literature with each other, acknowledging Shakespeare as the greatest poet and painter of the human heart, but claiming for Goethe to be the greatest among the host of the admirers of Shakespeare. The presentation of this address was the first public formality of the day. The Mayor, assisted by Lord Leigh, the Vicar of Stratford, and other local members of the committee, and followed by a procession of the distinguished guests, amongst whom were the Right Hon. the Earl of Carlisle, the President, the Earl of Ellesmere, Lord Lyttelton, and Westwicke, Lord Houghton, the Archbishop of Dublin, the Bishop of Oxford, Andrews, the Dean of Westminster, &c. At three o'clock a grand banquet took place in the pavilion, which had been kept so constructed as to be capable of seating 400 persons, alternately, of a dining-hall, a theatre, and a ball-room. The upper table, reserved for the president and most distinguished guests, was placed in front of the stage, in place of the moveable orchestra. Behind the table were the reporters, and behind these again were the choir of Stratford Church, who entertained the proceedings with some vocal music. The floor in front of the orchestra, where the pit is situated when the pavilion is used as a theatre, were eight tables, placed at right angles to the president's table; and some sixteen tables were placed on the floor at the back in front of the grand tier of boxes. About 700 ladies and gentlemen sat down to dinner, while there were hundreds more accommodated in the galleries. The interior of the pavilion, described by us on a former occasion, was seen to great advantage when filled with company and converted to the purpose of a social entertainment. The stage was backed with a landscape scene, which gave to the banquet at the tables somewhat of the appearance of a banquet in a fête champêtre. The tables were decked with a variety of ornaments, amongst which were vases of the best of Shakespeare, designed by Mr. Elkington, and manufactured by Messrs. Howell and James. Appropriate quotations were inscribed on the vases, such as "Sweet are the uses of adversity," "Sweet are the uses of adversity," "Sweet are the uses of adversity,"

The next step in the proceedings was the reading of a letter from Miss Eliza Cook by Mr. Moore, expressing that lady's extreme regret that severe illness had prevented her from performing the office of christening the oak, a part of the ceremony which it was arranged she should fulfil. Mrs. Banks, having been requested to act as Miss Eliza Cook's substitute, delivered a brief and graceful address, and then, stepping down upon the mound of earth which held the root of the tree, sprinkled it with water which had been procured for the purpose from the River Avon, and christened it, amidst tumultuous cheering, "Shakspeare's Oak."

Mr. Henry Marston then appeared upon the platform and recited a few verses, written for the occasion by Miss Eliza Cook, after which

Mr. Linnæus Banks addressed the company in a speech in which he enlarged upon the interesting associations connected with the object of the day's proceedings.



Next a "Shakspearean Overture" was performed by the band, and this was followed by an address from the chairman of the Working Men's Committee, and by a four-part song, called "England's Minstrel King," written by Mr. Banks and composed by Mr. G. A. Macfarren. The proceedings terminated with "God Save the Queen." The police arrangements were in all respects most praiseworthy; but so orderly and well conducted were the people that the police had no occasion to interfere, until the attempt to get up a Garibaldi meeting on Primrose-hill after the Shakspeare Commemoration proceedings were over.

In the evening there was a musical and dramatic fete at the Agricultural Hall, Islington. It included the whole of Locke's music, of "Macbeth," Arne's music of "The Tempest," Mendelssohn's music of "Midsummer Night's Dream," Arne's music of "As You Like It," and selections from "Cymbeline," "Henry VIII.," "The Merchant of Venice," "Measure for Measure," "Twelfth Night," "The Two Gentlemen of Verona," "All's Well that Ends Well," and "The Comedy of Errors." Interspersed with these were dramatic recitals by Mr. Henry Marston, Mr. James Bennett, Mr. J. L. Toole, and Mr. Paul Bedford (by the kind permission of B. Webster, Esq.). At ten o'clock the colossal Tercentenary Bust, modelled for the occasion by Mr. Charles Bacon, was crowned by the people at the heads of Tragedy and Comedy, and the grand chorale "England's Minstrel King" was sung by a monster choir. (We give an Engraving of the scene in the Agricultural Hall.)

The hall was decorated with one hundred Shakspearean banners. The famous histories of Shakspeare's time, including the Boar's Head, East Cheps; the Falcon, the Mermaid, the Devil, and the Tabard, in Southwark, were revived, to supply, in addition to the ordinary refreshments, sack, canary, capons, venison pasties, and other dishes and liquors of the Elizabethan era, the attendants being clad in the costume of the period. The band and chorus, of 2000, was conducted by Mr. Berenger.

The "National Shakspeare Committee," as it is called, whose offices are in Pall-mall, and whose meetings are held in the house of the Society of Arts, had sanctioned these arrangements of the Working Men's Committee, but had not provided for any demonstration of its own. At the meeting held last week in the Mansion House, when the Lord Mayor was requested by Mr. Cowper and Mr. Tite to give his countenance to the movement, it was understood that the "National" Committee were about to apply their funds, now amounting to £3000, exclusively to the purpose of erecting a monument or statue which is to be placed in the Garrick Park. The Working Men's Committee hope to raise money for a Shakspeare monument in some more central part of London. There was a concert at St. James's Hall, of which Mdme. Titiens, Signor Gingilini, M. Gassier, and Mr. Sawley were the chief attractions, in aid of the funds of the "National" Committee.

The Society for the Encouragement of the Fine Arts gave a special entertainment on Saturday, at the Hanover-square Rooms, consisting of Shakspeare readings by Miss Edith Heraud and Her Kroger, with a concert of Shakspeare music; and an original ode, the poetry by Mrs. E. Thomas, the music by Mr. Alfred Gilbert.

THE LAST SHEET OF SHAKSPEARE'S WILL.—SEE PAGE 430.

The Crystal Palace Company made this Saturday a shilling day instead of a half-crown day, as usual. They have now opened to public view the exact representation of Shakspeare's house, of the same size as the original, modelled by Mr. E. T. Parris, in the central transept, with the Shakspeare Court, which contains models of the bust on his tomb and of the tombs of his wife and daughter, besides copies of the early editions of his works and other interesting relics.

The Urban Club, whose place of convivial meeting is in the old hall of St. John's Gate, Clerkenwell, dined together on Saturday evening with a bust of Shakspeare, laurel-crowned, set up to remind them of the occasion. Mr. Westland Marston was in the chair. He proposed, "The immortal memory of William Shakspeare," which was drunk, not in funereal silence as for one who is dead, but with the acclamations due to immortal genius.

There was a supper also of many of the leading members of the theatrical profession at Freemasons' Hall. Mr. Webster presided, and Mr. Buckstone was vice-chairman. The chairman said grace rather in a Shakspearean than an orthodox way; before meat it was, "May good digestion wait on appetite, and health on both;" after supper, "For what we have now received, may the spirit of Shakspeare bless the meeting." He did not, however, omit the loyal and patriotic toasts. After these, Mr. Buckstone said:—

Gentlemen, let us drink "The Birth of Shakspeare"—the birth of one who was not only our great poet—not only an actor—but, I am happy to add, as a source of comfort and encouragement to our chairman and myself, he was a manager (laughter), and paid his salaries (laughter), a virtue which both of us have hitherto strictly exercised (renewed cheers and laughter). And as a celebration like this may not occur again for another hundred years, and as it is not very possible that many of us will be alive then (loud laughter), I call upon you to honour the toast of our illustrious Englishmen, to honour it on this April morning—

The tailor-ye born
Whom Will was born.
In the spring time of the year—

With hearty and joyous English cheers. Gentlemen, "The Birth of Shakspeare."

The toast was drunk with loud and prolongol cheers, and was followed by a sonnet, written expressly for the occasion by Mr. John Brougham, the music composed by Mr. A. Mellon. The piece was loudly encored, and was followed by continuous cheering.

The chairman then proposed "The Memory of Shakspeare." The toast was drunk in solemn silence. Other toasts appropriate to the occasion, such as "The Players' Art," "The British Drama," "The Illustrators of Shakspeare," &c., were proposed and cordially received, and the company separated at an early hour next morning.

SHAKSPEARE CELEBRATION IN LIVERPOOL.—On Thursday evening the Mayor of Liverpool gave a magnificent fancy ball at St. George's Hall, at which 1500 ladies and gentlemen were present in costumes illustrative of the characters of Shakspeare and the Elizabethan period. On Friday night the theatres were thrown open at the expense of the Mayor, and a select company with fabulous illustrative of Shakspearean compositions took place.

SHAKSPEARE CELEBRATION FORBIDDEN IN PARIS.—The English residents in Paris were prohibited by the French Government to carry out their intention of having a Shakspeare dinner at the Grand Hotel on Saturday last. There is but an unsatisfactory explanation of this most ungracious act. It appears that in addition to the English banquet two other celebrations were announced; one a grand theatrical performance at the Porte St. Martin Theatre, and the other a French dinner, also at the Grand Hotel. The former, consisting of M. "Hamlet," "Falstaff," and "Midsummer Night's Dream," was forbidden by the authorities, in consequence of certain friends of M. Victor Hugo having expressed their intention of converting the representation into a political demonstration in his favour. A similar motive led to the prohibition of the French banquet at the Grand Hotel, of which M. Victor Hugo was even nominated honorary vice-president. Similar reasons induced the authorities to include the English banquet in the same precautionary measure, as there was nothing to prevent the persons who had intended making democratic speeches at the French dinner from appearing at the English one, and there saying whatever they pleased. The English, however, might have been permitted to dine by themselves, but, having already issued tickets for a public banquet, they preferred to give up the celebration.

THE SHAKSPEARE PORTRAITS.

In the by-ways of criticism which are so freely opened by Shakspeare, hardly one is more interesting than that which regards the Portraits of the Poet. He is a curious fact, the which leaves upon everything concerning him a doubt not easily solved;

PORTRAITS OF SHAKSPEARE.

THE SHAKSPEARE COMMEMORATION. SCENE FROM SHAKSPEARE'S PLAY OF "KING HENRY IV." PART 1, AS PLAYED AT DRURY LANE.—BATTLE OF SHREWSBURY, IN THE LAST ACT.—SEE NEXT PAGE.

for, according to the best authorities, there is not even a portrait for which it is certain that Shakspeare had sat; much more is there a legal document which is questionable, a scrap of writing which can be proved to be his own. Preferring, as the rather, the middle course, we have engraved from accurate drawings seven lands of Shakspeare, which we proceed to describe.

The centre, and the chief, is at once the most authenticated and the earliest representation of the poet that we have. It is the bust in the chancel of Stratford Church, over against his tomb. It was set up some few years after his death, and, according to Sir Wm. Dugdale, "the monument of John Combe, of Stratford esq^r Avon, and Shakspeare's, were made by one Gerard Johnson." This Gerard Johnson was the sculptor of Shakspeare's tomb-house, and probably in the west of St. Thomas the Apostle; and it is probable, indeed one would imagine without a doubt, that he had seen the poet's face after death for the purpose of the monument-maker. Such a cast has been recently found in Johnson's workshop, and is now in the custody of Professor Owen. The bust, whether taken from it or no, presents several characteristics of accuracy. A fresh, fleshy jaw; a fine forehead, a short nose, long upper lip, and a round chin. Readers thought that in proportion to some likes of the cast-board appearance of the poet. The face is of a fair complexion, of a brownish tint, and has a slightly sandy moustache and a pair of small hazel, the hair and beard auburn, and the doublet worn by the poet was scarlet, and the cloak which he wore a dark red, but both without sleeves. This costume was evidently that of the poet "in his habit as he lived." The monument is of the usual Elizabethan type, which is in the farther end of the chancel of the church, and by the same sculptor, finished in the same year, and is usually kept at a comfortable edition of the period. The Stratford bust is a very important cast, because it was probably taken from the poet himself, evidently as like Shakspeare as the tombmaker could make it, and was accepted as a good likeness by his son-in-law, John Hall, for he, although he had evidently spent a considerable sum on the monument, placed under it lines which attest his satisfaction, although he owns that "his name is better than his fame." Another bust of the poet, a various how readily unlike the white plaster casts are to the coloured busts. From the Stratford bust, the Dulwich picture derives its expression. So far, then, as a portrait or bust approaches in expression the Stratford bust, it is of the greatest value, and, if it is to be judged a likeness of Shakspeare. Neither painter nor sculptor has a right to "improve" it, and to make Shakspeare look like a gentleman of the truth.

The next portrait in importance is that prefixed to the folios of 1623, and to subsequent editions of his works. It is in the right upper corner of our Engraving, and is the print by Droeshout, which, as has been observed, is a print by which the poet's friends, rather than one ten popular writers have fallen into the error of calling it an "etching" of his face. It is not so, but an engraving, and in the first folio, the type-work being printed after the paper had gone through the press, and the ink consequently, although the engraving has been much abused, still many, very many impressions are excellent in clearness and vigour, and showing in each impression, such as it is, which is as much as Martin Droeshout could give. It seems to have been very evidently taken from a drawing or likeness good, in spite of Malone's dictum that it is an abominable libel on humanity, since he has ceased to be put under it an epigram, in which the highest praise is given to the picture. The verses are signed "B. J.," and have been reprinted in his works. They have, it is needless to say, not a word of truth in them. These verses were printed in the first folio on the page opposite the title, where we now place the frontispiece :—

TO THE READER.

This figure that thou here seest put,
It was for gentle Shakspeare cut;
Wherein the Graver had a strife
With Nature, to outdo the life:
O! could he but have drawn his wit
As well in brasse as he hath hit
His face; the print would then surpasse
All that was ever writ in brasse,
But, since he cannot, Reader, looke
Not on his picture but his Booke.—B. J.

Ben Jonson was a truthful man, if prone to quick feelings, and his testimony is to every valuable one. Droeshout was a painter as well as man Shakspeare was, we shall therefore not be far wrong if we take Ben's opinion as to the likeness. But at the time for between the bust and this portrait there are many resemblances. The general form of the face, the nose, mouth, and chin, are the other will quickly see them. There is the same oval face, round chin, arched eyebrow, half long moustache, and hair, which is also worn in the same fashion. The collar is very different, and the costume of the portrait more antique; and this is accounted by observing that the engraver has copied from an earlier print, upon which he was playing one of his own characters—Old Adam, in "As You Like It." The eyes are not very accurately delineated, but are well drawn, and they have about them a hardworked and careworn look which the bust has not, and the many cares of the poet at the time. The portrait was taken would give him. The cheeks are full and round, the hair straight and long, and the ear is not seen under the hair, as in the bust, which has without rings. The lip corresponds with that of the Stratford bust, but the upper lip has more length and is not quite so pouting, leaving a complete division, as in the bust. The original picture from which the print was taken was in the collection of Mr. Was probably painted by some one in the theatre; and, in addition to the rumour which has arisen, no one knows how, that the picture was painted from the poet when representing one of his own parts, there is another conjecture, which is that the character is that of old Knowell, in Ben Jonson's comedy of "Every Man in his Humour," which it a certain Shakspeare played in 1598.

The portrait which belongs to Mr. Fisher, and which was asserted to be that of Shakspeare, we have engraved to the left of the bust. It is generally known that Charles Jennens, who died childless in a long period to the Buckingham family, from whom it was purchased, at the sale of the effects of the last Duke of Buckingham, in 1848, for 205 guineas, and in 1856 presented to the gallery by the purchaser, the Earl of Ellesmere. Nevertheless, although it is one of the best pedigree and documentary evidence belonging to it of any picture, yet it is in the highest degree unsatisfactory. It does not resemble Shakspeare in colour or complexion; the chin and lips are weaker, the hair much darker; unless we accept the other horn of the dilemma, that the learned Dr. John Hall and Susannah Shakspeare, his wife, had their father's hair coloured lighter, his beard and moustache to match, and his cheeks painted red, and this most intimate friend would not know him. For, if the bust and at Dromhout be in general accordance, this picture is not even like a man. There is, besides, a lubricious, sensual expression in the mouth, and an effeminate, lazy appearance about the whole countenance of the man in his works. The chin and upper lip, too, are especially unlike the two standards which we have set up. Nevertheless, this has been a most popular portrait. Malone liked it so that he had three copies made of it :—

I know our gentle Shakspeare's face:
The reason why you'll plainly see,
His picture hangs in Chandos' Grace,
Of which I've got nine copies three.

And even now publishers and connoisseurs are equally attached to it. At the Shakspeare banquet at Stratford the other day the bust-lens was decorated with the Chandos picture, and it is probable that it perhaps because it belonged to a duke, and, secondly, because it is the earliest and most effective to engrave, and, lastly, because it has a good picture. Upon the back of the picture, by the engraving in the National Portrait Gallery are these words :—"The Chandos Shakspeare was the property of John Taylor, the player, by whom, or by Richard Burbage, it was painted. The picture was left by the former in his will to Sir William Davenant. After his death it was bought by Belterton, the actor, upon whose decease Mr. Keck, of the Temple, purchased it for forty guineas, and gave it to Betterton. Inherited by Mr. Nicholls, whose only daughter married James, Marquis of Carnarvon, afterwards Duke of Chandos." There is a good deal of assertion here. There was no John Taylor a player, and certainly Burbage did not paint it. We have authentic works of Burbage, and it is clearly unlike them. Davenant's possession of it may serve to stake their existence that the picture is by a foreign artist, of a date probably a hundred years.

On the left of the Droeshout picture we have engraved one from a print by Marshall, which is the earliest portrait of Shakspeare which possessed in 1640. The head is slightly altered from that by Droeshout, and the hair is of the same length, but the dress and the right shoulder is a cloak thrown somewhat theatrically, and the left hand, which is not seen in the other, is in the act of holding a book at Ben Jonson's lines, taken and dressed up to suit the publisher, and beginning,

This shadowe is renowned Shakspeare! Soule of the age!

This has often been copied. It has a pleasant and somewhat young face, and Mr. Charles Knight has conjectured that it may be included it among the few portraits he printed on the titlepage of his biography. After all, the Marshall print has but a reflected merit—being an adaptation of the Droeshout picture, by the Droeshout engraving.

The Somerset portrait, on the right of the bust, is a very fine picture, stated to have been painted by Cornelius Janson. It is very probably the work, and is a magnificent picture, but the fact that it ceases could have painted Shakspeare. But no reflecting man, who is at all conversant with the style of Janson, will deny that it was that of our poet. It is that of a refined gentleman, probably a nobleman of most sufficient pretensions to intellectuality, and it is not like the pictures taken for that poet. The history of this picture is curious. "The portrait now in the possession of the Duke of Somerset (said one who had the fifty years ago) was painted by Cornelius Janson, and belonged to Prince Rupert, who left it, with the rest of his collection, to his natural son, Dudley Bard, Esq., of Abbot's Langley, co. Herts. B. Bard, Esq., the descendants of whom sold the whole of the pictures to Mr., Alderman, a picture dealer." But although it can be traced to a picture-dealer, there are considerable doubts as to its having ever been in the possession of Prince Rupert, who was not a man of a refined courtier, with so very broad or wide mind, hardly a poet, certainly a politician. John Wilson, Prince Rupert's secretary, speaking of possessing an inferior copy of this work, had liberality and judgment enough to declare that Shakspeare was a person of sufficient worldly importance to have his portrait painted in a better manner than a manner. Above the head of the figure are the words, in a rude scroll, "Ætatis suæ 25," and below the picture is the motto of the engraving (Ep. i. lib. 2), in which, after complimenting his patron, the poet gives a splendid description of the fame the poet should have on that reader :

Irritat, mulcet, falsis terroribus implet
Ut Merus, et modo me Thebis, modo ponit Athenis.

Earlom engraved this picture, and by a fine it has been accepted as authentic; but, however valuable as a picture, it is utterly worthless as a portrait of Shakspeare.

The Felton picture, which is in the right lower corner of our Engraving, is from a fine painting, said to be by Burbage, but unquestionably not by him, and unquestionably a picture of a man that little of the worst kind and utterly damaging to the picture. It has been on exhibition, and has been engraved by Cousins, and is a painter of great knowledge of his art, Mr. Samuel Lawrence's, the accomplished and learned Mr. Halliwell, Shakspeare's Mr. Hall, and has been painted from the life, and, if so, there is a great probability in that "10" being Shakspeare's age. Mr. Felton is a gentleman of spirits with the Dromhout engraving and the bust. It so much resembles the Droeshout picture as to be evidently from the same hand, and the engravy painted from the Droeshout. The face is a long, intelligent Warwickshire face, of the same type which now remains in great abundance in the midland counties, brown and ruddy complexion. There is great merriment in the eye, and much power and sublimity as well as in and character in the forehead, and considerable intensity of the head. The history alone of this picture is so damaging that, if we suppose it to be a portrait of Shakspeare, we must say that Shakspeare at first sold it could not have been awake to the beauty of truth, and therefore could not be a great poet, and therefore could not write his lies. Mr. Felton, after whom the picture is named, died long since, and in his possession it was left by his widow, Mrs. Felton, passing, in 1792, at the "European Museum," a kind of muck-section sale-room, in Lisle-street, Leicester-square. The picture was described in it "a curious portrait of Shakspeare, painted in 1597." The auctioneer told the purchaser that he had bought it of "a little man with a big wig." The sign of Mr. Felton's house, cheaper, where the poet and his friends used to resort, and where Ben Jonson, it is said, wrote his "Every Man" at this time. His afterwards sold Steevens, who inquired about it, that it was found in a cask up by a chimney, in Shakspeare's playhouse, and, as a broker's shop in the Minories, and that Lord Leicester and Lord Southampton had been present at the finding of it. Upon the picture being sent to the Exhibition of 1862, it was described as

TALK ABOUT SHAKSPEARE COMMEMORATIONS AND PORTRAITS.

COMMEMORATIONS of the birthday and genius of Shakspeare—the greatest of all Englishmen—have been held from time to time, although such observances were not requisite to keep his memory green. Garrick, nearly a century since, "got up" his favourite scheme of a jubilee in honour of Shakspeare, at Stratford-on-Avon, and produced a pageant on the subject at Drury Lane in the following October. This was more a matter of managerial business than homage, for the pageant ran ninety-two nights, and brought much money to the treasury of the theatre. The temple which Garrick had built in his grounds at Hampton thirteen years previously (1756) was a more obvious piece of homage. Horace Walpole says of it—"Oh me! I are just going to Garrick's [at Hampton], with a grove of cypress in one hand, like the Kendals over the stage door." He has built a temple to his master, Shakspeare, and is natural that our desire should be the more intense to know what manner of man he was." We are anxious to know the personal features of him who described in his very handsome volume.

First of all comes that which hangs in the secretary's room at the Foundling Hospital, to which foundation it was presented by the late Mr. J. W. Pratt, of Adam-street, Bedford-row, and Doctor's-commons. This portrait, which Mr. Pott believed to be of Shakspeare, was exhibited to the Society of Antiquaries, on the 30th of November, 1848. In an accompanying memorandum, Mr. Pratt says:—"I am fully persuaded, from evidence that I have of a portrait of Shakspeare, painted by Zucchero, upon a small piece of panel, being in the possession of the present Sir Saviour's, Southwark. The picture is recorded to have been without a frame, and supposed by a party of cord." He adds:—"It does not appear at what period the picture was last eight of." William Pott, of Bedford-row, the last possessor but one of the picture exhibited, was Mr. Pott's maternal grandfather. He died in 1808, and left behind him a wife and two other paintings found with it, in the chest wherein they had been deposited, it appears, by Mr. Pott's father, who died about the year 1780, of the effects of a Doctor Compton. William Compton, LL.D., was one of Mr. P. W. Pott, of Adam-street, Bedford-row, and Doctor's-commons. This portrait, which Mr. Pott believed to be of Shakspeare, was exhibited to the Society of Antiquaries, on the 30th of November, 1848. In an accompanying memorandum, Mr. Pratt says:—"I am fully persuaded, from evidence that I have of a portrait of Shakspeare, painted by Zucchero, upon a small piece of panel, being in the possession of the present Sir Saviour's, Southwark. The picture is recorded to have been without a frame, and supposed by a party of cord." He adds:—"It does not appear at what period the picture was last eight of." William Pott, of Bedford-row, the last possessor but one of the picture exhibited, was Mr. Pott's maternal grandfather. He died in 1808, and left behind him a wife and two other paintings found with it, in the chest wherein they had been deposited, it appears, by Mr. Pott's father, who died about the year 1780, of the effects of a Doctor Compton. William Compton, LL.D., was Dean of Arches, and Official Principal of the Court of Canterbury. He resided in the College of Advocates in Doctors' Commons. He was also chancellor of the See of Ely. He had previously had professional occasion at the Surrey Ecclesiastical Court, which was formerly held at the Consistory Court of Ely House. Perplexity in his affairs, however, led him to pass much of his later time on the Continent, acting in his office of Chancellor of Ely by proxy. Shakspeare's contemporaries, Ben Jonson and Drayton, do not always tell convinced that they portrait exhibited to the society is the identical picture which belonged to the sixty-years of Sir Saviour's Southwark.

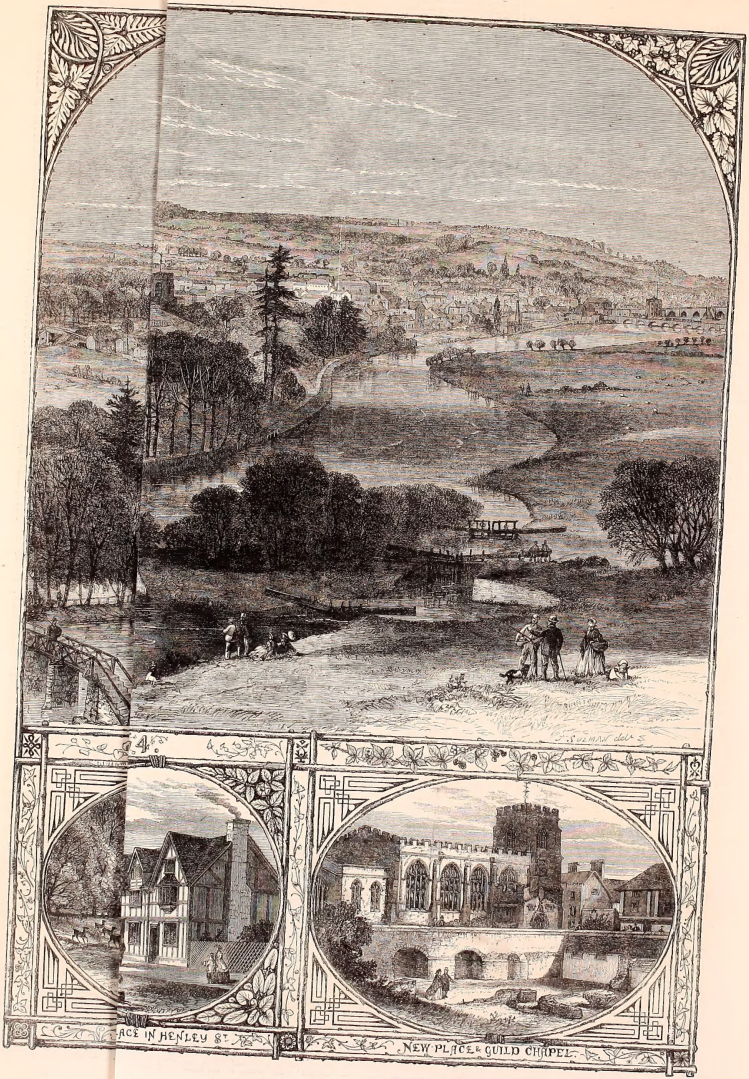
Sir Richard Phillips, however, while he has no doubt of the sincerity of Mr. Pott's belief, in a letter to Mr. Payne Collier, questions the accuracy of the tradition. Sir Richard says:—"I have seen the picture painted by Zucchero, hanging in the vestry-room: Sir Henry Ellis, the principal librarian of the British Museum, has seen it often and of very old inhabitants of the parish, as well as of a very old member of the family, and they all say that it has been there, had never heard of any such picture; nor could Sir Henry find any trace of the record of the picture so placed, either in histories of the parish or in any life of Shakspeare, although he has read almost all. Mr. Pott, of Adam-street, Bloomsbury, and Boyle's Surrey, vol. iii., p. 533, we read, from the archives of the Foundling."

In 1598, the vestry of the parish of St. Saviour ordered that a petition should be made to the Queen for the purchase of certain lands in the parish of Lambeth, wherein the enormities should be abused that cause thereto to the parish; and that four or five of the chief of the parish should repair to the Court therefor, and that four or five of the church-wardens should present the same.

In this petition, which was presented, the parishioners had been desired to present a petition to the Privy Council against the enormities which were abused in the parish from the very existence of a theatre within its limits, a portrait of which is said to have been found in a chamber of that theatre, whichever you should consider him, although by Zucchero, could not be Henry find any trace of the record of the picture so placed, either in histories of the parish or in any life of Shakspeare, although he has read almost all. Mr. Pott, of Adam-street, Bloomsbury and Boyle's Surrey, vol. iii., p. 533, we read, from the archives of the Foundling.

Sir Richard Phillips, however, while he has no doubt of the sincerity of Mr. Pott's belief, in a letter to Mr. Payne Collier, questions the accuracy of the tradition. Sir Richard says:—"I have seen the picture painted by Zucchero, hanging in the vestry-room: Sir Henry Ellis, the principal librarian of the British Museum, has seen it often and of very old inhabitants of the parish, as well as of a very old member of the family, and they all say that it has been there, had never heard of any such picture; nor could Sir Henry find any trace of the record of the picture so placed, either in histories of the parish or in any life of Shakspeare, although he has read almost all. Mr. Pott, of Adam-street, Bloomsbury and Boyle's Surrey, vol. iii., p. 533, we read, from the archives of the Foundling."

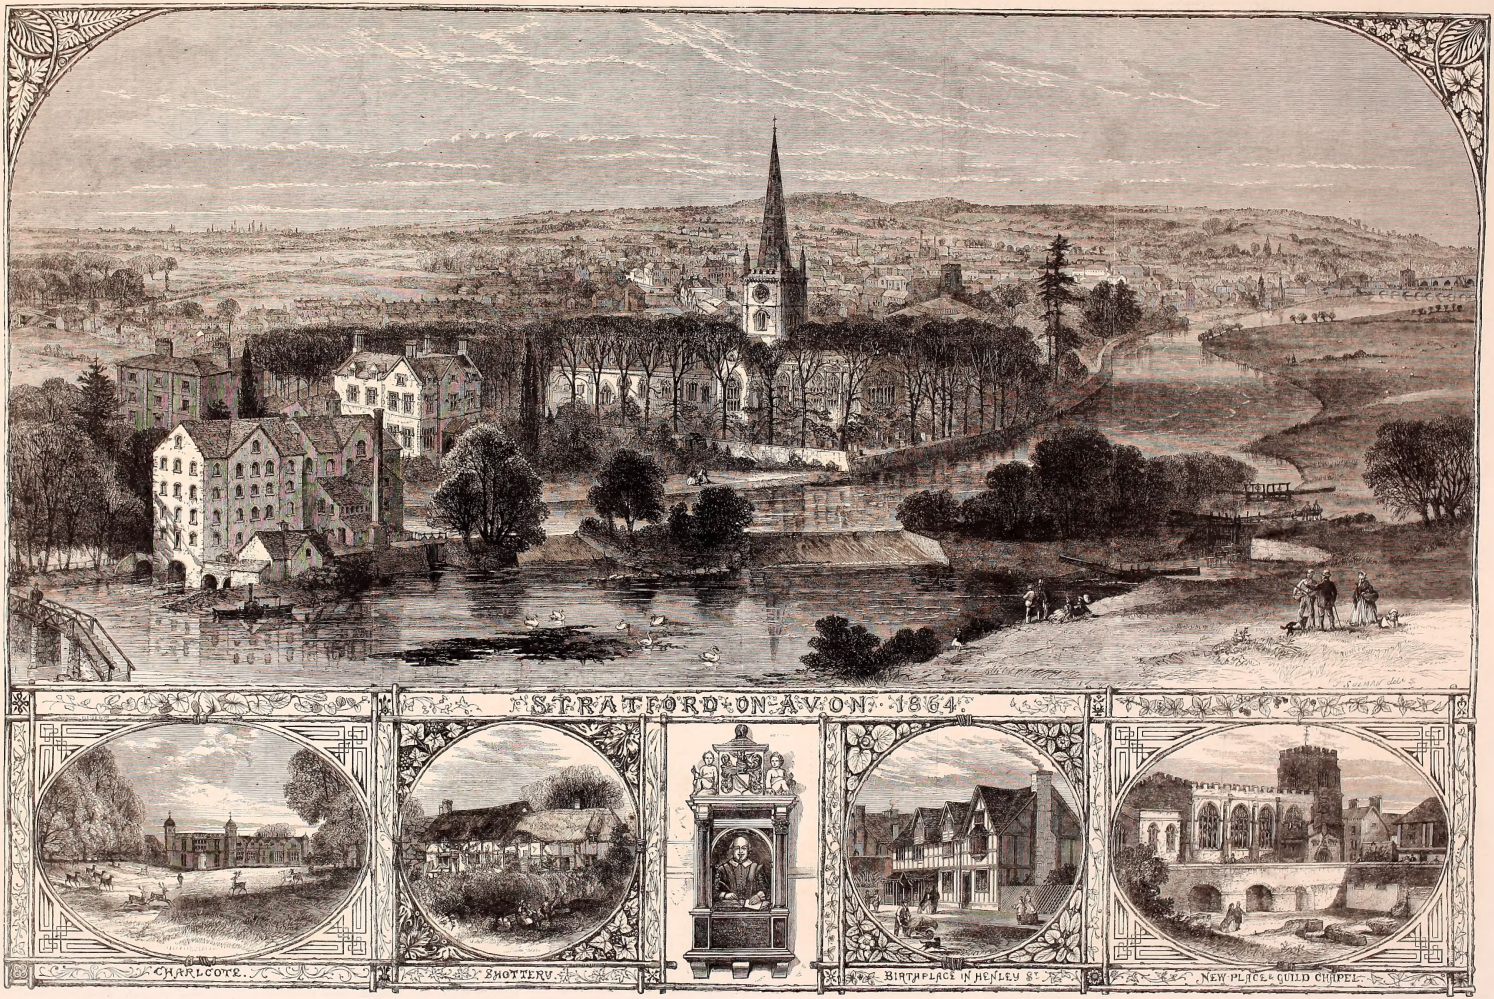
In 1598, the vestry of the parish of St. Saviour ordered that a petition should be made to the Queen for the purchase of certain lands in the parish of Lambeth, wherein the enormities should be abused that cause thereto to the parish; and that four or five of the chief of the parish should repair to the Court therefor, and that four or five of the church-wardens should present the same.



In this petition, which was presented, the parishioners had been desired to present a petition to the Privy Council against the enormities which were abused in the parish from the very existence of a theatre within its limits, a portrait of which is said to have been found in a chamber of that theatre, whichever you should consider him, although by Zucchero, could not be Henry find any trace of the record of the picture so placed, either in histories of the parish or in any life of Shakspeare, although he has read almost all. Mr. Pott, of Adam-street, Bloomsbury and Boyle's Surrey, vol. iii., p. 533, we read, from the archives of the Foundling.

THE SHAKSPEARE CO

PEARE COMMEMORATION.



ACE IN HENLEY ST.

NEW PLACE & GUILD CHAPEL.

THE SHAKSPEARE COMMEMORATION.

FINE ARTS.

EXHIBITION OF THE SOCIETY OF PAINTERS IN WATER COLOURS.

Nor within the memory of the oldest habitué has there been, we believe, so good an exhibition as that of the elder Society of Water-Colour Painters opened this week. There is, indeed, not an absolute re-cruhescence that we must at once proceed to detailed description if we are to hope to do justice to the contributors individually. Incidentally, however, we must remark—and it will strike every visitor on entering—that a liberble bust of the late William Hunt, by A. Munro (which we hope shortly to engrave), has been placed in the most prominent position in the room.

By the general merit of water colour—so well deserving this consummation—unequalled, as we think, in the history of art in his own humble department of the craft—Isabella has three busts, two examples. Of these one has a sad and peculiar interest—No. 332, "Apple Gregg, aet. 8, the last Portrait painted by the artist." The Flower Girl" (275), and "Pineapple, &c." (265), were, too, painted as recently as 1863. The "last finished work" painted, be it remembered, by a patriarch of seventy-four—betrays scarcely the slightest trace of failure in his marvellous powers of colour and touch and "The Flower Girl," a plain, humbly-clad girl, standing beside an immense basket of flowers, is, though rather a sketch than a finished drawing, wonderful for breadth, variety power and truth and vigour of execution. Those velvety peaches, bloom-covered grapes and plums, sanguinal strawberries, and shining apples, are the very blushing roses, the downy lining to that bird's nest, that bunch of sparagle dew-blooms, and those pulpy pineapples, are not to be in the drawings here exhibited, until also the visitor's reverent attention and study. All is the last that Hunt will ever paint, and all is in the room, and there is no prospect that we shall "look upon their like again" from other hands.

The four "Associate" members recently elected—Messrs. Walker, Longdon, Boyce, and Jones—are fully entitled by its merit to the honour and variety of the exhibition.

In Mr. Walker, who has hitherto been known principally as a draughtsman in chalk, the society has made a most valuable acquisition. Mr. Walker is already a most admirable, we had almost said a great, artist. To exactly define his style, to say what school or what for they consist less in salient excellences than in a general and balanced artistic completeness and truth of the impression left by the subject to be treated. In his rustic figure-painting, though not so vigorous in colour and touch as Hunt, there is something of hand which comes only with long practice, his remind one of the author's successive excursions in the Highlands. There is, however, conveying any impression of copyism; while in a scene from "Duchesse's Tragedy" there is a touch of the Shakespearian humour and a refinement of pathos quite his own. The scene from "Philip (317) is a repetition of an illustration of that novel by Mr. Walker in the Cornhill Magazine. The drama—sometimes the tragedy—of home here, hunshed under his trials and thankful for a small kindness just shown to him, were accomplished in the "Old Arm Chair" and two children, to an old church in Queen-square, Bloomsbury, which was fashionable in the days of the Georges, when Richard Steele kept house and did not pay rent but "by." The group of children is full of character, humour, and pure. The manly, fair-haired Philip ponders gravely and reverently over the words at which his companion points in the open book in bowed with sadder, fowler humility; while the lovely little girl neates close to the reader and so shares with him the prayer-book and the intelligent little fellow on the other side of the book is full of askance inquiringly, and with unconscious, half-formed sympathy. It would be difficult to praise too highly the delicacy and truth of the faceted sentiment in this beautiful little picture. Similar qualities of truth, simplicity, and refinement are to be found in "Sunday" and "Refreshment" (292)—the latter a picnic of children—the chaste dignity of poetic style. "Reading the Scriptures" is a composition of two gathering a poor of prisoners. Delightedly she has just espied a cluster of the flowers she has gathered beneath. The face, too, of the girl, the drawing of the slender budding branches, the pale light of the sunset, and the harmony throughout, are all worthy of such nature, and beautiful as true. "A Garden Scene" (31), by the same artist, is only inferior in the somewhat unpleasant portrait-like character of the faces.

E. Landgon, a painter of Swedish extraction, is another promising new member. In "Sunday Afternoon" (3) the artist's language is broadly and richly coloured, and admirably true to the Spanish physiognomy. The bright, light fields of the distance are perhaps too honors, but leaving the old bones rambling in the dark, is happily conceived. G. F. Boyce makes but few and very unpretending works which seem to arrange themselves in two classes. He has drawings necessarily inferior by reason of their subjects to the indefinite and suggestive as the "View near Goring, Oxfordshire," and "By the side of the King, Cairo" (16)—drawings of great delicacy and truthful evening shadow tone; the other a later effect of twilight, when objects with two ends indistinguishable unity of shade. In several other drawings Mr. Boyce has shown his fine feeling of conveying an impression of full daylight, as the "View at Busse, near Oxford" (15), the landscape with the cattle in the stream (a picture; and "Godstone Nunnery" (112). In these the artist is direct, literal, and inductive as photography itself in every particular being very positive, look (as they always will in a picture) crude because, though true of the abstract, they are not true to the not relatively subordinated to the effects of atmosphere and the thousand accidents of surface in the real grass and the real trees. The sunlight effects impress as strikingly truthful.

The fourth new member, E. Burne Jones, belongs to a small class of mediævalists, headed by Gabriel Rossetti. Mr. Jones exhibits four drawings, and quite as would we estimate them from the purely artistic, or even the archæological, point of view are of great value as a principle of art and a law of progress which we have always strenuously upheld. Mr. Jones, like Mr. Rossetti, is a most accurately simulated mediævalism that would fain be more archaic than thirteenth-century art, and is consequently unnatural and affected. What can be said of Mr. Jones's silly, gawky "Cinderella" (34), with her fat nose twisted down to look like a pig's snout, and her arm sickly, ill-favoured, "Fair Rosamond" (109)? his Gittenpue pinafore, "The Annunciation" (110), and "Sir Galahad" (111)? at probability, to say nothing of propriety, the Virgin is going to bed on a balcony in the open air? and her angel visitor is a "Knight of the Knight" (115), in which the construction of the scaffold-like Merciful the flowers of the ground, and how much more accessories got there is equally miraculous with the stooping forward of the Virgin's head? effigy? What sort of such prominent but happily unique examples of affectation and perversity? The latest "school" pieces are called ultra pre-Raphaelite, but they really do not at all bear out Mr. Ruskin's statement that the pre-Raphaelites are a school of art to be around them with the help of modern science and with the earnestness of the best of the mediæval painters. Pre-Raphaelites they are in no more of nature than of modern science in them. They servilely imitate the peculiarities of mediæval art, which, in the thirteenth century painters, but they have a total disregard of outline and drawing, and a license of colour which is not even that of the Giottesini; and as for "earnestness," there can be no genuine earnestness without health, and no genuine health without truthfulness. The simple image of Christ kissed the merciful knight" as more in line in his extremity. Extremes meet; and it is curious to reflect how closely analogous are the principles of the worst and the best painters of the most specious specimens of studio mere-tricciousness. For the purpose here is just as false as the adoration of amateurs, and even of "critics," when such eccentricities are admired because they are eccentric, and not understood: as in the history of art itself imperfections doubtless often passed as beauties because nobody knew any better. Yet for a modern painter to seriously try to convert himself into a Giottino is surely as absurd and unnatural as for a bearded man to go into swaddling-clothes and take to the regimen of infancy. We see most of the pre-Raphaelites coming back to common-sense, and we hope to see Mr. Jones doing likewise: for surely the foolish object will strive to control him and them. We say this much because this artist has distinguished himself by some more legitimate way as a painter of Gothic windows at Oxford and elsewhere, and because in these drawings, notwithstanding his pre-lensive mannerizing, there are unmistakable evidences of artistic capacity. He has a rare and precious gift of colour, though its value is greatly diminished by its arbitrary employment, and because always inclining him to exaggeration, as in the willow pattern. (!) plates of "Cinderella." His innate sense of beauty is, however, in other respects grievously perverted, his females generally are wanting in all the ordinary attributes of humanity.

W. C. Smith's drawing of "Autumn of honour" with a large drawing which strikes at first as awkward in composition, a lady's back being the object which most attracts attention, and this being the more obtrusive, because she is habited in a bright blue surcol or external cover, and is standing in front of a light ground. The twenty twenty, hanging from the elbows; and, as the corset has not the long train of the day, and her dress stands midway on a staircase, the lines of the figure appear to be sagging downwards quickly, however, forgets this peculiarity in admiration of the delicate and truthful representation of the lady herself presented, and to appreciate which needs no acquaintance with the Northumberland family. The drawing is entitled "Lady Jane Neville and Hildebrand," and the subject is the meeting of Hellell—a Seattle scandal among Scandinavian writers—with his betrothed, her hitherto unavowed lover, on a turret stairs. The knight, with his hand on his sword-hilt, is impetuously about to descend, but drawn to the wall to let the maiden pass up the narrow winding stair, and she, timid and apprehensive of a possible quarrel to both, has almost passed beyond his reach, when he is irresistibly impelled to discover with a passionate caress her arm and, crossed over it his mailed hands, to kiss and press it to his bosom. He dwells upon the head of the lady with an air of devoting her love and her flowers, does not withdraw her arm, but seems to shrink from a further reward. In many respects this is the best drawing exhibited. Tentonic ballads there is, according to Hallam, the natural passion of lovers, but none in that conventional adoration of all romance and which is so remarkable an attribute of the Arthurian legends. Another drawing, by Burton, of "The Child Miranda" (329), shelf-beholded, and the child's expression of fear at the lightning has placed to be ear, sitting listening to the enchanted "noises and sweet airs" of the island, is also full of truth and beauty. It is very delightful in execution. "L'Ecuyer" (297), a youthful squire carrying his knightly master's salade, is another excellent drawing.

John Gilbert is a large contributor. His most important drawing is unquestionably "The Battle of Naseby" (1), which is not so topographically described by Macaulay, when the wounded William III. is at the head of the left wing of his army, composed entirely of cavalry, cords the river to attack the army of James, posted on the opposite bank. The rich, lace-embroidered uniforms of William and his staff, with the banners and the white-plumed helmets, perhaps keep deep in the water, the splendid array of Life Guards, Blues, and Inniskillings, the Dutch Horse Guards and Scots Greys, breaks from the foot regiments of the centre, commanded by Schomberg, together with the artillery, and the Huguenot regiment of "Sir Isaac Israel" (3) is another fine drawing, telling its terrible tale plainly enough—the dead and dying on the ground, the wounded in the rear, the look of heart: in the victor who, now coiled and saddened, wipes his sword-blade on the skirt of his coat and wine-flasks lying about, in the general confusion and disarray. A representation of a battle and, pursuing, but not, we think, so dramatically successful as, of a scene in "Don Quixote" (2), "Don Quixote and the Yanguesian Muleteers," is another of Mr. Gilbert's well found to deserve admiration. Those in the "Merchant of Venice" (4), and "Twelfth Night" (5), are comparatively small drawings from sketches made on his journey to Palestine some years ago. "Ben Israel" (9), "Sir Isaac Israel," "Kathaneen, Jerusalem" (100); "Kieff-Yaous" (6); "A Welcome" (104), a wounded Russian officer, and "Sentinels" (105), "Sir Isaac" (154), an Arab, having hailed his camel, on which is his terrified wife and child, to a halt, and preparing leading his gun, suspecting an attack, and "Sir Isaac" (155), a Bedouin Arab, are all drawings of great interest, executive in light and shade, without apparent exaggeration. The President of the Society has also contributed a splendid and certain in handling—certain with the certainty of knowledge—to "The Inhabitants of Jerusalem Assembling to Witness the Burning" (19). F. W. Topham exhibits examples of the three classes of subjects by which he is known to the public. "Sir Isaac" (20), "Group of Peasants" (121), Spanish, in "Music" (151), and Irish (appropriately, in the "Irish Girl" (152). The last, perhaps, is the most successful of the three, which neither gives pleasure nor touches our sympathies fails to answer the purpose of art. In a little woolly-headed Nubian slave lying with his body so foreshortened that he looks like a mummy, and his head and shoulders on a low, whitewalled cask of, perhaps, some seraglio garden, in order to catch cold fish and other delicacies, Mr. Topham has produced a charming and delighting. Yet this work has very considerable technical merits as regards colour, effective in light and shade, and truth. It is not, however, in subjects which, if less carefully painted, are simple and unaffected that Mr. Topham is most at home. "Sir Isaac" (20), "A Pulpy" "Shepherd Boy" (72) standing on the brink of one of our lanes—Mr. Topham's landscape is, we think, at its best when, to see if you are listening before he begins to pipe on his bagpolet, we have a little of the "Sir Isaac" type in a larger picture. "The Mischievous Lad" (139), there is a convention in all the figures which we have not hitherto seen in this artist's works. Among remaining figure-drawings in water colours we may refer to the artist's Scotch view, suggest some suspicion of too much mere studio work in these. "Sir Isaac" (20), contributed by Mr. Topham, and "Sir Isaac" Jenkins," and drawings by O. Oakley, Riviere, and Miss Gillies.

In the landscape department there is, as usual, extremely rich. A few have already been named; but the bulk representative as they are of the Society's strength, we will go on to refer to them in more characterisation. Who, for instance, is not familiar with the skill in architectural drawing of Richardson? Mr. Richardson's Italian views, here exemplified in the "Castel-a-Mare" (1), the "Amalfi" (2), "Ravello" (3), and "Duomo," and "City of Chiusi, in Etruria," near Perugia" (31), and which, by their representation of the artist's Scotch views cost, in every way suggestive of blood, stands with his hand on the Testament as he deliberately swears. Alva, in a full suit of armour, sits watching him intently, to be satisfied that he may be trusted. One fanatic monk holds forth a Bible, pointing, let us suppose, to some commissary purpose on unbelievers; another raises a crucifix encouragingly; a third, however, passes in his occupation of taking notes, horrified, and hesitating to record the fearful address of Vargas; and even a Spanish member of the Inquisition in black crowds dubiously.

The second picture represents "The Reading of the Sentence of Death to Counts Egmont and Horn. The scene is a chamber in the Broodhuis, at Brussels, where, during the night before their execution, on the place in front of this and the Hotel de Ville the two nobles were confined. A group of officials, for which the register, or secretary (le greffier), reads the sentence, and in the light of a lamp which stands on a table before him are watched by these, with an attendant councillor and guards, the two Counts, Egmont and Horn, the servant of the latter, and a Dutch priest. It is characteristic of the different temperaments of the condemned men that Horn, the listening with energy and scarcely abated resignation, while Egmont, more impressionable, though fully as brave, betrays emotion by grasping the hand of his sympathising confessor, the excellent Bishop. In these two pictures the artist has painter has disregarded some minor historical details in these pictures, such as representing the friendly Montigny present at the execution, which would seem contrary to Horn's statement from the scaffold to the crowd, that they had been kept apart from all communication from timement; yet, by doing so, he has, after all, only given us incidents of possible history, and with their aid has produced two powerfully dramatic, though, perhaps, on the whole, too theatrical.

M. Leys, like Gallait, has chosen for the illustration of the great events of history of his native Netherlands; but, unlike the latter, he is accompanied hardly to literal fact, and may become so infused with the spirit and aspects of the past that his representations of it appear to have the verisimilitude of photographs. Nor has he also fallen into the exaggerations to which all artists who paint in costume are inevitably tend. He now refers to nature much less than to the works of the time of Flemish masters; consults with great care documents he also reproduces their quaint peculiarities and defects. His picture of a sitting of Antwerp Council, in which a sentence of exile is pro- nounced, going to church on New-Year's Day, in the sixteenth century, has extraordinary truth of colour and of the varied types of the people and buildings being very true in contrast with the snow and it looks like a wonderfully bit of photography. The "Last Instructions to which we have adverted are more conspicuous in "the portraits," the master of the Duke of Alva, the secretary, and the crossbow; the other of "Philip the Fair" (1491), and who, if like what M. Leys has made him, must have had his "addition" given him ironically.

Next to the preceding in interest is a small picture by Groome, a replica of another in the Isaf Paris exhibition, somewhat altered, and probably condemned for execution, being conveyed down the Nile in a boat, guarded by a Nubian and a Turkish soldier. The Turkish soldier sitting in the stern, and with a passenger at the bow compassionately speaks to the accompanying guard, who appears to beguile the telltale of the distance and the monotonous silence of the unvarying scene. The prisoner sits in the centre of the boat, tied to a plank, with his wrists confined in a small, portable kind of wooden stock. It is evening, and the sun is apparently already shimmering into the soft haze which veils the distant ruins of Thebes. The artistic refinement and finish of the whole are nothing short of marvellous. A study by the French painter, Jules Breton's Barook has the same perfection of realisation.

There is no other picture of such singular felicity which Edouard Frère has of rendering the simple peasant interiors of Brown Bess and his wife and work's young children, and the cottage. A family of three generations have collected round their humble midday meal—the eldest of the group, a white-haired old man, in aged grandame passes, ladle in hand, over the bowls, and all listen with more or less reverence and attentiveness to the story of which the youngest, whose prattle threatens to disturb the solemn pause. Duverger was one of Ingres' favourite pupils, and his style, as we remember, painted so charmingly, as in a picture of children playing at "Ride and Run," with an effect of sunlight breaking into the cottage. Jules Breton, Eugène Labbé, Lambert, Ulmann, Bonnat paint a similar class of rustic subjects. Jules Breton's picture of Children under their orchard's blossoming boughs, with their grandpapa on his "bathchair" is a good example of his unaffected and unvulgar excellence. The Belgian, Alfred Stevens, has all the breadth of light for which the painter is remarkable. By A. Scheyer there are numerous pictures of the interiors and exteriors of mounted Arabs, and a large picture representing a Russian sledge bearing through a snowstorm, and pursued by a pack of famished wolves,—the occupant of the sledge having just emptied at one a barrel of his drinking spirit; and, in a corresponding spirit and on an Algerian falconry, by Fromentin. Plassan sends two or three of his choice but delicate little bonbon morceaux; also, and of much more sterling quality, the "Scene from the Massacre of Saint Bartholomew," by Muse. Jourdain breaks in upon the entertainment given to his fine acquaintance by her old "governess" with a picture of "Voltaire," a group of bibliomaniacs by Ruprecht, and studies by Fernandez, remind us of Meissonier's microscopic minuteness. In the miniature-battle-painter, has a picture of "Wounded Soldiers removed from the Field Italy, 1859." A picture of a cattle-market, and another with their seats in a Spanish posada is a promising work by Vibert.

The extraordinary technical skill of Alfred Stevens, is not seen to special advantage in a study of a lady spinning a lemon to make "A Glass of Negus," a large picture by Dillens, of a Zealand "Wedding Feast," seems particularly good, and deserves a better place. There are very remarkable certainly of touch, distinctness of effect, and general merit in "Mr. Manvers' Widow," by Biscoop. Israels, the painter of that most impressive and pathetic picture, "The Shipwrecked Man," in the celebrated Exhibition, has one hardly less melancholy, representing the widow of a drowned fisherman receiving from the noble humbler refuge her few poor articles of furniture, recovered by her children. "The Shipwrecked Man" is the subject picture. Shelfhout, in landscape; Springer and Wisscenbruch, in architectural views, are also prominent. Of the contributors to landscape and sea pieces, subjects by Andreae (the elder) Achenbach by Lauhardt, and by Koekkoek, are the most conspicuous. Overbeeking Hobbema; by Roosenboom—very sunny; and Hans Gude, should like wise not be overlooked. Verschuur, the painter of the delightfully pastoral Dutch sculptor, has a large picture, "The Shipwreck," which could be more warmly praised did not the half-drowned child so closely resemble the well-known "Sick Child" of Miss. Henrietta Brown.

The large gallery of the Egyptian Hall has just been devoted to a kind of triennial exhibition of pictures, the contributors to or partitions there are, first, the series of water-colour drawings, by Herr Carl Werner, of Jerusalem and its environs, which we have noticed on their exhibition in the gallery of the Institute of Painters in Water Colours; secondly, the large picture of "Jerusalem," by Mr. Solous, which we have also noticed; and, lastly, a large historical picture, new to us as a work, by Mr. Chaplin, an English painter of considerable reputation, resident at Fontainebleau. Each picture is entitled "An Afternoon at Hampton Court in the Summer of 1658," and represents Cromwell in the retirement of his palace, surrounded by his family and most intimate friends. Milton is playing on a chamber organ, and Andrew Marvell and Peter Lely converse slightly towards Mr. Claypole, as if gratified with the expression of admiration in the refined and saintly face of his favourite daughter. Andrew Marvel stands behind the lady's chair; and in other parts of the room Secretary Thurlowe with Mrs. Cromwell, the daughters, are Lady Fauconberg, Lady Frances Russell, and an unmarried girl, the son, Richard Cromwell, and other members of the family. Having a little fooleisen in the modelling of some of the heads, the picture is generally very meritorious, particularly as regards colour and propriety of feeling. It is a comparative novelty to see the great Protector as a private character, and the representation must be welcome to his many admirers. The picture is being engraved, and, from the story and the interest of the subject, the plate will probably be popular.

CURRENT LITERATURE.

The Works of William Shakespeare. By the Rev. A. Dyce. (Vol. III. Chapman and Hall.) Amongst the many memorials and monuments which the accumulated reverence of 300 years, unable any longer to abstain from common-place expression, is at this time occupied in devising for the purpose of heaping honour or ridicule—after sundaies have been duly considered, and the most ingenious ridiculous—upon the name of the Bard of Avon, it would not be proper to class such works as that of Mr. Dyce. His second and improved edition would, no doubt, have made its appearance whether there had or had not been any claptrap talked about a tercentenary celebration. And yet it is a very fitting tribute to the memory of the poet; and, as there was to be a tercentenary festival, this third volume came out in time for it. Mr. Dyce's edition is entitled to every kind of excellence. Its outside is substantial and elegant; and its inside is so. He has given us the text in the most unpretentious, sible; so far as the labours of an editor are concerned, extremely valuable. The following extract from the preface to "As You Like It," "The Taming of the Shrew," "All's Well that Ends Well," "Twelfth Night," and "The Winter's Tale," is as it ought to conceive a more fitting memento of Shakspeare than the eight volumes, certainly not more valuable, will make "for self and friend."

Shakspeare. By Thomas De Quincey. (1 vol. Adam and Charles Black.) A shilling's-worth of De Quincey is pretty certain to be a good value, as they say in the retail trade, upon any subject, and the Messrs. Black have therefore done well in putting a graceful form and at a cheap price the late opium-eater's biography of him whose name is now a household word in every English family, and mingles in the drum of everybody's ear. It must be remembered, however, that this volume is not a biography in the sense usually written, that it has not had the benefit of the author's revision, and that since the compilation of the papers which it contains discoveries have arisen on whose side De Quincey might have ranged himself, or with whom he might have "come to compromise." But, whatever may be the worth of his criticism upon matters of detail, he yielded to none in his estimate of Shakspeare's genius may be gathered from the concluding sentences of the paragraph with which he introduces the poet after the following (exaggerated?) fashion:—"O mighty poet! thy works are not more wonderful than thou art, thou great works of art; but are also like the phenomena of nature, like the sun and the sea, like the stars of heaven, like the flowers and rainbi and dew, hailstorm and thunder, which are to be studied with entire submission of the understanding, because in degree as this is done the in them there can be no too much or too little, nothing useless or worthless, but that all parts of the universe without exception do also something more, being saturated with Divine wisdom, such as we have been content to call mysterious, because unable to explain."

On Shakspeare's Knowledge and Use of the Bible. By Charles Wordsworth, D.C.L. (1 vol. Smith, Elder, and Co.) The learned Bishop of St. Andrew's has here collected a mass of evidence to show that Shakspeare was, "in a more than ordinary degree, a diligent and not a mere reader of the Bible, and that he was in the habit of turning to it for more and for better account than any of his critics have yet pointed out." The Bishop goes on to say, "his works have been called the secular Bible," and, if we may be allowed to express our idea, they are also something more, being saturated with Divine wisdom, such as we have been content to call mysterious, because unable to explain. The Bishop dedicates the book to his children, an indisputable proof of the sincerity with which he means to recommend it to them, and, independently of that fact, his position entitles him to every respect. The work is, we vote two parts, whereof the former, dealing, after no very novel or profound style, with Shakspeare's knowledge of the Bible (not for the instruction of the young); and the second, illustrating by reference to the Sacred Volume the Poet's treatment of his subject, is the more satisfactory, aims at proving to everybody who cares to be convinced that "God is not mocked," and that "the wages of sin is death," as revealed to him in vain." Then can be no little reason for trying—though the success, of course, is not guaranteed—that "many of those very persons have tried—to prove the contrary, that the Bishop ought to have, if they had not, written a book to which Shakspeare has been indebted to Holy Writ, not only for political diction and sentiment, but for the most beautiful and sublime images which are to be found in his works." Nor can we go with him when he says (p. 270) that "the Bible is not only put had in his eye that beautiful and most pathetic passage of the Prophet Isaiah in which he addresses Jerusalem, and the city people as a widow," alix. 15, "Can a woman forget her sucking child?" . . . Yea, they may forget, yet will I not forget thee," when he wrote, in "King Henry V.," that well-known speech of the King on the eve of the victory at Agincourt:—

> "Then shall I die sweet of the fear of Crispin:
> He that outlive this day, and comes safe home,
> Will stand a-tiptoe when this day is named,
> And rouse him at the name of Crispian.
> He that shall live this day, and see old age,
> Will yearly on the vigil feast his neighbours,
> And say, 'To-morrow is Saint Crispian.'
> Then will he strip his sleeve and show his scars,
> And say, 'These wounds I had on Crispin's day.'
> Old men forget; yea (sic), all shall be forget,
> But he'll remember with advantages
> What feats he did that day."

He changes the received reading, "yet," into "yea" (as Malone conjectured, before with any view to the scriptural words) for the parallel's sake, but, for our own part, how the Bishop can see any such way in the habit of forgetting everything, can be considered as a striking parallel to that of God, who declares that even should the habit of forgetting her sucking child, we are at a loss to conceive. As for the remainder of the book, it is full of interest, and, in the engaging and sunny all people, heathen and Christian, and might occur to any one, however little read in the Sacred Volume. Hamlet, in another place, Hamlet says, "O heaven and earth! What can I mean! I speak to you, my mother!" It is just as reasonable to suppose that the language was suggested by the remembrance of the prophet. Again, the Bishop cites in Hamlet's expression, "I will speak daggers," only an echo of Jeremiah, "Their tongue is as an arrow shot out." Now, even if it be so, it would not require a very close study of the Bible to discover passages which, in the Shakspearian church-going way properly attended to, would be convenient with it. However, we are not disposed to quarrel with the Bishop's agreement with the Scriptures; we merely wish to express an opinion that the Bible language in which he finds Shakspeare indebted is rarely poetic instances, which are far from supporting that idea of close study which the Bishop would attribute to the Poet. We are willing to Shakspeare that the poet had a considerable knowledge of the Scriptures, and that he knew how to employ his poetry, his principles, and his sentiments were moulded by the Bible, though that not so much as we can tell, and human speculation on the subject appears (in our humble opinion) idle; for it is probable that Shakspeare was more careful to put appropriate language into the mouths of his characters than to indulge his own religious opinions; so that if it could be proved that the majority of his quotations were from the Scriptures, it would be no proof of personal language, he would, if he were judged from the internal evidence of his works, be entitled to the character of a sceptic. We do not say he deserve; and so, on the other hand, if the preponderance of characters in his plays were Christian, it would gain credit for a sanctity which might not belong to him. In fact, it is almost unfair—even if the result be satisfactory—to look for a special object in writings which were not written with a view to that special object. We must, however, express our thanks to the Bishop for the many instances in which he has passed deserved attention upon Mr. Bowdler's "Family Shakspeare;" for, if Mr. Bowdler be judge of profanity, it is to be hoped we are not in the way of it.

A Walk from London to John o'Groat's. By Lillus Burnett. (1 vol. Simpkin, Marshall, and Co.) This is a very pleasant book, and in nearly every respect, except Americanisms of spelling phrase, and again; but, as his author tells us his book originally came for ILLUSTRATIONS OF THE WAR IN AMERICA.

We have engraved on the next page two more of our Special Artist's sketches illustrative of the American war.

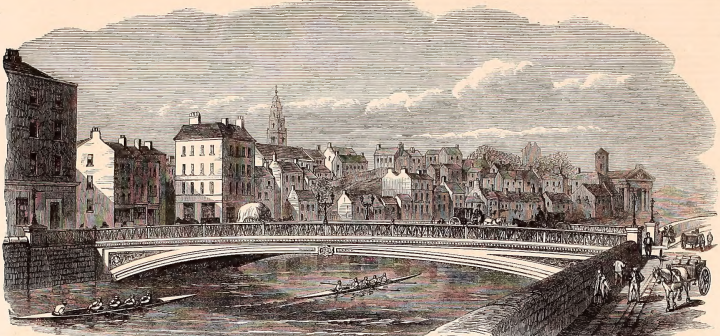
UNLOADING COTTON FROM BLOCKADE-RUNNERS AT THE FORT OF WILMINGTON.

The first Engraving represents an operation which, though its locality is the British port of Nassau, in the West Indies, must be described as much as a feature of the American war. The Fort of Wilmington at April 16 we published a View of Nassau, with one of those steamboats which have been built for the purpose of running the blockade off Wilmington just entering the neutral harbour in safety. We now engrave a scene at the disembarkation lying of the bales of Nassau and unshipping her valuable freight. The thousand negroes engaged in the business make the neighbourhood of the quays resound with their songs as they heave and haul at the heavy bales; and each carried away on a trolley, long on to the flat of the piles and relieve themselves by a "break down." As the cotton is usually the property of persons who have contracted to purchase it beforehand in exchange for their cargoes of English manufactured goods, this illustration may be regarded with particular interest by some of our readers.

GENERAL STUART'S WINTER QUARTERS ON THE RAPIDAN.

We will now proceed to describe in his own words the second Illustration:—"Probably," he says, "the Confederate General in command frequently hood of in England than the gallant and chivalrous Stuart, who commands the Confederate cavalry in Virginia. Almost every mail brings to Europe some tidings of a raid conducted by the dashing leader in the Federal rear, or the capture of a Yankee supply-train between the Rappahannock and Potomac rivers, or a cattle-driving incursion. Below is the rent on the right-hand side of the Engraving that his orders for the host and subsequently forth" and whom once been active on the Federal soldiers get but little rest. However, as the snow now thickly covers the soil of Virginia, the General is compelled to an ungrateful idleness, and your Correspondent takes advantage of the moment's quiet to make the accompanying drawing." This Engraving was applicable to the state of the weather in Virginia at the time our Artist's sketch was made.

The Sultan's new yacht Talia, which arrived at Constantinople on the 7th inst., made the passage in less than eleven days, exclusive of stoppages, from the Thames. The vessel, which, the crew all the while very working hard upon.



ILLUSTRATIONS OF THE WAR IN AMERICA, BY OUR SPECIAL ARTIST.

UNLOADING COTTON FROM BLOCKADE-RUNNERS AT NASSAU, NEW PROVIDENCE.

GENERAL STUART'S HEAD-QUARTERS ON THE RAPIDAN.—SEE PRECEDING PAGE.

THE NEW NORTHGATE IRON BRIDGE AT CORK.

The opening of the new bridge over the river Lee, connecting the northern quarter of Cork with the central parts of that city, took place on St. Patrick's Day, the 17th of March. There was no great ceremony on this occasion; but at nine o'clock in the morning the Mayor, accompanied by the civic officers, removed the board fixed at one end of the bridge, then walked over it, and declared it open for traffic. We have engraved a sketch of the new bridge, which is of handsome proportions, and an ornament to the pleasant city in which it is built. The whole work was designed and superintended by Sir John Benson; Mr. Barry M'Mullen has the credit of its execution. The contractors for the iron arch were Messrs. Rankin and Co., of Liverpool. Its span is 106 ft., clearing the width of the river. The road, which is nearly level, its inclins being only 1 in 26, is carried over strong iron plates, resting upon eight cast-iron ribs, which are embedded in solid masonry: the stones of the abutments being 8 ft. long. The foundations, at one end, are upon the rock, and, at the other end, composed of blocks of stone, 6 ft. by 4 ft., laid on a bed of cement concrete 2 ft. thick. The carriage-way is 24 ft. wide, and there is a footpath, 8 ft. wide, on each side, flagged with granite. The bridge is ornamented with mouldings upon its external ribs, which define the outline of the arch. The railings, too, springing from moulded and fluted cornices, are of an ornamental design. After passing the bridge they extend, with graceful curves, 12 ft. across the quays on each side, and terminate in stone posts, surmounted with lamps, and inscribed with the date of the erection of the bridge. In the centre of the balustrade are two other ornamental lamp-posts. The arch itself is further decorated with medallions in the cast-iron flanges set in the spandrils at each end. The medallions looking westward contain busts, in relief, of the Queen and Prince Albert; while those looking westward display similar busts of Daniel O'Connell and the poet Moore.

PARIS FASHIONS FOR MAY.

The Parisian spring of the good old times has returned in 1864, with its pleasant accompaniments of early violets and lilac flowers. There is a general laying aside of furs and warm covering beneath the genial sunshine of this charming month of April. Especially at the Courses du Printemps, at Longchamps, there was day by day a splendid assemblage of Parisian belles attracted to the race meetings which have taken place during the last three weeks on one of the most picturesque sites in the neighbourhood of Paris. A favourable point of view for the observation of the spring fashions might be found by examining the elegantly-dressed groups formed on the terraces in front of the stands, where the ladies were for the most part clustered together. Simple dresses, composed of robe and mantle, and of uniform colour throughout, were predominant; and light-blue, light-green, and light-pink silks were thrown out into pleasant relief by the brilliant sunlight. A considerable diminution in the amplitude of the skirts must be noted with satisfaction; indeed, the employment of steel crinolines seems to be altogether on the decrease. The suppleness and grace of the spring costumes this year could not have been obtained otherwise than by the adoption of underclothing of a softer description. The small chapeaux à l'Anglaise, rather low in front, and passing with a simple curve down to the bavelet, are decidedly in favour at this moment, the materials preferred being crape and silk, and the latest ornament a sort of narrow scarf inside and outside, as shown in one of our Illustrations. It is believed, however, that the caprice of the modistes will not allow the Parisiennes to remain for any great length of time faithful to the revival of the small chapeau, which certainly appears singular, coming immediately after the colossal bonnet to which our eyes have been so long accustomed.

THE ILLUSTRATIONS.

Fig. 1. Dress for a Wedding Party.—Mazarine blue moire antique robe, ornamented (above the deep lace flounce adorning the skirt) with three black velvet bouquets, edged with small white chenille flowers. Long black lace shawl. White crape bonnet, decorated with feathers and an aigrette; above the vandyked lace bavolet, a rich blue velvet ornament, of the same tint as the bow and strings.

PARIS FASHIONS FOR MAY.

Fig. 2. Evening Dress for a Young Lady.—Silver-grey robe in foulard de l'Inde, richly trimmed, as shown in the Engraving, with blue silk and narrow edging. The dress is cut in the style denominated the Corset Impératrice, and the corsage and sleeve-cuffs are ornamented with stripes of bands to match the skirt trimming. Small lace collar, fastened by a rose-pink cravat.

Fig. 3. Morning Dress.—Robe of iron-grey taffety, pleated with a fluted skirt, surmounted by four rows of passementerie. The corsage is a cuirass, and the shoulders and cuffs are also trimmed with passementerie ornaments. White crape bonnet, with a knot rising beneath the front edge attaching a small feather. The scarf ornament is also repeated outside the bonnet.

MUSIC.

We mentioned last week the performance at the Royal Italian Opera in honour of General Garibaldi. On the following Tuesday there was a similar performance at Her Majesty's Theatre, when the illustrious visitor received from an overflowing house another ovation of a more enthusiastic kind. The opera was "Lucrezia Borgia," in which Mdlle. Titiens made her first appearance of the season. It happened on this occasion that she scarcely ever appeared before to her before—that she was a secondary object of attraction, the celebrated stranger having engrossed the largest share of attention and interest. On her second appearance, however, on Saturday, the debt of homage due by the public to our great native singer was fully paid. She received a perfect storm of applause, ringing with even more than her usual power and grandeur, and was received with the honour due to the first lyrical artist of the time on the stage. It is on her shoulders that the muscle of the incomparable Italy troupe be said to rest. Mdlle. Titiens will be especially said of two characters — Norma and Lucrezia Borgia — in which Madame Penco now plays with the air of a queen of tragic song. Giuglini shared in the triumph of the evening. Germano is one of his finest parts. He acts with fire and passion, and sings the beautiful music with Italian grace and sweetness. The young contralto, Mdlle. Battelheim, made a great success in the character of Orsini. The famous assassination song, "Il segreto per esser felici," was loudly encored. Gassier's Duke of Ferrara was an intelligent and satisfactory performance.

On the same evening, at the Royal Italian Opera, "Un Ballo in Maschera" was performed with great splendour under the new lyrical house. Mdlle. Lagrua achieved another success in the character of Amelia, to which she imparted great interest by her fine tragic acting and beautiful singing. Mario appeared in the part of the Duke Gradisni in that of Renato; and Mdlle. Battu in that of the Page Oscar. The ballet scene of the masquerade was the occasion of singular magnificence and beauty.

Nicolai's Opera, "Die Lustigen Weiber von Windsor" ("The Merry Wives of Windsor"), was produced at Her Majesty's Theatre under the title of "Falstaff." We shall give some account of its performance next week.

THE THEATRES.

SURREY.—The noblest effort at properly celebrating Shakspeare was made at this house on Saturday last. A revival of the greatest importance was announced, and it proved a most complete success. Mr. Anderson placed on the boards "The Second Part of Henry VI."—a drama which has been quite unjustly neglected, and produced it as to make it noticeable as a revival, or rather restoration to the stage, of entirely neglected work. Mr. Anderson's claim to praise is not entirely the work of Shakspeare, but this opinion will not stand the test of investigation. The series of plays in the reign of Henry VI. owes its primary existence to another dramatist: but the second and third parts were improved by Shakspeare. They are chiefly valuable as showing the state of the chronicle play which Shakspeare took it up; and the "Henry IV." as now performing at Drury Lane, exhibits the perfection to which its author brought the historical drama, which was especially remarkable. The multitude of characters needful for the action of the piece, of course, taxed the company greatly; but the difficulties were overcome by doubling and even trebling some of the characters. Mr. Anderson himself played two characters—the Duke of York and Jack Cade—both of which he performed with remarkable effect. The first he strengthened with speeches taken from the part of Warwick, and that he delivered with the commanding Suffolk for the murder of Duke Humphery, of which Mr. Anderson makes a most effective point. His delivery of the account of eccentricity into the part of Jack Cade, which is at least amusing, and perhaps not inappropriate. Mr. Ryder represented the part of Suffolk and Alexander Iden, and in his conflict with Jack Cade manifested much of the courage requisite. Mr. Ryder's voice was ordinarily good, and of itself worth seeing. Duke Humphrey himself was powerfully represented by Mr. Creswick, who is a favourite at this theatre; and the same actor supported the part of the peaceful Lord Say, thus showing a versatility of talent which will stand him in good stead hereafter. The Queen of Miss Fanny Wells; Miss Marie Wilton represented the Duchess of Gloucester with much effect, and Miss St. Henry as the Duchess of York was perhaps below the mark. The accessories of the piece were sufficient, and the scenery abundant. Altogether, the performance was highly creditable, and we hope, will be properly encouraged by the public. It was received with hearty and repeated applause; and the audience, though wanting in the fuller Shakspearean touch, is highly meritorious in its delineation of character, and great as a whole. Much of the fun which can be obtained from any historical narrative however carefully compiled.

SHAKSPEARE MEMORIAL.—Several of the theatres were opened on Saturday with performances in aid of the fund. At DRURY LANE a special entertainment was announced, and at a room "Twelfth Night," the first part of "Henry IV.," and a masque from the pen of Mr. Planché. The latter, "Shakspeare's Home," was simply an introduction to a fairy dance and the exhibition of a statue of Shakspeare. Appropriate songs and dances, the former composed and sung by Miss Poole, Miss Edith Wynne, and Mr. Swift. The other performances of the evening commenced with "Twelfth Night," and the characters. Of these we must notice the Puck of Master Percy Roselle, which was excellent. At the HAYMARKET the comedy of "Twelfth Night" was performed, and well supported, in consequence of the boxkeeper of "Vanns and Adonis" and "Turning the Tables."—At the ADELPHI an appropriate sketch entitled "Shakspeare" was produced, in addition to the current entertainments of "Leah" and "The Area Belle."—At the PRINCESS'S "Much Ado about Nothing" from "The Merchant of Venice," and "The Comedy of Errors" were performed. At the OLYMPIC the occasion was honoured by a most pecuniary result we are not yet able to report. We may add that on Monday Mdlle. Cubas Cubas made her reappearance in the character of Juliet, and was well received.

The Civil Service Estimates, Class 4.—Education, Science, and Art.—for 1864-5, show a decrease as compared with those of last year of £34,207. The total amount required is £1,149,620. The grant for "Public Education, Great Britain," is recommended by the Committee of Council in the sum of £1,039 in the Science and Art Department; of £100,374 for Public Education, Ireland; and of £1,686 for the British Museum.

The total amount of deposits made into the post-office savings-banks during the year ending the 31st of December last was £2,419,971. The sum so brought in in the previous year amounted to £2,419,971. The interest due to depositors during the year 1863 amounted to £1,415,985, a total of £3,835,956. The repayments made to depositors during the year amounted to £1,696,207, leaving a balance of £3,376,838 due to them.

THE FARM.

GARDIALLET has had his full meed of homage for some time past from the agricultural interest, to which—as the owner of forty acres of arable land and some mountainous pasture at Capvern, "where the goats and kids munch melons from his hands"—he may fairly claim to belong. Cast sires, boars, blood colts, and bulls ad infinitum all bear witness to his good taste as a judge of stock. Mr. Stevenson at Mutton Mowbray, A Hereford namesake, the property of her Majesty, and dedicated for Newcastle, forms one of the principal objects in his visit on Saturday to the three Royal farms and dairy at Windsor; and, after he has seen a pair of steam-plough at work near the Flemish Farm, the General was much gratified by the offer, on the part of the Queen, of one of his neighbours, to present him with a complete set of steam tackle. He was, however, compelled to decline it, on account of the very limited nature of his farm. The visit was chiefly a private one, but the Royal Commissioners were present; but that to the Hovards' great "nursery of ploughmen," at Bedford, and also to that of Mr. Fowler, one of the most striking incidents of his stay in England. Five of the Gwynnes, Lord Ducie, Messrs. Spencer, Colonel Townley Parker, Sprigg, and Fifth Grand Duke, all went over for the General's inspection of the Royal Agricultural Society's Show at Oakeney and Chard, which Mr. James Howard had purchased as Clifton's successor. Mr. Howard's own implements, especially his steamers, also furnished forty picked Oxford downs, ram and ewe tegs all to the wool, and a pair of grey, which had been purchased by the Messrs. Howard from Mr. Wainman, came in for a share of the favour of the illustrious visitor's attention.

The Oxford meeting began the year well. In March, 253 of them averaged £21 17s.; and at Clifton and Southcott, with no Townley prize-takers, the average fell to £21 4s. Mr. Watkins's sale averaged £18 18s. 6d. Mr. Robinson's £16 average was very steadily got, and Mr. Gunter's £15 10s. 6d. was helped on by the low figure which the tribes had been bought and crossed, and the judicious selection of the sires. Mr. Hobson's £14 15s. 6d., and Mr. Lawford's sale, was the prima donna of the week; and Mr. Barclay Allardyce's £13 10s. 6d. at Towneley Park, on the following day, at 240 gs. Mr. Hogan also fixed on Imperial Oxford at the sale as the cream of his Duchess tribe, and he would have gone to considerably more than 300 gs. Mr. Hobson's 50 Oxfords were all sold at from £13 to £16. The average at the Hon. Noel Hill's sale was £35 15s. 9d., and that at Mr. Hall's, £31 11s. 6d. Mr. Watkins's Oxfords brought 40l. at the former sale—six, 75 gs. for Vanity, and 80 gs. for King of Oxfords; and Mr. Robinson's ram lambs averaging fifty guineas need rest.

Captain Gunter has sold his Earl of Oxford (15,966), Amity (a winner of several prizes), and Wood Nymph—both by Seventh Duke of Oxford—and three other Duchess cows, and a Duke bull to them, to Sir Walter Trevelyan; and Mr. Dawe, of Barnsley, Mr. J. Stone, of Monmouthshire, and Mr. Bromet, a beginner from Aylesbury, have also purchased Duchess cows from the same source. Fourth Duke of Oxford, who is now quite a herdbook celebrity, has been sold to Mr. Wallington, of Bedale, and it is hoped that Duchess 72nd (dam of the Duke of Wharfedale), 1870, 1871, and 1872, will not be sold to go to Mr. Wallington, but of Wetherby has, we believe, been in existence since then, and the Duke of Cleveland's Duchess 72nd, by Second Duke of Oxford, by Barnes has sold his white two-year-old bull, Second Dr. M'Nish, who has the Duke of Dublin, Duke of Wharfedale, and Duke of Oxford blood in them, to Sir Walter Trevelyan; and Mr. Dawe, of Barnsley, Mr. J. Stone, of Monmouthshire, and Mr. Bromet, a beginner from Aylesbury, have also purchased Duchess cows from the same source. Fourth Duke of Oxford, who is now quite a herdbook celebrity, has been sold to Mr. Wallington, of Bedale, and it is hoped that Duchess 72nd (dam of the Duke of Wharfedale), 1870, 1871, and 1872, will not be sold to go to Mr. Wallington,

ROYAL INSTITUTION LECTURES.

PROFESSOR HUXLEY'S sixth and last lecture "On the Conservation of the Law of Energy," given on Thursday, the 21st inst., was devoted to the consideration of the evolution which exists between animal heat and motive power. We give the leading points. The substances taken in and digested by the living body are distributed by the circulation of the blood into all the parts, the decomposed substances being expelled; and the quantities of the different kinds of food which are used are best ascertained by the examination of the excretions got rid of by means of the lungs, the skin, &c., mainly consisting of carbonic acid, water, urea, &c. The equivalents of the energy given out by the body are "heat" and "mechanical work." We have no other form of work or its equivalent heat given out by the body, as the act of propelling, their whole work is given off as heat. If the body did not give off heat as fast as it was produced, it would rise in temperature, and in the same weight of substance, the total amount of energy would be the difference between the heat of the combustion of the substances taken in and that of those excreted. Heat has been proved to be the equivalent of mechanical power. Dr. Mechanical work" is produced by the contraction of muscles; but at the same time we find electric currents produced in muscles and during tetanus, either pathological or artificial, and the chemical processes in the body maintained. In regard to the chemical processes in muscle during contraction, Professor Huxley said that he had not yet had time to make experiments during working. Dr. Edward Smith has shown, by his excellent apparatus, the amount of carbonic acid given off in the various states of rest, sleep, sitting, standing, walking, &c.; the highest amount being attained on ascending a mountain, walking at the rate of two miles and a half per hour. The amount more carbonic acid is given off than when the body is at rest. The pulse also is raised from 70 to 100, and the rate of respiration is increased from 18 to 30 per minute. But though the rate of respiration were not increased all the energy of the common rate of respiration would be converted into power, but it is increased, as the facts of life become heat. Yet the proportion of work done by the body exceeds when steam-engines do, for by giving out the heat, and using the mechanical power limited. The proportion is even more advantageous when the work of the heart is estimated, it being nearly half of the work done by the whole human state, and about one fifth when in a state of intense exertion. The animal body, therefore, approaches nearer to the perfection of the steam-engine in the work derived from the equivalents of heat. Thus, the principles on which the "conservation of energy" is based are manifested in the phenomena of the physical processes of life as of globe, and in the vital processes of the animal and vegetable kingdoms. The lecture was illustrated by experiments showing the conversion of chemical action into heat and electric action on the muscles of the frog, &c.

PROFESSOR BLACKIE, of the University of Edinburgh, gave the Friday evening discourse on the 22nd inst.—"The Spartan Constitution" in relation to certain theories held by Grote, Arnold, Thirlwall, Lewis, and other English writers, in opposition to the Germans, Müller, Hellmann, and others. After preliminary observations on the dissimilarity between the British and German Governments, he stated at first what he considered the following undisputed points:—1. The Spartan constitution was a "mixed aristocracy"—a union of nobles, only limited to some extent by regal rights and usages, but in no degree modified by popular influence in the form of a free Assembly, as in Athenian, some of that phrase; the influence of the Kings being mainly of a religious kind, and in no degree modified by popular representation. The aristocracy was a close, unscrupulous, and well-organised oligarchy. 2. The executive power and secret in its dealings with criminals. 3. The Spartan people (or aristocracy, next to two hundred—see Aristotle, "De Politica") had other exclusive, the "Gerousia," elders or senators, the great ruling body, a standing committee of the privileged classes, constantly recruited from the "Eklesia," and possessing the sole right of passing legislative measures. The "Eklesia," had, by theory, the supreme power in the last resort; but it was seldom used. In it there were no room for debate or eloquence. The office of the Ephors, who superintended the whole, is described as well for the more paying and adventurous spirits of the Eklesia, and hence extraordinary opportunities for ambitious men to rise to power. Lycurgus, it seems from questionable poems—was a member of the royal house, a Spartan or aristocrat, and those Spartans who had lost their privileges by default, malconduct, or lack of the property qualification. In such a constitution there was no liberty or internal progress; it was an effective Government, but had no more power of producing the higher types of civilisation than Plato's paper republic or the Jesuit college of Madrid and Rome. The following were the disputed points:—1. Was Sparta a "mixed state," in opinion that the "homoioi" (equals, or resembling each other) were a distinct, numerous class, many times superior in number to the handful possessing great influence on the Government, being at first selected for their wealth, but afterwards by superiority of birth? Professor Blackie expressed his dissent from what were stating that he considered the "homoioi" to be the whole body of citizens, or the "demos," and all the citizens of the Spartan state, and not merely the ruling body who had lost their standing by misconduct or otherwise. 2. The Agrarian law. The most peculiar institution in Sparta was the Helotry, the existence of which has been denied by Mr. Grote, and whose opinion on the subject has been generally acquiesced in. The Helots were the property of the Gerousia. Professor Blackie, after examining Mr. Grote's arguments, expressed his reasons for dissenting from them. 3. The Spartan land laws were an early element in Spartan life, and that Lycurgus did not create, but merely modified and added to, the existing laws. The common meals, orders and regulations, limits or expands, whatever he finds already existing" as "old." Professor Blackie then proceeded to show that the Spartan state was not a democracy, but a close aristocracy, and that the Helots were the only hewers of wood and drawers of water, and that the Spartans had no more than the leading facts be is right. The Professor, finally, referred to the danger of transferring associations to former countries and times, and, in particular in respect, the ancients were the exact opposites of ourselves. The equal allotment of new manners to a nation of slaves and masters was impossible in modern society, and no doubt it was a matter of exciting a permanent interest in the existing state of Europe's state which was passing away.

PROFESSOR FRANKLAND, in his ninth lecture "On the Metallic Elements," given on Saturday, the 23rd inst., treated of the metals of the alkalies, or the Alkaline Earths," considering the description of "barium," and its properties, and exhibiting the green phosphorescence of "Canton's phosphorus," obtained from strontianite, a mineral found at Strontian, in Scotland,) was first prepared by Davy. It resembles barium in its properties, but is a metal which tinges a flame with red, are chiefly used for fireworks. The ores of strontium are not numerous, and the metal is not found in nature. The most abundant constituents of our globe, both metallic and non-metallic, are silicon. It is a bright, ductile metal, of a bronze colour, permanent in dry air, but soon tarnishes with damp. It burns with brilliancy in oxygen and chlorine, and decomposes water readily. It has not as yet received any applications, but may be so when more cheaply obtained. The "Earth" exists in nature in its characteristic spectrum was exhibited by the combustion of the ashes of a cabbage and a cucumber, a sunbeam passing through a solution of silica in a batter vegetable. The metal "magnesium" is also an abundant ingredient in the crust of the earth, especially in the mineral dolomite (a double carbonate of limestone), and also in French chalk and many other minerals. It was obtained by Bussy and Liebig, in 1830, by the decomposition of the chloride of magnesium by heated potassium. Professor Frankland exhibited in much larger quantities than formerly, by the latter process modified (some few years ago) by Deville and Caron. It is a brilliant, white, somewhat brittle and weighty. Fusing at low temperature, and burning with such intense brilliancy as to lead to the hope of its one day becoming one of the economical sources of light, since of the wire of the metal, when burnt, gives a light equal to that of 100 wax or stearine candles. Alloys of magnesium with zinc were considered. They occur in the form of rolls and oxides, and possess much less affinity for oxygen than the two preceding metals. Its chief use, however, at present is the only one of importance. It is very abundant, being found as a silicate in clays, soapstone, and numerous rocks, and is extensively employed in rubber, sapphires, and corundum. From the atoms of clay the metal has been obtained by Wöhler, Bell, of Newcastle, and Deville. Aluminium is also found in the form of rubies, Bell, of Newcastle, Deville, and Caron. It is also found in sources. From its lightness (sp. gr. 2·6) and its resistance to oxydation it has been employed for ornamental purposes, and for philosophical balances. An alloy of 5 per cent of aluminium with copper forms aluminium bronze, resembling gold, and steamed aluminium bronze, which has nearly the strength attributed to it be proved it will become highly valuable as a material for mathematical instruments. The Professor exhibited the metal in numerous experiments.

PROFESSOR FARADAY gave the first of two lectures "On Home" on Tuesday last, the 26th inst. He began with setting forth the reasons for his belief in the permanency of Home and the sense of it in the mind of everyone. In the theory, first put forth by Bentley, enlarged and strongly maintained by Wolf, and now by Lachmann, Hermann, and others, that the Iliad and Odyssey were merely arranged, and not composed, by Homer, Professor Faraday and the eminent Professor Blackie pointed out the perfect congruity of the work, and quoted Professor Wolf's own words, "I believe and maintain that Homer is the original." Homer took up traditions of his time, turned them into verse, and wove them into a whole, singing them to the people, and was understood and applauded. He was the "king of ballad-singers." Other poets, even Milton, represent themselves with their subject; but Homer gives a mirror of the national life in all, even its homeliest details. He was a man among men, and sets forth a world of facts; yet he himself is hidden from us, and appears in his works. He is eminent for his simple, clear, unstudied style—like a true Saxon—contrasting with the Latin style, which is artificial and requires study to be understood. Professor Faraday illustrated his subject by various extracts, and concluded with remarks on the various English translations, all possessing their peculiar merits and demerits—a perfect translation being yet to be desired. Cowper's is too cold and steady; Pope's too elegant, yet possessing fire, rapidity, and sound; Chapman's occasionally grand, yet frequently full of conceits overstrained; and Newman's deficient in poetry. Worsley's "Odyssey" is perhaps the best modern translation; but his style is more adapted to the "Odyssey" than the "Iliad."

Professor Marshall's lectures "On the Morphology of Animal Life" will be resumed on Thursday next. Professor M. Pollaks lectures "On the History of Music" (1600 to 1750), with vocal and instrumental illustrations, will begin on Thursday next. The Friday evening discourses will be resumed on May 6th, and recess discourses in spectrum analysis will be given by Professor Roscoe. The annual meeting of the members (for the election of officers, &c.) will be held on Monday next at two o'clock.

CHESS.

TO CORRESPONDENTS.

TIVERS.—While would thus play—A to P to Q R 5th, and B to K 3rd. Mate.

VIENNA.—The revised laws of chess, by Mr. Staunton, were first published in his treatise entitled "Chess Praxis," published 1860 by Bohn.

We have received communications relative to Chess Correspondents, last week, that the first move in the solution of Problem No. 1016 was—Q to Q B 6th.

G. H. HOWELL.—We have handed the game in question. Our impression is, upon a hasty glance, that the game is drawn. Mr. Staunton's opinion is unquestionably entitled to the most deference. If you will let us, besides the usual number sent, we will endeavour to shall be re-examined.

J. B. (Bristol).—1. B to K B 3rd. Mate! A position not to be sealed.

R. W. H.—Very pretty and accurate end. It may be improved, perhaps, by ending off the two final moves and terminating with the capture of a pawn. When for you?

PROBLEM No. 1017.

By Mr. BRAUNE, of Frankfort-on-the-Maine.

BLACK.

WHITE.

White to play and mate in three moves.

MR. MORPHY IN HAVANNAH.

Passing lamentable over the Paris chess-drama, Mr. Morphy has lately made a short stay in Havannah. His reception on this occasion called forth the most enthusiastic from the chess amateurs of that city which has long distinguished on his first visit. At a banquet given in his honour he played the following three games, simultaneously and without sight of the chessboard, against three of the best players of the place, and won them all.

(Two Knights' Defence.)

WHITE (Mr. M.)	BLACK (M. Domingues).	WHITE (Mr. M.)	BLACK (M. Domingues).
1. P to K 4th	1. P to K 4th	11. B to K 4th (a)	11. Kt to K 4th (a)
2. Kt to K B 3rd	2. Kt to Q B 3rd	12. Kt to K 6th	12. Kt to K 6th
3. P to Q 4th	3. P to Q 4th	(Finely played.)
4. P to Q 4th	4. P to Q 4th
5. B to Q 3rd	5. P takes P	(a) If Q to Q sq.	D takes Kt
6. P to Q 5th	6. P to K 4th	12. Q to K R 5th (ch)	12. P to K 3rd
7. B to Q 2nd	7. Kt to K B 3rd	13. Q takes B	P to K 4th
8. Castles	8. B to Q 3rd	14. Q takes B	R to B sq
9. P to K 5th	9. Kt to K 5th	15. Kt to Q 2nd	P to Q B 3rd
10. B to Q 4th	10. P to K B 4th
11. P to K B 4th	11. Kt to Q B 3rd
12. P takes P	12. B to Q Kt 2nd
13. Kt to Q B 3rd	13. Kt to K B 3rd

(Bad Black ventured to take the Kt with P. Kt Pawn, the answer would have been 11. Kt to K B 5th.)

WHITE (Mr. M.)	BLACK (M. Quiroga).	WHITE (Mr. M.)	BLACK (M. Quiroga).
1. P to K 4th	P to K 4th	20. Q R takes P (ch)	K to Q B sq
2. Kt to K B 3rd	Q Kt to B 3rd	21. Q to K 6th (ch)	K to Q Kt sq
3. B to Q B 4th	B to Q B 4th	22. R to K B 3rd	P to Q R 3rd
4. P to Q Kt 4th	B takes Kt P	23. P to K Kt 4th	P to Q R 3rd
5. P to Q B 3rd	B to Q B 4th	24. R to K 6th	P to Q B 4th
6. Castles	P to Q 3rd
7. P to Q 4th	P to Q 3rd	(As consequent to Black's capturing the Kt, Mr. Morphy gives the subsequent mate in three moves.)
8. P takes P	B to Q Kt 3rd
9. P to K 5th	P to K Kt 4th
10. B to K Kt 5th	P to K B 3rd
11. B to K 3rd	Kt to K B 3rd
12. P to K B 4th	P to Q 4th
13. P to K 6th	P to Q B 3rd
14. Q to K 2nd	Kt to K Kt 5th
15. B to K B 5th	P to K B 3rd
16. B to K 3rd	Kt to K 4th
17. Q to K 3rd	Q to K B 2nd
18. Q to K B 3rd	Q takes Q
19. P takes Q	Kt to K B 5th
20. Q to Q sq	Q to Q 2nd

(He had no better move. In the case of the Queen taking the Kt, Mr. Morphy would have played 21. Q to K 6th (ch), and must win.)

WHITE (Mr. M.)	BLACK (M. Aguilera).	WHITE (Mr. M.)	BLACK (M. Aguilera).
1. P to K 4th	P to K 4th	20. R takes P	B takes R
2. Kt to K B 3rd	Q Kt to B 3rd	21. Q to K 3rd	B to B 3rd
3. B to Q B 4th	B to Q B 4th	22. P to K Kt 4th	B to Q 2nd
4. P to Q Kt 4th	B takes Kt P	23. P to K 5th	P to Q R 3rd
5. P to Q B 3rd	B to Q B 4th	24. P to K 6th	P to Q B 4th
6. Castles	P to Q 3rd	25. B to K Kt 5th (ch)	K to Kt sq
7. P to Q 4th	P to Q 3rd	26. Q to K 5th	P to Q Kt 3rd
8. P takes P	B to Q Kt 3rd	27. B to K B 6th	P to Q R 4th
9. P to K 5th	P to K Kt 4th	28. R takes Kt	B takes R
10. B to K Kt 5th	P to K B 3rd	29. B to K B 7th	R to K B sq
11. B to K 3rd	Kt to K B 3rd	(Discovering ch)
12. P to K B 4th	P to Q 4th	30. Q to K 7th	P takes Kt
13. P to K 6th	P to Q B 3rd	31. B to K 6th	P to Q R 5th
14. Q to K 2nd	Kt to K Kt 5th	32. R takes B, and White wins.
15. B to K B 5th	P to K B 3rd
16. B to K 3rd	Kt to K 4th
17. Q to K 3rd	Q to K B 2nd
18. Q to K B 3rd	Q takes Q
19. P takes Q	Kt to K B 5th

MATCH AT CHESS BETWEEN RUDDERSFIELD AND BRADFORD.

This important match, which has of late excited much interest amongst the Yorkshire Chess Clubs, was concluded on Saturday week at Bradford. The result of the contest was that two games were won by Rudderfield, one at Huddersfield and one at Bradford; that on each occasion nine players should represent each club, and that each player should contribute two games; and that the club winning the majority of games should be entitled to the "Bradford Challenge Cup," presented by Mr. Ellis, and with this first contest to be competed for annually, according to their relative strength of play. We append the full score of the games played on the occasion, which terminated in a very decided majority—namely, 12 games to 18, with four drawn games:—

Played at Huddersfield, April 2.

HUDDERSFIELD.			BRADFORD.		Drawn.
Mr. J. Wathinson	... ...	1	Mr. Knowles	... ...	0
Mr. D. Marsden	... ...	1	Mr. Petty	... ...	0
Mr. J. Hutchinson	... ...	1	Mr. Hutton	... ...	0
Mr. C. B. Sokolnicki	... ...	0	Mr. Hargreaves	... ...	0
Mr. G. Brook, jun.	... ...	1	Mr. Warner	... ...	0
Mr. W. Swaine	... ...	0	Mr. Hutchinson	... ...	0
Mr. J. Eastwood	... ...	0	Mr. Hutchinson	... ...	0
Mr. J. P. Roberton	... ...	1	Mr. Brenton	... ...	1
Mr. G. Brook	... ...	1	Mr. Hutchinson	... ...	0
	Total	7		Total	1

A Rubber up to Ten Points, unavoidably absent.

Played at Bradford, April 16.

BRADFORD.			HUDDERSFIELD.		Drawn.
Mr. Petty	... ...	0	Mr. Wathinson	... ...	0
Mr. Knowles	... ...	0	Mr. Marsden	... ...	0
Mr. Warner	... ...	0	Mr. Hutchinson	... ...	0
Mr. Hargreaves	... ...	0	Mr. Sokolnicki	... ...	0
Mr. Hutchinson	... ...	0	Mr. Swaine	... ...	0
Mr. Cheetle	... ...	0	Mr. Eastwood	... ...	0
Mr. Hutchinson	... ...	0	Mr. Roberton	... ...	0
Mr. Prickard	... ...	0	Mr. Brook	... ...	0
Mr. Richardson	... ...	0	Mr. Brook, jun.	... ...	1
	Total	0		Total	1

* These games were reckoned in consequence of the absence of the Huddersfield player.

Total in both matches :—Huddersfield, 12 games; Bradford, 18; drawn, 4.

COLUMN FOR THE CURIOUS.

WHILE the welkin is ringing in honour of our great dramatic bard, it seems strange to credit some of the stories told of those who have depreciated him—"rerilen," as they have been termed. However, it is curious to note such perversions. We make allowance for Pepys's saying of "Midsummer Night's Dream," "I had never seen it before, nor shall ever again for it is the most insipid, ridiculous play that ever I saw in my life."—Pepys was far better pleased with that nursery jade, Mrs. Pierce, with a three-year bat on." Dryden's appreciation of Shakspeare will ever be remembered to the cost, in this instance, of inglorious John: his denouncement of "Macbeth" as "unintelligible bombast" is indelibly recorded. Pope, as editor, "murdered" Shakspeare pig to "Macbeth. Voltaire had studied Shakspeare, and he allowed him some merit, but he grievously misunderstood him. He considered the characteristics of Shakspeare's great dramatic art appeared to the poet to be the result of his ignorance of the traits of the human age. Hume, the historian, declared that he could not relish Shakspeare, and that he could not see why he was to be compared with Otway. "I not read him," he was such a bonbeur fellow." "Was there ever," said George, Mrs. Pierce, such a play-actor?" "such stuff as Shakspeare—only one must not say so." What! is there not sad stuff" "Yes," said he, "but then there is fine stuff." Johnson was anxious to show you that he possessed no Shakspeare and Milton; "because," he said, "he had been accused of borrowing from them:" "the proof rests on the fact whether Shakspeare was a genius as he has been taken for, and whether fashion had not a great hand to do with it; and whether the merit of which some late judicious author could have been guilty. However there was a greater combinital of Shakspeare than of any other writer, and he was unequalled; and, perhaps, circumstances had really disabled him from having the proper idea of Shakspeare, that he could not have taken to short of the truth as he pretended." It is not long since it was stated that Lord Brougham had declared Shakspeare to be an overrated author this has been contradicted as an idle rumour; but it may, possibly, have originated in the following circumstance:—Lord Brougham's piquant sketch of the third Lord Holland we read:—"It is remarkable that, like his uncle, though so fond of poetry, he had no relish for the ancient, or for the other branches of literature." Assuredly disagreeable to them both—a remarkable instance of Shakspeare's extravagant and unbounded popularity, and of his "age" ("Merchant of Venice," act v. sc. 1) :—

> How sweet the moon-light sleeps upon this bank!
> Here sit we mowed with sweetest of sweet sounds,
> Soft stillness and the night become the touches of sweet harmony.

Three estates of historic interest are, in business phrase, "in the market"—Dorney Court, in Buckinghamshire, Charles's residence, at Hampton; and Amwell House, near Ware, in Hertfordshire. Amwell is famous for the spot it grew in—"the Bower;" and the residence of Amwell House was laid out by Scott, who constructed here, in 1769, a curious grotto: he has described both in his poem of "Amwell." Hoole, the translator of Tasso, Ariosto, once lived here. Our readers will recollect the place as the abode of old Izaak: the scene of his "Angler's Meditations" is that of Ale-Cross, between Cheshunt and Ware.

Hearing hold up Johnson and his infirmities to the pace of fools, and trial his works by the standard of their imperfections, we may be reminded by pronouncing this (how provoking parenthesis!) "both a great and good man."

We are glad to learn that the contemplation of the Royal Church in Austinfriars is proceeding well—the stonework of several of the very fine windows being now in course of restoration. The plan of the work made by the archæologists we should probably, have lost this admirable specimen of the Decorated period. The Dutch gables remain as adjoining, several old houses have been taken down; but most of the ancient features remain perfect. We hope the success of what we well remember as Moorfields several old houses have been cleared away for the railway extension works, whose arches are approaching, masonic hall, the Grand Orient of France, for the new temple for which a stand has been effectually made.

The Rev. Mr. Hawker, of Morwenstow-street will be included the printing-office of Messrs. Woodfall and Kinder, in Angel-court. These premises have been occupied in connection with those of Woodfall and the "Letters of Junius." The office in Angel-court was built by Mr. George Woodfall, the father of the above Mr. Woodfall, some fifty years ago, and his edition of "Junius's Letters," in three octave volumes, was the first publication issued from it. Mr. Woodfall, preserved in the Public Advertiser, which was printed by the elder Woodfall, grandfather of Mr. Woodfall, and was in Paternoster-row, opposite the corner of Ivy-lane. The business was first established about 1726, in Greener Bull-court.

The Rev. Mr. Hargreave has exhibited to the British Archæological Association the signet-ring of Cæsar Borgia. This curious object of history was got up at Pavia, in September, with the date of 1503. Round the inside is the motto, "Fays cegne deys sviex gue Dieu me donne." The ring, therefore, inscribed in French, is by the letter reversed, and round it the words "Cor unum, una via." At the back is a relief, with the head of Cæsar Borgia in armour, and round which the infamous wearer was in the habit of dropping into the wine of his unsuspecting guests the poison it contained. It was formerly of chased silver box, surrounded by a jewel.

A Correspondent writes to us from Tunsberg, which is the oldest town in Norway, the following translation of an inscription upon the wall of St. Mary's Church, which has just been taken down:—"Anno 1734, the 23rd day of August, at the hour of the XI day of the XI, this stone came on a Tuesday, the high-born King and Rire, Sir Jacob Stuart, King in Scotland, France, and Ireland, in Europe; and this Tuesday after Trinity, which was on the 10th day of Nov., his Grace stood in this pew, and heard the sermon which was preached by Mr. Peter Jacob in my Shepherd," which Mr. David Lentz, minister in Leith, then preached before the Queen Mary by Jacob was married to Frances Anna, daughter of King Frederic II. of Denmark, and sister of King Christian VII.

"A Constant Reader" sends us from Lisbon, in reply to a statement which appeared in the Correspondence of the Times, in our Column, Jan. 9, 1864, that there is not one word about Steam in the account of Blasco de Garay's attempt to propel a boat in the harbour of Barcelona in 1543, and that the two letters which he produces do not mention "steam," as pointed out by Mr. Macgregor six years ago, in the pages of the Mechanics' Magazine. Our Correspondent sends us the account of the experiment as mentioned by Navarrete in his "Collection of Documents relative to the Spanish Marine," in a manner which leaves no doubt. We have not space for the whole, but the following will be sufficient to prove the assertion of Blasco de Garay, which he had invented to propel large vessels without sails or oars, by means of continuous steam. Navarrete did not publish a description of his engine; but the operations were put in motion, and the vessel was ready for sailing a great quantity of water; in certain wheels, which were so many, and a machine that communicated to them the motion produced by a number of men. The Treasurer Ravago's, objection, "that the boiler continually exposed the vessel to an explosion," is one to which Navarrete replies. The facts are extracted from the original register in the archives at Simancas, among the papers of Catalonia, the registrar of the War Office of the year 1543." The "cauldron of boiling water" is also mentioned in the account from Navarrete, under "Barcelona," Penny Cyclopædia, vol. iv. p. 438. Mr. Macgregor impugns Navarrete's report; and, as the result of his inquiries in Spain, he attests that not only are the letters at Simancas without evidence of the "steam," but it is not known there or at Barcelona, by the public officers. Supposing the evidence to be strictly correct, it bears only conjectural proof of the use of steam, for the boiler was not to give it, having only to work the machinery. It has been suggested that the moving power was obtained by an apparatus resembling the primitive steam-engine of Hiero,

NEW MUSIC.

REMINISCENCES OF SHAKESPEARE for the Pianoforte. By C. W. GLOVER.
No. 1. THE TEMPEST.
No. 2. TWELFTH NIGHT.
No. 3. HAMLET.
4. MACBETH.
With highly finished Chromolithographs. Price 3s. each.
METZLER and CO., 37, 38, 39, and 40, Great Marlborough-street, W.

THE AVON QUADRILLE, by M. E. ROLLESTON, on the most favourite Airs introduced in Shakespeare's Plays; with magnificent Chromolithograph by FACKER. Piano Solo, 4s.; Septet Band, 7s.
METZLER and CO., 37, 38, 39, and 40, Great Marlborough-street, W.

AVON VALSES. By T. BROWNE. With superior chromolithograph of Stratford-on-Avon. Piano Solo, 4s.; Septet Band, 7s.
METZLER and CO., 37, 38, 39, and 40, Great Marlborough-street, W.

New Edition, with splendid Illustration, 3s. 6d.,
GARIBALDI'S SONG. "On, follow me." Words and Music by CHARLES LONSDALE.
METZLER and CO., 37, 38, 39, and 40, Great Marlborough-street, W.

CHRISTY MINSTRELS' LATEST SUCCESS.
MOTHER, I'LL COME HOME TO ME.
Price 3s. 6d.; post-free 19 stamps.
METZLER and CO., 37, 38, 39, and 40, Great Marlborough-street, W.

NEWEST SONGS by POPULAR COMPOSERS:
"Baby." Virginia Gabriel ..... Price 3s. 0d.
"Which Sparrow Builds." Virginia Gabriel ..... 3s. 0d.
"Oh, speak my Star at last!" Virginia Gabriel ..... 3s. 0d.
"Sweet Bird." Miss Day Wellington ..... 3s. 0d.
"Springtime of the Heart." Sir Julius Benedict ..... 3s. 0d.
"Ah, Love, but a Day." Arthur Gilmore ..... 3s. 0d.
METZLER and CO., 37, 38, 39, and 40, Great Marlborough-street, W.

NEW PIANOFORTE PIECES.
PFEIFFER'S LA RUCHE (the Beehive) and Descriptive MATILDA BOTTESINI. Illustrated and Enjoyed by the Composer with the greatest success.
METZLER and CO., 37, 38, 39, and 40, Great Marlborough-street, W.

ON GARIBALDI'S HYMN.
MDME. OURY'S CHANT DU PATRIOTE. A Popular Melody, Free, price 3s. Another Edition of Garibaldi's Hymn, arranged for Pianoforte Solo, price 4s.
METZLER and CO., 37, 38, 39, and 40, Great Marlborough-street, W.

NEW WORK BY VIRGINIA GABRIELL.
GRADUS AD CANTUM. A Monthly. To be performed at Wilton Cooper's Evening Concert at St. James's Hall, May 4, with Vocal and Instrumental Illustrations, by Virginia Gabriel Hollins. In new ready. Complete Pianoforte and Vocal Score.
METZLER and CO., 37, 38, 39, and 40, Great Marlborough-street, W.

NEW SONGS, BY W. H. WHEELDON.
STARS THAT FAR IN HEAVEN'S DEEP HEIGHT. An expressive and pathetic Sacred Song. Compass, C to D. 3s. 6d. COCKS and CO., New Burlington-street.

Just published,
THE EARL'S COURT POLKA. By L. MOTTLEY. Sent free for 18 stamps.
London: J. WILLIAMS, 123, Cheapside.

Now ready, price 3d.,
NEW PALMYRA SONG.
GARIBALDI at the Opera of MASANIELLO. By A. D. BARNARD.
London: ROBERT HARDWICKE, 192, Piccadilly.

KUHE.—BACHANALE, in Illustration of a Ball in Ava. Beautifully illustrated. Price 4s.
SYDNEY SMITH.—Twenty-four Pieces, in Four Books, 4s. each.
SYDNEY SMITH.—Fairy Fingers, Twelve Pieces for Children. 4s.
SYDNEY SMITH.—Fra Diavolo, for Beginners. 3s.
AUGUSTUS HOLMES.—Ye Mariners of England. Solo, 4s. Duet, 5s.
London: ed. ASHDOWN and PARRY, Pianoforte Warehouse, Hanover-square.

GARIBALDI'S TRIUMPHAL MARCH, for the Piano. By STEPHEN GLOVER. Sent for fifteen stamps. This admirable march, in honour of the great Italian patriot, is played by all military bands.—STEPHEN GLOVER, 79, Oxford-st.

NEW SONG.—ISSY GAY. By E. L. HIME. Sent for 18 stamps. One of the prettiest Ballads that has been published for some time. The words are by Tom Hood; the melody is very interesting, the melody repeatedly touching and effective.—HUTCHINGS and ROMER, 9, Conduit-street.

PAPPAIT AMOUR. Romance for the Piano. By C. HOWE. Sent for 18 stamps. One of the most delightful and captivating romances we have ever heard.—HUTCHINGS and ROMER, 9, Conduit-street.

EWER and CO.'S MUSICAL LIBRARY, Bridge and Foreign Pianoforte Warehouse, Subscription very moderate. 97, Regent-street, London.

MUSICAL BOX DÉPÔT for the Sale of NICOLE'S celebrated Musical Boxes, from 6 to 100 guineas each. A large assortment of all sizes from thirteen tunes to two. Lists of Tunes and Prices sent post-free.

SHAKESPEARE IN HIS GARDEN. PUNCH and JUDY, from DISTILLED ROSE OF PERFUME, on account of their frequency are often alluded to by Shakespeare. The price 2s. 6d. per pint and carriage paid. Purchasers will be good enough to add the following quotation :—

"Were not summer's distillaries left
A liquid perfumer past in vials of glass,
Which drop by drop the lily strains,
Nay, 'tis hard to conceive what it were
But sweets distilled, though they with winter meet,
Leese nought of their sweet odour."
—Sonnet liv.

WHITE ROSE.—PIESSE and LUBIN.
"The veil I raise shall the milk-white rose,
With which I meant to crown thy beauty's forehead." 2s. 6d.

EGLANTINE.—PIESSE and LUBIN.
"Quite sweet enough with fascine woodbine,
Or with the eglantine and spicenate." 2s. 6d.

NODDING VIOLET.—PIESSE and LUBIN.
"The farewell violet then did I collect,
Sweet thief, whence doth thee steal thy sweet; thee smell,
If not thine breath?" 2s. 6d.

MUSK.—PIESSE and LUBIN.
"Smelling so sweetly—all musk." 2s. 6d.

AMBERGRIS.—PIESSE and LUBIN.
"Gloves as sweet as rose and amber,
Perfume for a lady's chamber." 2s. 6d.

PIESSE and LUBIN'S HUNGARY WATER. Purifies the mind, refreshing, invigorating, "a cordial to man," says Evelinda, "that saves, clargyman, lawyer, soldier, and poet gives it the preference, for it gives energy." Emphatically the scent for warm weather, for hot and depressed climates. A case of trial, 2s. 6d., 5s., 10s. 6d., and 21s.
2, New Bond-street.

HAIR DYE.—BATCHELOR'S Instantaneous Colourless. The best in the World, Black or Brown. Produces a beautiful permanent colour. Free from all the defects of other dyes. Sold by all Chemists and Hairdressers, and at 0, Great Marlborough-street, W.; and 81 and 96, City-road, E.C.

BEAUTIFUL HAIR.—CHURCHER'S TOILET CREAM is the best and cheapest Cream for beautifying and preserving the Hair. In large, handsome Toilet Jars, 1s. 6d. each. Sold by all Chemists and Perfumers. CHURCHER'S TOILET SOAP, 1s. Great Marlborough-street, W., and 81 and 96, City-road, E.C. London.

HAWLER'S PATENT RIDGED-EYED NEEDLES, for rapid sewing. These needles are ridged for ease. Purchaser of the Vienna and Turnbridge Needles. Sempstress to the Queen, Princess of Wales, Duchess of Teck, Queen's Works, Aldersgate and 67, Gresham-street, London.

PLATE.—A. B. SAVORY and SONS, 5, Manufacturing Silversmiths, 11 and 12, Cornhill, London, opposite the Bank. The best strength ELECTRO-SILVERED and SOLID PLATE patterns, 7s. 6d. per ounce. Queen's pattern, 7s. 6d. per ounce. Kings pattern, 8s. per ounce. Fiddle pattern, 8s. per ounce. Thread Fiddle pattern, 9s. per ounce. A.B. Queen's Pattern. Queen's Pattern.

	£	s.	d.		£	s.	d.
12 Table Spoons	10	10	0	12 Table Spoons	15	15	0
12 Dessert Ditto	8	8	0	12 Dessert Ditto	11	11	0
12 Table Forks	10	10	0	12 Table Forks	15	15	0
12 Dessert Ditto	8	8	0	12 Dessert Ditto	11	11	0
2 Gravy Spoons	3	15	0	2 Gravy Spoons	5	5	0
1 Soup Ladle	2	15	0	1 Soup Ladle	3	3	0
1 Sauce Ditto	1	10	0	1 Sauce Ditto	2	2	0
1 Fish Slice (pierced)	3	10	0	1 Fish Slice (pierced)	5	5	0
1 Fish Carver	1	10	0	1 Fish Carver	2	2	0
1 Pair Game Carvers	1	10	0	1 Pair Game Carvers	2	2	0

A pamphlet is published, with 200 Engravings, as a guide to the Plate, Cutlery, Stoves, Fenders and Furnishing Ironmongery, Baths, spoons, forks, tea and coffee services and table plate, with per-centage of each article, Lamps, Gasaliers, Kitchen Utensils, Tin Goods, Turnery, Iron and Brass Bedsteads, Bedding, Bed Hangings, Blankets and jewellery. Gratis on application, and post-free to any part of the United Kingdom.
Orders for the use of Steamers, Yachts, and Ships fitted with large lithographic drawings of plate kept ready for presentation.

ELECTRO-SILVER PLATE.—MAPPIN, Manufacturer, guarantees the thickness of deposit, the quality of sterling quality, and exchange any article if not approved.—

	Fiddle Pattern.			Fiddle Thread Pattern.
	£	s.	d.	£	s.	d.
Table spoons or forks, per doz.	1	4	0	1	6	0
Dessert spoons	0	15	0	0	17	0
Dessert forks	0	15	0	0	17	0
Tea spoons	0	10	0	0	12	0
Dish covers, per set of four	10	0	0	12	0	0
Cruet frame, with six bottles	1	5	0	1	7	0
12 Table dessert knives and forks	2	10	0	3	0	0
Tea and coffee urns, per pair	5	5	0	6	6	0
Tea and coffee services, per set	3	3	0	4	4	0
Cruet-frames, 4, 5, and 6 bottles	1	15	0	2	10	0
Cruet-frames, 7 bottles	2	5	0	3	3	0
Cruet-frames, 8 bottles	2	15	0	3	15	0
Salvers 10 in. size, each	1	4	0	1	16	0
Bottle corcters, each	0	12	0	0	15	0

The London Showrooms, 77 and 78, Oxford-street, West-end, and 4, Queen's-buildings, Cutlery Manufactory, Sheffield. Orders by post, with remittance, attended to with equal despatch. Illustrated Catalogues and price-lists sent free to any part of the United Kingdom. Cards and Dies for Crests, Monograms, Addresses, and Business Marks, 7s. and 7l. 7s. Cards, 50 by 50.

CARPETS.—JOHN G. DINNER SERVICES, Carpet and Furniture Warehouse, Illustrated Catalogues post-free. Estimates and Designs free by post. Carpets from four threes from Trafalgar-square, London. Established 1763.

GASELIERS in Crystal Glass, Ormolu, or Bronze. Enamel Dials, &c. Also Glass Chandeliers in all sizes on view. Every article marked with plain figures.
DEANE, DRAY, and CO., London-bridge, and 46, Strand, Charing-cross.

CHANDELIERS in BRONZE and ORMOLU for DINING-ROOM and LIBRARY. Candelabra, Pendants, Lustres, and other Lights for Gas and Candles. Suitable for Halls, Libraries, and other Apartments. Estimates free.
DEANE, DRAY, and CO., London-bridge, and 46, Strand, Charing-cross.

OSLER'S GLASS CHANDELIERS, WALL LIGHTS, and Lustres, for Gas and Candles. Table Glass, &c. DEANE, DRAY, and CO., London-bridge, and 46, Strand.
All articles marked in plain figures.
Ornamental Glass, Electric Light and Table Glass for presents.
Moss, Ferret, and Flambeau Globes promptly executed.
Illustrated Catalogues and Estimates free.
Birmingham—Manufactory of OSLER'S Showroom, Broad-street. Established 1807.

FURNITURE CARRIAGE-FREE to any part of the Kingdom.
Drawing-room Suites, complete £23 0 0
Dining-room Suites, complete £20 0 0
Bedroom Suites, complete £10 10 0
Warranted First Class.
T. and H. SMITH, 27, 28, 29, 30, Oxford-street.
Illustrated Catalogues gratis and post-free on application.

J. MAPLE and CO.'S FIRST-CLASS CARPETS.
The Parquet Carpets ..... 2s. 11d. per yard.
The Prize of Wales Orient ..... 3s. 9d. ,,
The Royal Saxony ..... 4s. 3d. ,,
The Regina Body Brussels ..... 4s. ,,
The Tournay Ditto ..... 5s. ,,
The Victoria Royal Velvet ..... 6s. ,,

J. MAPLE and CO. for CARPETS, CARPETS.
Hand-pad Brussels ..... 2s. 9d.
Best Kidderminsters ..... 2s. 6d.
Good Kidderminsters ..... 2s. 3d.
Tapestry Brussels ..... 2s. 3d.
Turkey Carpets of all sizes.
Extensive Warehouses for Carpets.

EASY-CHAIRS, SOFAS, and COUCHES, Lounge Chairs, Couches, Sofas, Ottomans, Chairs, &c. FILMER and SONS Manufacturers, 31, 32, and 33, Berners-st., Oxford-st. W. All Goods Guaranteed. Estimates free.

THE FURNISHING OF BEDROOMS.
HEAL and SON have observed for some time that the taste for Bedroom Furniture has greatly declined. A much larger selection of Bedroom Furniture than is usually displayed is necessary to meet the requirements of the public. The Furniture of Bedroom Furniture is a matter of much importance, and the selection should be placed in separate rooms. They have therefore added to their premises a large room for the display of Bedroom Furniture, and have arranged in it Wardrobes, Chests of Drawers, and Wood Bedsteads, and Bedroom Furniture, beyond what they believe has ever been arranged, that may be placed together in such a way as to give the effect of keeping complete suites of Bedroom Furniture in the different woods.
Heal and Son have also arranged a Bedstead of five or six different sizes, some of them light and ornamental, and others of a more massive character, in which the Bedsteads are made to fit the Bedding, and the Bedding to fit the Bedsteads, so that purchasers are able to see the effect as it would appear in their own rooms. Heal and Son have also arranged a Bed in which the Bedstead may be taken to pieces, and has been used with great success in various rooms, will be added.
But Furniture and Bedding must be fashioned in large numbers, so that a complete assortment may be seen and the effect of any particular article may be judged of. Heal and Son have therefore, at a very large expense, arranged the Bedsteads, Bedding, and Furniture placed on the bedsteads.
Heal and Son keep many Goods for the better Bedroom, and Servants' Bedrooms, in Brass and common Iron Bedsteads.
The entire stock is arranged in eight rooms, six galleries (each 100 ft. long), and a Show-room, and Heal and Son invite visitors to inspect it as a department of Bedroom Furniture as they think can possibly be desired.
Heal and Son's Illustrated Catalogue contains 150 Designs and Prices, and they have just received large workings on the premises for this Catalogue, which will be published in a few days, and will be forwarded to any address. Heal and Son's Illustrated Catalogue of Bedding, Bedsteads, every article being made on the premises.
Heal and Son's Illustrated Catalogue of Bedding, Bedsteads, every article being made on the premises.
Heal and Son's Illustrated Catalogue of Bedding, Bedsteads, every article being made on the premises.
HEAL and SON'S Illustrated Catalogue of Bedsteads, Bedding, and Bedroom Furniture sent free by post.—196, 197, 198, 199, Tottenham-court-road, W.

CARPETS.—Notwithstanding the late advance of duties, Cocoa Matting is still sold at the old price, having one of the largest Stocks in the kingdom, are enabled to execute orders for Public Rooms, Churches, Schools, &c., at a very low figure. Patterns can be forwarded free to the country. Estimates free for fitting up Churches, Schools, &c. Cocoa Matting Manufactory, 4, Princes-street, Cavendish-square.—FREDK. TRELOAR.

TRELOAR'S COCOA-NUT MATTING and KAMPTULICON FLOOR CLOTH FOR HOUSES, Manufactured from No. 4, 10, Ludgate-hill, CITY, LONDON.

TO LADIES.—GREEN TISSUE VEIL, 1s. 6d. per yard, 36 inches wide; post-free for 42 stamps. Perforated Tissue for covers, 4d. per yard; post-free for 6 stamps. Address, W. F. THOMAS and CO.

W. F. THOMAS and CO.'S PATENT SEWING-MACHINES.—These Machines, each by the inventor, are constructed on entirely new principles, and are the only Machines that will perform the work in the most perfect manner. They are self-acting and suitable for all purposes. They are guaranteed to perform their work efficiently with extreme rapidity, regularity, and durability, and give no trouble. The stitching cannot be unpicked unless cut, and will not rip in washing. Any kind of thread cannot be pulled out. They lock, knit, gather, and bind with equal facility.—Catalogues and samples of the work may be had on application, or will be forwarded by post on receipt of three postage stamps.

MARBLE CHIMNEYPIECES.—EVANS, SON, and CO. respectfully invite the attention of purchasers to their extensive Stock of Statuary and other Marble Chimneypieces and Tablets, as suited, adapted to every style of decoration, and to the Show-rooms, 63 and 64, King William-street, London Bridge.

ESTABLISHED TWENTY YEARS.
NICHOLSON and CO. are now prepared with their NEW STOCK of SPRING SILKS, composed of the Newest Designs and Colours, manufactured by us for the year.—Nicholson and Co., 50 to 52, Paul's-churchyard, London.
No connection with any other Firm.

200 PATTERNS POST-FREE.
£640 YARDS of LAST YEAR'S SILKS, 22 inch, 4s. 6d. to 4s. per yard. Half their original prices. Write to NICHOLSON and CO., 50 to 52, Paul's-churchyard, London.

200 PATTERNS POST-FREE.
£926 YARDS PLAIN COLOURED GROS GRAINS, Striped Moires, Checks, &c., all 22 inch, 1s. 1d., 1s. 6d., and 1s. 11½d. per yard.
Write to NICHOLSON and CO., 50 to 52, Paul's-churchyard, London.

200 PATTERNS POST-FREE.
£830 Yards NEW CHECKED and STRIPED GLACÉS, all 22 Inches, 2s. 6d. per yard, and 14 pieces the Prince of Wales's Tartan, 2s. 6d. per yard. Above marks are 1872.
Write to NICHOLSON and CO. for 50, Paul's-churchyard, London.

200 PATTERNS POST-FREE.
£3400 Worth of MOIRE ANTIQUES, from £1 10s. 6d. the Dress of 16 yards, wide width.
Write to NICHOLSON and CO., 50 to 52, Paul's-churchyard, London.

200 PATTERNS POST-FREE.
£2543 WORTH RICH BROCHE and Fancy Silks, Black and Coloured, from 1s. 6d. per yard.
Write to NICHOLSON, 50 to 52, Paul's-churchyard, London.

200 PATTERNS POST-FREE.
£3400 WORTH BLACK SILKS, Glacés, Gros Grains, Trap de Lyons, all of the Second Purchase, from 1s. 6d. per yard.
Write to NICHOLSON, 50 to 52, Paul's-churchyard, London.

200 PATTERNS POST-FREE.
15030 YARDS FIGURED SILKS EXTRAORDINARY, warranted waterproof, and perfectly unspottable, 22 inch, 2s. 6d. per yard, and 24 inch, 2s. 11d. per yard. Above marks are 1872.
Write to NICHOLSON, 50 to 52, Paul's-churchyard, London.

3000 YARDS of PLAIN COLOURED SILKS, 22 inch, 1s. 6d. per yard.
Write to NICHOLSON, 50 to 52, St. Paul's-churchyard, London.

NEW MANTLES.—MESSRS. NICHOLSON and CO beg to inform their Customers and Ladies generally that they are now prepared with their NEW MANTLES for the Season. An Illustrated Magazine of latest Fashions, post-free. Nicholson and Co., 50 to 52, Paul's-churchyard, London.

100 PATTERNS POST-FREE of the NEW CAMLETS, RUSSIA POPLINS, MOHAIRS, and GRENADINES, Nicholson and Co., 50 to 52, Paul's-churchyard, London.

DO YOU WISH YOUR CHILDREN to be Healthy, Happy, and Beautiful? Then read "Hints on the Management of Children," by a Mother and Nurse. Gratis, directions for measurement, and 40 Engravings of New Costumes, Infants' Outfits, &c. Post-free, 1 stamp. 150, Regent-street, W.

EARLY SPRING SILKS. Patterns free.
New Checked and Striped Glacés,
£1 10s. 6d. for 12 yards.
New Checked Poplins,
£1 1s. for 12 yards.
JOHN HARVEY and SON, 7, Ludgate-hill.

EARLY SPRING DOUBLE MOHAIRS and a variety of useful Dresses.
JOHN HARVEY and SON, 7, Ludgate-hill.

MOIRE ANTIQUES.—SEWELL and CO. have the largest selection of SITUATELINE MOIRE ANTIQUES in London, at 2½ guineas the Dress of 16 yards. 7, Ludgate-hill, and 7, Wellington-street, Strand.

ORGANDIE MUSLINS, 1s. per yard. SEWELL and CO. having been fortunate in the purchase of the Organdie Muslins of the Season, are now OFFERING them at the above price.
7, Ludgate-hill, and 7, Wellington-street, Strand.

NEW FRENCH SILKS, at 2s. 6d. the yard, in make of Irish Poplin Silk, with an extensive Assortment of Checks and Stripes, in all the New Colours for the present season, at SEWELL and CO.'S, 7, Ludgate-hill, and 7, Wellington-street, Strand. Patterns free. Observe, it is a length not usually sufficient to make Ball-dress Dress. But it is a length that will make a Dress for any purpose. The Dress is remarked by every Lady who has seen it as the most splendid article of forty-five yards.—HARVEY and CO., Lambeth House, 56, Lombard-street, E.C. Patterns free.

SILKS! SILKS! SILKS! ANOTHER DELIVERY of NEW SPRING SILKS, commencing at 1s. 6d. per yard.
PETER ROBINSON, 103, Oxford-street.
Width—Width Black Figured GLACÉS, 24 inch, 2s. 9d. per yard, worth 3s. 6d.
Width—Black Gros Grains, 24 inch, 2s. 9d. per yard, worth 3s. 6d.
Width—Black GLACÉS, 24 inch, 2s. 9d. per yard, worth 3s. 6d.
Width—Black GLACÉS, 24 inch, 2s. 9d. per yard, worth 3s. 6d.
BLACK GLACÉS, GROS GRAINS, SPINGS, MOIRE ANTIQUES.
MILLINERY SILKS in the Newest Colours, BAYDER, THREE QUARTER, and FULL WIDTHS.
PETER ROBINSON, 103, Oxford-street.
Patterns post-free.
JAMES SPENCER and CO., Wholesale and Retail Silkmercers, &c., 24, Rupert-street, Haymarket, and 1, Panton-street.

REAL IRISH LINENS, direct from Belfast, at warrage fees—Sheets and Sheeting, Damask Tablecloths, with Napkins to match, Huckaback and Damask Towels, Glass Cloths, Linens, Nursery Diapers, Linen Sheetings, Pillow Linens, Dusters by the piece, Linen Cambrics, Lawns, Muslins, Quilts, Counterpanes, Linen Blankets and Bed-ticks, Furnishing Linens, Linen Drapery, Every article made. Lists and patterns free. Write, Lindsay and sons, Linen Manufacturers, Belfast.

LADIES' WATERPROOF TWEED CLOAKS and RIDING-JACKETS, Gentlemen's Overcoats and Inverness Capes, Shooting-jackets and Knickerbocker Suits.
J. and W. PHILLIPS, 97, High-street, Shrewsbury.

BONNETS.—MARKS and GAVELL, Manufacturers of Ladies' and Children's Bonnets, Hats, Caps, Head-dresses, Feathers, Flowers, Ribbons, Lace, Fancy Fur, Sealskin, Sequin and Jet Goods, 1, Upper Berkeley-street, Portman-square, W.

SHIRTS.—BOWRING, ARUNDEL, and CO. beg to direct the attention of Gentlemen to their Oxford and MORNING SHIRTS, as their Stock is now replete with every novelty for the present season.
Manufactory, 10, Arundel-street, Strand, W.C., and 11, Old Broad-street, E.C.

SHIRTS.—Morning and Evening Shirts of every description. Shirts with printed name, at moderate prices. Directions for self-measurement and patterns sent on application.—JOHN MAYER, 570, New Oxford-street, London.

WHITE and SOUND TEETH are indispensable to personal attraction, and to health and longevity.—ROWLANDS' ODONTO.
Imparts a pearl-like whiteness to the teeth, eradicates tartar, preserves and imparts a pearl-like whiteness to the Teeth, eradicates tartar, removes all indigenous decay, strengthens the gums, and gives a pleasing fragrance to the breath. Price 2s. 9d. per box. Sold at 20, Hatton-garden, and by Chemists and Perfumers.
Ask for ROWLANDS' ODONTO.

LEFT-OFF CLOTHES.—Uniforms, Livery, Miscellaneous Property, &c., of every description, bought for cash to any amount, by letter or personal application. Ladies waited upon at their residences. Parcels from the country carefully attended to. Established seventy years.

LONDON: Printed and Published at the Office, 198, Strand, in the Parish of St. Clement Danes, in the County of Middlesex, by HENRY GREVILLE FITZROY, 198, Strand, aforesaid.—SATURDAY APRIL 20, 1872.

THE ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS.

No. 1258.—VOL. XLIV. SATURDAY, MAY 7, 1864. WITH A SUPPLEMENT, FIVEPENCE

SOWING THE SEEDS OF TROUBLE.

We doubt whether there has been a passage in the history of Europe since the settlement of its affairs upon the basis of the treaties of 1815 more ominous of approaching calamity than that which just now absorbs the attention of monarchs, statesmen, and peoples. What may be the immediate issue of the Conference now sitting is a problem upon which speculation would be worthless. Not so, however, that forecasting of the future which confines itself to the inevitable tendencies of human passion, and which is founded upon the conviction, as well warranted in the case of nations as of individuals, that action will sooner or later bear fruit "after its kind." There may, or may not, be an adjustment of the Dano-German difficulty, and a stop put to the most wanton and unnecessary war of modern times; but of one thing we may be quite sure—namely, that the Powers which play the game of perfidy or violence for selfish ends, be their present winnings ever so great, are laying up in store for themselves the materials of a retribution, the future development of which will sorely try their strength.

What is it that we have been fated to witness in relation to both the occasion and, if report may be relied on, the progress of this Conference? Whence came the conflict which has led to it? What perplexes its deliberations? From first to last the main difficulty of the Dano-German dispute has arisen out of the mutual suspicion and jealousy of the great Powers far rather than out of anything inherent in the matter to be decided. In fairness, perhaps, it must be generally admitted that, in respect to the Schleswig-Holstein question at least, the policy of England has been disinterested, impartial, and pacific. No doubt, a general indictment might be framed against her, containing many counts, the evidence in support of which it would not be easy to rebut. But we venture to think that Europe can sustain no charge against her touching her conduct in the particular affair under present consideration. She has had in view no selfish object. She had nothing to gain nor to lose from any proposal she may have made. She had no grudges to avenge. True, she earnestly desired to prevent a breach of the peace, and, when that was found impossible, to localise the war; and it is equally true that she still persists in the most strenuous endeavours to discover some means of averting from Europe the awful calamity to which heedless wilfulness appears ready to expose it. That she would participate in the advantages which would accrue from the success of her efforts need not be denied; but it is an open question whether she has nearly so serious a reason for deprecating a European conflict as any of the Continental States. And yet we greatly fear that she alone in the present Conference is seeking to realise a purely European policy, and that the statesmen who represent her in that small company are the only Plenipotentiaries who are working towards their professed end without an arrière pensée more or less allied to intrigue.

The semi-absolutist Powers are somewhat blindly following their natural instincts. It is hardly concealed that the political aim of Prussia, from the beginning of the present reign, has been what she would call anti-democratic, what we should more correctly characterise as anti-constitutional. When M. Bismark started from Paris to assume the direction of public affairs at Berlin he carried with him the stern determination to restore to the Crown of Prussia, or more properly to the retrogressive faction which derives its sole importance from the Crown, its ascendancy over the Legislature. The contemptuous manner in which he treated the Representative Chamber in matter of history. With all his insolence and unscrupulousness, the domestic strife which he had provoked would probably have terminated in his downfall but for the passionate longing of the German people to achieve the national unity of their race and the opportunity presented by the death of the King of Denmark for contributing to the realisation of their desire. The Prussian people, abandoning, for the time being, the pursuit of constitutional freedom in favour of a phantom nationality, offered to the King and to M. Bismarck just that devotion which their proclivities towards absolutism made indispensable. To draw the sword, ostensibly in furtherance of the will of the people, really with a view to cut away all the constitutional safeguards of freedom, was precisely the course most consonant with their ideas and hopes. To flesh that sword in Denmark, the freest of Continental kingdoms, and to do so in the name and with the assent of Germany, was for the moment true. It was to the army, not to Parliament, that their policy required that predominance should be given—to the army which it had been the daring occupation of King William's life to discipline into an efficient instrument for asserting his monarchical resolutions. War had become necessary to him. He rushed into it incontinently; he persisted in it relentlessly; he will retire from it unwillingly. Not until it has served his purpose—not until he has made his army feel an interest of its own apart from the people and has developed in it all the forces of military instincts—will he readily fall in with arrangements likely to secure peace.

THE SHAKSPEARE COMMEMORATION AT STRATFORD-ON-AVON: SCENE FROM "TWELFTH NIGHT," AS PLAYED IN THE FESTIVAL PAVILION.—SEE PAGE 433.

It seems quite enough that Russia sympathises with this policy of retrogression from constitutional government. The Emperor and his great nobility have in hand a somewhat similar work in Poland, and would be glad to see it carried to a like extent by a like well-organised Prussia. It cannot be a matter of indifference to them which shall be in the ascendant—the Prussian Parliament or the Prussian Army. From the former they expect little but the good-will to their cause, a loud talk and not in vain, for assistance. The King declined to join the three Powers in remonstrating against the cruel treatment of Russian Poland, and lent such aid as he could in paralysing the insurrection. Prussia, it is true, has not yet, as was rumoured, an extensive seaboard in the Baltic; but, short of that, the Emperor and the King probably understand each other quite sufficiently to embolden the Plenipotentiaries of the latter to chivalrous and valuable pretensions at the Conference.

To Austria the war has, no doubt, in the main been distasteful. It is for her a logical blunder. It also puts a new strain upon her overburdened finances. But she could not allow Prussia, a rival whom she must takes and fears, to take the lead in Germany, even though it might be in a policy of injustice. The two Powers, whether in the field or in the Conference, are equally intent upon cheating the German people and upon each excluding each other as to the real aim of the Confederation, represented by M. von Beust, fully alive to the deception sought to be palmed upon them, skilfully play upon this rivalry as the likeliest means of getting what they want. Thus far, there is no breach of the Treaty of 1852, with the exception already named, the motives at work in the Conference now sitting at Westminster are predominantly self-seeking, and are less concerned to restore quiet to Europe than to secure gains from the present anarchy and essentially egotistic triumph.

Of France we wish to speak with unfeigned respect and with full allowance for the somewhat novel position in which she has been placed. She has evinced a disposition to let the German Powers do as they list. The Emperor has even telegraphed his congratulations to the King of Prussia on the capture of the Düppel forts. His policy of inaction in reference to the Dano-German quarrel may possibly arise from the necessity he feels to preserve a European peace. The effect of that inaction, however, shows itself in several tendencies which could hardly have been absent from his mind in adopting and persisting in it. It reminds England that she has a friend in rejecting his proposal to settle this question, among others, by the authority of a European congress. It suggests the idea that when France chooses to suspend her international influence all sorts of mischievous ambitions fancy themselves at liberty to come into the light and play their pranks. And it favours the creation of a precedent which may hereafter be serviceable when the time shall arrive for treating Prussia as Prussia has treated Denmark, and annexing a territory to the crown of the empire to which both geography and ethnology seem to have assigned them. We will not say these have been the Emperor's motives; but we will say that, if they were, they would be well expressed themselves in the course he has thought fit to pursue.

We have only to conceive of an assembly of Plenipotentiaries ostensibly met for a common object, but really animated by these conflicting interests, motives, and intentions, and prepared to be assured that, whether they reach a conclusion or break up in disagreement, the future can only be one of gloom and trouble. It may not disclose its uncomely features presently, but it will do so at no very remote period. When monarchs are on the watch to outwit and cozen one another, and public law and the public good are set at naught for the realisation of private ends, one may be sure that evil consequences will be averted. The leprosy which is in the blood will soon show itself on the skin. Prussia and Austria have planted the fruit which was pleasant to the eye, and greedily have they swallowed it. A portion of it they have tossed to the German people. Do they suppose that retribution will not overtake their crime? Are they so strong at home that they can venture with impunity to play the ruffian abroad? Will the step they have given to their subjects quiet them for ever? Will the example they have set other States remain utterly inoperative? They have broken down the old fences which marked out the rights of nations. They have started a new train of thought in ambitious minds. They have trampled out old friendships. Now let them look to the result. As surely as there is a God in heaven, whose laws they have wantonly insulted, so surely will they be made to drink the cup of trouble which they have filled for others, and drain the very dregs of it. They used to be thought necessary to the balance of the European system; they have effectually dispelled that illusion. They have braved public opinion, which they will sorely need when their own immoral principles are put in force against themselves. Hohenzollern and Hapsburg have broken the charm which secured them against many a peril. They will have to stand henceforth in their own strength. This generation will probably see them humbled in the sight of the gainsayers, and the nations will exhibit little pity towards them when they are made to eat the fruit of their own ways.

FOREIGN AND COLONIAL NEWS.

FRANCE.

The Emperor received the Papal Nuncio Ambassadors on Tuesday and heard their announcement that they had come to explain the difficulties regarding the execution of a treaty of commerce which led to an attack upon a French officer. His Majesty delivered a reply, which, although courteous and friendly in tone, put itself decisively on the ground of sustaining international law to be respected, and conveyed to the Envoys an assurance that the European Powers would not allow the question to be prejudged, affording thus a proof of the interest in distant countries. The speech of the Ambassadors was translated from Spanish into French. Dinner, lasting two hours, was French; and the Imperial reply of course had to go through the same duplicate process. The Ambassadors left Paris that night, and the day in Paris as they mean about seeing the sights of the capital.

The Emperor and Empress presided at the Council at the Tuileries of the Prince Imperial's Society. The Prince Imperial and a great many members of the Imperial family were present.

The Palace of Industry, in the Champs Elysées, has just been opened for the reception of the Spring Exhibition. This was the first public day when admittance was gratis for all comers. The crowd was prodigious, but the arrangements were admirable. Yesterday there were the Prince Imperial and his tutors, and afterwards the Emperor and her ladies, and then the Empress herself, arrived and took a long round. The Prince Imperial was in uniform. The group (says the Paris correspondent of the Guardian) was interesting. There were present all the Imperial princes and the Imperial party felt at their ease. The little Prince grows like his father, and is a modern. He is pretty, gentle boy—rather too gentle, perhaps, to judge by appearance—with soft and wavy brown hair, which curls naturally. He will kiss him up to a picture representing the return of the First Napoleon from Elba, and look no more at it. He runs from the group, and, without pet, seemingly without much success. A dash of frolic, with more animation, and, above all, physical energy, might be wished for, perhaps, in one who is to be the companion of his father's hours. The mother looked gay and light-hearted enough as she chatted with her suite. As for Napoleon III., he has lost nothing of his air of superior address or figure. Embonpoint increases rapidly with years and tranquillity, and the Emperor is still not large—he is the best built person of Europe in the rotund, easy-looking little man who strolled about the Palais de Industrie. With "Bon jour, mon ami," he took him up to a picture representing the return of the First Napoleon from Elba, and took no notice of the boy's pass by the group, pulled, but £30,000, and the estimated surplus of next year is £820,000. In consequence of this favourable state of the revenue, the 10 per cent income duties are to be reduced to 7½ per cent.

A telegram from Shanghai reports the advance of Major Gordon against the Taepings. He had captured Eching and two other cities, and was marching on Nanking.

From Japan it is stated that an Englishman had been nearly assassinated at Nagasaki. Sir H. Alcock had arrived at Yokohama.

NEW ZEALAND.

The following despatch from Lieut.-General Cameron, dated Headquarters, Te Awamuta, Feb. 25, was received at the War Office on Thursday:—A force under command of Lieut.-General Cameron made a flank march on the night of the 21st inst., by which the whole of the native strongholds, constructed with immense labour to oppose his advance, were entirely turned. They were also commanded, excavated by the natives, who fled on a strong position in front of Rangiowhia, their principal source of supply. On the 22nd General Cameron attacked the position, which was most gallantly assaulted and carried by the 50th Regiment. We are now in possession of the country between Te Awamuta and Waikato river, as far as Rangiowhia, from which the natives have retired. There were three officers severely wounded,—Lieutenant-Colonel Nelson, Colonial Defence Force; Lieutenant Pagan, 65th Regiment; and Ensign Dawson, 50th Regiment; and four soldiers killed, and four wounded.

The following telegram was received at Reuter's office on Thursday:—According to the latest advices from New Zealand Pike Pike and Paterangi have been abandoned by the natives. General Cameron attacked their redoubts on the 22nd of February. The Maories fled, with the loss of fifty killed and wounded. 100 had been their armes.

METROPOLITAN NEWS.

Mr. Hughes, author of "Tom Brown," has announced his intention of standing for representation of Rugby in the next election.

The anniversary banquet of the Royal Academy took place last Saturday, in the usual manner, the Prince of Wales presiding, and the Bishop of Oxford officiating as chaplain.

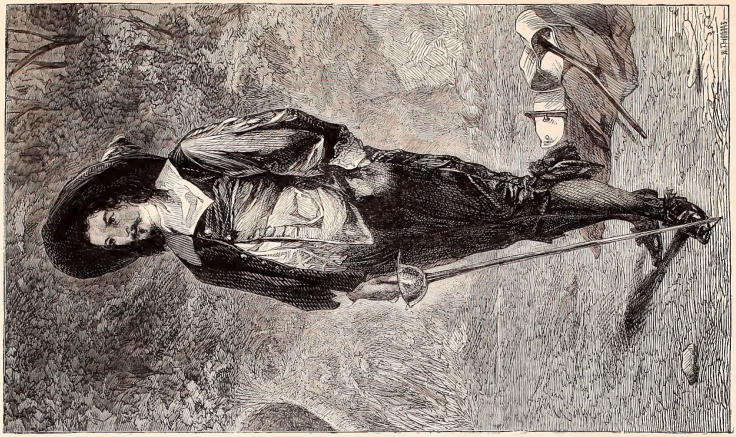
The Lord Mayor and Lady Mayoress have issued invitations to a dinner at the Mansion House, on Friday, the 27th inst., "to meet her Majesty's Ministers."

The Lord Mayor continues to receive letters and telegrams from various parts of Italy expressive of profound gratitude for the enthusiastic reception of Garibaldi by the London people.

The President of the Royal Society, General Sabine, held his second conversazione last night at Burlington House. The rooms were filled. The large saloon and brilliantly-lighted suite of rooms were thronged.

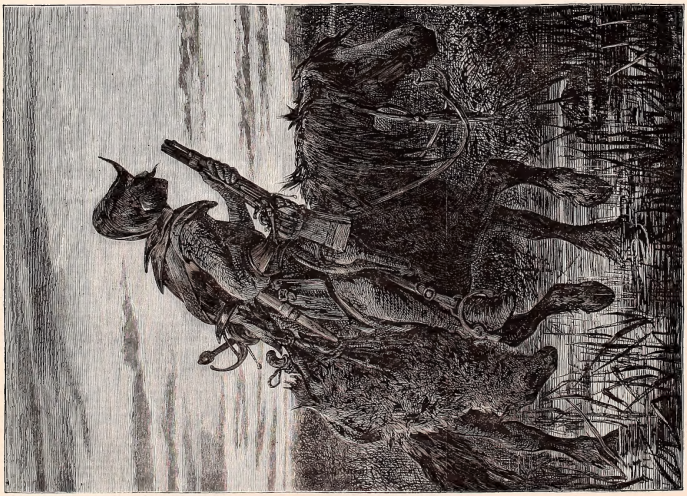
The contract for the erection of the new Houses of Parliamentary Clerks has been given to Messrs. Thorn Brothers, at Westminster, whose estimate for the required plan of the structure is £13,000.

The National Portrait Gallery, 29, Great George-street, Westminster, will be open to the public from ten o'clock in the morning, instead of twelve, on Wednesdays and Saturdays. The trustees have also given authority for the gallery to be open on Whit-Monday.



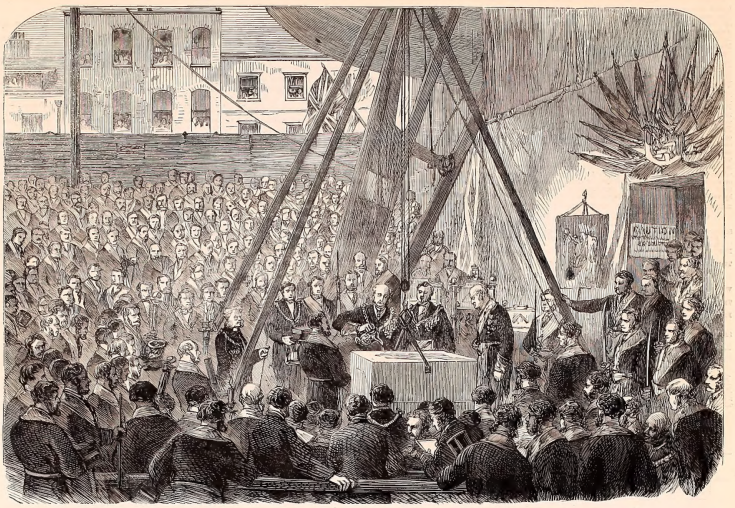
The Commissioners appointed to award the premiums for the designs submitted in competition for the proposed galleries at South Kensington met yesterday, and selected the design of Mr. Godfrey Sykes, in the chair, Sir Tite, Mr. Roberts, Mr. Fergusson, and Mr. Pennethorne. The second premium was awarded to Messrs. Banks and Barry, and the third to Messrs. Kingsley and Scott. The report includes the name of Mr. Michael Cotman, assistant of Nesbitt, and the letters opened, it was announced that the first premium of £400 had been awarded to Godfrey Sykes, the second of £300 to Professor Kerr; and the third, £150, to Mr. Botwinski.

The annual meeting of the Society for the Protection of Great Britain was held on Monday—Mr. William Pole, M.A., F.R.S., treasurer and vice-president, in the chair. The report stated that the number of visitors for the year 1863 was read and adopted. The account of contributions from members and friends for 1863 amounted to £1,100, and the total of subscriptions to lectures was £716; the total income for the year amounted to £2,350. On Dec. 31, 1863, the funded property of the Society, in the name of the bankers' £100, with six Exchequer bills of £100 each. Fifty-five new members were elected.



The annual conference of the Working Men's Club and Institute Union, which commenced its proceedings on Monday with a mechanics' institute exhibition for the use of men of the working class, is to be held next week in the Whitfield-street Club-house. The meeting will open on Tuesday morning, and the Right Hon. W. F. Cowper on Tuesday evening; Lord Lyttelton and Mr. Baines (Leeds) on Wednesday morning and afternoon; the Dean of Chichester on Thursday morning. There will be a conversazione on Thursday evening, at which Mr. Gladstone is to preside; the Earl of Shaftesbury, the Bishop of London, and other influential speakers are announced as intending to be present on the occasion.

A custom of some antiquity was observed on Monday morning in the parish of St. Leonard's-in-the-East. Some years ago a young married man from a country age, established and endowed a charity for the education and maintenance of a number of poor children, to be selected every May Day several young women of marriageable age drew for a prize of £5 each, and the fortunate drawers were entitled to claim the same as a marriage gift at the end of the same time should they marry. The prize for the fair drawer of last year was married on Monday morning, the church bells being rung and a service performed by the rector. On Sunday evening, after the trustees and friends of the charity had partaken of the inevitable dinner, a hundred sovereigns were presented to the bride by the rector.



Last week the births of 1046 children—1000 boys and 940 girls—were registered in London. In the week corresponding with 1863-63 the average number (corrected) was 1071.—In the week that ended last month the deaths registered in London were 1,100 more than in the week of the previous week, and a more important decrease on those of the earlier weeks of April. The actual number of deaths in the metropolis during the year in 1864

"THE TIME AND PLACE," BY J. PETTIE, IN THE EXHIBITION OF THE BRITISH INSTITUTION.

"JOCK O' THE SIDE," BY F. WEEKES, IN THE EXHIBITION OF THE BRITISH INSTITUTION.—SEE PRECEDING PAGE.

LAYING THE FOUNDATION-STONE OF THE NEW BUILDING IN CONNECTION WITH FREEMASONS' HALL.

OUR Engraving is from a sketch taken during the ceremony of laying the foundation-stone of the new building at Freemasons' Hall, Great Queen-street, on Wednesday week. This edifice is to provide a central gathering-place for the Freemasons generally, with more complete accommodation than the existing Freemasons' Hall and its offices can afford, and entirely separate from the arrangements of the Freemasons' Tavern. The architect is Mr. F. P. Cockerell. There will be a handsome Portland-stone façade, with polished granite columns, on the Great Queen-street side. The interior will be joined by a corridor to the present Freemasons' Hall. The foundation-stone was laid by the Earl of Zetland, Grand Master of the Order in England, accompanied by the Earl De Grey and Ripon, Deputy

THE WAR IN DENMARK: PRINCE FREDERICK CHARLES AND STAFF DIRECTING THE ASSAULT ON DUPPEL.—FROM A SKETCH BY OUR SPECIAL ARTIST.—SEE PAGE 474

Grand Master, and the Irish Grand Master, the Duke of Leinster. This occasion brought together a numerous meeting of the "brethren of the mystic tie," with their symbolical equipments and attire. Among the members who took a leading part in the proceedings, besides those already named, were the Persian Ambassador, the Minister of Hayti, Lord Sherborne, Lord De Tabley, Lord Otho Fitzgerald, the Hon. George Handcock, Admiral Sir Lucius Curtis, Sir Watkin Wynn, M.P.; Mr. Cornwall Legh, M.P.; Mr. Frederick Dundas, M.P.; Mr. Augustus Smith, M.P.; Mr. Grenfell, M.P.; Sir Frederick Gore Ouseley, the Rev. Sir J. W. Hayes; Mr. Fenwick, M.P.; Mr. Alexander Dobie, Mr. Pinckney, the William Stone, Mr. Hamilton Seymour, Mr. Hall, Mr. Bowyer, and other Masonic fraternity is said to be greatly increasing, as many as 2000 new members having been admitted within the three months of the present year into the Grand Lodge of England. The Masons of England there are about 1000 lodges, each averaging forty members, or containing in all 40,000 in round numbers. The Masonic body possesses a large amount of funded wealth, besides freehold property of considerable value. There are many charities in connection therewith. Among these are a boys' school, at Wood-green, Tottenham, now being enlarged at a cost of about £18,000; an asylum for aged women, where from eighty to one hundred girls are maintained and educated; an asylum for aged and decayed Masons and Orphans; and an annuity fund for aged men and widows, which last-named charity is supported by voluntary contributions, the Grand Lodge giving £800 a year.

CALENDAR FOR THE WEEK ENDING MAY 14.

SUNDAY, May 8.—Sunday after Ascension Day. Battle of Pole Alto. The Messenger defeated by the United Services Cricket Club. Queen's Bench Term ends. Half-quarter Day.

MONDAY, 9.—Captain Stewart Parry sails to discover the north-west passage, 1819.

TUESDAY, 10.—Queen Elizabeth licenses the regular performance of stage-plays, 1574. The Argentein Collection of pictures first exhibited at the National Gallery, in Hall-and, 1824. Ascot Races commence.

WEDNESDAY, 11.—The Grand Master of the Templars and fifty-four of the Knights buried at Paris, and Jacques de Molay burnt, 1314.

THURSDAY, 12.—Battle of Pharsalia. Pompey totally defeated by Julius Cæsar, 48 B.C. The Queen lives, 1564. Ascot Races end.

FRIDAY, 13.—Old May Day. Industrious exercises of the great Dutch patriot, Barneveldt, at The Hague, 1614. Epsom Races, 1st day, 1862. Ascot's first quarter, 6h. 39m. p.m.

SATURDAY, 14.—Early IV. "le Grand," assassinated by Ravaillac, 1610. First publication of the ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS, 1842.

TIMES OF HIGH WATER AT LONDON BRIDGE FOR THE WEEK ENDING MAY 14, 1864.

Sunday.	Monday.	Tuesday.	Wednesday.	Thursday.	Friday.	Saturday.
M. | A.	M. | A.	M. | A.	M. | A.	M. | A.	M. | A.	M. | A.
h m | h m	h m | h m	h m | h m	h m | h m	h m | h m	h m | h m	h m | h m
2 15 | 2 40	3 5 | 3 30	3 55 | 4 20	4 45 | 5 10	5 35 | 6 0	6 25 | 6 50	7 15 | 7 40

THE WEATHER.

RESULTS OF METEOROLOGICAL OBSERVATIONS AT THE KEW OBSERVATORY OF THE BRITISH ASSOCIATION.
Lat. 51° 29′ N.; Long. 0° 19′ W.; Altitude 50 feet above the sea level.

DAY.	BAROMETER reduced to 32° Fahr.			THERMOMETERS.			WIND.		Rain in 24 hours in inches.
	Highest.	Lowest.	Mean.	Highest.	Lowest.	Mean.	General Direction.	Number of Miles.
April	Inches	Inches	Inches
27	30.140	29.870	30.005	58.0	43.9	50.9	NE.	187	0.000
28	30.170	29.870	30.020	58.1	43.0	50.6	NE. by E.	233	0.000
29	30.122	29.870	29.996	60.3	43.7	51.7	E. by S.	233	0.000
30	30.120	29.870	29.995	62.2	39.9	51.0	SE. by E.	191	0.000
May 1	30.120	29.870	29.995	62.2	43.4	52.8	W.	191	0.000
2	29.910	29.857	29.884	64.2	45.0	54.6	W.	177	0.000
3	29.915	29.514	29.714	61.2	42.0	51.6	WSW.	237	0.000
4	29.915	29.514	29.870	58.7	39.9	51.3	WSW. to NE.	237	0.000

The following are the readings of the meteorological instruments for the above days, at 9h. in half-past nine A.M.:—

Barometer (in inches) corrected	30.155	30.130	30.137	30.145	30.223	30.275	30.295
Thermometer (Fahr.)	51.0	51.0	51.0	51.0	51.0	51.0	51.0
Direction of Wind	NE.	E.	E.	SE.	SW.	SW.	SW.
Direction of Wind	NE.	E.	E.	SE.	SW.	SW.	SW.

THEATRE ROYAL, DRURY-LANE.—Managers, Messrs. H. J. FALCONER and F. B. CHATTERTON.—The public are respectfully informed that, in consequence of positive engagements, the extraordinarily successful Pantomime of HARLEQUIN AND THE FORTY THIEVES will be withdrawn on Saturday, May 14, and during the week it will be performed every evening, and on Wednesday and Saturday next (being the concluding nights of the PANTOMIME) at the usual hours. On Monday next, May 9, and during the week, the Comedy of THE LADY OF LYONS, with the efficient representation of a Ballet company that has been witnessed for many years. On Wednesday next, May 11, and during the week, the Comedy of MONEY, with the original cast, Mr. Phelps, Mr. Walter Lacy, Mr. Compton, Mr. Ryder, Mr. Addison, G. Belmore, Mr. Bradley, H. Vandenhoff, Barnett, Ingram, Ellerton, J. Ryder, Mr. Stuart, Miss Fanny Wyndham, Miss Thirlwall, and Mrs. Edward Stirling. Concluding with the Farce of MY AWFUL DAD. Doors open at half-past Six. Performances to commence at Seven. Private Boxes and Stalls may be secured at the Box-office, which is open from Ten till Five. HENRY THE FOURTH and a GRAND CONCERT for the BENEFIT of Mr. EDMUND PHILLIPS.

THEATRE ROYAL, HAYMARKET.—Immense success of the New Farce, by TOM TAYLOR, entitled THE OVERLAND ROUTE, which will be performed EVERY EVENING during the week, at seven, AN UNLUCKY FAMILY. Mr. Compton, Mr. Buckstone, Mr. Howe, Mr. Clarke, Mr. Chippendale, Miss Swanborough, Miss Fanny Josephs, Miss Reynolds, Mrs. Chippendale, Miss Sandon, Miss E. Fitzwilliam, and Miss Nelly Moore. With THE LOAN OF A LOVER. Mr. Compton, Mr. Howe, Mr. Buckstone, Mr. Clarke, Miss Swanborough, and Miss Fanny Josephs.

NEW THEATRE ROYAL, ADELPHI.—On MONDAY and during the Week, SHAKESPEARE'S HOUSE, a Grand Allegorical Drama, by Mr. PLANCHÉ. Mr. Wright, Mr. Paul Bedford, Mr. Rogers, Mr. Stuart, Mr. Billington, Miss KATE KELLY, Miss Leigh, Miss Ada Swanborough, and Miss Woolgar. Concluding with MISS HAYDAR.—LEAH.—Miss Bateman will appear for a few nights in her great impersonation of the Jewish Maiden in further action.

THEATRE ROYAL, ST. JAMES'S.—Under the Management of Mr. BENJAMIN WEBSTER.—On MONDAY, and during the Week, Dickens's Comedy, DOMBEY AND SON. Mr. Webster, Mr. Compton, Mr. Leigh Murray, Mr. SHARE HANDS.—In 1 Act, by A. Cooke, Mr. J. Johnstone, Mr. Rogers, Mr. Addison, Miss Fanny Josephs. THE SILVER LIONS.—Messrs. C. Hudson, J. Rogers, Addison, Miss Fanny Josephs, Miss Reynolds, Miss Nelly Moore, and Miss Swanborough. Concluding with OUT OF SORTS.—Mr. Webster, Mr. Charles Matthews and Mr. Frank Matthews. To commence with UNDER THE ROSE.

THE ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS.

LONDON: SATURDAY, MAY 7, 1864.

THE lessing of a Royal Commission to inquire into the nature and operation of the laws under which capital punishment is inflicted, and the manner in which it is inflicted, and to report whether it is desirable to make any alteration therein, is an epoch in the history of our criminal law, and, whatever may be the result, the world will be struck in the moral part of the country. The concession, made by a Minister who avows himself opposed to the abolition of the punishment of death, must be regarded neither as a device for shelving the subject nor as a mere yielding to a perversistent agitation. It is not many days ago since the highest legal authority in the kingdom declared that it was desirable to consider whether this country should not follow the example of several Continental nations, and assign degrees to the varieties of the crime for which we doom an offender to death. And it has become clear, from the mode in which sentences are remitted, that this classification, or virtual classification, is in fact the principle on which the Home Office has resolved to act—in defiance, let it be said, of the present law of the land. That the Government has therefore made up its mind to assent, at no distant date, to a modification of the law, may be assumed; and it becomes the serious duty of the educated classes to take into earnest consideration a question on which their sentence has increased value, inasmuch as they are impartial judges. The crime for which men die on the scaffold is but rarely committed against members of the upper class, still more rarely by members of that class; and in exercising, as the instructed in every nation are bound to do, their best judgment in regard to legislation, the thinking part of the community has, in this instance, the advantage of "a removed ground," a remark which would not apply were the subject connected with the infringement of any other than the sixth article of the decalogue.

The inquiry about to be commenced will, we hope, be an exhaustive one. It must, of course, be long and ample. The views of all parties will be sought for, from the sentimentalist of the Victor Hugo school, who holds that there is no such thing as crime, but that a person who violates human or Divine law thereby shows himself to be an unfortunate person, who should be watched and emotionally comforted, down to the Draconian and Pharisaical legislator, who believes that once wrong means always wrong, and the sooner a culprit is put out of the way the better. Between these extremes are the advocates of death on the ground that it has been commuted for the sake of robbery, or to obliterate proof of robbery; the advocates of tremendous solitary punishment instead of death; the advocates of private execution; the advocates of the system that combines solitude with occasional exposure and in the mean time hard labour and corporal chastisement; and there are other advisers who will also be heard. We trust, however, that the Commissioners will not be embarrassed by the mass of mere valuable and more scientific information than can be gained by a registration of the views of men who have erected theories for themselves. There are hundreds of thoughtful men, chiefly of the legal profession, well to our strength able to do away with the old, coarse rule which masses every wilful offence against life in the one word murder, and would punish accordingly. While offences against property are so nicely discriminated that sometimes across a counter a shopman may convert a crime from a larceny into a breach of trust, and alter the consequences to the rogue, the law of murder knows no difference between the guilt of the man who in an accession of anger, and probably of drink, deals a fatal blow at one who has insulted him, and the guilt of the sleek, catlike scoundrel who lovers for months round the bed of a relative slowly administering poison and watching the ebbing of victim, for the sake of saving to be entitled to the death of the latter. Against any modification of the law that should save the criminal of this second type from strangulation the mind and heart of the nation will unanimously protest: but while Justice can and nothing more to such a miscreant, she may be content to award something less to the semi-frantic wretch whose deed has been that of brutal impulse. There are other shades of criminality which call for a graduating civil action to indicate, instead of massing all wilful offences against life in one clumsily comprehensive nomenclature.

In addition to the fact that justice demands some such rearrangement of the law, there are arguments against which some persons will have even more force than a theory of justice. First, it is most desirable to deprive the jurymen of this country of the power which they have assumed—that of making the law as they go. Nothing civilly can be more the jury do not now consider what the law has said upon the subject, but decide what they themselves think ought to be the proper punishment of the offender. This is, in fact, a ruling justice are not eminently judicial, but are exceedingly ready to be led away by what was called in the debate of Tuesday a "soul-stirring address" from counsel. We remember a case, some years ago, in Ireland, the fact, but the profession will recollect it—in which the Judge avowedly summed up the evidence at far greater length than was, he said, necessary, in order to give an emotional jury time to recover from the effect of a magnificent oration by the present Mr. Justice Shee. But this kind of "buffer" cannot always be applied; and it is intolerable that the criminal law of England should be inverted in the jury-box by a dexterously trained advocate, and not even the fact after a sensational address. The law will, if duly discriminative, save this scandal, as a differential scale of punishments will enable a jury completely to carry out the principles of equity. Another and a most powerful argument for a revision of the system will be the certainty of punishment. The difficulty of procuring complete evidence, such as precludes the Judge from hinting at doubts, the great that hundreds of rascals escape who, were the punishment a grade lower, would expiate their crimes in penal servitude; and they know this, and defy the chances. In the interest of society these earths should be all stopped. We think, therefore, that the issuing this commission is a wise step. So far from having any sympathy with criminals, we desire the alteration of the law because we believe that it will bring more of them to justice—at the solitary cell his hall in fear and brought his enemy down with one of the quarters. But the change is not one to be made in haste, nor without the complete inquiry which can be made only into the minds of the most thoughtful and the practicabilities of the action of a more discriminating rule.

THE COURT.

The Queen has continued at Osborne, in the enjoyment of good health, during the past week.

Yesterday week her Majesty, accompanied by Princess Helena and Prince Leopold and attended by the Hon. Lucy Lyttelton and Lieut.-Colonel De Plat, drove to Ryde.

On Saturday last the Queen, accompanied by Princess Helena, drove out. Lord Granville, Lord Aldersey and Mr. Quaade arrived at Osborne. Lord Stanley had an audience of her Majesty, and Mr. Quaade had the honour of being received by the Queen. Prince Arthur, attended by Major Elphinstone, arrived at Osborne from Greenwich Hospital.

On Sunday the Queen, Princess Helena, Princess Louisa, Prince Arthur, and Prince Leopold, attended Divine service, performed at Osborne by the Rev. G. Prothero. This was the first Protestant service at the Isle of Wight, Sunday at Prince Arthur.

On Monday the Queen walked in the grounds of Osborne. Later in the day her Majesty, attended by the Hon. Mrs. Bruce and Lord Alfred Paget, drove to Cowes, and afterwards returned to Osborne on a visit to the Queen. Prince Arthur, attended by Major Elphinstone, left Osborne for Greenwich Hospital.

On Tuesday the Queen, accompanied by Princess Louisa, walked and drove in the grounds adjacent to Osborne. Princess Louise Lowestoin returned to London.

On Wednesday the Queen held a Council, which was attended by Earl Granville, the Duke of Somerset, and Sir Charles Wood. Mr. Helps was Clerk of the Council. Earl Granville had an audience of the Queen, and remained at Osborne. The Duke of Somerset also had an audience of her Majesty.

The Queen and the junior members of the Royal family will leave Osborne on Monday next for Windsor Castle. The Court is expected to go to Scotland on Friday next.

A levee will be held by the Prince of Wales at St. James's Palace, on behalf of the Queen, on Saturday (to-day) next. It will also hold levees at St. James's Palace on the 1st and 22nd of June. Drawingrooms will be held at Buckingham Palace by the Princess of Wales, on behalf of the Queen, on Saturday next and on the 14th of June. Home drawingrooms will be held at Buckingham Palace by the Prince and Princess of Wales, representing the Queen, on the 11th and 23rd June.

The Countess Dowager of Mount-Edgcumbe has succeeded Lieutenant-General Sir Colin Halkett as Lady in Waiting. Lord Alfred Paget has succeeded Major-General Seymour as Equerry in Waiting.

THE DRAWINGROOM.

By command of the Queen, a Drawingroom was held on Tuesday, at St. James's Palace, by the Prince of Wales, on behalf of her Majesty. Presentations to her Royal Highness at this Court were, by the Queen's pleasure, to be considered as equivalent to presentations to her Majesty. The Prince and Princess of Wales, attended by the ladies and gentlemen in waiting and escorted by a detachment of the Royal Horse Guards (Blue), left Marlborough Palace from Marlborough House at two o'clock, and were received by the Ministers of the Robes and the great officers of the Queen's household. Princess Mary of Cambridge, the Grand Duke and Grand Duchess of Mecklenburg-Strelitz, Lady Augusta Stanley, and Prince Edward of Saxe-Weimar attended the Court. The Princess of Wales was dressed in white silk and lace. She was accompanied by the Prince of Wales and the members of the Royal family. In attendance upon the Princess were Countess of Wellington, the Marchioness of Ely, the Countess of Caledon, Viscountess Sidney, Lady Churchill, Viscountess Forester, Lady Charlotte Copley, the Countess De Grey, Hon. Mrs. W. C. Grey, Hon. Lucy Kerr, Hon. Caroline Cavendish, Hon. Horatia Stopford, Hon. Harriet Phipps, Hon. Augusta Bruce, Hon. Eleanor Eden, and the gentlemen in waiting of the Queen's and the Prince and Princess of Wales's respective households.

The Princess of Wales wore a train of rich black silk, trimmed with crape and bullions of black silk, and a petticoat of black silk crape and bouillonnées of black silk, ornamented with jet stars and embroidery. The train was lined with white glacé silk.

The Princess Mary of Cambridge wore a train of rich black corded silk, trimmed with crape and bullions of the same, a petticoat of silver white-ears; a petticoat of black silk, covered with tulle, trimmed with bullions of black and silver white-ears, and also a shaden of diamonds mounted with silver wheat-ears, feathers, and silver tulle veil. Stomacher, necklace, and earrings of pearls and diamonds.

The Grand Duchess of Mecklenburg-Strelitz wore a black satin train trimmed with crape and bullions of moire antique trimming with rich lace and satin ribbon; a stomacher of pearls and diamonds; a diamond necklace, with a pendant of pearls and diamonds; and white feathers and white veil.

The Prince of Wales wore the uniform of the 10th Hussars, of which regiment his Royal Highness is Colonel, with the order of the Garter and the Star of India.

The Foreign Ambassadors and Ministers having been introduced, several presentations in the diplomatic circle took place. The diplomatic circle was attended by the Turkish Ambassador and Mme. Mousurus, the Austrian Ambassador and Countess Apponyi, the Prussian Ambassador and Baroness de Brunnow, the Prussian Ambassador, the French Ambassador, the Belgian Minister, the Italian Minister, the Swedish and Norwegian Minister, the Saxon Minister, the Danish Minister, the United States Minister and Mrs. Adams, the Swedish and Norwegian Chargé d'Affaires and Baroness Rappe, the Spanish Minister, the Peruvian Minister, the Spanish Minister and Mme. de Canyon, the Chargé d'Affaires of the Hanoverian Legation, the Greek Plenipotentiary, the two Plenipotentiaries from Madagascar; Earl De Grey and Ripon, Earl Beauchamp, Earl Bective.

The general circle was attended by the Archbishop of Canterbury, the Bishop of Oxford, the Bishop of Ely, and Bishop of Rochester, Hon. Edward Cardwell, the Right Hon. Sir Charles Wood, the Right Hon. W. E. Gladstone, Lord Chief Baron Pollock, Lord Hatherley, the Earl of Beesborough, General the Marquis of Tweedale, the Marquis of Exeter, the Marquis of Donegal, the Earl of Ilchester, the Earl of Albemarle, Lord Chelmsford, the Right Hon. B. Disraeli, and Earl of Athlone, and the gentlemen of the Queen's household. The following were among the noticeable presentations in the general circle:—The Marchioness of Normanby, on coming to the title, by the Countess of Effingham; Viscountess Sidney, on her marriage, by the Countess of Rothes; Lady Violet Greville, on her marriage, by Lady Rosa Greville; Lady Emily Hamilton, by Lady Caroline Hamilton; Lady Louisa Lady Londesborough, on her marriage, by Lady Churchill; Lady Mauncey, on her marriage, by Viscountess Forester; Lady Mary Cole, on her marriage, by the Countess of Lichfield; the Hon. Mrs. Leopold Agar Ellis, on her marriage, by the Hon. Mrs. E. Cole; the Hon. Mrs. Clowes, on her marriage, by the Countess of Lichfield; Mrs. H. Bigot Lane, on her marriage, by the Countess of Effingham.

THE PRINCE AND PRINCESS OF WALES.

The Prince and Princess of Wales, with Prince Albert Victor, attended by the Hon. Mrs. W. Grey, Lieutenant-General Knollys, Captain Grey, and Mr. Jesse Collings, Chairman, left Sandringham House yesterday week at two o'clock, en route for London. Their Royal Highnesses travelled by special train on the Great Eastern Railway, and arrived at Marlborough House at twenty minutes past five.

On Saturday the Princess of Wales, accompanied by the Hon. Mrs. W. Grey, Lieutenant-General Knollys, and Captain Grey, visited the exhibition of Messrs. Lewis & Allenby, in the day the Princess and the Prince rode on horseback. The Grand Duke of Brunswick and the Prince Royal Highnesses of Mecklenburg-Strelitz dined with the Prince and Princess attended Divine service at the Chapel Royal, St. James's. The Bishop of London, the Rev. the Sub-Dean, and the Rev. J. V. Povah officiated. In the afternoon the Prince and Princess visited the Duchess of Cambridge at Kew.

On Monday the Prince, attended by Major Teesdale, rode out. Later in the day the Prince and Princess drove out and visited the Duchess of Inverness at Kensington Palace. The Comte de Paris visited the Prince at Marlborough House. In the evening the Prince, attended by Major Teesdale, rode out in Hyde Park.

On Tuesday the Princess held a Drawingroom at St. James's Palace, on behalf of the Queen. Prince rode out and the Princess took a drive. In the evening their Royal Highnesses, accompanied by the Duchess of Cambridge, the Grand Duchess of Mecklenburg-Strelitz, and Princess Mary, honoured the Ball with their distinguished presence.

On Wednesday the Prince, attended by Major Teesdale, rode out. The Princess, attended by the Hon. Mrs. W. Grey, took a drive. Their Royal Highnesses entertained at dinner the Duchess d'Aumale, Comte de Paris and Duc de Chartres, the Prince Lowenstein-Wertheim, the Duke and Duchess of Wellington, the Earl and Countess Russell, the Belgian Minister and Mme. Van de Weyer, the Spanish Minister and Mme. Comyn, and a distinguished circle.

Major Teesdale has succeeded Captain Grey as Equerry in Waiting to the Prince.

PRINCE ALFRED.

His Royal Highness Prince Alfred arrived at Berlin on Saturday last on a visit to the Crown Prince of Prussia. The Prince left Berlin, at half-past seven on Wednesday morning for Coburg, whence his Royal Highness will proceed to Gotha and Darmstadt.

His Royal Highness Prince William of Wirtemberg has left the Clarendon Hotel for the Continent.

The Baron de Renzi Chargé-d'Affaires will leave town for Hanover at the close of the week.

The Baroness Blome left town on Saturday last for Holstein.

His Excellency Count Kielmansegge arrived at the residence of the Hereditary Grand Marshal in Grosvenor-square, on Saturday last.

The Duke and Duchess of Buccleuch have arrived in town, from Sackville, for the season.

The Duke and Duchess of Beaufort have arrived at Curzon House, from Badminton, for the season.

The Duke of St. Albans has arrived at his residence in Parkstreet, Grosvenor-square, from Redcourt Hall, Lincolnshire.

The Marquis and Marchioness of Exeter have arrived at their mansion in Grosvenor-square, from Burghley House, near Stamford.

The Marquis and Marchioness of Aligsbury have arrived in town from Tunbridge Wells, for the season.

The Marquis and Marchioness of Winchester have left town for Ampsel Lodge, Pembroke.

Frances Ann, Marchioness of Londonderry, has left Holderesse House for Paris.

The Marquis of Clanricarde and Lord Dunkellin have left town for Ireland.

The Earl and Countess of Harewood returned to Hanover-square on Wednesday from Harewood House, Yorkshire, for the season.

The Earl and Countess of Minton have arrived in town from Aldenham Castle, Hertfordshire.

The Earl and Countess of Courtown have left Carlton-terrace for their seat, Courtown House, in the county of Kilkenny.

The Countess of Powis and the Ladies Herbert and the Earl of Powis have arrived in town from Powis Castle, Montgomery, for the season.

MARRIAGES IN HIGH LIFE.—The marriage of Captain Arthur Hay, of the Grenadier Guards, nephew of Lord Tweeddale de Walton and Esperto in Waiting to the Duchess of Cambridge, with the Hon. Miss Eliot, daughter of Lord Eliot, took place at St. George's, Hanover-square, on Monday in the presence of a numerous assemblage of the friends of both parties. The Rev. E. J. Bevell Thurlow, brother of Lord Thurlow, and Lady Emma Eliot, eldest daughter of the Earl of St. Germans, by whom the marriage was performed in the absence of the bride's father, who was detained by the illness of his wife, were married by special licence. The bride was attended by four bridesmaids, the Hon. Miss Eliot, sister of the bride, Miss Caroline Cavendish, daughter of the Hon. Colonel Cavendish.

FASHIONABLE AND POLITICAL ENTERTAINMENTS.

His Royal Highness the Duke of Cambridge received a distinguished party at dinner on Thursday evening at his residence in Piccadilly.

The Marchioness of Downshire gave a small and early dancing party on Wednesday evening at her residence in Belgrave-square.

The Countess De Grey had an assembly at her residence in Carlton-gardens on Wednesday evening, which was attended by the principal members of the Corps Diplomatique and a large circle of the aristocracy. The noble Earl and Countess entertained a select party at dinner on Wednesday evening. Among the guests were Lord and Lady Aylesford, Lord Normanby, and fashionably attended.

Frances Countess Waldegrave and the Right Hon. Chichester Fortescue, M.P., entertained a distinguished party at dinner on Wednesday evening at their residence in Carlton-terrace. Lord and Lady Granville were present at the reception, which was attended by over four hundred of the leading members of the political and fashionable world.

The Bishop of London and Mrs. Tait entertained a dinner party at dinner on Wednesday evening at their residence in St. James's-square.

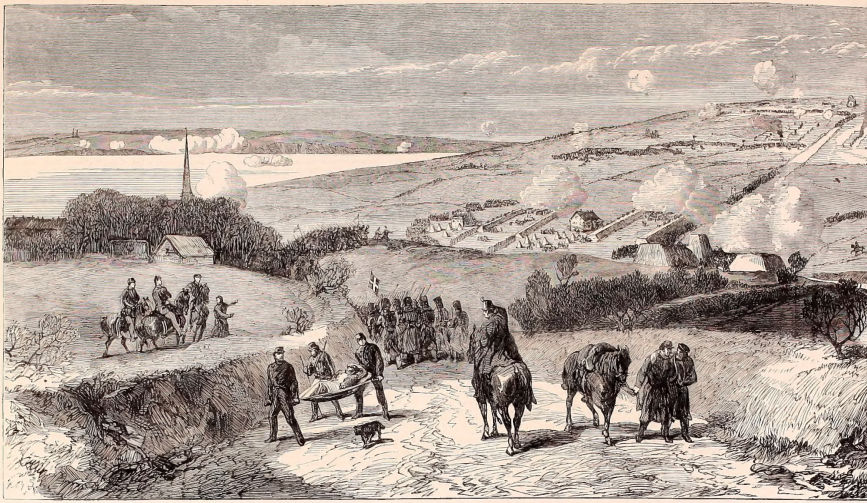
Lord and Lady Lyveden entertained a dinner party at their residence in Belgrave-square on the family reunion in St. James's-square.

Lady Rosslyn gave a dinner party on Thursday evening at her residence in Grosvenor-place.

The Irish Master of the Rolls has decided that the King and Queen's College of Physicians, in Ireland, cannot grant "the degree or title" of M.D.

A return has been published of the number of bankruptcies petitioned in each county of England and Wales during the year 1863. In 1862, 691; 1861, 891; 1858, 68; 1857, 92; 1856, 181; 1855, 111; 1853, 121; 1852, 141; 1851, 1,035; 1850, 1,015, &c.

The barony of Buckhurst, one of the subsidiary honours of the extinct dukedom of Dorset, has been claimed by the heir-at-law of the late Duke, Mr. Sackville, who resides in Sussex, and is a descendant of the third Duke—with reminder to her son, the Hon. and Rev. Reginald Sackville, and the heirs male of his body.



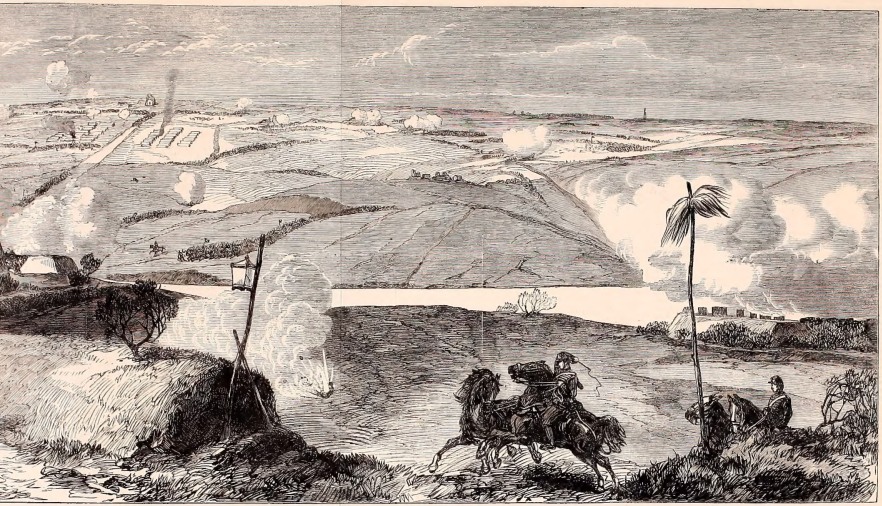
A trot of five, weighing 81 lb., says the Cape Argus, has been taken from the stomach of a bull elephant, which has been shot in the Chanhalen River, in the immediate vicinity of Natal.

The following telegram has been received at the India Office—"Colonel Sconce reports to-day that the Mahsood Wuzeer force of cavalry and infantry, under Colonel Chamberlain, attacked the Sheikh Hamed Kheyl village on the 20th of March. Its junction with the Turkish line was effected on the 8th of April. Colonel Chamberlain's force in India is now completed—works slowly; communication between Bannoo and Kurrachee takes place in twenty-five days; the Sind Government has sent the Tigris, a third is expected from Kurrachee to convoy completion of the line." The Punjaub line has been completed in July."

The annual meeting of the Yorkshire Union of Mechanics' Institutes will be held at Sheffield, on Whit-Tuesday and Wednesday. The preceding commences with a conference of delegates from the several institutes in the county, at which some interesting papers will be read, including Mr. Edward Baines, M.P., the president of the union, on "The Progress of the Working Classes during the Last Quarter of a Century," which the Duke of Argyll will preside; and it is expected that Lord Brougham will be present. On the Wednesday, Mr. Edward Baines, M.P., Mr. Harry Chester, and others. On the following day, Thursday, a grand conversazione will be held at the Cutlers' Hall, Hallamshire, the magnificent seat of the Duke of Devonshire.

A meeting of the Royal Northern Society, Aldgate, A record of 61s was voted to the crew of the Wilhelmina, John-street, Aldgate, for their gallantry in going to the rescue of the Wilhelmina, and one of three men from destruction. A reward amounting to 40s was also voted to the crew of the Lord Nelson, Ratcliff, for the part they took in the rescue of the crew of the Wilhelmina. The society has a claim for going off and rendering important services to the barque Ida, of Gothenburg, which had stranded, 1,000 miles from home, on the coast of Sunderland. The society's life-boat at Southwold had also gone off and saved from destruction the brigantine Ann Rebecca, of Lowestoft, in danger of being overwhelmed. A reward of £15 was voted to the crew of a Cutter (Gosfield) now for going off and rendering assistance to the brig Adelaide, of the brig Alice, of Newcastle, which, during blowing weather on the 17th inst., had parted her cable and was driving on to the crew of a Scarby (Gosfield) yawl, in consideration of the services rendered by the crew of the Gosfield yawl in saving the crew and vessel belonging to the schooner Calmanel, of the brig Alice, of Newcastle, which, during blowing weather on the 17th inst., had parted her cable and was driving on to the crew of a Scarby (Gosfield) yawl, in consideration of the services rendered by the crew of the Gosfield yawl in saving the crew and vessel belonging to the schooner Calmanel, of Guernsey, which had stranded on the Gunfleet Sand, on the night of the 16th inst. A reward of £12 was voted to the crew of a Cutter (Gosfield) now for going off and rendering assistance to the brig Adelaide

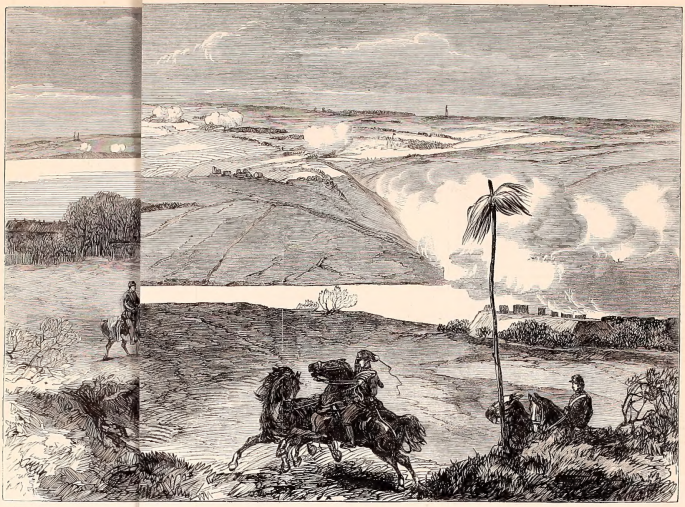
THE WAR IN



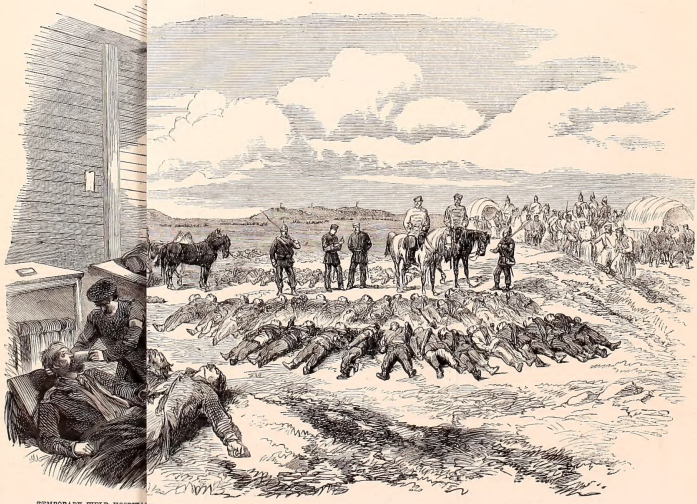
THE BATTLE AROUND DÜPPEL ON THE 18TH OF APRIL, VIEWED FROM THE ISLE OF ALSEN, N

TEMPORARY FIELD HOSPITAL BEHIND THE SECOND PRUSSIAN PARALLEL AT DÜPPEL: SCENE IN THE AMPUTATING HUT.—FROM A SKETCH BY OUR SPECIAL ARTIST.

IN DENMARK.

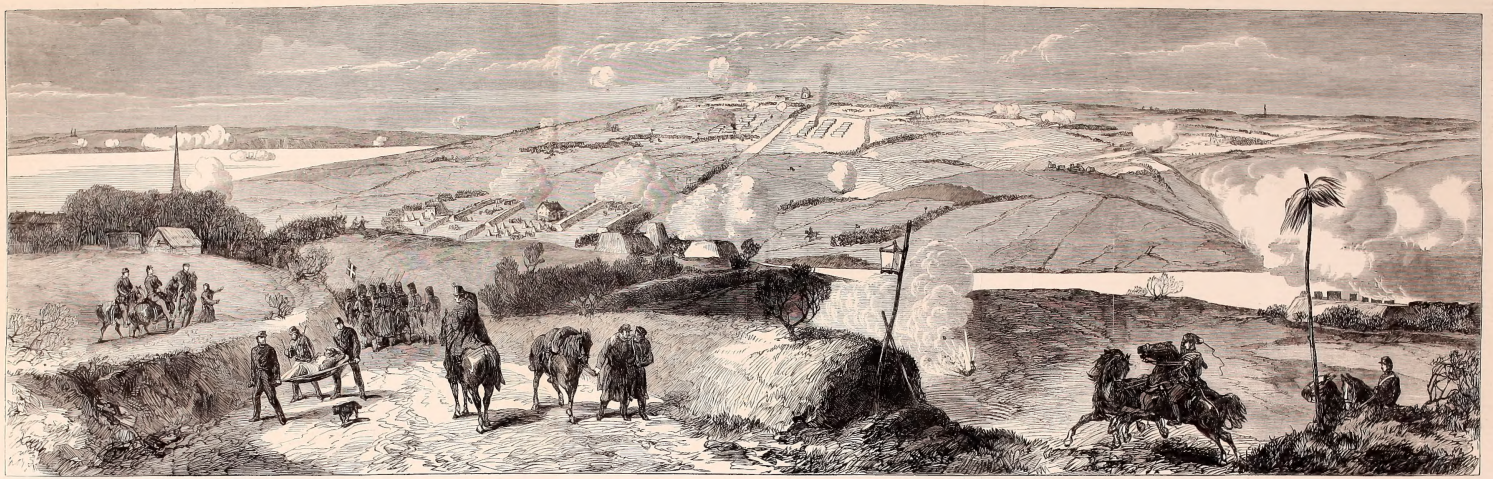


D FROM THE ISLE OF ALSEN, NEAR SONDERBURG.—FROM A SKETCH BY OUR DANISH ARTIST.



COLLECTING THE PRUSSIAN AND THE DANISH DEAD AFTER THE BATTLE OF APRIL 18.—FROM A SKETCH BY OUR SPECIAL ARTIST.—SEE PAGE 451.

R K.



CH BY OUR DANISH ARTIST.

TEMPORARY FIELD HOSPITAL AND THE DANISH DEAD AFTER THE BATTLE OF APRIL 18.—FROM A SKETCH BY OUR SPECIAL ARTIST.—SEE PAGE 454.

THE WAR IN DENMARK.

THE BATTLE AROUND DÜPPEL ON THE 18TH OF APRIL, VIEWED FROM THE ISLE OF ALSEN, NEAR SONDERBURG.—FROM A SKETCH BY OUR DANISH ARTIST.

TEMPORARY FIELD HOSPITAL BEHIND THE SECOND PRUSSIAN PARALLEL AT DÜPPEL: SCENE IN THE AMPUTATING HUT.—FROM A SKETCH BY OUR SPECIAL ARTIST.

COLLECTING THE PRUSSIAN AND THE DANISH DEAD AFTER THE BATTLE OF APRIL 18.—FROM A SKETCH BY OUR SPECIAL ARTIST.—SEE PAGE 454.

SKETCHES IN PARLIAMENT.

The efforts of Parliament to amuse itself are apasmo lic, but so far successful that the game is kept up from half past four to half-past twelve on most evenings, and that is very far legislative no-work. The absence of the Prime Minister and the paucity of Governmental demands on time and opportunity clears the way for private members, Committee of Supply exhibiting a most wonderful elasticity this year. This is, perhaps, not bad policy, because if motions which impede going into Supply are allowed to have their way just as their opponents desire, subjects which are technically called grievances will be exhausted one long, and fortunately dull, night together with ease and rapidity in June and the early weeks of July.

It is not in the state of things that Mr. Pascoe to get a whole night to himself for the discussion on international law arising out of the case of the Tuscalosa, and that is very well for the evening. In the first place, Mr. Pascoe—a gentleman who pauses people to ascertain whether he is very wise or very foolish, and sometimes the one and sometimes the other, and who in his demeanour is a bygone gentleman like bold whereas his name is decayed—judiciously let his motion about the Tuscalosa rest on the paper until after Lord Derby had brought the same subject on in the Lords. Mr. Pascoe, of course, attended that debate, and when he was observed to come into the Commons on the evening of Lord Derby's speech just after the Lords had adjourned with unusual solemnity beaming in his countenance. It was evident that he had been imbibing ideas from a master of eloquent discussion, which he had only to water well in order to produce them as his own when he favoured the Lower House with his observations. He was not wise in the beginning of his speech, one discovered traces of attempts at mimicry in the two or three elaborate jokes he had got up and was not comfortably delivered. But we will venture to assert that the imitation was not so good as to reach the borders of plagiary. After the mover the whole debate ran through lawyers, with a few exceptions namely, Sir John Hay and Sir James Elphinstone; but, looking to their respective performances in the house, the leaders of the bar and the navy seldom recognise that class of talkers who are called sea-lawyers. Worsted by experience of a more legitimate kind, Mr. Pascoe took care to hold himself in reserve; and all the evening there seemed to be most resolute dodging between members who had risen to speak for the privilege of the last word. Whilst the Solicitor-General was making his somewhat jejune reply, but, on the whole, business speech—if the candour, which was dreadful, had been omitted it would have been all the latter—Mr. Pascoe was seen to be most attentive listener; and Mr. Whiteside pretentiously made notes, and, indeed, spoke a speech, which, from its point of view, could not but stir up the Attorney-General to follow him, thus giving Sir Hugh the opportunity he desired of neatly and elegantly, and in truth very effectively, rebuking the pretensions of the great professional and Parliamentary rival. But Mr. Attorney-General is by no means of the temperament to be soothed by a little flattery. He is hasty reply by a gentleman who contrives to so mix up his law and his fun that is not always possible to tell which is which. So Mr. Whiteside was left stranded at half-past seven, and Mr. J. J. Powell, with creditable alacrity, rushed into the gap, and gave an adequate command of the subject, skewed fence, and made keen thrusts at the Solicitor-General. Mr. Powell's speech was one of the thought that he could pierce through his panoply of self-belief and self-complacency. At length, when Mr. Pascoe had had what was a sufficient space for two speeches, the debate having been caused to run so elastically that there was an able Opposition speech from Mr. Montagu Smith to answer, and Sir Hugh Cairns to close, he rose to his seat with a determinate air of waiting—the Attorney-General rose, and gave up the struggle for the evening. Mr. Pascoe, it turned out, fe did not much matter; for the discussion had taken such a technical turn that lay listeners had to be told that the speech of the noon have had Mr. Darby Griffith to wind it up as Sir Hugh Cairns. It was a great field-night for the lawyers, and the debate was well arranged and certain, the interest flagged very early, and there might have been "room" if the Government had pressed it.

About two generations ago the denizens of a then very fashionable watering-place in Gloucestershire were in the habit of giving a histrionic talents of the autocratic family (in that county) of Berkeley. We do not know whether the late Mr. Henry Berkeley was one of the dramatic company; but he was, at any rate, one that the partakes of the peculiar faculty of the race to which he belongs. Every one knows how amusing he can be sometimes in private life, but perhaps every one does not perceive how skilfully he makes his jokes tell in his public speeches, and how carefully he selects for them the more serious parts of his subject brings him almost to the verge of pathos. The other evening he was in a particularly good vein of descriptive power, and of his capability of putting a serious case in the most relatively serious way we had a proof in the manner in which he showed the House a fine piece of acting when he detailed the wrongs of Mr. Beecher. In truth, Mr. Beecher's existence entirely with him; they could not tolerate, and would scarcely listen to, the various arguments of Sir George Grey and the Attorney-General; and, by their mode of proceeding, showed that Mr. Berkeley's explanation that envy man who has suffered injury by miscarriage of common law has a right, in a large sense of the word, to redress at the hands of revenue. Mr. Gladstone was at last obliged to get up and, in his most impressive manner, utter a remonstrance. Mr. Berkeley, as a member sitting behind the Treasury bench, accepted, in point of fact, the rebuke as if it were a vote that the more or less a supporter. But Mr. Disraeli, perceiving an opportunity of getting the Government out of a disagreeable scrape, and of course having a majority against them, is intervened with feigned indignation, but covert cruelty, against the susceptibilities of Mr. Berkeley and the sympathies of the House, and, with the assurance that enough to shake his stitch as it ever reached in that assembly, and indeed a division, which ended, as must have been expected, in a victory for the Ayes

Ekstein, and Rev. H. J. Hotham, Examiners. Means. Trower, Mackey, and Jermyn were elected to studentships of Christ Church; and Messrs. Sim, Lowe, and Chevallier to Exhibitions at Trinity, Cambridge. The Triplett Exhibitions were obtained by Messrs. Sim and Tomlinson, and the Thomas Exhibition by Mr. Pember. The election dinner was held in hall, and the epigrams recited, as usual, on the holiday evening.

The first festival of the St. John's Foundation School for Sons of Poor Clergy was held at the London Tavern on Wednesday week, under the presidency of the Earl of Carnarvon, and with an unusually good muster both of clergy and laity. There are at present fifty-nine boys on the foundation, and the position and career of many of the old pupils are highly satisfactory.

The Rev. C. F. Childe, B.A., late Scholar of Trinity College, Cambridge, has been appointed Vice-President of St. Mary's College, Harrow.

THE FARM.

THE last of the important spring series of shorthorn sales took place on Friday, the 29th ult., at Stratton Park, where Messrs. Barnett and Fowler introduced their fine herd to the public. It was not, as a whole, a very great effect, as the Stratton Park lots only averaged £23 1s. 3d. for thirty-one; but Mr. Barnett Hewitson, whose herd was the first sold, that morning and were rather weary and footsore, £21 10s. 2d. for thirty-three, the average a total average of £22 5s. 6d. for the two days' proceedings. Mr. Barnett had the highest price, 190 gs. for Zenobia 3rd by Belleville (1278). His cows were generally all rich roans, good and useful but not in great condition, and go chiefly into Huntingdonshire. At present we are no whisperers of cattle plague in this county, and since 1862 has done so well in the shorthorn way that it may almost "rest and be thankful."

The Agricultural Hall Company have issued the programme for their forthcoming horse-show, which begins on Friday (July 1) and lasts five days. The prize money, we see, is the same as last year (£750), and, in addition to the three prizes of £100 and a £25 cup, £50, and £25 in the class for thoroughbred sires, there are £10 and £5 prizes for the turf, the chase, and the park," an extra £50 is placed at the disposal of the judges to enable them to purchase animals of the first high character of the thoroughbred, but valuable for getting "hunters, or hacks, or harness." We wish these conditions were more clearly and embarrassing to the lench. There are fifteen classes in all, and, besides the versatile class in question, there are two for mares of not less than 14st., five-year-old, and four-year-old hunters, all have their place. Another proof of any highly-bred mare's or gelding's capacities under fifteen hands; heavy-weight chargers and light-weight chargers which are to be exhibited stripped and then ridden fully equipped by troopers. We also see a class for mares and geldings in single carriage-horses not less than fifteen three, which are to be shown in harness. Also, for ponies, Arabs, or Connemaras not exceeding 14 hands, have three classes under fourteen hands for the saddle, and for harness; and under thirteen hands for either. The Company have decided to select their cracks to contend in a pair, with single or double harness on, for the prizes given by "backers," and the entrance fee for this entrance fees vary from £2 12s. 6d. to £1 1s., and the entries must be made before June 15. In all the classes the entrance fee is proportionate for entry.

The council of the Royal Agricultural has selected Plymouth as the society's place of meeting in 1865 by 24 to 10 votes, and declared the district for 1866, which includes Cambridge, Bedford, Hertford, and Huntingdonshire. It was settled by 34 to 3 to continue their consulting engineer in his office. The case was a difficult one, as the vote was considered a testimonial to Mr. Fowler's excellence in his official. Still, it affirms a very curious proposition, that it is possible for one civil engineer to be "backed," against another, because the latter exhibits on his own account, and yet to be a perfectly unbiased assessor to the judges in the shape of reports on competitors. It is related to meet with as little acceptance as that contended for by an eminent Parliamentary civil engineer, that he was the person of exotic and esoteric knowledge and act on one quite independently of the other. His engineering friends, however, are not of that view. The exhibitors have nothing to thank us for, it being manifestly our duty and interest to purchase the best machinery, "at whatever market may be given." The consulting engineer has pretty well made up his mind beforehand as to which is the "best machinery." How can it be otherwise? We have felt for the last two years the force of the dispossessed exhibitors, or the efforts made to overthrow the prize system; but we have now succeeded in it, and so be the 20th vote of Wednesday has furnished its opponents with a most valuable argument against the other.

The Lincoln fair brought about 45,000 sheep on to the ground, and by eight o'clock, when the sales commenced, a very large and respectable number of pens had changed hands, at fully 4s. a head beyond the prices charged three weeks ago. Of cattle there was a full average again was the £20 prize, given by Messrs. Smith and Ellison, the butchers, for the best fat of fifty lambs, was awarded to the one that fifty-five per quarter and clip 14 to 15 lb. of wool. Out of these, thirty-eight were sold in a lot of 200, which made 87s., and Mr. Grantham refused £9 each for the remainder. Of the 200 Mr. Grantham's lambs five very remarkable sheep, three of them four-shear ewes, and calculated to weigh 60 lbs. per quarter. Mr. Grantham's lot of 200 lambs averaged £12 1s. 9½d, one of them making £50, and the other £38, so that he did well to retire the offer of £10 a head made by Mr. Hampshire Down sheep at Stockbridge was remarkably good; and in the old ram class Mr. Rawlencie's Duke of Cambridge and Mr. Duke Gilding's blood, though matters were reversed in the younger class. Mr. Gilding was a great winner and sold a pen of his Lot 1 Cotswolds to Mr. William Pain. There has been an excellent agricultural show at Ayr, and we will not hear any complaints about the weather this year.

The first prize for the best bull stirk out of twenty-eight went to Mr. Kerr, of the Kilburnie district. Mr. Fleming, of Riverton House, gave three more prizes, one for the best bull calf, for the best bull of any age with the one he bought at Kelso; but his crack pair of Clydesdale mares were again an excellent second to those of Mr. Kerr. Duncan Guthrie's prize cow, and the winner of the Fleming prize for the best female in the show, was sold for 200 gs. to Mr. Kerr, who also shared three others for £120. The black-faced sheep made a good stand, and there were some capital grey-faced hogs, of a cross between them and the Leicesters.

The ship Phoebe Dunbar, of London, was destroyed by fire at Sydney, on the 31st of March.

Lord Eglinton has put in a claim to the Kilwinning peerage, in competition with the rival claims of Mr. Boyle and the present Lord Ballour of Fernie.

A telegram has been received by the Duchess of Sutherland from the Duke stating that the yacht Wallace arrived safely at Aberdeen on Tuesday, with Guards, Highlanders, and stores for the Sutherland and Wotherspie night for Gaspers.

A despatch from Vienna states that the Emperor and Empress of Russia are expected on the 16th of May at Kissingen. His Majesty will remain a fortnight. The Emperor and Empress of Austria are also to visit Kissingen, and a meeting of the sovereigns will probably take place.

In digging for the foundation of the memorial to the late Sir George Grey, which is to be erected on a commanding eminence at Auckland, solid walls of great thickness were discovered, which, on further excavation, proved to be the remains of a fort, with bastions, counterfoils, and dark passages of various kinds were met with. In the course of the excavations the fort has been brought to light, many of the moulded windows and arched doorways being but little injured. The walls were found to be constructed of concrete and greatness. On these discoveries being made the committee consulted the architect of the memorial, and the unanimous decision was that the ancient remains should be preserved and a fresh site selected. The memorial will now therefore to be erected far from the fort on the top of the hill.

The usual monthly returns of the number of emigrants leaving Liverpool were made completed by the Government emigration officials on Monday. During the past month there sailed forty-one ships "under the Act" to the United States with 19,939 passengers; to Canada, two ships, with 670 passengers; to Queensland, one ship, with 886 passengers; to Victoria, two ships, with 504 passengers. Of ships sailing not under the Act, there sailed to the United States eleven, with 741 passengers; to Canada, two ships with seventy-seven passengers; to New Brunswick, one ship, with four passengers; to Nova Scotia, one ship, with forty-three passengers; to New-foundland, one ship, with fifty-two passengers; to Victoria, one ship, with eighty passengers; to New South Wales, one ship, with twelve passengers; to Valparaiso, two ships, with eighty-one passengers; to the West Indies, three ships, with thirty passengers; to Rio de Janeiro, one ship, with twenty-four passengers; to Africa, one ship, with twenty-three passengers; to Mexico, one ship, with seventy-seven passengers—making a total emigration for the month of 22,241 persons.

NATIONAL SPORTS.

THERE were fourteen Oaks fillies among the fifteen which went for the One Thousand, and Tomato, the daughter of an Oaks winner, won so very easily that, with luck, she bids very fair to be the ninth on this list which has risen to Epsom honours. Masquerade, who made such an example of several Derby aspirants in the Craven Biennial, cut a very poor figure, and was left behind by the others as soon as the lead and the tail of the Shakspeare movement in their Earl and Merry Monarch, as Lord Glasgow's mare is called, by the Trumpeter with General Peel and walked in last of all for the One. The style in which Wingrave won the Two Thousand Guineas over the D.I. was another gem in the crown of King Tom; and the backers of Fille de Fair might well grumble more deeply than ever when they saw Vivid receiving 4lb. for her pet aversion at the hands of Custance. R.M. Clairvoyant, from the Maiston stable, did not create a very favourable impression at Newmarket, but he is described by a feckle, the opinion held of the latter may be gathered from a fancy price obtained for a share in him. He was sold for 1,000 sovs. a thousand with a postage-stamp on his back."

There was a very large attendance on the second day of the Chester meeting, which was opened by the victory of that very good-looking horse, Mr. Merry Monarch, who was made a hot favourite for the Cup, despite the slightest chance of giving away 15lb. in the Cup to Flash-in-the-Pan, 6st. 4lb.—and Lord Ailsa's "yearling" whose double powers will be remembered by the last Hampton Thursday visitors. The old horse was in such high spirits that he ran a mile round the course as a great pace before the flag dropped, and when he did get to the starting-post he was all over the place, and required a deal of rein to hold. John Osborne had tried Little Stag (6st.), with his usual accuracy, to beat all the three-year-olds; and Lord Zetland was beaten by a head on Lady Ailsa (5st. 7lb.), who was second to all; and if the handicap produced a very different finish to that for the Great Metropolitan, it was a very good race, and the latter part of it was the thronged stand, well, or lattice at Chester. The Derby betting shows little change, the only one worth noting is Lord Zetland's fancy in favour of Cambuscan; and in spite of the persistent ill-luck of the Duke's colt, he remains a favourite for the Derby.

The Fife season closed, on April 27, with a day at Kilgraston. They had the best sport of the season, and the field was a great many iron drains, which have been unusually empty, in consequence of the dry weather. On the 28th, 29th, and 30th the Duke of Beaufort, with a high character; and Mr. Thompson will in all probability become master of the Pytchley, and a more popular appointment could not be found. The Duke of Rutland has given up the Cottesmore, and the hounds are advertised and lotted as well. However, on Saturday last Hendon drew a covert in the Belvoir country, and ran for the country, and it is quite hoped they will remain there, and Jack Musgrave will be left in the Vale of Belvoir. A fine day was arranged to go on with the South Wilts.

The Bedfordshire Agricultural Association prizes was bought in at Christie and Manson's, on Thursday, for 1450 gs. The "Fair Maid of Perth" (Lot 1), the property of Mr. Bowlby, was bought in by Sir Edwin Landseer, R.A., made 250 gs. and 190 gs. respectively.

CHESTER MEETING.—THURSDAY.

GROSVENOR STAKES.—Thirty Sovs. each, Heights 4 ft. Handicap Plate of 70 sovs.—Chryfalis, 1. Lady Louisa, 2. Lufra, 3. Handicap Hurdle Race of 100 sovs.—Merry Monarch, 1. Flash-in-the-Pan, 2. Mousley Baker.—Nothing More, 1. Jack Johns, 2. Postalion, 3.

Handicap Plate of 70 sovs.—Cymbeline, 1. Lady Ailsa, 2. Rolling Boat of 5 sovs.—Eyethia walked over.

Handicap Hurdle Race of 100 sovs.—Dewdrop, 2. Syren, 3.

WEDNESDAY.

Steeple Stakes.—Cutaway, 1. Knight, 2. Sandal, 3.

Welter Cup.—Hesperus, 1. The Clown, 2. Belle of the Ball, 3.

Handicap Plate of 70 sovs.—Lady Louisa, 1. Lufra, 2. Taylor, 3.

Handicap Plate of 40 sovs.—Airedale, 1. Reptile, 2. Gipsy Girl, 3.

Handicap Hurdle Race of 100 sovs.—Merry Monarch, 1. Postalion, 2.

THURSDAY.

The Stand Cup.—Mouley, 1. Knight, 2. Macbeth, 3.

Handicap Plate.—Perseverance, 1. Dermot Asthore, 2. Cryphula, 3.

Handicap Plate.—Lufra, 1. Lady Louisa, 2. Taylor, 3.

Handicap Hurdle Race of 100 sovs.—Merry Monarch, 1.

Queen's Plate.—Varuna, 6 st. 1. Deerstalker, 2. Fuss, 3.

Handicap Plate.—Rosamond, 1. Lady Ailsa, 2. Mr. Trafford, 3. Damon, 3.

Handicap Plate.—Perseverance, 1. Lady Louisa, 2. Pretty Girl, 3.

MONETARY TRANSACTIONS OF THE WEEK.

(From our City Correspondent.)

THE Directors of the Bank of England have made minimum quotation for money to 7 per cent, and the demand for accommodation having been very active the Bank has exercised its discretion to the extent of raising the rate of discount to the full limit of 10 per cent. The Bank has, however, during the last three quarters, been enabled, thanks to delivery, having touched 10 per cent, to relieve the pressure, and the great relief of our mercantile classes. Fortunately, the advances have been made on the best description of security, and the Bank has not been compelled to realise to any extent. The Bank has, however, been enabled to do so, and it is to be hoped that the operations will be more extensive than they have been. The Bank has, however, been enabled to do so, and it is to be hoped that the operations will be more extensive than they have been. The Bank has, however, been enabled to do so, and it is to be hoped that the operations will be more extensive than they have been.

The Bank of England

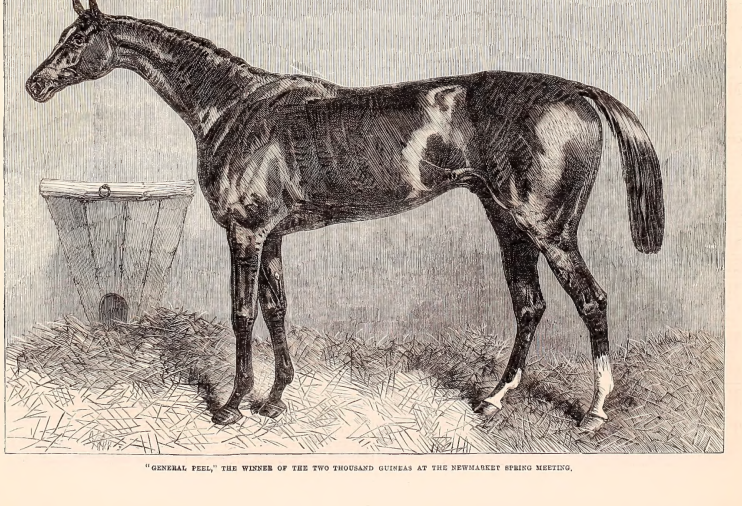
THE WAR IN DENMARK: THE PRUSSIAN ASSAULT ON REDOUBT NO. 6 AT DUPPEL ON APRIL 18.—FROM A SKETCH BY OUR SPECIAL ARTIST.—SEE PAGE 464.

THE LATE ALARIC A. WATTS.

A PORTRAIT of this literary veteran, from the photograph by Messrs. J. and C. Watkins, is here engraved. Mr. Alaric Watts, who died a month since, had just completed his sixty-seventh year. As the author of several volumes of poems, which display much refinement of taste and feeling, and as the editor, from 1825 to 1836, of an annual, "The Literary Souvenir," to which Campbell, Wordsworth, and Coleridge were contributors, the name of Mr. Alaric Watts may be preserved in the literary history of this age. He began life, it is said, as an assistant in his brother's school at Putney; then helped to compile a Technological Dictionary; published a little book of verse, and, after some years' regular employment on the newspapers, began the publication of "The Literary Souvenir," which enjoyed a fair measure of reputation and success. It was the first of the annuals; and the plan of such a serial miscellany, when proposed to him by Messrs. Hurst and Robinson, was a novelty in England, though in Germany something of the kind had existed before. Mr. Watts's notion was, that poems and short prose sketches by popular writers of the day might best be associated with highly finished line-engravings from the best examples of the English school of painting. Most of the finest works of Turner, Leslie, Stothard, Roberts, Lawrence, Collins, Danby, and Martin were engraved, at his suggestion, by the hands of Heath, Finden, Wyatt, Goodall, and Fye, and were published in the "Literary Souvenir." The sale of this annual reached on one occasion the number of 14,000 copies. After its discontinuance, in 1834, Mr. Watts edited, for three years, the Cabinet of Modern Art. He was at the same time editor of the United Service Gazette, and remained its editor until 1845. He was subsequently connected with the Standard and other newspapers. A handsome collected edition of Mr. Watts's poetical pieces appeared in 1851, with the title of "Lyrics of the Heart." He received a pension of £100 per annum from the Government. Mr. Watts married Miss Zillah Wiffin, sister of the poet Jeremiah Holmes Wiffin, translator of Tasso.

GENERAL PEEL, WINNER OF THE TWO THOUSAND GUINEAS STAKES.

EVERY fifth year, on an average, since its commencement, has this great Newmarket race proved the forerunner of Derby or St. Leger honours. Of late it has been peculiarly fruitful in this respect, with The Marquis and Macaroni; and the strong style in which General Peel cut down his field the moment Aldcroft fairly sent him out, and his appearance on pulling up, did not give very much opening for the "fluke"-finders. Nearly forty years have passed since the "white body, crimson sleeves and cap," of Lord Eglinton became so well known to all Northern racegoers, through his two chestnuts, Actæon (who beat Memnon, Mulatto, and Cedric on two successive days at York), and Furiy, who was game for five two-mile heats and a dead heat amongst them. The colours and the courage (which a few years later tempted his Lordship to match Retriever with Priam) have known no change, but the fortune of war has, though trainer after trainer has tried to bring back the old regime, and blamed "the family blood" for his disappointments. Still, in that long period there have been one or two gleams of success, when Miss Sarah won the Great Yorkshire and was second for the St. Leger, and when his Lordship closed the Newmarket season of '52 by winning five matches, and receiving forfeit in another.



THE LATE ALARIC ALEXANDER WATTS.

General Peel never showed in public till the Friday of the Doncaster meeting. It was no common afternoon, as the winners of the St. Leger, Derby, and Oaks of the year all ran. "The General's" match was a Red-House-In one against Bolocchee, whom he beat, with a very slight preparation and 4 to 1 on him, by half a length. He did not attract much attention at the time; but for some weeks before the Two Thousand, "horse-watchers," and circulars, and "our special commissioners" began to hint that "the little horse" First Flight might not after all be the Derby champion of the stable, and that nothing on Middleham Moor went better than "Lord Glasgow's big 'un;" a fact which the second edition of All-knowing Jackson had noted for some time past. The General was bred by his Lordship at those Turf Hotel Paddocks at Doncaster where Bay Middleton stood so long, and where Surplice first saw the light; and under the care of the same stud-groom, Mr. Cunningham. His sire, Young Melbourne, was also bred by his Lordship, and is by Melbourne from a very favourite mare, Cherina by Pantaloon. He was considered one of good promise in his day; but he broke down very severely in his maiden race—a match at Liverpool—and has been a cripple ever since. His blood was, however, too good to be overlooked, and Yorkshire is congratulating itself that it had followed suit at the Rawcliffe paddocks, and filled the subscription for two successive seasons. His Lordship has used him very freely, and had five winners by him last year, one of which, Rapid Rhone, made Lord Clifden's lower his colours so signally in the Craven Meeting. General Peel is from Bess by Orlando, dam by Camel, grandam by Brutandorf; thus combining two strains of that blood of Touchstone which in West Australasia is now blended so well with Melbourne's; while the fusion of Touchstone and Pantaloon has risen into quite a paddock axiom through Phrynе. Put out Brutandorf and Dr. Shorthouse could ask no more.

Our Artist, Mr. Harry Hall, of Newmarket, describes him as "fully sixteen one, of immense bone, with a neat head for so large a horse, a strong neck and very deep shoulders and good ribs, and well-arched loin. He is long in the back, and consequently short from the hip to the setting on of the tail, and has long quarters and rather a broad chest, and stands a little wide with his forelegs. In a general view his fore-quarters preponderate over the hinder." Another, and one of our best judges, also states, in the Sporting Life, that, in "size, length, bone, substance, truth of conformation, and pony-like action, I question whether a racehorse can be found in Europe superior to this grand specimen." In colour he is a dark bay, with a blaze face and two white heels, and apparently with a very placid temper, and quite at his ease in a crowd. His winnings amount at present to £4700, and he is engaged as a three-year-old in the Derby, St. Leger, Great Yorkshire Stakes, Ebor St. Leger, and a 500 sovs. (200 ft.) stake at Newmarket Second October, and in the Claret Stakes and Four-Year-Old Stakes at Goodwood in 1865.

The race on Tuesday week was run at a strong pace, thanks to the Danebury horses, who forced it by turns, and nearly a distance from home nothing of a chance save the first two, who ran very wide of each other. The stable consider the Derby "a moral," and it is pretty certain that such a judge as Tom Dawson has a few pounds in hand to work with in the autumn month. He had his troubles last autumn, and, according to the Sporting Gazette, the colt was taken with such severe paralysis of the back that nothing restored him but ordering a sheep to be killed and tying on the still warm fleece for eight hours.

The opposition declare very forcibly that the two first horses were stepping every stride, and that they will both be found very moderate on what William Scott used to call "the hill on the Surrey side." Be that as it may, his Lordship's colt is installed first favourite, at 5 to 1, and never was Epsom success looked forward to more heartily by the Turf world generally than that of "Glasgow's Earl, to matching prone," on Epsom Downs this May.

"GENERAL PEEL," THE WINNER OF THE TWO THOUSAND GUINEAS AT THE NEWMARKET SPRING MEETING.

* The charge for the insertion of Births, Marriages, and Deaths is Five Shillings for each announcement.

BIRTHS.

On the 22nd of March, at Aarhuus, Denmark, the wife of William Scott, Esq., one of the late William Scott, Esq., of Kingsgrove Castle, in the county of Clare, Ireland, of a daughter.

On the 16th of March, at Seringore, the wife of I. H. M'Bean, Esq., C.S. Department Public Works, Oude, of a daughter.

On the 24th ult., at Eastwood Lodge, Tunbridge, the wife of Fretwell W. Hopie, Esq., of a daughter.

At Tooting, the wife of the Rev. Archibald Lockwood Cannon, of a son.

At Brixton, St. Beowell's, N.B., the Hon. Mrs. Daleymple, of a son.

On the 17th ult., at Dresden, the Baroness O. G. de Beeckman, of a son.

On the 3rd inst., at Bury St. Edmunds, the wife of Captain C. G. Baker (Royal Marines), of a daughter.

MARRIAGES.

On the 27th ult. at St. Luke's, Jersey, by the Rev. James M. Cornwallis, assisted by the Rev. Charles de Guille, Incumbent, Augustus Myrtus Cunynghame, son of the late Sir Alexander Cunynghame, Bart., to Anna Maria, elder daughter of the Baron Molesworth de Malton.

On the 28th ult., at St. Mary's, Bryanston-square, by the Rev. L. A. Lewis, M.A., Incumbent, Edward Ellis Ney, Esq., Arctic Com. Gen., to Annie Mary Harriette Lindsay, fourth daughter of Captain Lindsay, R.N., of Milkene Grove, West Brompton.

On the 5th ult., at Paddington, Glasgow, by the Rev. John Reide, D.D., LL.D., Peter Thomas Ramsay, Esq., to Julia Gertrude, daughter of David Lee.

On the 30th ult., at the British Embassy, Frankfort, by the Rev. T. E. Tyrrel, M.A., Chaplain, Lieut. George Lennox, R.E.B., to Katharine, widow of the late Lieut. Hon. Frederick Lennox.

At St. Peter's, Eaton-square, Captain A. Ellis, Coldstream Guards, son of the late Hon. A. Ellis, to the Hon. M. Liddell, sister of Lord Ravensdale.

At Jersey, Samuel H. Henderson, Captain R.N., to Margaret Jane, eldest daughter of Captain Lindsay, R.N.

At Trinity, Paddington, E. D. M'Dermott, A.M., M.D., to Jessie Hope, eldest dau. of Sir C. M. Nicol, M.D.

At Pelham, Thomas Baker, Esq., of Brunswick-square, Bloomsbury, to Mary, eldest daughter of the late Captain Van Ben Thos. Pole, R.N., and Trafalgar, Gloucestershire.

On the 28th ult., at St. Peter's, Eaton-square, by the son of the Bishop of Lincoln, George Cary Bert, of Lincoln's Inner, B.C., to Emma Alice, daughter of J. W. Drinkwater, Esq., M.P., of Stevens, Kent.

At Barton-under-Needwood, the Rev. Nigel Gresley, Rector of Beale, Lincolnshire, son of the late Sir Nigel Gresley, Bart., to Joanna, daughter of the late John Wilson, Esq.

At St. George's Church, Hanover-square, Vi-count Powerscourt to Lady Emily Cole, daughter of the Earl of Leicester.

DEATHS.

On the 25th ult., at Finchley, at the house of her brother-in-law, Gerrard Percival Rye, Esq., Adam Mein Lindsay, late of Brighton and Burwash, Sussex.

On the 29th ult., at Cheltenham-place, the Downger Lady Dunsany, in her 8th year.

On the 30th ult., at her residence, Whitehall-gardens, Alice Countess Dowager of Falmouth.

At Edinburgh, Lieutenant-General John Geddes, K.H., Colonel of H.M.'s 77th (Sutherland) Regiment.

At Hyde Park-terrace, Bernard James Mackintosh, Esq., son of the late Sir James, Sir James Mackintosh.

CRYSTAL PALACE.—Arrangements for the Whit Week Active Holidays, May 16th, 17th, 18th, and 19th. Orchestral Performances by Mr. Manns' Band and Chorus, Saturday, May 14, Second Grand Opera Concert. The Model of Shakespeare's House will remain in view during the Whitsuntide Holidays if the work be in the grounds not in the palace.

CRYSTAL PALACE.—WHITSUNTIDE. Monday, May 16, Tuesday, May 17, Wednesday, May 18, and Thursday, May 19. Grand Performances by Mr. Manns' Full Band and Chorus. Conductor Assessment—Dancing, Fishing, Cricket, Archery, Boats, Table Games, Gymnastic Apparatus, &c. The Fiftieth Annual Exhibition of Flowers now in general bloom.

Admission, Monday, Tuesday, Children, Shepherds, Wednesday, SECOND CHEAP CONCERT. Five Shillings; Season Tickets Free.

INSTITUTE OF PAINTERS IN WATER COLOURS.—The Twenty-Second Exhibition is NOW OPEN at their GALLERY, 53, PALL-MALL, near St. James's Palace, Daily from Nine till Dusk.—Admission, One Shilling.

MR. KENNEDY'S SONGS of SCOTLAND. SECOND SEASON.—MONDAY, MAY 9, MUSICAL HALL, Store-street, Bedford-square. LAST NIGHT BUT TWO of Mr. KENNEDY'S ENTERTAINMENTS in the EGYPTIAN HALL, Mansion House, on MONDAY, May 9, and WEDNESDAY, May 11, at 8 o'clock precisely. Full particulars, with Programme, in the Hall, and at 48, Piccadilly. Stalls, 3s.; Area, 2s.; Gallery, 1s. Doors open at 7 o'clock. Carriages at 10. Tickets to be had of Mr. Kennedy, 48, Piccadilly, and at the Hall. Mr. Kennedy will receive only 200 Performers. Tickets, 3s., and 10s. 6d.

MUSICAL UNION.—MAY 17. Beethoven's SEPTUOR. Spohr's Nonet. Mozart's Quartet. Joachim and Vieuxtemps, and other Artists. Stalls, 3s. Admission, 1s. Programmes, 21, Bond-street.

MR. DEACON'S SECOND MATINÉE of CHAMBER MUSIC will take place at his residence, 7, CONCERT-ROOM, MARYLEBONE, on MONDAY MAY 9, commencing at Half-past Three o'clock. Instrumental Performers: Pattison, Webb, Chatterton, Pratt, Severn, and Deacon. Vocalists—Miss Dolby, Miss Lascelles, Mr. Sims Reeves, and Mr. Santley. Conductor—Mr. Deacon. Stalls, Half-a-Guinea; Admission at the Room, and of Mr. Deacon, 10, Wimpole-street, Cavendish-square.

SACRED HARMONIC SOCIETY, EXETER HALL, Conductor, Mr. Costa. FRIDAY NEXT, MAY 13, ELIJAH. ST. ECGTIF. The last performance this season of Handel's Oratorio will be given on FRIDAY NEXT, May 13, when Madame Rudersdorff, Miss Dolby, Mr. Sims Reeves, Mr. Weiss, and Mr. Santley. The Band and Chorus will be complete. Admission to Exeter Hall will number only 700 Performers. Tickets, 3s., 2s., and 1s. 6d.

MR. MACREADY will give DRAMATIC RECITATIONS at QUEEN'S CONCERT ROOMS, Hanover-square, on the Mornings of MAY 10, 17, 24, and 31, and Morning of JUNE 7, at Three o'clock precisely. Stalls, 10s. 6d.; Tickets for the Series, One Guinea, to be obtained at Messrs. Cramer, Beale, and Co.'s, 201, Regent-street; Messrs. Keith, Prowse, and Co.'s, 48, Cheapside; and at Mr. Macready's Royal Library, Mount Cramer and Wood's, and of the Librarians and Librettists.

MR. ARTHUR SKETCHLEY will APPEAR at the EGYPTIAN HALL, Piccadilly, in his New Entertainment, entitled A PUNCH AND JUDY FESTIVAL, on MONDAY, May 9, and every Evening during the week, and Saturday Mornings at Three. Stalls, Half-a-Crown; Second Seats, 1s. Doors open at Seven. Stalls can be secured at the Box-office of Messrs. Hall and Co., Piccadilly.

MR. W. S. WOODIN'S ELOPEMENT EXTRAORDINARY and RECKLESS 30th—an entirely NEW ENTERTAINMENT, EVERY EVENING (except Saturday), SATURDAY MORNINGS at THREE.—PHOTOGRAPHIC PICTURES, Illustrative Songs, Dances, Recitations, &c. Mr. Woodin's Assistants, Mr. Fawn, Mr. Hall, and Miss Woodin. Stalls and Tickets may be secured and seats secured at the Hall from Eleven to Five.

MR. and MRS. GERMAN REED, with MR. JOHN PARRY, in THEIR ENTERTAINMENTS, ENTITLED LITTLE EVENING FAIRY, by Mr. John Parry.—Regent Gallery, Quadrant, Regent-street. EVERY EVENING (except Saturday) at Eight. MORNING (not Saturday) MONDAY, May 9, and THURSDAY, May 12, at Three. German Reed will appear for the first time, on MONDAY, May 9, in his NEW GERMAN ENTERTAINMENT, entitled ENGLISH, Etc.—ZUR LEIE Tuesday, at Three, and Saturday, at Eight. Stalls, Half-a-Crown. Admission, One Shilling.

MR. SIMPSON'S WATER-COLOUR DRAWINGS OF INDIA, THIBET, AND CHINESE TARTARY, THE GERMAN GALLERY, 168, New Bond-street, DAILY, from Ten to Six o'clock. Admission One Shilling.

THE PICTURE of the MARRIAGE of H.R.H. the PRINCE OF WALES, painted from actual sittings, by Mr. C. W. Thomas, who was present at the ceremony, by gracious command of her Majesty the Queen, is now on Private View at the GALLERY of the Artist, 191, Piccadilly, and will open to the Public at the SUFFOLK GALLERY, 166, New Bond-street, early in the ensuing week.

QUEEN'S CONCERT ROOMS, Hanover-square. Mdlle. GIULINI has the honour to announce her MATINÉE MUSICALE at the above Rooms on FRIDAY, MAY 13, 1864, under the distinguished patronage of The Baroness de Rothschild. The Baroness Burdett-Coutts. And the Baroness Lionel de ROTHSCHILD. The following Artists have kindly promised their assistance: Mdlle. Giulini, Mdlle. Nevilla, The Lady Anne Beckett, The Lady Arthur Lennox, The Lady Louisa Lambart, The Lady Rose Leslie, Lady Lilford, The Countess Cowley, Lady Graham Montgomery, Lady Dunsany, The Lady Emily Cole, The Lady Augusta Stanley, Mrs. Anne d'Arcy Hastings, Mrs. Lockwood, Mrs. Sutton, Mrs. Cannon, Mrs. Bert, Mrs. Ramsay, Mrs. Lucy Fox. Mdlle. Giulini will be assisted by the following eminent artists:—Mr. Sims Reeves, Mr. Santley, Mr. Weiss, Mr. Patey, Mr. Sidney Naylor, Mr. Lazarus, Mr. Aguilar, Mr. Lindsay Sloper, Mr. Charles Hallé, and Signor Sivori. Conductors—Signor Arditi, Mr. George Lake, Mr. Emile Berger, and Mr. Isaac Nathan. To commence at Three o'Clock precisely. Stalls, One Guinea; Reserved Seats, Half-a-Guinea; Tickets, Five Shillings, to be obtained of Messrs. Cramer, Wood, and Co.'s Music Warehouse, 201, Regent-street; Messrs. Keith, Prowse, and Co.'s Music Warehouse, 48, Cheapside; Mr. Austin, Ticket Office; and of Mdlle. Giulini, 4, Cavendish-square.

FRENCH GALLERY, 120, Pall-mall.—The SEVENTH ANNUAL EXHIBITION of PICTURES in WATER COLOURS is NOW OPEN, from Nine o'clock to Dusk.—ROBERT FAED, Secretary.

MDME. TUSSAUD'S HISTORICAL EXHIBITION, Established in 1802 at the Bazaar, Baker-street, London, contains the Largest Collection of Historical Memorials in the World. Open Daily. Dresses—the richest colours. The most exquisite Models in Wax. Admission, One Shilling. Extra Exhibition, Signora Queen from Buenos Ayres, until 7pm.

ROYAL BOTANIC SOCIETY'S GARDENS, REGENT'S-PARK.—The GREAT SPRING EXHIBITION of FLOWERS, and FETE this SEASON, SATURDAY, MAY 21, when the Gardens will be Illuminated with Coloured Lamps, and the Gardens, prior to, or on the day of exhibition, 7s. 6d. each. Fellows' Orders admit on Saturday, May 21, and Tuesday, May 24.

A GRAND FANCY BAZAAR will be held on THURSDAY, FRIDAY, and SATURDAY, the 19th, 20th, and 21st of MAY, 1864, at the ROYAL ITALIAN OPERA, in the FRENCH PROTESTANT THREE SCHOOLS, for the benefit of those lesser Protestant Schools.

Her Grace Harriet Duchess of Sutherland, Lady Patroness.

Her Royal Highness the Princess of Wales has most graciously signified her intention to visit the Bazaar on the opening day.

During the week the Band of the Royal Italian Opera can by obtained to the Saloons, &c. Admission, Half-a-Crown, Reserved Seats, Five Shillings, to be had at the Bazaar, and at the Offices of the Committee, 3, Adelphi-terrace, Strand, and of the Secretary, Mr. Frederick Royal Library, 37, Old Bond-street.

Mr. Frederick Royal Library, 37, Old Bond-street.

Mr. Frederick Royal Library, 37, Old Bond-street.

GREAT FAILURES.—KING and CO., Silversmiths, &c., Regent-street, beg to announce that, in consequence of the failure of several large manufacturers, they have been enabled to purchase, for immediate cash, the whole of their stock, amounting to £30,000 or £40,000 value, at such a price that they will positively sell it, for the period, at a lower quantity of silver-plated goods than the cost of the metal. Fiddle pattern, 12 tea-spoons, 12 dessert, and 12 table-spoons, and 12 forks, can be bought for £3 per set, and less in pairs, at KING'S, 242, Regent-street.

NEW SPRING SILKS, at KING'S.
242, Regent-street.
Patterns sent post-free.

WATERPROOF
FOULARDS, £1 1s. a Dress, at KING'S.
242, Regent-street. Patterns sent post-free.

NEW
STRIPED SILKS, £1 1s. a Dress, at KING'S.
242, Regent-street. Patterns sent post free.

NEW
CHECKED SILKS, £1 5s. a Dress, at KING'S.
242, Regent-street. Patterns post-free.

NEW
GROS GRAIN SILKS, £1 17s. a Dress, at KING'S, 242, Regent-street. Patterns sent post-free.

NEW
CHÊNÉ SILKS, £1 19s. a Dress, at KING'S, 242, Regent-street. Patterns sent post-free.

NEW
MOIRE ANTIQUES, £2 2s. a Dress, at KING'S, 242, Regent-street. Patterns sent post-free.

NEW PLAIN
POULT de SOIES, £3 3s. a Dress, at KING'S, 242, Regent-street. Patterns sent post-free.

£5763 WORTH of BLACK SILKS, at 1s. 6d. per yard.
KING and CO., 242, Regent-street.

£4754 WORTH of BLACK BROCHÉ SILKS, at 2s. 6d. per yard.
KING and CO., 242, Regent-street.

£6543 WORTH of BLACK CORDED SILKS, 2s. 6d. per yard.
KING and CO., 242, Regent-street.

£5675 WORTH of BLACK MOIRE ANTIQUES, at 2s. 6d. per yard.
KING and CO., 242, Regent-street.

THE NEW
GROS GRAIN and SILK MANTLES, JACKETS, &c.,
at KING'S, 242, Regent-street.

THE NEW
CAMERICS, 5s. 6d. a Dress, at KING'S, 242, Regent-street.
Patterns sent post-free.

THE NEW
MUSLINS, 6s. 6d. a Dress, at KING'S, 242, Regent-street.
Patterns sent post-free.

FRENCH LAWNS, 8s. 6d. the Full Dress.
Corah Cambric, 10s. 6d.
Gamage Chintz, 15s. 6d.
Harvell Poplins, 16s. 6d.
Address to KING and CO., 242, Regent-street.

REDMAYNE and CO. having completed the Rebuilding and Enlarging of their premises, respectfully solicit an Inspection of their Large and Varied Stock, comprising all the Newest Fabrics, at Moderate Prices. 37 to 39, Basil-street, and 36, Cadogan-street.

NEW SILKS FOR MAY.
PATTERNS POST-FREE.
Genuine Black Gros Grain Silks, 1 guinea.
Rich Fancy Check and Stripe Silks, 1 guinea.
Rich Glacé Silks, 1 guinea.
24, 26, 28, 30, 32, 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46, 48, 50, 52, 54, 56, 58, 60, 62, 64, 66, 68, 70, 72, 74, 76, 78, 80, 82, 84, 86, 88, 90, 92, 94, 96, 98, 100, 102,

NEW DANCE MUSIC.

HAPPY MOMENTS VALSE. By GUSTAVE LAMBERT. Just published. Beautifully Illustrated. Price, Solo or Duet, 3s. each; Septet, 5s.; Septet, Full Orchestra, 6s.; Orchestra, 8s.—CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

THE FORGET-ME-NOT WALTZ. By GUSTAVE LAMBERT. Just published. Price 4s.; Orchestra, 8s.; Septet, 5s.—CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

THE GUARDS' WALTZ. By D. GODFREY. Played at the ball given to the Princes and Princess of Wales, and at Jullien's Concerts, with immense success. Just published, price 4s. CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

THE MERRY TUNES LANCERS. Just published. A new set of Lancers, composed on all the favourite melodies of the day. By CHARLES GODFREY. Price for Orchestra, 5s.; Septet, 2s.

CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

THE HARUM-SCARUM GALOP. By JAMES CASHMORE (Composer of the Bohemian Galop). Just published. Price 3s.; Duet, 3s.; Orchestra, 5s.; Septet, 2s.

CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

HELTER-SKELTER GALOP. Just out. A Descriptive Illustration of the Comic Galop of the Season—Scene, a Railway Terminus. Price 3s.; Duet, 3s.; Septet, 2s.; Orchestra, 5s.; Septet, 2s.

CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

COOTE'S FAUST WALTZ, on Airs from Gounod's Opera. Beautifully Illustrated. Price, Solo or Duet, 3s.; Septet, 2s.; Orchestra, 4s.

CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

COOTE'S FAUST QUADRILLE, on Favourite Airs from Gounod's Opera. Beautifully Illustrated. Price, Solo or Duet, 3s.; Septet, 2s.; Full Orchestra, 4s.

CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

COOTE'S FAUST GALOP, from Gounod's Opera. Beautifully Illustrated. Price, Solo or Duet, 3s.; Septet, 2s.; Orchestra, 4s.

CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

FAUST POLKA. By F. WILLIAMS. Just published. Beautifully Illustrated. Price 3s.; Solo or Duet; Orchestra, 2s.; Septet, 2s.

CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

M. THALBERG'S NEW PIECE.

THALBERG'S SOUVENIR DE BALLO IN MASCHERA. Post-free. Just published. Price 3s. CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

BRINLEY RICHARDS' COMPLETE TUTOR for the PIANOFORTE. The best, the newest, and the most attractive Instruction-book for the Pianoforte ever published; scales, exercises, and a great variety of pleasing popular airs are progressive lessons. Sixty pages, full music size, price 4s., post-free.

N.B. A list of Brinley Richards' Popular Pieces will be sent on application. CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

BRINLEY RICHARDS' JUANITA. This popular Song arranged as a very pleasing Evening-room Pianoforte piece. Price 3s. CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

BRINLEY RICHARDS' MARAQUITA. This popular ballad arranged as an easy and effective Evening-room Pianoforte piece. Price 3s.

CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

BRINLEY RICHARDS' SOLDIERS' CHORUS, from "Faust," arranged for Pianoforte Duet. Price 5s.; "Faust," Arranged for Pianoforte Solo, Price 3s.

CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

NEW PIANOFORTE PIECES FROM FAUST.

TAVARONE'S FAUST, an Fantasia on the most favourite melodies from Gounod's "Faust." Price 4s. CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

KUHE'S FAUST. Fantaisie de Salon for the piano, on favourite Airs from Gounod's Opera. Price 4s. CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

KUHE'S LEGGERO INVISIBLE. Just published. Price 3s. Also the Same Piece, by the Composer, Transposed and Varied with great success, arranged for the Pianoforte. Price 4s. CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

KUHE'S SEMIRAMIDE. Grand Fantasia on Airs from Rossini's favourite Opera, for the Pianoforte, by the Composer. Price 4s.

CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

KUHE'S MASSANIELLO.—Just published, a Grand Fantasia for the Pianoforte on Airs from this admired Opera. Price 4s.

CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

OSBORNE'S FAUST. A Fantasia on Favourite Melodies from Gounod's celebrated Opera, by the above popular Composer. Price 4s.

CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

WON'T YOU TELL! New Song. Words by CHARLES MACKAY; Music by STEPHEN GLOVER. Price 2s. 6d. CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

MR. SANTLEY'S NEW SONG.

SOFT AND LOW. From Gounod's Opera, "La Madre Inglese." Sung by Mr. Santley at the Monday Popular Concerts. Price 2s. 6d.

CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

THE SITSBUP CUP, MR. SANTLEY'S NEW SONG, expressly composed for him by Balfe, Barnett, and all applauding enough to name a new cup, in 2s. 6d. net.

CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

NEW TUNES FOR BEST PERFORMERS on ONE PIANOFORTE.—The following are just published, arranged as the Last Movement in Kuhe's Grand Duet. Price 4s. each:—

No. 1. D'Albert's Paloma Quadrille.
No. 2. D'Albert's Le Lancier Quadrille.
No. 3. D'Albert's West End Polka.
No. 4. Brinley Richards' Valse from "Faust."
No. 5. Brinley Richards' Soldiers' Chorus.
No. 6. Mendelssohn's Wedding March.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

W. H. CALLCOTT'S BEAUTIES OF W. S. FAUST. A new arrangement of this celebrated Opera as Pianoforte Duets in very easy, rich-sounding and effective music not before published as duets. In two books, 5s. each.

CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

THE SOLDIERS' CHORUS in FAUST, as a Pianoforte Duet. Arranged for the Pianoforte by W. H. CALLCOTT. Price 5s.; Duet, 5s. 6d.

CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

GABRIALDI'S HYMN. Arranged for the Pianoforte by BRINLEY THOMAS. Price 3s.

CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

GABRIALDI'S HYMN, with English Words, Sung by Mdlle. Parepa. Price 2s. 6d.

CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

SHAKESPEARE'S SONGS.—Just published, "WHERE THE BEE SUCKS," and "FULL FATHOM FIVE," Arrangements for One Shilling, in No. 41 of "Chappell's Musical Magazine." Price One Shilling.

CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

NEW COMIC SONGS.
Arthur Lloyd's "Dutch clock man."
Arthur Lloyd's "Oh! don't you love me mine."
Albert Smith's "Be sure you say I'm ony."
Harry Sydney's "Is a quiet sort of way."
All Illustrated, 2s. net each.
D'ALCORN, 7, Berners-place.

NOTICE.—HALF PRICE.—Best Music, and the best Editions, at half the published price, sent post-free for postage-stamps. Full Catalogues sent gratis (unsolicited).
HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street, W.

NEW MUSIC. NEW MUSIC.

NICOLAI'S MERRY WIVES of WINDSOR. The only Authorised Edition.
Book of Favourite Airs. Solo, 5s.; Duet, 6s.
Overture ... 4s. ... 8s.
Fantasia (for four hands) ... 3s. ... 6s.
Fantasia on Popular Airs ... 3s. ... 6s.
Improvisation ... W. Kuhe ... 4s.
Finale ... Kaschmann ... 4s.
Fantasia de Salon ... Osborne ... 3s.
The celebrated Waltz, with Chorus, as sung at Her Majesty's Theatre.
Arranged for Pianoforte, by Brinley Richards, C. Coote, H. Manns (of the Crystal Palace), and Oliver King.
CRAMER, WOOD, and Co., 201, Regent-street.

THE BRIDE OF SONG. Sung by HENRY HASLEY. Words by ARTHUR MATTHISON. Music by CHARLES GLOVER.
The Overture ... 4s. ... 8s.
1. Duet—Night and Morning ... 3s. and 4s. ... 6s.
2. Song—My Home in Cloudland, original Key D flat; transposed into E flat ... 3s. ... 6s.
3. Trio—Hither we come ... 3s. ... 6s.
4. Song—Dust and Soulless ... 3s. ... 6s.
5. Duet—Oh, Memory! ... 3s. and 4s. ... 6s.
6. Duet—Oh, Love! ... 3s. and 4s. ... 6s.
7. Song—To-morrow ... 3s. ... 6s.
8. Song—Thou art not far from him ... 3s. ... 6s.
9. Duet—We waited him, we waited long ... 3s. and 4s. ... 6s.
10. Finale—Hail, Bride of Song ... 3s. and 4s. ... 6s.
CRAMER, WOOD, and Co., 201, Regent-street.

SHE STOOPS TO CONQUER OPERA, by G. A. MACFARREN. Complete Opera. 8s. net. All the Songs, Duets, Trios, Concerted Pieces, and Choruses, separately. Arranged by CHARLES E. ADAMS, Berger, W. Macfarren, Rimbault, Masterton, and John Watson. Waltzes and Quadrilles by G. Cooke. Price 3s. each.
CRAMER, WOOD, and Co., 201, Regent-street.

SWEET BIRD, WALTZES. By J. C. CLARKE'S LAST SET. Beautifully Illustrated, 4s. Founded on two of the most favourite Songs of the day.
CRAMER, WOOD, and Co., 201, Regent-street.

BRINLEY RICHARDS' LEAH'S SONG, 3s. CRAMER, WOOD, and Co., 201, Regent-street.

"THE PIPER." Original Song. Illustrated with a fantastic Portrait of "the great Sir Walter Scott."
CRAMER, WOOD, and Co., 201, Regent-street.

BOAT SONG. By VERDI. 2s. 6d. and 4s.
CRAMER, WOOD, and Co., 201, Regent-street.

THE GIPSY'S WARNING. By VERDI. 3s. The celebrated "Miserere" Scene from "Il Trovatore" arranged for the Pianoforte. Price 4s.
CRAMER, WOOD, and Co., 201, Regent-street.

LITTLE GOLDEN-HAIR. A Venetian Ballad. By VIRGINIA GABRIEL. 3s.
CRAMER, WOOD, and Co., 201, Regent-street.

GARIBALDI. Song. By ARDITI. Words by Henry Farnie. With eight Portraits of Garibaldi. 3s.
CRAMER, WOOD, and Co., 201, Regent-street.

"ANITA." By BRINLEY RICHARDS. 3s. (Founded on the Air introduced in the Cid Ballad.)
CRAMER, WOOD, and Co., 201, Regent-street.

ARDITI'S LA GARIBALDINA. 2s. 6d. Performed by the composer at Her Majesty's Palace, Her Majesty's Theatre, and elsewhere.
CRAMER, WOOD, and Co., 201, Regent-street.

LA GARIBALDINA.—BRINLEY RICHARDS' Arrangement of the above for an encore as a March for Piano. 3s.
CRAMER, WOOD, and Co., 201, Regent-street.

NEW CHARITY SONG. No. 54.
OH! WOULD I WERE A BIRD. That I might fly to thee.
HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

MERRY SONGS.
Mary Ann; or, The Roving Gardener ... 2s. 6d.
Lovely Nan; or, The Jolly Waterman ... 2s. 6d.
Lovely Nell with Daughter Caroline ... 2s. 6d.
Jemima Brown ... 2s. 6d.
Lovelyer's Visit ... 2s. 6d.
HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

POLLY PERKINS. By HARRY CLIFTON. Price 2s. 6d. Sung everywhere.
HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

THE PIANO PRICE FOR 1864.

KUHE'S NEW THE CONQUERING HERO OVERT. Price 4s. Recently played at the Monday Popular Concerts.
HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

COOTE'S POLLY PERKINS QUADRILLE, on the celebrated Comic Song. Price 3s. "Handsome."—Have you seen the Ghost?" "Polly Perkins," &c. HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

Tate Gallo di Gigante.

COOTE'S GRAND PIANOFORTE VALSES. 4s. Superbly Illustrated.
HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

COOTE'S SHAKSPEARE QUADRILLE, arranged expressly for the Tercentenary Festival (not to be confounded with any other Quadrilles published). Price 3s. Illustrated with Portraits of Shakspeare, Garrick, Kean, Kemble, Siddons, Young, Macready, Fechter, Phelps, Charles Kean, and Mrs. Nisbett. "O! but your delightful Ariel! By Whicker! dancer, Harry, you're the Ariel for me!"—Vide Harry Sydney's New Song. Price 4s.—HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

COOTE'S EXTRAVAGANZA GALOP. Price 3s. Illustrated with Portraits of Leotard.
HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

THE BEST SET OF LANCERS.

COOTE'S LES FLEURS LANCERS, Price 4s. Introducing "The Pilgrim of Love," "My Pretty Page," "The Bird on my Window," "Sweet Bird," "Oh! Would I were a Bird," "Oh! Would I were a Boy," and "Home, Sweet Home." Always redemanded.—HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

COOTE'S KATE KEARNEY WALTZES, Price 4s. Illustrated with Portraits of Mrs. Caudle, Kathleen, "Kate Kearney," "Seymoreen Delahay," Sally or Dash, "Mary Ann," and "Lovely Nan."

THE NEW VALSES OF THE SEASON.

COOTE'S HUMMING BIRD. Price 4s. Considered the best set of Valses by this popular Composer.
HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

C. M. E. OLIVERS NEW BALLAD.

OH! BLOW ME A KISS ON THE WIND. Price 2s. 6d. One of the finest of the Composer's pretty songs.
HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

WORDS BY LONGFELLOW.

THE RIVER. By C. M. E. OLIVER. This is the best of the many settings of Longfellow.
HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

NEW MUSIC. NEW MUSIC.

OTTO NICOLAI'S NEW OPERA, "THE MERRY WIVES OF WINDSOR." (The Lustigen Weiber von Windsor.), performed at Her Majesty's Theatre (under the title of "Falstaff").

THE SONGS.

1. In Italian, arranged for soprano, by Signor Randegger.
2. In English, with words by George Linley.

1. The Greeting ... Nicolai ... 3s.
2. The Merry Wedding, in two books ... ea. 4s. ... 6s.
3. Nixen, Cavatina ... 3s. ... 6s.
4. Frau's Fabrizia ... 3s. ... 6s.
5. Herr's Reginella ... 3s. ... 6s.
6. Sergt's Rosa, Ballata ... 3s. ... 6s.

DANCE MUSIC.

1. Quadrilles (Tutti Grandi) ... 4s. ... 8s.
2. Waltzes ... 4s. ... 8s.
3. Galop ... 4s. ... 8s.

DUETS.

1. The Aire, in two books ... ea. 4s. ... 6s.
2. Fantasia ... 3s. ... 6s.

THE COMPLETE OPERA.

For Piano Solo, with Introduction, in cloth ... 8s. net.

Grand Selection ... 4s. ... 8s.
Overture ... 4s. ... 8s.

Also all the separate other arrangements in the press.
BOOSEY and Sons, Holles-street.

BEHOLD MY LOVE! SHE SLUMBERS. Song. Written by CHARLES JEFFERYS, Composer of "Pandolfo." A most charming melody and effective song for tenors. Price 2s. 6d. net.
BOOSEY and Sons, Holles-street.

NORAH'S TREASURE. New Ballad. Written by CLAREMONT. Adapted to an Irish Melody and sung by Miss Dolby. Price 2s. 6d. net.
BOOSEY and Sons, Holles-street.

SUSANNE FONTY. A New Ballad, by the Author of "Janet's Choice." Price 2s. 6d. net.
BOOSEY and Sons, Holles-street.

CLARIBEL'S NEW SONG, "LITTLE BIRD, LITTLE BIRD, ON THE GREEN TREE" will become the favourite of the present season.
Little bird, little bird, on the green tree,
Sing to my love, sing to her for me.
Tell her I'm happy, and constant as she?,
Loyal is aye! dearest one, yes.
BOOSEY and Sons, Holles-street.

M. GOUNOD'S NEW OPERA, Full Music size, for Voice and Pianoforte, Price 15s., net, for Pianoforte Solo, 10s.
BOOSEY and Sons, Holles-street.

SIGNOR CAMPANA'S NEW DUET, "GI sensi! Tirsi!"—a cavatina in, and in the same style as, his new romance. Price 2s. net each; and Duet, 3s. net.
BOOSEY and Sons, Holles-street.

THE AUTHOR OF RAFFELLE TOM.

CAPTAIN BLANMAN NAPOLITAINE for the Pianoforte. The admirable piece will well support Mr. Gilbert's reputation as the author of the favourite comic. Price 2s. BOOSEY and Sons, Holles-street.

MISS HAWLEY'S IVANHOE. New and Brilliant Ballad. "Auld Robin Gray." By the Author of "Sailing." Price 2s.
BOOSEY and Sons, Holles-street.

BRINLEY RICHARDS' JANETS EDINBURGH ROSE. Price 3s. Just published.

KUHE'S MAGGIE'S SECRET. Charles's beautiful ballad, which Miss Dolby has received with such favour at the Monday Pops. Price 2s. net.
BOOSEY and Sons, Holles-street.

BOOSEYS' LIBRARY.—Two-Guinea Subscribers have the use of twelve pieces of Music in town, at home or in the country, for one year. Prospectuses sent free on application at the new warehouse, 24, Holles-street.

CZANZ'S "YOGLIANA" MAZURKA for the Piano, vieilling in popularity his celebrated "Qui Vive Polka." Illustrated. Price 3s. BOOSEY and Sons, Holles-street.

"HARK! THE BELLS ARE RINGING." New Song, by HENRY SMART (composer to his sole Majesty the King of Dahomey). Price 2s. net; half-price to the singer, by DUNCAN DAVISON, 244, Regent-street, W.

EWER and CO.'S MUSICAL LIBRARY. Price Five Guineas per annum.
Subscribers may enter daily.
57, Regent-street, W.

BOOSEY'S 17-GUINEA PIANOFORTE (The Minikanet) is the best cheap Pianoforte ever manufactured. It has the full compass of seven octaves, and possesses an excellent touch and quality of tone.

BOOSEY'S 20-GUINEA PIANOFORTE, in Rosewood, or of guineas in Italian walnut, is a highly finished, elegant, and effective Pianoforte, the peculiar merit of which consists in its having the very best description, the touch elastic, and the tone full and rich, and the two especially distinguishing features of the whole piano.

BOOSEY'S 35-GUINEA PIANOFORTE is in Rosewood, and 37 guineas in Italian walnut, four fretties being also added to the compass. This piano is a superior instrument, and powerful. The touch is elastic, the tone full and rich, and the workmanship and finish of the whole piano are of the highest description.

THE COTTAGE, or SIX-GUINEA, HARMONIUM has a soft, agreeable quality of tone.
BOOSEY and Sons, 24, Holles-street.

THE SCHOOL, or TEN-GUINEA, HARMONIUM has a rich, full tone, suitable for leading class singing, &c.—BOOSEY and Sons, 24, Holles-street.

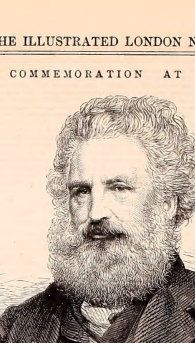
THE CHURCH HARMONIUMS, at 20, 25, and 30 guineas, are powerful and admirably adapted for places of worship.—BOOSEY and SONS, 24, Holles-street.

BOOSEYS' ENGLISH HARMONIUMS, at 12 guineas, are unequalled for the money. An improved model, excellent, at greatly reduced prices, combining instruments with every variety of tone.
BOOSEY and Sons, 24, Holles-street.

ENGLISH CONCERTINAS, by LACHENAL, Full Compass, with all the latest Improvements, from 3 guineas to 20 guineas. Any key sent on hire, from two guineas per quarter.
HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

PIANOFORTES.—OETZMANN and PLUMB'S Pianofortes are the best cheap Pianofortes in London, and are the only Pianofortes which have obtained the Prize Medal for Pianofortes. Lists of prices and drawings sent free by post.—OETZMANN and PLUMB'S GRAND COTTAGE, seven octaves, new registered trichord check action, and all the improvements are manifest in their quality of tone, and ensure in design. Warranted.—(2), Regent-street.

OETZMANN and PLUMB'S Pianofortes are the best cheap Pianofortes in London, and are the only Pianofortes which have obtained the Prize Medal for Pianofortes, and can, as in the many cases, when subjected to an extreme climate, a certain article. Tucked in tunnel case and shipped for 25 guineas. Pianoforte.—(2), Regent-street.



PIANOFORTES.—OETZMANN and PLUMB have all descriptions for Hire. Lyres will find for 10s., Regent-street, all their new models in pearl instruments at moderate prices, by instalments if desired. Old Pianos taken in exchange. Lists of prices and drawings sent free by post.
OETZMANN and PLUMB, 27, Baker-street, Portman-square.

HARMONIUMS.—ALEXANDRE'S best (25 guineas) Model Organ, 4 octaves, 4 pedals; 7 octaves, 24 pedals; 32 Combination Organ, 4 stops

THE SHAKSPEARE COMMEMORATION AT STRATFORD-ON-AVON.

WE continue this week to publish some Illustrations of the Tercentenary Festival of Shakspeare in the town where he was born and died. A brief report of the proceedings at Stratford-on-Avon from Saturday, the 23rd ult., to the end of last week has already been given in this Journal, with a view of the town, accompanied by smaller Engravings of the local objects of interest; and the banquet in the pavilion was represented on the front page of our last Number; but other entertainments which took place on subsequent evenings in the Pavilion have also been sketched for the gratification of our readers. They will find on the front page this week an Engraving which represents the performance of Shakspeare's comedy of "Twelfth Night," on the Tuesday evening, by the members of the Haymarket company. Mr. Buckstone playing the part of Sir Andrew Aguecheek, Mr. Rogers that of Sir Toby Belch, Mr. Compton as Clown, Mr. Chippendale Malvolio, and Mrs. Fitzwilliam the wicked little wailing-maid, Maria. We need not say how well they did it. The incident referred to in our Illustration will be found in act ii. scene 5, where Malvolio has been called out of bed, at his lady's command, to put a stop to the revels of the two merry knights and the Clown in her house. They have all been drinking and are boisterously dancing and singing, when Lady Olivia's steward, willing to make an officious exhibition of his zeal, comes in upon them and says, "My masters, are you mad, or what are you? Have you no wit, manners, nor honesty, but to gabble like tinkers at this time o' night? Do ye make an alehouse of my lady's house, that ye speak out your coziers' catches without any mitigation or remorse of voice? Is there no respect of place, persons, nor time, in you?" The humour of this scene is very well preserved in the sketch from which our Engraving has been made.

Another of Shakspeare's comedies, "The Comedy of Errors"—which was performed on the Wednesday evening, by the company of the Princess's Theatre—supplies us with the subject of a second Engraving of this series. It is the scene in which Antipholus of Syracuse, being mistaken for his brother of Ephesus by the wife of the latter, is accosted, very much to his astonishment, with conjugal entreaties and reproaches, by Adriana, whom he never saw before in his life. She has been scolding him for his neglect, and she now insists upon taking his arm and leading him home to dinner; while Dromio, no less astonished than his master, cries out that they have got into Fairyland, and are transformed, in mind and shape, by some fallacious arts of magic. This Dromio (of Syracuse) is Mr. Charles Webb, whom nobody can distinguish from his brother Henry, the Dromio of Ephesus; Mr. George Vining is the Antipholus of Syracuse, and the Adriana is Miss Caroline Carson. "The Comedy of Errors," as performed at the Princess's and at the Stratford festival, is not the entire work of Shakspeare, but an abridgment or condensation, forming but a single act. The tragedy of "Romeo and Juliet" was represented on the same evening, and we have engraved a sketch of the last scene of the actiny version of that play, in which, after the death of Paris, the unhappy pair of lovers, at the entrance of Juliet's tomb, meet each other in a way that Shakspeare knew nothing about; for Shakspeare's account is that Romeo was dead of the poison before Juliet awoke. Another compliment to English Shakspeare is the appearance of Mdlle. Stella Colas as Juliet: the Romeo is Mr. Nelson.

MR. E. F. FLOWER, THE MAYOR OF STRATFORD.

Besides these examples of the performances of the Stratford Pavilion stage, we now present a View of the interior of the same building when used as a concert-room during the performance of Handel's oratorio "The Messiah." Another Engraving shows the handsome apartments of the Stratford Townhall, which are occupied by an exhibition of pictures and various articles of Shakspearean interest. The famous mansion of Charlecote, visited by many hundreds of people on this occasion, is the subject of a separate Engraving.

THE MAYOR OF STRATFORD-ON-AVON.

We give the Portrait of Mr. Edward Fordham Flower, the Mayor of Stratford-on-Avon, who has exerted himself so much in the last six months to make all the arrangements for the Shakspeare festival. This gentleman was born in 1805, the youngest son of Richard Flower, Esq. of Marden Hall, near Hertford. His father was an agriculturist and politician, who, taking gloomy views of the prospects of England after the war, was induced, in 1817, to sell his property in England and emigrate, with all his family and a large party of friends and labourers, to the then Far West of America, where he purchased a tract of land and founded a settlement in the south-east of Illinois. His son, the subject of this notice, then a mere lad, shared with him all the difficulties and anxieties of a house in the wilderness.

In his nineteenth year he came on a visit to England, and, finding much to attract and interest him in the home of his childhood, he determined to remain. In 1827, he married Celina, daughter of John Greaves, Esq., of Barford, near Warwick, and soon after settled at Stratford-on-Avon, where, two years before, he had inscribed his name in the visitors' book in Shakspeare's house as "Citizen of the World." The Duke of Wellington's Government had just then taken the tax off brewery beer. Until then there had been few public breweries in Warwickshire; but, in 1832, Mr. Flower opened a brewery. He went steadily on, and ultimately achieved a fair amount of success. At the end of thirty years he gave up the brewery to two of his sons. In the last general election he contested on Liberal principles, unsuccessfully, the borough of Newport. He is a magistrate for the county of Warwick, and has been four times Mayor of Stratford-on-Avon, having served in the years '51 and '52, after which he retired from holding office in the town until two years ago. Then, in anticipation of the "Tercentenary," a numerously-signed requisition from the inhabitants was sent to induce him again to become Mayor, that he might take a leading part in celebrating this occasion.

A Shakspeare festival, organized by the English Circle at Frankfort—a German society, having for its object the study of the English language and English literature—took place at the Saalbau, in that city, on the 23rd ult. The spacious concert-hall was handsomely decorated in the style of the Elizabethan period; and a series of paintings, representing scenes from Shakspeare's plays, designed expressly for the occasion by artists of Frankfort, under the direction of Professor von der Launitz, attracted general admiration. On a dais at the upper end of the hall was placed a colossal bust of the great poet, surrounded by appropriate garlands and inscriptions. After Mendelssohn's overture to the "Midsummer Night's Dream," the inaugural address was delivered by Professor Tycho Mommsen, director of the Frankfort College, who delineated with much skill the leading characteristics of Shakspeare's "giant mind." An American gentleman, Mr. Milliken, also delivered an address, in which he dwelt in eloquent terms on the universality of Shakspeare's genius. At the ensuing banquet about 200 ladies and gentlemen sat down, including his Excellency Sir A. Malet, her Majesty's Minister, and a small party of English; also the American Consul-General, Mr. Murphy; Mr. Wood, American Minister at Copenhagen, and a considerable number of Americans. The chair was occupied by Dr. Creizenach. The first toast, "The Fatherland," was proposed by Dr. Brandmüller, and the second toast, "Shakspeare," by Dr. Grün. This gentleman brought into unnecessary prominence the political animosities of the day, on which he commented in a strain that gave great offence to the English portion of the company. Sir A. Malet was then called on to speak to the toast of the evening. In a few but most happy terms, making many circumstances of much interest connected with Shakspeare, At the close of his speech Sir A. Malet noticed the political allusions of the preceding speaker, and referred to the picture from "The Merchant of Venice," said, with much force, that if Germany demanded its right to the Jew, England had its protection left to great commotion, which was heightened by the president appealing in very strong terms against such a comparison. Sir A. Malet, in explanation, stated that he did not intend to draw a parallel between Germany and Shylock, but simply to point out what had to be deduced from "The Merchant of Venice." This explanation, given in a very friendly manner, was received with great enthusiastic speech that followed, by the English Chaplain, the Rev. J. C. Flood, in which he dwelt on the intellectual relations between Germany and England, did much to restore the harmony so unhappily interrupted. Professor Genée next addressed the assembly in Italian, referring to those of Shakspeare's plays then in course of performance in that city. In conclusion, Dr. Hamburger, the Director of the English Circle, expressed the sentimental thanks of the ladies present for the toast and their labour of love, had added the gratification of the eye to that of the ear. Amongst the evening's recreation of appropriate music was admirably performed by a full orchestra.

EXHIBITION OF SHAKSPEARE PICTURES AND RELICS IN THE TOWNHALL.

ILLUSTRATIONS OF THE WAR IN DENMARK.

We give this week, in addition to those which have already been published, several effective illustrations of the battle of Monday, the 18th ult., when the Prussian army of seventy thousand men after days' profuse cannonade and bombardment of the ten redoubts on Duppel Hill, in length took them by an easy assault, the Danes being greatly overmatched, and mustering in fact, not half the numbers of the attacking force. The large plan of our Supplement, which occupies nearly the upper half of two pages, is from a sketch by a Danish artist, Mr. Sinco Simonsen, who took it about noon on that day from a hill in the Isle of Alsen, above the town of Sonderburg, and just inside what is called the Flank Battery, on the shore of the Alsen Strait or Sound. From this spot, our readers will see, had the best possible view, right over the narrow piece of water that separates Alsen from Duppel, towards the steep and strongly fortified side of the Duppel range of hills. He could see where the unconquered defenders of Duppel, having been driven out of their fortifications on the sunset, still resisted, for two or three hours, the overwhelming force poured upon them, so as to secure a gain for the safe removal of the rest of the Danish army into Alsen and for the destruction of the pontoon-bridges connecting it with the mainland. As a military achievement, it may be allowed that this difficult and important service, performed chiefly by the second brigade, consisting of the 3rd and 16th Regiments of the Danish army, reflects more credit upon their soldiership than the Prussians can have owned to the exploit of carrying the main line of angles of Duppel. Throughout the whole affair this siege has been remarkable for its completeness and the most elaborate preparations on the side of the attack, supported by an inexhaustible store of artillery; while personal courage and fortitude, even to the extreme verge of defence, have been most nobly exhibited by the little army of Denmark. We have furnished by our Special Danish correspondent with a precise account of the names of the several regiments that were actively engaged in the battle of the 18th ult., and of the positions they respectively held. "The 1st and 4th Regiments, with the light of the 17th, occupied the redoubts or open forts of Duppel in the following order:—The 22nd Regiment, under Colonel Falkenskiold, Forts 1, 2, and 3: the 2nd Regiment, Colonel Dreyer, Forts 4 and 5; the 17th, Colonel Hegermann-Lindencrone, Fort 7 and 8; and the 16th Regiment, Colonel Wolle, Forts 9 and 10. The Reserve consisted of the 9th Regiment, Colonel Dandorff, and the 20th Regiment, Colonel Scholten." Our Correspondent goes on to relate how the Danes in Duppel was left to their own orders were to hold the forts, though in a very poor state, as long as possible; and it was generally said that General Gerlach, the Commander-in-Chief, in accordance with his orders from the Ministry at Copenhagen, would not listen to the advice of several of the generals of division, and other high officers, to abandon the position with the whole troops and material, so far as practicable, to Alsen Island. General of Division Du Plat and Colonel Steinmann were in the night with the troops. It was Sunday night, and the firing of the Prussian batteries began to slacken about 10 o'clock, and for many miles round. The forts which were already almost demolished, became heaps of ruins and rubbish, and the gun-carriages were shot to pieces. On Monday morning, from four to six o'clock, a cannonade was begun from a 160 heavy guns, sometimes in volleys, as of musketry, the like of which has, perhaps, never been executed before. The commander of the 17th, Colonel Hegermann, who had bivouacked in and about the forts the whole forenoon, sustained a severe wound of shells and shrapnels with that enduring patience and heroic coolness of which the Danish army has given proof during this war. Shortly after ten o'clock the Prussians made their general assault, and were visible to the Danes in the trenches, partly enveloped by their numbers. The carnage was dreadful, and most of the Danish officers of the first line of trenches were killed, or have Colonel Lasson, were killed. The eighth brigade, being in reserve, came up in support of the attacked, and the fight was carried back with great loss, but had to give way when, after an hour's combat, the Prussians were reinforced by the 13th corps, whose assailants were also sternly resisted; but the position had to be given up when the enemy had got to the left and in the rear of the Danes. During the advance of the eighth brigade Major-General Du Plat fell pierced by a ball, but forbade the men to take him up, crying, "Let me alone, my boys—advance, advance!" He was, however, second on the Staff of the Commander-in-Chief, one of the best officers of the army, we likewise hear. The battle now began to draw back, down the hill of Duppel, towards the Sound of Alsen and the side-bridges. The troops of the 16th Regiment, acting of the 3rd and 5th Regiments, took up the retreating forces, and the rear-guard—from half-past 10 to 11 o'clock—covered the Prussian attack, which was aided by field-pieces on the heights of Duppel. Major Sir Erskine, at the head of the Royal Artillery label, helped to check the Prussian advance while the Danes got over the bridges into Alsen. This being accomplished, the bridges were broken off and burned or blown up by the Danish engineers, so that the Prussians remained on the following day on the Duppel ground," so far we quote the narrative of our Danish Alsen war friend. From this point our readers will require much explanation. In its forepart, the ground, upon the road in Alsen, we see, is occupied by the reserve marching down into Sonderborg, whence it may go across the Strait to take part in the defence of the Isle of Alsen. The middle nearest object, beyond these groups of soldiers, is the Church Hospital of Sonderborg, with the Danish flag displayed over the water. The castle and church are to our left, and the Flank Battery is to our right, overlooking the Strait. The Prussian forces are hidden from our sight by the rising ground in front. On the face of the opposite hill, over a space of about two miles, the Prussian and Danish troops, in order of battle, are seen fiercely contending for the passage to the bridge-head; but, in the distance, their several corps were not clearly distinguishable to a spectator in the Isle of Alsen. The upper part of the hill is already in possession of the enemy, whose left wing spreads out as far as the spire of Sachrup Church to our right. On our left hand the Prussian batteries on the coast of Broagerland are exchanging shots with the Redi Krake.

Turning now to the page Engraving, from a sketch by our Special Artist on the Prussian side, we have the same subject, Redoubt No. 6 by the combined battalions of the Elizabeth and Augusta regiments of Guards. The smaller engraving, on the right of No. 6, and a little further back is Redoubt No. 5, a sketch of the assault upon which was engraved in our last Number. The three remaining sketches by our own Artist, which appear this week, are taken also from the battle-field of the 18th ult., and may be regarded as typical illustrations of this cruel and unprovoked war. The first of them represents Prince Frederick Charles of Prussia, the general commanding that division of the army which was immediately employed in the siege of Duppel. He has posted himself, with the officers of his Staff, on the Rubenberg-hill, whence he can survey, without effort or distance, the advance of his columns to storm the redoubts. The second of these minor illustrations, which is rather a pictorial scene, gives a view of the interior of the amputating-hut belonging to the temporary hospital, and behind the second pillar to the right is the wounded Prussian who has been brought thither to undergo the necessary surgical works. The third shows a part of the field where the Prussian and Danish dead are being collected and laid out in ghastly rows, affording a sad contrast to the attitude of the Prince and his companions on Rubenberg-hill, overlooking the field, the bloody work of the morning, triumphant in the pride of military power.

CLOCK PRESENTED TO ST. MARY'S ORPHANAGE, LANARK, BY THE EMPRESS OF THE FRENCH.

The accompanying Engraving represents the ormolu clock given by the Empress Eugenie to the Bazaar, held on the 12th ult., for the benefit of St. Mary's Orphanage, at Lanark. The group surmounting the clock shows St. Michael in the act of triumphing over the Evil Spirit. It was put up as the second prize in a lottery held for the charitable fund; the first prize being a Roman cameo, set in gold, of Etruscan device. At the close of the Bazaar, Lanark and the Clyde "boomented" order so often met with in the streets of Paris, and sometimes met with also in London, when a prize just sold was exhibited in all parts of the world; there being more than 10,000 of there benevolent sisters distributed in little colonies far and wide. The sum at Lanark for which the clock was disposed of, for the benefit of orphans already exceeds the accommodation for them; and this bazaar was intended to provide for its necessary enlargement.

ORMOULU CLOCK, PRESENTED BY THE EMPRESS OF THE FRENCH TO THE BAZAAR FOR THE BENEFIT OF ST. MARY'S ORPHANAGE, AT LANARK.

OBITUARY OF EMINENT PERSONS.

THE COUNTESS DOWAGER OF FALMOUTH.

The Right Hon. Anne Frances, Dowager Countess of Falmouth, died at her town house, 9, Wilton-crescent, on the 1st inst. The lamented Countess, who bore a high reputation for benevolent disposition and her munificence in alleviating the distress of the poor, was the second daughter of the late Henry Bankes, Esq., of Kingston Lacy, Dorsetshire, M.P. for the county of Dorset for many years, and afterwards M.P. for the county of Dorset, by his wife, Frances, daughter of his Excellency William Woodley, Governor of the Leeward Isles. Her Ladyship was born on the 17th of May, 1789, and was married, Aug. 31, 1809, to Edward, first Earl of Falmouth and fourth Viscount Falmouth, by whom (who died May 29, 1841) her Ladyship had only child, George Henry, second Earl of Falmouth and fifth Viscount Falmouth, who died, unmarried, May, 1852, when the honours devolved on his brother, the late Viscount Falmouth, who died in 1856, leaving Evelyn, sixth and present Viscount Falmouth, whose wife, Mary Frances Elizabeth, is the only child of Lord Dungannon.

THOMAS BOURKE RICKETTS, ESQ.

This venerable and highly respected gentleman, Thomas Bourke Ricketts, Esq., of Combe House, Herefordshire, died on the 20th ult., at his residence, in Upper Seymour-street, near the Marble Arch, and representative of the very ancient family of Ricketts, or Ricketts, which could trace its descent from the Conquest, and of which the present Viscount St. Vincent is a junior branch. Mr. Thomas Ricketts claimed descent also from other noble English, Scotch, and Irish families—viz., from that of the Earl of Derby, through the famous Gray de Wilton; from the Bourkes of Roscommon, Earls of Mayo; and from Sir Gilbert Crawford, Bt., whose daughter Elizabeth was the wife of George Crawford Ricketts, Esq., of Combe, Herefordshire, Attorney-General for Jamaica, and father of the deceased gentleman. Thomas Bourke Ricketts was born on Sept. 29, 1780; and married, Aug. 4, 1804, Harriet, second daughter of Sir Robert Price, Bt., of Foxley, Herefordshire, by Lucretia, Viscountess Dowager Bulkeley, daughter of Sir Nathaniel Lloyd, Bt., of Peterwell, 1837; he had issue three sons—viz., George Crawford, late Captain Grenadier Guards, now residing in Australia; Thomas Price, Lieutenant-Colonel, late of the 3rd Buffs; and John Lovett, grandson of the Right Hon. Dr. Lovett, Bishop of London; Frances Harriet, married to Sir Thomas Hastings Bunbury, Bt., of Barton Hall, Suffolk; and Lucretia, mother of the present Rev. Sir John Cotter Hawkins, fourth Baronet, of Kelston, Somersetshire. The deceased was buried in the family vault, in Kelston Church, Gloucestershire, in the family of Mr. Bourke Ricketts just deceased.

JAMES KERSHAW, M.P.

James Kershaw, Esq., M.P. for Stockport, who died on the 27th ult., at his residence, the Manor House, Cheetham-hill, was the son of Thomas Kershaw, Esq., and was a partner in the eminent manufacturing firm of Kershaw and Co., Manchester, and Stockport, which was founded by his father, and great personal and local influence in Manchester and Stockport. He was first returned as a L.P. for Lancashire and an Alderman and J.P. of Manchester, in 1838, as Mayor in 1843. He was first returned to Parliament, for Stockport, in December, 1847, and has ever since, till his death, continued to represent that important borough. Mr. Kershaw was a liberal and sincere Reformer, for vote by ballot, for the repeal of the repugnant clause in the Reform Act of 1832, and was opposed to the payment of Maynooth College and Roman Catholic priests. He was married, and leaves issue. His eldest son, James Kershaw, Esq., married, in 1860, Miss Jane, second daughter of Thomas Elworthy, Esq.

FINE ARTS.

EXHIBITION OF THE ROYAL ACADEMY.

The general opinion is that the present exhibition of the Royal Academy surpasses any of its immediate predecessors. The average of technical power is manifestly raised, and, at the same time, the interest is remarkably varied—effects, perhaps, in part produced by the generally careful and evidently unprejudiced hanging. The number of comparatively unknown artists who claim admission equally with those of old-established reputation is certainly unprecedented. To the varied interest and novelty of the display the Academy itself contributes in a much smaller proportion than may fairly be expected from a professional and liberal institution; and yet the members and associates were, perhaps, never so liberally represented. Not only absentees who may be very sensibly missed being Messrs. Herbert, Maclise, Frith, and Ward—the first three having contributed nothing, and the last sending only the small though interesting sketch of "Treachery in the Camp" which we have already noticed. The influence of the Academy schools is, moreover, still less appreciable. Of the number of young contributors who appear for the first time at the Academy a very small percentage indeed have ever been through the course of probation which leads to the Antique-room. The status of the great development of art, despite the lack of efficient teaching in the "Royal" Institution, and also of public patronage on a national scale, is not far to seek. The ever-accumulating private wealth of the country is finding a new outlet in the purchase of works of art; hence a larger number of English pictures are yearly attracted to the professions of art, and the standard of pictures proportionately increases; and hence, from the limited space, the selection of the Academy is more and more difficult. But, from the fact that the increasing demand is chiefly confined to the middle class, and is not so much evinced in character as extended in the departments of domestic incident, landscape, and the so-called genre historique. This Exhibition indicates exactly what is wanted for the British to take that first rank among the nations of Europe to which, we believe, the "natural gifts" of our painters (equally with our poets) entitles it. We want a more extended and thoroughly representative national academy of arts, with efficient schools, where, as in our Universities, all students may have the same opportunities of training irrespectively in those higher principles of drawing, composition, and "style" in declinity as may be necessary for success in art—in which, at present, they are (although there are several exceptions) chiefly deficient. And then we want a more extended patronage of British artists on national works. It is but fair to say that the Academicians in their answer to the report of the Royal Commission, have approved of the recommendation that there should be a representative of the Academy and the remodelling of the schools. It remains for the Government to give practical effect to the proposal, and to secure more liberal views in regard to public works. It is this which will not only elevate the status of the professors of the subject but will also check that tendency to exaggerated "realism" in representations, whether of the present or the past, which is to some extent the legacy of a defunct pre-Raphaelitism and self-conscious medievalism, both of which have been more or less stamped on the country.

Probably the picture of the year will be "La Gloria—A Spanish Wake" (51), by Phillip. Seen, as we have seen this picture, with the room nearly empty, in the morning or in the comparatively early light, there is nothing on the walls stands out with such potent breadth of colour and such powerful brilliancy of effect. The latter enhanced by a perfect nonagay of colour. The contrasts of effect are magnificent, but the whole picture is Spain—Spain intensified; they work out the moral sensitive and shade—the contrasts of mirth and mourning, exuberant life and solemn death. Only the Southern Spaniards believe that when a child dies before the age of conscious sin its soul goes straight to heaven, and therefore it is not once caught up to heaven. Death, in such cases, is therefore cynosures with great force here by the artist. It is the custom of the friends of the bereaved family celebrating such an occasion with music and dancing. On the left, through a half-opened door, in a chamber darkened from the sun, we see the mother only by yellow light, we see the child lying in the sweet repose of death. Near, and under the shadow of the wall, are a group of girls, couches the mother, beatrichen and inconsolable, deaf to the compassionate soothing of the girls who are her friends or female relatives or kin. Out before the entrance, in bright sunlight, a gaily-dressed group of acquaintances are dancing to the music of a guitar, or guzzla, and a male lover; a little toddler of nearly the same age as the dead child brings a garland to crown the corpse. Mr. Phillip has chosen a subject thing so fine in conception, character, and composition, or so purely artistic in treatment, as to make this picture a truly noble picture. There is a vigorously-executed best-portrait by the same artist—"Dr. Dollinger"—apparently larger than life.

J. F. Lewis has at length fully developed in oil those qualities of minute and almost illusive imitation which distinguished his painting in water colours. His picture of "The Hareem" (8) at once is occupied by his elaborate picture of "The Hosh (courtyard) of the Gopic (Janissary) Aga" (7), the chief head of the Gopics, the picture sect dictating to his secretary despatches to a convent in the desert, to be conveyed by a camel, the camel being with their drivers in the acacia overhang great part of the courtyard, and in the chequered light and shade, the minutest details of costume, accessories, and even ducks flutter about or dabble in the shallow tessulated tank; while groups and portraits of the Janissaries produce the whole is unsatisfactory. Three smaller picture, however, by the artist, unwary pictorial interest, and are the result of long and loving study, and even more remarkable for its representation of sunlight effect through a lattice on the face and figure of Moses (one of the few where the Israelites are supposed to have landed from the bed of the Red Sea), where the sunlight is seen to fall on the floor, through the fretwork of the lattice, and where, before he has time to descend, an Arab maiden, about to cross, hands the thirsty traveller a draught from her freshly-filled bottle. This actual incident may be accepted as a kind of after-type of the meeting of Abraham's servant with Rebecca, at the well of Nahor. The second, Arabian, work depicts a poor Nubian slave (254) singing to the accompaniment of a lute in the streets of Cairo, for the benefit of a little child, who is dancing. This is Mr. Goodall's diploma picture, deposited in the collection at the Academy on the occasion of his election to their ranks. His picture, "Summer Song" (59), an old English family party, in costumes of Charles I., is a pleasant and characteristic picture, but does not bear the margin of a lake, is, we are told, only a temporary return to an earlier class of subjects from those scenes of Eastern life which the artist depicts so graphically.

Sir Edwin Landseer—whom we cannot help welcoming though at the expense of a longer delay of those lions for Trafalgar-square—is, we think, best represented, as regards technicalities, in a small picture with the alliterative and facetious title of "A Piper and a Pair of Notecrackers" (82), the latter being a couple of squirrels, which are sitting up and busily discussing the nuts for harmony a bullfinch, piping away in fearless proximity to the quaint little quadrupeds. As to recent works, the trials of lions conveys an impression of completeness which Sir Edwin formerly secured by greater attention to the visual intuition. There is there also more detail, all thoroughly matured and masterly execution—an entirely safe factory effect produced by apparently inadequate means. In a large picture the manipulation is still slighter; but a force of expression, almost too vivid and terrible, seems to have found fitting poetical expression in modes of hasty indication rather than complete realisation. With, for motto, the impressive old proverb, "Man proposes, and God disposes" (163), the painter conceives and presents before us, not the immediate or impending fate of a few survivors of some Arctic expedition—we will not say speculate about it, for no question of that remains. Under the lurid sky of Arctic twilight, among the vast fantastic blocks of ice, green, or of a purple tint, which the sunset flushed with the long, level, rosy ray of the far-off dawn, we see only a hollow a small part of which is open; and the black and awful grave—for those are human ribs protruding, blanched and bare from summer heat or birds of prey—crouch and writhe, like monster forms, on the Polar shore. Not a living creature is to be seen. In the one standing away a coloured striped rag or blanket that may have formed a shroud for some fond and gentle hand, and a pair of boots stretching out of those unburied bones. Half hidden in the snow are a telescope and a pocket-book, almost automatically put down in despair; and in this picture, it may be questioned whether the representation is not so purely harrowing as to lose proper interest in the moral meaning. Moreover, to the portrait of the Queen on horseback (taken apparently some years since), with a small Highland terrier (No. 1), and that (No. 2) of, or even to "The Pensioners" (371), a couple of old hunters, excited by the hum and cry of pack, a distant peal, and scarlet hunting coats, a native want of vigour.

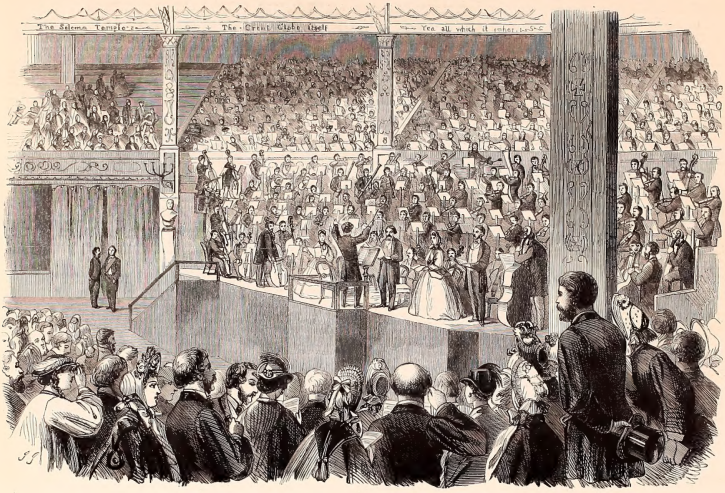
Mr. Millais has not finished in time for this exhibition his promised "historical" picture of "Aaron and Hur upholding the hands of Moses during the battle between the Israelites and Amalekites in Rephidim;" but he exhibits his usual contribution of portraits, the one standing away a coloured striped rag or blanket that may have formed a shroud for some fond and gentle hand, and a pair of boots stretching out of those unburied bones. Half hidden in the snow are a telescope and a pocket-book, almost automatically put down in despair; and in this picture, it may be questioned whether the representation is not so purely harrowing as to lose proper interest in the moral meaning. Moreover, to the portrait of the Queen on horseback (taken apparently some years since), with a small Highland terrier (No. 1), and that (No. 2) of, or even to "The Pensioners" (371), a couple of old hunters, excited by the hum and cry of pack, a distant peal, and scarlet hunting coats, a native want of vigour.

Mr. Millais has not finished in time for this exhibition his promised "historical" picture of "Aaron and Hur upholding the hands of Moses during the battle between the Israelites and Amalekites in Rephidim;" but he exhibits his usual contribution of portraits, the one standing away a coloured striped rag or blanket that may have formed a shroud for some fond and gentle hand, and a pair of boots stretching out of those unburied bones. Half hidden in the snow are a telescope and a pocket-book, almost automatically put down in despair; and in this picture, it may be questioned whether the representation is not so purely harrowing as to lose proper interest in the moral meaning. Moreover, to the portrait of the Queen on horseback (taken apparently some years since), with a small Highland terrier (No. 1), and that (No. 2) of, or even to "The Pensioners" (371), a couple of old hunters, excited by the hum and cry of pack, a distant peal, and scarlet hunting coats, a native want of vigour.



Mr. Millais has not finished in time for this exhibition his promised "historical" picture of "Aaron and Hur upholding the hands of Moses during the battle between the Israelites and Amalekites in Rephidim;" but he exhibits his usual contribution of portraits, the one standing away a coloured striped rag or blanket that may have formed a shroud for some fond and gentle hand, and a pair of boots stretching out of those unburied bones. Half hidden in the snow are a telescope and a pocket-book, almost automatically put down in despair; and in this picture, it may be questioned whether the representation is not so purely harrowing as to lose proper interest in the moral meaning. Moreover, to the portrait of the Queen on horseback (taken apparently some years since), with a small Highland terrier (No. 1), and that (No. 2) of, or even to "The Pensioners" (371), a couple of old hunters, excited by the hum and cry of pack, a distant peal, and scarlet hunting coats, a native want of vigour.

Mr. Millais has not finished in time for this exhibition his promised "historical" picture of "Aaron and Hur upholding the hands of Moses during the battle between the Israelites and Amalekites in Rephidim;" but he exhibits his usual contribution of portraits, the one standing away a coloured striped rag or blanket that may have formed a shroud for some fond and gentle hand, and a pair of boots stretching out of those unburied bones. Half hidden in the snow are a telescope and a pocket-book, almost automatically put down in despair; and in this picture, it may be questioned whether the representation is not so purely harrowing as to lose proper interest in the moral meaning. Moreover, to the portrait of the Queen on horseback (taken apparently some years since), with a small Highland terrier (No. 1), and that (No. 2) of, or even to "The Pensioners" (371), a couple of old hunters, excited by the hum and cry of pack, a distant peal, and scarlet hunting coats, a native want of vigour.

Mr. Millais has not finished in time for this exhibition his promised "historical" picture of "Aaron and Hur upholding the hands of Moses during the battle between the Israelites and Amalekites in Rephidim;" but he exhibits his usual contribution of portraits, the one standing away a coloured striped rag or blanket that may have formed a shroud for some fond and gentle hand, and a pair of boots stretching out of those unburied bones. Half hidden in the snow are a telescope and a pocket-book, almost automatically put down in despair; and in this picture, it may be questioned whether the representation is not so purely harrowing as to lose proper interest in the moral meaning. Moreover, to the portrait of the Queen on horseback (taken apparently some years since), with a small Highland terrier (No. 1), and that (No. 2) of, or even to "The Pensioners" (371), a couple of old hunters, excited by the hum and cry of pack, a distant peal, and scarlet hunting coats, a native want of vigour.

Mr. Millais has not finished in time for this exhibition his promised "historical" picture of "Aaron and Hur upholding the hands of Moses during the battle between the Israelites and Amalekites in Rephidim;" but he exhibits his usual contribution of portraits, the one standing away a coloured striped rag or blanket that may have formed a shroud for some fond and gentle hand, and a pair of boots stretching out of those unburied bones. Half hidden in the snow are a telescope and a pocket-book, almost automatically put down in despair; and in this picture, it may be questioned whether the representation is not so purely harrowing as to lose proper interest in the moral meaning. Moreover, to the portrait of the Queen on horseback (taken apparently some years since), with a small Highland terrier (No. 1), and that (No. 2) of, or even to "The Pensioners" (371), a couple of old hunters, excited by the hum and cry of pack, a distant peal, and scarlet hunting coats, a native want of vigour.

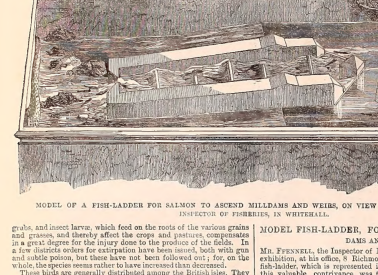
THE SHAKSPEARE COMMEMORATION AT STRATFORD-ON-AVON.

PERFORMANCE OF THE ORATORIO OF "THE MESSIAH," IN THE FESTIVAL PAVILION.

SCENE FROM "THE COMEDY OF ERRORS," AS PERFORMED IN THE FESTIVAL PAVILION,—SEE PAGE 463.

THE SHAKSPEARE COMMEMORATION AT STRATFORD-ON-AVON.

VISIT TO CHARLECOTE.



SCENE FROM "ROMEO AND JULIET," AS PERFORMED IN THE FESTIVAL PAVILION.—SEE PAGE 463.

SPORTS OF THE MONTH.

TOWARDS the middle or end of May, according to circumstances, rook-shooting commences; and although we consider it rather a tame sport, it ought not to pass unnoticed. Of course, there are many "gunners" who wait until the young birds are strong, and then, when on the wing, bring them down with the common gun, loaded with No. 5 shot, or with Eley's patent cartridges. Some make use of a rifle, and then the diversion is exciting from its difficulty. When the sport is thus carried on it may be deemed legitimate. What we object to is the cruelty of mere amusement in the case and fire away at the young birds when sitting round the nests, awaiting the visit of the parent bird to feed them, or when hopping from bough to bough.

If the number of these helpless innocents is to be perpetrated when sitting, it is in the name of fairness done with a crossbow, which, when off modern make, and well regulated, will throw a bullet with great force and unerring aim. "When shooting with the crossbow," says Mr. Daniel, in mean authority, "the marks on trees are lofty; the bow at fourteen yards upon a level, stopping all the holes in the sight but the fifth, which is the highest, raise the bullet higher on the tree; the fifth low, the contrary. When the ball does not rouse within the notches of the bolt, you will perceive it in the sight; if it shoots too high, one less lower; if too low, the reverse. Should the spring within the lock happen to fail, take care to place the open part of the bow one toward the butt end of the bow; if it be put in the wrong end forward, the bow will be useless. Never keep the bow long in full stretch, rather shoot the ball waste. If the string should fret or unravel, close up the defective places with beeswax. Care is necessary to hold the bow steady in charging; if let slip whilst drawing up the string it will assuredly break the stock, and probably the lath and string at the same time." The crossbow is often called the bullet and pellet bow, since it has been used to propel leaden and iron bullets, and pellets made of strong, adhesive clay, instead of, as in bygone days, discharging arrows.

According to Jardine the rook (the Corvus frugilegus) is essentially a crow, although it varies a little in its gregarious habits, and by the barenness of the base of its bill. Its food is at all times gregarious, and, whether during the season of incubation or during winter, may always be seen in large flocks feeding and roosting together. For a breeding station or rookery all kinds of trees are indiscriminately used, though it is frequently seen among woods of fir-trees, or in those of beech, plane, and ash. When it happens to be chosen among deciduous trees the locality serves for a rookery only, and is returned to at the proper season, almost to a certainty, by the whole community, however distant during the intervening time; but when placed in a wood of pines the birds return slightly to roost through the year. In the former case they resort during the winter to some pine wood often many miles distant, yet, when the season returns, they flock affords them warmth and shelter. Thence at daybreak they depart to their feeding-grounds, often visiting the same breeding-place as they pass to re-pass, and remaining for a short time, as if examining its condition. Their flights are taken simultaneously; and, having gained a convenient altitude, they fly in a usual course directly to the point intended. The food of these birds, although they occasionally eat carrion, is chiefly of the grain kind, the produce which the farmer can allege against these black marauders is done when the young wheat begins to appear in the ground, from a flock of rooks we can cause considerable loss, and, being guided to the sweet and swollen grain by the tender shoot, they burrow with their powerful bills after it, and leave the "braird" to rot, deprived of its nourishment. Another destructive practice is when potato fields are newly planted, to the sets of which they are equally guided by the young shoot, and a crop thus may be entirely lost. A set-off to these depredations it has been said that the havoc the rooks make among the slugs, grubs, and insect larvæ, which feed on the roots of the various grains and grasses, is thereby effected but imperfectly, as the rook remains in a great degree for the injury done to the produce of the fields. In a few districts orders for extermination have been issued, but with no and subtle poison, but there have not been followed out; for on the whole, the species seems rather to have increased than decreased.

MODEL OF A FISH-LADDER FOR SALMON TO ASCEND MILLDAMS AND WEIRS, ON VIEW AT THE OFFICE OF THE INSPECTOR OF FISHERIES, IN WHITEHALL.

These birds are generally distributed among the British Isles. They prefer, however, the cultivated districts to the mountainous and wild, and being always least abundant in the alpine, or wooded mountainous districts. Some ornithologists state that the rook is a bird of Japan, that it frequents temperate European regions, and extends to Asia. In Great Britain these birds have shown a great predilection for "town residences" and for a length of time Carlton House, the Temple, and Spring Gardens, in London, formed a favourite resort for this "black game," as did some of the large buildings in Glasgow and Edinburgh.

In Rhode Island "Everyday Book" we find the following:—"Some years ago there were several large elm-trees in the college garden behind the Rochdale Court, Doctors' Commons, in which a number of rooks had taken up their abode, forming in appearance a sort of convocation of aerial ecclesiastics. A young gentleman who lodged in an attic, and was their close neighbour, frequently entertained himself with thinning the covey of black gown by means of a crossbow. On the opposite side lived a curious old civilian, who observing from his study that the rooks often dropped senseless from their perch, as if so it may be said, without the aid of a gun, they were 'making no sign,' nor any sign being made to his vision to account for the phenomenon, set his wits to work to consider what it was. It was probably during a perihlion time of peace, and the doctor, having plenty of leisure, weighed the matter over and over till he was at length fully satisfied that he had made a great ornithological discovery, and that its propagation was worthy of the Royal Society. His gossegnil and foolscap were quickly in requisition, and he actually wrote a treatise, stating circumstantially all the facts which had seen, and, in conclusion, giving it as the settled conviction of his mind that rooks were a species subject to falling upon their feet. As the subject of these birds, we cannot refrain from giving a clever witticism which the late Rev. H. Barham, author of the 'Ingoldsby Legends,' made one evening at the Garrick Club, when the conversation was falling down the trees, and thereby destroying the rookery in Carlton House gardens was first mooted. After a variety of plans upon the crowd, which "Tra cra we doze, et sanpius Tra cra-ra" was introduced, Barham said, 'It's quite right in theory to get rid of the rooks, but I'm afraid for fear they should hatch high treason within the precincts of the Court.'

It has often been asserted, that the pigeon pies which form so important a feature in the bonfeasons at Epsom are made of the flesh of the wood or rooks, and that a considerable quantity of eggs sold at fourpence a piece at players' matches are taken from the nests of the well-intentioned "black game," but such is not the case. The difficulty of climbing trees, with the prospect of being warned off as a trespasser, would hardly compensate the poacher for his risk and trouble, especially as in Norfolk the genuine article may be obtained in vast numbers. That young rooks do occasionally find themselves, like the "four-and-twenty blackbirds" of nursery lore, baked in a pie, cannot be denied; these are generally the perquisites of keepers, who, after furnishing enough for their masters' tables, dispose of the others. A pie made of them is not to be despised, although we are not sure a weakness for the good old-fashioned pigeon pie, made of young pigeons, is nice, tender, juicy, beefsteak, and pasty of last-boiled eggs mixed up with them.

MODEL FISH-LADDER, FOR THE ASCENT OF MILL-DAMS AND WEIRS.

MR. FENNELL, the Inspector of Fisheries for England, has now for exhibition, at his office, 8 Richmond-terrace, Whitehall, a model of a fish-ladder, which is represented in our Engravings. The author of this valuable contrivance was the late Mr. Smith, of Deanston. Its object is to enable salmon and other fish to ascend millbeams, and similar impediments, in their course up the rivers to their spawning-grounds; while the waste water is, by this apparatus, so economised as not to interfere with the working power of the mill. Mr. Fennell's model is provided with running water, and its fish are seen to ascend the ladder. This is a very interesting sight, as well as a most useful practical illustration of the matter, which much concerns the improvement of the salmon fisheries of this country.

The Société des Fêtes du Bienfaisance, at Calais, has arranged for a regatta, with sea-side sports, to take place in that port on the 15th and 17th of July next. There will be also pigeon-shooting, nautical tournaments, donkey-riding, a fat-ox match, &c.

The St. Petersburg Journal contains a decree issued by the Emperor of Russia, for the abolition of the pecuniary allowance now granted to Jewish or Mohammedan sub-officers and soldiers on their becoming converted to the orthodox religion.

The Times states that Miss Florence Nightingale is so overwhelmed with begging letters that it is quite impossible for her, already as fully occupied as her health will permit, to answer them or to return the papers inclosed.

A telegram gives further particulars regarding the line-of-battle ship Bi Galantuomo, on her way to Naples from Gibraltar, where she left on Thursday morning, encountered a violent storm, which carried away all her masts, and sprung a leak. She had to throw all the lower-deck guns overboard; and was, on Saturday morning, being towed into Gibraltar.

A sum of 20,000*l.* has been left to the French Academy of Sciences by a gentleman named Bordin, who died at Paris a few days since, formerly a member of the Institution of Egypt and France. The object of this bequest is to promote scientific researches in the domain of the experimental sciences of Egypt and Syria, continuing the researches made by M. de Savigny.

The Postmaster-General has issued orders that on and after the 1st of June next the Money-order Office Department will be removed from one part of London to another in the United Kingdom, except such as are required for the purpose of the Money-order Office Savings Bank, which will remain for the present at the General Post-office, St. Martin's-le-Grand. The whole of the London postal district, which includes all places within the Windsor and Bath, will be considered as the limit of the free delivery. This rule will not interfere with the soldiers' and sailors' privilege.

THE DISTRESS IN LANCASHIRE.—The fortnightly meeting of the Central Relief Committee was held on Monday, at the Town-hall, Manchester. The hon. secretary reported that £244 had been received during the week, £67 from Australia, £50 from Mr. Gladstone, and £10 from Mr. Disraeli. Nothing had been received. One hamper of wine had been sent off. Mr. Farnall presented his fortnightly report, which stated that there was a decrease on the fortnight in persons receiving parochial relief in the twenty-seven unions of 1097. Grants were made to twenty-five local committees to the amount of about £3400, of which Thirlwall had £100; Burnley, £100; Bury, £200; Heywood, £400; Chorlton and Ardwick, £300; Rochdale, £300; Gorton, £100; Whitworth and Facit, £100; Salford, £300; Ryde, £400; Wigan, £300. It was resolved to adjourn to the 23rd inst., and that the executive committee meet on Wednesday next, at the usual hour, in their room.——At a meeting of the Blackburn Relief Committee of the above fund, held yesterday week, £1700 was granted for the relief of the distress in Blackburn. The total sum received up to last Saturday was £124,698, and from Thirlwall, £100. The total sum received up to Thursday week was £124,698.

MUSIC.

THE "Prophète" was performed at the Royal Italian Opera on Saturday last for the first time this season. Its illustrious author expired at Paris on the same night. His death is the extinction of the greatest musical luminary of the age, the close of the earthly career of one who was not more renowned as an artist than loved and respected as a man. Meyerbeer was about to come to England to superintend the production at this theatre of his charming opera, the "Etoile du Nord," when he was seized with an intestinal complaint which at first caused no alarm, but came unexpectedly to a fatal termination. He died in his sixty-fourth year. The "Prophète"—the "Robert le Diable" and the "Huguenots"—was produced on Saturday with the following cast:—Fidès, Madame Viardot (who had been represented at this theatre; but the performance of the two principal characters was not equal to what it has been in former years. In the character of John of Leyden, Herr Wachtel was far from successful. His voice, which was never of the most pleasing quality of his voice, unqualified for power and compass on the present musical stage. But he was also deficient in that indispensable requisite for of its usual strength and brilliancy, and his powers as an actor proved inadequate to the unenviable task of filling the vacant place and trying. The part of Fidès, too, in the hands of Mdlle. Destinn, a young and inexperienced artiste (débuté of considerable promise), proved ineffective. The performance of this chef-d'œuvre was deprived of its principal features, was on the whole, less satisfactory than it ever has been in this theatre.

Otto Nicolai's opera, "Die Lustigen Weiber von Windsor" ("The Merry Wives of Windsor"), was brought out on Tuesday evening at her Majesty's Theatre in an Italian garb under the title of "Falstaff," the name of its subject itself. The opera enjoys as much of Shakspeare's comedy as can be conveniently comprised within the limits of a comic opera. The incidents are the schemes whereby the two merry dames baffle the attempts of the fat knight libertine, and finally expose him to mortification and shame; together with a slight love-affair of the interlude formed by the loves of Anne Page and Fenton. The drama is well arranged, and the dialogue is well fitted for music; though, as may be supposed, Shakspeare's rich fancy, wit, and humour have evaporated in the process of adaptation. In truth, while we see that Nicolai knew well what he was about Shakspeare the better. The dramatic defects of this opera, however, are, in some degree, made up for by the merits of the music, which is a very favourable specimen of the modern German school. It is simple, clear, graceful, melodious, and free from affectations and crudities which deform the German music of the day. Though simple, it is neither shallow nor insipid, but is full of gay and expressive melody; while its construction and instrumentation show the masterly skill of an accomplished artist. The opera has been splendidly put upon the stage; and its performance on Saturday, on the whole, was admirable. The two "merry wives" were delightfully personated by Titiens and Madame Lemaire. They looked charming in their quaint old-English costumes, acted with vivacity and archness, and sang exquisitely. Ronconi made an excellent Ford: his genius is a hot and hasty temper under the influence of jealousy was a piece of genuine comedy, and his singing was on a par with his acting. Mdlle. Vitali was a pretty Anne Page, and she sang brilliantly and sweetly; and Giuglini, as her lover Fenton, had the conventional stage lover very well, sang as he alone, of all the tenors of the day, can sing. There is a little wrestling, sung by Fenton under Anne Page's window, which Giuglini warbled with exquisite beauty and expression. The excessively difficult character of Falstaff, sustained by Signor Junca, was, on the whole, a meritorious performance, though it was somewhat heavy in regard both to acting and singing. The reception of the piece by a full house was favourable, and it promises to have a run.

The winter series of the Saturday Concerts at the Crystal Palace terminated on Saturday last. These concerts have been very successful all along, thanks to the laborious efforts of their director, Mr. Manns, and this last was especially so. Its principal features were Beethoven's Pianoforte Concerto in G, played by the conductor, the first appearance in England of Herr Lauterbach, Concert-master to the King of Saxony, a violinist of the very highest order; and a young pianist, Mdlle. Krebbs, newly arrived from Dresden, who made a favourable debut in a fantasia from "Lucrezia Borgia." The finesse of the weather concurred with the attractions of the programme to bring together an immense concourse of visitors.

The fourth Philharmonic Concert of the season took place on Monday last. Its chief features were a symphony by Mehul; Beethoven's symphony in C minor; Mendelssohn's pianoforte concerto in D minor, admirably executed by Mr. W. G. Cusins; a concerto of Spohr, played by Herr Lauterbach; Mozart's violoncello above-mentioned; and Potter's overture to "Cymbeline." The vocalists were Mdme. Lemmens-Sherrington and Mr. Weiss. The concert was attended by a crowded audience.

THE THEATRES.

HAYMARKET.—Mr. Sothern has at length appeared in a new character, and has thus given the public opportunity for performances quite unexpected. The piece provided for him is a version of the French drama entitled "Le Gendre de Monsieur Poirier," a comedy-satire-production founded on a fabulous incident in the life of Garrick. The subject has been arranged for the English stage by Mr. T. H. Bayly, and boldly manufactured. The title of the first actor is represented by Mr. Sothern, and very worthily represented, too. The anecdote on which the play is founded relates that during early life Garrick met play Romeo fell in love with him; and that, to cure her of her passion, he, Garrick, disguised himself as a country lout, got found out to which he had been invited, and thus disgusted the young lady by the unpleasant discovery that the young man she knew was Ada Ingot (Miss Nelly Moore); and that, discovering the trick, she still loved Garrick the more, and, in her anger, to save Garrick from the consequences of a challenge which was the immediate result of the trick, she, Miss Ingot, practised, somewhat unmaidenly herself by being discovered in his apartment early in the morning; and was compelled, to establish her reputation, to marry her merchant-father, who had become so convinced of his honour that he consented to overlook the accidental drawback of his being a "play-actor." The first part of the humour was nicely supported by Miss Moore; and Mr. Chippendale, as old Ingot, played admirably the father's part. Mr. Compton, as Sir Squire Chery, the guardian of a peerage and the intended of Miss Ada, threw an amount of humour into the part which, considering the material, was quite wonderful: and characterisation is evidently not very large. But, of course, the main business of the piece is with Mr. Sothern, who yielded the pantomime hero to perfection. His bearing throughout was that of a finished gentleman, and his delineation of character is pretty fairly represented as it was elegantly interpreted. His delivery of the pathetic passages was musically impressive, and his costume not only appropriate to the early and picturesque. Altogether, we regard the performance as a singular triumph.

The Prince of Wales has headed the subscription for rescuing Lord's Cricket Ground from the hands of the builder with a donation of £50. Lord Palmerston has subscribed £100 and Lady Palmerston £50 to the Gatford Fund.

The appeal for the benevolent" in the daily journals occasionally offer examples of excessive confidence in human kindness and weakness, besides being curiosities in other ways. An advertisement that headed in Tuesday's Times announces that "a gentleman, holding a good appointment, through a misfortune, wishes for a loan of £50 for a year." Closely following it is "an appeal to the generous-hearted:" "a married tradesman, out of employment, who has a knowledge of bookkeeping and accounts, also a practical knowledge of drawing and the fine arts, and can write poetry," is recommended to the notice of "the kind and the lover of poetry," audacious in its requirements. It runs thus:—"To philanthropists.—An elderly gentleman, who has been unsuccessful in business, and is past beginning life again, starved for his family, seeks protection for each of his children—not for parting with any, but with a view to their education and start in life. Two boys 9 years and 10 months old, and four girls, 4, 5, 7, and 8 years of age."

ECHOES OF THE WEEK.

ONE might wager heavily, and feel sure of winning, that good and quaint Jonas Hanway, when he went to sleep and was quietly buried, safe from the mocking London boys who jeered at his umbrella, believed that he had for ever freed young chimney-sweeps from cruelty. But it is not so. We do not see, as Charles Lamb saw, the early piping little sweep, "with his peep, peep, like a young sparrow," among all London streets; but we have the testimony of Mr. Seymour and many witnesses in the House of Commons that climbing boys are still used, and that children of seven, and of either sex—for even girls are thus used—are forced up the flues of houses to climb hot chimneys, and, with peril of their lives and terror in their little hearts, to do that which the Legislature meant should be done by a machine. So here is another chapter for Jonas Hanway's red "History of Chimney-sweepers," and another instance of the way in which humanity glides back to an old cruelty. And so long as the matter is left simply to the hands of a jury to award damages for any heartless "gentleman in black" who is careless of the instrument he uses, whether he be jested like a fribble or a poor little piece of humanity aged seven, so long will this barbarous cruelty be practised.

It is impossible now, without a sneer, to say how much of this is meant or effected by diplomacy. The "grand old law, the simple plan, that he should take who has the power, and he should keep who can," has for some time obtained in European councils. Nobody does seem strange—does it not?—that immediately after Alexandra, the Norseman's daughter, Bride of the Sea, should have become the mother of our future Kings, that her father's territory should have been quietly wiped off the map of Europe. Perhaps it was quite, but a very little would do it now. And, true to the spirit of antiquity, and following up the example set by our own Edward on the citizens of Calais, Frederick William of Prussia instructs his Field Marshal to send him the wood Danish citizens as "hostages," who are to be held until the Danes have paid 160,000 Prussian thalers for having defended the Duchies of Lauenburg and the Capital de Buch—spirits of free lances and Rhine robbers—ghosts of Dick Turpin, Claude Duval, and Captain Macheath—how you must rejoice at this return to the good old times!

While we are playing the waiting game and really doing nothing, at Vienna they smash even that nothing with interest. The Gut Gesinnte Post is quite disturbed at the visit of the Prince of Wales to Garibaldi. It indulges in these deep words:—"The demonstration made by the representatives of the Monarchical principle towards the representative of European revolutionary cause simply from which it is impossible to guard oneself, because the danger is not patent but subterranean, silent." Very much so indeed: an admiration for unselfish heroism and a youthful curiosity must carry with them "subterranean danger." Humanity, indeed, has been not the least used to say that the true source of danger with Governments lay, not in wise progress, but in unwise repression; and we know that "subterranean" danger is only another name for cause causing. Indeed, the shock of one may soon be felt at Vienna.

Persistence of a safe course is wise, no doubt; but if it be wise it is very unpleasant, and the whole country chafes at our policy of non-intervention. Nay, we have even a voice from New York, and none other than that of the redoubtable "Manhattan," shrieking loudly for intervention. With Fort Fisher in the hands of Federals dominated; Federal mass sunk; with General Banks terribly defeated, and, in spite of all those clever financial dodges so happily explained by the Economist, with gold up to 179, the Northern half of "Uncle Sam" would be very glad for a protector to give over. It is quite conceivable that the cat worn will never form a juncture, and that the two halves had better wriggle themselves into two lively entireties.

Carnival season at Turnham-green is over, though the mud refuses the opportunity of letting his hands know that he thought it highly improper for Protestant Bishops to wear Roman petticoats. But what is bad for the shepherd is bad for the flock: what is bad for a Bishop is a Rector: if for a Rector, why not for a Curate? In the clergy, then for the laity: so, by implication, we are all tarred with the same stick. We have nothing to answer to the charge. We should, however, be happy to know that the Pope and Garibaldi have quite agreed in common. The latter has written to the "Holy Father," Noble people of England, desert not Poland!" and the successor of Peter has just made answer, "Noble people of England, the Holy Father is not, however, so much grieved for the corporal as for the spiritual sufferings of his Polish children, and has uttered, perhaps, his last warning words to the Russian Emperor, against that which the Emperor of Russia was converting the Poles to the Greek Church!" Surely this is an old case of the pot and kettle.

The National Shakspeare Committee have, we find, withdrawn their advertisements, as we, then, have done our "Echoes" about the "Green Park." In the national statue dwindled down to a decrepit pot, an ambitious wriggler, like Mr. Peter Cunningham, can only wriggle to rage, and worry crooked of its sort? Forbid it, ye delegates! The public is ready for, attends its performances, and subscribes handsomely besides; rally the whole committee, noble chairman, secretaries and all! and round the hall to England's glorious dead, whose busts and sculptors are frantic, the stonecutters in the New-road in despair. Let us at least have a small statue and a memorial placed on the site of the Globe or Blackfriars' theatres, a site which the London and Chatham Railway has opened up.

Amongst the curiosities of Shakspearean literature which will have to be added to the new edition of Lowndes's "Bibliographers Manual," and to the Shakspeare volumes of the Museum, we must place the new sermons on Shakspeare: one by an archbishop; a second by a bishop; a third, a very remarkable discourse, by Dr. Vaughan, the Rugby, the pulpit once occupied by John Angell James; and a fourth by George Dawson, M.A. All four are published by Longman, and another Dissenter shirks the proper and fit laudation of the playwright, and all insist upon the partial inspiration of Shakspeare. Why, Dale's text—"The inspiration of the Almighty giveth them understanding"—was handled with tact as well as force; and his sermon is really remarkable as being a sermon, and not a lecture on the name of a play or a player would have been considered politic. tion. Spurious of Hymns and Collects, and Prayers, by Dr. Dawson, whether are we hastening? Why, we are absolutely growing charitable towards each other.

Two strange visitors, and neither an unwelcome guest, have made their appearance in our river, and have been the talk of the town, and of the by the hunter for newspaper paragraphs, but also by our scientific friends who are interested in the general prolificness of production from the rivers and the sea. One of these visitors was a porpoise, which had started so far up as Battersea Reach, and must have been important one was a salmon of thirteen pounds weight, which was feeling at Black-wall. Salmon in the Thames! Rejoice, O joy of Frank Buckland and his brother anglers. Picture the pleasure on the face of Mr. Ashley when he learns that the salmon is supposed to have been one of many artificially propagated by him! Let us not be selfish in the time very distant—a chance of salmon-fishing from Battersea Reach, or even from the waters of Westminster Bridge. Let us trust that these hopes will not be disappointed.

Mr. Dickens begins to publish with the 44th page, in the third number of his new story, "the son of the popular phrase Our Mutual Friend, as the title of his book." Mr. Dickens has many imitators, anxious and excitable critics, who know so much better than the author, will please to remain silent. It is true that the American publisher was about to alter the title into that of "Our Common Friend;" but, to stop the impertinence of criticism, the author has put Edward Lintot and Jacob Tonson, in their day, rode over their authors on excessively high horses. But we do not hear of their altering the authors titles, nor of debating with the public whether the new poem should be called. As the question of copyright—like that of punishment of death—is about to be debated, could it not be possible to treat brainwork like any other work, and raise the status of the worker a little bit? Is there nothing ever to be done by England for the authors who have done so much for her?

Mr. Robert Browning, our most best poet, and in the eyes of some our best, is about to issue a new volume of poems; and his publishers have already put forward a capital volume of selections from his works. Incomplete books are not always to be commended; but in this case good service has been done. The "Ring and the Book," Hall, Browning being deep and mystic enough not to suffer by selection. It would be as well if the like work were done with the poetry of his wife, Mrs. Barrett Browning.

CHESS.

TO CORRESPONDENTS.

CAPE DE HOUP, Bingor.—The question you require shall be given in our next.

J. W. Dingle.—Your problem has been received, and is a decided improvement on your previous effort.

We have so many means of reference in the office that it is unnecessary to send us the second diagram to any position in the ordinary list.

H. D. Lyon.—Your solution is correct.

R. D. Brien.—Your problem is very pretty in conception and pure. We will endeavour to find out the author if you can furnish us with a few more stanzas.

Mr. Wormald.—Your problem is ingenious, but the key is somewhat obvious. 2. To the 3. Certainly; problem solutions are received in the Black King on a writing square. He should stand on the White King's 4th.

Correct Solutions of Problem No. 1050 have been received from Mr. W. T. Pilley, Bradford, A. F. Stocker, Exeter, C. D. Darling, D. H. L. W. S., Philo, Plymouth, Q. E. D., Ben and Son, Gosforth, C. T. Blandford, Dublin, Rev. W. P. D., Fifth M. P., A. Forsbrook, Derby, Rev. J. Wayte, Cambridge, Rev. Winfield, Ryde, F. G. T. Carmichael, Ramsbur, R. G. Fisher, Lancaster, Theophile, Frome, F. F. S., Spring Grove, Isleworth, Rev. J. Owen, Aberystwith, Rev. J. Hall, Jun., Kirkby Lonsdale, Rev. J. Fyfe, Aberdeen, Rev. J. Hall, Sen., Kirkby Lonsdale, J. Vernon, Bramley, R. W. S., F. Q. S., Bruno, T. W., Jubilee, L. M., Bolton, S. M., Fenestella, Rev. W. R. C., Rev. W. Fowler, Trumpington, Rev. J. Crake, Asby Parva, Rev. W. A. M., Rev. H. Bellers, Eltham, Rev. J. C. T., Rugby, Perth, W. M., Rev. R. Fleming, Quilts, Miss White, Surrey, Fred, Cork, and W. Ridley. All others are wrong.

SOLUTION TO PROBLEM No. 1052.

WHITE.	BLACK.
1. B to Q 4th	1. Any move
2. (if No. 1 Q to Q 4th, replies with 2 Q or B mate, &c.)

SOLUTION OF PROBLEM No. 1053.

WHITE.	BLACK.
1. Kt to Q 6th	Any move
2. If K takes B, or moves	K takes B or (2. Q or B mate)
3. If B takes B, then before	3. Q or B mate.

PROBLEM No. 1054.

By the Rev. G. A'BECKETT, M.A.

BLACK.

WHITE.

White, playing first, mates in four moves.

MR. MORPHY IN HAVANNAH.

We had room last month only to publish three games played by the American champion, blindfold, at the dinner given him in Havannah. The following is the third given consisted on that occasion:—

(Philidor's Defence.)

WHITE (Mr. M.)	BLACK (Mr. Encinas.)	WHITE (Mr. M.)	BLACK (Mr. Sicre.)
1. P to K 4th	P to K 4th	17. Kt takes B P (ch)	Q takes B
2. Kt to K B 3rd	Q Kt to B 3rd	18. Q to K 3rd (ch)	K to B 2nd
3. P to Q 4th	P takes P	19. Kt to Q 7th (ch)	K to Kt 3rd
4. Kt to K 5th	P to K R 3rd	20. P takes Q P	Q to Q 4th
5. B to Q 3rd	P to Q 4th	(Mr. Morphy and Dr. Encinas, who have

(Messrs Morphy and Dr. Encinas, who have played many games together, have agreed to consider it equivalent to that on the 3rd move of the defence at the present crisis is a. Kt to K B 3rd. b. P to K 5th. c. B to Q 3rd. d. Kt to Q 2nd, according to their analysis, conclusive to an ultimate win.)

6. P takes P	P to Q B 3rd	21. K to B 2nd	B to K 3rd
7. Castles	P takes P	22. Kt to K 6th	Kt to K B 3rd
8. P to Q B 3rd	P to K B 4th	23. B takes Kt	Q takes B (ch)
9. Kt takes P	P to K Kt 4th	24. B to Q R 8th	K Kt to Q 2nd
10. P to K 6th	P to K R 3rd	25. Q to K 3rd	Q to K 3rd
11. Q Kt to Q B 3rd	P to K Kt 5th	26. Q to K Kt 3rd	Q Kt to K 3rd
12. P to K 7th	P takes Kt	27. Q to K 5th	Q Kt to K B 4th

(This is generally admitted to be the easiest defensive move at the second player's command.)

13. P takes P (ch)	K to Q 2nd	28. Q takes Q P	P to Q Kt 3rd
14. B to Q Kt 5th	Castles	29. B takes P	B takes Q P
15. Castles	K to K R 2nd	30. Q R to K B 8th	Q to Q 3rd
16. Kt to Q B 3rd	P takes P	(A mistake, which costs him the "queen's"
17. Kt to K 4th	B to K 3rd	game.)
18. Q to K 3rd	P to K B 3rd	31. Q to Q B 6th (ch)	K to R sq
19. P to K R 3rd	Q to K 2nd	32. Q to K 6th (ch)	K to Kt sq
20. Q to K B 2nd	Q R to K B 4th	33. Q to Q B 6th (ch)	K to R sq
21. P to K Kt 4th	Q R to K B 3rd	34. Q to Q 6th	Q to Q B 3rd
22. P to Q 4th	B to Q Kt 3rd	35. Q to K 6th	Q to Q 3rd

CHESS IN LONDON.

An elegant little Game played between Mr. HOWARD TAYLOR and Mr. CANNINGS. (Queen's Pawn.)

WHITE (Mr. J.)	BLACK (Mr. T.)	WHITE (Mr. J.)	BLACK (Mr. T.)
1. P to K 4th	P to K 4th	in his adversary. Had he taken the Bishop,
2. P to Q 4th	P takes P	the result, as it stands, looks very fla-
3. B to Q B 4th	P to Q B 4th	grantly against him.
4. P to K 5th	P to Q 4th	11. Kt takes B	K takes Kt
5. B to K Kt 5th	P to Q 3rd	(He has any better move.)
6. P to K B 3rd	P to K R 3rd	12. Q to Q B 4th (ch)	K to K B 2nd
7. B to K R 4th	P to K Kt 4th	13. K to K R 3rd	Q to K 2nd
8. Q takes Q Kt P	Kt to Q B 4th	and Black, after some complexity, re-
9. B to K B 2nd	Kt to K 2nd	mains with a Pawn and Kt for Rook, with his
10. Q takes Kt	Q R to K sq	Queen and main point secure.
(Black now commences a series of attacks upon the adverse King—an attack which		14. Q to K Kt 3rd	K Kt to K B 3rd
11. Kt to Q 6th	B to K 3rd	(He should have played Q R to K B 4th—
12. Kt to Q 2nd	B to K 2nd	threatening mate in three moves. To avert
16. Kt to Q B 4th	Kt to K Kt 3rd (ch)	this move White must have sacrificed his
17. Kt to K 3rd	P to K B 4th	Queen for a Rook and Kt.)
18. Kt takes B	P to K B 5th	22. Q to Q Kt 6th	P to K R 3rd
(Gives back, we apprehend, but it leads to		24. Q to K Kt 4th	P to Q B 3rd some pretty attacks.)		(Very cleverly executed.)
19. Kt to K 2nd	P takes B	25. Q to K B 5th (ch)	K to K Kt 2nd
20. It takes P		26. K to K 2nd	K to K R 3rd
(Because apparent losses to have conse-		27. Kt to K Kt 4th (ch)	takes Kt lucked an opportunity of forcing the tables!)		28. Q takes B and Black now gave mate in three moves.

NAVAL AND MILITARY INTELLIGENCE.

WAR OFFICE.

9th Lancers: Cornet C. Agnew and E. P. Mackenzie to be Lieutenants; Evelyn H. Wodehouse and A. Cavly to be Cornets.

11th Hussars: Cornet T. Unett to be Captain; Cornet A. O. Hughes to be Lieutenant; J. Stuart to be Cornet.

4th Foot: Lieut. W. T. Butler to be Captain; Evelyn M. Lidwell to be Lieutenant; H. B. Hamilton to be Ensign.

7th Foot: Lieut. H. T. Parker to be Captain; Lieut. W. Whalley to be Adjutant; 14th Sergt. Major J. Mellor to be Quartermaster; 19th Lieut. J. Ivory and Ensign R. H. Dunning to be Lieutenants; Ensign C. Lowe to be Lieutenant; Ensign A. Lowe to be Captain; Ensign G. Fraser to be Lieutenant; J. G. Donaldson to be Ensign; 42nd H. Hall to be Ensign; 51st Quartermaster Sergt. J. Hall to be Quartermaster; 54th Ensign H. Hall to be Ensign; 57th Quartermaster Sergt. J. Hall to be Quartermaster; 60th Ensign H. Hall to be Ensign; 61st Quartermaster Sergt. J. Hall to be Quartermaster; 63rd Ensign H. Hall to be Ensign; 64th Quartermaster Sergt. J. Hall to be Quartermaster; 65th Ensign H. Hall to be Ensign; 66th Quartermaster Sergt. J. Hall to be Quartermaster; 67th Ensign H. Hall to be Ensign; 68th Quartermaster Sergt. J. Hall to be Quartermaster; 69th Ensign H. Hall to be Ensign; 70th Quartermaster Sergt. J. Hall to be Quartermaster; 71st Ensign H. Hall to be Ensign; 72nd Quartermaster Sergt. J. Hall to be Quartermaster; 73rd Ensign H. Hall to be Ensign; 74th Quartermaster Sergt. J. Hall to be Quartermaster; 75th Ensign H. Hall to be Ensign; 76th Quartermaster Sergt. J. Hall to be Quartermaster; 77th Ensign H. Hall to be Ensign; 78th Quartermaster Sergt. J. Hall to be Quartermaster; 79th Ensign H. Hall to be Ensign; 80th Quartermaster Sergt. J. Hall to be Quartermaster; 81st Ensign H. Hall to be Ensign; 82nd Quartermaster Sergt. J. Hall to be Quartermaster; 83rd Ensign H. Hall to be Ensign; 84th Quartermaster Sergt. J. Hall to be Quartermaster; 85th Ensign H. Hall to be Ensign; 86th Quartermaster Sergt. J. Hall to be Quartermaster; 87th Ensign H. Hall to be Ensign; 88th Quartermaster Sergt. J. Hall to be Quartermaster; 89th Ensign H. Hall to be Ensign; 90th Quartermaster Sergt. J. Hall to be Quartermaster; 91st Ensign H. Hall to be Ensign; 92nd Quartermaster Sergt. J. Hall to be Quartermaster; 93rd Ensign H. Hall to be Ensign; 94th Quartermaster Sergt. J. Hall to be Quartermaster; 95th Ensign H. Hall to be Ensign; 96th Quartermaster Sergt. J. Hall to be Quartermaster; 97th Ensign H. Hall to be Ensign; 98th Quartermaster Sergt. J. Hall to be Quartermaster; 99th Ensign H. Hall to be Ensign; 100th Quartermaster Sergt. J. Hall to be Quartermaster; 101st Ensign H. Hall to be Ensign; 102nd Quartermaster Sergt. J. Hall to be Quartermaster; 103rd Ensign H. Hall to be Ensign; 104th Quartermaster Sergt. J. Hall to be Quartermaster; 105th Ensign H. Hall to be Ensign; 106th Quartermaster Sergt. J. Hall to be Quartermaster; 107th Ensign H. Hall to be Ensign; 108th Quartermaster Sergt. J. Hall to be Quartermaster; 109th Ensign H. Hall to be Ensign; 110th Quartermaster Sergt. J. Hall to be Quartermaster; 111th Ensign H. Hall to be Ensign; 112th Quartermaster Sergt. J. Hall to be Quartermaster; 113th Ensign H. Hall to be Ensign; 114th Quartermaster Sergt. J. Hall to be Quartermaster; 115th Ensign H. Hall to be Ensign; 116th Quartermaster Sergt. J. Hall to be Quartermaster; 117th Ensign H. Hall to be Ensign; 118th Quartermaster Sergt. J. Hall to be Quartermaster; 119th Ensign H. Hall to be Ensign; 120th Quartermaster Sergt. J. Hall to be Quartermaster; 121st Ensign H. Hall to be Ensign; 122nd Quartermaster Sergt. J. Hall to be Quartermaster; 123rd Ensign H. Hall to be Ensign; 124th Quartermaster Sergt. J. Hall to be Quartermaster; 125th Ensign H. Hall to be Ensign; 126th Quartermaster Sergt. J. Hall to be Quartermaster; 127th Ensign H. Hall to be Ensign; 128th Quartermaster Sergt. J. Hall to be Quartermaster; 129th Ensign H. Hall to be Ensign; 130th Quartermaster Sergt. J. Hall to be Quartermaster; 131st Ensign H. Hall to be Ensign; 132nd Quartermaster Sergt. J. Hall to be Quartermaster; 133rd Ensign H. Hall to be Ensign; 134th Quartermaster Sergt. J. Hall to be Quartermaster; 135th Ensign H. Hall to be Ensign; 136th Quartermaster Sergt. J. Hall to be Quartermaster; 137th Ensign H. Hall to be Ensign; 138th Quartermaster Sergt. J. Hall to be Quartermaster; 139th Ensign H. Hall to be Ensign; 140th Quartermaster Sergt. J. Hall to be Quartermaster; 141st Ensign H. Hall to be Ensign; 142nd Quartermaster Sergt. J. Hall to be Quartermaster; 143rd Ensign H. Hall to be Ensign; 144th Quartermaster Sergt. J. Hall to be Quartermaster; 145th Ensign H. Hall to be Ensign; 146th Quartermaster Sergt. J. Hall to be Quartermaster; 147th Ensign H. Hall to be Ensign; 148th Quartermaster Sergt. J. Hall to be Quartermaster; 149th Ensign H. Hall to be Ensign; 150th Quartermaster Sergt. J. Hall to be Quartermaster; 151st Ensign H. Hall to be Ensign; 152nd Quartermaster Sergt. J. Hall to be Quartermaster; 153rd Ensign H. Hall to be Ensign; 154th Quartermaster Sergt. J. Hall to be Quartermaster; 155th Ensign H. Hall to be Ensign; 156th Quartermaster Sergt. J. Hall to be Quartermaster; 157th Ensign H. Hall to be Ensign; 158th Quartermaster Sergt. J. Hall to be Quartermaster; 159th Ensign H. Hall to be Ensign; 160th Quartermaster Sergt. J. Hall to be Quartermaster; 161st Ensign H. Hall to be Ensign; 162nd Quartermaster Sergt. J. Hall to be Quartermaster; 163rd Ensign H. Hall to be Ensign; 164th Quartermaster Sergt. J. Hall to be Quartermaster; 165th Ensign H. Hall to be Ensign; 166th Quartermaster Sergt. J. Hall to be Quartermaster; 167th Ensign H. Hall to be Ensign; 168th Quartermaster Sergt. J. Hall to be Quartermaster; 169th Ensign H. Hall to be Ensign; 170th Quartermaster Sergt. J. Hall to be Quartermaster; 171st Ensign H. Hall to be Ensign; 172nd Quartermaster Sergt. J. Hall to be Quartermaster; 173rd Ensign H. Hall to be Ensign; 174th Quartermaster Sergt. J. Hall to be Quartermaster; 175th Ensign H. Hall to be Ensign; 176th Quartermaster Sergt. J. Hall to be Quartermaster; 177th Ensign H. Hall to be Ensign; 178th Quartermaster Sergt. J. Hall to be Quartermaster; 179th Ensign H. Hall to be Ensign; 180th Quartermaster Sergt. J. Hall to be Quartermaster; 181st Ensign H. Hall to be Ensign; 182nd Quartermaster Sergt. J. Hall to be Quartermaster; 183rd Ensign H. Hall to be Ensign; 184th Quartermaster Sergt. J. Hall to be Quartermaster; 185th Ensign H. Hall to be Ensign; 186th Quartermaster Sergt. J. Hall to be Quartermaster; 187th Ensign H. Hall to be Ensign; 188th Quartermaster Sergt. J. Hall to be Quartermaster; 189th Ensign H. Hall to be Ensign; 190th Quartermaster Sergt. J. Hall to be Quartermaster; 191st Ensign H. Hall to be Ensign; 192nd Quartermaster Sergt. J. Hall to be Quartermaster; 193rd Ensign H. Hall to be Ensign; 194th Quartermaster Sergt. J. Hall to be Quartermaster; 195th Ensign H. Hall to be Ensign; 196th Quartermaster Sergt. J. Hall to be Quartermaster; 197th Ensign H. Hall to be Ensign; 198th Quartermaster Sergt. J. Hall to be Quartermaster; 199th Ensign H. Hall to be Ensign; 200th Quartermaster Sergt. J. Hall to be Quartermaster; 201st Ensign H. Hall to be Ensign; 202nd Quartermaster Sergt. J. Hall to be Quartermaster; 203rd Ensign H. Hall to be Ensign; 204th Quartermaster Sergt. J. Hall to be Quartermaster; 205th Ensign H. Hall to be Ensign; 206th Quartermaster Sergt. J. Hall to be Quartermaster; 207th Ensign H. Hall to be Ensign; 208th Quartermaster Sergt. J. Hall to be Quartermaster; 209th Ensign H. Hall to be Ensign; 210th Quartermaster Sergt. J. Hall to be Quartermaster; 211th Ensign H. Hall to be Ensign; 212th Quartermaster Sergt. J. Hall to be Quartermaster; 213th Ensign H. Hall to be Ensign; 214th Quartermaster Sergt. J. Hall to be Quartermaster; 215th Ensign H. Hall to be Ensign; 216th Quartermaster Sergt. J. Hall to be Quartermaster; 217th Ensign H. Hall to be Ensign; 218th Quartermaster Sergt. J. Hall to be Quartermaster; 219th Ensign H. Hall to be Ensign; 220th Quartermaster Sergt. J. Hall to be Quartermaster; 221st Ensign H. Hall to be Ensign; 222nd Quartermaster Sergt. J. Hall to be Quartermaster; 223rd Ensign H. Hall to be Ensign; 224th Quartermaster Sergt. J. Hall to be Quartermaster; 225th Ensign H. Hall to be Ensign; 226th Quartermaster Sergt. J. Hall to be Quartermaster; 227th Ensign H. Hall to be Ensign; 228th Quartermaster Sergt. J. Hall to be Quartermaster; 229th Ensign H. Hall to be Ensign; 230th Quartermaster Sergt. J. Hall to be Quartermaster; 231st Ensign H. Hall to be Ensign; 232nd Quartermaster Sergt. J. Hall to be Quartermaster; 233rd Ensign H. Hall to be Ensign; 234th Quartermaster Sergt. J. Hall to be Quartermaster; 235th Ensign H. Hall to be Ensign; 236th Quartermaster Sergt. J. Hall to be Quartermaster; 237th Ensign H. Hall to be Ensign; 238th Quartermaster Sergt. J. Hall to be Quartermaster; 239th Ensign H. Hall to be Ensign; 240th Quartermaster Sergt. J. Hall to be Quartermaster; 241st Ensign H. Hall to be Ensign; 242nd Quartermaster Sergt. J. Hall to be Quartermaster; 243rd Ensign H. Hall to be Ensign; 244th Quartermaster Sergt. J. Hall to be Quartermaster; 245th Ensign H. Hall to be Ensign; 246th Quartermaster Sergt. J. Hall to be Quartermaster; 247th Ensign H. Hall to be Ensign; 248th Quartermaster Sergt. J. Hall to be Quartermaster; 249th Ensign H. Hall to be Ensign; 250th Quartermaster Sergt. J. Hall to be Quartermaster; 251st Ensign H. Hall to be Ensign; 252nd Quartermaster Sergt. J. Hall to be Quartermaster; 253rd Ensign H. Hall to be Ensign; 254th Quartermaster Sergt. J. Hall to be Quartermaster; 255th Ensign H. Hall to be Ensign; 256th Quartermaster Sergt. J. Hall to be Quartermaster; 257th Ensign H. Hall to be Ensign; 258th Quartermaster Sergt. J. Hall to be Quartermaster; 259th Ensign H. Hall to be Ensign; 260th Quartermaster Sergt. J. Hall to be Quartermaster; 261st Ensign H. Hall to be Ensign; 262nd Quartermaster Sergt. J. Hall to be Quartermaster; 263rd Ensign H. Hall to be Ensign; 264th Quartermaster Sergt. J. Hall to be Quartermaster; 265th Ensign H. Hall to be Ensign; 266th Quartermaster Sergt. J. Hall to be Quartermaster; 267th Ensign H. Hall to be Ensign; 268th Quartermaster Sergt. J. Hall to be Quartermaster; 269th Ensign H. Hall to be Ensign; 270th Quartermaster Sergt. J. Hall to be Quartermaster; 271st Ensign H. Hall to be Ensign; 272nd Quartermaster Sergt. J. Hall to be Quartermaster; 273rd Ensign H. Hall to be Ensign; 274th Quartermaster Sergt. J. Hall to be Quartermaster; 275th Ensign H. Hall to be Ensign; 276th Quartermaster Sergt. J. Hall to be Quartermaster; 277th Ensign H. Hall to be Ensign; 278th Quartermaster Sergt. J. Hall to be Quartermaster; 279th Ensign H. Hall to be Ensign; 280th Quartermaster Sergt. J. Hall to be Quartermaster; 281st Ensign H. Hall to be Ensign; 282nd Quartermaster Sergt. J. Hall to be Quartermaster; 283rd Ensign H. Hall to be Ensign; 284th Quartermaster Sergt. J. Hall to be Quartermaster; 285th Ensign H. Hall to be Ensign; 286th Quartermaster Sergt. J. Hall to be Quartermaster; 287th Ensign H. Hall to be Ensign; 288th Quartermaster Sergt. J. Hall to be Quartermaster; 289th Ensign H. Hall to be Ensign; 290th Quartermaster Sergt. J. Hall to be Quartermaster; 291st Ensign H. Hall to be Ensign; 292nd Quartermaster Sergt. J. Hall to be Quartermaster; 293rd Ensign H. Hall to be Ensign; 294th Quartermaster Sergt. J. Hall to be Quartermaster; 295th Ensign H. Hall to be Ensign; 296th Quartermaster Sergt. J. Hall to be Quartermaster; 297th Ensign H. Hall to be Ensign; 298th Quartermaster Sergt. J. Hall to be Quartermaster; 299th Ensign H. Hall to be Ensign; 300th Quartermaster Sergt. J. Hall to be Quartermaster; 301st Ensign H. Hall to be Ensign; 302nd Quartermaster Sergt. J. Hall to be Quartermaster; 303rd Ensign H. Hall to be Ensign; 304th Quartermaster Sergt. J. Hall to be Quartermaster; 305th Ensign H. Hall to be Ensign; 306th Quartermaster Sergt. J. Hall to be Quartermaster; 307th Ensign H. Hall to be Ensign; 308th Quartermaster Sergt. J. Hall to be Quartermaster; 309th Ensign H. Hall to be Ensign; 310th Quartermaster Sergt. J. Hall to be Quartermaster; 311th Ensign H. Hall to be Ensign; 312th Quartermaster Sergt. J. Hall to be Quartermaster; 313th Ensign H. Hall to be Ensign; 314th Quartermaster Sergt. J. Hall to be Quartermaster; 315th Ensign H. Hall to be Ensign; 316th Quartermaster Sergt. J. Hall to be Quartermaster; 317th Ensign H. Hall to be Ensign; 318th Quartermaster Sergt. J. Hall to be Quartermaster; 319th Ensign H. Hall to be Ensign; 320th Quartermaster Sergt. J. Hall to be Quartermaster; 321st Ensign H. Hall to be Ensign; 322nd Quartermaster Sergt. J. Hall to be Quartermaster; 323rd Ensign H. Hall to be Ensign; 324th Quartermaster Sergt. J. Hall to be Quartermaster; 325th Ensign H. Hall to be Ensign; 326th Quartermaster Sergt. J. Hall to be Quartermaster; 327th Ensign H. Hall to be Ensign; 328th Quartermaster Sergt. J. Hall to be Quartermaster; 329th Ensign H. Hall to be Ensign; 330th Quartermaster Sergt. J. Hall to be Quartermaster; 331st Ensign H. Hall to be Ensign; 332nd Quartermaster Sergt. J. Hall to be Quartermaster; 333rd Ensign H. Hall to be Ensign; 334th Quartermaster Sergt. J. Hall to be Quartermaster; 335th Ensign H. Hall to be Ensign; 336th Quartermaster Sergt. J. Hall to be Quartermaster; 337th Ensign H. Hall to be Ensign; 338th Quartermaster Sergt. J. Hall to be Quartermaster; 339th Ensign H. Hall to be Ensign; 340th Quartermaster Sergt. J. Hall to be Quartermaster; 341st Ensign H. Hall to be Ensign; 342nd Quartermaster Sergt. J. Hall to be Quartermaster; 343rd Ensign H. Hall to be Ensign; 344th Quartermaster Sergt. J. Hall to be Quartermaster; 345th Ensign H. Hall to be Ensign; 346th Quartermaster Sergt. J. Hall to be Quartermaster; 347th Ensign H. Hall to be Ensign; 348th Quartermaster Sergt. J. Hall to be Quartermaster; 349th Ensign H. Hall to be Ensign; 350th Quartermaster Sergt. J. Hall to be Quartermaster; 351st Ensign H. Hall to be Ensign; 352nd Quartermaster Sergt. J. Hall to be Quartermaster; 353rd Ensign H. Hall to be Ensign; 354th Quartermaster Sergt. J. Hall to be Quartermaster; 355th Ensign H. Hall to be Ensign; 356th Quartermaster Sergt. J. Hall to be Quartermaster; 357th Ensign H. Hall to be Ensign; 358th Quartermaster Sergt. J. Hall to be Quartermaster; 359th Ensign H. Hall to be Ensign; 360th Quartermaster Sergt. J. Hall to be Quartermaster; 361st Ensign H. Hall to be Ensign; 362nd Quartermaster Sergt. J. Hall to be Quartermaster; 363rd Ensign H. Hall to be Ensign; 364th Quartermaster Sergt. J. Hall to be Quartermaster; 365th Ensign H. Hall to be Ensign; 366th Quartermaster Sergt. J. Hall to be Quartermaster; 367th Ensign H. Hall to be Ensign; 368th Quartermaster Sergt. J. Hall to be Quartermaster; 369th Ensign H. Hall to be Ensign; 370th Quartermaster Sergt. J. Hall to be Quartermaster; 371st Ensign H. Hall to be Ensign; 372nd Quartermaster Sergt. J. Hall to be Quartermaster; 373rd Ensign H. Hall to be Ensign; 374th Quartermaster Sergt. J. Hall to be Quartermaster; 375th Ensign H. Hall to be Ensign; 376th Quartermaster Sergt. J. Hall to be Quartermaster; 377th Ensign H. Hall to be Ensign; 378th Quartermaster Sergt. J. Hall to be Quartermaster; 379th Ensign H. Hall to be Ensign; 380th Quartermaster Sergt. J. Hall to be Quartermaster; 381st Ensign H. Hall to be Ensign; 382nd Quartermaster Sergt. J. Hall to be Quartermaster; 383rd Ensign H. Hall to be Ensign; 384th Quartermaster Sergt. J. Hall to be Quartermaster; 385th Ensign H. Hall to be Ensign; 386th Quartermaster Sergt. J. Hall to be Quartermaster; 387th Ensign H. Hall to be Ensign; 388th Quartermaster Sergt. J. Hall to be Quartermaster; 389th Ensign H. Hall to be Ensign; 390th Quartermaster Sergt. J. Hall to be Quartermaster; 391st Ensign H. Hall to be Ensign; 392nd Quartermaster Sergt. J. Hall to be Quartermaster; 393rd Ensign H. Hall to be Ensign; 394th Quartermaster Sergt. J. Hall to be Quartermaster; 395th Ensign H. Hall to be Ensign; 396th Quartermaster Sergt. J. Hall to be Quartermaster; 397th Ensign H. Hall to be Ensign; 398th Quartermaster Sergt. J. Hall to be Quartermaster; 399th Ensign H. Hall to be Ensign; 400th Quartermaster Sergt. J. Hall to be Quartermaster; 401st Ensign H. Hall to be Ensign; 402nd Quartermaster Sergt. J. Hall to be Quartermaster; 403rd Ensign H. Hall to be Ensign; 404th Quartermaster Sergt. J. Hall to be Quartermaster; 405th Ensign H. Hall to be Ensign; 406th Quartermaster Sergt. J. Hall to be Quartermaster; 407th Ensign H. Hall to be Ensign; 408th Quartermaster Sergt. J. Hall to be Quartermaster; 409th Ensign H. Hall to be Ensign; 410th Quartermaster Sergt. J. Hall to be Quartermaster; 411th Ensign H. Hall to be Ensign; 412th Quartermaster Sergt. J. Hall to be Quartermaster; 413th Ensign H. Hall to be Ensign; 414th Quartermaster Sergt. J. Hall to be Quartermaster; 415th Ensign H. Hall to be Ensign; 416th Quartermaster Sergt. J. Hall to be Quartermaster; 417th Ensign H. Hall to be Ensign; 418th Quartermaster Sergt. J. Hall to be Quartermaster; 419th Ensign H. Hall to be Ensign; 420th Quartermaster Sergt. J. Hall to be Quartermaster; 421st Ensign H. Hall to be Ensign; 422nd Quartermaster Sergt. J. Hall to be Quartermaster; 423rd Ensign H. Hall to be Ensign; 424th Quartermaster Sergt. J. Hall to be Quartermaster; 425th Ensign H. Hall to be Ensign; 426th Quartermaster Sergt. J. Hall to be Quartermaster; 427th Ensign H. Hall to be Ensign; 428th Quartermaster Sergt. J. Hall to be Quartermaster; 429th Ensign H. Hall to be Ensign; 430th Quartermaster Sergt. J. Hall to be Quartermaster; 431st Ensign H. Hall to be Ensign; 432nd Quartermaster Sergt. J. Hall to be Quartermaster; 433rd Ensign H. Hall to be Ensign; 434th Quartermaster Sergt. J. Hall to be Quartermaster; 435th Ensign H. Hall to be Ensign; 436th Quartermaster Sergt. J. Hall to be Quartermaster; 437th Ensign H. Hall to be Ensign; 438th Quartermaster Sergt. J. Hall to be Quartermaster; 439th Ensign H. Hall to be Ensign;

NEW MUSIC.

GRAZIELLA. A Musical Story. By J. J. LODGE. The Music by VINCENZA GRAZIELLA, Jun.; produced with the greatest success. Complete, handsomely bound, price 24 Illustrations.
Under the cultivated vine. Romance. (Tenor). — ss. 6d.
Though the tempest wild surrounds me. (Bass). — ss. 6d.
Farewell, my native land. (Soprano). — ss. 6d.
Farewell to beauty. Ballad. (Contralto). — ss. 6d.
The moment of parting. Duet. (Soprano and Tenor . . . ss. 6d.
A sailor's life. Barcarole. (Soprano) . . . ss. 6d.
Happy sailors. Finale. (Soprano, Tenor, and Bass) . . . ss. 6d.
The whole bound. Royal 8vo, price 7s. bound as 6d. each; 3s. the Set of Four Volumes. Illustrated Music Title. Four Parts.
METZLER and Co., 37, 38, 39, 33, and 29, Great Marlborough-street, W.

SUNG BY MISS. LIEBENSTRAUSS-GRUNBAUM.
SWEET NIGHTINGALE. By F. BENEDICTUS. The Song of the Season. Published in three Keys, price 24 Illustrations. Post-free, 18 stamps.
METZLER and Co., 37, 38, 39, 33, and 29, Great Marlborough-street, W.

SUNG BY MR. KENNEDY.
THE BREAK OF MORN. By E. LAND. Price 24 Illustrations.
METZLER and Co., 37, 38, 39, and 29, Great Marlborough-street, W.

THE AVON QUADRILLE. By F. BENEDICTUS. Played by all the Military Bands. Price 24 Illustrations.
METZLER and Co., 37, 38, 39, 33, and 29, Great Marlborough-street, W.

THE MAIDEN AND THE STREAMLET. A very pleasing Romance for the Piano. By H. W. GOODMAN. Price 24 Illustrations.
METZLER and Co., 37, 38, 33, and 29, Great Marlborough-street, W.

A NEW PIANOFORTE PIECE BY
H. W. GOODMAN.—JERSEY BELLE. THE GOLDEN. Arranged effectively without difficulties Price 24 Illustrations.
METZLER and Co., 37, 38, 33, and 29, Great Marlborough-street, W.

PLAYED BY THE COMPOSER.
LES PATINEURS. By F. BOSCOVITCH. The favourite Figures for the Pianoforte. Price 24 Illustrations.
METZLER and Co., 37, 38, 33, and 29, Great Marlborough-street, W.

MDME. DORY'S CHANT DU PATRIOT Song, sung by Mdme. Dory, in Paris, and by Miss Dolby, at the Monday Popular Concerts. Price 24 Illustrations.
METZLER and Co., 37, 38, 33, and 29, Great Marlborough-street, W.

SING, BRIDE, SING.—GANZ'S popular Song, sung by Mdme. Parepa with immense success. For Soprano or Contralto Voice. Price 24.
ENDER'S ultimate Transcription for Pianoforte Solo. Price 24.
ASHDOWN and PARRY, 18, Hanover-square.

GANZ'S QUI VIVE! Grand Galop. "One of the most pleasing and effective." — Sun. Illustrated London News of Music. Price 24 Stamps.
ASHDOWN and PARRY, 18, Hanover-square.

SYDNEY SMITH'S GOLDEN BELLS. A most attractive, elegant, and brilliant piece, destined to become as popular as "La Harpe Eolienne." Price 4s.
ASHDOWN and PARRY, 18, Hanover-square.

SYDNEY SMITH'S FAS REDOUBLE. A very spirited and highly effective martial piece. Played by the composer at the Crystal Palace. Price 4s.
ASHDOWN and PARRY, 18, Hanover-square.

SYDNEY SMITH'S UNE NUIT ÉTOILÉE. A melodious and charming serenade. One of the most successful pieces by this extremely popular composer. Price 4s.
ASHDOWN and PARRY, 18, Hanover-square.

SYDNEY SMITH'S MARTHA.—A new and brilliant piece on the best subject. Price 4s. Elegantly moulded and pleasing opera. Price 4s.
ASHDOWN and PARRY, 18, Hanover-square.

GARIBALDI'S TRIUMPHAL MARCH, for the Pianoforte. By STEPHEN GLOVER. Sent for 18 stamps. Also, Garibaldi's Triumphal March, Arranged as a Duet for the Pianoforte, played by all military bands.—DUFF and HODGSON, 65, Oxford-street.

NEW SONG—JESSY GRAY. By E. L. HIME. Sent for 18 stamps. One of the prettiest Ballads we have seen for some time. The melody is charming, and the words in a most interesting vein, making the whole singularly touching and effective.—DUFF and HODGSON, 65, Oxford-street.

PARFAIT AMOUR. Romance for the Piano. By E. L. HIME. Sent for 18 stamps. One of the most exquisite and captivating romances we have ever heard.—Review.—DUFF and HODGSON, 65, Oxford-street.

NEW MUSIC, QUARTER PRICE (Surplus Library Copies). A Catalogue of the same sent for two stamps. —DUFF and HODGSON, 65, Oxford-street, Manufacturing Stationers.

THE TRIBULATIONS OF LOVE AND MATRIMONY.
THE MATRIMONIAL GALOP. By FRANCIS CLIFFORD. Illustrated by CRUIKSHANK. Price 24 Stamps.
THE MATRIMONIAL GALOP. By A. BENEDICT, most fascinatingly illustrating the vicissitudes of Married Life. Price 24 Stamps. Illustrated Music Titles to Bellini's Sonnambula, Auber's Domino Noir, Balfe's Bohemian Girl, Verdi's Trovatore, and Beethoven. Post-free, 24 stamps.
CRUIKSHANK and CO., 27, Baker-street, Portman-square, W.

MUSIC, HALF PRICE and Post-free, and The Only Place of Sale. A Catalogue of Music of every Publisher furnished in any part of the kingdom, at half the published prices. Country Orders executed by return of post. Applications to be addressed Catalogues, New and Valuable Catalogue of all the most popular Music, Gratis and Post-free.—CRUIKSHANK and CO., 27, Baker-street, Portman-square, W.

60 GUINEA HARMONIUM for £30, by Alexandre (sole) patent, percussion action, 14 stops, two rows of vibrators, and knee swell of the finest instrument ever made. For immediate cash only.—27, Baker-street, Portman-square, W.

PIANOFORTES for HIRE, 14s. per Month. No time required if purchased in six months. The most economical and infallible mode of obtaining a really good pianoforte is to hire of CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street. Lists free.—CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street, Manufactory, 46, Wigmore-street, W. (opposite Mme. Tussaud's.)

THE COLLARD and COLLARD MODEL PIANOFORTE, 25 guineas, manufactured by COLLARD and COLLARD and CO., of 16, Soho-street, Portman-square, was minutely examined by the Jurors of Class 29, and was reported by them as "Good, strong, and pronounced by him to be such a Pianoforte as he could himself use." Price only 25 guineas net at 16 guineas.—Vide "Times" and "Illustrated London News" of April 30. Lists free.—COLLARD and COLLARD, 16, Soho-square, Portman-square, and Hollow Arm, carriage free, to any station in England.

CROQUET.—Two Prize Medals, 1862. JAMES TUCKETT'S GAMES, Manufacturer to the Royal Family, 6, Piccadilly, corner of Sackville-street. Croquet Lawns, Tennis Lawns, Archery, Cricket, Quoits, Rackets, Fives, Bagatelle, Skittles, Dumb-bells, Clubs, Foils, Boxing Gloves, Footballs, Cricket Balls, Bats, Stumps, Wickets, Nets, Tents, Marquees, Flags, Pennons, Flagstaffs, Chessmen, Chessboards, Backgammon Boards, Dominoes, Draughts, Cribbage Boards, Battledore and Shuttlecock, Battledores, Shuttlecocks, Balls, Rackets, Bows, Arrows, Targets, Guns, Pistols, Powder Flasks, Shot Belts, Gun Cases, Pistol Cases, Gun Covers, Gun Caps, Gun Wads, Gun Implements, Fishing Rods, Fishing Tackle, Fishing Baskets, Landing Nets, Fishing Stools, Fishing Boots, Fishing Shoes, Fishing Hats, Fishing Coats, Fishing Trousers, Fishing Jackets, Fishing Waistcoats, Fishing Gloves, Fishing Mittens, Fishing Caps, Fishing Stockings, Fishing Braces, Fishing Belts, Fishing Knives, Fishing Scissors, Fishing Pliers, Fishing Disgorgers, Fishing Weights, Fishing Lines, Fishing Flies, Fishing Reels, Fishing Rules, Fishing Books, Fishing Guides, Fishing Maps, Fishing Prints, Fishing Pictures, Fishing Tackle Boxes, Fishing Tackle Cases, Fishing Tackle Bags, Fishing Tackle Pouches, Fishing Tackle Wallets, Fishing Tackle Sundries, Fishing Tackle Repairs, Fishing Tackle Alterations, Fishing Tackle Improvements, Fishing Tackle Inventions, Fishing Tackle Patents, Fishing Tackle Trade Marks, Fishing Tackle Trade Secrets, Fishing Tackle Trade Mysteries, Fishing Tackle Trade Frauds, Fishing Tackle Trade Impostures, Fishing Tackle Trade Deceptions, Fishing Tackle Trade Delusions, Fishing Tackle Trade Snares, Fishing Tackle Trade Traps, Fishing Tackle Trade Pitfalls, Fishing Tackle Trade Gins, Fishing Tackle Trade Nets, Fishing Tackle Trade Lures, Fishing Tackle Trade Baits, Fishing Tackle Trade Hooks, Fishing Tackle Trade Lines, Fishing Tackle Trade Rods, Fishing Tackle Trade Reels, Fishing Tackle Trade Flies, Fishing Tackle Trade Books, Fishing Tackle Trade Guides, Fishing Tackle Trade Maps, Fishing Tackle Trade Prints, Fishing Tackle Trade Pictures, Fishing Tackle Trade Boxes, Fishing Tackle Trade Cases, Fishing Tackle Trade Bags, Fishing Tackle Trade Pouches, Fishing Tackle Trade Wallets, Fishing Tackle Trade Sundries, Fishing Tackle Trade Repairs, Fishing Tackle Trade Alterations, Fishing Tackle Trade Improvements, Fishing Tackle Trade Inventions, Fishing Tackle Trade Patents, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Marks, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Secrets, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Mysteries, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Frauds, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Impostures, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Deceptions, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Delusions, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Snares, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Traps, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Pitfalls, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Gins, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Nets, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Lures, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Baits, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Hooks, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Lines, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Rods, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Reels, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Flies, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Books, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Guides, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Maps, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Prints, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Pictures, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Boxes, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Cases, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Bags, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Pouches, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Wallets, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Sundries, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Repairs, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Alterations, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Improvements, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Inventions, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Patents, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Marks, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Secrets, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Mysteries, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Frauds, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Impostures, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Deceptions, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Delusions, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Snares, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Traps, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Pitfalls, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Gins, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Nets, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Lures, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Baits, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Hooks, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Lines, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Rods, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Reels, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Flies, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Books, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Guides, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Maps, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Prints, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Pictures, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Boxes, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Cases, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Bags, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Pouches, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Wallets, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Sundries, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Repairs, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Alterations, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Improvements, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Inventions, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Patents, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Marks, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Secrets, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Mysteries, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Frauds, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Impostures, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Deceptions, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Delusions, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Snares, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Traps, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Pitfalls, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Gins, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Nets, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Lures, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Baits, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Hooks, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Lines, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Rods, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Reels, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Flies, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Books, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Guides, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Maps, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Prints, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Pictures, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Boxes, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Cases, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Bags, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Pouches, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Wallets, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Sundries, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Repairs, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Alterations, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Improvements, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Inventions, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Patents, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Marks, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Secrets, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Mysteries, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Frauds, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Impostures, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Deceptions, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Delusions, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Snares, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Traps, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Pitfalls, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Gins, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Nets, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Lures, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Baits, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Hooks, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Lines, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Rods, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Reels, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Flies, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Books, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Guides, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Maps, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Prints, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Pictures, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Boxes, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Cases, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Bags, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Pouches, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Wallets, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Sundries, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Repairs, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Alterations, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Improvements, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Inventions, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Patents, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Marks, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Secrets, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Mysteries, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Frauds, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Impostures, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Deceptions, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Delusions, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Snares, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Traps, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Pitfalls, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Gins, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Nets, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Lures, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Baits, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Hooks, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Lines, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Rods, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Reels, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Flies, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Books, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Guides, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Maps, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Prints, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Pictures, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Boxes, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Cases, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Bags, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Pouches, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Wallets, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Sundries, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Repairs, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Alterations, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Improvements, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Inventions, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Patents, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Marks, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Secrets, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Mysteries, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Frauds, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Impostures, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Deceptions, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Delusions, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Snares, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Traps, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Pitfalls, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Gins, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Nets, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Lures, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Baits, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Hooks, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Lines, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Rods, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Reels, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Flies, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Books, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Guides, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Maps, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Prints, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Pictures, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Boxes, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Cases, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Bags, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Pouches, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Wallets, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Sundries, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Repairs, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Alterations, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Improvements, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Inventions, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Patents, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Marks, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Secrets, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Mysteries, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Frauds, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Impostures, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Deceptions, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Delusions, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Snares, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Traps, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Pitfalls, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Gins, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Nets, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Lures, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Baits, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Hooks, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Lines, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Rods, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Reels, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Flies, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Books, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Guides, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Maps, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Prints, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Pictures, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Boxes, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Cases, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Bags, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Pouches, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Wallets, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Sundries, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Repairs, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Alterations, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Improvements, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Inventions, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Patents, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Marks, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Secrets, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Mysteries, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Frauds, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Impostures, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Deceptions, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Delusions, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Snares, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Traps, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Pitfalls, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Gins, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Nets, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Lures, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Baits, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Hooks, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Lines, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Rods, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Reels, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Flies, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Books, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Guides, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Maps, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Prints, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Pictures, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Boxes, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Cases, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Bags, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Pouches, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Wallets, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Sundries, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Repairs, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Alterations, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Improvements, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Inventions, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Patents, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Marks, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Secrets, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Mysteries, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Frauds, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Impostures, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Deceptions, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Delusions, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Snares, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Traps, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Pitfalls, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Gins, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Nets, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Lures, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Baits, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Hooks, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Lines, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Rods, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Reels, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Flies, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Books, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Guides, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Maps, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Prints, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Pictures, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Boxes, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Cases, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Bags, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Pouches, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Wallets, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Sundries, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Repairs, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Alterations, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Improvements, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Inventions, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Patents, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Marks, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Secrets, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Mysteries, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Frauds, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Impostures, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Deceptions, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Delusions, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Snares, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Traps, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Pitfalls, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Gins, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Nets, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Lures, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Baits, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Hooks, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Lines, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Rods, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Reels, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Flies, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Books, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Guides, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Maps, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Prints, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Pictures, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Boxes, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Cases, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Bags, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Pouches, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Wallets, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Sundries, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Repairs, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Alterations, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Improvements, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Inventions, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Patents, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Marks, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Secrets, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Mysteries, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Frauds, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Impostures, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Deceptions, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Delusions, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Snares, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Traps, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Pitfalls, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Gins, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Nets, Fishing Tackle Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Trade Lures,

THE ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS.

No. 1259.—VOL. XLIV. SATURDAY, MAY 14, 1864. WITH A SUPPLEMENT, FIVEPENCE

THE INTERNATIONAL SITUATION.

RECENT occurrences and the new phase into which the vexed Danish question has passed have revived an interest in the subject which was much on the wane. When we say that the interest felt by the people of this country in this matter was fading, we do not mean to assert more than that they were beginning to feel the influence of a certain hopelessness in the diplomatic efforts of our Government, and by consequence a helplessness on the part of England to interfere in any way with effect. In such a case it was almost inevitable that a practical people should begin to think as little as possible about a question in which they believed they could produce no moral, and most certainly no material, effect. The Conference, brought together at last with so much difficulty, was fast assuming in our public opinion the character of a sham; and, with no little sorrow and mortification, Englishmen thought that, in their own capital, the counsels of their responsible Ministers were set at naught and their diplomatic action rendered of no avail by the representatives of Powers with whom England has hitherto scarcely condescended to measure herself. It was, therefore, a happy coincidence which enabled the Government almost at one and the same time to announce to Parliament that the first point in the negotiations of the Conference on which they had insisted had been at length ceded, that a suspension of hostilities between Denmark and the aggressive German Powers had been arranged, and that the Danes had been victorious over the Austrians in a naval engagement. To say the truth, the concession by the Conference is not a very large one; and it has been so managed that Denmark is made to stand relatively in a less advantageous position than her opponent, and that under circumstances in which, according to ordinary rules, the contending parties ought to have been placed in a situation of theoretical equality. Nor is the triumph of the Danish squadron so complete, or its achievement so decidedly brilliant, as to cause this affair to stand as a counterpoise to her reverses on land. Nevertheless, it is welcomed by a sympathising people like the English as a substantial proof of the prowess of the Danes, and it is keenly appreciated by a country like this, which is nothing if it is not naval. No doubt, this success of the Danes, let it be rated as it may, will give them weight in the Conference; and if they do not suffer themselves to be too much elated—if they will bear the honour they have won meekly, and remember that, whatever moral influence they may have thus gained, their material circumstances are practically unchanged—they may do much towards a peaceful and even a just and righteous settlement of a controversy which has too long occupied the attention, and now agitates and disturbs the quiet, of Europe.

Apart from the international question proper which has been involved in this Dano-German dispute, there have been raised in the mind of England considerations which may be designated as personal. It is probable that, when the consent of the Conference to the armistice was announced, there was with most of us a feeling that it was an event propitious to the Ministry, to which non-success in their conduct of this affair of foreign policy would have been fatal. It was with justice conceived that the fact that England was forced to stand by and witness proceedings in Denmark which she viewed with disapproval, if not with abhorrence, which she was unable to put a stop to, or even in the least degree to affect, was owing, if not exactly to the incapacity, at least to the want of that vigour in her Majesty's Government which could only be produced by unity of

READY TO MARCH. ONE OF THE 1ST REGIMENT ON THE LOOK-OUT.

DANISH INFANTRY SOLDIERS.—PHOTOGRAPHED FROM THE LIFE.—SEE PAGE 464.

FOREIGN AND COLONIAL NEWS.

FRANCE.

There was a fête on Sunday in the Tuileries gardens, under the personal patronage of their Majesties and the Prince Imperial. The entertainment was offered by the Prince to his youthful associates of the Children's Lent Concert, and to the boys of the Orphanage. The Emperor, Empress, and Princess Clotilde were present for more than an hour, and in the thickest of the crowd; and the noble host, the Prince Imperial, was among his guests from two till four. For the entertainment, all the "young people" living anywhere were provided. All the fantoccini, all the Punches, all the conjurers of the Champs Elysées were withdrawn for the day from that "Vanity Fair," and employed to delight the eyes of the rising generation. The whole street of stalls was sold—bonbons, chocolate, cakes, and "plaisirs," to fill their mouths.

The Corps Législatif is engaged in a debate on the Budget. It opens very coolly, as the Budget generally does, with a severe lecture from M. Thiers. He set forth the rise of the Budget under the Imperial system, from the commencement of the century, through the sixty millions that sufficed in the time of the Republic and the Citizen King, to the enormous figure, however, now reached of 1,600,000,000 francs. An army of 400,000 soldiers he considered barely sufficient for a peace establishment. He wound up with a magnificent declamation that, whatever offences might be laid to the charge of popular liberty, nothing could ever justify the Government in the attempt to provide a substitute for it. On Wednesday M. Rouher, President of the Council of State, delivered an eminently pacific speech. He declared that peace was in the hands of France, who would not disturb it unless her own honour was attacked; and he expressed his belief that a European congress, or some such idea, who would now be effected.

M. de Persigny, also, has made a pacific speech at an agricultural exhibition in the department of the Loire. The empire, he said, had emerged from a period of anarchy and enjoyed peace and order. It had made due to her in the concert of European nations, was about to enter on an era of peace. All it had to consider was how to enjoy the confidence of the Emperor, and as the speech is printed in the first page of the Moniteur, unusual importance is attached to these expressions.

Mustapha Pacha, brother of the Viceroy of Egypt and Prime Minister of the Sublime Porte, is now in Paris.

The remains of Meyerbeer were received with great pomp, on Thursday week, at the Northern Railway station, on their way to the Northern Railway station, there to proceed to Berlin.

The Paris Academy of Sciences has elected M. Adolphe Garnier, member of the Academy of Moral and Political Sciences, and professor of the Faculté de Droit.

The decision of the Court of Aix in the Arnaud case has been confirmed by the Court of Cassation. The Aix Court, it will be remembered, sentenced M. Arnaud to pay a heavy fine for alleged injuries to his servant, Maurice Roux, although a jury had pronounced the latter to be without guilt in the matter of which charges were brought.

A very extraordinary trial is proceeding in the Court of Assizes at Paris. The prisoner is Count de la Pommerais, a physician, and he is accused of the murder of Count de Bocarmé, brother of the wife of Mdme. Pauw, a lady whom he attended professionally; secondly, of the murder of Mdme. Pauw herself. The murder of Count Bocarmé is alleged for the first murder is that he had insured Mdme. Pauw's life for a very large sum, and had consequently a motive for it, while a law was to appropriate her fortune. The facts are of a highly sensational character.

Another poisoning case for the recreation of the population of Paris is being opened on the Buttes St. Chaumont.

A letter from Algiers states that the Chief Regisseur of infantry arrived there on Friday morning last, by three special trains from Paris. The Emperor issued a fête in honour of the event. At the Imperial gate, the men were embarked the same day on board the steam-frigates the Algérie and the Solferino for Algiers. Advices from Algeria state that the native cavalry, under the command of General Desvaux, had had an affair with the Kabyles, who belonging to the Hanen, one of the insurgent tribes. The General had succeeded in forming a junction with General Deligny. The forces of Goyville had been supplied with provisions, and was safe from attack.

SPAIN.

The Estimates were voted on Monday night at an extraordinary sitting of Congress.

The Council of Ministers has approved the bill regulating the right of public meeting introduced by the Minister of the Interior.

The Correspondencia of Madrid contains some details respecting the banquet of the Liberal Union. The number of persons who sat down to the party "a family breakfast," was composed of about 2000 persons. It was presided over by M. Olozaga, having on his right hand General Prim and on his left M. Pascal Madoz.

PORTUGAL.

The discussion on the home policy of the Government in the Turin Chamber of Deputies has concluded. The Chamber declared itself satisfied with the Ministerial explanations.

DENMARK AND GERMANY.

The Conference reassembled for the fourth time on Monday, at the official residence of Lord Wodehouse, Foreign Secretary, in Downing-street. All the Plenipotentiaries were present. The first business to be brought forward was the communication made by the French representatives of Denmark conveying the reply from their Government to the propositions which had been made at the previous Conference. The discussion lasted more than three hours. Ultimately it was resolved that the Conference should be adjourned to the end of one month, dating from the 12th inst. The suspension is to be observed on the part of Denmark and Germany in so far as land operations are concerned; but the blockade now enforced by the Danes is to be raised, and the same Power is to abstain from any new naval expedition. It is said that the Danish Government will allow Germans would desist from levying further war contributions; would release those of the inhabitants who had been taken as hostages, and would impose no further interference on the ordinary civil administration. The Conference reassembled on Thursday, at two o'clock. All the members were present.

While the negotiations of the belligerents and of the allied Powers were sitting in conference, a naval battle was being fought between the Danish and Austrian squadrons off the north coast of the former. The action took place on Monday afternoon, about six miles east of Heligoland. The Austrian squadron, which was engaged were the line-of-battle ship of the Germans, Austrian—Schwarzenberg, 50 guns, and the Radetzky, 39 guns; Prussian—the Arcona, 26 guns, and the Nymphe, 6 guns; Danish—the Jylland, 26. On the side of the Danes—the Niels Juel, 42 guns; the Heimdal, 16 guns; and the Hejmdal, 12 guns. The Schwarzenberg, flagship, was set on fire. She had 100 men killed and wounded, lost her foremast and bowsprit, and consequently her rudder was useless but the flames were extinguished by her crew. The Radetzky had twenty-two men killed and wounded; and the loss of the Austrian and Prussian squadron is said to have amounted to 170 men: but we are told that the Prussian vessels, immediately after the action, rejoined and formed the rest of the allied squadron—"have not sustained much injury." The Danish squadron returned into port at Heligoland Roads, within English jurisdiction, at nine o'clock on Monday night: but it subsequently sailed, and was seen cruising off Hornsby reef. Twenty-one victorious Danish ships, which are conjectured to have "also suffered severely," were proceeding in a northerly direction on Monday evening. The Austrians seemingly do not look upon the action in the light of a defeat, for Post-Captain Tegetthoff, who commanded the Austrian squadron, has been appointed Vice-Admiral by the Emperor, "in recognition of his brave exploit on the coast of Heligoland." Intelligence on Monday and Tuesday from Heligoland by submarine telegraph narrating the progress of the naval battle, and describing the position of the squadrons, is in the following order:—Sent from Heligoland at 12.25, received at 12.29; sent at 12.30, received at 12.34; sent at 12.40, received at 12.44; sent at 12.49, received at 11.50; sent at 12.53, received at 12.19.

The Danish Minister of Marine has published a notification raising the blockade of Prussian, Holstein, and Schleswig ports from the 25th inst. The Minister of Justice and of the Interior have recognised their posts in consequence of the suspension of the blockade, which they regard as an unjustifiable concession. It is asserted that the Minister of War also has tendered his resignation.

The Copenhagen papers are full of accounts of Prussian exactions and acts of tyranny in Jutland. It appears that Marshal Wrangel has imposed an additional requisition for five and two-third millions of rigsdalers upon landed property; and, adding insult to injury, the Germans have compelled the inhabitants in the neighbourhood of Fredericia to assist in demolishing the fortifications of that place. On the other hand, a popular meeting has been held at Tondeburg, at which resolutions were adopted in favour of an independent Schleswig-Holstein, and a vote of thanks was passed to the allied troops.

Her Royal Highness the Crown Princess of Prussia, upon the invitation of the Princess Louis of Hesse, arrived from Homburg. Royal Highnesses will return to Berlin in a few days.

The Fyhnen of Odense has published details on the manner in which the taking of Duppel was telegraphed to Berlin. Behind the last parallels which were taken a telegraphic station was set up which were wires in communication with Broacker, Gravenstein, and Berlin. To each attacking column and to each detachment of troops of artillery were attached an officer of the staff, who announced the forts as they took place, either himself or by orderlies sent to the Commander-in-Chief, who received by the field telegraph the intelligence sent out and forwarded to the chief of the telegraphic bureau. The latter sent them direct to Berlin, and they were received about 800 telegraphic despatches in the course of the day.

AMERICA.

The steamer City of Baltimore brings news from New York to the 30th ult. At that date neither General Lee nor General Grant had made any movement. Reinforcements were being strongly pressed from all quarters, and General Burnside was preparing to co-operate with General Grant. General Longstreet is reported to have taken up a position on the left of Lee's army.

The latest advices from the Red River expedition was admitted to have been more disastrous than the first accounts represented it to be; for it was stated that General Banks had lost 4000 prisoners, thirty guns, a great number of waggons, and 1,000,000 rounds. The Confederates were reported to be marching upon Grand Ecore, where his troops were concentrating.

The Confederates have achieved a success in North Carolina. On the 20th of April they captured Plymouth, which was garrisoned with 1500 prisoners and thirty guns. It was said that the Confederates captured their guns, ammunition, and stores, and over 150 negro soldiers after they had surrendered.

Of the latest Confederate account of news, it may be chronicled that President Lincoln has accepted the offer of the Governors of Wisconsin, Illinois, Indiana, Ohio, and Iowa, of 100,000 volunteers for a hundred days for fortification and frontier duty.

The import duties have been increased 50 per cent for sixty days.

A Cragg's Life Boat, which has already saved the lives of 300 persons, was launched at Cromer, on the coast of Norfolk, on Tuesday last.

The Senate of the State of New York had refused to take into consideration Governor Seymour's remonstrance against the resolution that the interest on the State debt shall be paid in gold.

The price of gold was greatly and constantly fluctuating in New York; but the latest quotations were 172 buying premium.

After a progressive existence of three weeks, the Great Sanitary Fair at New York was closed, and all the wounded soldiers and the widows and children of the slain, was brought to a close on the 23rd of April, with a total receipt of upwards of 1,100,000 dollars.

The American papers record the death of Mr. G. T. Tichnor, the famous Boston publisher.

A letter from Havana states that between November, 1861, and March 10, 1864, 425 attempts were made from that port alone to run the blockade and that 363 of these adventures proved successful.

ADVERTISEMENT

COUNTRY NEWS.

It has been determined to put a bell buoy on the Daunt rock, on which the City of New York was recently wrecked.

MR. F. W. PIXLEY, on Tuesday returned, without opposition, member of Parliament for the borough of Stockport, in the place of the late Mr. Arkwright.

The main chains of the Clifton Suspension-bridge were completed during the past week, and the work of attaching the rods and girders and platform to them will be proceeded forthwith.

It has been decided to make the experiment of a staff of salaried master fishermen at Scarborough and Liverpool. A salary has been offered to devote £1000 a year for three years to the object.

A farmer residing near Lincoln has an enormous number of 3700 pigs. He breeds and purchases to keep up his stock. One week he bought 400 pigs. They are fed on boiled corn.

The monthly report which is presented to the Lancashire District Pauil Committee for the information of the Queen's Commissioner of milk workhouses for the week ending April 30, shows a considerable decrease of milk workhouses for the week ending April 30, shows a considerable decrease of milk workhouses for the week ending April 30, shows a considerable decrease

METROPOLITAN NEWS.

We are requested to state that the gallery of pictures at Bridgewater House is open to the public, but not free library.

Mr. Bouricault's new piece, "The Fox Chase," was brought out on Wednesday night, at St. James's Theatre, with great success.

The Prince of Wales has consented to open the fete and bazaar which will be held in the Royal Horticultural Gardens, on June 21, in aid of the building fund of the Female School of Art, Queen-square.

The Prince of Wales will inspect the Hon. Artillery Company (of which his Royal Highness is Captain-General and Colonel) on Wednesday, June 29, at the Artillery Ground, Finsbury.

Mr. Mark Lemon gave a reading of his dramatic story "Mind Your Own Business," on Monday evening to a large audience in the Willis's Rooms Club, for the benefit of the Printers' Almshouse Society.

A lofty erection on the brick piers at the Bishop's-road Station on the Metropolitan Underground Railway on Monday morning. No lives were lost, and the materials which fell on the line were soon cleared away.

The season of the Royal London Yacht Club opened on Saturday last, under brilliant auspices, many dozen yachts assembling at the rendezvous. It was decided on the Saturday next that the fleet go to Gravesend. The company had a pleasant sail down, and dined at the Union Yacht Club-house, and could not be better entertained by their hosts.

At a recent meeting of the Court of Common Council a grant of 50 guineas was made to the fund for the erection of a memorial in Paris towards the erection of a free chapel for the operatives of Dupleix; 50 guineas to the City of London Hospital for diseases of the chest, Victoria Park; and 50 guineas out of the fund for the relief of the widows and orphans of Barking firemen.

The fifth anniversary of the meeting of the Society for the Encouragement of the Fine Arts was held on Wednesday, in the Gallery of the British Artists, Suffolk-street, when Mr. Wyld, M.P., took the chair. As a distraction of a musical entertainment was added that of the pictures with which the walls were decorated, and the exhibition was visited.

The Rev Mr. Spurgeon has been known to receive as many as 400 letters in a day. Many of these are anonymous, and on many the postage is not prepaid. The rev. gentleman refuses all the letter. One of these a short time ago, after having been in his pocket for a week, was opened by the next night in Mr. Spurgeon, with a statement that the letter was anonymous and therefore could not be returned to the writer, and that it contained a valuable leaflet. The rev. gentleman paid the postage, and found a £50 note in the letter.

The twenty-eighth anniversary dinner of the Metropolitan Free Hospital was held on Thursday evening, at the London Tavern, Mr. Gilpin, M.P., in the chair. This institution, was founded, in 1850, for the gratuitous relief of the sick poor of every creed and country, and is now in need of a letter of recommendation. The attendance of patients during the past year amounted to 97,000. The number of in-patients relieved in the course of the year exceeded 2,000. The total amount of donations and subscriptions announced during the evening amounted to £1,000.

Mr. Charles Dickens presided at a meeting held on Wednesday, at the Adelphi Theatre, for the purpose of establishing a Dramatic Fund Pension School in connection with the Dramatic College. It is proposed to establish a home and asylum for children, the orphans of the members of the profession, with a certain number of foundation scholars, according to the sum subscribed, to which the children of the members of the profession shall alone be eligible. There was a numerous attendance. Some gifts, amounting to £1,000, were announced, and the scheme, in every respect, in all its objects of the meeting, were unanimously carried. Subscriptions to a considerable amount were announced.

A fete of an extraordinary nature will be held on Friday and Saturday next, May 20 and 21, in the grounds of Knowsley, the seat of the Earl of Sutherland, at Chelsea, in behalf of Poland and her gallant and wounded defenders. The fete is to be given by the Polish ladies resident in London, and their invitations for the purpose are issued in the name of the Polish sufferings of their wounded countrymen, their sale will commence on the day above mentioned, and will include among other articles the produce of the Switzerland, Vincentian Fathers, the Marchioness of Waterford and Townshend, the Countess of Shaftesbury, Lady Dunsany, Lady Gardiner, Mrs. Cory De Vitre, and many other leaders of the beau monde.

The births of 1479 children (737 boys and 742 girls) were registered in London last week. In the ten corresponding weeks of the years 1854-63 the average number was registered 1,437. In the week 1,324 deaths were registered in London. In the ten corresponding weeks of the years 1854-63, the average number was 1,220. The deaths in the week showed an increase of population, would give a mortality for the present time of 1111. 319 deaths referred to the various epidemic, endemic, and zymotic diseases, 10 by measles, 15 by scarlatina, 9 by diphtheria, 81 by whooping-cough, and 65 by typhus. 1,324 deaths registered (661 males, 663 females) (exclusive of plethora); bronchitis was fatal in 121 cases, and pneumonia in 178. Phthisis carried off 178 persons.

A fancy sale was held during the past week at Willis's Rooms, Kings-street, St. James's, in aid of the funds of the Society for the Relief of Distress and Improvement of the National Hospital for the Paralysed and Epileptic, Queen-square, Bloomsbury. The object of the sale was to obtain high position among the medical charities of London, and in acknowledgment of the usefulness of the institution and liberal support accorded to it, and to less than two of the Protestant City Companies. Owing to the great interest taken in the sale by the nobility and gentry, the rooms were crowded as well as elegant assemblies to a degree that rendered the sale almost imperatively necessary. The fancy sale has proved a great success, and the results, with the donations already received, amount to £1,000.

Garibaldi has declined to accept the estate which it was proposed to purchase for him. Under the circumstances the Executive Committee have resolved to return the subscriptions which they have already received. The Executive Committee, however, recommend the fund, which they propose to hand over to the General referred by no restrictions as the application of the money. Mr. Thomas Wright has addressed letters to Mr. Gladstone, on Tuesday, to hear explanations from him in reference to the departure of Garibaldi from England. Mr. Gladstone, in reply, said in a statement which he made in the House of Commons, denying most positively that he had hinted to the Government that Garibaldi was not welcome. In the interview lasted an hour and a half, and the right hon. gentleman and the deputation parted with the utmost expressions of regard.

The income and expenditure of the British Museum for the year ending the 31st of March last are stated in the annual account made to Parliament at £134,955 and £95,880 respectively. There were 401,091 persons admitted to the museum during the year, and 75,000 who have visited the reading-room, who are set down as numbering 107,921. To the public of which visitors have were added 1,000 persons admitted on the 10th-room 1264. The number of visitors to the reading-room has increased by 3,000 during the year. The number of days on which the three visiting departments are has been 309 per year given in the return, which begins with 1851. The number of visitors to the Natural History Exhibition was 72,000 return during the year, and 1,000 to the museum's collection. These have been numerous during the past year.

The thirty-second meeting of the British Asylum for Deaf and Dumb Females was held on Wednesday, at the Freemasons' Tavern, Lord Ebury in the chair. At the meeting of the society progress making by the charity, very satisfactory, and the building operations and the new premises. The general committee considered inadequate to meet the requirements of the institution, the committee were desirous of erecting a new building which would accommodate 100 pupils, and funds were earnestly solicited. In addition to the Duchess and Princess Mary of Cambridge, the Prince and Princess of Wales have become patrons and patrons of the institution. The gross income for the past year, including £293 for the building fund and a legacy of £100 from Miss Ann Hall, amounted to £1,200 and the expenditure had been £800. In the hall were on one various articles made by the pupils of the asylum, and which, from their excellence and the variety of finishes which, for strength and workmanship-like finish, might compete with those of ordinary tradesmen and handicraft.

The supplementary estimate for the new National Gallery, Burlington House, was published on Saturday last. It amounts in the whole, including buildings and decorations, to £102,000, and the vote required for the present year is £10,000. In a memorandum explaining the estimate the Commissioners of Works say that the buildings on the site consist of the Royal and other collections and the Burlington House, and that the whole of the grades forming the upper portion of the building will be required for many years to come. The approach to the new building will be through the outer court of Burlington House, which is 100 feet wide by 200 and 218 ft. wide. That part of it which will be devoted to the exhibition of pictures will be 460 feet long, 200 feet wide, and 70 feet high. The principal feet of wall space in a horizontal line, exclusive of doorways, and 30,000 superficial feet of wall space. The principal room will be 100 feet long by 80 high; and the rooms for small pictures will be 21 ft. wide, with a proportionate height. The architectural elevation that will be visible will be at the northern front in Burlington-gardens.

The inaugural dinner of the Newspaper Press Fund will take place at the Freemasons' Hall on Saturday next, the 21st inst., under the presidency of Lord Houghton. The fund, which at first was of a provincial character, has recently been placed upon the same basis as kindred charities of the metropolis, and has already done much good. Its objects are to relieve aged members and their widows beyond what are incumbent upon the new place in its career the institution is already sheltering under its honorable ægis a number of gentlemen of distinguished literary and literary as well as in Church and State. There will be musical musical attraction, the vocalists who have offered their services are Mdlle. Parepa, Sidney, Weiss, Mdme. Sainton-Dolby, Miss Poole, Miss Burrow, and Mdlle. Rosquet, the Swedish vocalist; Mr. Sims Reeves, who will sing "The Death of Nelson;" Mr. Wilbye Cooper, Henry Leibenheim, Mr. T. Young, and Mr. Weiss. Leibenheim and Sons lend one of their finest concert instruments, on which Mdme. Arabella Goddard will perform; and Herr Lauterbach, the famed violinist, Chapelmaster to the King of Saxony, will play a solo. Mr. Benedict, the composer, officiates as conductor, and has also contributed his services to the fund; Mr. Ogle sends his guineas, and Mr. Costa five guineas, so that those who cannot attend may contribute and will be represented.

LAW AND POLICE.—The commission sent out to Egypt to take evidence from the Pasha respecting the Suez Canal concession is not out its functions; and the day of trial has been postponed until the 9th of June, the Barony of Rothschild, Mr. Laing, and Mr. Cayley could not conveniently attend upon the 25th inst. the day originally fixed.

The mayor of Queen's Bench has granted a rule in favour of Mudie's having the argument for granting a license access in the case of the nuisance of Mudie's Select Library, Limited, in Bow-street, Covent-garden. Mr. Hawkins argued the New York ship the John L. Gourley, on her voyage into Liverpool, had been boarded by a pilot, who, after he had been on board for half an hour, was found to be drunk, and was put on shore.

In consequence of the death of M. Billault, the French Finance Minister, Mr. Bernard Glover's action to recover an alleged Imperial subsidy to the old Monarchy was heard in the Law Courts on Tuesday. Mr. Bernard, the deceased gentleman, the Queen's Bench holding that his representatives are not liable. Mr. Glover's counsel, Mr. Serjeant Ballantine, Mr. Hawkins, and Mr. Agnew. On the other defendant, the Duc de Persigny.

Mr. Commissioner Goulburn sat on Monday before the Bankruptcy Court on Monday. It was a dividend meeting in the case of Mr. Hall, the official assignee, reported that £6,000 in hand for the purpose. But the Commissioner declined to make any order, as the question whether or not the estate had formerly been cut down to £14,000, now applied to have their case re-heard, and the Commissioner intimated that he would re-hear the case as the case was adjourned.

The case was published for a writ of habeas corpus in the case of the Misses editor who was sent to prison by the House of Keys was made absolute by the Court of Queen's Bench on Wednesday. The Attorney-General, Mr. Macconochie, on hearing the decision of the Court, said it would be unnecessary to move for the writ of habeas corpus in the case of the other two ladies.

The case of Mr. Paver, who was fined for contempt of Court some time ago for publishing a report of proceedings in the Court of Chancery, was brought before the Court of Queen's Bench on Wednesday, on a motion by the order of the Solicitors Court in order that it might be quashed. After some discussion the Court refused the application, holding that there was not in such a matter it could not interfere with the order of the inferior Court.

THE MAY MEETINGS.

The British and Foreign School Society held its fifty-sixth meeting on Monday, in the Exeter Hall, Lord Shaftesbury in the chair. The report stated that the number of children in the schools in connection with the society had risen to 36,000 during the past year. The 1858 visits to 863 towns and villages in England, Wales, Ireland, and the Continent. The number of attendance at society £700 in the funds of the society for the past year, owing to the increased demand for the society's assistance in schools.

The Church Home Missionary Society held its annual meeting on Wednesday, in the Freemasons' Hall, Lord Ashley in the chair. The report stated that during the session the society had established 20 new church schools, and 2,345 children had been taught in them. The expense of about £3 per head. The total receipts of the year had been £4,000, and although the operations of the society, stating that the missionary labours had been prodigious.

The House Missionary Society held its meeting on Tuesday night at the Freemasons' Hall, to make the acquaintance of the Rev. Mr. Wilkinson, the new bishop of a highly satisfactory character. During the past year the sixty evangelists, of whom 1,000 were Jews, had visited 1,000 families, and had distributed 7,000 evangelical, 3,000 services in chapels and cottages, distributed 1,000 tracts, and had held 1,000 services in chapels and cottages, distributed. The receipts from all sources were £6,000, and the expenditure £6,000.

The Sunday School Union held its annual meeting on Monday at Exeter Hall, Lord Shaftesbury in the chair. The report stated the great increase it appeared from the report that the society employed sixty-two Scripture readers, that the number of schools was 2,000, and of scholars 200,000.

The Naval and Military Bible Society held its meeting on Monday in the Exeter Hall, Lord Shaftesbury in the chair. The report stated that the Bible Stands, R.N., in the chair. Captain Fishbourne read the report, which stated that the society had issued during the past year 10,000 copies of the Old and of the Testaments, 1922, and that this was independent of 2091 Bibles and 1,000 Testaments issued by the Bible Society. The total issues of the past year had been 42,112, and the expenditure £1,486.

The Church Pastoral Aid Society held its meeting yesterday week at Exeter Hall, Lord Shaftesbury in the chair. The report stated that from the depository during the past year amounted to 41,291,000. The receipts of the society, including a balance from the previous year, amounted to £36,000, and the expenditure was £36,304.

The Society for the Propagation of the Gospel among the Jews held its meeting on Tuesday at Willis's Rooms. The Right Hon. Lord Colchester, Bishop of Winchester, Bishop of Oxford, and Lord Shaftesbury were among the speakers. The income of the past year was £6585, and the expenditure £6971.

The Religious Tract Society held its meeting on Tuesday at Exeter Hall. The Earl of Shaftesbury presided. The report stated the great increase in the sale of the society's publications, and the issue of new publications, tracts, and books. The receipts of the year had been £70,000, and the expenditure £67,000.

The Baptist Missionary Society held its meeting on Monday at Exeter Hall—Sir Morton Peto in the chair. The report stated that the receipts had been £24,418, and the expenditure £24,000. The income in the depository during the year had also considerably increased, the receipts having been £3,000.

The Church Pastoral Aid Society met on Thursday week at the St. James's Hall, Piccadilly, Lord Shaftesbury in the chair. The report stated that during the past year the donations and subscriptions amounted to £44,541; being an increase in the receipts of £2,000 over those of 1863. The expenditure for the year 1863 amounted to £43,897. The operations of the society had been very successful. The number of clergymen assisted by the society was 1,000, and the number of lay readers 1,000. The number of children in the Sunday schools, average attendance, 8,000. The amount raised by the 1,000 lay readers was £3,000, and the number of Bibles, Testaments, and prayer-books sold by them was £3,000 and £4,000 a year.

The Reformed Presbyterian Synod Institution held its meeting on Tuesday at the Hanover-square Rooms—Lord Ebury in the chair. The report stated that the receipts of the year had been £1,000, and the expenditure £1,146. In addition to the pensioners, 203 poor and afflicted ministers have received, in addition to the pensioners, 203 poor and afflicted ministers have received, and were elected, making the total number sixty-six, of whom forty-three are now receiving pensions. The total number of widows and orphans of ministers amounted to 150, and 100 of these were receiving pensions.

The Governess Benevolent Institution held its meeting yesterday week at the Freemasons' Hall, Lord Shaftesbury in the chair. The report stated that the balance-sheet showed a trifling decrease in the annual subscription, but an increase in the donations. The number of governesses relieved to the 31st of December last was 115; inmates of the asylum, 21; provident annuitants receiving an annuity of £20, 21; and the number of governesses registered in the society was 60. The number of applications for temporary relief during the year was 1,000, and the amount granted £1,000. The total receipts were £1146. The provident fund is in a prosperous condition, and the committee congratulated the subscribers upon the success which had attended it. The total receipts of the year were £1,000, and the expenditure £1,000. The income during the past year was £17,330, and the expenditure £17,274.

The Church Missionary Society held its meeting on Wednesday at Exeter Hall, Lord Shaftesbury in the chair. The report stated that the receipts had been £24,418, and the expenditure £24,000. The income in the depository during the past year had also considerably increased, the receipts having been £3,000.

The London Missionary Society held its meeting on Thursday in Exeter Hall, Lord Ebury presided. The society had to mourn the removal by death of five devoted missionaries and four wife women labourers. They hoped to send out during the year six missionaries to India, two to South Africa, two to the West Indies, one to Madagascar, and one to China. When these reinforcements had gone forth the missionary staff would consist of 150 men. There had been no relief sent to the Chinese mission, but the Rev. Mr. Lobscheid had remained, died during the year, and the Hon. Arthur Kinnaird, M.P., and the Rev. Mr. Tidman, the secretary, addressed the meeting. The report stated that the receipts had been £81,653. The report stated the progress of the society's missionaries in various parts of the world.

CHURCH AND UNIVERSITIES.

Dr. Jeune, Dean of Lincoln, is to be the new Bishop of Peterborough.

The trustees of the Marquis of Bute have subscribed £500 to the Llandaff decrease of £1,000 in churches and clergy.

The Drapers' Company have voted £1000 to the Bishop of London's Fund, and Mr. Toker, the master, gives £500.

The foundation-stone of St. Phillip's Church, Whitwood, in the parish of Featherstone, near Leeds, was laid on the 2nd inst. by the Hon. and Rev. Philip Yorke Rose, Rector of Methley.

At the annual Ascension dinner at Lambeth Palace, given by the Primate to the Bishops, the four Archbishops and Bishops of England were present, and the number was unprecedented in recent times.

At West Gorton, Manchester, Mr. H. Robertson, M.P., laid the foundation-stone of a new church for the district, which is rapidly increasing factory population.

The foundation-stone of a new church at Newlyn, Cornwall, has been laid by the High Sheriff, Mr. Le Grice. The Bishop of Exeter gave £200 towards the building fund.

The consecration of St. Mary's Church, Longstone, Cambridgeshire, took place on the occasion of great interest, owing to its being the first time that the Bishop of Ely had been called upon to exercise his Episcopal functions.

On Thursday afternoon a large number of dignitaries of the Church and clergy generally were signed in the Sanctuary of Rochester Cathedral, on the occasion of the inspection of the Scriptures and the storing of the Holy Communion vessels. The business they came to have been imposed by the recent judgment of the Privy Council, assembled at Lambeth Palace, in the case appealed to it by the Archbishop. The volumes and the declaration were presented by Archdeacon Clarke, who stated that they had been ordered by the Archbishop of Canterbury. The Archdeacon said he received the declaration with great satisfaction, it being an assurance that the clergy would carry out the doctrinal principles on which the Church of England was based. At the conclusion of the Bishop, the Church elderly rep upon it that the Archbishop's decision was binding on the clergy, and hoped together that they might never be produced from above.

The Bishop of Ely has consecrated a new church at Southport, on a site which also includes space for a future parsonage and schools, and which will cost £4,000. The Rev. Mr. Peace, vicar of the district lord of the manor. The cost of the building of which Messrs Scoleman and Moffatt, of Preston, are the contractors, is £3,000, exclusive of the stained glass, four fittings, and the same amount for the organ. The window and the gift of Mr. Peace, and the chancel window by Mr. Ashton, of Southport, twenty-six feet high, on a memorial to a child. Among other gifts may be mentioned a handsome font, the gift of Mrs. Peace, and a set of communion plate of Gothic design, the gift of Mrs. Ashton. A silver salver and a silver inkstand bearing suitable inscriptions, presented by the clergyman and sexton.

The 210th anniversary festival of the Sons of the Clergy was celebrated on Wednesday at the Hall of the Merchant Taylors, with a full choral service, in which 200 voices took part. As in former years, the ceremony drew together a large assemblage of the clergy, amongst the most distinguished persons present were the Lord Mayor and Sheriffs, the Archbishops of Canterbury and York, and the Bishops of London and Oxford. The Bishop of Oxford, in proposing the annual banquet took place at Merchant Taylors' Hall. Three addresses were delivered by the Lord Mayor, a list of the collections was read, amounting to £6000. This sum included £150 taken at the cathedral in the morning, £1000 given by the Lord Mayor and Sheriffs, and the total was distinguished from rents of estates and dividends on funded property. The Bishop of Oxford, in proposing the health of the archbishops, necessitous clergymen, preaching their sermons and appeals to the people, and the Archbishop of Canterbury, in returning thanks, said that there were 5,000 clergymen in England and Wales, and 1,000 parishes without a resident; and from this it appeared that there are 712 life pensioners on the funds of the charity, and besides the sum of £6000 raised on this there, the society assisted on an average rather more than 500 clergymen and the children of 1,000 more. The total number of children at present was 6704; to widows, £5740; to aged single daughters, £4331; to children, for apprenticing, £1,000; and to orphans, £1,000. In 1863 (1,291), making a total of 1,291, was expected that the total sum which will be annually distributed in future years, independently of the sum of £6000, will be £20,000.

PREFERMENTS AND APPOINTMENTS.—The Rev. E. W. Peate to be Vicar of Bramley, Leeds. The Rev. J. A. Macready to be Vicar of Fismstead, Woodstock, Kent. Canonsby: Rev. A. N. Butterworth to Sutherland Memorial Church. Rev. H. Gresley to be Vicar of Drakelow, to Bucknell, Devon; Rev. J. Scholefield to St. John, Whitechapel. Preston: Rev. J. Bardsley to St. Thomas's. Ripon: Rev. J. Cameron to St. John's, Worcester; Rev. A. O. Rivett to Bedmarley, Dalkeith; Rev. W. Rowsell to Ashton-under-Lyne. Rev. J. Sharp to Bishop Auckland. Rev. J. Stevens to Bishop Auckland. Rev. J. Stevens to Bishop Auckland. Rev. J. Stevens

ILLUSTRATIONS OF THE WAR IN DENMARK. BY OUR SPECIAL ARTIST.

We publish this week two Engravings from sketches by our own Artist at the head-quarters of the Prussian army; and also two Engravings from originals of which are contributed from the Danish side.

The Engraving on our front page represents two of the Danish infantry soldiers; one of them, as he appeared when the photograph was taken, just ready to march for his regiment; and the other, who belongs to the 1st Regiment of the Line, stationed on the look-out. Both the men's likenesses are well preserved; and in each case we are struck with the intelligence, the spirit, and the manly simplicity of the men's expression of face. Their uniform is plain and convenient, though of course it would have been easy to select from the life-guards, hussars, or dragoons of the Danish army a specimen of more dashing attire.

The large Engraving on the opposite page is from a sketch taken by Mr. Simonsen, our Danish Artist, in the town of Sonderburg a fortnight after its bombardment — that cruel and wanton act, for which, as Earl Russell has observed, "the Prussian army must remain under the reprobation of all civilised countries." The view which is here presented shows what damage was caused to the houses by the enemy's shells falling in the little square of Sonderburg, near the newly-built Townhall. But it must be left to the imagination to conceive the worse injuries that were inflicted by this bombardment upon the unfortunate population, of whom nearly a hundred, many of them women and children, are said to have been killed within twenty-four hours, to say nothing of the sufferings of hundreds more, who were driven in one night from the shelter of their homes and dispersed through the surrounding country. It was on the evening of the 2nd of April, and on the next day, a Sunday, that the Prussian artillery performed this feat.

The other War Illustrations, by our Special Artist, are a view of the ruins of the Düppel windmill, and one of the interior of Redoubt No. 4; but we have so frequently described these localities that neither of the two Engravings requires any further comment. They show the aspect of Düppel since the storm of war has swept over that place, leaving many traces of its fury.

THE DÜPPEL WINDMILL IN RUINS.

GARIBALDI AND THE VOLUNTEER MOVEMENT.

At a dinner at Beaufort House, Waltham-green, yesterday week, in connection with a drill competition amongst the South Middlesex Rifles, Colonel M'Murdo, in replying to the toast of the "Volunteers of Great Britain," said it had been his good fortune to have the opportunity of paying a visit to that great character who had recently visited this country (Loud cheers). He, of course, knew they were aware by that cheer that he alluded to General Garibaldi (Renewed cheers). The object for which he (Colonel M'Murdo) sought that interview was, in the first place, to glean his opinion of the English volunteer movement, and to ascertain from his practical experience how a volunteer force was likely to act on the field, and in the face of an enemy, as, although he knew the pluck and the spirit which animated the British volunteers, he had never seen them in this position. With regard to the first point, he (Colonel M'Murdo) was much struck with what the gallant veteran said. Garibaldi exclaimed, when asked his opinion of the English volunteer movement, "Oh, what a glorious, what a happy country this is, which can find its citizens stand out boldly as they do as volunteers for the defence of the nation; and what a noble Constitution must you possess, when the Government have the courage to sanction and the people to claim and to possess such a great and glorious institution as your English volunteers! (Cheers.) I would to God that the same sentiments and the same feeling would animate the Government and people of my own beloved country!" (Renewed cheers.) He (Colonel M'Murdo) then explained to the General some of the points of the constitution of the volunteer force of this country, and informed him that although he (the gallant Colonel) had frequently seen and knew the valour of our regular troops in the field before an enemy, still that he had never seen volunteers in such a position, and desired to ask him how he had found them in such a position with regard to discipline. The General replied that he never found any difficulty on that score. If the men found they had a bad or disorderly character amongst them, one who disobeyed orders, or who was prone to pilfering, or any misdeeds, they dealt with him, and he was at once expelled (Hear, hear). He (Col. M'Murdo) then asked him what he did when he found himself with his volunteers in the presence of the Royal army of Naples, no doubt disciplined troops—did he wait for the attack, or himself take the offensive? General Garibaldi replied that he always took the offensive. He always found success attended him in making the attack himself, and not waiting for it (Hear, hear). When he landed on the coast of Sicily with his thousand men they were nearly all raw recruits and badly armed, and, though they were crying out for drill, he found he had no time for that, but pushed on, and the first encounter they had was with Bavarian and Swiss regiments. All the orders he gave to his volunteers were not to fire as long distances, but to wait, whatever the consequences might be, till they were pretty close to the enemy, so as to make good their aim. On coming in front of these Bavarian and Swiss regiments his orders were rigidly obeyed until he gave the word to fire, and when he heard the irregular "tick, tick, tick," all down his ranks, he was so fully convinced that with such a firing they could not maintain their ground, that he at once gave the order for the advance and the use of the bayonet. His Garibaldians rushed upon the enemy with loud "vivas," and scattered the disciplined soldiers of Naples in all directions (Loud applause). If such could be done with those raw recruits without drill, and with the bad arms the volunteers which Garibaldi had under his command had, he (Colonel M'Murdo) begged to say, without any flattery, that with their excellent arms, their efficiency in drill, and with their spirit and courage, in the hands of the volunteers of Great Britain this country was perfectly safe from any attempted invasion, let it come from whatever quarter it would (Loud and continued cheering, amidst which the gallant Colonel resumed his seat).

ARRIVAL OF GARIBALDI AT CAPRERA.—A telegram received at Stafford House, from the Duke of Sutherland, announces the arrival of the yacht Undine at Caprera. General Garibaldi landed at two o'clock on Monday afternoon.

INTERIOR OF NO. 4 REDOUBT AT DÜPPEL.

THE WAR IN SYRIA.—THE DESERT.—SCENES OF MASSACRE AND PLUNDER.—FROM A SKETCH BY AN OFFICER ATTACHED TO THE FRENCH EXPEDITION.—SEE PAGE 466.

CALENDAR FOR THE WEEK ENDING MAY 21.

SUNDAY, MAY 15.—Whitsunday. King John renders homage for his dominions to Pandulph, the Pope's Legate, and consents to pay an annual rent. 1213. Parliament is dissolved (n. (King Bomba) revenges himself on the Liberal party by giving up Naples to the ferocious lazzaroni—above 7000 persons killed, 1851.

MONDAY, 16.—Battle of Alcoyen: Sault defeated by Beresford, 1811.

TUESDAY, 17.—Birth of Edward Jenner, the discoverer of vaccination, 1749.

WEDNESDAY, 18.—Ember week. Acts taken by the Saracens, and the Crusaders besieged, 1291. The Turks massacre the Christians at Chios, after losing 30,000 men, 1822.

THURSDAY, 19.—Ascension. Archbishop of Canterbury, died, 378. Oliver Cromwell created Lord Protector, 1653.

FRIDAY, 20.—Death of Calmucks, 1836. Opening of the cemeteries at Highgate, Kensal Green, and Abney Park, 1839. Westminster Hospital incorporated with the Scottish monarchy, 1841.

SATURDAY, 21.—Death of Hartley Bell of Bell's Life and Mortimer, collector of the Rawlins MS. library now in the British Museum, 1774. Sir Sydney Smith escapes the French, encamped at Bonaparte, to raise the siege of Acre, 1799. Full moon, 1h. 24m. p.m.

TIMES OF HIGH WATER AT LONDON BRIDGE,
FOR THE WEEK ENDING MAY 21, 1864.

Sunday	Monday	Tuesday	Wednesday	Thursday	Friday	Saturday
M. A.	M. A.	M. A.	M. A.	M. A.	M. A.	M. A.
0 15	0 57	1 39	2 21	3 3	3 45	4 27
12 37	13 19	14 1	14 43	15 25	16 7	16 49

THE WEATHER.

RESULTS OF METEOROLOGICAL OBSERVATIONS AT THE ROYAL OBSERVATORY OF THE BRITISH ASSOCIATION.

Lat. 51° 29′ 6″ N.; Long. 0° 18′ 47″ W.; Height above sea, 54 feet.

DAY.	DAILY MEANS OF				THERMOMETER		WIND.		RAIN in 24 hours ending 10 A.M.
	Barometer reduced to 32° and Sea Level.	Dew Point.	Relative Humidity.	Ozone.	Highest in Sun's Rays.	Lowest on Grass.	General Direction.	Hourly Velocity.
	Inches.
1	29·548	49·1	86·0	9·0	69·0	52·6	E. ESE.	1·77	0·03
2	29·707	48·1	87·0	9·4	68·6	49·6	E. ESE.	1·77	0·00
3	29·804	54·3	86·4	7·6	68·0	47·9	ESE. S.W.	1·52	0·04
4	29·487	51·6	78·3	9·5	67·6	46·0	NW. NNE.	1·52	0·00
5	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	61·6	47·8	NW. NNE.	1·52	0·00
6	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	48·6	37·6	[illegible]	0·00	0·00
7	29·584	46·4	85	9·5	59·0	42·2	NE.	0·04	0·00
8	29·393	50·8	78·2	8·5	65·1	48·9	NE. NNW.	2·01	0·03

The following are the readings of the mercurial meteorological instruments for the above days: in order, at half-past nine A.M.

	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8
Barometer (in inches reduced)	29·542	29·707	29·804	29·487	[illegible]	[illegible]	29·584	29·393
Temperature of Air	49·9°	50·2°	59·0°	52·0°	53·7°	45·0°	47·0°	47·0°
Temperature of Evaporation	47·7°	48·0°	55·0°	50·0°	51·0°	43·0°	46·0°	46·0°
Direction of Wind	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]

THEATRE ROYAL, DRURY LANE.—Lessee, Mr. E. FALCONER.—Mr. CHARLES DILLON.—This Evening, and during the Week, The MARRIAGE Performances will commence with the Farce of AN APRIL FOOL; after which will be performed, in addition to the Play, a Comic Interlude, in which Mr. CHARLES DILLON will appear, entitled with MR. EMERY'S IN THE HIGHLANDS. Doors open at Half-past Six; to commence at Seven. Box-office hours from Ten till Five.

THEATRE ROYAL, HAYMARKET.—Immense success of the Revival of SATURDAY'S ADVENTURE, by Mr. Buckstone, at Mr. Sothern's re-new character of GARRICK. MONDAY, MAY 16, and during the Week, Buckstone at Home, Garrick, Mr. Chirpendale, Mr. Clarke, Mr. Rogers, Mr. Cox, Mr. Hill, Mr. Howe, Mr. E. Terry, Mrs. Leigh Murray, Mrs. Wilkins, Miss Fowler, Miss Oliver, Miss Fanny Wright, Miss Foote, Miss Louise Keeley, &c. Concluding with MRS. WHITE—No Congress, Miss C. Reed.

ROYAL ST. JAMES'S THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. Alfred Wigan.—This Evening, and every Evening during the Week, at Seven o'clock, MONDAY and during the Week, FIRST AND FIFTY.—Words and Music by Frank Matthews. Characters by Mr. Alfred Wigan, Mr. Frank Matthews, Mr. Ben Cherry, Mr. Chas. Harbour, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Matthews, and Miss H. Kinloch. Doors at Half-past Six. Commence at Seven. Box-office open Daily from Ten till Five.

NEW THEATRE ROYAL, ADELPHI.—On MONDAY and during the Week, SHAKSPEARE'S HOUSE, a Grand Allegorical Division in Three Parts, by Planché and J. R. Planché. Characters by Mr. Miss Swanborough, Mrs. Alfred Mellon, Miss Julia Daly, and Miss Woolgar. Concerning at Seven. After which NEW LIFE, a Drama in Two Acts, by Tom Taylor. Characters by Mr. Addison, Mr. Belmore, Mr. Rogers, Mr. Clarke, Mr. Paul Bedford, Mr. Wright, Mr. Leslie, Mr. Wigan, Mr. Toole, Mr. Billington, Mr. Wilkinson, Mr. Hill, Mr. Cullenford, Mr. Hudson, Mr. Hemmings, Mr. Ryder, Miss Louise Keeley, &c. Concluding with MRS. WHITE—No Congress, Miss C. Reed.

CRYSTAL PALACE.—WHITSUNTIDE.—For FIVE DAYS of Only, Monday to Friday.—EXTRA HOLIDAY ATTRACTIONS, by Mr. Nelson Lee. Splendid Display of Fireworks.

CRYSTAL PALACE.—WHITSUN HOLIDAYS.—GREAT ATTRACTIONS.—Palace and Park in their beauty.—Holiday Hours and Arrangements.—Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday, and Friday.—Open at Nine. Concerts, Promenade Concerts, Right Hon. Sir Benjamin Hall, M.P., Chief Commissioner of Works, will preside at the Handel Festival Rehearsal, Thursday, at Two o'clock. Special Illustrations in great profusion.—Alfred Mellon, Conductor. Grand Display of Fireworks, Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday, by Messrs. Brock, Bombardier, &c.—Pyrotechnic Artist, Mr. Thomas Kentish. Admission, Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday, One Shilling. On MONDAY and on TUESDAY bookings for those Five Days only, a variety of BRILLIANT FESTIVAL EFFECTS during the Day. Grand Display of Fireworks by the direction of Mr. Nelson Lee, including Garibaldi's Defeat, Garibaldi, the Bombardment, Garibaldi's Triumphal Entry into Naples, Victor Emmanuel, Prince of Wales, Princess Alexandra, Wedding Bouquet, Full Montagne Russe, &c. Grand Display of Fireworks, directed by Mr. Brock; with Performances on the Great Handel Festival Organ by Mr. Willing. On WEDNESDAY, the 20th, Dinner at One o'clock. Grand Display of Fireworks. TUESDAY and THURSDAY, the Revolution of the London General Omnibus Proprietors' Association. Sports and Games, 400 Prizes. Exhibition of Dogs. Performing Dogs, Mr. Cooke's Dogs, Mr. Hill's Dogs, Mr. Hilton's Dogs, Mr. Hodges' Dogs, Victoria, and Newcastle, a surprised; also from Newcastle and Dublin. Victoria, and Newcastle, a surprised; also from Newcastle and Dublin. Rolling Pony race. Prize Bridle-stakes. Prize Donkey-race. Prize Pig-race. Prize Wheelbarrow-race. Prize Sack-race. Prize Hurdle-race. Prize Flat-race. Special Prize of Sixty Guineas. Entrance-tickets for those races are particularly requested to be sent that the task in time means to an the fund of the extra holiday draw to the South Wing.

THE ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS.

LONDON: SATURDAY, MAY 14, 1864.

MR. GLADSTONE'S speech on Wednesday last, upon the second reading of Mr. Baines's bill for lowering the franchise in boroughs to £6, has occasioned a political sensation that has not lately been equalled. It will be remembered that when Mr. Locke brought in the bill which has been called the sister measure to that of Mr. Baines—the proposal for lowering the county franchise—the Government speech was delivered by Lord Palmerston, who aided to overthrow the bill, not because in the case of the latter the county franchise might not with expediency be arranged, but because he did not approve of the mode in which Mr. Locke proposed to accomplish the object, and because he did not regard this as a proper time for political changes. The Minister of only second position to Lord Palmerston, and the statesman who is looked upon as the "clevcest" and certainly not the least ambitious member of the Cabinet, has suddenly announced his approbation of the scheme for a large extension of the suffrage, and he took the bold step not only of agreeing with Mr. Baines but of allowing the Government to be placed in a minority, in a house of 654 members—the division which rejected the bill being 272 to 216.

People naturally postpone consideration of the important question itself to the inquiry, what does this mean? Thus Mr. Gladstone should take independent action up a almost any subject is not surprising, but upon a constitutional question of so much interest the course of the Chancellor of the Exchequer seems to be a departure not only from tradition but from Mr. Gladstone's own traditions. The accomplished Minister who administers our finances has, despite several comet-like movements, been usually regarded as at least as Conservative as any member of the Government, including the Premier himself. A High Churchman and the member for Oxford University, Mr. Gladstone was looked upon as one of the last persons who would be expected to agree with Mr. Bright and his party upon a topic which had been forced upon the House in a way that the Chancellor of the Exchequer has always said that borough franchise may or may not be a wise and just step, and it may or may not have been proposed at a fitting time; but it is Mr. Gladstone's nature to oppose itself to all kinds of specifics and nostrums, and he has been remarkable for practical and exceptional dealings with the Constitution. The majority in the Commons on Wednesday, and certainly most of those who came to support Mr. Baines, were prepared to hear Mr. Gladstone disavow any intention of the kind, and to repudiate the assumption that nothing ought to be done to widen the franchise until Birmingham should be roaring and Bristol looking out for a new kindling of the beacons which lighted souls, and the reform coal thirty years ago. It was also expected that he would speak well of the working classes, and, as a Pinsure Minister who had had much to do with the alleviation of distress in the manufacturing districts, would testify to the manly patience and sound sense of those whom it was proposed to admit to the suffrage. But it was thought that he would then expound his belief that such a change could only be made in connection with other great changes, that it was unreasonable for Parliament specially to enact that the mechanics should have a vote while thousands of wealthy lodgers, and all the educated classes who did not happen to reside within boroughs, should be excluded, and it was expected that he would have declined to promote any bit-by-bit reform, or to delegate to independent members a task which belonged to the advisers of the Crown.

Instead of taking for granted the Chancellor of the Exchequer one early in the debate and at once proceeded to deliver a speech which, but for the graces of its rhetoric, might have been uttered by Mr. John Bright, and one that might have next day been issued from the reform committee room as the explanation that an error in "making up" the papers had assigned it to the wrong orator. Mr. Gladstone had discovered, apparently very lately, that the question of Parliamentary Reform was in a most unsatisfactory state, and that it was desirable to be in a passable addition made to the representation of the poorer classes. He had gone into the subject and had satisfied his mind that the proposed change would not increase bribery. He had been at last convinced by the arguments of the working-man Smith's celebrated picture of the Scotchman sitting down on a thistle to compute the price of an episcopacy in Scotland, and, waxing fruitful with the fact that "the working man had become a unit in the population." Mr. Gladstone had found out that forty-nine fiftieths of the working class were excluded from the franchise, and his pious soul could bear the scandal no longer. Such was the explanation which the Minister, who he had, in thought, accompanied the new constituency to the hustings, and had beheld them voting, not for demagogues or men of their own order, but for their natural leaders. He did not confirm his case by any array of working men possessed of the franchise was diminishing, and, instead of making one of two natural deductions—namely, that they did not care about the vote, or that those who would not take it because they were not asked to do so—he argued that all who will exert a little self-denial to obtain it scarcely deserve special legislation in their favour, he sprang to the decision that no clear principle of reason interfered with an immediate change in the franchise. And then, during the Manchester argument in a different way from that which had been expected, he declared himself in favour of Mr. Baines's motion: though he did not confirm his case by any array of figures, some of which—as that of Ireland—are to be found in the division list.

The bill was rejected, the Palmerston Administration being on the losing side and Mr. Whiteside humorously regretting that the absence of the Premier, who, he said, would have shown his "refractory" Chancellor good reasons for opposing the measure. The bill, therefore, being out of the way, we have the more leisure to ask what Mr. Gladstone's speech meant? That he has not changed his views on the bosom of the extreme party, in a fervent embrace, in which his aristocratic habits, knowledge of Greek, High Churchmanship, and other sins, were rapturously forgiven, need hardly be said. But some other motive than that has imparted a new good deal lately of the proposed arrangements should a Conservative Cabinet come in. Are others who have certain Conservative ideas, but who certainly would not form part of such a Cabinet, to adopt their own plans? We have a semi-official declaration that the Premier has had nearly enough of office and thinks of designating Lord Clarendon as his successor, Lord Palmerston merely remaining as adviser of the country. Has this vyiet little statesman failed to secure Mr. Gladstone's approval, and has he obtained his own consent to lead a party on reforming principles? If so, all is fair enough. If not, Mr. Gladstone has made a speech which has been regarded for six months the extra navigation does payable by foreign ships upon a higher scale than Prussian vessels.

The funeral of Meyerbeer took place on Monday, in Berlin, with great pomp. The coffin, while lying in the room appropriated for it, was covered with flowers and crowns of immortelles, some having been sent by the Queen and Princess Frederick Charles. The house of the deceased was crowded by great personages, who came to pay the last honours to the illustrious composer. The singers of the opera opened the ceremony by a funeral chant composed by the deceased. The Rabbi Jael, of Breslau, delivered a funeral oration. The hearse, covered with flowers, was carried by the singers of the chamber, proceeded to the Jewish cemetery, where the ceremony terminated. The cortège was both long and sorrowful. Count Redern, with the whole household which it passed were crowded.

THE COURT.

On Thursday se'nnight the Queen, accompanied by Princess Louisa and Princess Beatrice, and attended by the Hon. Mrs. Bruce and Colonel the Hon. A. Hardinge, took a drive in the vicinity of Osborne. Earl Cowley had no audience of her Majesty.

Yesterday se'nnight the Queen, accompanied by Princess Louisa, walked and drove in the grounds adjacent to Osborne.

On Saturday last her Majesty, accompanied by Princess Helena and attended by Colonel the Hon. A. Hardinge, drove out. Prince Leopold, attended by Lord Alfred Paget and Mr. Ruff, went on board the Royal Yacht Victoria and Albert, and landed.

On Sunday the Queen, Princess Helena, Princess Louisa, Prince Leopold, and Prince Arthur attended Divine Service at the church at Osborne, by the Rev. G. Prothero.

On Monday the Queen, accompanied by Princess Helena, Princess Louisa, Prince Leopold, and Princess Beatrice, left Osborne at half-past two o'clock en route for Windsor Castle, arriving thither at six. The suite in attendance consisted of the Countess Denbigh, Major Edgcumbe, the Hon. Mrs. Bruce, the Hon. Lucy Ingestre, Lieutenant-General the Hon. C. Grey, Colonel the Hon. C. B. Phipps, Lord Alfred Paget, Colonel the Hon. A. Hardinge, and Mr. Ruff.

On Tuesday the Queen, accompanied by Princess Helena, walked and drove in the castle grounds. In the evening her Majesty accompanied by Princess Helena, Princess Louisa, proceeded to the Albert Memorial Chapel and inspected the new roof of the Royal Tomb-house, which has been lately glass mosaic. Prince Leopold was much pleased with the beauty of the work, an I expressed her approbation of it. Major-General the Hon. Charles Grey, Groom of Mecklenburg-Strelitz visited her Majesty and remained to luncheon.

On Wednesday the Queen, accompanied by Princess Helena and Princess Louisa, and attended by Lord Alfred Paget and the Hon. Mrs. Bruce, went to London. Her Majesty left the Windsor station at the Great Western Railway at half-past two o'clock in the state-saloon carriage attached to a special train, arriving at the Paddington terminus at half-past three, and immediately proceeded to Buckingham Palace to hold a Court. The Queen graciously acknowledged the loyal greeting of a large and fashionable number of spectators assembled at the station to witness her Majesty's arrival. In the afternoon the Queen honoured the Royal Academy Exhibition with a visit this time, and afterwards, accompanied by Princess Louisa, returned to Windsor by special train, at five o'clock. Prince Arthur, Prince Leopold, attended by Mr. Buff, went to Richmond Park.

The Queen, accompanied by the junior members of the Royal family, was expected to leave Windsor Castle this morning at seven o'clock en route for Balmoral. Her Majesty's journey would be performed by the Great Western Railway to Aberdeen. The Royal train-place was timed to be reached at twenty minutes to nine this morning. After a short interval for refreshments, the journey would be resumed, and, with a halt at Bridge of Dun to take in water for the engine, Perth will be reached at twenty minutes past twelve. Here a stay of five minutes will take place, when the route will be continued to Aberdeen, where a further stay of twenty minutes will occur. Thence her Majesty will post to Balmoral. The Queen's stay in the Highlands will probably extend to about a month.

The Hon. Emily Cathcart has resumed her duties as Maid of Honour.

Lord Methuen has succeeded Viscount Torrington as Lord in Waiting. Dr. W. Heath has succeeded his father as Groom in Waiting to the Queen.

THE QUEEN'S COURT.

The Queen held a second Court on Wednesday at Buckingham Palace. Her Majesty, accompanied by Princess Helena and Princess Louisa, arrived at the Palace at half-past two. Princess Beatrice, Colonel the Hon. A. Hardinge, arrived at the palace at half-past two. Prince Arthur, attended by Lieutenant-Colonel Elphinstone, arrived at the palace at three o'clock. The Duke of Cambridge also arrived at three o'clock. Her Royal Highness the Duchess of Kent and Princess of Wales, Princess Helena, Princess Louisa, and the Princess Beatrice, attended by the Hon. Mrs. Bruce, were in the Drawing-room in attendance upon her Majesty were the Duchess of Wellington, the Marchioness of Ely, the Countess of Jersey, Baroness Bloomfield, and Viscountess Palmerston. Lord Granville, the Duke and Duchess of Argyll, Earl Russell, Earl Spencer, and Lady Cowley, the Right Hon. Sir Cardwell and Mrs. Cardwell, Earl and Countess De Grey, Sir Charles and Lady Wood, Viscount Hardinge, the Hon. W. and Mrs. Glaskins, the Duke and Duchess of Somerset, Lord and Lady Stanley of Alderley, the Duke and Duchess of Northumberland, the Hon. Thomas Milner Gibson and Mrs. Gibson, the Right Hon. Charles Pelham Villiers, Lord and Lady Lovelace, the Right Hon. H. A. Bruce and Lady Charlotte Denison, the Right Hon. William Cowper and Mrs. Cowper, the Right Hon. William Hutt and Mrs. Hutt, the Right Hon. Robert Lowe and Mrs. Lowe, the Right Hon. H. A. Bruce and Mrs. Bruce, the Right Hon. Sir Robert Peel and Lady Emily Peel, the Right Hon. Edward Headlam and Mrs. Headlam, the Earl and Countess of Derby, Lord and Lady Chelmsford, the Earl and Countess of Malmesbury, Lord and Lady Ebury, Lord and Lady Dufferin, Benjamin and Mrs. Disraeli, Sir John and Lady Pakington, the Duke and Duchess of Buccleuch, the Duke of Leeds, the Duke and Duchess of Northumberland, the Earl of Dalhousie, Viscountess Bury, the Right Hon. Sir Stafford Northcote, and Lady Northcote.

The Duke and Duchess of Northumberland, the Earl of Carlisle, the Earl of Malmesbury, Viscount and Viscountess Palmerston, Lord Granville, Mr. Thomas Milner Gibson, and Mrs. Milner Gibson were present at the House of Commons, and Mrs. Milner Gibson was prevented by unavoidable circumstances from attending the Court.

The Queen wore a dress of rich pink glacé silk, the body and sleeves trimmed with ruches of crape. Head-dress of convolvulus, with veil; ornaments, pearls.

Princess Louisa, in plain white muslin.

The Duke of Wellington was in full dress uniform, with the Orders of the Garter and the Star of India.

A guard of honour of the Grenadier Guards was in attendance at the court of the palace.

The Queen received the Plenipotentiaries from Austria and Prussia and audiences of the Queen, to which they were introduced by Earl Russell, K.G. The Earl of Clarendon, K.G., Captain Sir William Hoste were the Lord and Groom in Waiting.

THE LEVEE.

By command of the Queen, a Levée was held on Saturday last, at St. James's Palace, by the Prince of Wales. Presentations at this court were confined to presentations of presentations made to her Majesty. The Prince of Wales, attended by his suite, arrived at the palace from Marlborough House at two o'clock, and was received by the great officers of state of the Queen's household. The Duke of Cambridge and Prince Edward of Saxe-Weimar were present at the court. The Prince of Wales was the uniform of a general officer, with the Order of the Garter and the Star of India. Her Royal Highness entered the Throne-room accompanied by the Duke of Cambridge and Prince Edward of Saxe-Weimar, and attended by the Earl of St. Germans, Viscount Sydney, Viscount Barry, Viscount Castlereagh, Lord Derby, Lieutenant-General Knollys, Lord Torrington, Colonel F. Seymour, Lord Charles Fitzroy, Lord Alfred Hervey, Hon. Robert Meade, and Major Teesdale. The Foreign Ambassadors and Ministers having been introduced, several presentations in the diplomatic circle took place. The Corps Diplomatique was represented by the Austrian Ambassador, the Austrian Ambassador, the Russian Ambassador, the Prussian Ambassador, the French Ambassador, the Belgian Minister, the Bavarian Minister, the Italian Minister, the Netherlands Minister, the Portuguese Minister, the Saxon Minister, the Plenipotentiary of the Germanic Confederation, the Russian Minister; the Danish Minister, Count Rosen Rosencrantz and Baron Guldencrone; the Minister of Honduras, the United States Minister, the Brazilian Minister, the Chilian Minister, the Peruvian Minister, the Spanish Minister, and the Haytian Minister. The general circle was attended by the Archbishop of York, the Archbishop of Dublin, the Bishop of Oxford, Earl Granville, the Duke of Argyll, the Right Hon. Sir George Grey, Earl Russell, the Right Hon. Edward Cardwell, Earl De Grey and Ripon, the Right Hon. Sir Charles Wood, the Chancellor of the Exchequer, the Duke of Somerset, the Right Hon. T. Milner Gibson, Lord Hobart, Lord Aldenham, the Right Hon. C. P. Villiers, the Earl of Clarendon, and the gentlemen in waiting of the Queen's household. The evening was the more noticeable presentations in the general circle

The Marquis of Ailesbury has been appointed by the Duke of Marlborough.

The Earl of Shrewsbury and Talbot, on being appointed Hereditary Lord High Steward of Ireland, by the Marquis of Waterford.

The Earl of Dartmouth, appointed Assistant of Lieutenancy of Staffordshire, by the Duke of Sutherland.

The Earl of Dunraven, on his appointment to the lieutenancy of the county of Limerick, by the Lord Chancellor.

The Earl of Charlemont, on accession to his title, by Viscount Castlereagh, Lord Londesborough, on his marriage, by the Duke of Rutland.

Mr. Henry Bruce, on his appointment by the Queen to be a member of the Medical Council, by Earl Granville.

THE STATE CONCERT AT BUCKINGHAM PALACE.

By command of the Queen, a State concert was given on Wednesday evening at Buckingham Palace, to which a party of between 700 and 800 members of the Corps Diplomatique and their families were invited. The Prince and Princess of Wales, attended by the Countess of Macclesfield, the Hon. Mrs. Willoughby, Major Teesdale, and Colonel Harris, Lord Alfred Hervey, the Hon. H. B. Meade, and Major Teesdale, and escorted by a company of the Grenadier Guards, arrived at the palace from Marlborough House shortly before six.

The Duke and Duchess of Cambridge, Princess Mary, the Grand Duke and Grand Duchess of Mecklenburg-Strelitz, the Grand Duke and Grand Duchess of Mecklenburg-Schwerin, and Count and Countess Nieuwerkerke were also at the concert. The Queen and Prince of Wales, accompanied by Princess Helena and the members of the Royal family, preceded by the Lord Chamberlain, the Treasurer of the household and attended by the ladies and gentlemen in waiting, entered the concert-room soon after seven, and the performance was commenced.

The performers, exceeding 180 in number, consisted of her Majesty's private band, aided by several instrumentalists of the Philharmonic Society, the Royal Italian Opera, and the Royal English Opera. The choirs being selected from the Operas and from the Sacred Harmonic Society, Exeter Hall. The performance was conducted by Mr. Anderson, the director of her Majesty's private band.

The Princess of Wales wore a black silk dress covered with tulle and crape, richly ornamented with jet, and a black lace shawl, a tiara of jet ornaments, jet.

The Duchess of Cambridge wore a black satin dress trimmed with black lace and black satin ribbon and jet. Head-dress, a tiara of jet with black feathers, necklace and ornaments of jet.

Princess Mary wore a black tulle dress over black glacé silk, richly trimmed with guipure lace, and ornaments of jet and black velvet. Head-dress, a diadem of diamonds and silver wheat-ears: stomacher, necklace, jet ornaments, pearl and diamond bracelets.

The Grand Duchess of Mecklenburg-Strelitz wore a dress of terry velvet trimmed with point-lace, satin ribbon, and bugles. Head-dress, tiara of jet and black ornaments.

THE PRINCE AND PRINCESS OF WALES.

The Prince and Princess of Wales continue at Marlborough House. On Saturday evening the Prince held a levée at St. James's Palace, subsequently his Royal Highness, attended by Major Teesdale, rode out. The Princess attended by the Hon. Mrs. Willoughby and Lord Alfred Hervey. Their Royal Highnesses entertained a distinguished party at dinner in the evening.

On Sunday the Prince and Princess attended Divine service at the Chapel Royal, St. James's. The Rev. Canon Duckworth, M.A., and Chaplain to the Queen, preached. The Rev. C. F. Turver were the officiating clergymen. In the afternoon their Royal Highnesses rode out.

On Monday the Prince went to the House of Lords. The Princess, attended by the Hon. Mrs. W. Grey, drove out. In the evening the Prince, attended by Major Teesdale, honoured the Royal Italian Opera with their presence. The Duke of Cambridge visited the Prince at Marlborough House.

On Wednesday the Prince and Princess drove out. Her Royal Highness visited the Grand Duchess of Mecklenburg-Strelitz at St. James's Palace. In the evening the Prince and Princess were present at a State concert at Buckingham Palace.

On Thursday evening the Prince and Princess were present at a large party assembled at the South Kensington Museum, upon the invitation of Lord Granville, Lord Chamberlain, and the Council of the Council on Education.

The Princess will hold her third Drawingroom to-day (Saturday) at St. James's Palace.

The Duchess of Cambridge and Princess Mary arrived at St. James's Palace on Saturday from their villa at Kew.

The Prince and Princess of Leiningen arrived at Dover on Tuesday from Ostend. Their Serene Highnesses passed the night at Birmingham at Ward Wickfield Hotel, and left there on Wednesday.

The Duke of Montpensier has left Cadiz for England.

The Duke of Rutland has arrived at his residence in Cromwell from Egypt.

The Marchioness of Abercorn has returned to Chesterfield House from visiting her Majesty at Windsor Castle.

The Marquis of Clanricarde and Lord Dunkellin have returned to Dunsandle-and-Clanricarde from Portumna Castle.

The Earl of Shrewsbury and the Ladies Talbot have arrived at their residence in Eaglescarnie from Ingestre Hall, Staffordshire.

The Earl and Countess of Dudley have left their town residence at Prince's-gate, from Castle Bernard, Ireland, for the season.

APPROACHING MARRIAGES IN HIGH LIFE.—A marriage will shortly take place between Lady Constance Villiers, eldest daughter of the Earl of Clarendon, and the Hon. Frederick Leveson, second son of the Earl of Derby. A marriage is arranged to take place between Lady Constance Grosvenor, sister to the Earl of Ellesmere, and Lord Lurgan. A marriage is also arranged between the Hon. Ellen Stuart, second daughter of Lord and Lady Blantyre, and the Earl of Darnley.

FASHIONABLE AND POLITICAL ENTERTAINMENTS.

His Excellency the Austrian Ambassador entertained a numerous party at dinner on Wednesday evening at the residence of the Embassy, Albert-gate House.

His Excellency the Austrian Ambassador and Countess Apponyi gave a grand entertainment on Thursday evening to the Grand Duke and Grand Duchess of Mecklenburg-Strelitz, the Duke of Cambridge, and a distinguished circle, at Chesden House. After the banquet, their Excellencies received, second row party of the Corps Diplomatique and the aristocracy.

The Duchess of Cambridge held a drawing-room on Thursday evening, which was attended by a large circle of the Corps Diplomatique and the elite of the fashionable world.

Countess Jersey gave her annual entertainment to the royal family mansion in Carlton-gardens, which was numerously and fashionably attended.

The Earl and Countess of Cork entertained a party at dinner on Monday evening at their residence in Grafton-street.

The Countess of Verulam gave her first ball on Thursday evening in Great Stanhope-street.

The Earl of Dudley gave a grand concert yesterday at Dudley House, Parklane.

The Countess of Fife gave an afternoon concert on Wednesday at the family residence in Grosvenor-place, which was numerously and fashionably attended.

The Earl and Countess of Home received a select circle at dinner on Wednesday evening at their residence in Grosvenor-square.

Lady Herries of Tarbat had an assembly last evening. The mansion was attended by the Duchess of Cambridge, Princess Mary, the Grand Duke and Grand Duchess of Mecklenburg-Strelitz, and a distinguished circle.

THE FARM

WITH the clouds dropping fatness on their crops and pastures for some days past, a lucky tambling-time, and the best descriptions of seed all in, the farmer may now have plenty of cheerfulness. Already a thousand sheep from Hamburg are being landed weekly at Leith, and wheat is under 40s. Some of them have been heavily victimised lately by the "Long firm," whose appetite, like the dragon of old, is for ever craving. Everything has gone by-ching, from bulls to gaslings, or ploughs to washing-machines. One breeder here, we are told, has three shorthorns worth £70 each. Warning after warning seems lost upon the farmers in this matter, in the face of the numerous cases that appear to extend with instances; and yet, the moment a letter, perhaps with a cross upon it, and the name of some bull (which proved, in the instance we had to investigate, to be a mere fiction), is sent to the papers, the mischief is done, and the farmer is left to his fate. Nothing is more common than for a man to write to the papers, and say that he has lost his cattle, and then to call at the office of the paper, and ask for the address of the thief, that he may have the law upon him. Another class of depredators, who have been at work in the Midlands, are

THE SHAKSPEARE COMMEMORATION AT STRATFORD-ON-AVON: THE FANCY BALL IN T

T STRATFORD-ON-AVON: THE FANCY BALL IN THE FESTIVAL PAVILION.—SEE NEXT PAGE.

PAVILION,—SEE NEXT PAGE.

THE SHAKSPEARE COMMEMORATION AT STRATFORD-ON-AVON: THE FANCY BALL IN THE FESTIVAL PAVILION.—SEE NEXT PAGE.

THE GRAND FANCY-DRESS BALL OF THE SHAKSPEARE FESTIVAL AT STRATFORD.

The Shakspeare Festival week at Stratford-on-Avon was crowned with a grand fancy-dress ball in the Pavilion, on the evening of Friday, the 30th ult. The Engraving, which fills two entire pages of our Journal, is made from the sketches taken by our Special Artists, who attended the Stratford Festival; and it gives an effective representation of that brilliant scene. There were about five hundred ladies and gentlemen on the floor, besides a thousand spectators in the galleries. Although no rule had been imposed as to the character, exclusively of a Shakspearian character, the committee had requested that fancy dress as far as possible be adopted. No masks, domestics, or servants' livery were permitted.

ECHOES OF THE WEEK.

In Home's tragedy of "Douglas," after Lady Randolph's sage observation that "the truly generous is the truly wise," Glenalvon bursts in with that remarkable assertion that "Wisdom is a proverb—Avaunt and virtue is its own reward." This cheap method of encouraging the virtuous reminds us of Mr. Gladstone's "brave man struggling with the storms of fate," is about honestly formed to be adopted by the Disraelites. Mr. Lowe has been so successful with the British working population, with as all, in fact, who have struggled and grumbled and got on in some way, as to encourage him, enough, to speak Carlylese, that one Government intends to try it abroad. We tell the Pope, and the Emperor, and the Dane, that wine is its own reward, and then quietly allow them to be crushed. What we do with our neighbours we of course do with those after all. Here are we with the Ashantee war—one of the greatest service and importance to us as guards to India, quietly deputed to the British mercantile community to be recalled from Russia; and, whilst the whole nation is crying out "shame" against the treachery and folly of Prussia, we have not particularly stirred a finger to help the Black Eagle at Berlin, and Count Arnim Hirtt von Boitzenburg the representative of that bird in London, has had a fat time days at Osborne. Meanwhile, the Ministry have gained strength enough to ensure them a new lease of power, and the Opposition are sorely in want of a party cry. Have established an armistice—a one-sided armistice altogether; but then Denmark like the Christian who has to say the grace of every meal, is accustomed to that which will purpose his final equitare in the stomach of the world.

The very sharp and severe articles adopted by the Southern Confederacy the news of which arrives just as we are putting these shipowners on trial as pirates for the Alabama and Florida affair, and which, if they crushed Banks, keep Grant in check, and have retaken and hold at least six strongholds in forts, the possession of which makes their city and makes it safer than Washington itself; these facts have brought forward Mr. Jefferson Davis, the President, and he has issued his proclamation for an open recognition of the Southern States as an independent nation. Why not? It is time to consider the question of the Confederacy. The Northern States, taxed to their utmost, are staggering on in a fool's paradise, believing, probably, that their debt will never be paid, and that they can repudiate it, so say, or that the "resources" of America are so enormous that she will very quickly recover.

Among the curious items which we receive from New York no two are somewhat similar. The first is that Mr. Gladstone has resigned (not Donovan, we are told with emphasis) has been acquitted of the murder of Mr. Crow. The last is that Mr. Gladstone has declared that this federal officer had a habit of shooting people down, and that he shot one of these murderers himself. Of course, we are glad the Yankees had overhanded. No one supposed that a New York jury would have condemned him; and, as for Mr. Crow, he was a bad lot, so there is no use Murder walk away scot-free! The other is Burleigh that is to say Mr. Gladstone has declared that the Confederates amongst Banks's baggage train, and that they were to be delivered up to Washington. Now, a baggage train is a great fact. So it is—it pronnés; it fails to a fifth in dollars, and in greenbacks to nothing. A baggage train of Confederates is a thing to be considered, and all the "treasure" will be replaced.

While we are speaking of "treasure," we may mention that Sir J. C. Arrowsie, a gentleman well known for his antipathy on taste and knowledge, has declared to the world that he intends to call the attention of Government to the much confused state of the law regarding the loss of property. In the case of treasure trove, the law is that if you put one hundred spade guineas in it, and of which we dig up a pot every knows, to put it in the ground is to secure, of course, no one living knows, to put it in the ground is to secure, of course, no one living knows, to put it in the ground is to secure, of course, no one living not called for, be contended that there had been no real change in public opinion upon the subject, and that members who had given distinct pledges in favour of a reduction of the Establishment were not justified in voting, as urged, on various grounds, the claim of the working classes to an absolute and immediate reduction of the malt tax? Those members had pledged themselves to their social, moral character, and material position, showed they were entitled, and which might, therefore, be safely conceded to the most sanguine among them. He showed that there was nothing alarming in the effect of adopting a £5 rental franchise, as proposed by the bill.

MR. C. O. HARVEY supported the previous question. He had no hostility, he said, to the principle that the working classes should have a share in the representation; but he was anxious to ascertain exactly what was to be the ransom-money paid for bringing forward such a measure. He discussed its object at some length, supposing the danger of giving an impetus to the cause of reform to be the overthrow of the Ministry. He repeated what he had said in 1861, when a similar motion was made, that the working classes had no real grievance to redress, and that it was the policy not to make concessions to them except upon such an emergency. He objected to a ten-pound reform, which might lead to a democratic revolution; to a measure not called for by the Government, and for which, he believed, the House and the country were indisposed.

This concluded the speech delivered by Mr. Locke.

THE CHANCELLOR OF THE EXCHEQUER, after stating what he regarded as the true ground and the points connected with the question on which alone the Government should take its relation to the bill, which was not a party measure, however, been introduced by a private member, and which had fallen into Mr. Cave in his views as to the admission of the working classes to a larger share of the franchise. He cautioned the House against the adoption of rental statesmanship, and against the sanctioning of any measure which would not be sufficient to secure their exclusion. The question, then, was whether the House considered that the time had arrived for dealing with the subject. It would not be wise to wait for agitation, which was dangerous, and agitation among the working classes would be necessary before it could be referred to circumstances which had practically diminished the influence of those classes in constitutional questions. He considered that, from the able evidence of the improvement in their moral and material condition, as well as of the change in their political feelings, a case had been made out for dealing. He laid it down as a principle that every man not incapacitated by personal circumstances, or by the commission of crime, was entitled to the right of the franchise, and he had been glad to hear the opponents of the bill say what could be alleged for the exclusion of a select portion of the working classes. The present franchise in boroughs might be said to be a £6 franchise, except in the middle class and the upper lower class. The latter was now excluded, and without any sufficient inferiority.

MR. WHITESIDE deplored the absence of Lord Palmerston, who, he observed, would have given an unanswerable reply to the arguments of Mr. Locke, as well as satisfactory reasons for rejecting this bill and for voting for the previous question. In discussing the measure, he said that he considered that it would act apply to the large cities, but to certain boroughs in the kingdom; and that the question was whether the House was prepared to say that a change might be a dangerous and political experiment in those boroughs. He was not disposed to ask for concession to the House upon the responsibility of the Government, and he had been glad to hear the speech of the Chancellor of the Exchequer to show that this measure had even their sanction. The motion was nothing more than a vehicle for introducing the bill, and nothing more. After a few caustic strictures upon Mr. Gladstone's speech, he concluded with an impressive appeal to the House to reject the motion.

MR. W. FORSTER complained that Mr. Whiteside had endeavoured to cast the stigma of the Home Secretary upon the working classes. He (Mr. Forster) with satisfaction to the working classes, which that gentleman disclaimed. The proposition made in the bill was, that a £5 rental should be the test which would bring into the constituency no one who was not to be regarded with alarm, or who would be dangerous to the constitution.

MR. RUNDELL PALMER opposed the bill upon the ground that it was a partial measure and would strengthen the dominant class in boroughs.

MR. ROEBUCK, Sir FREDERICK, and MR. HENLEY spoke in favour of the bill; MR. S. BOURNE, Lord H. Scott, and Mr. Greenall for the previous question.

Upon a division, the proposition "That the question be now put" was negatived by 252 to 216.

HOUSE OF LORDS.—THURSDAY.

KINGSTOWN AND THE VICEREGAL ABODE.—The Earl of ELLESMORE called the attention of Earl Russell to the kidnapping of her Majesty's subjects in the Bay of Biafra.—EARL RUSSELL said that the vessels of the United States Government for each man enlisted was as much as £60 or £70 dollars, and unfortunately this was an inducement to persons to enlist who were not otherwise help in their possession. He was sorry to say that, although Lord Lyons had remonstrated with the American Government, the matter had not been followed by a satisfactory result. It was the intention of her Majesty's Government to make the strongest representations to the United States upon the subject.

The Supplemental Customs Duties (Ireland) Bill passed through Committee.

The Local Government Supplemental Bill was read a second time.

The Under-Secretaries Indemnity Bill was read a second time.

The Common Law Procedure (Ireland) Act (1853) Amendment Bill passed through Committee.

The Promissory Notes and Bills of Exchange (Ireland) Bill was read a third time and passed.

The Customs and Inland Revenue Bill was read a second time and passed.

ACHAIAN OFFENCES IN IRELAND.—The Marquis of WESTMEATH moved that an humble address be presented to her Majesty praying that a full memorial received by the Lord Lieutenant of Ireland or the Irish Government praying for the release of Michael Doyle, Michael Burke, and Michael Hart, three prisoners confined in the county gaol of Westmeath, convicted at the Summer Assizes for 1862 of Ribbonism, and sentenced to death, and of any written communication, forwarding the same, and recommending their enlargement to the Irish Government, should be laid before this House. The noble Marquis stated the circumstances of the case, and of any written communication, forwarding the same, and recommending their enlargement to the Irish Government, should be laid before this House. The noble Marquis stated the circumstances of the case, and the Conservative Government took part.—The Duke of NORFOLK said that the memorial referred to by the noble Marquis had been forwarded to the Lord Lieutenant, and that the case would be considered.

HOUSE OF COMMONS.—THURSDAY.

PUBLIC MEETINGS IN PARIS.—MR. WILLIAM EVANS, Secretary of State for the Home Department, with reference to the instructions to the police as to public meetings in the parks, which had been misunderstood as implying the suppression of public meetings other than such as may be held on a Sunday—LORD DUNCAN said the instructions of the police had been in existence as they did. It was obvious that large political meetings in the parks must interfere with the objects for which they were originally set apart for the comfort and recreation of the people.

EDUCATION (SCOTLAND).—REPORT.—SIR G. GREY moved "That a Select Committee be appointed to inquire into the state of education in Scotland, and to report thereon to the House, with the reports of her Majesty's Inspectors of Schools." The Hon. Baronet said he was aware that the subject was one which required the department, and earnestly urged the fullest possible inquiry—SIR P. PATTEN said he had no doubt the Hon. Baronet would be able to show reason to embarrass or impede the Government. There were many members of that house, and he was one of them, who were not satisfied with the working of the Right Hon. Baronet desired. There was no intention on the part of members who supported the motion to cast any slur on the zeal and question the personal honour of the late Vice-President of the Committee of Council on Education. He could not forget that on a former day during the hon. gentleman's speech that a minute had been passed three years ago, which was not communicated to the House. That minute had not been produced, and he regretted that the Right Hon. Baronet had not thought proper to produce it. He hoped the Right Honourable Baronet here strong testimony to the satisfactory character of the Scotch education, and remarked that great dissatisfaction prevailed throughout the country with respect to the management of the Committee of Council. He did not know whether the blame rested with the Vice-President or the President, or those mysterious persons who sat in the office of the Committee, the secretary, who wrote "My Lords" letters. At all events, there was great dissatisfaction somewhere. He was sorry that the Lord Advocate was too much divided, and that there should be one responsible Minister for Scotland, instead of the Lord Advocate, the Vice-President of the Council, and the Secretary. The Lord Advocate was the only one who was known as an addition to the motion the words, "and further to inquire into the constitution of the Committee of Council on Education, and into the working of the terms of the department is consistent with the due control of Parliament over the several education grants."—MR. CRAUFURD SMOLLETT seconded the amendment, which was supported by Lord R. Cecil and MR. ADDERLEY. Upon a division, Sir J. Pakington's amendment was negatived by a majority of 147 to 93.—The original motion was then agreed to.

CIVIL SERVICE ESTIMATES.—MR. CARDWELL has gone into Committee of Supply, the following votes, after considerable discussion, were agreed to:—£5,000 for the Royal parade at Windsor; £12,000 for building; £12,000 for furniture for public offices, and £37,000 for Royal parks and pleasure-gardens.

The Royal Hibernian Society has awarded their medal to the fire persons who gallantly succeeded in saving the crew of the Irish barque brig of war, Bainbridge, in the terrific gale of Nov. 22, 1863, off Cahir—viz., Mr. S. Hill, pilot; Mr. C. Hughes, coastguard; Mr. Thomas Hughes, pilot; Mr. Milne, 6th engineer; and Peter Olsen, fireman of the Avon, Royal mail steamer, which was wrecked on the early morning of the same day on the coral reefs at that place. This mark of honour from their own country enhances the prior high testimonial of their services conferred upon the two President Lincoln of a valuable chronometer gold watch and chain to the two Irishmen, Hughes and Hill, and a purse of 100 dollars to each, with his inscription of acknowledgment for their courage and humanity; and to the fireman 100 dols. in gold, all of which were officially forwarded to the recipients through the channel of the American Minister, Mr. Adams, and Earl Russell.

A deputation of members of the House of Commons (representatives of Scotland) waited on the Lord President of the Council at the Privy Council Office, yesterday week, to ask the Government to issue a commission to inquire into the subject of education in Scotland, and to suspend the Revised Code until the commission shall have reported.

WILLS AND BEQUESTS.

The will of Bowdoyer Lady Cholmeley, relict of the late Sir Montague Cholmeley, Bart., of Easton Neston, Northamptonshire, was proved in London under £14,000 personalty—the executors being Henry D. Cholmeley, Esq., her cousin, and Albert Way, Esq., her nephew. The will and a codicil are dated March 2, 1857. The testatrix, after leaving several small legacies—including 10 guineas to the poor of each of the parishes of Easton, Burton Coggles, and Skillington (all in Lincolnshire), and a like sum to the rector of Burton Coggles—bequeathed the residue of her personal estate (within a sum of £5000 between her sister, Anne Way, and nephew, Hilary F. Way, having legacies to the amount of £5000 between them. By a codicil of the same date she directed the disposal of her property to be exercised, the said H. D. Cholmeley.

The will of Thomas Smith, Esq., of Chilton Lodge, Wilts, was proved under £70,000 personalty, by Thomas Smith, Esq., the son, being the sole executor. The will and first codicil were executed in 1861, a second codicil in 1862, and a third in 1863. The testator, who had managed his sons and daughter's property, bequeathed the residue of his personal estate to his son Thomas, and his freehold property to his daughter. The latter, however, was to receive £10,000 out of the residue. There are several titles and the residue of his property, real and personal, he leaves to his son Thomas.

The will of William Lydon, Esq., of Carey-street, Lincoln's Inn, was sworn under £25,000 personalty; and that of Thomas F. Maples, Esq., of Bloomsbury-square, under £20,000 personalty.

The will of Lieutenant-Colonel Gabriel Burrer, of Lymington, Southampton, who died on the 20th ult., was proved under £12,000. The executors mentioned are his two nephews, Charles Rose and Frederick Burrer. The will is dated Dec. 1, 1862, a first codicil Dec. 31, 1863, and a second codicil May 2, 1864. The testator bequeaths £1000 to his wife, £1000 to his son Gabriel Rose Admiral Thomas Symonds, C.B., and £1000 to Miss Fanny Rose, and the residue of his property to his wife, Mary, in the whole of his property, saving his ready money, cash at his bankers, and the sum of £1000 Three per Cents, which he bequeaths to his son, upon her decease, he leaves certain legacies to her nephews, and the residue of the property to his own nephews and nieces, and other relatives.

On the 20th ult. an earthquake was felt at Quebec and other places in Canada.

The West African mail-steamer bringing the news that the King of Dahomey's attack on the people of Abbeokuta had been defeated, and that the latter had taken the offensive.

Twenty-three millions of the new Austrian loan have been taken up by the Austrian capitalists, and the remainder by the Jews of Frankfort, at 77 10. A second offer for ten millions at 76, made by the Credit Mobilier, is declined.

Intelligence received in Liverpool on Saturday confirms the wreck unfortunately of the Cunard steamer Africa on the Irish coast. We are told two of the islands—St. Jago and Brava—were in a lamentable state of destitution. Hundreds of the inhabitants were perishing from starvation, and of the inhabitants were living upon the bark and roots and trees, and vermin crawled from their mouths and noses. Fever was raging. The Governor reported that disease of the most infectious and loathsome kind were spreading. The dead were lying unburied in the streets, and in the fields, and in the streets, and in the fields, and lakes. Some visited the islands assert that, in the interior, the dead were lying in the streets, and the living were starving.

The Charity Commissioners for England and Wales, in their eleventh report, just issued, state that there has been a continued increase in the number of endowments brought under the operation of the commission. The board with reference to particular charities, 1,240 schemes have been settled and certified to Parliament, and 1,200 schemes remain in the three preceding years. The number of cases in which the Charity Commissioners have, on their own motion, been made 1612 formal orders during the year, in cases not contested by any party interested, and 1,200 in cases of a similar kind. During the past year the particulars of 423 charitable foundations, either newly created or newly discovered, have been added to the registry, making a total of 14,822 in course of registration in the Commissioners' office. The number of returns received during the year was 4,000, and the number of the annual reports of charities has been 14,822. The appendix attached to the report shows that the number of charities in England and Wales is 28,840, and their annual income £1,053,000. The cause of this increase is fully accounted for by the Commissioners.

MONETARY TRANSACTIONS OF THE WEEK.

(From our Correspondent.)

THE demand for money for commercial purposes, though still good, having been less active during the week, the supply has been more than equal to it, and the rate of discount in the open market for three months' bills has shown more firmness, and the quotations have had an upward tendency. Although the Bank of England has not altered its rate of discount, it has, by its action in the open market, shown a disposition to meet the wishes of the commercial community in this money has seen its highest range, and that most of the bullion which has been withdrawn from the Bank of England for the use of the interior of the has been sent into the field. And the demand for gold for the Continent has not been so great as it was last week. The following are the rates of discount at the leading foreign and provincial centres as follow:—

Hamburg bills	... 3 per cent.	Paris	... 3 per cent.
Berlin and Frankfort	... 4 per cent.	Vienna	... 5 per cent.
Amsterdam	... 3 per cent.	Trieste	... 5 per cent.

Rotterdam	... 3 per cent.	Madrid	... 6 per cent.
Antwerp	... 3 per cent.	Genoa	... 6 per cent.
Leghorn	... 4 per cent.	Calcutta	... 8 per cent.

The Bank of England has declined the accommodation to the extent of £1,000,000 sterling, which it very often does in prime. We annex the quotations in the leading cities:—

Paris—	Bank rate.	Open market.	Amsterdam—	Bank rate.	Open market.
Paris	3 p. c.	3 p. c.	Amsterdam	3 p. c.	3 p. c.
Vienna	5 p. c.	5 p. c.	Brussels	3 p. c.	3 p. c.
Trieste	5 p. c.	5 p. c.	Antwerp	3 p. c.	3 p. c.
Frankfort	4 p. c.	4 p. c.	Hamburg	3 p. c.	3 p. c.

The summer for the Cape has taken out £117,000. The demand for silver is inactive, and the quotations have a downward tendency.

From the 1st of June next the Mercantile Credit Association will be amalgamated with the Union Discount Company, and will be carried on under the management of the latter.

Stocks, generally, were on the advance on Monday, and the market for them was firm, but without much business. Consols were 90½ to ¾ for the account. On Tuesday, the 1st of June Bank Stock left off at 22 to 3; Reduced, 90½ to ¾; New Three per Cents, 90½ to ¾; Three per Cent Reduced, 90½ to ¾; Three per Cent Consols, 90½ to ¾; Exchequer Bills, 1s. to 2s. pm.; India Bonds, 1s. to 2s. pm.; and India Stock, 221 to 3. On Wednesday, for Money, were down at 90½ ¾; Ditto, for Time, 90½ ¾; Reduced and New Three per Cents, 90½ ¾; Three per Cent Reduced, 90½ ¾; Bank Stock, 221 to 3; Exchequer Bills, 1s. to 2s. pm.; India Bonds, 1s. to 2s. pm.; and India Stock, 221 to 3. On Thursday, Consols left off at 90½ ¾ for Money, and 90½ ¾ for the Account; Reduced and New Three per Cents, 90½ ¾; Three per Cents, 90½ ¾; Bank Stock, 221 to 3; Exchequer Bills, 1s. to 2s. pm.; India Bonds, 1s. to 2s. pm.; and India Stock, 221 to 3. On Friday, Consols were 90½ ¾ for Money, and 90½ ¾ for the Account; Reduced and New Three per Cents, 90½ ¾; Three per Cents, 90½ ¾; Bank Stock, 221 to 3; Exchequer Bills, 1s. to 2s. pm.; India Bonds, 1s. to 2s. pm.; and India Stock, 221 to 3. On Saturday, Consols left off at 90½ ¾ for Money, and 90½ ¾ for the Account; Reduced and New Three per Cents, 90½ ¾; Three per Cents, 90½ ¾; Bank Stock, 221 to 3; Exchequer Bills, 1s. to 2s. pm.; India Bonds, 1s. to 2s. pm.; and India Stock, 221 to 3.

Railway shares have exhibited more firmness, and several of the leading securities show an improvement in the quotations. Caledonian have been in demand, and have risen to a very full price. Great Northern have been in request. Great Western have been dealt in to a very extensive extent. Lancashire and Yorkshire have been in demand, and have risen to a full price. London and North Western have been in request, and have risen to a full price. London and South Western have sold at 86½. Ditto, Extension, have sold at 86½. Ditto, Loop-line, have sold at 86½. Ditto, Southampton Docks, have sold at 86½. Metropolitan have sold at 86½. Metropolitan District have sold at 86½. Midland have been in request, and have risen to a full price. North British have been in request, and have risen to a full price. North Eastern have been in request, and have risen to a full price. North Staffordshire have been in request, and have risen to a full price. Scottish Central have been in request, and have risen to a full price. Scottish North Eastern have been in request, and have risen to a full price. South Eastern have been in request, and have risen to a full price. South Wales have been in request, and have risen to a full price. Vale of Neath have been in request, and have risen to a full price. Waterford and Limerick have been in request, and have risen to a full price. Waterford and Kilkenny have been in request, and have risen to a full price. West Cornwall have been in request, and have risen to a full price. West Midland have been in request, and have risen to a full price. Wilts, Somerset, and Weymouth have been in request, and have risen to a full price. Wilts, Somerset, and Weymouth Extension have been in request, and have risen to a full price. Wolverhampton and Dudley have been in request, and have risen to a full price. Wolverhampton and Walsall have been in request, and have risen to a full price. Wolverton have been in request, and have risen to a full price. York, Newcastle, and Berwick have been in request, and have risen to a full price. York and North Midland have been in request, and have risen to a full price.

Foreign bonds have exhibited more firmness, and several of the leading securities show an improvement in the quotations. Buenos Ayres have been in request, and have risen to a full price. Chilian have been in request, and have risen to a full price. Danish have been in request, and have risen to a full price. Egyptian have been in request, and have risen to a full price. Mexican have been in request, and have risen to a full price. Peruvian have been in request, and have risen to a full price. Portuguese have been in request, and have risen to a full price. Russian have been in request, and have risen to a full price. Spanish have been in request, and have risen to a full price. Turkish have been in request, and have risen to a full price. Venezuelan have been in request, and have risen to a full price.

Joint-stock Bank Shares are extensive business has been transacted, and the following are the quotations:—Alliance, 30 to 31; Australasia, 43 to 44; Bank of Egypt, 10 to 11; Bank of London, 17½ to ¾; Bank of Otago, 4 prem. and Calthorpes, 6½; Chartered of India, Australia, and China, 20 to 21; Chartered Mercantile, 10 to 11; City, 20 to 21; Colonial, 10 to 11; Continental, 11½ to ¾; Delhi and London, 3 to 4; Eastern of London, 3 to 4; English, Scottish, and Australian, 10 to 11; Imperial, 16 to 17; Imperial Ottoman, 10 to 11; London, 20 to 21; London and County, 10 to 11; London Chartered, 10 to 11; Ditto, New, 8½; London Chartered of Australia, 21; London and Eastern, 3 to 4; London and Hanseatic, 3 to 4; London and Mexican, 3 to 4; London and South American, 3 to 4; London and Westminster, 10 to 11; London Joint-stock, 10 to 11; Provincial of Ireland, 10; Ditto, Provincial, and Delhi, 11; Ditto, New, 11; South American and Mexican, 3 to 4; Union of Australia, 10 to 11; Union of London, 10 to 11.

Miscellaneous Shares have been in request, and have risen to a full price. Anglo-Californian, 1 to 2; Crystal Palace, 3½; Electric Telegraph, 10½; Hopwood Consolidated, 1 to 2; Imperial Continental Gas Association, 10 to 11; Ditto, New, 3 to 4; Ditto, Preference, 3 to 4; Ditto, Scrip, 1 to 2; Peninsular and Oriental Steam Navigation, 10 to 11; Ditto, New, 3 to 4; Provincial Financial, 1½; Royal Mail Steam, 1 to 2; London and Caledonian Marine, 1 to 2; Universal Marine, 1 to 2; Universal Mercantile, 1 to 2; Waterford and Kilkenny, 1 to 2; West Cornwall, 1 to 2; West Midland, 1 to 2; Wilts, Somerset, and Weymouth, 1 to 2; Wilts, Somerset, and Weymouth Extension, 1 to 2; Wolverhampton and Dudley, 1 to 2; Wolverhampton and Walsall, 1 to 2; Wolverton, 1 to 2; York, Newcastle, and Berwick, 1 to 2; York and North Midland, 1 to 2; South Australian Agency of Australasia, 1 to 2.

The Mining Market has been moderately active, at enhanced quotations. The quantity of stock actually for sale is not more extensive. We annex Thursday's quotations for prime:—

Bwlfa Dare and Stock—Issued and Scrip, £11; Caledonian, £10; Great Buttery, £1; Great Northern, £10; Ditto, £5; Ditto, £1; Hafod Mostyn, £21; Llanarmon and Yolfadon, £6; London and Blackwall, £1; London and Brighton, £8; London Caledonian, £1; Rose Ash, London and South-Western, £10; Ditto, £5; Ditto, £1; Ditto, £½; Ditto, £¼; Mid-Devon, £1; Ditto, £½; Ditto, £¼; Ditto, £⅛; Midland, £11; North British, £8; North-Eastern—Berwick, £45; Ditto, York, £7; Ditto, Scrip, £1; North Staffordshire, £1; South-Eastern, £6; Vale of Neath, £6.

British Peninsular—Bombay, Baroda, and Central India, 3pm; Red Indian, 1½; Ditto, Preference, 1½; Ditto, Scrip, 1½; Ditto, Shares, 1½; Eastern Bengal, £3; Ditto, Scrip, 10s.; Ditto, Scrip, 10s.; Ditto, Shares, 10s.; Indian Branch Railway, 10s.

Foreign—Great Luxembourg, 10s.; Northern Railway of Buenos Ayres, 10s.; Recife and San Francisco, 10s.; Sambre and Meuse, 10s.; Western of Canada, 10s.

The following table of the Bank of England return for last week:—It shows the following results when compared with the preceding statement:

An decrease of circulation of	£176,865
An increase of notes unemployed of	1,000,000
An increase of other deposits of	62,347
An increase of other securities of	1,000,000
An increase of bullion of	£1,000,347
An increase of other liabilities of	1,000,000
An increase of other securities of	62,347
An increase of other deposits of	£1,000,347

The total circulation is £21,571,997. Public deposits amount to £7,731,155, and private deposits to £21,571,997. The total amount of bullion is £18,571,997.

THE MARKETS.

FRIDAY EVENING, May 6.—The supply of English wheat on sale here to-day was limited in extent, and the demand for it was steady, at full prices. Foreign wheat, the arrivals of which are to-day moderate, was fair from sellers; nevertheless, the transactions were well supported. The imports for the week ending this day are moderate, however, no change took place in the value of barley. Malt was inactive, on former terms. Of oats only a moderate extent of sale was reported, at the late rates of quotation. Beans and peas realised full previous prices.

MAY 11.—The attendance of buyers in to-day's market was limited, and as only all kinds of wheat, barley, and oats were on sale, however, no change took place in the value of any article.

English—Wheat, Essex and Kent, red, 70s. to 83s.; ditto, white, 80s. to 91s.; Norfolk and Suffolk, red, 70s. to 83s.; ditto, white, 80s. to 91s.; Yorkshire, red, 70s. to 83s.; ditto, white, 80s. to 91s.; Scotch and Northern, red, 68s. to 81s.; ditto, white, 80s. to 91s.; Ringers and Ware, 60s. to 65s.; Chevalier, 65s. to 68s.; Yorkshire and Lincolnshire Oxford, 52s. to 56s.; Scotch and Northern, 48s. to 52s.; Norfolk and Suffolk, 48s. to 51s.; Ditto, white, 52s. to 55s.; Ditto, brown, 50s. to 53s.; Rye, 40s. to 42s.; Peas, grey, 40s. to 42s.; Maple, 42s. to 44s.; White, 42s. to 44s.; Boilers, 44s. to 46s.; Beans, Tick, 40s. to 42s.; Harrow, 42s. to 44s.; Pigeon, 44s. to 46s.; Winchester, 44s. to 46s.; Oats, English, 30s. to 32s.; Scotch, 30s. to 32s.; Irish, 30s. to 32s.; Barley, English, malting, 50s. to 52s.; Grinding, 40s. to 42s.; Malt, pale, 70s. to 72s.; Ditto, brown, 68s. to 70s.; Flour, per sack, 60s. to 65s.

Foreign—The trade continues in a sluggish state: nevertheless, prices are supported. Stock, 1,000 qrs. Wheat, 6,000 qrs.; barley, 1,000 qrs.; oats, 1,000 qrs.; flour, 1,000 sacks.

Liverpool—Wheat, 10s. to 12s. per cental; corn generally, 1s. per cental lower. Flour is selling at 22s. per cwt. We have no change to notice in the value of beans. Other provisions are dull, at 1s. per cwt. lower.

Manchester—Wheat, 10s. to 12s. per cental; corn generally, 1s. per cental lower. Flour is selling at 22s. per cwt. The stock is 20,000 sacks, against 40,611 at this period last year. Stock 5s. to 7s. per cwt. lower.

Bristol—Wheat, 10s. to 12s. per cental; corn generally, 1s. per cental lower. Flour is selling at 22s. per cwt. The stock is 20,000 sacks, against 40,611 at this period last year. Stock 5s. to 7s. per cwt. lower.

Hull—Wheat, 10s. to 12s. per cental; corn generally, 1s. per cental lower. Flour is selling at 22s. per cwt. The stock is 20,000 sacks, against 40,611 at this period last year. Stock 5s. to 7s. per cwt. lower.

Hay and Straw—Meadow hay, £3 to £4 15s.; clover, £4 to £5 15s.; and straw, £1 1s. to £1 5s. per load.

Coals—Newcastle, 14s. 6d. to 15s. 6d.; Hetton, 15s. 6d. to 16s. 6d.; Wallsend, 15s. 6d. to 16s. 6d.; and sunderlands, 14s. 6d. to 15s. 6d.

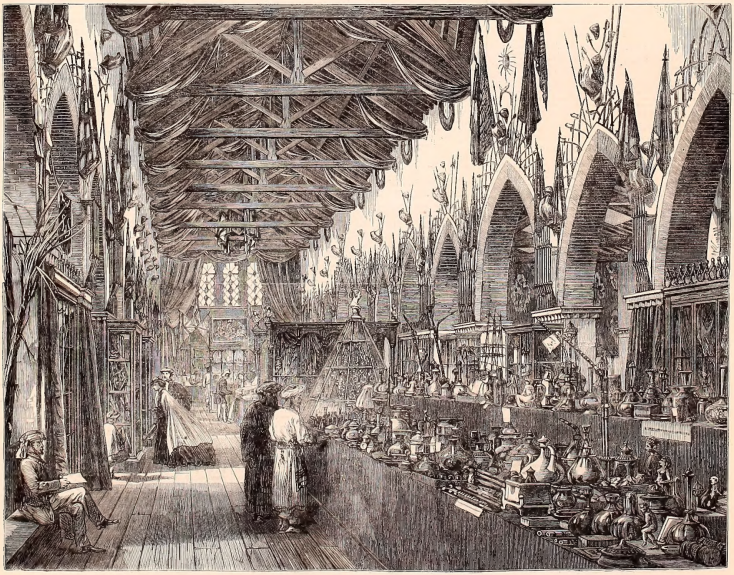
Tea—The market is firm, and prices are barely supported. Stock, 2,000 chests.

Coffee—Fine qualities are going off steadily, at very full prices. English wool is selling at 30s. per cwt. We have no change to notice in the value of beans. Other provisions are dull, at 1s. per cwt. lower.

Potatoes—Large supplies continue on offer, and the demand is brisk, at from 3s. to 4s. per cwt. The stock is 20,000 sacks, against 40,611 at this period last year. Stock 5s. to 7s. per cwt. lower.

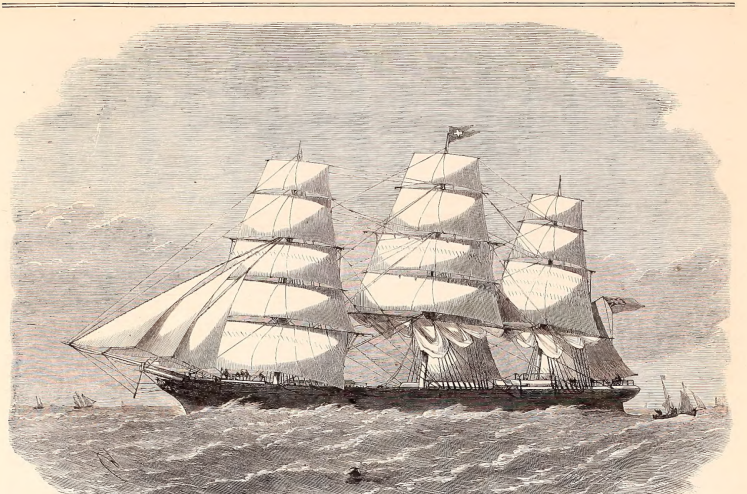
Coffee—Fine qualities are going off steadily, at very full prices. English wool is selling at 30s. per cwt. We have no change to notice in the value of beans. Other provisions are dull, at 1s. per cwt. lower.

Potatoes—Large supplies continue on offer, and the demand is brisk, at from 3s. to 4s. per cwt. The stock is 20,000 sacks, against 40,611 at this period last year. Stock 5s. to 7s. per cwt. lower.



Hay and Straw—Meadow hay, £3 to £4 15s.; clover, £4 to £5 15s.; and straw, £1 1s. to £1 5s. per load.

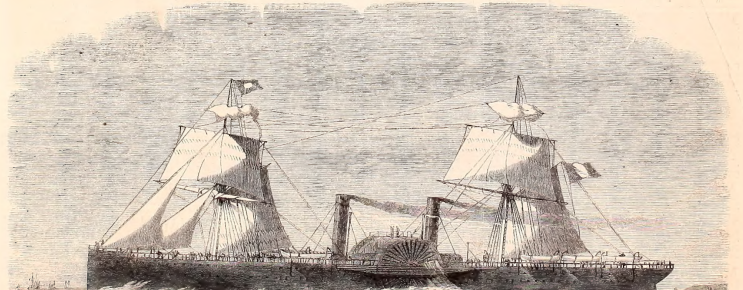
Coals—Newcastle, 14s. 6d. to 15s. 6d.; Hetton, 15s. 6d. to 16s. 6d.; Wallsend, 15s. 6d. to 16s. 6d.; and sunderlands, 14s. 6d. to 15s. 6d.



Tea—The market is firm, and prices are barely supported. Stock, 2,000 chests

OPENING OF THE PUNJAUB EXHIBITION OF ARTS AND INDUSTRY AT LAHORE.

INTERIOR OF THE EXHIBITION BUILDING AT LAHORE.—SEE PRECEDING PAGE.



THE CLIPPER-SHIP THE ROYAL EDWARD, BUILT FOR THE RED CROSS AUSTRALIAN LINE.

THE RED CROSS CLIPPER-SHIP ROYAL EDWARD.

WE this week give an Engraving of the new iron sailing-ship Royal Edward, of 3500 tons burden, and classed A 1 twenty-two years, built by Messrs. Westwood, Baillie, and Co., London Yard Ironworks, Isle of Dogs, for Messrs. Fernie Brothers, and Co., of Liverpool, and forming one of the Red Cross line of packets to Australia, dispatched from London by Messrs. Charles Walton and Co. The Royal Edward is commanded by Captain John Shaw, late of the clipper-ship Empire of Peace, and is of the following dimensions:—Length, 323 ft. 6 in.; 36 ft. beam, and 24 ft. depth of hold. She is built in five water-tight compartments, and, besides being a very handsome model, possesses the novel feature of having steel bowsprit, masts, and yards, ensuring great strength, with lightness aloft, which, by increasing her stability, makes her more seaworthy in rough weather. She has admirable accommodation for passengers, as well as large capacity for cargo. The construction of this vessel has given such satisfaction to her owners that they have ordered a sister ship of Messrs. Westwood, Baillie, and Co., which is now in course of construction.

THE FRENCH TRANSATLANTIC COMPANY'S STEAM-SHIP WASHINGTON.

THIS large and beautiful paddle-wheel steamer, the first of a line of mail-packets, established by the Imperial Government of France, to run between Havre and New York, has just been completed by Messrs. Scott and Co., Cartsdyke, Greenock, by whom she was launched in June last year. She is the property of the Compagnie Générale Transatlantique, and is one of eight similar vessels contracted for by the Messrs. Scott, five of them being built near St. Nazaire, France, where they specially erected a building for the purpose, the materials necessary for their construction, and also a large body of skilled workmen, being sent thither from Greenock. As an instance of the reputation which the Clyde shipbuilders have acquired for ocean-going steamers, we may refer to the trade with the United States and Canada, where such keen competition betwixt rival companies exists, and where speed is the test of a vessel's fitness for the service. Of fifty-three steam-ships at present engaged in that trade all, except four, have been built on the banks of the Clyde, between Glasgow and Greenock. Seven more vessels for the Atlantic service, comprising a tonnage close upon 18,000 tons, are now in course of construction on the Clyde. The dimensions of the Washington are as follow:—Tonnage, 3400 tons b. m.; length of keel forerake, 350 ft.; breadth, 45 ft.; depth, 33 ft.; with side-lever engines of 850-horse power, by the Greenock Foundry Company; diameter of cylinders, 84½ in.; length of stroke, 8 ft. 8 in. The levers are of malleable iron, each 24 ft. long, 7 ft. broad at the centre, 2½ in. thick, and weighing 15 tons. The engines are supplied with steam from four large boilers, two forward and two abaft the engines. Each boiler has six furnaces, arranged in pairs; is 22 ft. long, 14 ft. high, and 12 ft. broad; is fitted with 384 brass tubes, and weighs about sixty tons. There are also two small boilers for supplying two donkey-engines with steam when the other boilers are not working. The large boilers are all cased in malleable iron plates two inches apart from the boilers, the plates being so constructed that any part can be removed without taking down the whole casing. The Washington will have accommodation for 330 first-class passengers, hold capacity for 1000 tons of goods, and he able to stow 1500 tons of coal in her bunkers. Before her departure she went on a short cruise, in the course of which she ran sixteen statute miles in 61 minutes.

THE FRENCH TRANSATLANTIC COMPANY'S STEAM-PACKET WASHINGTON.

 The charge for the insertion of Births, Marriages, and Deaths is Five Shillings for each announcement.*

BIRTHS.

On March 26, at Rome, Jamaica, Mrs. William Vickers, of a daughter.

On the 5th inst., at the Chateau de Bouilley, near Malmer, the wife of A. V. Young, of Bouilley, Jersey, C.I., of a son.

At Chudleigh-court, the Hon. Mrs. Carnac, of a daughter.

At Princes-garden, Vicecomtess Hawarden, of a daughter.

On the 11th inst., at 33, Lowndes-street, Lyle Elizabeth St. Aubyn, of a daughter.

MARRIAGES.

On the 4th inst., at Trinity Church, Gloucester-gardens, by the Lord Bishop of Lichfield, uncle of the bride, assisted by the Rev. Charles Gore Gambier, brother-in-law of the bride, and the Rev. Charles Wood, M.A., Hall, R.N., son of the late Captain Basil Hall, R.N., of Cadby Hall, Surrey, youngest daughter of the late Major-General Sir William Nott, K.C.B., G.C.S.

On the 28th ult., at St. Michael's Church, Cherry Burton, by the Rev. F. Bewley, Hutchinson, Incumbent, and Minister, Beverley, and the Rev. Beaulah Bramley, Vicar of St. Mary's, Beverley, the Rev. Arthur Barnard Tollitt, Rector of Cowlam, Yorkshire, son of Captain W. H. Tollitt, Brickwell Park, to Isabella, daughter of the late David Buxton, Esq., J.P. and D.L. of Cherry Burton, Beverley.

On the 7th inst., at the parish church of Ware, by the Rev. Canon Hornby, William Hinshaw Comfort, of Kensington, Holloway, only son of William Comfort, Esq., Carisbrooke, Cumberland, London, to Ellen Spencer, daughter of Mr. Samuel Moseley, Bury, Lancashire. No cards.

On the 11th ult., at St. Paul's Cathedral, London, Church West, by the Lord Bishop of Ripon, assisted by the Rev. John Hall, Hamilton Fenwick, Esq., Barrister-at-Law, Inspector, now of Aldershot, Surrey, 16th Regt. 34th Regiment, to Ella Gladys, daughter of the late Sir Edward Ryan, Chief Justice of Bengal.

On the 2nd inst., at the Chapel Royal, the Holy Trinity, Brompton, by the Rev. Thomas Hill, M.A., and the Rev. Canon of Windsor, Rev. J. Jackson, Rector of Stanhope, Durham, Arthur Burnaby Tollitt, Rector of Cowlam, Yorkshire, son of Captain W. H. Tollitt, Brickwell Park, to Isabella, daughter of the late David Buxton, Esq., J.P. and D.L. of Cherry Burton, Beverley.

On the 7th inst., at the parish church of Ware, by the Rev. Canon Hornby, William Hinshaw Comfort, of Kensington, Holloway, only son of William Comfort, Esq., Carisbrooke, Cumberland, London, to Ellen Spencer, youngest daughter of Mr. Samuel Moseley, Bury, Lancashire. No cards.

On the 11th ult., in St. Paul's Cathedral, London, Church West, by the Lord Bishop of Ripon, assisted by the Rev. John Hall, Hamilton Fenwick, Esq., Barrister-at-Law, Inspector, now of Aldershot, Surrey, 16th Regt. 34th Regiment, to Ella Gladys, daughter of the late Sir Edward Ryan, Chief Justice of Bengal.

On the 2nd inst., at the Chapel Royal, the Holy Trinity, Brompton, by the Rev. Thomas Hill, M.A., and the Rev. Canon of Windsor, Rev. J. Jackson, Rector of Stanhope, Durham, Arthur Burnaby Tollitt, Rector of Cowlam, Yorkshire, son of Captain W. H. Tollitt, Brickwell Park, to Isabella, daughter of the late David Buxton, Esq., J.P. and D.L. of Cherry Burton, Beverley.

On the 4

GREAT FAILURES.—KING and CO., Silkmercers, &c., Regent-street, beg to announce that, in consequence of the failure of several large houses in the Silk trade, comprising between 200 and 300 warehouse, and private customers, they have purchased a great many goods, at still positive sacrifice, from the Trade, and will offer them to their fashionable friends, that would be cheap at many pounds more than are now made can be bought if I by and here in price, at KING'S, 243, Regent-street.

NEW
SPRING SILKS, at KING'S, 243, Regent-street. Patterns sent post-free.

WATERPROOF
FOULARDS, at 1s. 3d. Dress, at KING'S, 243, Regent-street. Patterns sent post-free.

NEW
STRIPED SILKS, at 1s. 3d. a Dress, at KING'S, 243, Regent-street. Patterns sent post-free.

NEW
CHECKED SILKS, at 1s. 3d. a Dress, at KING'S, 243, Regent-street. Patterns sent post-free.

NEW
GROS GRAIN SILKS, at 1 5s. a Dress, at KING'S, 243, Regent-street. Patterns sent post-free.

NEW
CHÊNÉ SILKS, at 1 9s. a Dress, at KING'S, 243, Regent-street. Patterns sent post-free.

NEW
MOIRE ANTIQUES, at 2 2s. a Dress, at KING'S, 243, Regent-street. Patterns sent post-free.

NEW PLAIN
POULT de SOIES, at 3 3s. a Dress, at KING'S, 243, Regent-street. Patterns sent post-free.

£5763 WORTH of BLACK SILKS, at 1s. 9d. per yard, Patterns free. KING and CO., 243, Regent-street.

£4754 WORTH of BLACK BROCHÉ SILKS, at 7s. 6d. per yard. Patterns sent free. KING and CO., 243, Regent-street.

£6543 WORTH of BLACK CORDED SILKS at 5s. per yard. Patterns sent free. KING and CO., 243, Regent-street.

£5675 WORTH of BLACK MOIRE ANTIQUES, at 2s. 6d. per yard. Patterns sent free. KING and CO., 243, Regent-street.

THE NEW
GROS GRAIN and SILK MANTLES, JACKETS, &c., all the New Shawls, at KING'S, 243, Regent-street.

THE NEW
CAMBRICS, 5s. 6d. a Dress, at KING'S, 243, Regent-street. Patterns sent post-free.

THE NEW
MUSLINS, 6s. 6d., a Dress, at KING'S, 243, Regent-street. Patterns sent post-free.

FRENCH LAWNS, 8s. 6d. Spring Cambs, 10s. 6d. Grenyne Cloths, 12s. 6d. Norwich Poplins, 12s. 6d. Address to H.M.S and Co. Manufacturers, London.

HUNWICKE, BEECH, and SHARPE, SILKMERCERS, DRAPERS, HABERDASHERS, &c., 22 and 24, Edgware-road, W. Corner of Orme-square, London for KILLED.

Each elegant and useful. Also, Muslins and Shawls. Patterns free. Parcels above 20s. carriage paid. N.B. Any lady should see our Guinea Black Silks (Lyons make), for brilliancy and quality, is unequalled. Patterns free. Parcels above 20s. carriage paid. (N.B. Hunwicke and Sharpe's Address will be removed with Coun. Hosking, Holborn-hill.)

MESSRS. SWAN and EDGAR beg respectfully to announce that, in consequence of their Immense Stock, Ladies' Cloth, and Mantle Departments, they have just made large purchases of the most fashionable Goods, which they will submit to the most careful inspection of those favoured with their patronage. Attending the Show-rooms are appropriate and private Apartments, where Ladies can have their Dresses tried on by a Dressmaker of the thoroughly experienced female assistants, who visit periodically the Paris markets.

6000 NEW MANTLES for MAY. The Alhambra of Cashmere Jackets. AMOYT and NICHOLSON, Crystal Warehouses, 61 and 62, St. Paul's-churchyard.

NEW DRESSES for MAY. 10,000 from 4s. 11d. to 70s. Patterns free. AMOYT and NICHOLSON, Crystal Warehouses, 61 and 62, St. Paul's-churchyard.

BLACK SILKS EXTRAORDINARY. 20,000 sold at AMOYT and NICHOLSON, Crystal Warehouses, 61 and 62, St. Paul's-churchyard.

FIFTEEN THOUSAND YARDS SILKS. Rich Checks and Stripes, 2 yards Full Dress, NICHOLSON and AMOYT, Crystal Warehouses, 61 and 62, St. Paul's-churchyard.

MEXICAN and AVIGNON FANCY SILKS, 61, 70s. and 42 10s. Full Dress. AMOYT and NICHOLSON, Crystal Warehouses, 61 and 62, St. Paul's-churchyard.

THE NEW BLACK DRAP DE LYON, manufactured at AMOYT, 14, Hanover-street, NICHOLSON and AMOYT, Crystal Warehouses, 61 and 62, St. Paul's-churchyard.

VERY RICH PLAIN GLACÉ SILKS, in fifty New Colours, 11 10s. 6d. AMOYT and NICHOLSON, Crystal Warehouses, 61 and 62, St. Paul's-churchyard.

RICH GROS GRAIN and CORDED SILKS, 1 10s. 6d. and 2 2s. The New Gros Grain Alsatia, 2 5 guineas. The New Velvet Corded Gros de Londres, 2 5 guineas. Rich Chaut, Broadcloth, Bouclé, Diagonals, and other Rich Silks for Costumes and Mantles. Patterns free. Address, 256 and 257, Regent-street, W.

Nearly 2,000 yards of the Richest Velvet in Velvet Antwerpe, in the new colours, usually charged 8 guineas, are all marked 2 guineas.

To secure a reply and the shipment of patterns the same day, it is positively necessary that all letters should be addressed to the Crystal Warehouse, by WISE and WILKINSON, 41 and 42, St. Paul's-churchyard.

REAL IRISH LINENS, direct from Belfast, Manufacturers and Linen Drapers, Ladies and Gentlemen, Families and Hotels in search of fine, medium, and fancy Linens, Damasks, Diapers, Huckabacks, Towels, Towellings, Dowlas, and Handkerch Threads, Sheetings and Fancy Towels, plain Cloths, &c., Kitchen and Servants' Tablecloths, Table Linens by the yard. Every width, quality, and description of Linen. Sent direct from Belfast, free. ALEXR. LENDRUM and CO., Belfast.

ESTABLISHED TWENTY YEARS.
NICHOLSON and CO. are now prepared with NEW and USEFUL SILKS, exceptionally useful for choice and economical designs, from 1s. 6d. to 10s. per yard. Nicholson and Co., 50 to 52, St. Paul's-churchyard, London. No connection with any firm in Plymouth.

200 PATTERNS POST-FREE.
9326 YARDS of PLAIN COLOURED SILKS, Thirty different Shades, at 1s. 6d., 1s. 9d., 2s., 2s. 6d., and 2s. 11d. per yard. Write to NICHOLSON and CO., 50 to 52, St. Paul's-churchyard, London.

8230 Yards New CHECKED and STRIPED SILKS, at 1s. 6d., 1s. 9d., and 2s. per yard. Write to NICHOLSON and CO., 50 to 52, St. Paul's-churchyard, London.

50 PATTERNS POST-FREE.
£3400 WORTH of MOIRE ANTIQUES, from £2 10s. 6d. the Dress of 10 yards, wide width. Write to NICHOLSON and CO., 50 to 52, St. Paul's-churchyard, London.

PATTERNS POST-FREE.
£2634 WORTH REVERSIBLE BROCHÉ SILKS, known as the New Persians, by which the Glossy Face Cannot be Worn Off. At 2s. 6d., 3s. 6d., 3s. 11d. per yard. Write to NICHOLSON, 50 to 52, St. Paul's-churchyard, London.

50 PATTERNS POST-FREE.
7640 YARDS of LIGHT SILKS, SILKS, from 1s. 6d. to 4s. per yard. Half their original prices. Write to NICHOLSON, 50 to 52, St. Paul's-churchyard, London.

50 PATTERNS POST-FREE.
£3400 WORTH of BLACK SILKS, Gros Grains, Gros de Suez, Gros de Layne, all of the Richest Quality, from 2s. 6d. per yard. Write to NICHOLSON, 50 to 52, St. Paul's-churchyard, London.

50 PATTERNS POST-FREE.
15036 YARDS POULARD SILKS EXTRAORDINARY, warranted waterproof, and perfectly unchangeable. Beautiful fast colours and Black, from 1s. 6d. to 3s. Dress of 10 to 20 Yards wide. Write to NICHOLSON, 50 to 52, St. Paul's-churchyard, London.

3000 YARDS of PLAIN COLOURED SILKS, from 1s. 6d. to 2s. per yard. Patterns free. Write to NICHOLSON'S, 50 to 52, St. Paul's-churchyard, London.

NEW MANTLES.—MESSRS. NICHOLSON and CO. beg to inform their Customers and Ladies generally that they have just completed the Largest Stock in London. An Immense Assortment of Novel Fashions. Nicholson and Co., 50 to 52, St. Paul's-churchyard, London.

100 PATTERNS POST-FREE of the NEW MANTLE CLOTHS, WOOLLEN SHAWLS, and NEEDLE-WORK of every kind, from Nicholson and Co. Write to Nicholson and Co., 50 to 52, St. Paul's-churchyard, London.

DO YOU WISH YOUR CHILDREN TO WELL UNDERSTAND—Page Multiplication, from 1s. 9d. Thirty School Suits, from 12s. 6d. Patterns of the Cloths, Tweeds, and Fashions sent free. Address, Nicholson and Co., 50 to 52, St. Paul's-churchyard, London, E.C.

LADIES' WEDDING AND LIVERY LACE. CUFFITT—WHITEHOUSE and SON, Gentlemen, the Strand, Corner of Wellington-street, have a large assortment of every description in best hand work. Price-books free by post.—Address "Lydia Languish," Whitehall and Son, 29, Strand, W.C.

BABY-LINEN and LADIES' UNDER-CLOTHING. Lace and Embroidery, at the lowest possible prices. Ladies waited on at their own residences. Illustrated Price-Lists free by post. Address, Miss Lucas, 3, Lancaster-place, Strand, 1st door, Somerset-house, Gateway, Corner of Arundel-street, London. Private Entrance for Ladies.

NEW SILKS.—PATTERNS FREE. New Checked Glacés, 12 yards, 20s. JOHN HARVEY and SON, 6, Ludgate-hill.

NEW SILKS.—PATTERNS FREE. New Striped Glacés, 12 yards, 20s. JOHN HARVEY and SON, 6, Ludgate-hill.

LENO CURTAINS, New Glacé Lenos, very bright, 10s. 6d. per pair. JOHN HARVEY and SON, 6, Ludgate-hill.

ALPACAS. New Glacé Alpacas, very bright, 10½d. per yard. JOHN HARVEY and SON, 6, Ludgate-hill.

LADIES' WATERPROOF TWEED CLOAKS and RIDING-JACKETS, Gentlemen's Overcoats and Inverness Capes, at HARVEY'S, 6, Ludgate-hill, Corner of New Bridge-street.

SEWELL and COX'S MOIRE ANTIQUES, Splendid for manufacture, celebrated their glacé the kingdom, Exchange Hall-row, Cheapside, London.

FASHIONS in MANTLES for May and June. The Alhambra of Cashmere Jackets. Those here in their Chairmouse all the beauties for the Summer in Shawls, Mantles, Jackets, Waterproofs, Light Drapings of every description, from 1 to 20 guineas. NICHOLSON and AMOYT, Crystal Warehouses, 50 to 52, St. Paul's-churchyard, London.

NEW FRENCH SILKS, at 2s. 6d. the yard, made of the richest quality, and of the newest designs, at eminent firms in Paris and Lyons. Patterns forwarded during the month. Having made a large purchase of this quantity realized, thereby enabling the manufacturer to charge reduced prices. Also, a large assortment of Black Silks, at 1s. 6d. per yard, Rich Japanese Silks, at 1s. 6d. per yard, Rich Japanese Silks, at 1s. 6d. per yard, Rich Japanese

NEW MUSIC.

M. THALBERG'S NEW PIECES.

THALBERG'S SOUVENIR DU BALLO
IN MASCHERO. Price 2s 6d. Just published.
CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

THALBERG'S SOUVENIR DE
ROSSINI. Part 2. Price. Just published. Price 2s 6d.
CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

NEW PIANOFORTE PIECE FROM FAUST.

FAVARGER'S FAUST. A Fantasia on the most favourite numbers from Gounod's "Faust." Price 4s.
CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

KUHE'S FAUST. Fantaisie de Salon for the Piano, founded on airs from Gounod's Opera. Price 4s.
CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

KUHE'S LEGGERO INVISIBILE. Just published, Adelina Patti's new Polka, sung in Meyerbeer's Opera Le Prophète and Gounod's Faust, arranged for the Pianoforte. Price 4s.
CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

KUHE'S SEMIRAMIDE. Grand Fantasia on the favourite Rossini's Opera, arranged for the Pianoforte, by this popular Composer. Price 4s.
CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

KUHE'S MASSANIELLO.—Just published, a Grand Fantasia for the Pianoforte on Airs from this favourite Opera. Price 4s.
CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

OSBORNE'S FAUST. A Fantasia on Favourite Melodies from Gounod's celebrated Opera, by the eminent pianist. Price 4s.
CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

BRINLEY RICHARDS' COMPLETE TUTOR for the PIANOFORTE. The best, the newest, and cheapest of all Instruction Books—containing elementary instructions, scales, exercises, and a great variety of the most popular and favourite progressive lessons. Only pages, full music size, for the small price of 2s.
 A list of Brinley Richards' Popular Pieces will be sent on application to
CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

BRINLEY RICHARDS' GEMS. This popular book arranged as a very pleasing drawing-room Pianoforte piece. Price 4s. Also in 2 Nos., 2s. each.
CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

BRINLEY RICHARDS' MARAQUITA. This popular Spanish arranged as an easy and effective Instructive Pianoforte piece. Price 3s.
CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

BRINLEY RICHARDS' SOLDIERS' CHORUS, from Gounod's celebrated Opera of "Faust." Arranged for the Pianoforte. Price 3s.; Duet, 3s. 6d.
CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

W. H. CALLCOTT'S BEAUTIES OF MOZART. A new arrangement of the favourite airs from the Pianoforte Duets in one ready, containing many admired subjects from the Symphonies, Operas, &c. Price 4s.
CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

THE SOLDIERS' CHORUS in FAUST, as performed in the Opera. Arranged for the Pianoforte by W. H. CALLCOTT. Price 3s. Duet, 3s. 6d.
CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

NEW DANCE MUSIC.

HAPPY MOMENTS VALSE. By
CHARLES COOTE. Just published, beautifully illustrated. Price 4s.; Orchestra, 3s.; Septet, 2s.
CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

THE FORGET-ME-NOT WALTZ. By
GUSTAVE LAMBERT. Just published. Price 4s.; Orchestra, 3s.; Septet, 2s.; Military Band and Full Orchestra, 4s.
CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

THE GUARDS' WALTZ. By D. GODFREY.
Played at the Ball given in the Prince and Princess of Wales, and the Duke and Duchess of Cambridge's Quadrilles, published. Price 4s.; Orchestra, 3s.; Septet, 2s.
CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

THE MERRY TUNES DANCERS. Just published. A new set of Lancers, composed on all the popular and favourite airs of the day. By D. GODFREY. Price 4s.; Orchestra, 3s.; Septet, 2s.
CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

THE HARUM-SCARUM GALOP. By
JAMES GODFREY (Composer of the Bloomerite Galop). Just published, picturesquely illustrated. Price 3s.; Duet, 3s.; Orchestra, 3s.; Septet, 2s.
CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

HELTER-SKELTER GALOP. Just out, a New Galop, by CARLTEF (Composer of the Harum-Scarum Galop). Picturesquely illustrated. Price 3s.; Duet, 3s.; Orchestra, 3s.; Septet, 2s.
CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

COOTE'S FAUST WALTZ, on Airs from Gounod's Opera. Beautifully Illustrated. Price, Solo or Duet, 4s.; Septet, 2s.; Full Orchestra, 3s.
CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

COOTE'S FAUST QUADRILLE, on Favourite Airs from Gounod's Opera. Beautifully Illustrated. Price, Solo or Duet, 4s.; Septet, 2s.; Full Orchestra, 3s.
CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

COOTE'S FAUST GALOP. From Gounod's
Opera. Beautifully Illustrated. Price, Solo or Duet, 3s.; Septet, 2s.; Full Orchestra, 3s.
CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

FAUST POLKA. By F.
WALLIS. Just published, with a beautifully illustrated title. Price 3s. Septet, 2s.; Orchestra, 3s.
CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

NEW SONG BY STEPHEN GLOVER.

WON'T YOU TELL? New Song. Words
by CARPENTER; Music by STEPHEN GLOVER. Price 2s. 6d.
CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

MR. SANTLEY'S NEW SONG.

SOFT AND LOW. From Gounod's Opera,
"Faust." Sung, in English, by Mr. Santley at the Monday Popular Concerts. Price 2s. 6d.
CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

THE STIRRUP CUP, MR. SANTLEY'S
NEW SONG, expressly composed for Mr. Santley, and vigorously sounded, is now ready, in C, D, or E flat. Price 2s. 6d.
CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

THE WATCHING MOTHER. New Song,
by LINLEY RICHARDS; Poetry by CHARLOTTE M. GLOVER. Price 2s. 6d.—CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

A THOUSAND LEAGUES AWAY. New
Song. Words by W. G. HENDERSON; Music by JOSEPH BARNBY. Price 2s. 6d.
CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

GARIBALDI'S TRIUMPHAL MARCH, for the Pianoforte. By STEPHEN GLOVER. Just published. This admirable march, in 3 numbers of the usual size, forms a superb 24 all-round pages of interesting and effective music. Price 4s.
CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

NEW SONG—JESSY GRAY. By E. L.
HIME. Sung for 11 nights at the Canterbury Hall, a ballad that has been published for some time. The story conveyed by the words is one of deep interest, and the melody is pathetic and full of effection.—Ayr and Montrose, 2s. Glasgow and Edinburgh, 2s. 6d.

DARFAIT AMOUR. Romance for the Piano. By E. L. HIME. Sent for 13 stamps. One of the most singable and captivating romances we have ever heard.—Ayr, DUFF and HUDSON, 20, Cathedral-street.

GANZ'S VOCALIANA MAZURKA for the Pianoforte. Founded on the popular melody "Qui Vive Ganz," is published price 4s., and may be had upon the same terms of DUNCAN DAVISON, 244, Regent-street, W.

HARK! THE BELLS ARE RINGING.
New Song, by HENRY SMART (composer of the popular Round "Lady of the Lea"), is published, price 2s. (only half-price for stamps), by HUNTER, ARUNDELL, and MONRO, 29, Poland-street.

NEW MUSIC.

NICOLAI'S MERRY WIVES OF
WINDSOR. ("Die Lustigen Weiber von Windsor"). Performed at Her Majesty's Theatre (under the title of "Falstaff"). THE BOOKS.

1. In Italian, arranged for accompan. by Signor Randegger. 2. In English, with version by George Linley.

1. The Overture ... ... 4s.
2. The Airs, by Nicolaus, in two books ... ... each 5s.
3. Ditto, for Septet ... ... 2s.
4. Mr. Oscar Barrett's Quadrilles ... ... 4s.
5. Farmer's Fantasia ... ... 4s.
6. Jaspar Wrighton's Waltzes ... ... 4s.
7. Ditto, for Septet ... ... 2s.

DANCE MUSIC.

1. The Overture ... ... 4s.
2. Ditto, for Septet ... ... 2s.

DUETS.

1. The Airs, in two books ... ... each 5s.
2. The Overture ... ... 4s.

THE COMPLETE OPERA.

For Piano Solo, with Introduction, in cloth ... ... 30s.
VOCALISTS AND DUETS.

Grand Selection ... ... 4s.
The Overture ... ... 12s.

 Various other arrangements in the press.
BOOSEY and SONS, Holles-street.

BEHOLD MY LOVE WHILE SHE SLUMBERS,
New Serenade by WALLACE (Maritana, Lurline, Composer of Handel). A most delightful melody, effective song for tenors. Price 2s. 6d.
BOOSEY and SONS, Holles-street.

NORAH'S TREASURE. New Ballad.
Written by CLARIBEL. Adapted to an Irish Melody and sung by Miss Poole. Price 2s. 6d.
BOOSEY and SONS, Holles-street.

SUSAN'S STORY. A New Ballad, by the Author of "Janet's Choice." Price 2s.
BOOSEY and SONS, Holles-street.

CLARIBEL'S NEW SONG, "LITTLE BIRD, LITTLE BIRD, ON THE GREEN TREE" will be published on Monday, May 16th.
Music 1sd., little dear, 1sd., little bird, 1sd.
Linden and hours it, and warble in me;
Linden and hours it, and warble in me;
Lay's sweet music, and I'll be your mate.
BOOSEY and SONS, Holles-street.

M. GOUNOD'S NEW OPERA,
MIRELLA, is now ready. Full Score and Pianoforte Price 15s.; also, for Pianoforte Solo, 30s.
BOOSEY and SONS, Holles-street.

SIGNOR CAMPANA'S NEW DUET, "Gli amanti Uccelli" is composed to the well known air, "Una voce poco fa." Price 3s.—BOOSEY and SONS, Holles-street.

BY THE AUTHOR OF RAPPELEZ TOI.

CAPRICE A LA MASON NAPOLITAINE for the Pianoforte. This admirable piece will well support Mr. Brinley Richards' claim as a writer of Pianoforte music.—Price 3s.
BOOSEY and SONS, Holles-street.

MISS ROSE LEMAN TRANSLOW. New and beautiful arrangement of "Auld Robin Gray" for the Autoharp of "Gallop."—Price 3s.
BOOSEY and SONS, Holles-street.

BRINLEY RICHARDS' JANET'S
CHOICE. Just published, a new and effective arrangement for unbleated harp, Janet's Choice. Price 3s. Also, for Pianoforte Solo, Janet's Choice. Price 3s.
BOOSEY and SONS, Holles-street.

KUHE'S MAGGIE'S SECRET,
Just published, which Maggie's Secret has received so favour, has been transcribed by Mr. Kuhe in his most effective manner. Price 4s.—BOOSEY and SONS, Holles-street.

BOOSEYS' LIBRARY.—Two-Guinea
Subscription for the delivery, twenty pieces of Music in town, or twenty-four in the country, monthly, of Boosey's Musical Library, consisting of the most popular music of the day.

NOTICE.—HALF PRICE.—All Music, and the best Editions, at half the published price, sent free for postage. Country Orders carefully executed. Catalogues on application.
HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street, W.

THE GEM OF THE SEASON.

GANZ'S BALLERINA MAZURKA, price
4s. Just published. Illustrated with a View on the Congress of the celebrated pose (ballerina tal).
HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

The best arrangement of the Guitarelli Hymn for Piano.

COOTE'S HYMN TUNE VALSES. Price 4s.
HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

THE PIANO PIECE FOR 1864.

KUHE'S "THE MARINER'S HOME" (Heimkehr).
COMER." Price 4s. (Brilliant but not difficult)
HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

A REAL MERRY SET.

COOTE'S POLKA PERLES QUADRILLE,
Price 3s. Illustrating Offenbach's celebrated Songs, "Isabella," "Waldemar," "Ba-ta-clan," "Whistle and I'll Come to You," "Tommy Atkins," and "Pretty Jane."
HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

Also Solo or Duet, 4s.

COOTE'S INFANT DANCE VALSES.
4s. Superbly Illustrated.
HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

SENSATION GALOP.

COOTE'S "THE MARINER'S GALOP.
Price 3s. Second Edition. Now ready.
HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

THE BEST SET OF LANCERS ABE

COOTE'S CURE LANCERS, Price 4s.
Illustrated with Portraits of "Mr. Punch," "Judy," "Toby," "Judy in the Morning," "The Cure," and other popular Acts. A real Pianoforte piece, and not a mere Dance Band Arrangement. Also Orchestral, 4s.; Septet, 2s.; Full Orchestra, 3s.
HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

COOTE'S FAUST GALOP.
Price 4s. Illustrated with Portraits of "Faust," "Marguerite," "Mephistopheles," "Siebel," "Valentine," and "Wagner."
HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

COOTE'S FAUST QUADRILLE.
Price 4s. Illustrated with Portraits of "Faust," "Marguerite," "Mephistopheles," "Siebel," "Valentine," and "Wagner."
HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

COOTE'S FAUST WALTZ.
Price 4s. Illustrated with Portraits of "Faust," "Marguerite," "Mephistopheles," "Siebel," "Valentine," and "Wagner."
HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

COOTE'S FAUST VALSES.
Price 4s. Illustrated with Portraits of "Faust," "Marguerite," "Mephistopheles," "Siebel," "Valentine," and "Wagner."
HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

COOTE'S FAUST POLKA.
Price 4s. Illustrated with Portraits of "Faust," "Marguerite," "Mephistopheles," "Siebel," "Valentine," and "Wagner."
HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

COOTE'S FAUST.
Price 4s. Illustrated with Portraits of "Faust," "Marguerite," "Mephistopheles," "Siebel," "Valentine," and "Wagner."
HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

NEW SONG BY CIRO PINSUTI.

OH! BLOW ME A KISS ON THE WIND.
Price 2s. 6d. One of the best of this Composer's pretty songs.
HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

WORKS BY LONGFELLOW.

THE RIVER BY THE. H. OLIVER.
Price 2s. 6d. A very pleasing ballad, beautifully illustrated.
HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

NEW CHEAPITY SONGS. 2s. 6d.

OH! WOULD I WERE A BIRD.
That I might be thee.
HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

MERRY SONGS.
Mary Ann; or The Roving Gardener ... 2s. 6d.
Jessie Lee; or, Love's Reward ... ... 2s. 6d.
Isabella; or, The Fisherman's Bride ... ... 2s. 6d.
Jessica Brown ... ... 2s. 6d.
Sweet Lucy Neal ... ... 2s. 6d.
HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

SONG OF THE DAY.

POLLY PERKINS. By HARRY CLIFTON.
Price 2s. 6d. Now ready.
HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

THREE GREAT SONGS.

OH! IF I HAD SOME ONE TO LOVE ME.
Price 2s. 6d. Composed by HENRY SMART. Sung by MISS POOLE.
IF YOUR SOME ONE TO LOVE ME. With words by MRS. NEWTON CROSLAND. Price 2s. 6d. Composed by HENRY SMART.
HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

FREE PRESENTATION COPY DEMANDED.
LEAF BY LEAF THE ROSES FALL.
Price 2s. 6d. "A pretty tear-ful melody."—Review.
HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

NEW MUSIC.

NICOLAI'S MERRY WIVES OF WINDSOR,
The only Authorised Edition.
Book of Overture Airs. Solo, 3s.; Duet, 4s.
Overture ... ... 4s.| ... 2s.
Potpourri (for four hands) ... ... 4s.| Brandus ... 4s.
Fantasia in Popular Airs. W. Beyer ... 4s.
Ditto, Brinley ... 4s.| Lamothe ... 4s.
Quadrilles (Lamothe) ... ... 4s.| Coote ... 4s.
Fantasia (Kuhe) ... ... 4s.| Favarger ... 4s.
The principal Airs, Solo and Duet, Words, as sung at Her Majesty's Theatre.
The Airs, arranged, by Brinley Richards, C. Coote, H. Maune (of the Crystal Palace), and DANCE MUSIC.
CRAMER, WOOD, and CO., 201, Regent-street.

THE BRIDE OF SONG.
Operetta in one Act. Written by HENRY FARNIE. Composed by JULES BRENEIS.
Vocal Score ... ... 4s. 0d.
1. Duet—Night and Morning ... ... 3s. 0d.
2. Song—Love's Dream Soon Departed, original key F to E flat ... 3s. 0d.
3. Song—Love's Dream Soon Departed, original key F to E flat ... 3s. 0d.
4. Trio—Now, girls, away! ... ... 3s. 0d.
5. Song—Love's Dream Soon Departed ... ... 3s. 0d.
6. Song—Love's Dream Soon Departed ... ... 3s. 0d.
7. Duet—Ah! Captain, I can see you ... ... 3s. 0d.
8. Duet—Ah! Captain ... ... 3s. 0d.
9. Duet—Do not ask me how time flies ... ... 3s. 0d.
10. Quartett—Ah! Captain, I can see you ... ... 3s. 0d.
11. Quartett—The mistress of the house ... ... 3s. 0d.
CRAMER, WOOD, and CO., 201, Regent-street.

SHE STOOPS TO CONQUER, OPERA,
by A. LAMOTHE. Complete Opera, 8s. net. All the Vocal Pieces may be had separately. Pianoforte Arrangements by Brinley Richards, Kuhe, Lamothe, Osborne, Favarger, Coote, Rimbault, Oscar Barrett, Jaspar Wrighton, and Quadrilles by C. Coote. Folios by Hunt Delacour.
CRAMER, WOOD, and CO., 201, Regent-street.

SWEET SPIRIT WALTZES.
By LAMOTHE. Beautifully Illustrated. 4s. Founded on four of the most favourite Songs of the day.
CRAMER, WOOD, and CO., 201, Regent-street.

BRINLEY RICHARDS' LEAH'S SONG.
3s. The most popular song of the day.
CRAMER, WOOD, and CO., 201, Regent-street.

THE PIPE. A Student's Song.
Illustrated with a fantastic Portrait of "the great Sir Walter Raleigh." 2s. 6d.
CRAMER, WOOD, and CO., 201, Regent-street.

BOAT SONG. By VERDI. 2s. 6d. A splendid Baritone Air.
CRAMER, WOOD, and CO., 201, Regent-street.

THE MAIDEN'S PRAYER. By VERDI.
3s. The celebrated "Maiden Prayer" from "La Forza del Destino," sung by Madame Lemmens Sherrington.
CRAMER, WOOD, and CO., 201, Regent-street.

LITTLE GOLDEN-HAIR. A Venetian
Ballad. The words written by VIRGINIA GABRIEL. 3s.
CRAMER, WOOD, and CO., 201, Regent-street.

GARIBALDI, Song. By ARDITI. Words
by Henry Farnie. Sung by Signor Gardoni.
CRAMER, WOOD, and CO., 201, Regent-street.

ANITA. By BRINLEY RICHARDS. 3s.
Founded on Airs in the Opera of the Isle of Barbadoes.
CRAMER, WOOD, and CO., 201, Regent-street.

ARDITI'S LA GELOSIA. 2s. 6d.
Song with such immense success at the Crystal Palace, Her Majesty's Theatre, and Hanover Square.
CRAMER, WOOD, and CO., 201, Regent-street.

LA GARIBALDINA.—BRINLEY
RICHARDS' Celebrated National Air arranged as a March for Piano, Violin, and Band. 3s.
CRAMER, WOOD, and CO., 201, Regent-street.

ARDITI'S GARIBALDINA. BRINLEY
RICHARDS' Celebrated National Air arranged as a March for Pianoforte, Violin, and Band. 3s.
CRAMER, WOOD, and CO., 201, Regent-street.

GRAZIELLA. A Musical Story. By J. J.
LONSDALE and LINLEY RICHARDS. Illustrated, and pourtrayed with the greatest success. Complete, handsomely bound, 21s. net.
Graziella, a Musical Story ... ... 2s. 6d.
Though the tempest wild surrounds me. (Duet) ... ... 3s. 6d.
Thou art gone. (Duet) ... ... 3s. 6d.
Farewell, my Graziella. (Duet) ... ... 3s. 6d.
The moment of parting. Duet. (Soprano and Tenor ... ... 3s. 6d.
A mother's love. (Soprano) ... ... 3s. 6d.
Happy am I. Barcle Finale. (Soprano) ... ... 3s. 6d.
Oh! Graziella, my love. (Tenor) ... ... 3s. 6d.
Graziella, Fantasia for Pianoforte ... ... 4s. net.
CRAMER, WOOD, and CO., 201, Regent-street.

CRAMER and CO.—PIANOFORTES for HIRE.
Pianoforte Gallery, 207 and 209, Regent-street.

CRAMER and CO.—PIANOFORTES for SALE.
Pianoforte Gallery, 207 and 209, Regent-street.

CRAMER and CO.—HARMONIUMS for HIRE.
201, Regent-street.

CRAMER and CO.—HARMONIUMS for SALE.
201, Regent-street.

CRAMER and CO.'S ARTIST'S
CONCERTINAS.
Lists of Prices on Application.
201, Regent-street.

CRAMER and CO.'S FOUR-GUINEA
CONCERTINA.
The best Concertina for Instrument, 7s6 produced.
201, Regent-street.

DIANOFORTES at CHAPPELL'S.—The largest Stock in London, by Broadwood, Collard, Erard, &c., for Sale or Hire.—50, New Bond-street.

CHAPPELL'S FOREIGN PIANINO
Of the only Pianino to which the Prize Medal was awarded.—
Pianinos, in Rosewood, 25 guineas; in Walnut, 27 guineas; in Oak, 30 guineas; and in Ebonised and Gold, 35 guineas. Also Grand Pianofortes, Trichords, and Cabinet Pianofortes, with check action and all the latest improvements.
Price, in mahogany, rosewood, or walnut, 35 and 36 guineas. A great variety may be seen at Chappell and Co.'s, 50, New Bond-street.

CHAPPELL and CO.'S ENGLISH MODEL
COTTAGE PIANOFORTE.—To commence purchasing the Pianoforte with confidence, the Manufacturer of the English Model will be found the most perfectly satisfactory instrument, as to quality of tone, touch, and durability. Every Pianoforte is warranted to be shown and tuned (without expense) once every year, during which time the more complicated actions are regulated as may be necessary, and if desired, exchanged within twelve months for a Grand. Every respect to other instruments at 25 guineas, price 25 guineas.
Chappell and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

ROADWOOD, COLLARD, and ERARD.
The best Pianofortes of every description, including all the newest tricks by those makers, may be had on hire, or for sale, and hired with option of purchase at the three-course of
CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

CHAPPELL'S TWENTY-GUINEA
PIANOFORTE, in satin mahogany or plain walnut, the best Pianoforte ever produced at the price. Every Pianoforte warranted for five years. Lists of Testimonials. Model Cottage Pianofortes, most recommended instrument as superior to any other manufacturer at about the same price. Lists of Testimonials.
Chappell and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

CHAPPELL'S SMALL FOREIGN MODEL
PIANOFORTE, at 20 guineas, a new Oblique Piano, with the full compass of seven octaves, and all the latest improvements, in handsome walnut wood case, with ornamental fronts. Models, but at a lower price than any other such pianoforte ever before produced. Lists of Testimonials.
Chappell and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

A LEXANDRE'S NEW SWING-BOOM
MODEL HARMONIUM, the best that can be made, price 20 guineas. Also Harmoniums at 25 and 30 guineas. Special Catalogues of Pianofortes and Harmoniums sent application to
CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

SIX-GUINEA HARMONIUM, by
ALEXANDRE, with two rows of keys, and two stops of 5 octaves each. These instruments are lower in price and superior to all other Harmoniums hitherto made at the price.
CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

SECOND HAND HARMONIUMS,
by ALEXANDRE, nearly all new either as great as new, at Chappell's Pianoforte Gallery, 50, New Bond-street.

ALEXANDRE'S PRIZE EXHIBITION
A MODEL HARMONIUM, for the CHURCH, 12 stops, 4 rows of keys, 5 octaves each, and pedals, price 60 guineas. Also a new model Harmonium, with two rows of keys, and may be obtained at CHAPPELL and CO.'S, 50, New Bond-street.

SECONDHAND PIANOFORTES,
by Broadwood, Collard, Erard, Kirkman, Pleyel, Wolff, and other eminent makers, which have been hired for the season, at very reduced prices. Also, New Pianofortes by the above makers.
Chappell and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

BOOSEY'S CONCERTINA GUIDE.
(The Minimum) is the best cheap Pianoforte ever manufactured. Its compass is 7 octaves, its tone is various, and possesses an excellent touch and quality of tone.

BOOSEYS' 26-GUINEA PIANOFORTE, in rosewood, and 27 guineas in Italian walnut, is the best Pianoforte for the price ever manufactured. It is a full-toned, musically sweet, and very powerful. This piano is also in a superior ornamented case, and possesses all the latest improvements. Lists of testimonials from the most eminent professors may be had of
BOOSEY and SONS, Holles-street.

THE COTTAGE, or SIX-GUINEA
HARMONIUM has a soft, agreeable quality of tone.
BOOSEY and SONS, Holles-street.

THE SCHOOL, or TEN-GUINEA,
HARMONIUM has a rich, full tone, suitable for leading chanting and accompanying. BOOSEY and SONS, Holles-street.

THE CHURCH HARMONIUMS, at 20, 25,
30, and 40 guineas, are especially and carefully adapted for places of worship.—BOOSEY and SONS, 24, Holles-street.

BOOSEYS' ENGLISH HARMONIUMS, with Pedals, are recommended as harmoniums well and carefully constructed, of really reformed prices, including instruments with two rows of keys and pedals.
BOOSEY and SONS, 24, Holles-street.

PIANOFORTES.—OETZMANN and
PLUMB'S New Pianette is acknowledged the best and cheapest Pianoforte ever manufactured. Price 20 guineas. Also a new model Pianoforte, with the full compass of seven octaves, in the wainscot enamel with price; plain wood, cheaper.
Oetzmann and Plumb's Drawing-Room Pianofortes.

OETZMANN and PLUMB'S DRAWING-
ROOM PIANOFORTES, in fine walnut cases, full compass, warranted.—51, Regent-street. Please observe the Address.

PIANOFORTES.—OETZMANN and
PLUMB'S Pianofortes, in every variety of wood and design, 25 to 35 guineas, are of the best possible description, and are fully warranted. Lists of testimonials, Warranted.—51, Regent-street.

OETZMANN and PLUMB'S INDIAN
PIANOFORTES, for Exhibition and Home Purposes. An inspection will convince buyers that they will get a serviceable Pianoforte, and one that will stand the climate, at a moderate price. Lists of testimonials. Folded, 10 guineas and one adapted for 35 guineas. Patentees.—51, Regent-street.

PIANOFORTES.—OETZMANN and
PLUMB have an Assortment of Pianofortes, by all the best makers, at 51, Regent-street, all they can desire in good instrument at moderate prices. Lists of testimonials. Pianofortes for hire, 1 guinea a month.—Secondhand Pianofortes, 15 guineas.—51, Regent-street, the only address.

HARMONIUMS.—ALEXANDRE'S best
Harmoniums, with two rows of keys, 20 guineas. Also descriptions of the celebrated Harmoniums, with pedals, for Church, Chapel, and Drawing-room.

CRAMER and CO.—PIANOFORTES for HIRE.
Pianoforte Gallery, 207 and 209, Regent-street.

CRAMER and CO.—PIANOFORTES for SALE.
Pianoforte Gallery, 207 and 209, Regent-street.

CRAMER and CO.—HARMONIUMS for HIRE.
201, Regent-street.

CRAMER and CO.—HARMONIUMS for SALE.
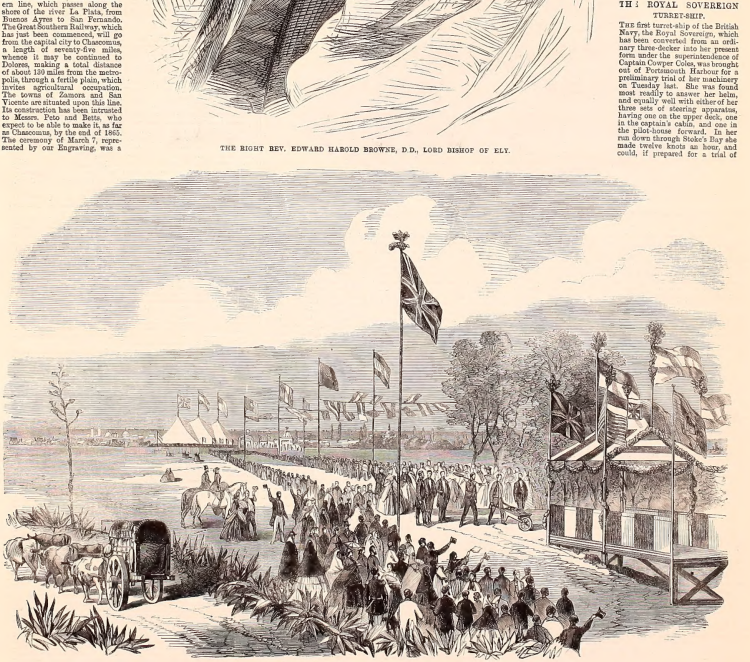
201, Regent-street.

CRAMER and CO.'S ARTIST'S
CONCERTINAS.
Lists of Prices on Application.
201, Regent-street.

CRAMER and CO.'S FOUR-GUINEA
CONCERTINA.
The best Concertina for Instrument, 7s6 produced.
201, Regent-street.

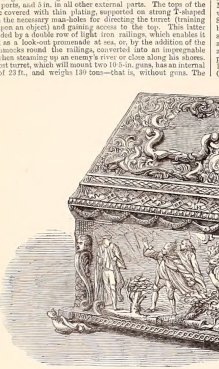
THE RIGHT REV. DR. BROWNE, BISHOP OF ELY.



THE installation of the new Bishop of Ely took place in Ely Cathedral on Tuesday, the 26th ult. The Right Rev. Edward Harold Browne, D.D., was educated at Cambridge, where he took honours in 1837. He was ordained by a former Bishop of Ely in 1837. He was for some time the Principal and Hebrew Professor of St. David's College, Lampeter. In 1849 he was presented to a living in Cornwall, and appointed one of the Prebendaries of Exeter Cathedral. In 1854 he was elected Norrisian Professor of Divinity in the University of Cambridge. He subsequently held the vicarage of Heavitree, a suburb of Exeter, and obtained a canonry in Exeter Cathedral. He is the author of several works of controversial divinity, amongst which is a reply to Bishop Colenso, published about a twelvemonth ago. The Portrait we give is from a photograph by Messrs. J. and C. Watkins, of Parliament-street.

THE RIGHT REV. EDWARD HAROLD BROWNE, D.D., LORD BISHOP OF ELY.

TURNING THE FIRST TURF OF THE BUENOS AYRES GREAT SOUTHERN RAILWAY.



THE Republic of Buenos Ayres, under the government of General Bartolomé Mitre, elected President in 1862, seems likely to become one of the most civilised and prosperous States of Spanish South America; and we publish this week, as an illustration of its recent progress, the Engraving from a sketch taken upon the occasion of turning the first turf of the Great Southern Railway on the 7th of March. There are two other railways in the country already at work—namely, the western line, from the city of Buenos Ayres to the town of Mercedes; and the northern line, which passes along the shore of the river La Plata, from Buenos Ayres to San Fernando. The Great Southern Railway, which has just been commenced, will go from the capital city to Chascomus, a length of seventy-five miles, whence it may be continued to Dolores, making a total distance of about 130 miles from the metropolis, through a fertile plain, which invites agricultural occupation. The towns of Ensenada and San Vicente are situated upon this line. Its construction has been intrusted to Messrs. Peto and Betts, who expect to be able to make it, as far as Chascomus, by the end of 1865. The ceremony of March 7, represented by our Engraving, was a happy festival for the citizens of Buenos Ayres. The ground upon which the "first sod" of the new railway was turned is that which will be the site of the city station. A numerous and brilliant assembly was there at the hour of noon. President Mitre, with Senor Saavedra, Governor of the province; Dr. Rawson, Prime Minister; Dr. Costa, Minister of Worship; Senor Elizalde, Minister of Foreign Affairs; Mr. Thornton, the British Minister, and the other foreign diplomatists; Mr. Frank Parish, the British Consul, and the other Consuls, with the resident merchants, naval and military officers, and a good number of ladies, honoured the occasion with their presence. Messrs. Zimmermann and Santamaria, with Mr. Parish, formed the local committee by whom all the proceedings were arranged. After a brief address from Mr. Parish, the engineer of the company, Mr. Rouball delivered the spade to President Mitre and the wheelbarrow to Governor Saavedra. They took these implements in hand, and proceeded to "turn the first sod" of the railway, the President remarking that he had more pride and pleasure in doing so than in leading an army to win glory on the blood-stained field. The earth being deposited in the wheelbarrow, Governor Saavedra, accompanied by President Mitre, rolled it to the end of the platform, as shown in our Engraving. The ceremony was thus concluded; but a sumptuous banquet had been spread in the neighbouring pavilion, where a company of 450 gentlemen sat down, with Mr. Parish in the chair. The toasts and speeches breathed a spirit of mutual congratulation upon the auspicious manner in which this work had been commenced.

TURNING THE FIRST TURF OF THE BUENOS AYRES GREAT SOUTHERN RAILWAY.

TH: ROYAL SOVEREIGN TURRET-SHIP.

THE first turret-ship of the British Navy, the Royal Sovereign, which has been converted from an ordinary three-decker into her present form under the superintendence of Captain Cowper Coles, was brought out of Portsmouth Harbour for a preliminary trial of her machinery on Tuesday last. She was found most readily to answer her helm, and equally well with either of her three sets of steering apparatus, having one on the upper deck, one in the captain's cabin, and one in the pilot-house forward. In her run down through Stoke's Bay she made twelve knots an hour, and could, if prepared for a trial of extract from the great actor's letter of thanks—"I cannot sufficiently express my acknowledgments for the honour you have done me in electing me a burgess of a town which will be ever distinguished and reverenced as the birthplace of Shakspeare; but I am using circumstances which have added to the obligation you have conferred upon me. The freedom of you town, sent to me in such an elegant and inestimable box, merits my warmest gratitude. It will be impossible for me to forget that the favour was first bestowed me so much as to mention my unworthy name with that most illustrious testimonial." With the casket Mr. Daniel has ordered to be also presented to the British Museum the engraved document upon vellum, which conveyed to Garrick the freedom of Stratford, with the Corporation seal, in red and white wax; the "Grant of Arms" also to Garrick, asking him to present the Corporation with some portrait of Shakspeare and of himself, to place in their hall, just then rebuilt; the Shakspearean silver medal worn by Garrick at the Jubilee, 1769, with other deeply interesting memorials of that event. Almost as precious as the cabinet itself is the second bequest made by Mr. Daniel to our national museum. It is a miniature of Shakspeare, exquisitely painted upon ivory by Kneller, and set as a ring under a crystal, in gold. It was once the property of Sarah Garrick, who constantly wore it, and showed it with gratification to his friends. A beautiful object is made from the celebrated mulberry-tree, the collection of the late Mr. George Daniel, known to be dispersed by our bereaved is very rich, for it contains another finely carved octagonal casket, and a handsomely executed tortoise-board, each from the "genuine and authentic wood." Mr. Daniel's library is stocked with rare folios and quartos of the early poets, and of Shakspeare's fellow authors; indeed, for such treasures, as well as for black-lettered ballads, dramatic poetry, and the literature connected with the days of chivalry, Gray, Cowper, and other famous poets and prose-writers, his collection has been justly described as one of the most complete (certainly far from very large) ever accumulated by a private individual. His love for Shakspeare is made manifest and connected with his life and works rose into a kind of adoration displayed by a reverential study of Shakspeare's works and a true sympathy with the man and the poet.

BOX MADE OF THE WOOD OF SHAKSPEARE'S MULBERRY TREE, PRESENTED TO GARRICK BY THE TOWN OF STRATFORD-ON-AVON.

CASKET MADE OF THE WOOD OF SHAKSPEARE'S MULBERRY-TREE, PRESENTED TO GARRICK BY THE TOWN OF STRATFORD-ON-AVON.

THE late Mr. George Daniel, of Canonbury, whose death we lately announced with much regret, was not only a lover and a critic, but a zealous collector of literary curiosities, amongst which are some interesting relics of Shakspeare, which he has bequeathed to the British Museum. We have, in the mean time, been permitted by his son, Dr. Daniel, of Stoke Newington, to engrave one of them, which is the box or casket, made of the wood of the mulberry-tree planted by Shakspeare, in which the freedom of the borough of Stratford-on-Avon was presented to Garrick. The casket was purchased by the late Mr. Mathews, the comedian, at Mrs. Garrick's sale, and would then be literary and dramatic lacking, but, when again in August, 1835, it was, amidst a crowd of bidders, knocked down to Mr. George Daniel, for a large sum. It is exquisitely carved with the following devices:—In the front, Fame holding the bust of Shakspeare, and the three Graces crowning him with laurel; on the back, Garrick, freely delineated, in the character of King Lear in the storm scene; on the sides are emblematical figures representing Tragedy and Comedy; the top and corners are boldly carved with subjects and devices from Shakspeare's works. It is raised upon and supported by four silver griffins, with claws for feet. On the lid of May, 1769, the freedom of Stratford-on-Avon was presented to Mr. Garrick, inclosed in this famous casket. We give the following specimen of ecclesiastical counterpoint. The concert, moreover, included several of our finest glees and part-songs; a madrigalian chorus, "Soul of the age—Shakspeare, rise!" composed by Mr. Leslie; a solo on the pianoforte by Mdme. Arabella Goddard, on the violin by Signor Sivori, and on the harmonium by M. Lemmens, the eminent professor of the Conservatoire of Brussels.

Mr. Deacon, the eminent composer and pianist, has begun a series of matinées of classical instrumental music. The first was given at the Hanover-square Rooms, on Monday last. The programme was really what it professed to be—a classical selection from the works of the great masters, Haydn, Mozart, Beethoven, Hummel, and Heiler. Mr. Deacon's principal performance was Mozart's beautiful sonata in A major, No. 8, which he played with clear and brilliant execution and great taste and expression. He was assisted in the concerted pieces by Messrs. Sainton, Watson, Pollitzer, Wehle, Clementi, and Pezze, and several vocal pieces were sung by Mdme. Lemmens. The performances were much applauded by a crowded audience.

THE THEATRES.

STRAND.—A new burlesque by Mr. H. J. Byron is now an ordinary occurrence, and his success is so constant that the products of his fertile pen are looked upon across criticism. His latest novelty at this theatre is one of his best productions, and promises to be the most popular. It is entitled "Marouska;" or, the Stick, the Pole, and the Tartar," and bodies forth a burlesque on Sardou's modern playpieces by the late Mr. Charles Selby's "Taming a Tartar," and previously known under the title of "The Stick, the Pole, and a Devil of a Wife," and "Le Diable à Quatre." The last appellation belongs both to an opera and a ballet on the subject, and as argument so well worn must need have accumulated materials and undergone modifications. Mr. Byron's version follows the ballet, and, leaving the scene in Poland, makes the husband a basket-maker and the wife a dancer. The latter element is abundantly supplied by Miss Marie Wilton, who, fascinating with charms, including an extravagant dust based on the "Nerves" of the musicballs, performed by Mr. G. Honey, and Mr. G. Fenton. The wife and husband are represented by Miss Marie Wilton and Mr. Maria Simpson—the tremagnent Countess Tiddlewinki being comically impersonated by Mr. G. Honey. The scenery, by Mr. Fenton, is exceedingly beautiful, and the whole affair is lively, humorous, and diverting in the extreme. It is crowded and peculiar of course attended, and there are more than usually successful. The dialogue has been written in Mr. Byron's happiest vein.

NAVAL AND MILITARY INTELLIGENCE.

WAR OFFICE.

15th Lancers: Gerard W. Watt to be Cornet.

1st Regiment of Foot: Lieut.-Gen. Sir Richard England to be Lieutenant-General; the Brevet rank of Lieutenant-Colonel R. Hughes to be Colonel; Second Capt. F. T. Whitmore to be Captain; Ensign and Lieut. Hon. A. Hepburn Stuart Forbes to be Lieutenant; Ensign and Lieut. R. F. Gubbins and E. W. Cragoe to be Lieutenants, without Purchase.

Royal Engineers: Cadet R. Rochester to be Lieutenant.

1st Foot: Ensign A. Thompson to be Lieutenant.—Ensign T. B. Mitford to be Ensign. 2nd: Lieut. H. Waring to be Captain; Ensign W. Mackie to be Lieutenant.; Hon. W. Bowenard to be Ensign. 3rd: Lieut. J. Hall to be Captain; Ensign J. Hall to be Lieutenant.—Ensign J. Hall to be Ensign. 5th: Lieut. R. Roberts to be Adjutant, vice Lieut. C. F. Armstrong to be Lieutenant.; H. C. Ellerman to be Ensign. 7th: Lieut. and Capt. Arthur Sargent, R. T. Armstrong to be Lieutenant.; H. C. Ellerman to be Ensign. 8th: Lieut. and Capt. Arthur Sargent, R. T. Armstrong to be Lieutenant.; H. C. Ellerman to be Ensign. 9th: Lieut. and Capt. Arthur Sargent, R. T. Armstrong to be Lieutenant.; H. C. Ellerman to be Ensign. 10th: Lieut. G. Bourchier to be Captain; Ensign J. Lyons to be Lieutenant.—Ensign C. G. Dempster and G. Godfrey to be Lieutenants. F. R. Brownrigg and F. Carrington to be Ensigns. 11th: Lieut. C. Hamilton to be Captain.—Ensign C. Hamilton to be Lieutenant.—Ensign C. Hamilton to be Captain; Ensign J. De R. Irvine to be Lieutenant.; G. G. Moody to be Ensign. 12th: W. Hutchinson to be Ensign. 13th: Lieut. and Capt. Arthur Sargent, R. T. Armstrong to be Lieutenant.; 14th: Lieut. R. Leyland to be Captain; Ensign C. G. Dempster and G. Godfrey to be Lieutenant. F. R. Brownrigg and F. Carrington to be Ensigns. 15th: Lieut. C. Hamilton to be Captain.—Ensign C. Hamilton to be Lieutenant.—Ensign C. Hamilton to be Captain; Ensign J. De R. Irvine to be Lieutenant.; G. G. Moody to be Ensign. 16th: W. Hutchinson to be Ensign. 17th: Lieut. C. Hamilton to be Captain; Ensign J. De R. Irvine to be Lieutenant.; 18th: Lieut. R. Leyland to be Captain; Ensign C. G. Dempster and G. Godfrey to be Lieutenant. G. S. Ward to be Ensign. 19th: Lieut. Henry F. H. Hardinge to be Assistant Adjutant-General, vice Lieut.-Col. Hon. Arthur Gough, C.B. 20th: Lieut. R. Roberts to be Adjutant, vice Lieut. A. J. Stewart to be Lieutenant.—Ensign A. Thompson to be Ensign. 21st: Lieut. and Capt. Hon. Arthur Sargent, R. T. Armstrong to be Lieutenant.; 24th: Lieut. R. W. De Lavanda to be Lieutenant.

The Duke of Somerset held the last levée of the season at the Admiralty on Thursday week.

The Admiralty yacht Black Eagle, Staff-Commander Whillier, has sailed from Woolwich, on special service for Holyhead.

Rear-Admiral the Hon. Josh. Denman was on Tuesday appointed Commander-in-Chief in the Pacific, vice Vice-Admiral Kingcome.

The half-yearly muster of the Brigade of Foot Guards took place on Monday, at the St. George's and Wellington Barracks.

Government officials have been at Southampton inspecting some of the mud-pilots' barges, to ascertain their fitness for war-transports.

The English garrison are to quit Corfu on the 3rd of June. The citadel and the new fort are also to be demolished.

The Prince Consort, iron-cased frigate, Captain G. Willis, C.B., sailed from Spithead on Tuesday morning for the Downs, to join the Channel Fleet.

The annual muster of the officers, under officers, and servants of the Royal Hospital, Chelsea, took place on Monday morning. Seats were provided for the accommodation of the old veterans who were unable to stand during the ceremony.

By the death of Lieutenant-General Geddes, Major-General H. A. Hanley becomes Colonel of the 2nd Queen's, and Colonel G. Brown, serving as a Major-General on the Staff in China, a Major-General on the royal establishment.

The half-yearly inspection of the pensioners inmates of the Royal Hospital, Chelsea, took place last week, when about 400 veterans assembled for inspection, and they passed muster to the entire satisfaction of the Lieutenant-Governor.

Vice-Admiral Richard Pridham, who had served on full pay in the Royal Navy thirty-three years, died at his residence, West-hoe-terrace, Devonport, on Saturday last, aged 74. He was the youngest son of the late Rev. Richard Pridham, M.A., of Lifton, in the county of Devon, and second to fourth cousin—Lieut.-Colonel Charles Saxby Harley, who had attained the age of seventy-five years, died at Bath on Wednesday week.

The Registrar-General of Seamen and Shipping in his monthly report on the Royal Naval Reserve states that 30,054 applications have been received since the 1st of November last, 20,000 of which have been passed, certificates of discharge have been granted to 14,000 men, 6,000 have certificates of service as masters, and fifty-three certificates of service as mates. The total number of men enrolled is 20,000 in the seven districts.

It appears from a Parliamentary return, issued on Monday, that the amount actually expended for the Navy during the year ending the 31st of March last was £8,836,000. The number of vessels in commission on the 1st of January was 168, viz.:—Screw steamers, 84; paddle steamers, 84. Their tonnage was as follows:—Warrior, £1,090,000; Black Prince, £1,090,000; Defence, £716,000; Resistance, £716,000; Pembroke, £716,000; Portland, £716,000; Gravesend, £45,000; Chatham, £127,000; Sheerness, £127,000; Southampton, £127,000; Dover, £45,000; Clerk, £98,000; experimens, £2000; clearance works, £6472; land surveyors' department, £4000; steam reserve at Chatham, £42,000; Portsmouth, £42,000; and other contingent expenses connected with works, £73,198.

The Madagascar mail-steamer Ethiopia was tested on the Cowhy Sands, near Liverpool, on Monday last. A steel bolt, 12 in. long and weighing 151lb., was fired at a target placed at a distance of the side of H.M.S. Conqueror, being built at Birkenhead. The target was constructed with a 6 in. armourplate, 9 in. teak backing, and 1 in. skin. The projectile was built with double supporting and strengthening the whole. The shot struck the target 19 in. from and directly in a line with the centre of the bull's-eye, went clean through, and a piece of the target, 90 lb. weight, 4 ft. deep in the sand, and then traveled 400 yards along the beach. The projectile and the target from the gun was 200 yards, the distance at which the authorities have tested other guns.

The twenty-fourth annual meeting of the friends of the Royal Naval Female School was held last Saturday, in the theatre of the United Service Institution, Whitehall, Admiral Sir Thomas Pasley, Bart., in the chair. The report spoke highly of the satisfactory progress made by the institution. There were eighty girls in the school, and 1,000 on the list, and all bore testimony to their progress in their education. Several handsome legacies had been received during the year, and the sum of £1,000 had been invested in the funds. The receipts during the year had been £2,000, and there was a balance in hand of £600 for the general fund. The balance on the year was £1,000 in favour of the institution. Subscriptions, and in one instance £100, were invested fund £3000.

The iron-clad frigate Caledonia, the third of the squadron of wooden screw-line frigates which has been completed and equipped for sea, underwent her official trial at the Maplin Sands yesterday week with the most satisfactory results. The Caledonia has been fitted with a pair of directacting double piston-rod engines of 1000-horse power (nominal), by Messrs. Maudslay, Sons, and Field. Her screw is four-bladed, and is an improved Admiralty blade, set at a pitch of 27 ft. Six runs were taken over the measured mile at full-power, with the following results:—First run: time, 3 min. 40 sec.; speed, 13·6 knots. Second run: time, 3 min. 36 sec.; speed, 13·9 knots. Third run: 6 min. 31 sec.; speed, 19·870 knots. Fourth run: 5 min. 57 sec.; speed, 18·1 knots. Fifth run: 5 min. 57 sec.; speed, 18·1 knots. Sixth run: 5 min. 8 sec.; speed, 14·616 knots. The average speed of the six runs was 17·208 knots, or 19·7 statute miles per hour. The Caledonia was launched in 1970. Two runs were afterwards taken at half-boiler power, when an average speed of 10·710 knots was obtained. The result of the trial proves that the Caledonia is a faster ship than the Royal Oak.

MILITIA.

The 2nd Royal Surrey Militia, who have been for some time past encamped in a field on the outskirts of Guildford, in consequence of the prevalence of smallpox in that town, removed on Saturday to Whitmoor-common, in the vicinity of Worplesdon, and will remain there under canvas until further orders.

The Suffolk Militia Artillery, under the command of Colonel R. A. Shafto Adair, Aide-de-Camp, to the Queen, having completed their period of training at Harwich, were officially inspected on Saturday by Colonel C. B. Riddell, C.B., commanding the Royal Artillery in the Chatham district. During the time the regiment has been encamped at the garrison the officers and men have been put through a practical course of instruction with shot and shell from the Shoeburyness artillery practice-ground and batteries and fortifications.

The Worcestershire Militia completed their annual permanent drill on Saturday at Worcester, when the men were reviewed by Colonel Evans, of the 4th Light Dragoons. They went through a very creditable drill, and were dismissed with compliments to the reviewing officer.

The Warwickshire Militia completed their twenty-eighth days' training at Newnham on the 6th inst. The regiment was reviewed on that day by Major Fellowes, of the 8th Hussars, on the Priors Hardwick-hill, the men very highly on the efficiency with which they had gone through their evolutions, and also as to their soldier-like appearance.

The 2nd Duke of Lancaster's Own Militia (Rifles) were inspected at Liverpool on the 8th inst. by Colonel the Hon. Sir Percy Herbert, K.C.B. The regiment was under the command of Major Wardley, and the inspection took place in the presence of the Mayor of Liverpool and an immense number of spectators. The regiment, after performing many battalion movements, as well as light infantry, was complimented by the inspecting officer on its very efficient state. The regiment is above 1100 strong.—The Royal Lancashire Militia Artillery (Lord Derby's), under the command of Colonel Wilson, left the barracks, Everton, Liverpool, by Colonel Woodhouse, C.B. The regiment, which is now 600 strong, was put through various drills and exercises, the last terminating the inspection, Colonel Woodhouse said their drill was as good as he had ever seen it performed by any regiment. The inspecting officer was the 6th Regt. Lancashire Militia, at whose head Colonel Woodhouse left the regiment numbers 980 men, and of these 180 are recruits. The inspecting officer complimented Lieutenant-Colonel Wilcocks on the soldier-like appearance of the regiment.

The 3rd York Light, under the command of Lieutenant-Colonel Cairns, was inspected by Colonel Campbell, the commanding officer for the Northern District, at Scarborough, on Wednesday week. The appearance of the men was good.—The 4th West York Militia, after twenty-one days' training, were inspected on Monday, the 9th inst., at Selby, yesterday week, by Colonel Bingham, Assistant-Adjutant-General, Manchester. The regiment was put through various drills and exercises, and performed nearly the whole of which were admirably executed. At the conclusion, the inspecting officer addressed the officers and men, and said he had never been much gratified by what he had seen. The strength of the regiment assembled was about 500.

The Royal Cumberland Militia, who, under the command of the Hon. Colonel Lowther, M.P., have been in training at Carlisle during the past fortnight, were reviewed at Whitehaven on Thursday week, by Colonel Wright, of the Prince Regent Hussars. The regiment was marched past in front and file. The review having been concluded in a most satisfactory manner, the inspecting officer complimented the officers and men upon the precision and exactness with which the various evolutions had been performed.

A War Office return gives the number of effective men of the militia of the United Kingdom at the training in 1863:—There were present on the day of inspection 31,691 officers, 1,000 staff-sergeants, and 93,451 privates. The absentees were 812 officers, of whom 93 were absent without leave; 10 non-commissioned officers, of whom 2 were absent without leave; and 2,021 privates; of whom 7685 were absent without leave. The numbers returned to complete the establishment were 1,000 officers, 20 non-commissioned officers, and 19,681 privates; but it should be explained that an augmentation of 1,000 officers, 20 non-commissioned officers, and 20,000 privates had been authorized, with two supernumerary Lieutenants in the three being allowed to each regiment.

THE VOLUNTEER MOVEMENT.

It has been determined that the Queen's birthday shall be celebrated by a grand review of volunteers in the Queen of Wales's Royal Park. The review will be held on Saturday, the 28th, and it is expected that the volunteers will march past" several times.

The May general meeting of the National Rifle Association is announced for this month, in accordance with custom, on the 25th inst.

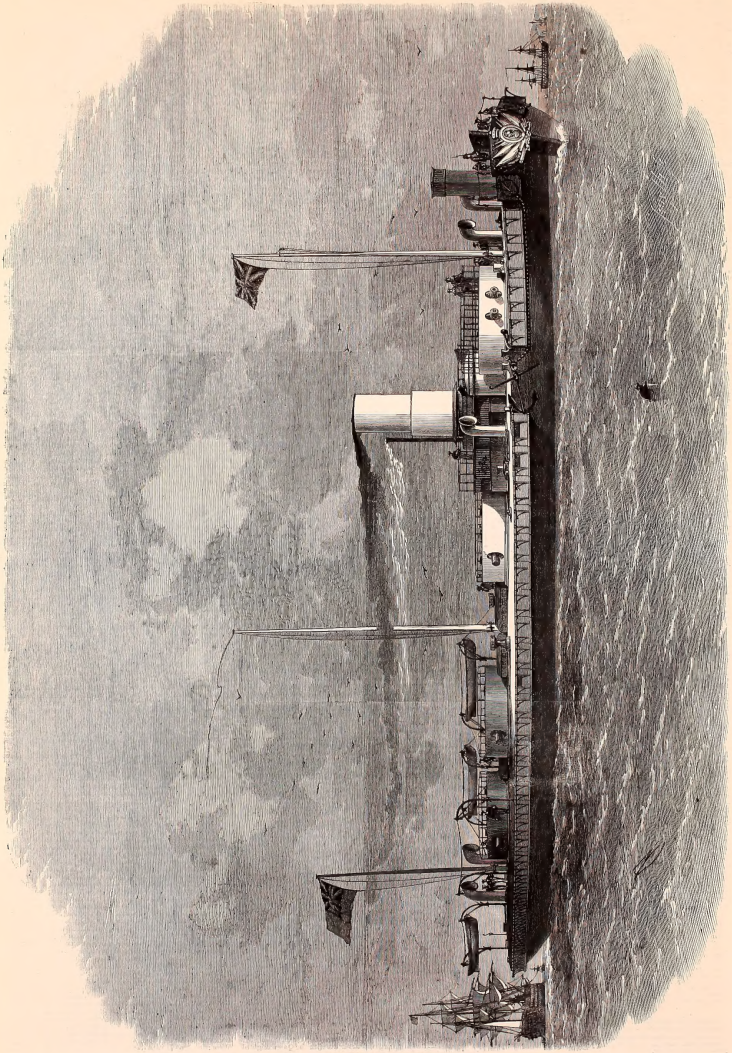
A competition took place for the Harrow cup last Saturday at Worcester Park, between ten and eleven o'clock, the distance being ten miles of No. 1 company West Middlesex (the holders). The match resulted in favour of the Victorias by 14 points.

On Saturday evening the metropolitan volunteers were under marching orders at Epsom, but the fineness of the weather had the effect of producing unusually good muster.

At a dinner at Beaufort House yesterday week in connection with a rifle competition amongst the officers of the Gloucestershire Militia Artillery, the Duke of Beaufort, who presided, proposed the health of the enemy. He (the Duke) stated that it was the intention of the Government to deal fiercely with his new recruits, either in the matter of discipline, or with regard to their conduct in the presence of internal enemies. He hoped that, if supported by such experience, gave it as his opinion that in the hands of our volunteer force, which now numbered 160,000 men, we had nothing to fear from any attempted invasion.

An All-Comers rifle prize meeting, for Enfield rifles only, will take place at the Over range, Gloucester, on the 17th, 18th, and 19th inst. £1000 will be offered for competition in the Queen's prize, £100 in the Queen's the finest in the kingdom, being upwards of 1200 yards in length and of a depth of two hundred yards. The Great Western, Midland, and London and North-Western and Severn and Wye railway companies, throughout their respective lines, have announced that every volunteer in uniform will be conveyed to and from meeting and from the meeting at a single fare. The squads will fire under cover.

The Corporal Volunteer Association of Scotland offers prizes to the value of about £600 for competition at the annual meeting in June next. The highest prize is £75 and is open to the world.



The annual competition in connection with the Staffordshire Rifle Association is fixed to take place at Newcastle on the 29th, 30th, and 31st of July next. It has also been decided at Newcastle that the 1st battalion of the county volunteer force be the 1st of August.

The Doncaster Gazette says that Earl Fitzwilliam, the Lord Lieutenant, has determined that a review of the volunteers of the West Riding shall take place at Doncaster during the present month, if the promise that has not been made. In a communication from Colonel Harman, the Assistant-Adjutant-General of the district, to the commanding officers of corps in the West Riding, Colonel Harman, Colonel mentioned Wednesday, the 25th of June, as the most probable day for the review at Doncaster. Wednesday, the 6th of June, as the last day on which orders are to be issued for the 1st of August.

The annual competition in connection with the Staffordshire Rifle Association is fixed to take place at Newcastle on the 29th, 30th, and 31st of July next. It has also been decided at Newcastle that the 1st battalion of the county volunteer force be the 1st of August.

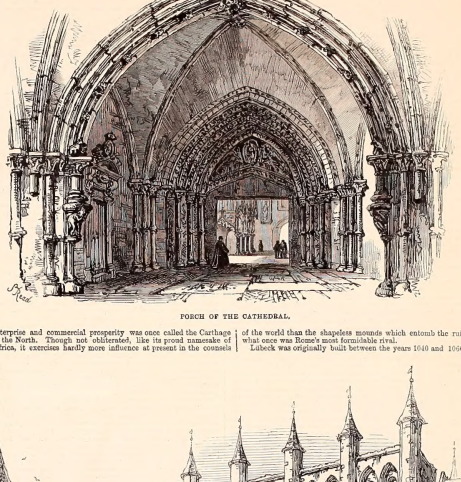
The Doncaster Gazette says that Earl Fitzwilliam, the Lord Lieutenant, has determined that a review of the volunteers of the West Riding shall take place at Doncaster during the present month, if the promise that has not been made. In a communication from Colonel Harman, the Assistant-Adjutant-General of the district, to the commanding officers of corps in the West Riding, Colonel Harman, Colonel mentioned Wednesday, the 25th of June, as the most probable day for the review at Doncaster. Wednesday, the 6th of June, as the last day on which orders are to be issued for the 1st of August.

The second annual prize meeting of the Herefordshire Rifle Association took place on the 28th ult. A 200 yards stand is in prizes, open to all England, and, although the entries were not numerous, the shooting was first rate, and, in the main, the winners were the best shots. There was but one stand, and the range, which a large outlay had been made since last year, has was acknowledged by some of the crack shots to be the best in the County of Kingdom. Match A was for £151, in twenty-four prizes, ranging from £20 to £1. The conditions were Enfield, with sights, at 200 yards, five rounds, any position. The following were the highest scores:—Lieutenant Burt, 16; Private —, Captain Wood, 15; Lieutenant Hall, 15; Lieutenant Mortimer, West Middlesex, 15; Captain Brooker, 10th Leicester, 15; R. Phillips, Herefordshire, 15; Private Cartwright, Herefordshire, 15. Match B was for £151, in twenty-four prizes, ranging from £20 to £1. The conditions were Enfield, with sights, at 200 yards, five rounds, any position. Two sighters were allowed ten each to any position. The following were the highest scores:—Sergeant-Major Kimberley, 1st Herefordshire, 25; Private Cartwright, Herefordshire, 24; Sergeant-Major Kimberley, 1st Herefordshire, 24; Captain Fenton, 20th Lancashire, 23; Lieutenant Burt, 23; Private Phillips, Herefordshire, 23; Lieutenant Hall, 23; Lieutenant Mortimer, West Middlesex, 23; Captain Brooker, 10th Leicester, 23; Private Wood, 23; Lieutenant Burt, 22; Lieutenant Hall, 22; Lieutenant Mortimer, West Middlesex, 22; Captain Brooker, 10th Leicester, 22; Private Cartwright, Herefordshire, 22; Private Phillips, Herefordshire, 22; Private Wood, 22; Sergeant-Major Kimberley, 1st Herefordshire, 22; Captain Fenton, 20th Lancashire, 22; Lieutenant Burt, 21; Lieutenant Hall, 21; Lieutenant Mortimer, West Middlesex, 21; Captain Brooker, 10th Leicester, 21; Private Cartwright, Herefordshire, 21; Private Phillips, Herefordshire, 21; Private Wood, 21; Sergeant-Major Kimberley, 1st Herefordshire, 21; Captain Fenton, 20th Lancashire, 21; Lieutenant Burt, 20; Lieutenant Hall, 20; Lieutenant Mortimer, West Middlesex, 20; Captain Brooker, 10th Leicester, 20; Private Cartwright, Herefordshire, 20; Private Phillips, Herefordshire, 20; Private Wood, 20; Sergeant-Major Kimberley, 1st Herefordshire, 20; Captain Fenton, 20th Lancashire, 20; Lieutenant Burt, 19; Lieutenant Hall, 19; Lieutenant Mortimer, West Middlesex, 19; Captain Brooker, 10th Leicester, 19; Private Cartwright, Herefordshire, 19; Private Phillips, Herefordshire, 19; Private Wood, 19; Sergeant-Major Kimberley, 1st Herefordshire, 19; Captain Fenton, 20th Lancashire, 19; Lieutenant Burt, 18; Lieutenant Hall, 18; Lieutenant Mortimer, West Middlesex, 18; Captain Brooker, 10th Leicester, 18; Private Cartwright, Herefordshire, 18; Private Phillips, Herefordshire, 18; Private Wood, 18; Sergeant-Major Kimberley, 1st Herefordshire, 18; Captain Fenton, 20th Lancashire, 18; Lieutenant Burt, 17; Lieutenant Hall, 17; Lieutenant Mortimer, West Middlesex, 17; Captain Brooker, 10th Leicester, 17; Private Cartwright, Herefordshire, 17; Private Phillips, Herefordshire, 17; Private Wood, 17; Sergeant-Major Kimberley, 1st Herefordshire, 17; Captain Fenton, 20th Lancashire, 17; Lieutenant Burt, 16; Lieutenant Hall, 16; Lieutenant Mortimer, West Middlesex, 16; Captain Brooker, 10th Leicester, 16; Private Cartwright, Herefordshire, 16; Private Phillips, Herefordshire, 16; Private Wood, 16; Sergeant-Major Kimberley, 1st Herefordshire, 16; Captain Fenton, 20th Lancashire, 16; Lieutenant Burt, 15; Lieutenant Hall, 15; Lieutenant Mortimer, West Middlesex, 15; Captain Brooker, 10th Leicester, 15; Private Cartwright, Herefordshire, 15; Private Phillips, Herefordshire, 15; Private Wood, 15; Sergeant-Major Kimberley, 1st Herefordshire, 15; Captain Fenton, 20th Lancashire, 15; Lieutenant Burt, 14; Lieutenant Hall, 14; Lieutenant Mortimer, West Middlesex, 14; Captain Brooker, 10th Leicester, 14; Private Cartwright, Herefordshire, 14; Private Phillips, Herefordshire, 14; Private Wood, 14; Sergeant-Major Kimberley, 1st Herefordshire, 14; Captain Fenton, 20th Lancashire, 14; Lieutenant Burt, 13; Lieutenant Hall, 13; Lieutenant Mortimer, West Middlesex, 13; Captain Brooker, 10th Leicester, 13; Private Cartwright, Herefordshire, 13; Private Phillips, Herefordshire, 13; Private Wood, 13; Sergeant-Major Kimberley, 1st Herefordshire, 13; Captain Fenton, 20th Lancashire, 13; Lieutenant Burt, 12; Lieutenant Hall, 12; Lieutenant Mortimer, West Middlesex, 12; Captain Brooker, 10th Leicester, 12; Private Cartwright, Herefordshire, 12; Private Phillips, Herefordshire, 12; Private Wood, 12; Sergeant-Major Kimberley, 1st Herefordshire, 12; Captain Fenton, 20th Lancashire, 12; Lieutenant Burt, 11; Lieutenant Hall, 11; Lieutenant Mortimer, West Middlesex, 11; Captain Brooker, 10th Leicester, 11; Private Cartwright, Herefordshire, 11; Private Phillips, Herefordshire, 11; Private Wood, 11; Sergeant-Major Kimberley, 1st Herefordshire, 11; Captain Fenton, 20th Lancashire, 11; Lieutenant Burt, 10; Lieutenant Hall, 10; Lieutenant Mortimer, West Middlesex, 10; Captain Brooker, 10th Leicester, 10; Private Cartwright, Herefordshire, 10; Private Phillips, Herefordshire, 10; Private Wood, 10; Sergeant-Major Kimberley, 1st Herefordshire, 10; Captain Fenton, 20th Lancashire, 10; Lieutenant Burt, 9; Lieutenant Hall, 9; Lieutenant Mortimer, West Middlesex, 9; Captain Brooker, 10th Leicester, 9; Private Cartwright, Herefordshire, 9; Private Phillips, Herefordshire, 9; Private Wood, 9; Sergeant-Major Kimberley, 1st Herefordshire, 9; Captain Fenton, 20th Lancashire, 9; Lieutenant Burt, 8; Lieutenant Hall, 8; Lieutenant Mortimer, West Middlesex, 8; Captain Brooker, 10th Leicester, 8; Private Cartwright, Herefordshire, 8; Private Phillips, Herefordshire, 8; Private Wood, 8; Sergeant-Major Kimberley, 1st Herefordshire, 8; Captain Fenton, 20th Lancashire, 8; Lieutenant Burt, 7; Lieutenant Hall, 7; Lieutenant Mortimer, West Middlesex, 7; Captain Brooker, 10th Leicester, 7; Private Cartwright, Herefordshire, 7; Private Phillips, Herefordshire, 7; Private Wood, 7; Sergeant-Major Kimberley, 1st Herefordshire, 7; Captain Fenton, 20th Lancashire, 7; Lieutenant Burt, 6; Lieutenant Hall, 6; Lieutenant Mortimer, West Middlesex, 6; Captain Brooker, 10th Leicester, 6; Private Cartwright, Herefordshire, 6; Private Phillips, Herefordshire, 6; Private Wood, 6; Sergeant-Major Kimberley, 1st Herefordshire, 6; Captain Fenton, 20th Lancashire, 6; Lieutenant Burt, 5; Lieutenant Hall, 5; Lieutenant Mortimer, West Middlesex, 5; Captain Brooker, 10th Leicester, 5; Private Cartwright, Herefordshire, 5; Private Phillips, Herefordshire, 5; Private Wood, 5; Sergeant-Major Kimberley, 1st Herefordshire, 5; Captain Fenton, 20th Lancashire, 5; Lieutenant Burt, 4; Lieutenant Hall, 4; Lieutenant Mortimer, West Middlesex, 4; Captain Brooker, 10th Leicester, 4; Private Cartwright, Herefordshire, 4; Private Phillips, Herefordshire, 4; Private Wood, 4; Sergeant-Major Kimberley, 1st Herefordshire, 4; Captain Fenton, 20th Lancashire, 4; Lieutenant Burt, 3; Lieutenant Hall, 3; Lieutenant Mortimer, West Middlesex, 3; Captain Brooker, 10th Leicester, 3; Private Cartwright, Herefordshire, 3; Private Phillips, Herefordshire, 3; Private Wood, 3; Sergeant-Major Kimberley, 1st Herefordshire, 3; Captain Fenton, 20th Lancashire, 3; Lieutenant Burt, 2; Lieutenant Hall, 2; Lieutenant Mortimer, West Middlesex, 2; Captain Brooker, 10th Leicester, 2; Private Cartwright, Herefordshire, 2; Private Phillips, Herefordshire, 2; Private Wood, 2; Sergeant-Major Kimberley, 1st Herefordshire, 2; Captain Fenton, 20th Lancashire, 2; Lieutenant Burt, 1; Lieutenant Hall, 1; Lieutenant Mortimer, West Middlesex, 1; Captain Brooker, 10th Leicester, 1; Private Cartwright, Herefordshire, 1; Private Phillips, Herefordshire, 1; Private Wood, 1; Sergeant-Major Kimberley, 1st Herefordshire, 1; Captain Fenton, 20th Lancashire, 1; Lieutenant Burt, 0; Lieutenant Hall, 0; Lieutenant Mortimer, West Middlesex, 0; Captain Brooker, 10th Leicester, 0; Private Cartwright, Herefordshire, 0; Private Phillips, Herefordshire, 0; Private Wood, 0; Sergeant-Major Kimberley, 1st Herefordshire, 0; Captain Fenton, 20th Lancashire, 0

THE ROYAL SOVEREIGN TURRET-SHIP.—SEE PAGE 477.

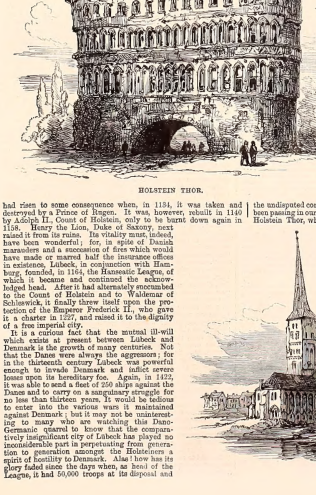
Leaves from a Sketch-Book.

LÜBECK.



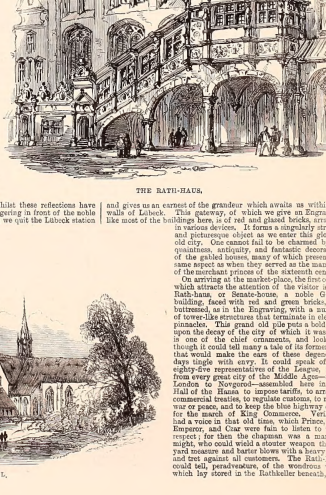
IN a former number we gave illustrations of some of the most interesting monuments of Nuremberg. If our readers will follow us, we propose to introduce them to another of the great commercial emporiums of the Middle Ages—the old Hanseatic town of Lübeck. Just at this time a peculiar interest is attached to it, as it happens to be situated in a province which has already driven half Germany frantic, and may possibly yet end by setting all Europe by the ears. War has its uses, especially when it breaks out in some remote Turkish principality, in an Indian cantonment, or, as in this case, in a disputed German duchy. It is fail to soften men's manners, it at least helps forward the ingenuous art of the magnifier, and gives consistency to the idea that there may be, beyond the limits of the three kingdoms, some "questions" that admit of no answer but that "might is right;" and some "causes" which, however misty and theoretical in their origin, lead to very practical, not to say sanguinary, effects. Few of our readers, doubtless, failed to provide themselves with a map and to brush up their geography when it was announced that the indefinite process termed "federal execution" was to take place in Holstein, and that the contingents of the various grand-dukelings, whose microscopic dominions fill up the interstices of the geographical puzzle called Germany, were very unseemly hurrying to be beforehand with Austria and Prussia upon the scene of action. In the south-eastern corner of the map of Holstein, at the confluence of the rivers Trave and Wackenitz, one may observe the town and territory of Lübeck—the latter, though only eighty-eight square miles in extent, yet, in true German fashion, split up into ten distinct and scattered portions. As one of the four Hanse towns, Lübeck is an imperium in imperio, and, save that—like Hamburg, Bremen, and Frankfort—it is one of the numerous members of the Germanic Confederation, and so is bound to contribute the imposing contingent of 400 men to its army, it is not otherwise directly concerned in the quarrel between Germany and Denmark.

When, a few weeks ago, it was announced that Lübeck intended to protest against the passage of Austrian and Prussian troops through its territory, one was made suddenly aware how almost ludicrously insignificant its powers had become, and how little effect its "brave words" were likely to have upon the conduct of the offending Powers. And yet there was a time when the proudest "He" of Brandenburg would have thought twice before braving the wrath of Lübeck. We have but to take a glance at the old city, with its huge ramparts, its feudal gates, and its mediæval architecture, to see that it had a day of glory once. And, ere we enter it to take a more minute survey of its numberless points of interest, we may pause a moment, and, with almost mournful thoughts upon the perishable nature of all sublunary greatness, jot down a few outlines of the history of this fallen city, which for its maritime enterprise and commercial prosperity was once called the Carthage of the North. Though not obliterated, like its proud namesake of Africa, it exercises hardly more influence at present in the counsels of the world than the shapeless mounds which entomb the ruins of what once was Rome's most formidable rival.



Lübeck was originally built between the years 1040 and 1056, and had risen to some consequence when, in 1134, it was taken and destroyed by a Prince of Regen. It was, however, rebuilt in 1140 by Adolph II., Count of Holstein, only to be burnt down again in 1158. Henry the Lion, Duke of Saxony, next raised it from its ruins. Its vitality must, indeed, have been wonderful; for, in spite of Danish marauders and a succession of fires which would have made or marred half the insurance offices in existence, Lübeck, in conjunction with Hamburg, founded, in 1164, the Hanseatic League, of which it became and continued the acknowledged head. After it had alternately encumbered to the Count of Holstein and to Waldemar of Schleswig, it finally threw itself upon the protection of the Emperor Frederick II., who gave it a charter in 1227, and raised it to the dignity of a free imperial city.

It is a curious fact that the mutual ill-will which exists at present between Lübeck and Denmark is the growth of many centuries. Not that the Danes were always the aggressors: for in the thirteenth century Lübeck was powerful enough to invade Denmark and inflict severe losses upon its hereditary foe. Again, in 1422, it was able to send a fleet of 250 ships against the Danes and to carry on a sanguinary struggle for no less than thirteen years. It would be tedious to enter into the various wars it maintained against Denmark; but it may not be uninteresting to many who are watching this Dano-Germanic quarrel to know that the comparatively insignificant city of Lübeck has played no inconsiderable part in perpetuating from generation to generation amongst the Holsteiners a spirit of hostility to Denmark. Alas! how has its glory faded since the days when, as head of the League, it had 50,000 troops at its disposal and the undisputed command of the sea! Whilst these reflections have been passing in our minds we have been lingering in front of the noble Holstein Thor, which stands before us as we quit the Lübeck station and gives us an earnest of the grandeur which awaits us within the walls of Lübeck. This gateway, of which we give an Engraving, like most of the buildings here, is of red and glazed bricks, arranged in various devices. It forms a singularly striking and picturesque object as we enter this glorious old city. One cannot fail to be charmed by the quaintness, antiquity, and fantastic decorations of the gabled houses, many of which present the same aspect as when they served as the mansions of the merchant princes of the sixteenth century.



On arriving at the market-place, the first object which attracts the attention of the visitor is the Bath-haus, or Senate-house, a noble Gothic building, faced with red and green bricks, and buttressed, as in the Engraving, with a number of tower-like structures that terminate in elegant pinnacles. This grand old pile puts a bold face upon the decay of the city of which it was and is one of the chief ornaments, and looks as though it could tell many a tale of its former self that would make the ears of these degenerate days tingle with envy. It could speak of the eighty-five representatives of the League, who, from every great city of the Middle Ages—from London to Novgorod—assembled here in the Hall of the Hanse to impose tariffs, to arrange commercial treaties, to regulate customs, to make war or peace, and to keep the blue highway clear for the march of King Commerce. Verily it had a voice in that old time, which Prince, and Emperor, and Czar were fain to listen to with respect; for then the chapman was a man of might, who could wield a stouter weapon than a yard measure and barter blows with a heavy axe and trot against all customers. The Bath-haus could tell, spendthrift-like, of the wondrous wine which lay stored in the Rathkeller beneath, and

PORCH OF THE CATHEDRAL.

HOLSTEIN THOR.

THE RATH-HAUS.

THE CATHEDRAL.

which aged men avouched to be two hundred years old and to have been a tradition in the days of their grandsires. Horace's inner brand of Falernian was but an infant in comparison with this "curiously old" wine. It is said that this cellar, which has now been converted into a restaurant, still boasts something of its former quaintness, and that the genius loci imparts its spirit, if not its antiquity, to the choice wines which may be obtained there. Lübeck was once celebrated no less for its beer, which was turned to base use, and applied externally as a cure for wounds and bruises; though that nonchalant champion, Captain Dugald Dalgetty, when in the enjoyment of good health to its excellence, also, as an inward application, and ranks its qualities almost on a par with Rhenish wine. When pledging his fellow-prisoner, with much gravity, in cool Lübeck ale, he says with truth—"I drink to your speedy deliverance, ourselves not forgetting mine own, and could wish with courage it were in my power." Whether Lübeck beer at the least, were it but in honour of the pledge.

But we will leave the Schütting, and the Rathskeller, and pause to see the state dining-room which the good citizens of Lübeck caused one of their architects to be beheaded for constructing in the Town Hall. No doubt this was done, as in Byng's case, pour encourager les autres: but it does not appear that the architect was guilty of any culinary offence either upon the bravery or the development of their fleet, which is the real thing of the piece.

Leaving this popular educator, we turn to the Cathedral, a lofty building of red brick, and enter by the noble porch depicted in our Engraving. The Cathedral of Constance, which is also built with an considerable rareness, though each has some one or more features of interest not to be found in any other, is the one to visit for the beautiful specimen of ancient wood-carving on the choir-screen, where the figures are life-size and distinguished by much grace of expression and delicate workmanship, there is on the north side an altarpiece, of which the Lübeckers are justly proud. The paintings thereon were executed by Bending, in 1471, and are in the finest state of preservation. On either side are shutters, there are two compartments of the Annunciation. When these are opened there is a second set, painted with the figures of St. John, St. Peter, St. Paul, and St. Blaize. The colours are fresh and brilliant, and such that the figures might almost walk from their panels. Who can tell what might have happened—would the year Abomination of Desolation, 1892, be Jägodies, or St. Silos, had not himself been a cripple and the patron of cripples? Or, if not a cripple, then St. Giles, Nightgown, the "move-on" age is not the time for St. Jägodius, and this may account for the decay of the once famous cripple. Be that as it may, English churches were dedicated to him, and possibly for the exceedingly Jägodian, the Lübeckers have dedicated to him one of the unsavoury St. Giles's. As to St. Blaize, he was once a well-known saint in England. He used to have considerable power over wild beasts, and to have given the name of St. Blazy to a village in that country. In former times fern seeds were supposed to render the wearer invisible in England on Feb. 3 in honour either of his sainthship or his name. As he was martyred in the persecution of Diocletian by the dreadful process of combing his flesh with iron combs, he was the patron of wool combers as their patron saint; and, so lately as 1791, if we are to believe Mr. John Britton, he is represented on the seal of the office as a profile of the saint on the obverse and a view of the Cloth Hall on the reverse. Among the decorations of the choir are representations of these saints, there are three magnificent paintings of the Passion, which, if the high antiquarian is to be trusted, are the most ancient of the sacred pictures of the old German masters, are marvellous for their freshness and beauty. We now enter the nave, and pass out on the south side, which preserves the singular tradition that the cathedral was built by Henry the Lion on the very spot where he had caught a wonderful stag, he knew by the golden collar it wore obviously, with a jewelled collar about its neck and a cross between its horns, and therefore, the Cathedral was built on the spot where the Lion could well understand the meaning of Virgil's "vivacis cornua cervi," and may possibly have had that Horace in his mind's eye. Some clears of that royal animal to enable him to do justice to such venison. It was worthy to be hunted down by a lion, and worthy of a Rathkeller.

Interesting, however, as the Cathedral is, it is far surpassed by the Marienkirche, a most splendid, alpine, also of red brick. The interior is richly painted with many ancient frescoes, and contains, like so many foreign churches, a Dance of Death, which is remarkable as being thirty-five years older than Holbein's celebrated production of the same name. It appears to be the work of a most graphic vitality, that these medieval worthies were never tired of pressing upon us the belief that Death is the Great Leveller. The skeleton in the cupboard as everyday spectacle. From the picture represented people at various social grades, from the Pope downwards to the meanest subject, from the old man to the infant, led round in a circle by an ape—a most ingenious, and at the same time, a most simple and painfully pronunciato. Here also are some ancient paintings, representing scenes from the Crucifixion and the life of our Saviour, together with two very beautiful works of Overbeck. In this church, too, is one of the lions of Lübeck, in the shape of a curious clock, which, like those at Berne, Geneva, and elsewhere, sends forth at a particular hour a number of stiff and quaint figures, which make a very long story short, and appear to or to another marionette show themselves, and are then jerked back to the interiors and clockwork, to be seen no more again. Few can visit the Marienkirche without feeling that it can hold its own with the largest and most splendid churches of Northern Germany. Indeed, if it were the only building Lübeck had to show, it would have deposed without any compunction the crown it possesses. But, though Lübeck no longer exercises lordship with foot and army, it is, in the Hansa towns, the lofty tower of which are turned into shady boulevards from which one can watch the ships of a less ventilatory commerce, a still cherishes its hospitals for the relief of the aged and the destitute. It suffered severely from every Continental city did, from the attack of the French in 1806, when, after Jena, they pursued Blucher into the unhappy city, and visited upon the inhabitants the offences of Marshal Vorwarts. It has suffered, too, from the opposition of its great neighbour, with a railroad direct to Hamburg, whilst this privilege has been denied to Lübeck. But in no small degree it has made its fortune herself, who is appreciating the bottom of the Baltic, and seems intent upon keeping its head high and dry above the waters of progressional period is ever. Even the incursion of steel pens has unkindly interfered with the ingress of goose quills. But, in spite of all, Lübeck has still a considerable trade, if figures be facts; and, in any case, will well repay the visitor in quest of the picturesque with its almost unchanged memorials of one of the noblest cities of the past.

The Queen has appointed the Right Hon. Henry Austin Bruce to be Vice-President of the Committee of Council on Education, and to be Fourth Charity Commissioner for England and Wales.

During the past week enormous quantities of mackerel were, so during the last week, transmitted to London from the Scottish and other markets. On Wednesday was the quantity of fish sent off per rail exceeded seventy tons.

A new pass across the Andes has been discovered, and a railway is now being surveyed through it from Buenos Ayres to Valparaiso. It will be eighty-seven miles long, have an elevation of 9,600 feet, at a millions and a half sterling, and require two years to finish. It will extend the Trans Valley and descend that of the Rio Grande, a tributary of the Rio Negro, whence that the Buenos Ayres Government will construct a railway.

The Attorney-General laid before the House of Commons last month a bill of 37 clauses filled together with 4 schedules, and accompanied by a table of contents—the bill to Consolidate and Amend the Church-building Acts and Parochial Fees. The Irish Government has now brought in a bill of 381 clauses, filling altogether 135 folio pages—a bill for the Amendment of the Practice and Pleading in the Common Law Courts at Dublin.

The Registrar-General's table of births, marriages, and deaths registered in England for the year 1891 gives the following number:—The population was 29,002,241; number of marriages, 174,388; births, 729,389; deaths, 470,882. Of the births, there were 371,017 males, and 358,372 females; and of deaths, 242,249 males, and 228,633 females. The returns for the quarterly were—Marriages, March, 41,911; June, 47,178; September, 44,744; December, 51,374. Births—March, 186,653; June, 189,611; September, 191,128; December, 159,997. Deaths—March, 119,211; June, 114,278; September, 112,384; December, 114,398. In London, with a population of 4,269,765, there were 79,310 marriages, 140,897 births, and 72,746 deaths.

COLUMN FOR THE CURIOUS.

The British Archæological Association has of late been very fortunate in the variety and interest of the articles of antiquity exhibited at its meetings. On the 27th ult. Mr. Gaussen exhibited a fine example of the Misericorde, found in the Steelyard, in Upper Thamesstreet. This weapon, a thin-bladed dagger, named from its being more easily concealed than any other. Its memory is traced as far back as the reign of Edward II., the earliest in the Meyrick Collection was of the time of Henry VI. Mr. Gaussen produced two other London relics—a basket-handled stiletto of the time of Henry VIII., found in the bed of the river, and a "Jesus" cup, a small piece of copper, apparently impressed with a bookbinder's stamp of about the same date, which had been found in London dust within a circle of foliage. It was found in Moorfields. Two interesting relics of the Civil War were exhibited by Mr. Grut, by Mr. Boaksom, is a portion of the scarf or neckcloth said to have been worn by Charles at the battle of Naseby, composed of fine cambric, beautifully worked, and the fragments agree with that of the embroidery on the shirt deposited in the South Kensington Museum said to be one of those worn on the same occasion, and long preserved by the descendants of the Lord Keeper Coventry. A heartshaped brooch, found in the bed of the river Lea, was exhibited by Mr. Syer Cuming. From the great number of relics of Charles I. that have been preserved, several may have been preconsecrated apocryphal; but the strong devotional feelings of the time doubtless led to the multiplication of artistic memorials of "this good cause of morals, religion, and government."

The very interesting and valuable collection of porcelains, formed during a long series of years by the late General the Hon. Edward P. Upton, of Springhill, Worcestershire, and by his widow, and Sévres, of been dispersed by Messrs. Christie, Manson, and Woods. Rare old Sévres reigned paramount, and the figures realised very enormous prices. Think of a pair, highly gilt, and painted with a pastoral medallion, bringing £450; a pastille-burner, exquisitely painted, 415 gs.; a plate, of the purest old Sévres blue, with a portrait medallion of the Duchess of Her Majesty, painted with the subject of Jupiter and Juno in the centre, realised £420; a pair of Jardinières, with medallions, finely pencilled with gold, with Cupids and trophies in four medallions, by the Gay, £1,102 10s.; a Sévres bleu-de-roi dessert service, 84 in., square by 9 in. high, £350; a cup and saucer, painted after Watteau, £100; and a pair of vases, with medallions, by Asselin and Sévres, of extraordinary size and beauty, the finest old pâte-tendre, of long experience, £1,102 10s. Other interesting specimens, finely pencilled, each exquisitely painted with a respect, figures, and landscape, with flowers in medallions, by Morin and Boulanger, in the year 1775, realised £1,102 10s. Groups of cherubs, figures of children with musical instruments, ormolu handles, and circular pedestals of white marble, by Falconet, realised £1,102 10s. A vase, 18 in. high, brought £1,000. The five days' sale realised £21,414.

Some idea of the sums demanded for property in the City of London may be formed from the Sewers Committee having been obliged to purchase a piece of ground in Upper Thames-street, Billingsgate, which obstruct the traffic, from their finding that the improvement could not be carried out for a less sum than £100,000. The Committee have also been obliged to abandon a similar long-required improvement at the junction of Queen-street, Cheapside, and Cannon-street on account of a small piece of ground required for the purpose asking £10,000 for it.

The City of London Council have wisely granted £400 to the Thames Angling Protection Society, who in their piscicultural duties during last summer have had to contend with the following depredations: 40,000 trout, 3000 grayling, and 3000 char, which had fair at no very distant date been put into the river by the Society, and 300 to the Mansion House and other civic tables. Mr. Frank Buckland also tells us that during the last few years 2,000,000 have been put into the Thames 12,000 young salmon, the size of minnows. On the other hand, we learn from Mr. Buckland that the fishing in the river at Essex coast was just in the midst of his whitebait season, and was "following up there little flukes in order to eat them," a practice not to be encouraged, and which is also well at variance.

In that very pleasant new table-book, "Host and Guest," by Mr. Clayton, we have a list of the "Clubs of London" in existence at the first nobleman who made the most strenuous efforts to introduce French cookery. The Cocoa-tree, the Thatched House, the predecessor of the famous cook of Louis XIV. La Chapelle published, in 1733, a treatise on French cookery, dedicated to Lord Chesterfield, with which Like Alexis Soyer's books, La Chapelle's "Modern Cook" was printed for the author: it was published by Prosper Marchant, "Libraire over against Southampton-street, in the Strand. About this period Chesterfield was Ambassador at the Hague, and La Chapelle with him. His dinners and suppers were deemed perfection; and these entertainments were among the few items in which his expenditure was liberal. Lord Chesterfield, in his "Letters to his Son," tells us that more than once heard the late Earl of Essex say, more than thirty years ago, at Brooks's Club, that he remembered, when he was a boy at Eltham, seeing the Earl seated on a rustic seat outside the courtyard of his house in Hyde Park, with beautiful Mistress Lepell standing by him, at the very extremity of London, and all beyond it was an expanse of green fields." Mr. Clayton's table-book, which is full, is also, page 9, "Host and Guest;" for example, p. 107, "Whitebait are in season in July. A good dinner for Wednesday, 1st July, 1892," would be quite opulent. Whitebait are now (May) in season; in August they approximate to the size of sprats. Mr. Clayton's book is not only interesting but very useful, being eminently practical.

Very interesting Roman remains have recently been found in Kent Road, Southwark, by the workmen employed there.

In the neighborhood of Dover, at 10 ft. from the surface, has been discovered a vase, in the most perfect preservation, and, fortunately for its preservation, inserted; another, containing a Samian patera; a roughly-made vase, and a small glass bottle, of the usual shape, 3 in. high, nearly perfect. In these vases were found calcined human bones, although the inhumation of the dead was generally practised in the second and third centuries. The other day was discovered, along the line of street occupying the site of the ancient road from Durovrin (Malton) to Eboracum (York), a Roman milestone. The inscription, which, at the end of a year and a half, is still very much covered with dirt, deep; but the road has not been touched since the Roman road, and the natural line of way up Newbrigg, the street leading out of Malton to the north. The road for some time has been known as Cinder-hill, from its foundation, and was covered with earth, rubbish, ashes, and stones, barring strong marks of fire, encountered in the course of the cutting. The stone was burnt by Archibio Thurstan, in the middle of the twelfth century. The stone is 4 ft. 6 in. high, and 2 ft. 6 in. wide, and is in a perfect state of preservation, the letters being as clear as when first engraved. A portion of side-stone revealed the curious fact that the road was known in the middle, as it to form a water-way. Before the Roman road, and under the natural line of there was a deposit of peaty, moisture earth, from 1 ft. to 4 ft. thick, which abounded with the remains of Roman pottery, coins, and bones, which only relics found were a few pieces of pottery, the handle of a dagger or sword, and a coin (or fragment) of Constantine.

Bell-ringing—we beg pardon, campanology—was once a gentleman's recreation. Mr. Thomas Bennett, of Stockport, sends the following, as "the most complete set of rules for ringers" which it has been our fortune to meet with, and dated nearly a century time—1734—and are in the belfry of the church of Chapel-en-le-Frith —

Gentlemen that here intend to ring,
You must know well to time your swinging;
Or to be sure you must without delay
Learn how to pull your bells the right way.
Then when your time is come to ring,
See that the ringers have convenuous room;
For if you be rude and unmannerly
Fourpence you forfeit to those gentlemen.
Here, if you chance to break a string,
With hat or spur on do not touch a string,
For if you do, you forfeit one shilling.
Just sixpence down to pay or lose your hat.
If you a bell throw over, without delay
Sixpence to the Clerk you then must pay.
If you do curse, or swear, or call names,
Unto the poor you then must pay twelve pence.
But if you strike, or call, or else abuse,
You must pay fourpence to the ringers' use;
And if that you desire to be excused
A ringer then, you must pay half a crown.
But when doth there others disturb,
Unto the church he shall be fined straightway;
And there remain until that he be willing
To pay his forfeit, and the Clerk a shilling.

CURRENT LITERATURE.

The Life of Major-General James Wolfe. By Robert Wright. (1 vol. Chapman and Hall.) If to have overcome infirmity of body by pertinacity of spirit; to have practised integrity in the midst of corruption; to have laughed at danger in the pursuit of glory; to have reckoned even glory second to duty: to have introduced mental cultivation into military affairs without military affairs were thought to be inimical to mental cultivation; to have been the pattern of the officer and the friend of the private; to have commanded an army at a time of life when ordinary men do not command a regiment; to have manœuvred that army with an accomplished dexterity, superior in years, superior in numbers, superior in experience, superior in position, and to have beaten it in the field, and driven it from its last on a great battle in the teeth of all difficulties, and to have died in the very moment of victory—if these have been a good soldier, a good man, and a good Christian, entitle a man to any fame, then all that fame is justly due to the subject of Mr. Wright's book. That which is wanting for his memory dies; they will rather search for details of his life. And herein is a misfortune, that to the present time there has been no full, minute, authentic record of the life and death of the hero of Quebec. There have been several sketches, it is true; but they are all more or less incorrect, and owing to the honour of fiction, as Mr. Wright bears witness, that perhaps the best of them, that of James Wolfe he have yet had is to be found in "Chrysal," or in the slight but graphic sketch drawn by the pen of the late illustrious author of "The Virginians." One great difficulty with which both Mr. Wright and his predecessors have had to deal is that which arises from the confusion consequent upon the change from O.S. and to N.S. Wolfe was born on 22 January, 1726, which is consistent with himself; nor is this inconsistency unnatural when we consider the force of habit and the difficulty of it to fall at once into a new form of expression. Mr. Wright aptly illustrates the "obstacles arising out of the change" of the Style: "in a manner—" Although every one is aware that, previous to 1752, the new year did legally begin until the 25th of March, it does not follow that, when we find a letter dated on paper dated, suppose, the 1st of May, 1750, it would be recollected that the said paper was written ten months before the document bearing date the 1st of March, 1750." However, Mr. Wright has, with infinite labour and great perseverance, as well as with much judge, cleared away such obstacles, and, with the help of many unpublished letters, been enabled to set forth the "Authentic Life of James Wolfe." The Life of Major-General James Wolfe." As instances of the errors which Mr. Wright has corrected upon independent authority, may be mentioned the assertions that the hero was born on the 6th of November, 1726, that he died in 1713, that he fought at Sedgemoor, and that he was the author of a song commencing,

Why, soldiers, why
Should we be melancholy, boys?
Why, soldiers, why
Whose business 'tis to die?

or (we quote from memory) in a similar manner. He was, in fact, born Jan. 2, 1726 (N.S. 1726-7), he died in 1759, never was in arms in his life, did not fight at Fontenoy, and probably never wrote a couplet. And many other errors of the same kind upon which Mr. Wright is fair to say which will open the eyes and convince the minds of those who have hitherto accepted them as unquestionable.

The Two Worlds. By Thomas Bevrier. (1 vol. F. Pitman.) In the very first sentence of this book the writer commences almost at once detects a smell of spirits; the scent becomes more powerful upon turning down the cover and the dylead, and so strong at the fifth turning that the reader soon finds himself in a whisky-shed on the track of all the old gang, including the demon of Socrates, the Wesley family ghosts, and everything else that would be "in it." As the Baron Goldenstubbe's complete letter-writer, and the depraved Cockle Bird Fancier, Mr. Pitman appears to be better at home than (if so much as) a rickshaw of a work, which appeared and attracted a certain amount of attention some years ago, under the title "Revelations upon the Boundary of Another World." The author, with great parade of learning, profound knowledge of religion, keen psychic curiosities of evidence in favour of what nobody ever thought of denying, but fails, in every instance, to bring forward anything worth mention that and what is usually understood by spiritualism, or spiritmanifestation, or spirit-rapping, or whatever the shibboleth may be. Nobody—or nearly anybody—will dream of disputing that probably long before, and certainly ever since, the time when Hesiod wrote, a belief in the supernatural has been that there is a world (to use the slang term), that guardian angels hover near, incessantly watching over the destinies of men, and that, in fact, there is intercommunion of the spirits of the living with the spirits of the dead. In these and other matters, if not, or even mainly, the thing of day, there are few perhaps who have not believed they have heard "the sound of a voice that is still," or felt "the touch of a vanished hand," in tender sympathy, or gentle remonstrance, or pious admonition, or in solemn and impressive warning; but we have not either been urged thereby to the right course or restrained thereby from the wrong. But for this kind of communion there is no need of a medium, short of aspirates and money, to write, at a certain charge per hand, and with a shockingly bad orthography, one's grandmother's ghost, or Socrates's, or to converse with one's daughter by muttering solemnly (if the neighbourhood be noisy), Spectre in one's ear, and Spectre out o' the house." This may be true, as our author seems to take it for granted (though we by no means believe it ourselves), but Mr. Pitman, Mr. Alaphilus, Mr. Bevrier uses the spirits of the departed as messengers for a purpose; but, when we consider the difference between messengers and spirits, it is consistent therewith that supernatural agency should be employed only to teach the ignorant. But for this kind of communion there is no gentleman a meteoric ride upon an ottoman, set chairs and sofas to promiscuous dancing, and other equally immoral exercises of agility, to the great astonishment and consternation of "Mrs. Hoeleaf's Evening Party." So long as the effect is ridiculous it is almost impossible to speak seriously of such a preposterous craze.

Her Majesty's Mails. By William Lewins. (1 vol. Sampson Low, Son, and Marston.) The author might well have said that "our English Post Office is a splendid triumph of civilisation," for there is probably nothing to be proud of for commerce and for education than any other institution of the country. As a matter of fact, we have not the slightest point of view, to talk of the benefits it confers upon separated families, or upon friends, or upon friends, when enough can be written upon it. There might, perhaps, be a set-off to the benefit in the facilities it affords for correspondence, the frivolous, the profane, the obscene, and the epistolary plagues of life for annoying their two thousand and one friends with, but, on the whole, fellow-creatures at a comparatively cheap rate; but, on the whole, there would be little to say against the Post Office. Mr. Lewins, therefore, chose a most interesting subject when he took in hand to write on historical and romantic aspects of the British Post Office." It would be difficult to mention another book of the same size where an equal amount of information is so pleasantly conveyed to the student. By means moreover, of an appendix, he has added to his main work a post-office guide, which will find favour with many more advantages than two-thirds of them at least have any idea of may be derived from the Post Office. Mr. Lewins traces the Post to the earliest date, and takes occasion to tell us that "Queen Jezebel is remarkable as the first letter-writer on record who franked," a not surprising to find that she used her pen for purposes of deception." Her Jewish Majesty's example, however, has been followed by many who have not the excuse of her race; and Mr. Lewins tells a capital story of a dowager young gentleman who was paying his addresses to two ladies at the same time, wrote to each of them by the same post the same expressions of undying affection, posted his letters, and then redescended them in an agony of suspense, for he felt a moral certainty that he had placed them in the wrong envelopes. But the Post-Office law is immutable as that of the Medes and Persians; a letter once posted is the property of the Postmaster-General, and "must not be given up to the writers on any account whatever." Curious articles pass through the post, as will be seen from Mr. Lewins's interesting book. Sir Rowland Hill, who was permitted to peruse an extraordinary ledger in the General Post Office, where several thousand articles lost in the mails are recorded, has strung together a catalogue of them, which reminds us of the articles passing through the post before the revocation of the franking privilege. He tells us he found amongst the number—two canaries; a pork-pie, from Devonport to London; a pair of pickled mice, which were kept at the office a month and duly fed till they were called for by the owner; two rabbits; plum-pudding, leeches in bladders, "several of which having burst, many of the poor creatures were found crawling over the correspondence in the country." Further, there was a bottle of cream from Devonshire; a bottle of strawberries; a sample bottle of cider; half a pound of soft-soap wrapped in thin paper; a roast duck; a pistol, loaded about to the mouth with dogs and ball; and, last but not least, a paper of fleas. This inventory is rather long, but it will most extraordinary of all, a human heart and stomach. It is common enough to send an emblematic heart upon a seal, but how aunts now envisaging to a lover the fact that he is in love, or even, to see the force of the stomach.

Adolphe Page, by Mrs. C. B. Burton. (2 vols. A Hall and Co.) The alias of this novel is "The Two Wills;" whence the nature of the story will be readily guessed. Adolphe Page, a foundling, gifted and deprived of his estate by the abstraction of a second will which had been made in the interval between the execution and revocation of the first will, whereby he was entitled to only the very moderate sum of one shilling. The story is full of mystery, love-making, and many exciting incidents: there is a considerable admixture of religious matter, and a certain flavour of clodhopping. The tale of the foundling dog for embroidering under a curse pronounced upon it by a member of a rival family is not new, and partakes slightly of the melodramatic; but there are touches to which such a criticism cannot be applied. The plot is not concocted with remarkable skill; the hero is by no means so constant as he should have been or to the reader's taste; the deeds of rumours as he might have been; and the sweetest character in the book is ruthlessly sacrificed that the hero may marry his first love.

SCIENTIFIC NEWS.

PREPARATION OF CALCIUM.—Mr. R. Sonstadt, who has done so much for obtaining gold from sea-water, has brought before the Philosophical Society of Manchester another method of procuring calcium, the metal derived from lime by Davy more than a century ago, and now at the Institution in 1808. M. Lito Bodart suggested that the calcium might be got from the chloride by the use of a mercury cathode, and Sonstadt has for years used the method in his laboratory, in which lime is dissolved in dilute acid and the fragmentated calcium from melting as globules. Mr. Sonstadt remedies this by melting mercury with equivalent quantities of lead and bismuth and the iodate of potassium. The melted mass is poured into a covered iron crucible and left to cool. To the pasteboard mass is added a small quantity of sodium, in small pieces; it is then covered again with the saline mixture above mentioned. After the first cooling process the crucible is put between, and the reaction, which is not very violent, has ceased, the metal is found in the form of a globule.

KUHMANN ON THE COLOURING MATERIAL IN MINERALS.—In the course of his researches on the colouring matter of minerals employed in building and ornamentation, this able investigator has availed himself of the new methods of analysis by the spectroscope. He considers that the process his belief that he has placed in the hands of chemists a rare, simple, expeditious, and wide method of analysis which will be of great use to mineralogists and a great simplifier of natural and artificial silicates; and that he has in part investigated in the right way of looking for the cause of the colour of certain stones; and, finally, that he has opened up a new field of research in the examination of the colouring matter of the earth's crust, and of those whose chemical nature does not lend itself to the ordinary methods of their formation. For details we must refer to the Comptes Rendus of the Paris Academy of Sciences, 1910, No. 5.

A SINGULAR FORM OF HAIL, which fell at Paris on the 27th of March last, was described by M. Berral at a meeting of the Academy of Sciences. The hailstones were of a pyramidal form, and resembled a hexagon. In the middle was found a small grain of hail, which was either a nucleus or rather they have a structure radiating from the centre, as observed by Valla, Arago, Hopkins, and others. Sometimes the hail was in the form of all resemble these. They had an absolutely conical form. The cones sloped from the point to the base in a regular manner, and the base of the cone or face was roughened with pyramids of six sides, inclined towards the base, and transparent; some prisms also occurred with a flat base. In order to get the measurement of these cones gave the diameter of the base 8 to 10 millimetres in height, 10 to 12 millimetres; some of the pyramids were about 3 millimetres long; their weight varied from 180 to 210 milligrammes. When these hailstones fell they were accompanied by a fall of the barometer, which decreased three millimetres in the space of an hour and the cold. The atmospheric pressure of the day was 31 deg. Fahr. After snow and rain had fallen about 4 P.M. on the 27th, at 5 P.M. the hailstones described above began to fall in rain and hail at midday. About one o'clock some clap of thunder was heard; and at half-past o'clock fell the hailstones described above.

ROYAL INSTITUTION LECTURES.

Mr. HOLLAS commenced a course of six lectures "On the Third Period of Medical History, commencing with the Year 1800," on Tuesday, October 4, a summary of the history of music divided into three periods: the first period of preparation (ending about 1400); the second, or that of the old humility and the scholastic (ending about 1600); and the third, or modern period (1600 to 1700); and the 6th, that of the modern tonality. In the third period (the origin of the present system) the old mediæval science of the Church and the irregular popular music were subjected to the reaction entered by the other arts through the Renaissance. The great confusion produced by the crude and hasty reforms of the Florentine Academy were, however, moderated by the skill and genius of Monteverde, whose compositions were tasteful, and correct—are the type and glory of his age, and who, if not the inventor of the opera, was certainly the creator of the first masterpiece in musical drama (recitative), the opera of "Orfeo," by Monteverde (1607). "Turbulentur Impii" (a trio), by Carissimi (cir. 1640); "Vaghe Stelle" (air), from the opera of "Eritrea," by Cavalli (1650); "Lasciatemi Morire" (a short duet), by Conti (cir. 1640); and a quartet by Allegri (cir. 1650) for two violins (Messrs. Haywood and Wolfe), a viola, and bass (Mr. Lloyd Eccles). All the above-mentioned pieces were selected as singularly characteristic of the transition period. Mr. Hollas also sang the air by Emilio Bassile (soprano). Miss Palmer (contralto), Mr. Whitye Cooper (tenor), and Mr. Lowe (bass) assisted.

Prof. JOHN PRAETORIUS delivered lectures on the Music given on Saturday last, the 7th inst., was principally devoted to the music of the Elizabethan time. He began with a lecture exhibiting the progress of the "Gamut" musical glass, showing the phenomenon termed fluorescence, and bringing to light the invisible violet rays of the spectrum. The lecturer then proceeded to explain its metallurgy. It has been obtained from Cornwall since the remotest antiquity, and was known to the ancient Britons and Romans. The ore worked is stannic acid or tin-stone. It is broken up, calcined, smelted, and refined. After liquation it is remelted and cast into ingots. It is grayish white, wood, and cast into bricks (block tin). These, when heated and let fall from a height, break into grains. Tin is malleable, ductile, and tenacious of a metallic ring, but not very tough. Specific gravity 7.3. Melts at 442 deg. Fahr. Its little tendency to oxydize renders it very useful as a coating for other metals, especially copper, brass, and wrought iron. Lead is readily obtained from its sulphide, galena. Its uses are well known. Its rapid conversion by pure water into the white oxide renders its use for glass exceedingly dangerous, except for hard waters, the oxide of lead being very poisonous. Zinc is obtained from its ore by the ordinary process of smelting with air at from 600 to 1200 deg. Fahr., each ton requiring fuel to the value of 10*l*. Its specific gravity is 7.1, and it melts at 773 deg. Fahr. It oxidizes readily at a low temperature, and burns with a blue flame. It is not very malleable, but is ductile and tenacious. It is the cheapest metal in use. Its uses are numerous being chiefly used, from which the metal is readily obtained by the distillation of metallic zinc. Iron is found in all parts of the world. It is reduced with air at from 600 to 1200 deg. Fahr., each ton requiring fuel to the value of 10*l*. Its specific gravity is 7.8, and it melts at 2786 deg. Fahr. It is malleable and tenacious, and very ductile. In the year 1845 by the use of the hot blast; still even by it four-fifths of the fuel are wasted. Recent improvements of manufacture have been made by which the molten metal was illustrated by means of a small furnace, oxygen being used instead of common air. The characteristics of the alloys of tin, titanium, and other metals were shown on the screen during the lecture, and the table was covered with specimens of the metals and their ores in various conditions. The construction and operation of the furnaces were explained by Professor Praetorius.

PROFESSOR BOSCHI gave the Friday evening discourses on the 6th inst., "On the New Metal Iridium, and Recent Discoveries in Connection Therewith," and on the 13th inst., "On Recent Discoveries in Connection with Radium." Professor Boschi was illustrated by experiments.

PROFESSOR BOSCHI gave the Friday evening discourses on the 6th inst., "On the New Metal Iridium, and Recent Discoveries in Connection Therewith," and on the 13th inst., "On Recent Discoveries in Connection with Radium." Professor Boschi was illustrated by experiments.

Dr. JAMES DEWAR will give the Friday evening discourse, on the 20th inst., "On the Liquefaction of Air." On Tuesday, October 11, Prof. Sir Alexander Henchief will begin a course of four lectures "On Falling Stars and Meteorites."

CHESS.

TO CORRESPONDENTS.

J. P.—Your solution of No. 1053 is correct. 2. Not later than Monday evening.

C. D. Yes; we have received your solutions of Problems Nos. 1051 and 1052. 2. The following shall have attention.

E. J. Pulling.—Problem 1 is recognised as that of an old and esteemed contributor; and the solution is correct. Problem 2 is not quite satisfactory as it stands.

S. B. Nimon.—It seems impossible. Are you sure you have the Black King in safety posted?

The Correspondents of the Manchester Chess Club.—Your solution of Problem No. 1052 is received and found correct. Your letter has been forwarded to the Secretary. Perhaps you will be at the trouble to explain the arrangements of play in the tournament, particularly as to the number of games to be played in a day.

H. A. B. D. Ind.—It is impossible to determine the matches you speak of clearly. The Correspondents' Tourney is now in full swing, and the games in the Amateur Tournament have been in progress for some time. The "Chess Player's Chronicle" for the years 1843, 3, and 4 can no doubt be obtained. 3. The French game is considered by many to be open compared to the Ruy Lopez.

SOLUTION OF PROBLEM NO. 1051, by ERNEST. P. D., Dury, I. T. D., Notus, Pilot, Dr. Fyfe, Rev. Winfield Cox, Dr. Pantin, Dr. Wilson, Dr. Hyslop, Dr. Gibbons, Dr. Hall, Dr. Hall, Dr. Hall

NEW MUSIC.

JENNY OF THE MILL. Song. Illustrated. 3s. A Recital Song. Illustrated. ROBERT COCKS and CO. All Musicsellers.

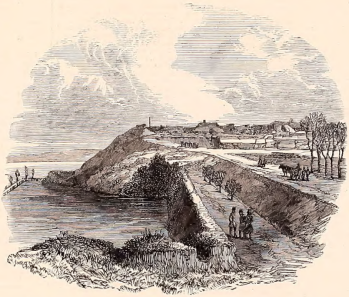
JENNY OF THE MILL Postcode for PIANO. By the Composer of 'Sir Roger.' 3s. ROBERT COCKS and CO. All Musicsellers.

ROBERT COCKS and CO.'S LIST OF NEW SONGS, PUBLISHED THIS DAY.
LOVE'S OPTIMISM. Ballad. By E. M. Lott. Poetry by J. E. Carpenter. 2s.
THE LIQUID GEM. Song. By the Composer of "Her bright smile haunts me still." 2s.
MISS M. LINDSAY'S ARIA, "Ah! fors' è lui." Sung by Miss M. Lindsay. 2s.
JOURNEYING ON. Ballad. By E. M. Lott. Poetry by J. E. Carpenter. 2s.
O'ER WIDE FRUITFUL THE GOLDEN. For Piano. 3s 6d.
THE SHEPHERD'S FAREWELL. For Piano. With View of the Norfolk Residence of H.R.H. the Princess of WALES. 3s.
THE PRINCESS OF WALES'S QUADRILLE AND MARCH. On Airs of the Princess of WALES. For Piano. 4s each post-free.
PIANOFORTE FOR SALE OR HIRE, upon easy terms. Full Compass and good tone. Class A, at the manufactory, 91, Berners-street, W.

CIRCULARS of New Music, Catalogues of Vocal Music and Dancing Music Monthly, gratis and post-free.
London: ROBERT COCKS and CO., New Burlington-street, Publishers to the Queen, H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, and the Emperor Napoleon III. Agents for India—Messrs. BRAKENRIDGE and Co., Calcutta.

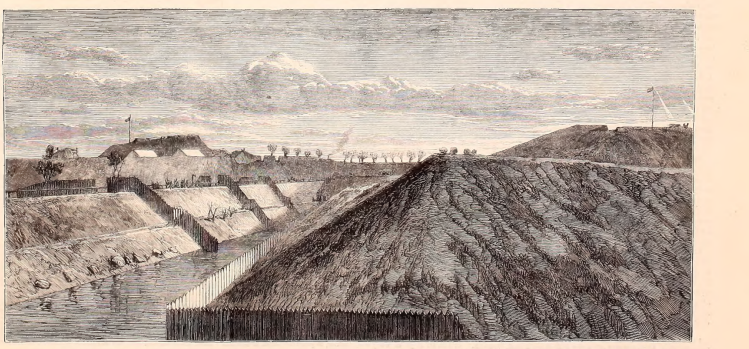
CHEAP MUSIC 6d. each, post-free. Boosey and Co.'s Cheap Music Series contains Gazelle—Le Rêve—Bird Waltz—Bird Quadrille—Bird Polka—Bird Galop—Bird Schottische—Bird Mazurka—Bird Varsovienne—Bird Polka Mazurka—Bird Redowa—Bird Valse à Deux Temps—Bird Valse Brillante—Bird Valse Elégante—Bird Valse Allemande—Bird Valse Sentimentale—Bird Valse Tyrolienne—Bird Valse Russe—Bird Valse Hongroise—Bird Valse Polonaise—Bird Valse Viennoise—Bird Valse Française—Bird Valse Anglaise—Bird Valse Espagnole—Bird Valse Napolitaine—Bird Valse Suisse—Bird Valse Ecossaise—Bird Valse Canadienne—Bird Valse Indienne—Bird Valse Américaine—Bird Valse Grecque—Bird Valse Ottomane—Bird Valse Persane—Bird Valse Chinoise—Bird Valse Japonaise—Bird Valse Africaine—Bird Valse Australienne—Bird Valse Arctique—Bird Valse Antarctique—Bird Valse Terrestre—Bird Valse Céleste—Bird Valse Infernale—Bird Valse Diabolique—Bird Valse Angélique—Bird Valse Seraphique—Bird Valse Cherubique—Bird Valse Archangélique—Bird Valse Ethérique—Bird Valse Magique—Bird Valse Fantastique—Bird Valse Grotesque—Bird Valse Burlesque—Bird Valse Pittoresque—Bird Valse Romantique—Bird Valse Classique—Bird Valse Moderne—Bird Valse Ancienne—Bird Valse Nouvelle—Bird Valse Vieille—Bird Valse Jeune—Bird Valse Mûre—Bird Valse Verte—Bird Valse Bleue—Bird Valse Rouge—Bird Valse Jaune—Bird Valse Orange—Bird Valse Violette—Bird Valse Indigo—Bird Valse Noire—Bird Valse Blanche—Bird Valse Grise—Bird Valse Brune—Bird Valse Rose—Bird Valse Pourpre—Bird Valse Ecarlate—Bird Valse Vermillon—Bird Valse Cramoisie—Bird Valse Carmin—Bird Valse Magenta—Bird Valse Lilas

THE ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS.



No. 1260.—VOL. XLIV. SATURDAY, MAY 21, 1864. WITH A SUPPLEMENT, FIVEPENCE

LAW OF DEBTOR AND CREDITOR.



THE Lord Chancellor has laid before the House of Lords a measure of law amendment, the practical bearing of which will, no doubt, be keenly controverted, and the effect of which, if passed into law, promises to amount to what may be fairly characterised as a social revolution. We think we shall not misdescribe the scope of the measure by saying that it aims at assimilating the law of debtor and creditor affecting the poor to that which has been for some years past in force with regard to the rich. Many of us, perhaps, were unaware of any existing distinction, for it does not show itself clearly upon the pages of the statute book, and yet observation need not be very wide nor reflection very deep to convince us that the same laws may, in their application, minister indulgence to one class and prove an intolerable pressure upon another. That the law of debtor and creditor has this twofold and contrasted result will not be denied by any who have a pretty fair acquaintance with the facts of the case. The merchant who owes £20,000 and cannot find the wherewithal to pay a hundredth part of his debt is far less at the mercy of his creditors than the man who owes but £3 and has no assets. Poor debtors, indeed—that is, debtors for small amounts—are, in this country, if their creditors shall so please, treated with a peremptoriness and harshness scarcely resorted to even against criminals; and they who have gone on trust for a few loaves of bread and a few pots of beer may find themselves, by an unlooked-for loss of employment, hopelessly subjected to the will or temper of another to the end of their days. It is principally with a view to the removal of this anomaly that Lord Westbury has framed the bill to which we have just adverted.

The facts upon which the Lord Chancellor bases the justification of his measure are gathered from a return recently made by the judges of the County Courts. As summarised by the noble and learned Lord, they are sufficiently startling. In the two years ending on the 31st of December, 1863, 17,979 persons were committed to prison by those judges, of whom 17,850 were sent to gaol for not having satisfied a previous judgment and costs, having had, or been supposed to have, means and ability to do so. The number of days in which these latter remained in confinement reached an aggregate of 253,860. The sum total of the debts on all the judgments at the time of committal was £62,438. Assuming that each man imprisoned could earn 3s. a day, and that he lost one day's work in addition to the time spent by him in gaol, the loss of productive labour intended to compel the payment of £62,438 would be £43,434. The personal liberty of many of these men was taken from them for sums of money as low as 3s. 1d., 2s. 9d., 1s. 10d., 1s. 6d., and, in one instance, 9d. only. Now, the labourer has no wealth but his labour; and of this the law of debtor and creditor, as administered under the County Courts Acts, deprives him as the most stringent means of compelling him to pay his debts. The man himself is demoralised, the county rates are charged with his maintenance, the poor rates are burdened to keep his family, and fresh costs are added to the original debt. He may even be imprisoned fifty times for the same cause. "The result is," says the Lord Chancellor, "that the law has mortgaged the labour and earnings of the poor to their creditors for an indefinite time without possibility or hope of relief."

The following are the main provisions of the bill proposed by the Lord Chancellor to remedy the evil. It will abrogate entirely the present rule of law that gives the power of imprisonment to the Judge if he is satisfied that the debtor has the ability to pay, retaining it only in cases in which he is satisfied that the debt was contracted by fraud, false pretences, or without expectation of ability to pay it. But it will also convert imprisonment in such cases into a real and definite punishment,

THE WAR IN DENMARK: FORTIFICATIONS OF FREDERICIA—THE OLDENBURG BASTION.

THE WAR IN DENMARK: FORTIFICATIONS OF FREDERICIA—THE SCHLESWIG BASTION AND PRINCESS'S BASTION.—FROM A SKETCH BY OUR SPECIAL ARTIST.—SEE PAGE 495.

FOREIGN AND COLONIAL NEWS.

FRANCE

The Session of the Corps Législatif has been prolonged to the 25th inst. M. Rouher, the Minister of State, delivered on Thursday week an important speech, in reply to M. Jules Favre. He vindicated the policy of the Government in regard to Poland and Mexico. He declared that the Treaty of London involved any obligation on the part of France to take up arms for the purpose of maintaining the integrity of Denmark. M. Rouher declared that the French Government did not mean to go to war for Denmark, as the sacrifices such a policy must entail would be entirely out of proportion to France's interest in the struggle. He expressed a confident hope in the result of the Conference. With regard to Mexico, M. Rouher argued that the interests involved were entirely European, and that it was not the duty of France to undertake alone the task of God and time to decide between Poland and her oppressors. The whole speech was of a pacific character.

Vague rumours have been afloat of approaching changes in the Imperial Cabinet. The Paris correspondence of the Times is enabled to assert that no change will take place during the present Session of the Corps Législatif.

The Moniteur of Monday evening had an announcement which has caused some mirth. In a London comic publication not long in existence, called the Owl, appeared lately a letter, purporting to come from M. Mocquard, the Emperor Napoleon's private secretary, touching the Conference and the policy of Great Britain. M. Mocquard took the thing seriously, and thought it necessary to inform the world, through the columns of the Moniteur, officially, that the letter in question was not written by him.

At the Institute of France, on Saturday, there was a full attendance of the members of the Academy of Moral and Political Sciences, amongst whom were the Duc de Broglie, Baron Dupin, M. Dupont, Prosper Merimée, Mignet, Michel, Thierry, Odilon-Barrot, Jules Simon, Michel Chevalier, and others. The meeting was rendered the more interesting by the presence of Lord Brougham. His Lordship attended to introduce to the Academy the new corresponding member, Mr. Edwin Chadwick, nominated in the room of the late Mr. Senior, deceased last autumn. After Lord Brougham had made the customary representation in a few forcible sentences, Mr. Chadwick read a paper, written by Mr. Chadwick expounding the system of "mixed mental and physical training practised in the Reformatory system," as practised at present in the district pen-law schools of England. The paper was received in a very cordial manner.

Magnificent weather favoured the French Oaks day on Sunday, and a large number of persons were in attendance on the course. Those from Belgravia some particulars of the day's proceedings. The business commenced with a selling race, won easily by a field of six lots from fifteen of the stable, by the winner of the Derby, ridden by Custance, who was fought in by his owner at a sacrifice of 625*l*. A half-mile race along the course was then decided, and was contested by a nice gathering for the Duke de Morny's Partisan. The next event on the card was a steeplechase, which proved a matter of interest, as a good race a fair share of the starters being well up at the finish. Mr. Hunter's mare Lady Ida, by Ion out of Lady Evelyn, ridden by Mr. Rhodes, the lowest weight; and increased his day's winnings by a brace more. The Prix de Diane, or French Oaks, followed, and proved a race between the Two Thousand Guinea Stakes, her winning the "Prix de Diane," or ladies' race, which follows the Derby and Oaks with difficulties which required a gradual solution. The House then passed to the order of the day for the Budget. The result being in effect a vote of confidence in the Ministry.

At a meeting of the working men of Turin, held on Sunday, thanks were voted to the working men of England for the reception they had given to Garibaldi.

HOLLAND.

The Dutch Minister of Finance has made known to the Second Chamber the financial plan of the year, which will be submitted to-next Session to the States, and which has for object the suppression throughout the country of the octroi duties, which are to be replaced by a uniform system of excise to be levied direct by the State.

DENMARK AND GERMANY.

There was another conference in London on Tuesday. The Plenipotentiaries sat for three hours, and adjourned until next Saturday. It is said that little progress was made, and that it is intended next Session to the States, and which has for object the suppression throughout the country of the octroi duties, which are to be replaced by a uniform system of excise to be levied direct by the State.

Lord Clarendon telegraphs affirms that the Prussians refuse to pay for the provisions which the unfortunate Jutlanders are compelled to supply to the Austro-Prussian troops in occupation of their country, and the Danish press is beginning to demand that the blockade of the German ports should be resumed by the Danish fleet.

Arms being suspended in Schleswig, the Crown Prince last week made a tour of the Duchies, visiting the fleet and the army as well as war. His Royal Highness, however, went no further north than Hadersleben, and returned to Flensburg, which he proceeded to Lubeck on Sunday. On Monday their Royal Highnesses visited the north-western fortifications of the Federal Commissioners at Holstein also arrived at Lubeck on Sunday.

The Prince of Augustenburg went to Hamburg by special train with the Crown Prince, Frederick Charles, and Count Bismarck, on the rank of Count. It is asserted upon good authority that Prince Frederick Charles will be appointed Governor-General-in-Chief in the Duchies.

In the Austrian Parliament, the Danish ships were little injured. Their loss was fourteen killed and fifty-four wounded. The squadron reached Copenhagen on Sunday, and was greatly cheered by the assembled spectators. The King went on board the ships. Some of the German papers circulated an absurd story that the defeat of the allied squadron by the Danes off Heligoland was partly attributable to the ambiguous manœuvres of the British frigate Aurora, which interfered with the German plans of action. A contradiction has been officially given to this story by the Austrian Admiral. The Danes remain at anchor until the close of the engagement.

The Custom House officials at the outports of the United Kingdom have been instructed to detain all those pirate vessels fitted out in German or Danish ships of war; and, further, to prevent Danish or German vessels from being followed out of her Majesty's port by hostile cruisers until the expiration of at least twenty-four hours.

AMERICA.

We have news from New York to the 4th inst. No collision had down to that time taken place between the hostile armies in Virginia. There were rumours that General Grant had put his troops in motion, but it was quite uncertain whether there was any foundation for them. The Federals had evacuated Washington, North Carolina and the Confederates were reported to have invested Newbern. General Beauregard was said to have assembled the chief command of the Confederate forces in North Carolina. General Banks had retreated down the Red River to Alexandria, Natchitoches, where the boats and transports, with the exception of the gun-boat Eastport, had also arrived. The Eastport was seized on the river by Confederate General Steele's corps, which had advanced from Arkansas in order to cooperate with General Banks in attacking Shreveport. The Confederates had captured and burned the Federal gun-boat Petrel two miles above Alexandria.

The Washington ladies have organized a patriotic association, of which the objects are thus summarised by the New York World, in its tremulous style, as a part of the programme of the movement:—"No more foreign goods. Formation of a ladies' covenant. Flora McFlimsey to be married in home-made. Mem. Mrs. Gen. in a new dress. No imported jewellery, diamonds, silks, opera-cloaks, laces, or knives of foreign make to be seized of the next bride before demand that they shall give up imported wines, liquors, and cigars. The social revolution. Ladies to drink cattaby tea and the men beer. Palmetto, French boots and Paris lapdogs to be kicked out together." As stated by the reporter, the object of the meeting, which is described as composed of the wives of members of the Cabinet and of senators and representatives, of Admirals, army officers, statesmen, women, mothers who had lost their sons, and wives who had lost their husbands, is to "rouse the women of the country to the earnest resolution to purchase no imported articles of apparel where American can possibly be substituted during the continuance of the war." The terms of the covenant are declared to be "the Ladies' Patriotic Covenant," and "a black bow, with wings enamelled according to nature," worn on the left side of the bonnet. The bows, it is said, will be a peculiar ribbon a little in front of the left shoulder." After considerable discussion it was decided that in the instance of a private present, "delayed adjournment till photographed."

Admiral Wilkes has been appointed in the Navy office, has come to professional disgrace. He has been found guilty by court-martial of disobedience of orders, in disregarding the warning of the country in

LATEST NEWS FROM ABROAD.

The following telegrams have been received through Mr. Reuter's office :—

AMERICA.

[Per the Bremen.]

New York, May 7, Morning.

General Grant's campaign against Richmond has commenced.

General Meade's army crossed the Rapidan on the 4th, without meeting with no opposition. He advanced on the 5th to the 11th, Ionsville and Wilderness, where, on the afternoon of the latter, Lee was found in force in the Federal front. On the night of the 5th the position of Meade's army was nearly this, and also on the 6th, an advance of, the road from Germania Ford to Chancellorville, both flanks resting on these points, with the general headquarters at Wilderness. It was understood Meade would make a general attack on the following morning, but heavy firing was heard on the evening of the 5th, but no details of the result of the engagement have been received. The co-operating column, under the command of Generals Cooch and Stegel, have marched from Winchester up the Shenandoah Valley.

The force under General Butler was at Bermuda Hundred Point, on the James River, on the 6th. Munitors and gun-boats co-operate with Butler's movement against Richmond.

General Beauregard is at Petersburg with 30,000 men to oppose Butler.

The Federals also occupy West Point, on the peninsula.

The following particulars of some skirmishing by General Meade, on the morning of the 6th have been received :—Generals Confederate having appeared in force on the Federal right, near Chancellorville and Wilderness, the Federal centre and left were withdrawn, and troops were driven in with severe loss. Griffin's division advancing on the right was met by the Confederates under General A. P. Hill, supported by General Ewell, and a severe action ensued, the Federals capturing 1,000 prisoners and losing about 1,000 men. Hancock's corps, while marching to the Federal right to connect with Warren, was attacked by General Longstreet's military corps, supported by Ewell. Hancock held his position for two hours against great odds, but ultimately, by which he suffered severely, but inflicted considerable damage on the enemy. These skirmishes took place on the 6th, supposed to be in the Federal front, Meade ordered his line of battle to be held till the morning. Previous to the advance, General Grant addressed an address containing the men who refused to do duty on the ground of their term of service having expired, and that they were ashamed of their duty they would be shot down without trial.

General Sherman's army commenced operations on the 5th from Chattanooga towards southern Alabama and Georgia.

The cruiser under General Gorry has arrived in Little Rock, followed and harassed by the Confederates, who were expected to attack that place.

The Federals burned Washington, North Carolina, at the time of the evacuation.

The Confederate troops are expected to attack the Federal fleet off Newbern.

Southern despatches state that General Forrest had captured Decatur, Tennessee, killing the whole garrison.

Admiral Porter has blown up the Confederate fleet Port in the Red River, and whilst returning to Alexandria the attacks by the Confederates were driven back with destructive loss.

It is rumoured that General Banks was compelled to blow up fifteen gun-boats and transports at the falls on account of shallow water. Other accounts state that he had a successful engagement between those places.

A Congressional Committee of Congress has issued a report stating that the disaster to General Banks's army, after the capture of Decatur, had been confirmed by personal investigations.

Gold was 152½ per cent premium.

PRUSSIA AND THE CONFERENCE.—Berlin, May 19.—In a note addressed by Count von Bismarck to Baron Brunnow, the Russian Minister in England, it is declared that the Prussian Government has received from all diplomatic agents the most satisfactory reports from the Treaty of 1852, and explanations that might be deduced therefrom that may be entirely independent of that treaty.

SCHLESWIG-HOLSTEIN.—Berlin, May 19.—A committee, under the presidency of Herr von der Heydt, met here yesterday for the purpose of establishing a company to construct a Schleswig-Holstein canal to connect the North Sea with the Baltic. As the object of the Government to defray the expenses of the preparatory works from the Exchequer was accepted. Privy Councillor Lentze has been intrusted with the execution of the undertaking.

CHINA.—THE WAR OF THE EUROPEAN MERCHANTILITY.—MARINE GORDON WILLIAMS.—Shanghai, April 8.—[By the mail from Hong Kong.]—Imperialist troops have repulsed at Kintang, Major Gordon was wounded, and several of his officers were killed by the rebel troops. The Imperialists are recovering from this reverse and are again moving on Soochow Kintang. They are receiving large reinforcements. The rebels are believed to be hemmed in.

CHURCH AND UNIVERSITIES.

At the monthly meeting of the Incorporated Society for Promoting the Enlargement, Building, and Repairing Churches and Chapels held on Monday, grants of money amounting to £1135 were made.

The chancel of the church of St. Cross Hospital, near Winchester, is being restored, and, during the progress of the work, some mural paintings have been discovered, which have been concealed for centuries.

At Cambridge the Chancellor's medal for Latin declamation has been awarded to J. Jardine, of Christ's; the Camden Medal to R. Durnford of Christ's; and the Person Prize to J. Peile, of Christ's.

St. Michael's Church, Hulme, was consecrated on Saturday last by the Bishop of Manchester. The church stands in Lavender-street, off Stockport-road, and is the first of a series of new churches to be built in Hulme.

The Bishop of London will hold confirmations according to the following arrangement :—June 5, Christ Church, Newgate-street; June 6, St. Paul's Cathedral; June 8, Bow Church; June 9, Bishop's Hall, Stepney; June 10, Christ Church, Spitalfields; June 15, Twickenham; June 17, Fulham; June 22, Twickenham; June 24, St. George's, Hanover-square; June 29, Hampstead.

The next half-yearly examination of candidates for matriculation in London University will commence on Monday, June 27. In addition to the matriculation examination, previously to which candidates will be held at Cuthbert's College, Lisbon; Stonyhurst College; Queen's College, Manchester; Ushaw College, Durham; and the Roman Catholic Seminary, Archbishop's House, Ware; John Storrar, M.D., was elected chairman, in the room of C. J. Forster, LL.C.

A noble effort for church extension in Leeds was inaugurated on Thursday last, by the establishment of a fund for the purpose of increasing the stipends of inefficiently-paid incumbents and for providing for the erection of parsonage houses in districts where the present inability of incumbents to take charge of them, and for the erection of new churches exceeding those which have been promised, says the Leeds Mercury, "by forty or fifty additional churches, principally in connection with the Church Extension Society." The Mayor, Alderman Rhodes, Alderman Hudson, and the Rev. Dr. Hook presided at the meeting, the attendance at which was large and influential.

The parish church of Marsworth, Bucks, was reopened, after restoration, on Wednesday last. The church is of Early English character, and has its porches for several years, and the cost has been about £1000, the chief contributors being Lady Lilford, Cambridge, who are impropriators; Earl of Ellesmere; William Kay, Esq.; the Rev. Jas. Williams, of Tring Park; St. Thomas's Hospital; and Sir Anthony P. Rothschild. The parishioners cheerfully granted a church rate of 6d. in the pound to assist, besides contributing in other ways.

PREFERMENTS AND APPOINTMENTS.—The Rev. E. J. Paget to be Rector of Stapleton, Ampthill; Rev. D. Ace to be Vicar of Stone; Penrith; Rev. F. Morse to be Vicar of St. Mary's, Nottingham; Rev. F. B. Bennett, Incumbent of West Ashby, Horncastle; Rev. W. H. Chapman to be Perpetual Curate of Southwold, Suffolk; Rev. H. Ingman to be Perpetual Curate of Cheltenham; Rev. R. Wale to be Curate of St. James's, Bradford, Yorkshire.—Guardian.

COUNTRY NEWS.

A child died at Dartford, the other day, from eating lucifer-matches.

The Cornish mackerel fishers have, of late, taken great "hauls" of fish—more, indeed, than they have been well able to dispose of.

Measures are about to be taken to encourage an improvement in the breed of horses and cattle in the New Forest.

Bartholomeusbrook, according to the Roman Catholic papers, is the only county in England where mass is not performed.

Mr. J. E. Wallis, of Chesterfield and Black Park Colliery, Chirk, Denbighshire, has been appointed Inspector of the South Wales Collieries, in the place of Mr. Thomas Evans.

The Bridgewater Canal, which is 40 miles, costing 100 guineas, has just been prepared for presentation to the Princess of Wales, from the Duke of Bridgewater, on the occasion of her marriage.

The annual feast of the sunday-school children of Manchester, at Salford, commenced on Thursday, began on Monday, and has, or has not, been carried out under very favourable circumstances.

The Liverpool Chamber of Commerce delegates brought their conference to a close, after a sitting extending over three days, by passing resolutions in favour of a Channel Tunnel.

The Edinburgh Dramatic Company is about to receive an extensive addition, by the incorporation with it of the Experimental Garden, belonging to the city.

The committee of the Liverpool Shakspearean Tercentenary Celebration, having about £300 in hand, have agreed to hand over £50 to the Royal Literary Fund and to devote the remainder between the Dramatic Authors' and Artists' Benevolent Funds.

The Mackay Gun was again tested on the beach near Crosby on Thursday, when a large number of persons were under gentlemen. Two shots at the target passed right through. The gun was tested for range, with a 6-lb. charge, and made a distance of 2100 yards.

At a public meeting held on Wednesday in the hall of the Mechanics' Institution at Bolton, The Duke of Argyll and Mr. Roebuck addressed a numerous audience, on the subject of national education, and the best means of promoting it.

The people of Halifax on Tuesday showed their confidence in Mr. Glanfield, M.P., by presenting him with a silver candelabrum, value 100 guineas, and a purse containing £1000, the latter being the result of between 8000 and 10,000 presses. Mr. Glanfield made a short, manly speech in acknowledgment of the gifts, which he said he should hand down to his children.

The Lord Mayor and Lady Mayoress of Dublin have issued circulars for a fancy bazaar, to be held in the Mansion-house and other premises in Dublin of the mechanical products of Ireland. The arrangements for the bazaar are extensive, and the object is one which, if carried out, will be of the undoubtedly productive to be decidedly successful in a pecuniary as well as in a national point of view.

On Monday afternoon Mr. Laird, M.P., laid the foundation-stone of the Birkenhead Literary Institute. The building is a handsome size, and, in addition to reading, smoking, and coffee rooms, will contain a lecture-room capable of accommodating 1000 persons, and a large hall to hold 1000 persons. It is being erected by a Working Men's Company. Mr. Lionel Laird, son of Mr. Laird, M.P., presided at the ceremony.

At the Sailors' Home, Liverpool, on Thursday week, the Chairman of the Board of Trade Examiners, on behalf of the Peruvian Government, an elegant array of gold silver, bearing a suitable engraving, was presented to Captain Thomas Lewis, of the Peruvian ship Loa, which rescued about eighteen months ago in towing a disabled Portuguese man-of-war into port, and thereby saving the lives of upwards of 600 men.

The six hundredth anniversary of the Battle of Lewes was on Monday celebrated by the inhabitants of that town with much spirit and the neighbourhood. This battle, which was fought on the 14th of May, in the 1st year of the reign of Henry III., was one of the most famous in the Baron-bill, between Henry III. and the Barons, is memorable in English history as having established the principle of representation in Parliament, and thereby the establishment of Constitutional government. The anniversary fell on Saturday last, but the festivities in connection with the event, for convenience sake, the celebration was postponed till Monday.

Further information has been made to the National Gallery of Scotland last week. They include a beautiful picture, "Francesca di Rimini," by Ary Scheffer, and a fine Rembrandt, "Portrait of a Rabbi," presented by Mr. J. Pitt. In his long and rich life, in height, and is regarded as one of the finest specimens of the master. Mr. Pitt has also presented a fine picture—a picture from Aberdeenshire for £200, a very low price for the work. The Academy has also received a fine picture by Sir Daniel Macnee, R.S.A., the exhibition of Scottish Art, which was opened by the Lord Provost on October. The other pictures added are four by Scottish artists, and one by Mr. Thomas Faed, R.A., which has been presented to the gallery, along with a portrait of the artist, by his relative, the late Professor Wilson.

The ceremony of turning the first sod of the Worcester, Bromsgrove, and Birmingham Railway took place on Monday. The first sod was turned by Mr. Lea, the Mayor of Worcester, and the ceremony took place in the Speech House, in the forest.—The first sod of the Pontypool, Caerleon, and Newport Railway was turned by Mr. Cornelius Chapman, Mayor of Newport, at Caerleon, and the whole of the Yorkshire lines first since across the Cumberland Gap, in the United States, has been completed. On Saturday a large party of gentlemen connected with the Manchester, Sheffield, and Lincolnshire Railway Company, and the Great Northern, Great Eastern, and Grimsby Railway. This is a short line of 144 miles, from a junction with the South Yorkshire Railway at Barnsley, to the Great Northern, Sheffield, and Lincolnshire Railway at Barnsley.

The Scottish papers announce the death of Mr. John Bellar, a native of that town, and who lived to it nearly ninety years. For forty years of his life he was a member of the Town Council, and for a number of the principal persons in the town. His first pupil is living, as one of the oldest men in the town. Mr. Bellar's connection with the Volunteers dates from 1803, with a score of 100 coverings. The deceased was a Liberal and a Nonconformist. Fifty years ago he was one of the principal supporters of the Society of Biblical and Foreign Bible Society. He was an advocate of the abolition of the Corn Laws, and of the Anti-Slavery movement. Mr. Bellar was the author of a work on the history and antiquities of Southampton and on other subjects, and was a member of the Archæological Society of Scotland and other learned societies.

Lord Houghton, who, as Mr. Monckton Milnes, represented Pontefract in the House of Commons for a quarter of a century, was on Monday presented with the freedom of the borough, the value of 1000 electorate to the principal persons in the town. His first pupil is living, as one of the oldest men in the town. Mr. Bellar's connection with the Volunteers dates from 1803, with a score of 100 coverings. The deceased was a Liberal and a Nonconformist. Fifty years ago he was one of the principal supporters of the Society of Biblical and Foreign Bible Society. He was an advocate of the abolition of the Corn Laws, and of the Anti-Slavery movement. Mr. Bellar was the author of a work on the history and antiquities of Southampton and on other subjects, and was a member of the Archæological Society of Scotland and other learned societies.

Lord Houghton, who, as Mr. Monckton Milnes, represented Pontefract in the House of Commons for a quarter of a century, was on Monday presented with the freedom of the borough, the value of 1000 electorate to the principal persons in the town. His first pupil is living, as one of the oldest men in the town. Mr. Bellar's connection with the Volunteers dates from 1803, with a score of 100 coverings. The deceased was a Liberal and a Nonconformist. Fifty years ago he was one of the principal supporters of the Society of Biblical and Foreign Bible Society. He was an advocate of the abolition of the Corn Laws, and of the Anti-Slavery movement. Mr. Bellar was the author of a work on the history and antiquities of Southampton and on other subjects, and was a member of the Archæological Society of Scotland and other learned societies.

General Sir Alexander Murray Tulloch, K.C.B., died on Monday, after a short illness.

On Tuesday last 128 children were baptised at Christ Church, St. Giles's, Oxford-street, by the curate and clergy of the parish by the parochial clergy.

The annual consumption of ice in Paris is reckoned at 12,000,000 lb., exclusive of the Tuileries, the Palais Royal, and some of the well-to-do families, which have ice-houses of their own, or which are supplied by their private ice-houses.

There was recently cut down in California, the circumference of which is 93 ft., and its height 256 ft. The age of this tree is computed at 1,247 years.

A LIST OF FIFTEEN DOUBLE STARS, discovered by Mr. Dawes, between 1850 and 1859, has been laid before the Royal Astronomical Society. Mr. Dawes is of opinion that the list of double stars, which he has recorded his leisure time only, it is highly probable that an extended search would lead to a rich harvest of these double stars, which are justly reckoned among the mysteries of the heavenly bodies.

THE CONFLAGRATION OF SIRIUS.—In the Monthly Notices of the Royal Astronomical Society are recorded some recent observations of this star discovered by the American astronomer, Mr. Alvan Clark. The Rev. W. Dawes says that on March 24 the air was rather thick, yet the image of sirius was extremely still and well defined, and, although the companion was faint, yet there could be little doubt of its being really a star. After taking some time to look at other objects, he estimated the distance from the latter to the centre of sirius to be about ten seconds. On the 26th he was enabled to confirm the reality of the preceding observation, and to add that the position of the star is in the direction of the position and distance of the companion obtained by Mr. Marth and himself.

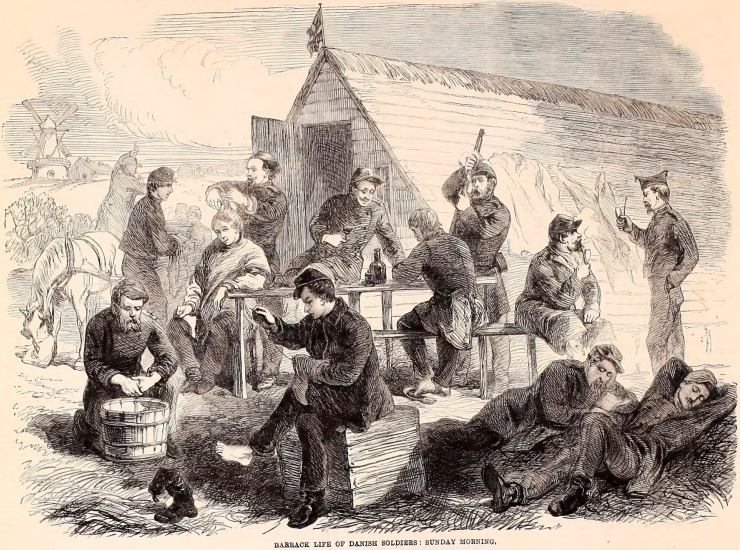
SCIENTIFIC NEWS.

THE INFLUENCE OF THE TIDAL WAVE is the subject of a paper by Mr. James Croll in the Philosophical Magazine. He states that Mayer has shown that the tidal wave tends to diminish the earth's rotation. This retardation carries the wave a little to the east of the meridian over which the moon is passing it, and, as the attraction of the moon tends continually to draw the wave back to that line, the meridian against the direction of rotation. The wave must act as a drag upon the earth's motion; and, as the drag acts by friction, the "vis viva" of rotation is continually lessened. Mr. Croll says that another way in which he thinks that the tidal wave tends to diminish the earth's velocity, hitherto not noticed, which he attributes to the attraction of centrifugal and centripetal forces. For the details of his explanations, reason generally by a diagram, we must refer our readers to his article, as we cannot here give them. Mr. Croll has also endeavoured to make known the process of reasoning by which he arrives at his conclusions, that the tidal wave not only tends to the diminution of the velocity of the rotation of the earth, but accelerates the mean motion of the moon.

ENTOZOA IN THE HUMAN VOICE.—At a recent meeting of the Academy of Sciences at Paris, Dr. Edward Fournié read a paper on this subject. By the aid of laryngoscopic mirrors and pulsating lights, the human larynx, and aided by examinations by means of the laryngoscope, he came to the conclusion—1. That the human voice is a musical instrument, acting according to principles hitherto little understood; 2. That the production of the tones of the voice is the result of a mechanism which is susceptible of modification by the mind of a diminution or enlargement of the vibrating part of the reed; 3. That the reed vocals are the seat of a variety of affections of the tissue of the reed vocals; 4. That in the mixed voice the vocal cords are slightly separated before and behind, and that the middle part never leaves them vibrating in the natural form; 5. That in the falsetto voice the thin longitudinal and the very small reed, and that in the chest voice the vocal cords are very much separated, the latter being produced by the variation of the extent of the reed and the tension of the vocal cords; 6. That experimental research supported by clinical observation leads us to contract that he could produce all the notes that he desired to sing.

ROYAL INSTITUTION LECTURES.

Mr. Bullar, in three lectures, delivered on "The Rise and Transition Period in Musical History" (about 1600 to 1750), delivered on Thursday, May 12, resumed the consideration of the state of the science in the latter part of the first decade of the eighteenth century, referring especially to the effect produced by the establishment of the Italian opera in London, and the style of music into which it then was then cultivated, and the greatly-increased attention paid to "expression" which was the characteristic of the period. He said, that the style of music which was the management of the voice, was hardly be said to have existed at all above two octaves, and rarely reached to that. In the latter part of the century the eighteenth century the art of singing began to make great progress through the skill and genius of the directors and professors of the Italian opera in London.



Mr. Bullar then gave a list of the "soprani," Signora Tesi, Signor Senesino, Mr. Whitley Cooper (tenor), and Mr. Lewis Thomas (bass), and mentioned the names of the great Italian masters of the period subjected to review :—1. Solo music of the Italian masters of the period, "Arie cogite gravi;" 2. Concerted Pieces of Marcello (1720). 3. Duet (soprano and tenor), "Quando tramonta Febo;" 4. Duet (soprano and contralto), "Quando nasce Febo;" 5. Duet (soprano and bass), "Lascia pur gracia;" by the great Alessandro Scarlatti, a most prolific writer, who composed 114 operas. Mr. Bullar mentioned the names of Corelli, A. Gabrielli, Vivaldi, Geminiani, Tartini, from a Litany to the Blessed Virgin, by Durante, whose style was considered severe, and Leo, who later exercised a great influence on the composers and artists from the time of "Handel Master," by the great Pergolesi, director of the school of Naples, and Jomelli, who, when Handel was producing great works, rendering the orchestra of Pergolesi's life, the number, variety, and excellence of his works are truly wonderful. Mr. Bullar then illustrated the lecture by singing a duet, an operator to say other resting of that celebrated medieval hymn.

Mr. Bullar gave the concluding lecture on Friday evening on the 13th inst., "On the Mechanical Nature and Uses of Gun-cotton." He began by stating that Mr. Abel, F.R.S., had given a lecture on the same subject on April 15 last (reported in our Number for April 23, page 387), and stated that, by the kindness of Mr. Abel, he had obtained permission for the present lecture. Mr. Bullar then explained the chemical nature of gun-cotton, and mentioned the discovery of it by Professor Schönbein, of Basle, in 1846, and the subsequent investigations of Professor Böttger, of Frankfort, and Mr. Hall, of Faversham. The application of gun-cotton began by a committee appointed by the British Government to investigate their reports of the results of their experiments. Pyroxyline is the discovery to the chemical composition of gunpowder, and expressed like gunpowder, by the explosion of a percussion cap. The lecturer then described the process by which gun-cotton is manufactured, and mentioned the action of the remaining thirty-two gaseous parts. He then described the experiments which he had made with Professor Leak's gun-cotton machine, by firing pyroxyline manufactured by Messrs. Prentice and Co., of Stowmarket, from a gun of 12-bore, with a charge of 60 grains of powder and 1 oz. of shot, and obtained a velocity of a projectile can be obtained by a charge of gun-cotton one-fourth less than that of gunpowder, without the corrosive action of heating and leading which gunpowder leaves behind it in the barrel. He explained that, in driving tunnels through rock, the use of gun-cotton would be of great advantage, as it would not be necessary to use so much time to reduce the rock to smaller pieces. In coal-mines it is found to be of great advantage, as it does not produce, in a given charge, so much smoke prevents the delay of the work. For military and naval engineering it is also of great advantage, as it requires less space for storage, and is not liable to explode by gunpowder from being made in the form of rope or yarn; and is said to be less liable to explode by the concussion of cannon-balls, and to be more powerful. The different rules of the regularity of combustion when wet. A piece of the latter, when ignited, burns like a piece of tinder, and will continue to smoulder for almost any length of time, while other pieces on the table exploded instantaneously on ignition. Mr. Bullar then fired a piece of wet gun-cotton, 2½ in. square, by 25 per cent of dry gun-cotton, and considered that its great explosive force was due to this fact, and mentioned that the experiments of Mr. Abel had led to the conclusion that the explosive force of gun-cotton is greatest when it contains 25 per cent of water.

Professor Frankland, in his twelfth lecture on the Metals (on Saturday last, the 14th inst.), described the preparation of sodium. It is a pale metal in fusible only at a temperature below that of boiling water (200 deg. Fah.) He rapid corrosion in moist air is due to carbonic acid and moisture, which are always present in the atmosphere. The affinity of the metal for oxygen is so great that the metals have but a feeble affinity for oxygen at any temperature, and their oxides are decomposed by heat alone at temperatures more or less considerable. Silver is often found native, but generally in argentiferous lead, from which it is obtained by the process of cupellation. Platinum is also found native, and is obtained from its ores by solution in aqua regia. Small quantities are to be met with the expense of working, may be now readily obtained from the electro-plating establishments. Mercury is found native, and extracted from its ores by an economical solution of the ore with iron. Copper is found native, and extracted from its ores by various processes, the most important of which are the dry and the wet methods of extraction. Lead, which is malleable, and may be cut with a knife, is found native. It is largely obtained from its ores by the dry method of reduction by varying temperatures adapt it for the thermometer and barometer. Zinc is found native, and is obtained from its ores by practically similar processes. Gold required but little notice, as possessing little chemical interest. It is found native, and is obtained from its ores by amalgamation with mercury, or by the extraction by strong mechanical washing and subsequent amalgamation). When pure, it is the most malleable of all the metals. Platinum is also found native, and is obtained from its ores by fusion with lead, and subsequent cupellation. No simple acid acts upon it; but a mixture of nitric and hydrochloric acids (nitro-muriatic acid) dissolves it readily. Platinum, on account of its infusibility, is a most important metal for the manufacturing and experimental chemist. Iron is found native, and is obtained from its ores by the smelting process, which is carried on in blast furnaces. From the cyclonite layer are gathered the cuticle, the brain, and the spinal cord. From the motor-vascular layer proceed the cuticle, muscles, the nerves, the veins of the body, and the mucous membrane of all the glands and of the alimentary canal, and the circulating apparatus; and from the epithelial layer are developed the lining membranes of the alimentary canal, of all its glands, and the lungs. All these organs are, in fact, a mere differentiating in character; the original cell element they derived from the primitive cell undergoing alternate changes of waste and repair. The combined removal of the epiclasses may be mentioned as one of the more interesting illustrations of the principle of differentiation, and the essence of the identity of the cells referred to it.

The Friday evening discourse, on May 27th, will be given by Reginald S. Poole, Esq., of the British Museum, "On Greek Art, as illustrated by Coins."

ILLUSTRATIONS OF THE WAR IN DENMARK. BY OUR DANISH ARTIST.

BARRACK LIFE OF DANISH SOLDIERS: SUNDAY MORNING.

BARRACK LIFE OF DANISH SOLDIERS: SUNDAY AFTERNOON.—SEE PAGE 493.

THE WAR IN DENMARK: PUBLIC FUNERAL AT COPENHAGEN OF OFFICERS AND SOLDIERS KILLED AT DUPPEL.—FROM A SKETCH BY OUR DANISH ARTIST.—SEE PAGE 97.

CALENDAR FOR THE WEEK ENDING MAY 28.

SUNDAY, May 22.—Trinity Sunday. Alexander's victory over the Persians near the Granicus, 334 B.C. Trinity Term begins.
MONDAY, 23.—Archbishop Cranmer pronounces the marriage of Henry VIII. and Katherine of Arragon null and void, 1533. The Irish Rebellion begins at Enniscorthy, 1798.
TUESDAY, 24.—Queen Victoria born, 1819. Thomas à Becket elected Archbishop of Canterbury, 1162. The English capture Joan of Arc at Compiègne, 1430.
WEDNESDAY, 25.—King Charles II. lands at Dover, on his return from exile, 1660. Princess Helena born, 1846.
THURSDAY, 26.—Corpus Christi. Augustine, first Archbishop of Canterbury, died, 605. Napoleon crowns himself King of Italy, at Milan, 1805.
FRIDAY, 27.—Battle of Moscow: Jerome Bonaparte and Poniatowski's Polish subtercts, 1812. Death of the Reformer John Calvin, at Geneva, 1564. Revival of the Order of the Bath by King George I., 1725. Birth of the King of Hanover, 1819.
SATURDAY, 28.—Birth of William Pitt, 1759. The Moon's Last Quarter, 9h. 19m.m.

TIMES OF HIGH WATER AT LONDON BRIDGE
FOR THE WEEK ENDING MAY 28.

Sunday.	Monday.	Tuesday.	Wednesday.	Thursday.	Friday.	Saturday.
h. m.	h. m.	h. m.	h. m.	h. m.	h. m.	h. m.
10 5	10 48	11 30	0 11	0 52	1 33	2 14

THE WEATHER.

RESULTS OF METEOROLOGICAL OBSERVATIONS AT THE OBSERVATORY OF THE ROYAL SOCIETY OF THE BRITISH ASSOCIATION.

Lat. 51° 28' 6" N.; Long. 0° 14' 47" W.; Height above Sea, 91 feet.

DAY.	DAILY MEANS OF					THERMOMETER.		WIND.		RAIN in the 24 hours ending 10 A.M.
	Barometer reduced to 32° and Sea Level.	Dew Point.	Relative Humidity.	Solar Radiation.	Ozone.	Highest in the Day.	Lowest in the Night.	Greatest Direction.	Greatest Velocity in Miles per Hour.
	Inches.	°	Sat. = 100		0–10					Miles. Inches.
(13	29·8·4	51·3	68·0	·93	10	60·5	53·9	NE. E.	35·0	·034
14	29·8·4	49·7	67·0	·93	9	60·5	52·9	NE. E.	35·0	·034
15	30·047	49·7	65·8	·93	8	63·7	54·6	N.	16·1	·000
16	30·042	50·7	67·5	·93	8	63·7	54·6	NW. NNW. SE.	19·1	·000
17	29·9·0	49·2	67·2	·93	8	63·7	54·6	,,	8·4	·000
18	29·8·6	47·5	68·4	·93	7	62·3	51·6	,,	8·4	·000
19	29·9·0	48·2	65·3	·93	8	62·3	51·6	E.NNE.	20·0	·000

The following are the readings of the meteorological instruments for the above days, in order, at half-past nine a.m.

Barometer (in inches corrected)	29·834	29·842	29·847	29·873	29·933	30·041	30·047
Temperature of Air	52·0°	50·0°	50·0°	49·0°	51·0°	51·0°	52·0°
Temperature of Evaporation	49·0°	47·0°	47·0°	47·0°	48·0°	48·0°	49·0°
Direction of Wind	...	NE.	ENE.	NE.	NE.	NW.	NW.

THE ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS.

LONDON: SATURDAY, MAY 21, 1864.

It is a matter both for taste and for congratulation that the occasion selected for the first appearance of the Prince of Wales as president of a banquet was one of so much importance and interest as the feast of the Literary Fund. And not only this. There might have been many festive meetings of both importance and interest at which the presidency of the Heir of England might properly have been sought; but there could have been no assemblage over which the Prince could so properly have presided, at his entrance into manhood, as that which welcomed him on Wednesday last at the St. James's Hall. Military or naval men might have claimed him for one of their memorial dinners, at which the glory of British arms would have been celebrated; agricultural societies might have asked him to grace a fête in honour of the progress of science as applied to the most useful of pursuits; or one or other of the Arts might gracefully have asked that her cause should be pleaded by one who has it in his power to do so much for the true interests of them all. But it was a happy arrangement which caused the Prince of Wales to make his first essay in chairmanship at the table of an association of literary men. For by the word literature the Prince understood, and all should understand, no limited or isolated department of authorship. The word has perhaps been hacked until, to a good many minds, it represents but a small portion, and that not the most important portion, of the interest really indicated by the phrase. For many persons a "literary man"—a bad epithet, but a recognised one—is a writer of novels and magazine articles, whose name is constantly in advertisements, and many others the occupation of the individual in question is a kind of mystery; but it is known that he has "a good deal to do with the papers," and is at work when other folk are in bed. Then there are the varieties who appear in society, and in that easily-satisfied world receive brevet rank of authorship on the strength of some single and nearly forgotten volume, whose title is misquoted with some frequency, and who is a novice presses to know for what reason a certain individual is called "literary." But these ideas, or rather impressions, as to the extent and value of the literary world are likely to be swept away—or at all events to be reduced into something like common sense—by such meetings as that of Wednesday and such addresses as were then delivered. It will in time, we hope, be comprehended by the public that educated persons that literature means whatever of art and of science belongs to written thought.

Something like justice was done at the meeting of the Fund, not to the vast variety of subjects embraced by the profession of letters; that would have been impossible; but in the way of recognising that vast sweep and of doing homage to its enlightening and civilising agencies. While very graceful and well-deserved tributes were paid to those who, by the genius and cheerful spirit, minister not only to amusement but to social morals, the harder labours of those who toil in heavier soil were reverently remembered. Poetry and fiction received their due; but there was no forgetful ness of the laborious and the scientific writer, of the political economist, of the moralist. All this was well, and it was specially well that it took place in the presence of the heir of a house whose rule is notably based upon free thought and free utterance. It has been for other sovereign houses to shackle the writer, or to impose upon him the still more oppressive shackle of patronage and hire. The house of Brunswick has needed neither to imprison nor to enlist the wielders of the pen, for the principles which have placed and which maintain that house upon the throne are those which come from the heart of every honest writer. Freedom, fair play for antagonists, progress, humanity, are the topics which, directly or indirectly, must be those of the author in the Victorian age. It matters not in which form he does his work. The fiery political writer, who aims his downright blow at abuses, may seem more earnest, but is perhaps doing less wicked to them than the quiet satirist who pores into their rotten hearts and so prepares their destruction. The grave and logical reviewer, who frowns them down, may find no small aid from the shaft sent home by the laughing humourist. But it was a happy omen for many writers as they please they never separate themselves from the army of them which marches, conquering and to conquer, over the doggedly-disputed fields so long held by ignorance and prejudice; and the victory of that army is the victory of the principles which are given freedom to Britain and the first throne of the world to the House of Brunswick.

That the Prince of Wales should discharge his new duty with the composure and tact of a gentleman was no less than was to be expected from the son and pupil of Prince Albert. His speech was admirably given, and the matter will well bear perusal. The tribute which he bore to the great man who has passed from the world of literature to the last meeting of the association was received in a way that shows how deeply William Thackeray was loved and honoured. The Prince's touching reference to his father, and the frank regret that all his father's words, at a banquet, could not be had but not been recorded, was a simple and natural expression which went straight to the hearts of all fathers and all sons who were present. The graceful compliment to the Prince Consort may be held to have borne fruit in the Prince of Wales's reference to the French institutions, founded for similar purposes to those of the Fund, and his hope that they might be admitted to communion with it. The toast to the Prince and the public may be congratulated upon the eminently successful presidency of his Royal Highness, and we are glad to be able to add that a noble institution largely benefited in a material as well as a moral sense by the chairmanship of the Prince of Wales—the subscriptions at the table amounting to about £2000. In the name of British literature, the journalist may place upon record an expression of the gratification that professions have, for far higher purposes than mere pleasure, that its interests should have formed the theme of the first important speech from the son of Queen Victoria.

THE COURT.

THE Queen accompanied by Princess Helena, Princess Louisa, Princess Beatrice, Prince Leopold, Prince Arthur, Prince of Leiningen, and Princess Alberta of Leiningen, arrived at Balmoral at half-past three o'clock on Saturday afternoon. Her Majesty's suite in Scotland consisted of the Hon. Mrs. Bruce, Lady Churchill, Lieutenant-General the Hon. C. Grey, Mrs. and Miss Grey, Colonel the Hon. C. Liddell, Mr. Bull, and Mr. Sibbi. Lord Stanley of Alderley was also in attendance upon her Majesty on her journey to the north. The Queen was in good health, and bore the journey without having suffered serious fatigue. The weather in Aberdeenshire was cold, but the enthusiasm by the inhabitants of the district, and especially by the crowds who assembled to greet her, although respectful, salutations of those assembled to welcome her to her Highland home.

On Monday the Queen, accompanied by Princess Louise, Prince Leopold, and Prince Arthur, drove to the summit of Craigendarroch and Princess of Leiningen, drove to the Forest. Princess Helena rode out.

THE DRAWINGROOM.

By command of the Queen, a drawingroom was held on Saturday last at St. James's Palace by the Princess of Wales. Presentations at this Court were considered as equivalent to presentations made to her Majesty. The Prince and Princess of Wales, attended by their suite and escorted by a party of the Life Guards, arrived at the palace at two o'clock and were received by the Lord Chamberlain and the usual officers of state of the Queen's household. The Grand Duchess Marie Alexandrowna of Russia, Princess Mary of Cambridge, and Prince Edward of Saxe-Weimar were present at the Court. The Princess of Wales was attended by the Hon. Mrs. Bruce, accompanied by the Prince of Wales and the members of the Royal family, in attendance upon her Majesty at the Court. The Duke of Wellington, the Marchioness of Ely, the Countess of Gainsborough, the Countess of Desart, the Countess of Caledon, Viscountess Bridgeman, Countess De Grey, Lady Caroline Copley, the Hon. Mrs. George Campbell, Lieutenant-General the Hon. C. Grey, Alexander Gordon, Lady Codrington, the Hon. Mrs. W. C. Grey, the Hon. Lucy Grey, the Hon. Caroline Grey, Lady Churchill, the Hon. Flora Macdonald, the Hon. Emily Cathcart, the Hon. Horatia Stopford, Lady Mary Paget, Lady Ely, the Hon. Emma Lascelles, the Hon. Lucy Lyttelton, the Earl of St. Germans, Viscount Ebrington, Lord Alfred Paget, Lord Bernard the Hon. Sir Charles Phipps, Lord Alfred Paget, Viscount Bury, Viscount Castlereagh, and the gentlemen and ladies in waiting upon the Prince and Princess of Wales's respective households.

The Princess of Wales's dress was of white satin ornamented with a deep border of crape and jet; a petticoat of black silk, covered with flounces and a deep border of white crape trimmed with jet. Her train, of white silk, had black feathers and tulle veil; ornaments, jet. Her Royal Highness also wore the Victoria and Albert badge and the insignia of the Order of Isabella of Portugal.

The Grand Duchess Mecklenburg-Strelitz wore a train of rich black silk trimmed with black lace, and a petticoat ornamented with satin ribbon and lace. Head-dress, a tiara of diamonds and sapphires. Necklace and ornaments, gold necklace, diamonds and sapphires.

Princess Mary wore a black glacé silk train trimmed with reches of silk and tulle; a petticoat of black glacé silk covered with tulle, ornamented with crape and jet. Head-dress, a wreath of flowers, a diadem of diamonds, feathers, and silver tulle veil; stomacher, necklace and earrings of diamonds.

The Prince of Wales wore the uniform of the 10th Hussars, of which regiment his Royal Highness is Colonel, with the insignia of the Garter and the Star of India.

The Foreign Ambassadors and Ministers having been introduced, several presentations in the Diplomatic Circle took place. In the Diplomatic Circle was attended by the Turkish Ambassador, Mdme. and Mdlle. Musurus, the Persian Ambassador and Madame Appenyi, the Russian Ambassador and Baronne de Brunnow, the Prussian Ambassador and Countess Bernstorff, the Austrian Ambassador Schlippenbach, Baron and Baroness Wittelsen and M. de Balan, the French Ambassador, the Belgian Ambassador Mdme. Van de Weyer, the Bavarian Minister and Prince Theodore of Turn and Taxis, the Hanoverian Chargé—d'Affaires, the Italian Minister, the Netherlands Minister, the Secretary of the Portuguese Legation, the Saxon Minister, the Danish Minister, M. de Quaade and M. de Kruger, Baron Gudderenzus and Baron Rosenkrantz, the Honduras Minister, the United States Minister and Mrs. Adams, the Swedish and Norwegian Minister and Countess Wachtmeister, the Peruvian Minister, the Mexican Minister, Baron de Renfer, and Lady Grey (wife of Sir George Grey), representing Countess Russell, Earl Russell, Viscount Amberley, General the Hon. Sir Edward Cust, K.C.H. The general circle was attended by the Archbishop of Oxford, the Bishop of Chester, the Right Hon. Sir George Grey, Earl De Grey and Ripon, the Right Hon. T. Milner Gibson, the Earl of Bessborough, the Earl of Dunde, Lord Foley, Gen. the Marquis of Tweeddale, Lord Edward Fitzallan Howard, the Marquis of Anglesey, the Marquis of Donegall, Lord Talbot de Malahide, the Earl of Rosse, the Right Hon. Lord Ernest Bruce, M.P., the Hon. Francis Stonor, the Right Hon. Sir John Pakington, the Right Hon. the Lord Mayor, and the Gentlemen in Waiting of the Queen's household. The following were the names of the more noticeable ladies in the general circle:—

Lady Inclisdon, on succeeding to title, by the Marchioness of Thomond.
Lady Harriet Fletcher, on her marriage, by the Duchess of Buccleuch.
Lady Emily Peel, on her marriage, by the Marchioness of Ely.
Lady Frances Frederici Bruce, on her marriage, by the Marchioness of Ailesbury.
Lady Burrell, on her marriage to Sir Peter Burrell, Bart., by Lady William Lennox, on her marriage, by Lady Louisa Paget.
Lady Hill, on her marriage to Viscount Hill, by Lady Codrington.
The Hon. Mrs. William Le Poer Trench, on her marriage, by the Countess of Clancarty.
The Hon. Mrs. Leighton, on her marriage, by her mother, Lady Du Talbot.
The Hon. Mrs. Wood, on her marriage to Lord Hatherley, by her mother, Lady Talbot de Malahide.
The Hon. Mrs. James C. Dormer, on her marriage, by Lady Dormer.
Mrs. Conwahay Bailey (o the Countess Metaxa), on her marriage, by Viscountess Forbes.

THE PRINCE AND PRINCESS OF WALES.

The Prince and Princess of Wales continue at Marlborough House.

Yesterday sunlight the Princess, attended by the Hon. Mrs. W. C. Grey and Lord Harris, went to Windsor Castle and visited the Queen. The Prince presided at a lecture given at the United Service Institution, Whitehall. Subsequently his Royal Highness, attended by Major Teesdale, and Mr. Gurney, visited Cambridge. Their Royal Highnesses accompanied the Queen to the Windsor Railway Station and took leave of her Majesty and the Royal family upon their departure for the Highlands, returning in the evening to Marlborough House.

On Saturday last the Princess had a Drawingroom at St. James's Palace. Later in the day the Prince rode out and visited the Grand Duke of Mecklenburg-Strelitz at Gloucester House. The Princess took a drive. In the evening their Royal Highnesses, accompanied by Prince Arthur, Prince Leopold, Royal Italian Opera with their presence. Prince Adolphus of Mecklenburg-Strelitz visited the Princess and Prince of Wales at Marlborough House.

On Sunday the Prince and Princess attended Divine service in the Royal Royal, St. George's. The service was performed by the Rev. the Sub-Dean, the Rev. J. V. Povah, and the Rev. R. J. Simpson. In the afternoon their Royal Highnesses drove to Kew.

On Monday the Princess of Wales went to see Mr. Holman Hunt's picture in Hanover-street. Subsequently the Prince, attended by Major Teesdale, and Mr. Gurney, visited the Duke of Cambridge. Mrs. W. Grey, drove out. In the evening their Royal Highnesses were present at a concert of the Sacred Harmonic Society, at the Hanover-square Rooms.

On Tuesday the Prince, attended by Major Teesdale, rode on horseback. The Princess, attended by the Hon. Mrs. W. Grey, took a drive.

On Wednesday the Prince rode out. The Princess, attended by Lady Morton, drove out. In the evening the Prince went to St. James's Hall and presided at the dinner of the Royal Literary Fund. The Princess, attended by Lady Morton and Lord Harris, honoured her Majesty's Theatre with her presence.

Lady Morton has succeeded the Hon. Mrs. W. Grey as Lady in Waiting to the Princess.

THE PRINCE AND PRINCESS LOUIS OF HESSE.

Prince and Princess Louis of Hesse are shortly expected to visit the Queen at Balmoral. Their Royal Highnesses will be accompanied as Dondrecht to convey their Royal Highnesses to Flushing, where the Victoria and Albert yacht will be ready to be in waiting to convey the Prince and Princess to England.

PRINCE ALFRED.

His Royal Highness Prince Alfred left Darmstadt for Carlsruhe on Wednesday.

The ex-Queen Marie Amelie, who has been staying at Stanley's Royal Victoria Hotel, St. Leonards-on-Sea, during the past fortnight, returned to Claremont on Saturday last.

The Duchess of Cambridge, Princess Mary, and the Grand Duke and Grand Duchess of Mecklenburg left St. James's Palace on Saturday for Kew. The Duke of Cambridge returns to Kew Palace on Monday next.

Duke and Duchess Montpensier and family arrived at Claremont on Monday from Cadiz.

The Duke of Nemours and the Prince and Princess de Joinville have returned to Claremont from a visit to Belgium.

His Excellency the Italian Minister arrived in town on Thursday last week.

MINISTERIAL BANQUETS.

The following entertainments took place on Tuesday next, the 24th inst., in celebration of the Queen's birthday:—

The Duke of Somerset entertained a large party of naval and civil officers attached to his department at his official residence at the Admiralty, Whitehall.

Earl Russell has issued invitations for a grand entertainment.

Earl De Grey and Ripon has issued invitations for a banquet to the Duke of Cambridge and a distinguished circle at his private residence in Carlton-gardens.

The Right Hon. Sir George Grey has invitations for a full-dress dinner to a large party at his official residence at the Home Office.

The Right Hon. Milner Gibson will give a full-dress banquet at the Carendon Hotel.

The Right Hon. the Chancellor of the Exchequer will entertain the Governor of the Bank of England, the Deputy Governor of the Board of Inland Revenue and Board of Customs, and a large party, at his private mansion.

FASHIONABLE ASSEMBLIES.

The French Ambassador gave his first ball last evening at Albermarle House, which was attended by the diplomatic assemblage of the Corps Diplomatique and the fashionable world.

The Duchess of Inverness gave a soirée on Tuesday evening.

Maria Montelores of Alsebury had an assembly last evening at her residence in Grosvenor-square. The reunion was numerously attended by the leading members of the political and fashionable world.

The Earl and Countess of Caledon entertained a distinguished company at dinner on Tuesday evening, at their residence in Grosvenor-crescent.

The Countess of Jersey received her first assembly at Osterley on the at Osterley mansion in Artington-street, which was numerously attended by a distinguished company. Subsequently to the dance in the assembly, the noble Earl and Countess entertained a select circle at dinner.

The Earl and Countess of Zetland received a large party at dinner on Wednesday evening, at their residence in Artington-street.

The Earl and Countess of Carnder entertained a select circle at dinner on Wednesday evening, at their residence in Artington-street, Piccadilly.

The Earl of Dudley gave a concert yesterday afternoon at Dudley House, Park-lane.

Lady Catherine Allen gave a grand ball on Wednesday evening at 31, Dorchester, which was numerously attended by a party of the nobility and fashionable world.

Lady Isabella Stewart gave her first assembly this season on Wednesday evening at the handsome mansion in Belgrave-square. The reunion was numerously and fashionably attended.

MARRIAGES IN HIGH LIFE.

The marriage of the Hon. Mrs. Leighton with Alexis Italelia, eldest daughter of the Duke and Duchess de Montpensier, is said to take place on the 30th inst., at the Church of Notre Dame de Lorette, Paris.

A marriage will shortly take place between the Hon. Augusta Covington, daughter of Lord and Lady Carington, and Colonel Campbell, of Blythwood, Renfrewshire.

A marriage is arranged to take place between Miss Pitney, daughter of the late Right Hon. Pitney, and Lieutenant-Colonel the Hon. Lionel de Tatton Sir Cordie Trotter Lindsey.

The marriage of Miss Charlotte Anne Curzon, second daughter of the Hon. Edward Curzon, with Major Burchtier, son of the late General Bourchier, was solemnised on Wednesday at St. George's, Hanover-square.

The Lord Chamberlain has given notice that the State apartments at Windsor Castle are open to the public.

The office of Chester Herald and Secretary to the Earl Marshal of England (the Duke of Norfolk) has become vacant by the death of Mr. R. S. Ready, which occurred on Sunday last.

A Treasury warrant fixes the postage on each letter not exceeding half an ounce at 1s. from the United Kingdom to Australia, Tasmania, and New Zealand, the service to take place on July 1.

The Queen has approved of M. Philip Goldschmidt as Vice-Consul at Manchester for the Grand Duke of Oldenburg.

CURRENT LITERATURE.

Military Ends and Moral Means. By Colonel J. J. Graham. (1 vol. Smith, Elder, and Co.) This is a book which may be read with interest and profit by civilians as well as by soldiers. It does not treat at all of that destructive machinery which modern science has elaborated, for the easier achievement of military ends, but it lays great stress upon those moral qualities without which the very best machinery is likely to get out of gear, and the principal of those qualities are ascendency of character in the officer and honourable motives of enthusiasm in the soldier. Both these qualities Colonel Graham insists with much earnestness, and he defends with zeal the British system of flogging as necessary to the moral ascendency of him by some as the profligate runaway, by others as the victim of the "jolly white sergeant's eloquence, and by Mr. Esquiros as "the correct'st of hangers." And there can be doubt but that flogging may have been the cure when offenders had their sentences remitted on condition that they should, there and then, undergo the punishment of the lash; but it is not merely the duty of an officer to inflict such punishment, and that is the reason why we have always objected to the system of flogging even in the ranks. With respect to the officer, the late Sir Henry Havelock's opinion is ours. "The moral character of a regiment, he it good or bad, fairly reflects the amount of attention taken by the officers to the moral habits of the men. The soldier wonders out of garrison or cantonments, and consults excuses abroad, because he has no inducement to remain within the precincts of the barrack-square. He goes abroad in search of amusement, and finds it not unfrequently unattainable, except him on to ruin. This would not happen if regimental officers did their duty to their men. It is not merely the duty of an officer to attend punishment parades; every company officer should be present to sanction promotions, to see the pay issued, to sign monthly returns, and to attend a court martial with a view to the officer and higher duties to perform—a duty to his sovereign, a duty to his neighbours, a duty to his God, not to be neglected for the mere observance of these military formalities. He stands in loco parentis, he is the father of his men. His interests are their interests, so far as to call for their sincerest affection, and incite in them a strong feeling of shame on his account if they fail in him in the omission of unworthy actions. It is his duty to study their characters, to interest himself in their pursuits, to ameliorate their comforts, to assist and encourage with counsel and praise every good effort, to extend his sympathy to them in distress, to console them in affliction, to show by every act of his life that though exiles from home and silent from their kindred, they have yet a friend upon whom they will not hesitate to rely." Such is the duty of an officer, and duties, to which cannot be performed without an abundant recognition of the duties of other classes of society. Colonel Graham, the late Sir Henry Lawrence's "Essays," Colonel Graham considers ought to be studied in every regimental mess-room. Colonel Graham has found it in harmony with his subject to discourse of standing armies, of military ignorance, of the military spirit, of war in the future, forms, and policy of war; of stratagems, of the management of convoys, of military reconnaissances, of the military spirit, of the use of military duties in aid of civil power; and he illustrates all he says by interesting parallels drawn from sources ancient as Joshua and the capture of Ai, and modern as Grant and Lee in the Wilderness.

Memoirs of a Minister of State: by F. Guizot (1 vol. Bentley). The Last Stuart Statesman: Memoirs of Cardinal York and his Times. By Hans C. Andersen (1 vol. Ditto). Bernard Marle: by G. P. R. James (1 vol. Ditto). M. Guizot's memoirs, which commence with the very short period (1840-1847) of a foremost statesman's career, abound with attractions which must be vividly impressed upon the memory of all English readers who are of young enough to remember what dark clouds hung over the political atmosphere—what storms seemed to threaten our peace—what anxieties were felt for the future relations of France with her King at the time of Napoleon's obsequies, of the Eastern question, of the fate of the Spanish Queen, of Cubières d'Or, of the difficult question of the "right of search," of the Syrian Mission, of the treaty in favour of the Porte, of the war between the Maronites and the Druses, of the ticklish condition of affairs in Spain, of the Pritchard affair, of the visit to Eu, of Algeria (1840-15, 1841), and of the campaign of Bugeaud in Algeria preliminary to the conquest of Kabylie. We have also explained above that these memoirs will gain a "refreshes" from the pen of one who was no insignificant actor in the scenes which he describes. Mr. Andersen's sketch, however, is only also explained as the English correspondent of Hans Christian Andersen's impressions of Spain. One may spend a very pleasant hour in reading the book of our native Dane, as he (interpreted by Mrs. Bushby) describes his journeying from Bayonne to Irun, and from Irun to Madrid, and he crosses the Pyrenees to Biarritz. However happy Mr. Bushby may know how to render prose translations, we must say that his poetical do not always fairly represent the Danish original, or M. Andersen's Pegasus must have been a donkey. Is it fair to represent English lines are equal to the Danish apostrophe to Madrid :—

> The capital of Spain—oh, no!
> For in less than no time we see
> Of what characters here are
> There is no likeness in Love.

But the exigencies of metre and rhyme are too much sometimes for the most upright writers—for Shakespeare, as well as for Milton, without any prefatory or other explanation, and it is therefore fair to presume that it is a posthumous work of the late Cardinal York. G. P. R. James, who had so brief an enjoyment of his official post in "the sunny climes of France" (by a pardonable play on the Princess Honour of a Minister) "he could not by any possibility" (to use the words of a friend of Mr. Thackeray's, who, in reviewing one of "Barnard Marsh" is by no means one of its author's best productions; but there is much in it that childhood will read with pleasure, and the unflagging succession of incident, that probable improbability, that love-making "under fire," and that supernatural excellence in the hero which make him a favourite with boys, and which, at all events, is free from the cold-water-of-fact life into the regions of historical romance.

Merivale's History of Rome, Vol. Seventh (8 vols. Longman, Green, Longman, and Roberts). Mr. Thomas Algate has translated, "under the author's own supervision," a new edition of this work in a convenient form, and at a reasonable price. The seventh volume, which is the last subject by a very competent writer; for M. Chevalier has apparently closely studied and well understood the character of Julius Cæsar, the moral character of Julius Cæsar, the moral character of Julius Cæsar, the moral

"ON THOUGHTS OF CHARITY INTENT."

THOSE of our readers who have visited the Female Artists' Exhibition will recognize the charming little picture, very effectively painted by Miss Emma Brownlow, represented by one of our Fine-Art Illustrations in this Number. It is particularly to be observed that the Norman or Breton peasant girl chosen for the subject of the picture is a very young and a very little personage. We may see, as she stands in her thick wooden sabots, that her quaint white cap rises hardly above the poor-box into which bigger folk drop their alms in passing, and that the great hinge of the church door is nearly half as tall as she is; but these are the only objects with which her height is to be measured. It is the more essential to remark the juvenility of the little maiden, because her cap—to English eyes an old-fashioned one—her womanly dress and housewifely pocket, her kindly thoughtfulness—feeling, as she does, for perhaps her only sou or liard—seem all beyond her years. It is understood that our little heroine has gone to mutter or to moan, or to say her prayers to the Virgin in some quiet side-chapel, all alone; and as she leaves the house of God, this little Christian "remembers the poor." Examples for so doing she has had in plenty. Our Roman Catholic neighbours do not let the spider's web form over the hole of the poor-box, as, according to one of Hogarth's pictures in the Rake's Progress, happens occasionally in England. But possibly the example she may best remember is that of a mother—a widowed mother it may be—who has often dropped her mite into that same tronc pour les pauvres.

"CARAVAN ARRIVING AT A WELL NEAR THEBES, UPPER EGYPT."

THE picturesqueness of Eastern life, costumes, and usages, is yearly attracting a larger number of travellers and artists from among the civilised wearers of black coats, chimney-pot hats, and crinoline in Europe. Our Engraving, from Mrs. Roberton Blaine's picture in the late Female Artists' Exhibition, shows that ladies, who have often proved themselves the most adventurous of travellers, partake the general curiosity respecting the ancient and still mysterious East.

The scene before us is one of the wells of sometimes brackish water, but more frequently sweet and good, which recur at various stations distant from eight to twelve miles from each other in the neighbourhood of the ancient Egyptian ruined capital, Thebes, and near the foot or edge of the desert. These wells, of course, are very welcome to the traveller, wearied by the shaking gait of the camel's walk, fatigued by the monotony of the pace and of the prospect, and parched by the heat radiated from the sandy desert or from the uncultivated alluvial soil. Almost every sense is gratified at these little oases: the eye is relieved with a sight of a few palms, or one or more sycamores, olives, or vines, and even a bit of Saracenic architecture over the wells; while the body is refreshed with rest and the tongue with a cooling draught. It is true, that the prospect near Thebes has less sameness than in many parts of the great valley of the Nile, because the horizon is broken, as we see in the picture, on one side, by the chain of hills on the western bank of the river, in which are the tombs of the Egyptian Kings and Queens. Yet the visitor who approaches Thebes in the escort of a caravan, instead of by the easier conveyance of a boat up the Nile, must endure much toil and weariness before he gets close to the mighty city, and beholds the vast area on each bank of the Nile, covered with the ruins of Karnac, Luxor, and Medeenet Hebou, with their world-famous temples and palace temples, halls, pylons, and avenues of sphinxes, the gigantic Memnonium, or Ramesseum, and the Colossi of the Plain. We may admire in this Engraving the picturesque groups which are formed by the halting of the caravan—the Arab guards mounted and dismounted, the travellers or passengers squatted in a circle conversing, the Nubian water-carrier, and the women busy filling their bottles, the camels, some standing, others drinking at the troughs, and others kabbled and fastened to the ground. We have only to add that the accomplished lady who painted the original picture is the wife of a gentleman to whom all interested in art and artists must feel grateful for his long-continued exertions in seeking to obtain an amendment of the law of artistic copyright.

THE ROYAL ACADEMY AND THE COMMISSIONERS.—A letter communicating the result of the deliberations of the Royal Academy on the several matters contained in the recommendations of the Royal Commissioners has been published. The Academy agree with many of the views of the Commissioners, but from others they differ very strongly. The Academicians propose to enlarge the Academy by the increase of its professional members, and to remove all restrictions with regard to the members of other art-societies. With regard to the constitution of the Academy, they differ from the Commissioners as to the introduction of non-professional members—a change which they regard as an "uncalled-for innovation." They complain of the absence of the artist element from the Commission, and submit that the conclusions and views of the Commissioners, being those of unprofessional men, must be regarded as open to question.

"ON THOUGHTS OF CHARITY INTENT," BY MISS E. BROWNLOW.—FROM THE FEMALE ARTISTS' EXHIBITION.

"CARAVAN ARRIVING AT A WELL NEAR THEBES, EGYPT," BY MRS. ROBERTON BLANE.—FROM THE FEMALE ARTISTS' EXHIBITION.

THE ATLANTIC TELEGRAPH CABLE: LANDING THE SHORE END AT VALENTIA, IRELAND.—SEE PAGE 501.

FINE ARTS.

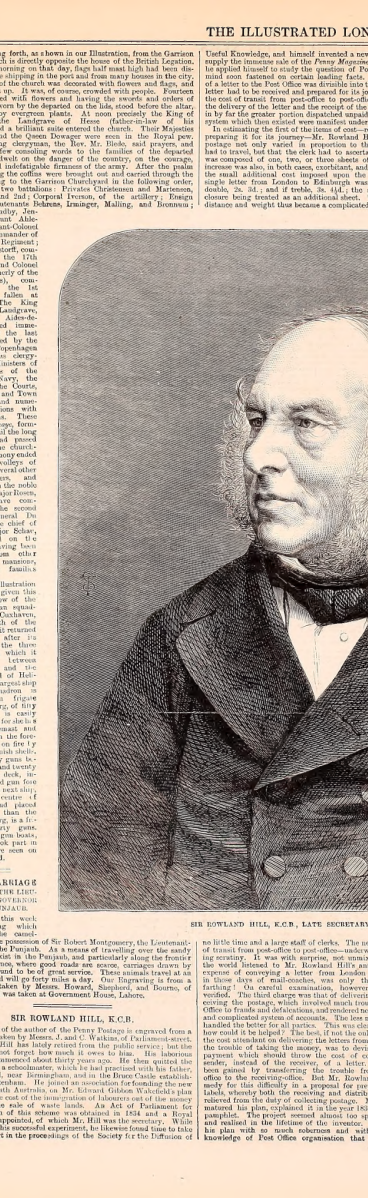
EXHIBITION OF THE ROYAL ACADEMY.

(THIRD NOTICE.)

The most important example of monumental painting after Armitage's "Abab and Jezebel," is Watts's colossal "Time and Oblivion" (157). We are glad to see so distinguished a painter setting the example of attempting an allegorical though unbackneyed theme. Allegory, though the vehicle of sacred inspiration and of poetic passion, and inevitable in sculpture if we would not curtail half its resources, has been denied to the painter because, forsooth, unsuited to these matter-of-fact times. Were it so, one might well say, so much the worse for those times; but, on the contrary, should not a course of allegory be prescribed for our nineteenth century age? Is it undeniable that allegory is calculated to impress truths on the mind of too abstract a nature for any direct mode of representation; and the picture before us bears out the fact, though not perhaps in the most striking manner. We take it to be one of the impressible and connection of time and oblivion, and it conveys the moral, literally inscribed on its lintel, of gold, "Time flies." A small fine picture to do, do it with all its might." Time—far more poetically represented as youthful than otherwise—is personified by a beautiful draped female figure, nude to the waist (though present only, as it were, half disclosed), who, with outstretched arms and wings, is in the act to sweep to mow down the flowers of the earth, is here passing towards the midst of the golden orb of the sun, seeking the very centre of the sphere of light and reality. Opposite reluctantly but close behind him is Oblivion, her figure veiled and sable-hued, but by no means unattractive, as she draws him from the light, seeking to turn away into the darkness of night. The artist might, however, have been more careful in the choice of the colour of his work as a "Design for Sculpture, to be executed in divers materials, after the manner of Phidias," which would have preserved the character of the forms and the simplicity of the masses would to eminently fitted; but look at the picture as a whole, and it is more than usual of a fair girl "Choosing" (295) between the brilliant camellia, which she smells in vain, and the violets she holds in her hand.

The most elaborate picture (269) Mr. Frere Crowe has painted, and also the best, represents Luther posting his theses against Tetzel's the doctrine of indulgences on the door of Wittemburg Church, towards which a crowd of superstitious people are seen moving. In number of monks and citizens, pikemen and Swiss guards, back the audacious act, and among the numerous figures are the portraits of Luther's parents and sister, his wife in the future—the nun, Catherine Bore—and his friend Lucas Cranach, the painter. Of these, as well as the heroic of this picture, we think the single figure of Swift gazing with intensely upraised eyes at the sky (Mr. Sichel's hair (594) is still finer in expression and power of painting. Monsieur Stone, whose picture of Napoleon resting at an auberge in the flight from Waterloo attracted so much attention last year, is almost somewhat disappoint his less discriminating friends. His present picture is not to boast of subject, the recognition of Napoleon by a peasant, and, though the principal group is vigorous, some of the figures are pretty in character, and nevertheless, it is not a picture in which the artist will to range. It is called "Working and Shirking" (118), and represents the interior of a deserted cottage, with a child at play and the late comrades. The villages, happy and contented at their labour of fishing or of net-mending—some engaged in the open air, clean, trim soldier marching at the side of his handcuffed captives, are in strong contrast with the slouching, scowling, idle vagabond, who would fly from work in any shape, and the child at neglected duty and its consequences is further enforced by the poor broken-hearted, widowed mother, whom one of the fishermen is trying to console. W. Gale sustains his reputation for combined force and refinement of colour, and genuine feeling for the sea in

NATIONAL SPORTS.



RAIN prophecies, unsound trials, and moderate two-year-olds, seem to be the fashion of this season. There was a "Union of delight" early in the spring, but scarcely anything has united Derby speculation for 63, save A 1 and Salpidectes. Beaucaut at 5 lb. more than two lengths from the Swift, failed to win the Gemma di Vergy mem. as usual, commence "the great incumbe 'I told you so,'" but this week's trial, put, on her, may be considered as final, though without a penalty, and so the thing goes on. Tennyson (h. h.) favoured his noble owner with a victory over Mr. Payne's Bulbul in the Newmarket on the first day in a field of fifteen, is only beaten by a neck on the next after a severe race. It is all the more creditable to the Derbyshire, the third of the day before, is nowhere. Hence we have seen little, so far, to warrant the opinion of the Times (15) regretting out of 52. The Ratapians have had a fine run of handicap luck of late, and Earl Jersey's three victories at York and Redcliffe have been followed up by that of the "green and blue" at the Whole Premier, with his Baldwin, at Salisbury, and of Hymettus, one of Colonel Towneley's, at Reading, all Blackthorn's mounts. The Agnes family—two if not three of which are now the nucleus of the second Gladstone stud—keeps their bubble; the Chevenix exchequer.

The Earl Barrett mares and yearlings met with rather a slow sale on Saturday; but Mr. Parr helped matters by giving 300 gs. for a Tedcaster colt, and therefore Pan's Pandemonium is the Queen of Mr. Arkwright's twenty-one hunters made more than 103 gs., and, Mr. Fielding, 45 guineas, gave 15 gs. for Mr. Thomas's Tom-cat sale. The roan Phœbus was bought in for 100 gs., and will, no doubt, shine in the Fylding country on Monday and Tuesday in the City. Wizard's gossips will be, as usual, the leading feature at Tattersalls' yard on Monday. Last year the ten averaged 60 gs. each, with Lords Chesterfield, Bective, and Boyne among the buyers. Of the two Derby winners bred by the late Sir Tatton Sykes, and four of them by Colsterdale, are also in the list of the day. Two more are in the Lord Lieut. Of the seven newcomers, a whole week before the Derby which is filling the scene to its very garnets, have had to wait for a name in the Book of the names, weights, and colours of the riders. The last Racing Calendar announced that Hector, Black Prince, White Eagle, and Botheration were struck out of the Derby, and Epidaurus and Feral had all the best of the betting on the 13th, p.m. The last doesn't help matters much towards a solution of the great mysteries of Wednesday and Thursday. Old Colonsay indeed always to make a point of betting with trainers, as, "if there are twenty of them, they've all got a good horse."

Past years have shown the value to the Derby of stable reports, and this year at least half a dozen owners are so confident that it would have been a real Derby if the race had come off, and, in fact, one of them has spoken pretty nearly to that effect on the Swindon platform. "They're not Derby horses," exclaimed the Old Squire when the St. Hubert and the Lord of the Isles men were piling on their luncheon. "Not Derby horses!" and the owners will believe that General Peel, Cambuscan, Birch Broom, and Scottish Chief come under that head. And so we shall have to wait for Monday, and had a Cape Flyaway, as St. Lawrence, or a Dilemma to keep Greenwich time for them, and a Bill 'nearer as it is to the Derby, we should be read it off. General Peel's (Aldcroft) style of winning the Two Thousand was thought by many good judges (the winner of three Derbies among them) to be rather severe on him, but he is probably that he would be prepared for much more than a mile at that date, and the confidence of last year's public in the Peel colours has "clipped into" since then on Middleham Moor. Cambuscan (J. Mann) seems to have been thoroughly tried for the Derby, and no doubt that he is very much fitter than he was last year. His trial with Bellisle, who gained a decisive victory over him with a win, should be high enough to win any Derby. Birch Broom (Flatman) is the fourth Derby horse in the stable since they have got through Merry Hart, is something quite out of the common: and Mr. Myers has been so successful with Scottish Chief, that, whether with chivalry or judgment remains to be seen. His performances last year were of no very startling kind, and if success with him is the case the owner will be the first to find it out this year instead of declining the Northamptonshire Stakes at 8st. 8lb. the public, and, indeed, the handicapper, will be very much surprised, as suspected accordingly. So far, to judge from the betting, Little Stag cannot yet prove for the big Epsom. Mr. Merry's Lord of the Isles and Adler may look as if he was giving up the notion of bettering the Two-Thousand running at Paris (Frederick), but Mr. Merry's colt, which is worth a good deal more than so much mere noisy partisanship. Whether he can stay, it seems strange to find takers at 22 to 1, so horses who "take" the wrong way in public and are all that their owners and trainers can possibly do to get them to the post account. Hollyfox (Webb) seems a greater favourite with many than Buccaneer (Challoner). Primed should have been a good one, but Valiant has several friends. Historian (Adams) seems certain, by repeated consent, to run well, and Mr. Merry's colt, a son of Mr. Eastwood's, and trained by Heseltine and Doefoot (whose own brother to mine just arrived), is not to be left out of the starter; and there is a quiet confidence about the Ely (Custance) party that we have by half-seen. Mr. Merry's colt is one month, setting forth, as shown in our Illustration, from the Garrison Church, which is directly opposite the house of the British Legation. From early morning on that day, flags half mast high had been displayed by the shipping in the port and from many houses in the city. The interior of the church was decorated with flowers and flags, and splendidly lit up. It was, of course, crowded with people. Fourteen coffins, covered with flowers and having the swords and orders of knighthood worn by the departed on the lids, stood before the altar, surrounded by evergreen plants. At noon precisely the King of Denmark, the Landgrave of Hesse (father-in-law of His Majesty), and a brilliant suite entered the church. Their Majesties the Queen and the Queen Dowager were seen in the Royal pew. The officiating clergyman, the Rev. Mr. Biede, said prayers, and then said a few consoling words to the families of the departed heroes. He dwelt on the danger of the country, on the courage, devotion, and indefatigable firmness of the army. After the service had been sung the coffins were brought out and carried through the streets leading to the Garrison Churchyard in the following order, preceded by two battalions: Privates Christensen and Mortensen, of the 9th and 2nd; Corporal Iversen, of the artillery; Ensign Farrer; Lieutenant Bekman, Irmanger, Mailing, and Bonnum; Captains Lundby, Jensen, and Count Ahlefeldt; Lieutenant-Colonel Schotten, commander of the 20th Regiment; Colonel Bernstorff, commander of the 17th Regiment; and Colonel Lasson (formerly of the Life Guards), commander of the 1st Brigade, all fallen at Duppel. The King and the Landgrave, with their Aides-de-Camp, walked immediately after the last coffin, followed by the Bishop of Copenhagen and numerous clergymen, the Ministers of State, officers of the Army and Navy, the University, the Courts, the President and Town Councillors, and numerous associations with their emblems. There had stood en haye, forming a lane until the long procession had passed them. At the church had yard the ceremony ended with three volleys of musketry. Several other fallen officers, and amongst them the noble Staff officer Major Rosen, and the brave commander of the second division, General Du Plat, and the chief of his Staff, Major Schau, were interred on the same day, having been conveyed from other towns or mansions, where their families resided.

Our last Illustration of the war given this week is a view of the Austro-Prussian squadron lying off Cuxhaven, at the mouth of the Elbe, whither it returned on the day after its battle with the three Danish ships, which it encountered between that place and the British island of Heligoland. The largest ship of this squadron is the Austrian frigate Schwartzenberg, of fifty guns, which is easily distinguished, for she is a last for foremast and bowsprit, from the foresail being set on first one of the Danish decks. She has thirty guns between decks and twenty on the upper deck, including a rifled gun fore and aft. The next ship, about the centre of our view, and placed farther back than the Schwartzenberg, is a frigate of thirty guns. Two Prussian gun boats, which also took part in the action, are seen on our right hand.

SIR ROWLAND HILL, K.C.B., LATE SECRETARY TO THE POST OFFICE.

CAMEL CARRIAGE

USED BY THE LIEUTENANT-GOVERNOR OF THE PUNJAUB.

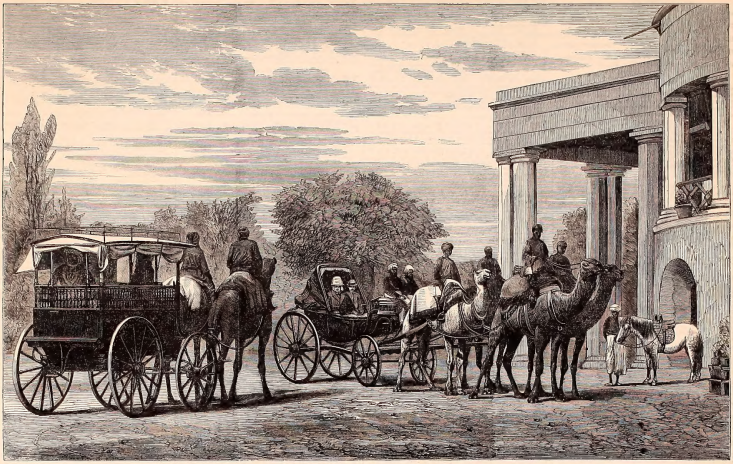
We publish this week an Engraving which represents the camel-carriage in the possession of Sir Robert Montgomery, the Lieutenant-Governor of the Punjaub. As a means of travelling over the sandy plains that exist in the Punjaub, and particularly along the frontier of that province, where good roads are scarce, carriages drawn by camels are found to be of great service. These animals travel at an easy trot, and will go forty miles a day. Our Engraving is from a photograph taken by Messrs. Howard, Shepherd, and Bourne, of Calcutta, and was taken at Government House, Lahore.

SIR ROWLAND HILL, K.C.B.

OUR Portrait of the author of the Penny Postage is engraved from a photograph taken by Messrs. J. and C. Watkins, of Parliament-street. Sir Rowland Hill has lately retired from the public service, and the country will not forget how much it owes to him. His laborious public life commenced about thirty years ago. He then quitted the profession of a schoolmaster, which he had practised with his father, at Hazelwood, near Birmingham, and in the Bruce Castle establishment, at Tottenham. He joined an association for founding the new colony of South Australia, on Mr. Edward Gibbon Wakefield's plan of paying the cost of the immigration of labourers out of the money raised by the sale of waste lands. As Act of Parliament for the execution of this scheme was obtained in 1834 and a Royal Commission appointed, of which Mr. Hill was the secretary. While busied with this successful experiment he likewise found time to take an active part in the proceedings of the Society for the Diffusion of Useful Knowledge, and himself invented a new printing-machine to supply the immense sale of the Penny Magazine. It was in 1836 that he applied himself to study the question of Post-office reform. His mind soon fastened on certain leading facts. He saw that the cost of a letter to the Post Office was divisible into three parts. First, the letter had to be received and prepared for its journey; secondly came the cost of transit from post-office to post-office; thirdly, there was the delivery of the letter and the receipt of the postage, letters being in by far the greater portion dispatched unpaid. The defects of the system which then existed were manifest under each of these heads.

In estimating the first of the items of cost—receiving the letter and preparing it for its journey—Mr. Rowland Hill observed that the postage not only varied in proportion to the distance the letter had to travel, but that the clerk had to ascertain whether the letter was composed of one, two, or three sheets of paper. The rate of increase was also, in each case, exorbitant, and bore no proportion to the small additional cost imposed upon the Post Office. Thus, a single letter from London to Edinburgh was charged 1s. 1½d.; if double, 2s. 3d.; and if treble, 3s. 4½d.; the smallest, thinnest enclosure being treated as an additional sheet. The duty of charging distance and weight thus became a complicated operation, occupying as an increase in the number of public receptacles for letter (post-offices, pillar-boxes, &c.) from 4500 to 11,000, and of delivery-offices.

An increase of gross revenue from £3,390,763 to £3,402,691.



An increase in the number of money orders issued from 4,294,921 to 7,500,155, or fortyfold.

An increase in the amount of money orders issued, from £313,124 to £14,616,849, or nearly fiftyfold.

Such are the results of Sir Rowland Hill's labours in the reform and administration of our postal system.

SHIPPING WILD ANIMALS AT THE LONDON DOCKS.

AMONG the diverse commodities brought into the port of London by so many vessels from every region of the globe, a visitor to the docks may now and then have an opportunity of witnessing the arrival of a cargo of wild beasts, though it is but rarely, of course, that such an importation takes place. The zoological collections in the metropolis and in some provincial towns, as well as the exhibitions paraded in travelling caravans, must indeed be constantly recruited with fresh specimens, not only to make up for a rate of mortality which exceeds that of the same kinds of animals in their native climes, but also to provide novelties for the popular gratification. As there are many similar collections in France, in Germany, and in other parts of Europe, which are usually supplied by the aid of English mercantile connections, it will sometimes happen with these, as with other articles of trade, that when taken out of the ship's hold, whether from Africa, India, or South America, they are soon transferred to a different vessel for removal to the place of their destination; or they may be kept for some time, confined in a secure apartment of the dock warehouses, or in some outhouse, stable, or cellar until they can proceed on their further voyage. It may be remembered that, a few years ago, much consternation was excited in Ratcliffe-highway by the appearance of an escaped tiger walking swiftly along the side-pavement, and before this savage brute could be recaptured he had bitten a girl in the arm. The Engraving to which we now refer is from a sketch made upon a late occasion, when some wild animals of Messrs. Howe and Cushing's menagerie, were embarked in the London Docks, affording much amusement to the spectators. The huge elephant is being hoisted up, as is done with horses and bullocks, by a chain and girth, to be put on board the vessel; whilst a cage full of lions, tigers, and leopards, and the less dangerous feræ naturæ not in a cage, await their turn for shipment.

CAMEL-CARRIAGE USED BY THE LIEUTENANT-GOVERNOR OF THE PUNJAUB.

SHIPPING WILD ANIMALS IN THE LONDON DOCKS.

 The charge for the insertion of Births, Marriages, and Deaths is Five Shillings for each announcement.*

BIRTHS.

On the 18th inst., at Norfolk House, Lady V. H. Scott of a daughter.

At Wareham Court, Hereham, the wife of Sir J. H. Petty, Bart., of a son.

At Dublin, the Hon. Mrs. Pitt-Gerald, wife of the Right Hon. J. R. Pitt-Gerald, of a son.

At Lower Norwood, the wife of Lieutenant-Colonel Sandys, R.A., of a daughter.

On the 19th inst., at College Valle, South Hampstead, the wife of Francis Thomas Palgrave, Esq., of a daughter.

MARRIAGES.

On the 5th of February, at St. Paul's, Kyal Bush, Auckland, New Zealand, by the Rev. W. F. Gibbon, Edward Jackson, Esq., of Queenstown, Hawke's Bay, to H.E.I.C.S. service to Sarah Arabella, eldest daughter of William Rees, Esq., of Martinfield, Rye, Sussex, formerly of Bombay.

On April 26, at St. John's, Calcutta, by the Rev. — Aitken (of Kandy), Ceylon, assisted by the Rev. Daniel Fyvie, to Harriet Eliza, only daughter of Frederick Alexander Dorin, Esq., of Bombay Civil Service.

On the 5th of March, at Umballa, India, by the Rev. F. W. Hogg, Captain Charles Frederick Hall, 7th Hussars, to Assistant Surgeon, F.C.O. Rifle Brigade, in Dilan Obstetric, only daughter of Lieutenant R. S. Brant, retired list, Bengal Army. No cards.

DEATHS.

On March 7, at Carlsbrook, Victoria, Australia, drowned accidentally while fishing, Harold Arthur, aged 19 years, second and dearly beloved son of Ellanord Wheeler, Esq.

On the 18th inst., at Bradford, Canada West, Catherine Mary, wife of Anthony Scadding, Esq., aged 37.

On the 19th of April last, at Bradford, Canada West, Kate, fourth and dearly daughter of the late Thomas Bell Pardee, Esq., of Bush Hill, Brentford, Canada West.

On the 21st inst., at 161, Piccadilly, Caroline Elizabeth, widow of the late John Cosmo Dewar, Esq., many years resident in Calcutta, aged 74 years.

THEATRE ROYAL, HAYMARKET.

In recent reports of the New Bay of DAVID GARRICK a misprint or misreport of the word "Bayes" is to be corrected. To-DAY (SAT.), MAY 21, and during the week, the COMEDY OF OUR SOCIETY. To-morrow (SUN.), at 7.30, A CHEAP DAY. Doors open at 7. Tickets, 1s. each. Seats secured in advance. Private Engagements, Address Mr. Arthur, 3, Cambridge-place, Regent's Park.

MAY 26.—ST. JAMES'S HALL.—Mr. and Mrs. BENEDICT HALL beg to announce that they will give their ANNUAL MORNING CONCERT, on Thursday, June 2, at 3. Artists: Mdlle. Titiens, Mdlle. Lemmens, Sherrington, Madame Sainton-Dolby, Mr. Sims Reeves, Signor Foli, and Mr. Benedict. To conclude with SCENES from "Don Giovanni." Conductor, Mr. Benedict. Stalls, 10s. 6d.; Balcony, 7s.; Admission, 2s. 6d. Tickets and Programmes to be had at Mr. Benedict's, 1, Manchester-square, W.; Austin's, 28, Piccadilly; and of Mr. Hall, 2, Cavendish-place, Regent-street.

THE SCANDINAVIAN GALLERY, 7, Haymarket, admission in Aid of the Danish Widows and Orphans of the War Fund, 1s.—OPEN, from 10 till 6. Illustrated by the most celebrated foreign artists, daily from Ten till Six o'Clock.

ON VIEW, THE PICTURE of the QUEEN HANDING the ALMS to the PRINCESS of WALES, painted from actual sittings, by Mr. G. H. Thomas, who was present at the ceremony. Also, the Picture of the QUEEN and PRINCESS of WALES at CHARING CROSS HOSPITAL, from Sketches by Mr. Thomas and Mr. Harbores, and Mr. H. Gilman. OUT OF DOORS OUT OF MIND.—Open Daily. To conclude with SILVER'S LAST SONG. 1s.

THE SCANDINAVIAN GALLERY, 7, Haymarket, admission in Aid of the Danish Widows and Orphans of the War Fund, 1s. Open 10 till 6. Illustrated by the most celebrated foreign artists, daily from Ten till Six o'Clock.

ON VIEW, THE PICTURE of the QUEEN HANDING the ALMS to the PRINCESS of WALES, painted from actual sittings, by Mr. G. H. Thomas, who was present at the ceremony. Also, the Picture of the QUEEN and PRINCESS of WALES at CHARING CROSS HOSPITAL, from Sketches by Mr. Thomas and Mr. Harbores, and Mr. H. Gilman. OUT OF DOORS OUT OF MIND.—Open Daily. To conclude with SILVER'S LAST SONG. 1s.

FRENCH GALLERY, 120, Pall-mall.—The BEFORE THE BATTLE and RETURN OF THE WOUNDED, by Meissonier, the chief French and Flemish Schools. 10 till 6.—Admission, 1s.

MR. KENNEDY'S SONGS of SCOTLAND. MR. FREDERICK KENNEDY will LEAD—Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, and Saturday evenings—last nights. Tuesday, Lecture Hall, Hanover-square Rooms, Wednesday, Hanover-square Rooms, Saturday, Hanover-square Rooms. For Private Engagements, Address Mr. Kennedy, 4, Cambridge-place, Regent's Park.

MAY 26.—ST. JAMES'S HALL.—Mr. and Mrs. BENEDICT HALL beg to announce that they will give their ANNUAL MORNING CONCERT, on Thursday, June 2, at 3. Artists: Mdlle. Titiens, Mdlle. Lemmens, Sherrington, Madame Sainton-Dolby, Mr. Sims Reeves, Signor Foli, and Mr. Benedict. To conclude with SCENES from "Don Giovanni." Conductor, Mr. Benedict. Stalls, 10s. 6d.; Balcony, 7s.; Admission, 2s. 6d. Tickets and Programmes to be had at Mr. Benedict's, 1, Manchester-square, W.; Austin's, 28, Piccadilly; and of Mr. Hall, 2, Cavendish-place, Regent-street.

MR. ARTHUR SKETCHLEY will APPEAR at the BRITISH MUSEUM, on Tuesday, May 24, in Mr. Sketchley's Annual, entitled PARIS, and MRS. SKETCHLEY will RECITE Browning scenes from "Dramatic Lyrics" and "Dramatic Romances." Thom. Smith, 7, Sackville-street, Piccadilly. N.B.—The Box-office at the British Museum will be Opened at Eleven each Morning.

MR. W. S. WOODIN'S ELOPEMENT and EXTRAVAGANZA and BANJO-ORIGINAL ENTERTAINMENT, EVERY EVENING at EIGHT (except Saturday), at the Egyptian Hall, Piccadilly. Stalls, 3s.; Admission, 1s. Private Engagements, Address Mr. W. S. Woodin, 4, Argyll-place, Regent-street. Agent for Provincial Arrangements, Mr. Austin, 28, Piccadilly.

MR. and MRS. GERMAN REED, with MR. JOHN PARRY, will appear every Evening (except Saturday) at EIGHT, at their Entertainment, ST. GEORGE'S HALL. MR. and MRS. GERMAN REED will be Assisted by MR. SANTLEY, MR. G. Y. STEVENS, Mrs. and Miss Leslie Goddard, and Miss Fanny Holland. Stalls, 3s.; Admission, 1s. Private Engagements, Address Mr. German Reed, 4, Cambridge-place, Regent's Park.

OPERA COMIQUE ENTERTAINMENT at ST. JAMES'S HALL. Every Evening during the Week (except Saturday) at EIGHT o'Clock, a BURLESQUE, by Mr. Corney Grain, entitled FANNY STIRLING (LE GAGEUR) in their new comedietta BOOTS. Concluding with the Musical Sketch, MY FRIEND JOHN. Mr. Corney Grain, Mr. Alfred Reed, and Miss Fanny Holland. Stalls, 3s.; Balcony Stalls and Co. (2 Cork Burlesque-street, Regent-street, W., or Austin's Ticket Office, 28, Piccadilly. Private Engagements, Address Mr. Corney Grain, 2, Cork Burlesque-street, Regent-street, W.

THE QUEEN'S BIRTHDAY, on TUESDAY, MAY 24, will be celebrated by a FLORAL FETE at the ROYAL BOTANIC GARDENS, REGENT'S PARK, when the Band of the Royal Horse Guards (Blue) will perform. Richard Mortimer, Secretary. Tickets may be obtained of Messrs. Hodgson and Co., 24, Old Bond-street, and at the Gardens. Admission, 1s.

MR. JOHN MACFARREN'S "MORNINGS AT THE PIANOFORTE," ST. JAMES'S HALL, JUNE 2, and following Thursdays, assisted by Miss Edith Wynne, Miss Emily Wynne, Miss Emily Fitz-Roy, Miss Gilchrist, Miss Santley, Mr. Santley, Mr. Lewis Thomas, Mr. Aynsley Cook, and Mr. Lazarus.

QUEEN'S CONCERT ROOMS, HANOVER-SQUARE ROOMS.—A GRAND MORNING CONCERT at these Rooms, on Wednesday next, May 25, at Three o'Clock, for the distinguished violoncello player, Signor Piatti. The most eminent artists have kindly volunteered their services. Stalls, 10s. 6d.; Balcony, 5s.; Admission, 2s. 6d. All the principal Music-sellers.

MDME. SAINTON-DOLBY and MR. SANTLEY beg to announce that their ANNUAL GRAND MORNING CONCERT will be given at ST. JAMES'S HALL, Piccadilly, on MONDAY, JUNE 13, at Three o'Clock precisely. The following distinguished artists will have the honour of appearing: Mdlle. Titiens, Madame Lemmens-Sherrington, Madame Sainton-Dolby, Mr. Sims Reeves, Mr. Santley, Mr. Patey, Mr. Barnby, and Signor Piatti. Conductors: Mr. Benedict, Signor Arditi, Mr. Alfred Mellon, and Mr. Stanley. Tickets: Stalls, £1 1s.; Balcony Stalls, 15s.; Balcony, 10s.; Admission, 5s. Tickets and Programmes to be had at Mdme. Sainton-Dolby's, 1, Manchester-square, W.; Austin's, 28, Piccadilly; and of Mr. Santley, 2, Percy-street, Bedford-square.

MONDAY POPULAR CONCERTS.—ST. JAMES'S HALL.—On MONDAY NEXT, MAY 23, HERR JOACHIM will make his first appearance this season, and will perform Beethoven's second Quartet in G major, and Mozart's Quintet in E flat. Artists: Madame Lemmens-Sherrington, Signor Piatti, Mr. Ries, Mr. Zerbini, and Herr Joachim. Conductor, Mr. Benedict. Doors open at Half-past Seven; Commence at Eight. Stalls, 3s.; Admission, 1s. Tickets and Programmes to be had at Austin's, 28, Piccadilly.

CRYSTAL PALACE.—WEEK ENDING SATURDAY, MAY 21.—SUN., MONDAY, at NINE; TUESDAY, WEDNESDAY, THURSDAY, FRIDAY, SATURDAY, at TWO. Handel Festival, 1870. GRAND CHORUS, under the direction of Mr. Manns. Leo, will be continued on SATURDAY and TUESDAY next. Orchestral Band of 2,000 and 3,000 Voices. Grand Miscellaneous Performances Daily on the Concert. Fountains at 12. The Handel Festival Rehearsals will commence in January. Season Tickets and Subscriptions to be received.

CRYSTAL PALACE.—FETES for QUEEN'S BIRTHDAY.—TUESDAY, MAY 24, and WEDNESDAY, MAY 25. In addition to the ordinary attractions of the Palace, a Grand Display of Fireworks, by Messrs. Brock, at Seven o'clock. Illumination of the Grand Fountains. Performances by the Orchestra under the Direction of Mr. Manns, and the Crystal Palace Choir, under the Direction of Mr. Schallehn. Military Band of the Royal Horse Guards, Blue, by permission of Colonel Ellis, on Tuesday. Tuesday being a Declared Holiday, Special Cheap Excursions by Express Trains from all Stations. Admission, 1s. Children under Twelve, Sixpence.

CRYSTAL PALACE.—The GREAT BROOMDERDEN VALLEY, of Two Thousand Plants, in Spring Flowers. Fountains Playing. Admission, 1s.

CRYSTAL PALACE.—The GREAT FLOWER SHOW of the Season, at the Crystal Palace, on SATURDAY, MAY 28. Admission to all by Tickets purchased before the 28th. GUINEA SEASON TICKETS Free to MAY 1, 1865.

CRYSTAL PALACE.—FETES for QUEEN'S BIRTHDAY.—TUESDAY, MAY 24, and WEDNESDAY, MAY 25. In addition to the ordinary attractions of the Palace, a Grand Display of Fireworks, by Messrs. Brock, at Seven o'clock. Illumination of the Grand Fountains. Performances by the Orchestra under the Direction of Mr. Manns, and the Crystal Palace Choir, under the Direction of Mr. Schallehn. Military Band of the Royal Horse Guards, Blue, by permission of Colonel Ellis, on Tuesday. Tuesday being a Declared Holiday, Special Cheap Excursions by Express Trains from all Stations. Admission, 1s. Children under Twelve, Sixpence.

CRYSTAL PALACE.—The GREAT BROOMDERDEN VALLEY, of Two Thousand Plants, in Spring Flowers. Fountains Playing. Admission, 1s.

CRYSTAL PALACE.—The GREAT FLOWER SHOW of the Season, at the Crystal Palace, on SATURDAY, MAY 28. Admission to all by Tickets purchased before the day. GUINEA SEASON TICKETS Free to MAY 1, 1865.

JOACHIM, JAELL, and DAVIDOFF are engaged for the MUSICAL UNION, MAY 31.—ELLA, Director.

AGRICULTURAL HALL.

DOG SHOW OPENS MAY 27.

FOXHOUNDS.

HARRIERS.

DEER-HOUNDS.

GREYHOUNDS.

BLOODHOUNDS.

POINTERS.

SETTERS.

RETRIEVERS.

SPANIELS.

THE SECOND INTERNATIONAL DOG SHOW will OPEN at 2 o'clock p.m. on FRIDAY, MAY 27, and will remain Open on SATURDAY, MAY 28, MONDAY, TUESDAY, and WEDNESDAY, from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. Admission, 1s. Catalogues, 6d. Dogs Benched, 5s. each.

VOLUNTEERS IN UNIFORM will be admitted at the Liverpool-road Entrance on FRIDAY and SATURDAY at One Shilling.

THE SECOND INTERNATIONAL DOG SHOW will OPEN at the AGRICULTURAL HALL, Islington, on FRIDAY, MAY 27, and will remain Open Four Days. The Committee have much pleasure in announcing that the following Classes will be Judged by Gentlemen of the highest reputation in the Kingdom, viz.:—Mastiffs, Bloodhounds, Deer-hounds, Foxhounds, Greyhounds, Harriers, Pointers, Setters, Retrievers, Spaniels, Terriers, Toy Dogs, and Extra Classes. Each Dog must be accompanied by a Certificate of Pedigree, and must have been Entered and Benched before 12 o'clock on the Day of Exhibition. Prizes: £1, £2, £3, £4, £5, £6, £7, £8, £9, £10, £11, £12, £13, £14, £15, £16, £17, £18, £19, £20, £21, £22, £23, £24, £25, £26, £27, £28, £29, £30, £31, £32, £33, £34, £35, £36, £37, £38, £39, £40, £41, £42, £43, £44, £45, £46, £47, £48, £49, £50, £51, £52, £53, £54, £55, £56, £57, £58, £59, £60, £61, £62, £63, £64, £65, £66, £67, £68, £69, £70, £71, £72, £73, £74, £75, £76, £77, £78, £79, £80, £81, £82, £83, £84, £85, £86, £87, £88, £89, £90, £91, £92, £93, £94, £95, £96, £97, £98, £99, £100, £101, £102, £103, £104, £105, £106, £107, £108, £109, £110, £111, £112, £113, £114, £115, £116, £117, £118, £119, £120, £121, £122, £123, £124, £125, £126, £127, £128, £129, £130, £131, £132, £133, £134, £135, £136, £137, £138, £139, £140, £141, £142, £143, £144, £145, £146, £147, £148, £149, £150, £151, £152, £153, £154, £155, £156, £157, £158, £159, £160, £161, £162, £163, £164, £165, £166, £167, £168, £169, £170, £171, £172, £173, £174, £175, £176, £177, £178, £179, £180, £181, £182, £183, £184, £185, £186, £187, £188, £189, £190, £191, £192, £193, £194, £195, £196, £197, £198, £199, £200, £201, £202, £203, £204, £205, £206, £207, £208, £209, £210, £211, £212, £213, £214, £215, £216, £217, £218, £219, £220, £221, £222, £223, £224, £225, £226, £227, £228, £229, £230, £231, £232, £233, £234, £235, £236, £237, £238, £239, £240, £241, £242, £243, £244, £245, £246, £247, £248, £249, £250, £251, £252, £253, £254, £255, £256, £257, £258, £259, £260, £261, £262, £263, £264, £265, £266, £267, £268, £269, £270, £271, £272, £273, £274, £275, £276, £277, £278, £279, £280, £281, £282, £283, £284, £285, £286, £287, £288, £289, £290, £291, £292, £293, £294, £295, £296, £297, £298, £299, £300, £301, £302, £303, £304, £305, £306, £307, £308, £309, £310, £311, £312, £313, £314, £315, £316, £317, £318, £319, £320, £321, £322, £323, £324, £325, £326, £327, £328, £329, £330, £331, £332, £333, £334, £335, £336, £337, £338, £339, £340, £341, £342, £343, £344, £345, £346, £347, £348, £349, £350, £351, £352, £353, £354, £355, £356, £357, £358, £359, £360, £361, £362, £363, £364, £365, £366, £367, £368, £369, £370, £371, £372, £373, £374, £375, £376, £377, £378, £379, £380, £381, £382, £383, £384, £385, £386, £387, £388, £389, £390, £391, £392, £393, £394, £395, £396, £397, £398, £399, £400, £401, £402, £403, £404, £405, £406, £407, £408, £409, £410, £411, £412, £413, £414, £415, £416, £417, £418, £419, £420, £421, £422, £423, £424, £425, £426, £427, £428, £429, £430, £431, £432, £433, £434, £435, £436, £437, £438, £439, £440, £441, £442, £443, £444, £445, £446, £447, £448, £449, £450, £451, £452, £453, £454, £455, £456, £457, £458, £459, £460, £461, £462, £463, £464, £465, £466, £467, £468, £469, £470, £471, £472, £473, £474, £475, £476, £477, £478, £479, £480, £481, £482, £483, £484, £485, £486, £487, £488, £489, £490, £491, £492, £493, £494, £495, £496, £497, £498, £499, £500, £501, £502, £503, £504, £505, £506, £507, £508, £509, £510, £511, £512, £513, £514, £515, £516, £517, £518, £519, £520, £521, £522, £523, £524, £525, £526, £527, £528, £529, £530, £531, £532, £533, £534, £535, £536, £537, £538, £539, £540, £541, £542, £543, £544, £545, £546, £547, £548, £549, £550, £551, £552, £553, £554, £555, £556, £557, £558, £559, £560, £561, £562, £563, £564, £565, £566, £567, £568, £569, £570, £571, £572, £573, £574, £575, £576, £577, £578, £579, £580, £581, £582, £583, £584, £585, £586, £587, £588, £589, £590, £591, £592, £593, £594, £595, £596, £597, £598, £599, £600, £601, £602, £603, £604, £605, £606, £607, £608, £609, £610, £611, £612, £613, £614, £615, £616, £617, £618, £619, £620, £621, £622, £623, £624, £625, £626, £627, £628, £629, £630, £631, £632, £633, £634, £635, £636, £637, £638, £639, £640, £641, £642, £643, £644, £645, £646, £647, £648, £649, £650, £651, £652, £653, £654, £655, £656, £657, £658, £659, £660, £661, £662, £663, £664, £665, £666, £667, £668, £669, £670, £671, £672, £673, £674, £675, £676, £677, £678, £679, £680, £681, £682, £683, £684, £685, £686, £687, £688, £689, £690, £691, £692, £693, £694, £695, £696, £697, £698, £699, £700, £701, £702, £703, £704, £705, £706, £707, £708, £709, £710, £711, £712, £713, £714, £715, £716, £717, £718, £719, £720, £721, £722, £723, £724, £725, £726, £727, £728, £729, £730, £731, £732, £733, £734, £735, £736, £737, £738, £739, £740, £741, £742, £743, £744, £745, £746, £747, £748, £749, £750, £751, £752, £753, £754, £755, £756, £757, £758, £759, £760, £761, £762, £763, £764, £765, £766, £767, £768, £769, £770, £771, £772, £773, £774, £775, £776, £777, £778, £779, £780, £781, £782, £783, £784, £785, £786, £787, £788, £789, £790, £791, £792, £793, £794, £795, £796, £797, £798, £799, £800, £801, £802, £803, £804, £805, £806, £807, £808, £809, £810, £811, £812, £813, £814, £815, £816, £817, £818, £819, £820, £821, £822, £823, £824, £825, £826, £827, £828, £829, £830, £831, £832, £833, £834, £835, £836, £837, £838, £839, £840, £841, £842, £843, £844, £845, £846, £847, £848, £849, £850, £851, £852, £853, £854, £855, £856, £857, £858, £859, £860, £861, £862, £863, £864, £865, £866, £867, £868, £869, £870, £871, £872, £873, £874, £875, £876, £877, £878, £879, £880, £881, £882, £883, £884, £885, £886, £887, £888, £889, £890, £891, £892, £893, £894, £895, £896, £897, £898, £899, £900, £901, £902, £903, £904, £905, £906, £907, £908, £909, £910, £911, £912, £913, £914, £915, £916, £917, £918, £919, £920, £921, £922, £923, £924, £925, £926, £927, £928, £929, £930, £931, £932, £933, £934, £935, £936, £937, £938, £939, £940, £941, £942, £943, £944, £945, £946, £947, £948, £949, £950, £951, £952, £953, £954, £955, £956, £957, £958, £959, £960, £961, £962, £963, £964, £965, £966, £967, £968, £969, £970, £971, £972, £973, £974, £975, £976, £977, £978, £979, £980, £981, £982, £983, £984, £985, £986, £987, £988, £989, £990, £991, £992, £993, £994, £995, £996, £997, £998, £999, £1000.

WILLIAM SHAKESPEARE. By VICTOR HUGO. Authorised English Translation. Three Parts, 1s. each. WILLIAM SHAKESPEARE. By VICTOR HUGO. Complete in One Volume. Illustrated by MORIN. In BURST and BLACKETT-street.

Now ready, in all the Libraries, in 1 vol., WILLIAM SHAKESPEARE. By VICTOR HUGO. Authorised English Translation. Three Parts, 1s. each. WILLIAM SHAKESPEARE. By VICTOR HUGO. Complete in One Volume. Illustrated by MORIN. In BURST and BLACKETT-street. Tuesday being a Declared Holiday, Special Cheap Excursions by Express Trains from all Stations. Admission, 1s. Children under Twelve, Sixpence.

Now ready, Third Edition, price 3s. 6d., post-free, 78 SIX, Surprising Spectral Illusions, showing Ghosts surrounding Visitors at Parties, &c. No apparatus is required, the book itself containing many sketches. By the Author of "Fun for Christmas Evenings." Sent for 54 stamps. Of all Booksellers, or of the Publisher, 23, Bedford-street, Strand.

This day at all Libraries, in 3 vols., TOO STRANGE NOT TO BE TRUE. By Lady CAMPBELL. Author of "Ledyngton," "Richard Bellfield," "Mr. Forrester," &c.

NOTICE.—BERNARD MARSH, Mr. G. P. R. JAMES'S New Novel is now ready, at all Libraries and Booksellers, in 3 vols.

FRANCATELLI'S COOK'S GUIDE. By the Author of "The Modern Cook." Price 7s. 6d. "FRANCATELLI'S MODERN COOK. Fifteenth Edition. 12s. Bradbury and Evans, Whitefriars.

WHAT TO EAT. By GOLD MUTTON. 2s. 6d. EVERYBODY'S PUDDING BOOK. 2s. 6d. BRADBURY and EVANS, New Bouverie-street.

Price 1s., with 12 Lithographic Plates; post-free, 1s. 2d., DESIGNS for WINDOWS of different styles in the Architecture of the 16th and 17th centuries. By T. RICHARDSON and SON, 57, Derby, and 62, Paternoster-row, London.

Price 1s., with 12 Lithographic Plates; post-free, 1s. 2d., STAINED WINDOWS: the Improved Method of Glazing. By T. RICHARDSON and SON, Derby, and 62, Paternoster-row, London.

DECALCOMANIE.—Doors containing Panels for Decalcomanie for the Month of May, price 10s. 6d., sent on receipt Post Office order.—J. BARNARD and SON, 339, Oxford-street, London, W.

Price 1s.; post-free, 1s. 2d., with 14 Lithographic Plates, ALPHABETS and DESIGNS of different Styles, for Monumental and Decorative Purposes. By F. G. WOOD.—London: J. BARNARD and SON, 339, Oxford-street, W.

HINTS ON ILLUMINATING and ILLUMINATORS. By GOLD and METALS. By HENRY M. FUCHS.—London: J. BARNARD and SON, 339, Oxford-street, W.

Second Edition, price 3s. 6d. (post-free, 3s. 10d.), Illustrated with Drawings and Diagrams, LANDSCAPE PAINTING and SKETCHING from NATURE. By JAMES HARRIS, M.A., Head Master of Henry VIII.'s School, Coventry. London: Winsor and Newton, 38, Rathbone-place, W.

Third Edition, price 2s. 6d., with 40 Diagrams printed in Colour, MIXED TINTS, with an ESSAY ON THE LIGHT AND SHADE OF COLOURS. By JAMES HARRIS. London: J. BARNARD and SON, 339, Oxford-street.

DECALCOMANIE.—Instructions, 6d. each, post-free, 7d.—Fancy Material, assorted, 1s. 6d. per lb. Boxes, 10s. 6d. White Wood Slips, extra Size, 2s. 6d. per 100. Ditto, Ordinary Size, 1s. 6d. per 100. Ditto, Cabinet Size, 1s. per 100. Ditto, Boudoir Size, 6d. per 100. Ditto, Miniature Size, 3d. per 100. WILLIAM BARNARD, 339, Oxford-street, London, W.

HURST or STAMMERING.—Just published, a new and cheap Edition of Dr. HUNTER'S Treatise on this Subject. Post-free, 13 stamps. Dr. HUNTER, near Hastings.

DR. YEARSLEY'S WORKS on the EAR. Symptoms; Cause; Deafness Explained; 2s. On the Artificial Tympanum; 1s. CHURCHILL, New Burlington-street.

Now ready, Gratis, A LIST of VALUABLE BOOKS on sale at the Sanitary Premises, now occupied by MULLER LIBRARY, 15, Argyll-street, Regent-street, W.

BAGSTERS' BIBLES, in superior flexible bindings. BAGSTERS' PRIZE and PRESENTATION BIBLES. BAGSTERS' SUNDAY SCHOOL BIBLES. BAGSTERS' BIBLICAL WORKS. London: SAMUEL BAGSTER and SONS, 15, Paternoster-row.

A GUIDE-BOOK for 6d. The PICTORIAL BOOK OF GUINEA PIGS, by Mr. Rimmel, with Illustrations, Price 6d., post-free, 7d. Sold by all Booksellers, or 6d., post-free for 8 stamps. Only to be had at FIELDS' Great Bird Emporium, 224, Regent-street, Quadrant-corner, W.

300 BIBLE STORIES, with nearly 300 Illustrations, 2s. 6d., Coloured Sunday Book for Young, handsomely bound. 2s. 6d. Sold by all Booksellers, or by FIELDS' Great Bird Emporium, 224, Regent-street, Quadrant-corner, W.

50,000 BIBLES, PRAYER-BOOKS, and CHURCH SERVICES, and JUVENILE BOOKS at WHOLESALE PRICES. Send Stamp for the Alphabetical Catalogue, 64 pages, 6d. Bagster and Sons, Publishers.

POSTAGE-STAMPS.—A large Assortment of FOREIGN POSTAGE-STAMPS sent post-free for 1s. Stamps by Mail, 1s. 6d. per Dozen.—W. Lincoln, Bookseller of Dublin, Invalid, retired.

RODRIGUES' DRESSING CASES and TRAVELLING DESPATCH BOXES, with strong Locks and Bolts, Silver-mounted Fittings, Solid Leather Cases, Portable Writing-cases, and a choice selection of Useful Novelties for Presentation. 67, Piccadilly, Corner of Sackville-st.

RODRIGUES' DESPATCH BOXES and A TRAVELLING WRITING CASES, in russia or morocco, of the most approved construction, fitted with every requisite for travelling. 67, Piccadilly, Corner of Sackville-street.

CARTE DE VISITE PORTRAIT ALBUMS, on splendid Blazing, from 5s. to 21 guineas. Albums for Cabinet Photographs, Engravings, Autographs, &c. 67, Piccadilly, Corner of Sackville-street.

NO CHARGE MADE for STAMPING PAPER and ENVELOPES with Crest or Monogram in Illuminated Gold and Rowenna, 4s. per lb.; Quick-Dry Pens Full size, fine quills for 4d., 4s. 6d. per Gross.—R. Ackermann, 96, Strand.

A VISITING CARD-PLATE ENGRAVED, and 50 CARDS printed for 4s. 6d. Wedding Cards and Envelopes, Ball Programmes, and Bills of Fare printed and stamped with Crest or Address at HENRY RODRIGUES', 66, Piccadilly.

CARTES DE VISITE, 12 for 2s. 6d. Forward your cards to either 10 or 20 sitters, with address, to the ROYAL PHOTOGRAPHIC GALLERY, 289, Regent-street, W., and you will receive 12 for 2s. 6d., 24 for 5s., 36 for 7s. 6d., and 100 for 20s., with the Negative. Please write your name and copy of original, which will be returned. A note must be sent before the receipt of Portraits.—ADAMS and WM. CHALLENGE.

NEW MUSIC.

JENNY OF THE MILL. Song. Florimel. 4s. net. A Sacred Song. ROBERT COCKS and Co. All Musicsellers.

JENNY OF THE MILL. Pianoforte Fantasia. Florimel. 3s. net. ROBERT COCKS and Co. All Musicsellers.

ROBERT COCKS and CO.'S LIST OF NEW MUSICAL PUBLICATIONS.

THOU ART THE FIRST OF ALL I KNEW. Song. Barnby. 4s. net. Words by Mrs. Hemans. Sung by Miss Edith Wynne.

THOU WERT THE FIRST OF ALL I KNEW. Duet. By the Composer of "Sweet Spring Time." 4s. net. Sung by Miss Edith Wynne and Miss Emily Wynne.

THE LINGUIS QUAE. By the Composer of "The Bridal Rose." 4s. net.

THE BRIDAL ROSE. Miss J. W. Bind SONGS. Last grain and 3s. net.

O, F. WEBB'S ZEPHALINE THE BOLDEST, and 18 other pieces for the Pianoforte. Second, and free from passages. 4s. net.

PIANOFORTES FOR SALE OR HIRE upon easy terms. Full Illustrated Price-list post-free.—20, New Bond-street.

CHAPPELL'S NEW MUSIC, Catalogues of Vocal Music and Pianoforte Music, post-free.—50, New Bond-street.

CHAPPELL'S TRIUMPHAL MARCH, for the Piano. By STEPHEN GLOVER. Sent for Stamps. Composed for the Installation March, 1870. Full pianoforte parts, 3s. 6d.; played by all military bands.—DUFF and HODGSON, 65, Oxford-st.

NEW SONG.—JESSY GRAY. By E. L. BLUMENTHAL. Price 4s. The popular Scottish Ballad, by a new edition of the words is very interesting, the melody remaining unaltered. DUFF and HODGSON, 65, Oxford-street.

DARFAIT AMOUR. Romance for the Piano. By E. L. HIME. Sent for 18 stamps. One of the most graceful and elegant pieces of the season.—DUFF and HODGSON, 65, Oxford-street.

COUSIN KATE.

LEAP YEAR. The popular Ballad in the Pantomime. Sung by Miss Emily Soldene. Price 2s. 6d. The Complete Work, 1s. net. Boosey and Co., 295, Regent Street, Marlborough-street, W.

THE HAUNTED MILL.

MARY WILLIAMS'S FLOWING HAIR. The pretty Ballad in the Opera Comique Entertainment. Price 2s. 6d. Boosey and Co., 295, Regent-street, Marlborough-street, W.

KATE OF ABERDEEN. New Edition. Price 2s. 6d. Sent free for 18 stamps. EWER and CO., 390, Strand, near Temple-bar, and 3, Regent-street.

NEW SONG, by Miss C. M. B. OLIVER. "Love not the old brook-lane." Price 2s. 6d. Sung by Miss Edith Wynne. Above the lady favoured to us. Boosey and Co., 295, Regent-street, Marlborough-street, W.

STRADELLA—Flotow's Opera—to be procured at the Italian Opera Covent-garden, published by RICHARD and LUCAS, 2 to 2 guineas. The Italian version, 2 to 2 guineas. The Italian version, 2 to 2 guineas. The Italian version EXHIBITION of AMERICAN PLANTS, Messrs. WATERER and GODSEFF'S Nurseries, near the Sir Joseph Paxton and other American Plants in large blocks are now in great beauty and may be seen daily.

Sunningdale Nurseries, Bagshot Station (the Waking station), South Western Railway.
Their Exhibition in the Horticultural Gardens, South Kensington, will be in perfection on and after the 10th of May.

HOSPITAL FOR CONSUMPTION AND DISEASES OF THE CHEST, BROMPTON, S.W. Supported entirely by voluntary contributions. Limited as to number. PATIENTS ADMITTED to meet the current expenditure of the Hospital.
HENRY BURDETT, Sec.

RESPECTABLE WOMEN, from Twenty-five to Thirty-eight years of age, and of the Church of England, are wanted to be trained as NURSES for the Sick, and to apply to the Rev. R. Bickersteth, Northcote-street, Strand.

SMART SOLDIERLY WHITTINGTON, Corner of Swallow-street, Cranford, Regent-street. Open from Ten till Nine daily. Persons of all ages provided with clothes, and taught at very little cost how they can economise. Lessons are here given in the Art of Dressing Well, and Economically, and Tailors and Dressmakers will find this establishment a valuable assistant. Every department of preferred. Mrs. Scott will attend. For prospectuses, terms, &c., apply at Mr. Scott, as above.
N.B.—Agent to the West of England Insurance Company.

NO. 7, BANK-BUILDINGS, corner of Old Jewry, City, opposite to the Old Office of the ROYAL EXCHANGE ASSURANCE. J. W. GRAIN, Secretary.

FOR FAMILY ARMS—Sir BOOKER'S (late Heraldic Office) and Messrs. and Society. Arms painted, Engraved and Quartered. Book, 5s. 6d. or stamps. The Pedigree of Families, &c.—H. SALT, Great Turnstile, Lincoln's-inn.

LINCOLN'S-INN HERALDIC OFFICE. The established office of sculpture in Lincoln's-inn. Arms, Crests, &c., authentically. "The Lincoln's-inn Manual of Heraldry," 3s. in stamps.—H. SALT, Great Turnstile, Lincoln's-inn.

LINCOLN'S-INN HERALDIC OFFICE. Engraving by the Latest or Easier Methods. Arms found, Sketched or Blazon, 3s. 6d.; Arms on dies, 5s.; Relief Gold Signet Rings, 15s.-new. Mail matter, engraved with Crest, 5s.; Set Crest, 7s.; Book-Plate, Arms and Crest, 10s. 6d. Arms painted and Quartered, Sketch and Directions for the Guidance of Genealogists, 7s. 6d. Steel Seals, 4s. Arms painted on Vellum, Sketch and Search, 10s. 6d. Boxes, Dies, &c. The Crest and Motto Seal and Die Engraved, 5s. 6d. Illustrated Price List Gratis.—H. SALT, Great Turnstile, Lincoln's-inn. Establishment.—N.B. Cheques crossed (corner of 44, Hatton-garden, E.C.).

CULLETON'S GUINEA BOX of STATIONERY. No Charge for Engraving this with Crest and Address. Contains a Portfolio of Cream-laid Note, Thick Cream-laid Envelopes, and Black Bordered Envelopes, all stamped free of charge. Ream-paper, 4d. per 100; Wafers, 1d. per Packet; Steel Pens, 1s. per Gross; Sealing Wax, 1d. per Stick; Ink, 1d. per Bottle of Mucilage, 1d. per Bottle.

VISITING CARDS. Best quality—A card-plate engraved and 50 cards printed, 3s. post-free. Wedding cards elegantly engraved in the latest fashion. Specimens of the best note (cream or bread locker).—T. CULLETON, Seal Engraver, 25, Cranbourn-street (corner of St. Martin's-lane), W.C.

CULLETON'S PLATES for MARKING LINEN prevent the ink spreading, and never weather out. Initial and Name Plate, 2s.; Set of Numbers, 2s.; Crest, 5s. Cheques and Post-office Orders to be made payable to Mr. Culleton, with directions for use.—T. Culleton, 25, Cranbourn-street, W.C.

IMPORTANT FIRST-CLASS ENGRAVINGS, by Artists of the highest celebrity, are NOW PUBLISHING, framed, suitable for Library or drawing rooms, or unframed, for Portfolios, at the following prices:—Size, 20 by 16 inches, 1 guinea; 3 copies for 2 guineas; size, 30 by 24 inches, proportionate prices; engravings sold as soon as published. Landseer's Interviews from 1824 to 1860, 30 by 24 inches, and MOSS, 17, Piccadilly.

CHROMOLITHOGRAPHS.—The best examples of the most celebrated artists—Rudolf, Richardson, Kronheim, Leighton, Warren, Absolon, Hunt, Duncan, Lee, Cooper, Nash, Frost, Stone, Creswick, Linnell, Mulready, &c. Apply to FARE, GERARD and SON, Fine-Art Gallery, 170, Fleet-street, E.C.

CHEAP FRAMES (Gold Bead), 2s. 6d. each, including glass, 10 by 12 or 12 by 10; any size to match, 6d. per inch. Portrait size from 5s. Mounts made to order, any size. Every description of Fancy Frames at the lowest possible prices.—FARE, GERARD and SON, 170, Fleet-street, E.C., Fine-Art Gallery, 1851.

THE PRETTIEST GIFT FOR A LADY is one of SOMES LEVER WATCHES, at £11 11s.; for a Gentleman, at £10 10s. Invented at 14, Cockspur-street, Charing-cross, and sold at the manufactory, Manchester, 39, Strand, opposite Somerset House.

DENT, Chronometer, Watch, and Clock Maker, by special appointment to her Majesty and H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, and Maker of the Great Clock for the Houses of Parliament, 61, Strand, and 34, Royal Exchange, London, E.C.

WATCHES and CLOCKS.—FREDC. BARWELL (successor to Thomas Barwell), many years watchmaker to the Queen, respectfully solicits an inspection of his extensive assortment of fine quality Gold Watches, from 10 to 100 guineas each. Every watch skilfully examined, timed, and warranted. Clocks, from 2l. 2s. to 50l. Barwell's Timekeepers, 12s. 6d., 15s., and half-hunt, 17s. 6d. and upwards.—Frederic Barwell, Watchmaker to the Queen, 338, High Holborn, W.C. Established nearly a century. Merchants and Shippers supplied.

GOOD WATCHES at LOW PRICES.—E. JEWELLERY.—A new elegant 30-inch Gold Chain, 3l. 10s.; Ladies' Gold Watches, 3l. 10s.; Gentlemen's Gold Watches, 5l. to 12l.; Gold Bracelets, 30s. to 12l.; Gold Brooches, 30s. to 12l.; Wedding and Keeper Rings, 10s. to 20s.; Gold Lockets, 30s. to 12l.; Gold Albert Chains, 3l. to 12l.; Gold Guard Chains, 3l. to 12l.—FREDC. HAWLEY, Goldsmith, 361, Strand, opposite Exeter Hall. Established nearly a century. Precious Stones purchased or taken in exchange. Jewellery repaired and Diamonds remounted. Price Lists forwarded.

CHURCH, TURRET, AND STABLE CLOCKS.—E. DENT, 61, Strand, and 34, Royal Exchange, Watchmaker by appointment to H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, and maker of the great Clock for the Houses of Parliament. Dent's improved and improved machinery for clockmaking, as the manufacture of these Clocks, Church, Turret, Stable, Railway Station, and General Clocks, is conducted at his factory, where all the most beautiful mechanisms, especially adapted and public clocks, showing time on all four sides, are to be seen in action. Estimates and sketch designs for the same free of charge.—Clerkenwell, E.C. Established 1814.

CLOCKS BY THE BEST ARTISTS, for the Drawing, Dining, and Bed Rooms, Library, Bracket, Carriage, and Watch Purposes, wound and set to time by an illustrated horizontal pamphlet (post-free for two stamps) containing prices and prize medal certificate.
BENSON'S WATCHES.—"Most exquisite 18 ct. ornamental Cases for watchmen that are shown in the Exhibition."—Vide Jurors' Report, page 1,000. Gold Watches, 5 guineas; Silver, 2 guineas. Watches Sent Free to any part of the World. Benson's Illustrated Horizontal Pamphlet (post-free for two stamps) contains prices and prize medal certificate. Every watch skilfully timed to suit each to part.—J. W. Benson, Watchmaker, Ludgate-hill.

HAIR JEWELLERY.—ARTIST in HAIR. DEWDNEY begs to inform Ladies or Gentlemen that he manufactures rich mounts, and elegantly executes in Gold, Hair Bracelets, Chains, Brooches, Rings, Pins, Studs, &c., and forwards the same at short notice, with the Hair Woven in the Device, Cipher, or Motto, as may be desired, on receiving a lock of hair. An illustrated book and print free.—Dewdney, 175, Fenchurch-street, London.

A. FORBER, HAIR JEWELLER to the QUEEN, 5, Hanover-street, Regent-street.

NEW FOUNTAIN PENS (the smoothest writing ever invented), with Gold Pens, 10s. 6d. Full Dress, Patience iron.—PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 105, Oxford-street.

CHECKED SILKS, at £2 12s. 6d., £2 19s. 6d., and £3 10s. 6d., made under rules. Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 105, Oxford-street.

A MANUFACTURER'S STOCK of Striped, Checked, and Brocade Silks, Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 105, Oxford-street.

GROS DE SUEZ, in many new shades of the season's introduction. Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 105, Oxford-street.

MOIRE ANTIQUES, in Black, White, and Coloured. A Dress pattern under present prices. Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 105, Oxford-street, W.

FRENCH BROCHÉ SILK POPLINS, at a NEW FABRIC. Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 105, Oxford-street.

MOZAMBIQUE BAREGE, 2s. 9d. to 3s. 6d. the Extra Full Dress. Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 105, Oxford-street, W.

NEW SUMMER DRESSES, embracing every novelty in French and Swiss Manufacture, at prices ranging from 1l. 5s. to 3 guineas. Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 105, Oxford-street, W.

ALL LAST YEAR'S FRENCH ORGANDIE and MUSLIN DRESSES, at half price. A perfectly fresh, and many of the patterns equal to new, collection. Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 105, Oxford-street.

LACE, LENO, AND MUSLIN CURTAINS. 6d. to 6 guineas. Lace Curtains of any pattern, cost no expense. PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 105, Oxford-street, W.

LACE SHAWLS, 1l. 15s. to 5 guineas. A Selection from more than 300 Shawls of the newest Designs always on view. PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 105, Oxford-street, W.

BLACK UNTEARABLE BAREGES, very serviceable for Dresses. 1s. 6d., 1s. 9d., 2s., 2s. 6d., 3s. 6d. PETER ROBINSON'S Mourning Warehouse, 103, Oxford-street.

NEW SUMMER GRENADINES, in Black and White, Checked and Striped, in every variety of cross. 9s. 6d. to 2l. patterns. Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 105, Oxford-street.

PRINTED CAMBRICS, Plain, Printed, and Striped. All the New Patterns at last year's Prices. PETER ROBINSON'S Mantle Warehouse. Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 105, Oxford-street.

WASHING SILKS (Pure White). From 7s. 6d. to 24s. 6d. the Full Dress. Also, Figured Silks, from 1l. 5s. to 2l. 5s. Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 105, Oxford-street.

ESTABLISHED TWENTY YEARS.
NICHOLSON'S PATENT MAGIC STARCH prepared with their NEW STOCK of SILKS, completely restores parts of old Apparel-fabrics, from 1s. to 2s. per Box.
Nicholson and Co., 50 to 52, St. Paul's-churchyard, London, and of all Chemists and Grocers.

200 PATTERNS POST-FREE.
2926 YARDS of NEW CHECKED and STRIPED GLACÉS, Thirty different Shades, at 1s. 6d., 1s. 9d., 2s., 2s. 6d., 2s. 9d., and 3s. 6d.
Write to NICHOLSON'S, 50 to 52, St. Paul's-churchyard, London.

5930 Yards NEW CHECKED and STRIPED SILKS, in every variety of Shade, at 2s. 6d. per yard. Unusually cheap. Patterns free.
NICHOLSON'S, 50 to 52, St. Paul's-churchyard, London.

200 PATTERNS POST-FREE.
£2400 RICH STOCK of MOIRE ANTIQUES, in every variety of Shade, at 2s. 6d. per yard, wide width.
Write to NICHOLSON'S, 50 to 52, St. Paul's-churchyard, London.

PATTERNS POST-FREE.
£2634 WORTH REVERSIBLE BROCHÉS, in Checks and Stripes, Lace and Satin Stripes, in the New Shades now the rage on both sides. All Colours, 2s. 6d. per yard.
Write to NICHOLSON'S, 50 to 52, St. Paul's-churchyard, London.

200 PATTERNS POST-FREE.
7840 YARDS of LAST YEAR'S SILKS, from the Court Dressmaker, in Checks, Stripes, and Plaids, at 1s. 6d., 1s. 9d., 2s., 2s. 6d., 2s. 9d., and 3s. 6d. per yard.
Write to NICHOLSON'S, 50 to 52, St. Paul's-churchyard, London.

100 PATTERNS POST-FREE.
£2400 WORTH BLACK SILKS, Glacés, Gros Grains, Satins, Broches, &c., all of the undermentioned Notice Prices are from 6s. 6d. per yard.
Write to NICHOLSON'S, 50 to 52, St. Paul's-churchyard, London.

200 PATTERNS POST-FREE.
15,030 YARDS of FOULARD SILKS (REAL FOULARDS), in every variety of Shade and Pattern, all 27 inches wide, at 1s. 6d., 1s. 9d., 2s., 2s. 6d., 2s. 9d., and 3s. 6d. per yard, 31, 32, 33, 34, 35, and 36 inches wide.
Write to NICHOLSON'S, 50 to 52, St. Paul's-churchyard, London.

3000 YARDS of PLAIN COLOURED IRISH POPLINS, at 2s. 6d. per yard. Half price. Patterns free.
Write to NICHOLSON'S, 50 to 52, St. Paul's-churchyard, London.

NEW MANTLES.—MESSRS. NICHOLSON and CO. beg to inform their Customers and Ladies generally that they are now prepared with every Novelty in MANTLES for the Season. An Illustrated Magazine of every Fashion, post-free. NICHOLSON and CO., 50 to 52, St. Paul's-churchyard, London.

100 PATTERNS POST-FREE of the NEW MATERIALS for SUMMER DRESSES, from 6d. to 2s. per yard, and all other pretty Dress Dress Materials for the Season. Write to NICHOLSON and CO., 50 to 52, St. Paul's-churchyard.

DO YOU WISH YOUR CHILDREN TO BE HEALTHY?—Then send for Mrs. ALLEN'S PAMPHLET, 96, Gt. Russell-street, Bloomsbury. Post-free 13 stamps. Patterns of the Clothing, Shoes, Stockings, &c., for Children of all Ages, Boys and Girls, post-free.—NICHOLSON'S, 50 to 52, St. Paul's-churchyard.

GRANDIE MANTLES, GRENADINES, &c. NICHOLSON and CO. have received the very latest Novelties in MANTLES, GRENADINES, &c., from the Leading Parisian Houses. Also, the Yak Burnous and Zouzou in great variety.
Illustrated Magazine of Fashions post-free on application.
50, 50, 52, 51, 52, St. Paul's-churchyard, London.

SCOTT ADIE, by Special Appointment to her Majesty and H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, has on View the largest choice of Ladies' Waterproof Cloaks and Jackets in the most approved Textures, at the Manufactory, 115, Regent-street, corner of Leading Resident Liverpool Waterproof Cloaks and Jackets, from 21s. to 3l. Irish Poplins, &c.; Royal Highland Suits in all the clearest setts in stock.—31, Regent-street (entrance, corner of Vigo-street).

GREAT FAILURES. — KING and CO., 65, Aldermanbury, E.C., have just purchased, at very much less than cost price, the whole of the very Manufactured stock, now Black and the colour Coloured, comprising every novelty of the season, which they are now SELLING OFF (prior to a stock-taking) at 25 per cent below the manufacturers' prices. Patterns and post-free to all parts of the world.
Address as King and Co., Regent-street, London.

PATTERNS POST-FREE.
£1500 WATERPROOF FOULARDS, All in a Pattern, at KING'S, 243, Regent-street.

PATTERNS POST-FREE.
£3762 STRIPED SILKS, All in a Dress, at KING'S, 243, Regent-street.

PATTERNS POST-FREE.
£2653 CHECKED SILKS, 21 10s. a Dress, at KING'S, 243, Regent-street.

PATTERNS POST-FREE.
£3175 GROS GRAIN SILKS, £1 15s. a Dress, at KING'S, 243, Regent-street.

PATTERNS POST-FREE.
£2742 CORDED SILKS, 2 2s. a Dress, at KING'S, 243, Regent-street.

PATTERNS POST-FREE.
£1682 MOIRE ANTIQUES, £3 5s. a Dress, at KING'S, 243, Regent-street.

PATTERNS POST-FREE.
£1764 CHECKED DRAP DE LYON, £2 10s. a Dress, at KING'S, 243, Regent-street.

PATTERNS POST-FREE.
£2353 PLAIN POULT DE SOIES, £2 2s. a Dress, at KING'S, 243, Regent-street.

PATTERNS POST-FREE.
£1974 BLACK GLACÉ SILKS, 1l. 15s. per Dress, at KING'S, 243, Regent-street.

PATTERNS POST-FREE.
£2153 BLACK BROCHÉ SILKS, 1l. 7½d. per yard, at KING'S, 243, Regent-street.

PATTERNS POST-FREE.
£1653 BLACK GROS GRAINS, 2s. 10½d. per yard, at KING'S, 243, Regent-street.

PATTERNS POST-FREE.
£1595 BLACK DRAP DE LYON, 2s. 6d. per yard, at KING'S, 243, Regent-street.

PATTERNS POST-FREE.
FINE MUSLINS, 5s. 6d. a Dress, Muslin Robes, at KING'S, 243, Regent-street.

PATTERNS POST-FREE.
NEW GRENADINES, 12s. 6d. a Dress, Mousseline de Soies, 21 1s. at KING'S, 243, Regent-street.

BLACK LACE SHAWLS, in Rich Guipure Variety, from 10s. 6d. to £5 each, at KING'S, 243, Regent-street.

FRENCH SILKS, GRANT AND GASK are selling an immense Purchase of Choice French Fancy Silks and Satins Richly Brocaded, at 1s. 6d. per yard.
FULLY ONE FOURTH LESS THAN USUAL PRICES.
Full Dress Patterns, 14 yards each, 21s. and 28s. each.
Patterns free. 11 yards wide. Address 61, Wigmore-street, Cavendish-square.
Glacés, in all the new colours, at 2½ guineas the Full Dress of 14 yards. 61, Wigmore-street.
In the Mourning Department are several very cheap lots of the Rich Black Silks, at 1s. 6d. per yard, and Rich Black Satins, at 2s. 6d. per yard, which are worth double the money. Patterns free.
GRANT and GASK, 61, Wigmore-street, Cavendish-square.

GLOVES — GLOVES! The best Kid Gloves, 1s. 6d. per pair, 7s. 6d. per half-dozen. The best Evening Kid, 2s. per pair, 10s. per half-dozen. Patterns free.
BAKER and CRISP, 198, Regent-street.

NEW MUSLIN JACKETS, with Watteau Backs, Trimmed with Lace or Plain or Spotted Muslins, 6s. 6d. to 1l. 5s. 6d. each.
BAKER and CRISP, 198, Regent-street.

THE DAGMAR, A new Sleeve, in Muslin or Net, beautifully braided by hand, and in Lenonine, 1s. 6d., 2s. 6d., and 3s. 6d. Pair post-free.
BAKER and CRISP, 198, Regent-street.

THE NEW HEAD-DRESSES, in Velvet Bands, with Rosettes and ends in all colours, 1s. 6d. and 2s. 6d. each. Post-free.
BAKER and CRISP, 198, Regent-street.

THE NEW FRENCH SILKS, in the yard wide in regular patterns, consisting of stripe, striped, checked, fancy, and satin stripes, at 1s. 6d. per yard. Patterns post-free.
We receive to think it will answer every inquiry purpose to favour us with a call.—198, Regent-street.

BLACK SILKS! BLACK SILKS! Rich, bright, wide, and durable. From 1 guinea the Full Dress. Patterns free.—BAKER and CRISP, 198, Regent-street.

LAST YEAR'S MUSLINS, GRENADINES, &c.—An endless variety, all the best French goods, at half the original prices. Patterns free.
BAKER and CRISP, 198, Regent-street.

ONE THOUSAND PAIRS of LAST YEAR'S MUSLIN, LACE, and LENO CURTAINS, now selling at half price. Patterns free.—BAKER and CRISP, 198, Regent-street.

THE NEW DRESSES at BAKER and CRISP'S are now ready for inspection. Also, the 14 Patterns the Full Dress; the new Fallbalayan, Printed Zanzibar, Black and White Silks, and Rich Brocaded Satins.
BAKER and CRISP, 198, Regent-street.

BLACK SPANISH LACE SHAWLS, two yards square. Goods worth 1, 2, and 3 guineas each, now selling at 10s. 6d. each. Patterns free.—BAKER and CRISP, 198, Regent-street.

REAL IRISH LINENS, direct from Belfast, 5/4 barrage-free.—Rich and double damask Tablecloths, with Napkins to match, 2s. 11d. per yard; Sheeting, 1s. 6d. per yard; Pillow Linens, 1s. 3d. per yard; Glass Linens, Pillow Linens, Huckaback Towels, Kitchen and Fancy Towels, Dress Cloths, Shirtings, Sheetings, Quilts, Counterpanes, Diapers, &c. Every article warranted pure flax. Patterns free.—JAMES LINDSAY and CO., Belfast.

GUINEA FRENCH BONNETS.—Mdme. HENRY has been appointed Sole Agent for three elegant Bonnets, an immense variety of which may be seen at her House, 31, Upper Berkeley-street, Portman-square.
Caps and Head-dresses.
Beautiful Bonnets and Head-dresses, from one guinea.
25, 26, 27, 31, Oxford-street, 4, and 5, Vere-street, London.

THE IRON AGE! STEEL COLLARS! PERFECT WHITENESS! PERFECT COMFORT! Leather or Gentleman's Collars, 1s. 6d. each. Leather or Gentleman's Cuffs, 3s. 6d. a pair. Sent for 2 stamps, 6d. each extra.
Sold by Mr. YEATMAN, 142, Leadenhall-street, E.C.; and 31, Piccadilly, W.
Agent, to call by post from the Colonies and Sole Manufacturer, C. F. ATKINSON, Sheffield.
A Collar for 6 stamps. Pair of Cuffs, 24 stamps.

NEW DRESSES FOR MAY. PATTERNS POST-FREE. ANY LENGTH CUT.
No. 112, 12 yards, Rich Checked Silk, 1l. 12s.
No. 113, 12 yards, Rich Striped Silk, 1l. 12s.
No. 114, 12 yards, Rich Brocaded Silk, 1l. 12s.
The Argenta Cashmere, 1s. 6d. per yard.
Le Petit Jet Wool, 1s. 9d. 12 yards.
Beautiful Washing Grenadines, 1s. 6d. per yard.
The New Cellular Balla, 1s. 6d. per yard.
The New Drap de Monique, 1s. 6d. per yard.
Rich Poplins, in 14 new colours, 1s. 6d. per yard.
Fancy Muslins, at 6d.
Rich Muslins, at 1s. 6d.
Rich Spotted Muslins, at 1s. 6d.
11 pieces.
The Rifle Green Poplin.
Lacy Cloth for Jackets, Mantles.
Elegant Braids in New Materials, at 1s. 6d. per yard.
The Sapphire Cloth, ready made.
The most Elegant Robe de Chambre, 21s.
500 Pieces of Double Black Mantles, at 1s. 6d. per yard.
To ensure a good fit, Ladies should send the same day it is positively necessary that all letters should be addressed to the Crystal Warehouse.
JAY'S, 247 and 249, Regent-street, Opposite Swallow-street.
Crystal Warehouse,
61 and 63, St. Paul's-churchyard.

MANTLES.—FORD'S MANTLE and JACKET ROOMS, No. 42, OXFORD-STREET, LONDON, are replete with every Novelty in Jackets, Mantles, &c., and invariably prices considerably below any other house.
Rich Silk Mantles ... ... 3l. 15s. 6d. to 5 guineas.
Rich Silk Jackets ... ... 1l. 5s. 6d. to 2 guineas.
Elegant Lace Mantles ... ... 1l. 5s. 6d. to 2 guineas.
Opera Cloaks ... ... 1l. 5s. 6d. to 2 guineas.
Fifty new French waterproof Mantles, 1l. 5s. 6d. to 2 guineas.
Illustrations and Patterns sent post-free.

FORD'S RIDING HABITS. Ford's Eureka Shirts, Collars, and Cuffs. Ford's Shilling Trouser (thirteen lengths and ninety-six sizes).
Ford's Waterproof Coat, Guinea Mackintosh, London, W.

GRATIS.—EIGHTEEN PORTRAITS, of eminent persons, exhibiting Sock, each Engraving a Portrait of an actual living person, and illustrating the Fashion of the Day, sent free by Post.
Send the following six advertisements:—

SPRING SUITS.—SAMUEL BROTHERS' Business Suits, Cloth, 21s.; Tweed, 18s. 6d. New Illustrated Books and Patterns free.
Ludgate-hill.

SPRING SUITS.—SAMUEL BROTHERS' Tourists Suits, Cloth, 25s.; Tweed, 21s.; Trousers, 5s. New Illustrated Books and Patterns free.
Ludgate-hill.

SPRING SUITS.—SAMUEL BROTHERS' Gentlemen Suits, 63s. Cloth; 52s., Vest, 8s. 6d.; Trousers, 14s. 6d. New Illustrated Books and Patterns free.
50, Ludgate-hill.

SPRING SUITS.—SAMUEL BROTHERS' Dress Suits, 84s. Cloth; 63s., Vest, 10s. 6d.; Trousers, 18s. 6d. New Illustrated Books and Patterns free.
50, Ludgate-hill.

SPRING SUITS.—SAMUEL BROTHERS' Clerical Suits, 84s. Cloth; 63s., Vest, 10s. 6d.; Trousers, 18s. 6d. New Illustrated Books and Patterns free.
50, Ludgate-hill.

SHIRTS.—FORD'S EUREKA SHIRTS. "Need only be known to be appreciated."—Vide Times' Report. Ford's Eureka Shirts, 40s. the half-dozen. Patterns and self-measure post-free for six. Fords-the-not Instructions for self-measurement post-free.
Ford's Waterproof Coat, Guinea Mackintosh, London, W.

FORD'S EUREKA SHIRT.—Patterns of the New Designs for Spring Shirting. Observe Ford's Eureka Shirts, sent to select from on receipt of Three Stamps.
Richard Ford, 38, Ludgate-hill, London.

NURSERY ARTICLES and DOMESTIC APPLIANCES.—Heather Bedding, Needle Shields, Breast Shields, Breast Pumps, Night Lights, Night Lamps, Feeding Bottles, Baby Linen, Baby Baskets, Baby Jumpers, Baby Carriages, Elastic Stockings, &c. Prepared Kidney Beans. Nursery Requisites of every description. Price List free.—Mrs. ALLEN, 96, Great Russell-street, Bloomsbury.

COLUMBIAN HAIR DYE changes Grey or Hair to a Natural Brown or Black permanently, the moment it is touched by the Hair. Sold by all Chemists, and at 24, Duke-street, Grosvenor-square, London.

UNWIN and ALBERTS, 71, Pentonville.

WAVY HAIR, beautifully and naturally produced by the Use of UNWIN and ALBERTS' PREPARATION for the Growth, Curling, and Restoration of HAIR. A TESTIMONY, post-free.

BEAUTIFUL HAIR.—CHURCHER'S GLOBE FLUID is the best and most effectual preparation for drying and performing the Hair. In tops, handsome Bottles, 3s., 6s., and 10s. 6d. each.—CHURCHER'S COLUMBIAN HAIR DYE, 3s. 6d. RUCKERS and SONS, 6, Great Marlborough-street, W., and 93, Fleet-street, London.

WHITE and SOUND TEETH are indispensable to the possession of beauty and health and longevity, by the proper application of food. DENTIFRICE, Recommended and Prepared by JOHN GOSNELL and CO., Perfumers, Sole Manufacturers of the Cherry Blossom Toilet Articles, Purveyors to the Queen, and Grocers to the Royal Family, 22, Ely-place, Holborn-hill, London. Sold at 2s. 6d. per Box.

THE Romans made LASTING PERFUMES, and GOSNELL and CO. imitate them in their Cherry Blossom Toilet Articles, Soaps, Powders, &c. Sold by Chemists, Hairdressers, and Perfumers.

CREAM OF LILIES, for beautifying and improving the complexion, unfailingly removing freckles, sunburn, tan, &c., and rendering the skin delightfully soft and blooming. Price 3s. 6d. per bottle.

NAPOLEON PRICE'S REGISTERED GOLDEN OIL is the only article that really possesses the extraordinary property of restoring Hair in cases of Premature Decay. Beware of an imitation. The genuine is sold by the sole proprietor, Napoleon Price, 2, Bridge-street, Blackfriars, S.E., and by all Chemists.

M DME. MOREAU'S CREME de L'IMPERATRICE, for Clearing the Skin from Freckles and Tan, Pimples, Redness, and Roughness. Preserves the delicacy and beauty of the complexion. Prepared only by Madame Moreau, 20, Rupert-street, where celebrated Recamier Moisture or the Lotion of Beauty.

REMOVAL.—Messrs. ALEX and JONES have REMOVED from 10, Conduit-street, Hanover-square, in consequence of their premises, 31, New Bridge-street, being required by the London, Chatham, and Dover Railway.

MR. LAWRENCE VANDERPANT, Dentist, has successfully and judiciously been consulted by the Royal Family of the Touch by means of the most modern system of practice. Fee strictly moderate. At home from 11 till 5.—50, Haddon-street, Regent-street, W.

COD-LIVER OIL SUPERSEDED, by DR. DE JONGH'S PALE COD-LIVER OIL, which can be taken by the most delicate stomach, and is the only kind of oil, Large Pint, 4s.; Quart, 7s. 6d. Wholesale, RADCLAY and SONS, Bread Hill, Joseph and Co., 33, Aldersgate Without.

NEW MUSIC.

M. TRAIBERG'S NEW PIECES.

THALBERG'S BALLO IN MASCHERA, just published, a charming Fantasia for the Pianoforte, on favourite airs from VERDI'sOpera. By M. THALBERG. Price 3s. CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

THALBERG'S RIGOLETTO. Just published, a Fantasia for the Pianoforte, on favourite airs from VERDI'S popular Opera. Price 3s. CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

NEW PIANOFORTE PIECE FROM FAUST.

BENEDICT'S FAUST. Just published, a Grand Concert Fantasia for Pianoforte on favourite melodies from GOUNOD'S celebrated and popular Opera. Price 4s. CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

NEW PIANOFORTE PIECE FROM FAUST.

WALLACE'S FAUST. A Fantasia on the most favourite melodies from GOUNOD'S "Faust." Price 4s. CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

KUHE'S FAUST. Fantaisie de Salon for the Piano, on favourite Airs from GOUNOD'S Opera, Price 4s. CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

KUHE'S LEGGIERO INVISIBILE. Just published, a valse brillante, upon MEYERBEER'S celebrated song, arranged for the Pianoforte. Price 4s. CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

KUHE'S SH MIRAMIDE. Grand Fantasia on Airs from DONIZETI'S Opera, for the Pianoforte, by this pianist. Price 4s. CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

KUHE'S MASANIELLO.—Just published, a Grand Fantasia for the Pianoforte on Airs from this charming Opera. Price 4s. CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

OSBORNE'S FAUST. Fantaisie on favourite Melodies from GOUNOD'S celebrated Opera, by the above pianist. Price 4s. CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

BRINLEY RICHARDS' JUANITA. This popular song entered upon a very successful meeting-room promenade piece. Price 3s. Also as a Duet, 3s. 6d. CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

BRINLEY RICHARDS' MARAQUITA. This popular Ballad entered upon a successful Drawing-room promenade piece. Price 3s. CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

BRINLEY RICHARDS' SOLDIERS' CHORUS, from GOUNOD'S celebrated Opera of "Faust," arranged for the Pianoforte. Price 3s. CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

W. H. CALLCOTT'S BEAUTIES OF FAUST. A new arrangement of this celebrated Opera as Pianoforte Duet for small hands, containing several admirable airs not before published as duets. In two books, 5s. each. CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

THE SOLDIERS' CHORUS in FAUST, as performed by the Orpheus Glee Union, arranged for the Pianoforte by W. H. CALLCOTT. Price 3s.; Duet, 3s. 6d. CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

NEW DANCE MUSIC.

HAPPY MOMENTS VALSE. By GUSTAVE LAMBERT. Just published. Beautifully illustrated. Price 4s.; Orchestra, 5s.; Septet, 5s. CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

THE FORGET-ME-NOT WALTZ. By GUSTAVE LAMBERT. Just published. Price, Orchestra, 5s.; Septet, 5s.—CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

THE GUARDS WALTZ. By D. GODFREY. Played by the Band of the Grenadier Guards by command of the Prince and Princess of Wales. Just published, price 4s.; Duet, 4s. CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

THE MERRY TUNES LANCERS. Just published. A set of Lancers, arranged on the most popular and merry tunes of the day. By D. GODFREY. Price 4s.; Orchestra, 5s.; Septet, 5s. CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

THE ALBUM CZARDAS GALOP. By JAMES CARLTON (Composer of the Bayswater Galop). Just published. Illustrated. Pianoforte Duet, 4s.; Orchestra, 5s.; Orchestra, 5s.; Septet, 5s. CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

HELTRE-SKELTER GALOP. Just out, a New Galop, by CANDUT (Conductor of the Floral Hall Orchestra). Richly Illustrated. Price 4s.; Orchestra, 5s.; Septet, 5s. CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

COOTE'S FAUST WALTZ, on Airs from GOUNOD'S Beautiful Opera. Richly Illustrated. Price, Solo or Duet, 4s.; Septet, 5s. CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

COOTE'S FAUST QUADRILLE, on favourite Airs from GOUNOD'S Opera. Beautifully Illustrated. Price, Solo or Duet, 4s.; Septet, 5s.; Full Orchestra, 5s. CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

COOTE'S FAUST GALOP, from GOUNOD'S Opera. Beautifully Illustrated. Price, Solo or Duet, 3s.; Septet, 5s.; Full Orchestra, 5s. CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

FAUST FOLKA. By F. WALLERSTEIN. Just published. Beautifully Illustrated. Price 3s., Solo or Duet; 4s., Septet; 5s., Orchestra. CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

NEW SONG BY STEPHEN GLOVER.

WON'T YOU TELL? New Song. Words by G. LINLEY. Music by STEPHEN GLOVER. Price 2s. 6d. CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

MR. SANTLEY'S NEW SONG.

SOFT AND LOW. From GOUNOD'S Opera, "Le Medecin malgré lui." Sung by Mr. Santley at the Monday Popular Concerts. Price 2s. CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

THE STIRRUP CUP, MR. SANTLEY'S NEW SONG, expressly composed for him by Signor ARDITI, and supported by encores at every Concert. Price 2s. net. Duet, 3s. net. CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

THE WATCHING MOTHER. New Song. Words by G. LINLEY. Music by CIRCHIRA. Price 2s. 6d. CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

CHEAP MUSIC. 6d. each, post-free, from the following Series:—Boosey's Musical Cabinet; Chappell's Musical Magazine; The Ruffle Set; Cramer's Musical Circulating Library; St. Paul's Choir; 4, Bathbone-place.

RUMPLESTILTSKIN QUADRILLES. By T. SHERMAN. An enchanting set, splendid and pretty. Illustrated. 4s.—H. HALSE, 4, Bathbone-place.

NEW COMIC SONGS, Madigan's Wake." "Is your mother single dears?" Arthur Lloyd's "It's an institution of mine." "I Best Beach." "Be sure you are You are." Harry Hill's "Ri-tol-lol-lay." "Jemmy Green." All 2s. each, postage paid, and 13s. 6d. each. DALCOMO, 9, Bathbone-place.

NOTICE.—HALF PRICE.—All Music, and the best Pianofortes, Harmoniums, and every kind of Musical Instrument post-free for postage stamps or Post Office order (hand) works acquired. HUTTON and LILLEY, 57, New Bond-street, W.

NEW MUSIC.

NICOLAI'S MERRY WIVES of WINDSOR. The only Authorised Edition.

Book of Favourite Airs, Solo, 3s.; Duet, 4s.
Overture ... ... 4s. ... 8s.
Pianoforte (for easy hands) ... ... 2s. ... 5s.
Selection on Popular Airs ... ... 3s. ... 6s.
Quadrilles ... ... 3s. ... 6s.
Waltzes ... ... 3s. ... 6s.
Galop ... ... 3s. ... 6s.
Fantasia on Subjects ... ... 4s. ... 8s.

The principal Vocal Pieces, with Italian Text, as sung at Her Majesty's Theatre.

DANCE MUSIC.

The Fairest Polka (Violet Waltz) ... 4. Mazes ... 3s.
Set of Waltzes ... ... 3. Galop ... 4s.
... ... 3. Quadrilles ... 4s.

Other Arrangements, by Brinley Richards, C. Coote, H. Maune (of the Coldstream Guards), and Charles Coote.

CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

THE BRIDE OF SONG. Operetta in one act. Written by HENRY FARNIE. Composed by FELIX MENDELSSOHN.

The Overture ... ... 5s. net.
Song—"Night and Morning" ... ... 2. Solo and C. 3s. net.
Song—"By the Sea" (Duet, original key 2) Duet ... 3s. net.
... (second key, B flat) ... ... A. or M. S. 3s. net.
Trio—"Welcome, Sweet Bird" ... ... S. T. and B. 3s. net.
Trio—"Hail to the Bridegroom" ... ... S. T. and B. 3s. net.
Trio—"My Heart is breaking" ... ... S. T. and B. 3s. net.
Duet—"O, Gentle Love, we pray" ... ... S. and T. 3s. net.
Song—For her sweet sake ... ... T. 2s. net.
Song—"Oh, Love, I sigh for thee" ... ... T. 2s. net.
Duet—"Oh! would I were a bird" ... ... S. and T. 3s. net.
Ii. Quartet—The Bridesmaid ... ... S. C. T. and B. 3s. net.

CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

SHE STOOPS TO CONQUER, OPERA, by G. A. MACFARREN. Complete Opera, 8s. net. All the Vocal Pieces separately. Overture, 4s. net. Pianoforte Solo, 4s. net. Song—"By Mistress Fortune," 2s. net. Song—"Ah, Colin, Colin Maitland," 2s. net. Duet—"Ah, Colin, Colin Maitland," 3s. net. Song—"Oh, Fly Not Yet," 2s. net. Song—"Tell Me Where Is Fancy Bred," 2s. net. Song—"Tom Tug," 2s. net. Song—"Hearts of Oak," 2s. net. Song—"Ah, Sweet Mystery of Life," 2s. net. Song—"Ah, Sweet Mystery of Life," 2s. net. Song—"Ah, Sweet Mystery of Life

HERR WACHTEL, THE NEW TENOR SINGER AT THE ROYAL ITALIAN OPERA.

We give a Portrait of Herr Wachtel, the new tenor singer, who has gained so much favour with the audience and the critics by his performance of the parts of Maurice in "Il Trovatore," and Arnoldo in "Guglielmo Tell," during the present season of the Royal Italian Opera. We have more than once had occasion, in our departments of musical criticism, to describe the characteristics of Herr Wachtel as an operatic artist. He certainly possesses a voice of extraordinary compass and power. Though he may not be esteemed the rival of Tamberlik in his high chest notes, the effect of his ut de poitrine, or C in alt, has never failed to astonish and delight the audience in Covent-Garden. As an actor, it has been remarked that his only fault is excess of vehemence, which time and study will doubtless correct. His pronunciation of the Italian language is more pure than that which most other Germans at the Opera have been able to attain in the course of a much longer practice. As it seems generally expected that Herr Wachtel's future career will prove an important one in the annals of our most fashionable entertainment, we have thought it worth while to engrave this likeness of him, from a photograph taken by Messrs. Mayall, which gives a good notion of his personal appearance. He is a native of Berlin.

HERR WACHTEL, THE NEW TENOR SINGER AT THE ROYAL ITALIAN OPERA.

SCENE FROM MR. WOODIN'S ENTERTAINMENT AT THE POLYGRAPHIC HALL.

We have engraved this week an Illustration of one of the most laughable scenes in Mr. Woodin's entertainment, "An Elopement Extraordinary," which still maintains its popularity at the hall in King William-street, Strand. It may be necessary that we should explain the dramatic action to those of our readers who have not yet seen Mr. Woodin's performance of the several characters in this little play. The scene is supposed to be laid upon the London, Tilbury, and Southend Railway; and it is sometimes in the carriages, sometimes in front of a train, which is first seen at the Tilbury Station, and then stops at Barking, Shadwell, and Fenchurch-street. A strong-minded young lady, taking advantage of Leap-year, has eloped with a weak-minded young gentleman, and is pursued by her uncle, who, resolved to do things as quietly as possible and not to reveal himself till the lovers have arrived in London, takes his place in a second-class carriage, while they occupy one of the first class. A letter dropped unread by the young gentleman is picked up by the old gentleman, who, discovering thereby that the former has come into a large fortune, resolves to accelerate the match which he before intended to break off. Hearing the lovers quarrel in the next carriage, he joins them with the design of preventing a rupture, still keeping his face concealed. This action appears trifling enough, but it is carried on with all the appurtenances of railway travelling; and, as Mr. Woodin plays all three characters himself, the audience burst into wondering laughter when they see carriages entered by one person after another, and behold heads popping now out of this window, now out of that, while all these travellers are but one and the same man. But their astonishment reaches its height when the scene changes, and the stage represents the inside of the carriage, with the uncle, the two lovers, and the head of a ticket-collector thrust in at the window, all visible at once. This combination is produced by an ingenious arrangement of stuffed "dummies," which Mr. Woodin animates at pleasure by introducing his own face where the face ought to be and working the several arms. When the old man joins the hands of the two lovers the curtain falls amid loud applause.

SCENE FROM MR. WOODIN'S ENTERTAINMENT, "ELOPEMENT EXTRAORDINARY," AT THE POLYGRAPHIC HALL.

THE LONDON MAIN-DRAINAGE WORKS. SOUTH SIDE.

Half a century ago it was the dream of that most imaginative of painters, the late John Martin, that the sewage of the metropolis might be intercepted, the Thames purified, and a magnificent supply of pure water brought from the river Colne into the Green Park, whence, after forming there a series of beautiful cascades, it was to find its way through luxuriant pleasure-grounds to the Thames. The painter's dream, at least the useful part of it, is now being almost realised, by bringing a plentiful supply of pure water to London, by the interception of the sewage and by the constant purification of the Thames. The cascades are not necessary; we do not want them, and doubt if they would be ornamental if we had them, because nothing that is done in the way of art in London is ornamental. But we have got a supply of pure water from distant sources; the interception of the sewage is almost an fait accompli; and we may expect in a reasonable time to accomplish the purification of the Thames.

In our Number for Nov. 30, 1861, we gave a series of Illustrations, accompanied by a descriptive account, of the works of the London Main Drainage. Since that time the works have been pushed forward with great vigour, a very large portion of them being completed; and it is hoped that in the ensuing autumn a formal opening may take place of the principal features of the system, both on the north and south sides of the Thames. Even now a part of it on the north side is in actual operation. For some months past a portion of the sewage of the northern side has found its way through the great outfall sewers, which have been so successfully carried over and under roads, rivers, houses, and lands, through tunnels, over bridges, in aqueducts, and along embankments, till they finally pour forth their contents at Barking Creek; but until the last month they did this unchecked at all times of the tide, which was dead against one of the first principles of the system. Now, on the contrary, the operation of this portion of the works is complete; the descending waters are barred from egress to the Thames, and allowed to accumulate in an immense covered reservoir during the flowing of the tide. This really the beginning of the result so long and anxiously looked for. It is remarkable that no sooner had things come to this satisfactory state than a fine salmon, on the look out for clean fresh water, made its appearance in the Thames. This salmon was, no doubt, an important visitor; but we would rather he had been caught after he had run the gauntlet of Mr. Bazalgette's foul-mouthed outlets at Barking Creek than when he was twenty miles below them. Had he been caught above the northern outfall we might have concluded that, in his opinion, the Thames water was not bad; but being caught where the water was actually salt, we fear that his appearance there does not go for much. That salmon may again visit the Thames and become common in it we think extremely likely. Before the discharge of so much sewage matter into it they were taken in large quantities. There are fishermen now living who remember having taken, at Mortlake, as much as twenty hundredweight of salmon in one day, and that was not more than fifty years ago.

We have engraved a Map of the River Thames and its banks from North Woolwich down to Hole-way Reach, near Erith, which appears on the next page. It shows the outfall of the northern system of drainage at Barking Creek in Essex, and the outfall of the southern system at Crossness, two miles below Woolwich. We have this week briefly to describe the outfall works on the Kentside, between Deptford and Crossness.

At the end of the year 1861 we gave an Illustration of the state of the important works then progressing at Deptford Creek, as they appeared at that time—a mass of elementary operations, excavations, temporary pumping-establishments, sawmills, and other works, broken ground, and buildings in the course of demolition. All vestiges of what the place then was have disappeared, and there is now a complete group of works ready for immediate operations. The gas-line is in the building, and 20 horse-power of 60-horse power have been erected, for the purpose of lifting the sewage of the low-lying grounds on that side of the Thames, embracing the districts of Putney, Wandsworth, Battersea, Lambeth, Kensington, Newington, Walworth, Peckham, Bermondsey, Rotherhithe, Deptford, and Greenwich, which are estimated to yield a discharge of sewage amounting to 10,000 cubic feet per minute. To raise this quantity to a height of 19 ft. into the outfall sewer, four engines, each of 25 nominal horse-power, have been provided with 48-in. cylinders and 9-ft. stroke. The engines here are of the most general description to those to be erected at Pimlico and Abbey Mills; but in this instance the plunger-pumps which are raised by them are single-acting. The board for 3-sec. 8-in. in diameter, with a stroke of 4½ ft., two pumps being worked by each of the four engines. Hereafter there will be a second board here for the storage of coal, and the crack has been much improved by the formation of a very fine wharf-wall, with a large dock in front of it.

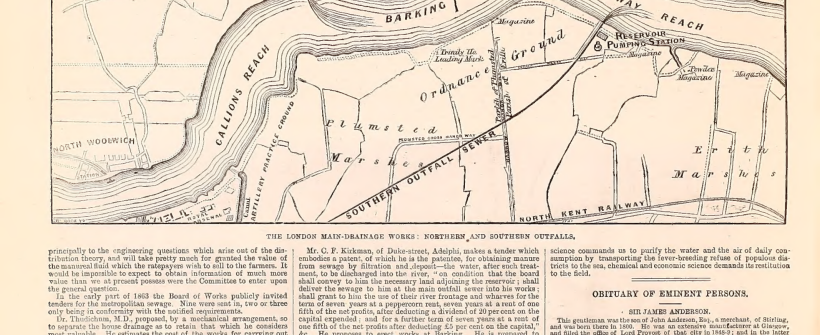
The sewage lifted at Deptford will be lifted a second time, together with the sewage from the high lands on this side of the Thames at the station now in course of erection on the banks of the river at Crossness. At page 493 will be found an illustration showing the present state of the works at this important outlet for the whole of the sewage drained from the low-lying south side of the Thames. The large building in the centre of the Engraving is now nearly completed; it is a very fine mass, and will be a good appearance from the river. It has considerable architectural pretensions, the details of the parts that meet the eye, such as the pillars in the entrance doorways on the river side, and other portions, having finely-wrought mouldings and other details. The block of buildings, a section of which is shown on page 504, contains the engines, boilers, and other machinery connected with the pumping establishment. A quay will be constructed along the whole of the river-bank facing the works, and jetties for unloading coal. The basement story of small, stone erections, in the foreground of the Illustration, are the works of the great reservoir, in which the sewage is accumulated during the last two hours of flood. This will be covered over entirely with earth and turfed, so that nothing of it will be visible. The land, when completed, except small apertures here and there for ventilation. The sewage of the south side of London is here to be lifted into this storage reservoir, the quantity being estimated as sufficient to last from 1830 to 1850 for a population of 600,000 persons from 10 ft. to 30 ft., varying with the level of the water in the sewer and reservoir respectively. The machinery provided is 500-horse power, in four double-acting condensing engines, having 48-in. cylinders and 9 ft. stroke, and each engine working two single-acting plunger-pumps. To meet the great variation in the work to be done each pump is worked by a double-throw crank, so that the water is thrown out of work if required. The steam is here furnished from twelve boilers, each 30 ft. long and 8 ft. in diameter, erected in a capacious boiler-house in the rear of the engine-house, and under which is constructed a reservoir for the storage of water for the supply of the boilers.

The reservoir into which the sewage is lifted extends over 64 acres, and is capable of holding 250,000,000 gallons of it for its four compartments. It has a brick floor, and is covered with brick arches so as to prevent the escape of any noxious effluvia. The sewage will be stored therein between the tidal periods of high water, near which time only a discharge into the river is advisable. The river will be embanked for the length of nearly a quarter of a mile, and blocking-stone will be made for the use of the river. In this and in the other pumping establishments, large provision will be made for the storage of coals; workshops also will be erected for doing all necessary repairs, and residences built for the superintending engineer and staff of assistants.



Although not the largest pumping establishment, the works at Crossness are very extensive, covering, on the whole, an area of about 100 acres. The engines are formed into a station by themselves, connected network of sewers and three outlets, furnished with a number of very large cast-iron sluices, with all requisite machinery for regulating and distributing the sewage into the several channels, as circumstances may make necessary. The chimney-stalk at this place will be upwards of 160 ft. in height.

SEWAGE IN COMMITTEE.

THE sewage question is not yet set at rest. Those who sought to lay the ghost by the recent Parliamentary Committee have not done so, for the Engineer-in-Chief, Mr. Bazalgette, has not only not accepted the Board of Works to cast into the Thames, some way below London Bridge, at immense expense is really a have valuable substance, and that, could they only devise means by which it could be beneficially utilised, they would be rich men. Many would be very thankful to pay such a rent for the boon as should bring into the City exchequer a large sum of money. This sum is estimated at a million sterling; some think it would be more, some less. There have been enactments held in most of the principal municipal districts of London, and resolutions have been passed, all strongly expressive of a desire to have the sewage utilised. Moved, perhaps, by local influences, no less than a few have advocated the adoption of one or another of the engineering schemes that are now before the country for this purpose. The agitation has been sufficiently strong to stir Parliament, and last week Lord Robert Montagu moved the appointment of a Select Committee to take evidence on this subject, and particularly to examine very carefully into the merits of the several schemes propounded by engineers.

The report of the Committee which sat in 1862 was objected to, and not altogether without reason, because, because it was not in process an unfair summary of the evidence. It is to be hoped that the result of the present one may be more favourable. Even if it is quite likely that the same party feelings which appeared to actuate certain members of the Committee and certain witnesses examined will again be apparent. The names on the present Committee are as follow:—Mr. Cowper, Mr. Walpole, Mr. Bright, Mr. Adderley; Sir W. Russell, Sir F. Smith, Lord Ebrington, Mr. J. Talbot, Mr. Tite, Mr. Leader, Mr. Hibbert, Mr. Sclater Booth, Dr. Brady, and Lord Robert Montagu. Mr. Adderley, Sir F. Smith, Mr. Cubitt, and Mr. Tite were on the Committee of 1862—the latter being chairman. Sir George Grey has been examined at great length by this Committee, and spoke in the strongest terms of the effects of town sewage, but did not commit himself to any opinion with respect to its profitable application over a very large area.

The following appears to be the gist of the report of 1862:—From the evidence laid before them, the Committee are of opinion "that the value of the sewage of the cities and towns varies greatly, according to the extent to which the manure and other fertilising matters of the place is discharged into and mixed with the town drainage, and to the extent to which the mass of rainfall which flows into the town drains but when these fertilising matters are not diluted in an unusual degree the sewage is of very appreciable agricultural value." It now remains to be seen what will be the conclusion of the present investigating body. It is to be supposed, however, that they will imbue their inquiries principally to the engineering questions which arise out of the distribution theory, and will take pretty much for granted the value of the manurial fluid which the ratepayer is called on to drain. Besides, it would be impossible to expect to obtain information of much more value than we at present possess were the Committee to enter upon the general question.

THE LONDON MAIN-DRAINAGE WORKS: NORTHERN AND SOUTHERN OUTFALLS.

In the early part of 1863 the Board of Works publicly invited tenders for the metropolitan sewage. Nine were sent in, two or three only being in conformity with the notified requirements.

Dr. Thudichum, M.D., proposed, by a mechanical arrangement, so to separate the house drainage as to retain that which he considers most valuable. He estimates the cost of this works for carrying out his process at £1,000,000, and the net profit at £1,000,000 per annum, and proposes that one half of the balance should be paid to the board, the other to the shareholders of a company to be formed for carrying out the system.

Lord Torrington, Sir C. Fox, and Mr. Thornton Hunt, intimated that they would form a company for the purchase of 50,000 or 60,000 acres, on which to throw the sewage—where, it would be impolitic to state. They asked for a lease the entire sewage in the land for a long term, renewable or terminable on certain conditions, and to construct all necessary works. After deducting working expenses and sinking expenses, they offer to pay the board a certain percentage of profits—two per cent, we think, by a supplementary tender on the capital—the rent or royalty to be determined by an arbitrator to be pointed by the Board of Trade. The projectors of this scheme are more particular in their supplementary tender. They agree in that document that they propose to erect at seven or more stations, steam-pumping engines of 1000-horse power or more, to receive the ordinary sewage from the main sewers at these stations, and pump it through seven cast-iron mains of 9 ft. diameter on each, laid along the bank of the river, with provision for interchange between the mains in case of accident; these mains to convey the sewage along roads and railways to land situated in the counties of Essex, Kent, Surrey, and Sussex, to which lands, when required, they will convey it. It is proposed to apply the sewage, partly from detached reservoirs, but chiefly by jets. The capital supposed to be necessary for this venture is £5,000,000. This plan appears to be the most direct section of the engine to propel the sewage over the specified area.

Mr. Gotto of Tavernsed, on behalf of the Land Drainage Reclamation Company (Limited), proposes that the board should grant the company an outlet for sewage as they might require it, for a term of 999 years, at a nominal rent of 5*l*. This experiment proving successful, an extension of the lease will be granted for a further period of the same terms; after which such a vent should be charged as could be agreed upon.

Mr. Moore, of the Temple, tenders for the sewage on condition that it is conceded to him for ninety years—first, at a peppercorn rent for fourteen years; and then in consideration of half profits after deducting 10 per cent on the capital invested. In a subsequent tender, Mr. Moore offers to pay one farthing per ton for every ton of sewage raised by the board to a height of 200 ft., which, at eighty millions gallons daily, would, he estimates, amount to £150,000 per annum.

Mr. George Shepherd, of Thurgarton-street, asks for a concession of the whole of the sewage of London for fifty years, and offers to divide with the board the net profits received by the company, after paying 7½ per cent on the invested capital. Should the board or the company only to deduct 6 per cent interest on their capital.

Mr. C. F. Kickman, of Duke-street, Adelphi, makes a tender which embodies a patent, of which he is the patentee, for obtaining manure from sewage by the application of deposition-tanks, after such treatment, to be discharged into the river, "on condition that the board shall convey to him the necessary land adjoining the reservoir; shall deliver the sewage to him at the main outfall sewer into his works; shall grant to him the use of their river frontage and wharves for the term of seven years at a peppercorn rent, seven years at a rent of one fifth of the net profits, after deducting a dividend of 10 per cent on the capital expended; and for a further term of seven years a rent of one fifth of the net profits after deducting £5 per cent on the capital," &c. He proposes to erect works at Barking. He is prepared to guarantee a minimum rent of £10,000 per annum.

Messrs. Napier and Hope propose to intercept the whole of the ordinary flow of the northern sewage near Abbey Mills, and to convey it by a culvert, forty-four miles in length, to Maplin Sands on the one hand and Dengie Flats on the other. Both these areas are at present submerged at high water: an intervention is part of the project, extending to 10,000 or 20,000 acres. The capital to be invested is two millions; the consideration for the sewage to be for fifty years, subject to Parliamentary authority being obtained, and to a grant of the land from the Crown. The profits to be divided equally between the company and the board, after a deduction of ten per cent on the outlay. The Board of Works is to be represented on the company's board, and to have the power of certifying the accounts. The sands and flats above mentioned are to be reclaimed from the sea by embankments, and the land so to be reclaimed on the one area so obtained. The sum of £25,000 is to be forfeited if the company abandon the works after they have been begun or before they are completed.

Mr. Thomas Ellis, of Warwick-square, Belgravia, "proposes to pump the sewage from the board's reservoirs to certain covered tanks, constructed at such points as the board may select on each side of the Thames, from which it will be allowed to flow by gravitation through pipes laid along the sides of the roads adjoining the sea to be irrigated, which is also to be approved by the board. Mr. Ellis, on behalf of the company to be formed, undertakes to provide and use all necessary machinery, and to maintain the works in repair, with some neutral hands as a guarantee for the fulfilment of the conditions to be agreed upon. The term of the lease to be granted is not stated. This concession he requires to be in perpetuity, subject to the board's power to purchase the works after the term of twenty-one years. The net profits, deducting working and management expenses and interest thereon, to be divided between the company and the board. He proposes that all preliminary expenses should be borne by himself. But the most extraordinary proposition is that which in favour of his scheme from the Parliamentary Committee to whom it may be submitted.

Such are the plans to be examined; and these will, probably, not be the only ones. The utilisation of town sewage is a question with three distinct bearings—it is a farmer's question, a ratepayer's question, and a national question. It is to be hoped that the examination now going on may be prosecuted with due regard to these several points, and may result in the recommendation of some plan that will relieve the ratepayer, accommodate the farmer, and save the country from the immense loss to which it stood committed by the adoption of the great main-drainage system. For which it is to be feared the animal is the source of vitality to the vegetable; and while medical science commands us to purify the water and the air of daily consumption by transporting the fever-breeding refuse of populous districts to the sea, chemical and economic science demands the restitution to the field.

OBITUARY OF EMINENT PERSONS.

SIR JAMES ANDERSON.

This gentleman was the son of John Anderson, Esq., a merchant, of Stirling, and was born there in 1800. He was an extensive manufacturer at Glasgow, and filled the office of Lord Provost of that city in 1846-7; and in the latter year received the honour of knighthood, when her Majesty, Queen Victoria, visited Glasgow. Sir James was M.P. for Stirling, in the Reform interest, from July, 1852, to May, 1865. He married, in 1831, Janet, only daughter of Robert Hood, Esq., of Glasgow. Sir James Anderson, who was a magistrate for Dumbartonshire, died at his seat, Blairdrinnoch, in that county, on the 9th inst.

G. P. BIDNAGE, ESQ.

George Finch Bidnage, Esq., of Hainton Hall, Lincolnshire, was the head representative of the ancient and honourable family of Bidnage, which has flourished in Lincolnshire from the reign of Henry III., and has been connected by marriage with many of the most distinguished of the nobility. One of George Robert Bidnage, Esq., of Hainton, by his wife, Frances Anne, second daughter of Lieutenant-General George Aiskell, Colonel of the 19th Regiment of Foot. He was born Nov. 22, 1805, and was educated at Trinity College, Cambridge, where he graduated B.A. in 1827. He was returned in Parliament, as Whig, for the borough of Grimsby from 1830 to 1832, and for the county from 1833 to 1834, and again from 1841 to 1847. He married, Jan. 17, 1833, Frances, daughter of Michael Tanburgh, Esq., of Bergliwallis, in the county of York, and by her, who died in 1851, has had two sons, and a daughter, Georgiana Mary, married, Jan. 13, 1853, to Colonel the Hon. Alexander Edward Fraser, second son of Thomas Alexander, eighteenth Baron Lovat. Mr. Bidnage, who was a magistrate and Deputy Lieutenant for the county of Lincoln, died at his seat, Haintion Hall, near Louth, in that county, on the 11th inst. He is succeeded by his elder son, Edward Bidnage, Esq., late of the 1st Life Guards, who was born in 1834, and is a Captain in the Lincolnshire Yeomanry Cavalry. One of Mr. Bidnage's brothers is Sir Thomas Bidnage, Knt., of Wood Hall, Essex, Clerk of the Royal Bounties of Her Majesty's Most Honourable Privy Council.

Since the above notice of Mr. Bidnage's death, was created Comtesse of Winchilsea, in her own right, Lady Georgiana Augusta Finch Bidnage, Countess Mary, married Earl of Winchilsea. The name of Finch, which the late Mr. Bidnage bore, is derived from the family of Lady Georgiana, the maternal ancestress of the deceased. Thomas Henry Bidnage, Esq., of Haintion, with Anna Maria, only daughter of Rishcliffe Finch, Count of Georgia, R. Genoa.

CLAUDE MARIE DUBUFE.

Claude Marie Dubufe, the great French portrait and historical painter, died in Paris after a lingering illness, on the 24th inst., aged 71 years. He first came into note in 1812, by his production of "Achilles taking Lelgeania under his protection," and which exhibited traces of "Cerise Luiting the Tempest," established his reputation. Among his most famous pictures were "Apollo and Cyparisse"; Christ Walking on the Water" (now in the Church of St. Leu); "The Deliverance of St. Peter" for the Church of St. Pierre; "Le Martyre de St. Denis," painted in 1822; and "La Messe de Mariage," by which he was chiefly famous as a portrait painter. Of these there are few of the great men and great ladies of Paris that have not had their likenesses taken by him. Amongst others may be noticed his portraits of King Louis Philippe, the Queen of the Belgians, Rimmerman, and Nicholas Koechlin. In 1840 Dubufe produced "The Republic" 1851, "The Village Girl," in 1855, "Le Pervers"; and in 1863, "The Birth of Venus." M. Dubufe has for many years occupied the position of knight first, on the other hand, the propriety and usefulness of his creation are to be indisputable. He received the first medal in 1841, and was decorated with the Legion of Honour in 1837.

MUSIC.

The reproduction of Gounod's "Faust" at Her Majesty's Theatre on Saturday last was attended with a renewal of the success of last season. The cast was nearly the same as before. The hero and heroine of the piece were personated by Giuglini and Tietjens; Gassier was Mephistopheles; and Zucchini, Valentine. Bettelheim was not appointed in the character of Siebel, in place of Trebelli, who was (in representative last year. Trebelli was charming, but her successor is equally so—equally graceful, equally handsome, equally graceful as an actress, equally accomplished as a singer. Titiens, as before, realised with singular felicity Goethe's beautiful conception and the character of Margaret; nothing could be more exquisite and pathetic than her picture of youthful innocence, simplicity, passion, and despair. Giuglini's Faust was always graceful and impassioned, and Santley gave a deep and tragic interest to the character of the high-spirited but unhappy Valentine, Margaret's brother. The opera, as produced at this house, has proved as attractive as ever, and will doubtless have the great features of its cast retained.

There was, on the same night, another successful representation at Covent Garden. "Roberto il Diavolo" was performed with all the spectacular beauty for which the house is famous, but which has been pre-eminent, especially in the "tragedie lyrique" of the French Opera-stage, particularly in the works of Meyerbeer. In respect to the acting and singing of the principal parts, we have seen the opera better performed at this house. Mario, in the character of Roberto, fell short of Tamberlik, who, in this part, has no rival on the stage, Belle Lucca, too, though she sang and acted with her accustomed skill, did not shine so brightly as we expected. Her acting was liable to the charge of being theatrical, and her singing wanted that finish, simplicity and smoothness. The beauty of the charming romance, "Quando lasciai la Normandia," was very imperfectly felt and unfortunately laboured fioriture. The part of Bertram was to have been sustained by Herr Schmid, the new basso, who is said to be a first-rate performer, but he was taken ill at the opera on Saturday night, and Aury, who took the part, has not sufficient strength for so arduous a character. Mlle. Marie Marimon and Mlle. Mathilde Wilhelmi, the well-known air, "Robert, toi que l'ame" (we forget the Italian words) with great brilliancy; but this air was, in fact, the only one dramatically speaking, being a nullity. Neri-Baraldi was the Isabella of the performance, a small but very pleasing part, which she performed most agreeably. In regard to the power and completeness of the orchestra and chorus, the opera was up to the standard. The scenery and decorations, and everything belonging to the spectacle, the performance was such, we are convinced, as could not be paralleled in any theatre in Europe.

On Monday Mdlle. Adelina Patti appeared, for the first time this season, at Drury Lane Theatre, in the opera of "Lucia," which she originally became known to the English public. This has always been one of her favourite characters, and she has never sung more captivatingly than ever. Her impersonation of the innocent country girl is a dramatic picture of the most exquisite beauty and truth, and her powers are matured and heightened. Her style of embellishment, at one time considerable in quantity, is now reduced to a minimum, and as befits the character of a finished artist. We need scarcely add that she was rapturously applauded during the whole evening. The part of Edgardo was sung by Gardoni, and that of Enrico by Ronconi, as Raimondo by Tagliafico.

Her Majesty's Theatre was crowded to the doors.

The Philharmonic Society's Concert on Thursday last was honoured with the presence of their Royal Highnesses the Prince and Princess of Wales. The selection of the instrumental music in the programme included two symphonies—Haydn's in G (distinguished by the letter V), one of the most genial and sunny of the composer's earlier works; and Mendelssohn's in A minor, a posthumous work, written expressly for the society, an honour of which they may justly be proud. Mdlle. Adelina Gerhard played the pianoforte solo and a fugue of Bach, and received the enthusiastic applause which never fails to attend her efforts. The vocal music was supplied by Mr. Bettelheim, the favourite contralto of Her Majesty's Theatre; and Herr Meyerbeer, from whose pen we look for the production of great merit and reputation. At the next concert, on the 30th of this month, it is announced that Mr. Benedict will conduct Haydn's

The second "Opera Concert" at the Crystal Palace on Saturday last was more important than that of the previous week. The finesse of the weather, joined to the anticipated attraction of the entertainment, brought together a very numerous company, who seemed greatly to enjoy the pleasures of the place. The concert was chiefly vocal, the singers being Mdlle. Titiens, Mdlle. Parepa, Herr Wachtel, Signor Colonese, and Signor Campbi. Mdlle. Krebs, the young pianist, whose success has become a favourite with the Sydenham public, obtained great applause by her brilliant execution of a fantasia on Donizetti's "Lucrezia Borgia," and (in place of the Polish violinist) played two solos, which were cordially received. The concert began with Mendelssohn's overture to "Ruy Blas," and terminated with "Non più mesta," sung by Mdlle. Georgi, and "La Reine Sa'ba," than being the only orchestral pieces in the programme.

The subscription concert given at the Hanover-square Rooms on Friday, last week, by Mdlle. Georgi was a most elegant and attractive entertainment. We have on more than one occasion had to bear testimony to this young lady's talents and attainments. Endowed by nature with a voice of singular power and flexibility, she has been a diligent student of her art, and has become a singer of the most classical school. She was assisted by her sister, Mdlle. Clementine Georgi, a young singer of talent and merit. The principal performances of the sisters were the rondo finale of the "Cenerentola," "Non più mesta," accompanied by Mdlle. Georgi; and the great duet from "Semiramide," "Giorno d'orror," sung by the sisters; and a ballad, "Leggero invisibile," by Mdlle. Clementine Georgi, and accompanied by the composer; and the same author's valse, "L'Addio," sung by Mdlle. Georgi, with Mr. Lindsay Sloper's accompaniment. The other vocal performers were Mdme. Lemmens-Sherrington and Mr. Santley. Instrumental music of the most instrumental peace were executed by Mdme. Arabella Goddard and Signor Sivori. The concert was given under the most distinguished patronage, and the rooms were crowded to the doors with fashionable company.

THE THEATRES.

PRINCESS'.—On Monday a new comedian was a candidate for the suffrages of a London audience—Mr. Dominick Murray, who appeared as Waverley Green in Mr. Byron's new comedy entitled "The Old Story." Mr. Murray is an actor of the purely natural school, and his performance of the part of a young man, the only son and heir of a father who was impressive, and amusing in those of humour. He shall be glad to meet with him again in a new character.

ST. JAMES'S.—The new drama, by Mr. Dion Boucicault, produced at this theatre, appeals to the public under circumstances somewhat singular. It is accompanied by a statement from the manager against its being considered an "original" play, though sold to him as such by the author. Mr. Boucicault has replied to the charge. Whether all this be a new mode of puffing we are not sure. A condition to decide is the merit of the piece. The fact is, the new piece is similar to the drama of "David Garrick," by Mr. Tom Taylor. The circumstances of the first act having been suggested to Mr. Boucicault by the French drama of "Sullivan." In the subsequent acts nothing of the plot is drawn on other sources, and is embarrassed with a multiplicity of incidents. The merchant's family introduces the popular actor to some odd people, among others, to his own wife, Mrs. Rackless, whom he has left because she was rich and he objected to be a stipendiary husband. The merchant's daughter is bewitched by his apparently absurd behaviour, and soon transfers her affections to a scapegrace adventurer, who costumes himself as a wild Indian and schemes to be nominated by a scientific old lady. The play is called "The Forty Thieves," and the title relates to the characters of the wild and eccentric personæ, who is a hypocritical scoundrel, guilty of robbery and incendiarism. The part was capitally played by Mr. Boucicault. In the epilogue, Mr. Boucicault rightly raises the question as to the class to which his new piece belongs, and acknowledges himself unable to decide whether it be a drama, comedy, or play; adding,

Success depends upon the public voice—
You pays your money, and you takes your choice.

This may serve to indicate the author's own opinion of his production, which, indeed, appears to have been sportively put together from the miscellaneous materials accumulated in his portfolio. Some of the dialogue is clever, and runs in interest as it progresses. It is frequently witty and amusing; and ultimately the curtain fell to considerable applause.

OLYMPIC.—The piece entitled "Sense and Sensation," the production of which at this theatre we announced last week, on Monday, with superb scenery and a powerful cast. It is called a sensation drama, and is dramatised from the story of Mystery. We have Sense with his seven daughters, and Sensation with his seven sons, who meet in society under different circumstances, and pursue their respective objects in life. Sense, as usual, is the most unfortunate; the attitude of a satirist and exposes the prevalence of sensationalism in our everyday life. Sensation, however, triumphs, and overcomes grievances, law refuses, and stage productions. In treating these subjects there is too much sameness in the characters, and too glittering frame in which they are set, somewhat wearies the spectator. A shrewd and clever piece of writing, however, and one well calculated to the form of a morality and probably do not properly understand. Miss Swanborough has taken account for the strange indifference with which the new drama is received.

NEW THEATRE AT GREENWICH.—On Saturday, at a meeting of Kent tradesmen, held at Greenwich, Mr. T. Lewisham, chairman, application was made on behalf of Mr. Sefton Parry, of the Royal Princess's Theatre, for a license for a new erected theatre in the town of Greenwich, contiguous to the railway station. In answer to questions put by the magistrates, Mr. Parry stated that all modern improvements had been observed in the construction of the building, and that ample means of egress existed in the event of fire, the whole of the doors in the interior of the building opening outwards. The presumptuous suggestion of Lord Chamberlain, for the protection of pupils, both for the safety of the scenes and the public, had been adopted. The magistrates, after a short consultation, agreed to grant the license. The theatre will be opened for the public during persons, is announced for opening on the 23rd inst. Greenwich has had possession of a theatre for many years, but it was burnt down, a former theatre was destroyed by fire. The new theatre will be contiguous to the railway station, and will be under the lease to the same lessee, by Mr. Burnand, which, it is expected, will have a considerable run.

NAVAL AND MILITARY INTELLIGENCE.

WAR OFFICE.

5th Dragoon Guards: Capt. G. S. F. Kennedy to be Major, Lieut. W. Chaloner to be Captain, Cornet A. J. Fuller to be Lieutenant; Cornet W. D. Thompson to be Cornet.

1st Dragoons: Lieut. H. Hall to be Captain, Cornet J. Hall to be Lieutenant.

2nd Dragoons: Lieut. Col. Hon. C. Bruce, C.B., from 7th Hussars, to be Lieut.-Colonel; Capt. H. Hamilton to be Major, Lieut. W. Le Fevre to be Lieutenant; Cornet W. Le Fevre to be Lieutenant; Cornet W. Hamilton to be Cornet.

3rd Dragoons: Lieut. Col. Hon. C. Bruce, from 2nd Dragoons, to be Lieut.-Colonel; Capt. H. Hamilton to be Major, Lieut. W. Le Fevre to be Lieutenant; Cornet W. Le Fevre to be Lieutenant; Cornet W. Hamilton to be Cornet.

7th Hussars: Lieut. Col. Hon. C. Bruce, from 2nd Dragoons, to be Lieut.-Colonel; Capt. H. Hamilton to be Major, Lieut. W. Le Fevre to be Lieutenant; Cornet W. Le Fevre to be Lieutenant; Cornet W. Hamilton to be Cornet.

8th Hussars: Lieut. Col. Hon. C. Bruce, from 2nd Dragoons, to be Lieut.-Colonel; Capt. H. Hamilton to be Major, Lieut. W. Le Fevre to be Lieutenant; Cornet W. Le Fevre to be Lieutenant; Cornet W. Hamilton to be Cornet.

9th Lancers: Lieut. Col. Hon. C. Bruce, from 2nd Dragoons, to be Lieut.-Colonel; Capt. H. Hamilton to be Major, Lieut. W. Le Fevre to be Lieutenant; Cornet W. Le Fevre to be Lieutenant; Cornet W. Hamilton to be Cornet.

10th Hussars: Lieut. Col. Hon. C. Bruce, from 2nd Dragoons, to be Lieut.-Colonel; Capt. H. Hamilton to be Major, Lieut. W. Le Fevre to be Lieutenant; Cornet W. Le Fevre to be Lieutenant; Cornet W. Hamilton to be Cornet.

11th Hussars: Lieut. Col. Hon. C. Bruce, from 2nd Dragoons, to be Lieut.-Colonel; Capt. H. Hamilton to be Major, Lieut. W. Le Fevre to be Lieutenant; Cornet W. Le Fevre to be Lieutenant; Cornet W. Hamilton to be Cornet.

12th Lancers: Lieut. Col. Hon. C. Bruce, from 2nd Dragoons, to be Lieut.-Colonel; Capt. H. Hamilton to be Major, Lieut. W. Le Fevre to be Lieutenant; Cornet W. Le Fevre to be Lieutenant; Cornet W. Hamilton to be Cornet.

13th Hussars: Lieut. Col. Hon. C. Bruce, from 2nd Dragoons, to be Lieut.-Colonel; Capt. H. Hamilton to be Major, Lieut. W. Le Fevre to be Lieutenant; Cornet W. Le Fevre to be Lieutenant; Cornet W. Hamilton to be Cornet.

14th Hussars: Lieut. Col. Hon. C. Bruce, from 2nd Dragoons, to be Lieut.-Colonel; Capt. H. Hamilton to be Major, Lieut. W. Le Fevre to be Lieutenant; Cornet W. Le Fevre to be Lieutenant; Cornet W. Hamilton to be Cornet.

15th Hussars: Lieut. Col. Hon. C. Bruce, from 2nd Dragoons, to be Lieut.-Colonel; Capt. H. Hamilton to be Major, Lieut. W. Le Fevre to be Lieutenant; Cornet W. Le Fevre to be Lieutenant; Cornet W. Hamilton to be Cornet.

16th Hussars: Lieut. Col. Hon. C. Bruce, from 2nd Dragoons, to be Lieut.-Colonel; Capt. H. Hamilton to be Major, Lieut. W. Le Fevre to be Lieutenant; Cornet W. Le Fevre to be Lieutenant; Cornet W. Hamilton to be Cornet.

17th Hussars: Lieut. Col. Hon. C. Bruce, from 2nd Dragoons, to be Lieut.-Colonel; Capt. H. Hamilton to be Major, Lieut. W. Le Fevre to be Lieutenant; Cornet W. Le Fevre to be Lieutenant; Cornet W. Hamilton to be Cornet.

18th Hussars: Lieut. Col. Hon. C. Bruce, from 2nd Dragoons, to be Lieut.-Colonel; Capt. H. Hamilton to be Major, Lieut. W. Le Fevre to be Lieutenant; Cornet W. Le Fevre to be Lieutenant; Cornet W. Hamilton to be Cornet.

19th Hussars: Lieut. Col. Hon. C. Bruce, from 2nd Dragoons, to be Lieut.-Colonel; Capt. H. Hamilton to be Major, Lieut. W. Le Fevre to be Lieutenant; Cornet W. Le Fevre to be Lieutenant; Cornet W. Hamilton to be Cornet.

20th Hussars: Lieut. Col. Hon. C. Bruce, from 2nd Dragoons, to be Lieut.-Colonel; Capt. H. Hamilton to be Major, Lieut. W. Le Fevre to be Lieutenant; Cornet W. Le Fevre to be Lieutenant; Cornet W. Hamilton to be Cornet.

21st Hussars: Lieut. Col. Hon. C. Bruce, from 2nd Dragoons, to be Lieut.-Colonel; Capt. H. Hamilton to be Major, Lieut. W. Le Fevre to be Lieutenant; Cornet W. Le Fevre to be Lieutenant; Cornet W. Hamilton to be Cornet.

22nd Hussars: Lieut. Col. Hon. C. Bruce, from 2nd Dragoons, to be Lieut.-Colonel; Capt. H. Hamilton to be Major, Lieut. W. Le Fevre to be Lieutenant; Cornet W. Le Fevre to be Lieutenant; Cornet W. Hamilton to be Cornet.

23rd Hussars: Lieut. Col. Hon. C. Bruce, from 2nd Dragoons, to be Lieut.-Colonel; Capt. H. Hamilton to be Major, Lieut. W. Le Fevre to be Lieutenant; Cornet W. Le Fevre to be Lieutenant; Cornet W. Hamilton to be Cornet.

24th Hussars: Lieut. Col. Hon. C. Bruce, from 2nd Dragoons, to be Lieut.-Colonel; Capt. H. Hamilton to be Major, Lieut. W. Le Fevre to be Lieutenant; Cornet W. Le Fevre to be Lieutenant; Cornet W. Hamilton to be Cornet.

25th Hussars: Lieut. Col. Hon. C. Bruce, from 2nd Dragoons, to be Lieut.-Colonel; Capt. H. Hamilton to be Major, Lieut. W. Le Fevre to be Lieutenant; Cornet W. Le Fevre to be Lieutenant; Cornet W. Hamilton to be Cornet.

26th Hussars: Lieut. Col. Hon. C. Bruce, from 2nd Dragoons, to be Lieut.-Colonel; Capt. H. Hamilton to be Major, Lieut. W. Le Fevre to be Lieutenant; Cornet W. Le Fevre to be Lieutenant; Cornet W. Hamilton to be Cornet.

27th Hussars: Lieut. Col. Hon. C. Bruce, from 2nd Dragoons, to be Lieut.-Colonel; Capt. H. Hamilton to be Major, Lieut. W. Le Fevre to be Lieutenant; Cornet W. Le Fevre to be Lieutenant; Cornet W. Hamilton to be Cornet.

28th Hussars: Lieut. Col. Hon. C. Bruce, from 2nd Dragoons, to be Lieut.-Colonel; Capt. H. Hamilton to be Major, Lieut. W. Le Fevre to be Lieutenant; Cornet W. Le Fevre to be Lieutenant; Cornet W. Hamilton to be Cornet.

29th Hussars: Lieut. Col. Hon. C. Bruce, from 2nd Dragoons, to be Lieut.-Colonel; Capt. H. Hamilton to be Major, Lieut. W. Le Fevre to be Lieutenant; Cornet W. Le Fevre to be Lieutenant; Cornet W. Hamilton to be Cornet.

30th Hussars: Lieut. Col. Hon. C. Bruce, from 2nd Dragoons, to be Lieut.-Colonel; Capt. H. Hamilton to be Major, Lieut. W. Le Fevre to be Lieutenant; Cornet W. Le Fevre to be Lieutenant; Cornet W. Hamilton to be Cornet.

31st Hussars: Lieut. Col. Hon. C. Bruce, from 2nd Dragoons, to be Lieut.-Colonel; Capt. H. Hamilton to be Major, Lieut. W. Le Fevre to be Lieutenant; Cornet W. Le Fevre to be Lieutenant; Cornet W. Hamilton to be Cornet.

32nd Hussars: Lieut. Col. Hon. C. Bruce, from 2nd Dragoons, to be Lieut.-Colonel; Capt. H. Hamilton to be Major, Lieut. W. Le Fevre to be Lieutenant; Cornet W. Le Fevre to be Lieutenant; Cornet W. Hamilton to be Cornet.

33rd Hussars: Lieut. Col. Hon. C. Bruce, from 2nd Dragoons, to be Lieut.-Colonel; Capt. H. Hamilton to be Major, Lieut. W. Le Fevre to be Lieutenant; Cornet W. Le Fevre to be Lieutenant; Cornet W. Hamilton to be Cornet.

34th Hussars: Lieut. Col. Hon. C. Bruce, from 2nd Dragoons, to be Lieut.-Colonel; Capt. H. Hamilton to be Major, Lieut. W. Le Fevre to be Lieutenant; Cornet W. Le Fevre to be Lieutenant; Cornet W. Hamilton to be Cornet.

35th Hussars: Lieut. Col. Hon. C. Bruce, from 2nd Dragoons, to be Lieut.-Colonel; Capt. H. Hamilton to be Major, Lieut. W. Le Fevre to be Lieutenant; Cornet W. Le Fevre to be Lieutenant; Cornet W. Hamilton to be Cornet.

36th Hussars: Lieut. Col. Hon. C. Bruce, from 2nd Dragoons, to be Lieut.-Colonel; Capt. H. Hamilton to be Major, Lieut. W. Le Fevre to be Lieutenant; Cornet W. Le Fevre to be Lieutenant; Cornet W. Hamilton to be Cornet.

37th Hussars: Lieut. Col. Hon. C. Bruce, from 2nd Dragoons, to be Lieut.-Colonel; Capt. H. Hamilton to be Major, Lieut. W. Le Fevre to be Lieutenant; Cornet W. Le Fevre to be Lieutenant; Cornet W. Hamilton to be Cornet.

38th Hussars: Lieut. Col. Hon. C. Bruce, from 2nd Dragoons, to be Lieut.-Colonel; Capt. H. Hamilton to be Major, Lieut. W. Le Fevre to be Lieutenant; Cornet W. Le Fevre to be Lieutenant; Cornet W. Hamilton to be Cornet.

39th Hussars: Lieut. Col. Hon. C. Bruce, from 2nd Dragoons, to be Lieut.-Colonel; Capt. H. Hamilton to be Major, Lieut. W. Le Fevre to be Lieutenant; Cornet W. Le Fevre to be Lieutenant; Cornet W. Hamilton to be Cornet.

40th Hussars: Lieut. Col. Hon. C. Bruce, from 2nd Dragoons, to be Lieut.-Colonel; Capt. H. Hamilton to be Major, Lieut. W. Le Fevre to be Lieutenant; Cornet W. Le Fevre to be Lieutenant; Cornet W. Hamilton to be Cornet.

41st Hussars: Lieut. Col. Hon. C. Bruce, from 2nd Dragoons, to be Lieut.-Colonel; Capt. H. Hamilton to be Major, Lieut. W. Le Fevre to be Lieutenant; Cornet W. Le Fevre to be Lieutenant; Cornet W. Hamilton to be Cornet.

42nd Hussars: Lieut. Col. Hon. C. Bruce, from 2nd Dragoons, to be Lieut.-Colonel; Capt. H. Hamilton to be Major, Lieut. W. Le Fevre to be Lieutenant; Cornet W. Le Fevre to be Lieutenant; Cornet W. Hamilton to be Cornet.

43rd Hussars: Lieut. Col. Hon. C. Bruce, from 2nd Dragoons, to be Lieut.-Colonel; Capt. H. Hamilton to be Major, Lieut. W. Le Fevre to be Lieutenant; Cornet W. Le Fevre to be Lieutenant; Cornet W. Hamilton to be Cornet.

44th Hussars: Lieut. Col. Hon. C. Bruce, from 2nd Dragoons, to be Lieut.-Colonel; Capt. H. Hamilton to be Major, Lieut. W. Le Fevre to be Lieutenant; Cornet W. Le Fevre to be Lieutenant; Cornet W. Hamilton to be Cornet.

45th Hussars: Lieut. Col. Hon. C. Bruce, from 2nd Dragoons, to be Lieut.-Colonel; Capt. H. Hamilton to be Major, Lieut. W. Le Fevre to be Lieutenant; Cornet W. Le Fevre to be Lieutenant; Cornet W. Hamilton to be Cornet.

46th Hussars: Lieut. Col. Hon. C. Bruce, from 2nd Dragoons, to be Lieut.-Colonel; Capt. H. Hamilton to be Major, Lieut. W. Le Fevre to be Lieutenant; Cornet W. Le Fevre to be Lieutenant; Cornet W. Hamilton to be Cornet.

47th Hussars: Lieut. Col. Hon. C. Bruce, from 2nd Dragoons, to be Lieut.-Colonel; Capt. H. Hamilton to be Major, Lieut. W. Le Fevre to be Lieutenant; Cornet W. Le Fevre to be Lieutenant; Cornet W. Hamilton to be Cornet.

48th Hussars: Lieut. Col. Hon. C. Bruce, from 2nd Dragoons, to be Lieut.-Colonel; Capt. H. Hamilton to be Major, Lieut. W. Le Fevre to be Lieutenant; Cornet W. Le Fevre to be Lieutenant; Cornet W. Hamilton to be Cornet.

49th Hussars: Lieut. Col. Hon. C. Bruce, from 2nd Dragoons, to be Lieut.-Colonel; Capt. H. Hamilton to be Major, Lieut. W. Le Fevre to be Lieutenant; Cornet W. Le Fevre to be Lieutenant; Cornet W. Hamilton to be Cornet.

50th Hussars: Lieut. Col. Hon. C. Bruce, from 2nd Dragoons, to be Lieut.-Colonel; Capt. H. Hamilton to be Major, Lieut. W. Le Fevre to be Lieutenant; Cornet W. Le Fevre to be Lieutenant; Cornet W. Hamilton to be Cornet.

51st Hussars: Lieut. Col. Hon. C. Bruce, from 2nd Dragoons, to be Lieut.-Colonel; Capt. H. Hamilton to be Major, Lieut. W. Le Fevre to be Lieutenant; Cornet W. Le Fevre to be Lieutenant; Cornet W. Hamilton to be Cornet.

52nd Hussars: Lieut. Col. Hon. C. Bruce, from 2nd Dragoons, to be Lieut.-Colonel; Capt. H. Hamilton to be Major, Lieut. W. Le Fevre to be Lieutenant; Cornet W. Le Fevre to be Lieutenant; Cornet W. Hamilton to be Cornet.

53rd Hussars: Lieut. Col. Hon. C. Bruce, from 2nd Dragoons, to be Lieut.-Colonel; Capt. H. Hamilton to be Major, Lieut. W. Le Fevre to be Lieutenant; Cornet W. Le Fevre to be Lieutenant; Cornet W. Hamilton to be Cornet.

54th Hussars: Lieut. Col. Hon. C. Bruce, from 2nd Dragoons, to be Lieut.-Colonel; Capt. H. Hamilton to be Major, Lieut. W. Le Fevre to be Lieutenant; Cornet W. Le Fevre to be Lieutenant; Cornet W. Hamilton to be Cornet.

55th Hussars: Lieut. Col. Hon. C. Bruce, from 2nd Dragoons, to be Lieut.-Colonel; Capt. H. Hamilton to be Major, Lieut. W. Le Fevre to be Lieutenant; Cornet W. Le Fevre to be Lieutenant; Cornet W. Hamilton to be Cornet.

56th Hussars: Lieut. Col. Hon. C. Bruce, from 2nd Dragoons, to be Lieut.-Colonel; Capt. H. Hamilton to be Major, Lieut. W. Le Fevre to be Lieutenant; Cornet W. Le Fevre to be Lieutenant; Cornet W. Hamilton to be Cornet.

57th Hussars: Lieut. Col. Hon. C. Bruce, from 2nd Dragoons, to be Lieut.-Colonel; Capt. H. Hamilton to be Major, Lieut. W. Le Fevre to be Lieutenant; Cornet W. Le Fevre to be Lieutenant; Cornet W. Hamilton to be Cornet.

58th Hussars: Lieut. Col. Hon. C. Bruce, from 2nd Dragoons, to be Lieut.-Colonel; Capt. H. Hamilton to be Major, Lieut. W. Le Fevre to be Lieutenant; Cornet W. Le Fevre to be Lieutenant; Cornet W. Hamilton to be Cornet.

59th Hussars: Lieut. Col. Hon. C. Bruce, from 2nd Dragoons, to be Lieut.-Colonel; Capt. H. Hamilton to be Major, Lieut. W. Le Fevre to be Lieutenant; Cornet W. Le Fevre to be Lieutenant; Cornet W. Hamilton to be Cornet.

60th Hussars: Lieut. Col. Hon. C. Bruce, from 2nd Dragoons, to be Lieut.-Colonel; Capt. H. Hamilton to be Major, Lieut. W. Le Fevre to be Lieutenant; Cornet W. Le Fevre to be Lieutenant; Cornet W. Hamilton to be Cornet.

61st Hussars: Lieut. Col. Hon. C. Bruce, from 2nd Dragoons, to be Lieut.-Colonel; Capt. H. Hamilton to be Major, Lieut. W. Le Fevre to be Lieutenant; Cornet W. Le Fevre to be Lieutenant; Cornet W. Hamilton to be Cornet.

62nd Hussars: Lieut. Col. Hon. C. Bruce, from 2nd Dragoons, to be Lieut.-Colonel; Capt. H. Hamilton to be Major, Lieut. W. Le Fevre to be Lieutenant; Cornet W. Le Fevre to be Lieutenant; Cornet W. Hamilton to be Cornet.

63rd Hussars: Lieut. Col. Hon. C. Bruce, from 2nd Dragoons, to be Lieut.-Colonel; Capt. H. Hamilton to be Major, Lieut. W. Le Fevre to be Lieutenant; Cornet W. Le Fevre to be Lieutenant; Cornet W. Hamilton to be Cornet.

64th Hussars: Lieut. Col. Hon. C. Bruce, from 2nd Dragoons, to be Lieut.-Colonel; Capt. H. Hamilton to be Major, Lieut. W. Le Fevre to be Lieutenant; Cornet W. Le Fevre to be Lieutenant; Cornet W. Hamilton to be Cornet.

65th Hussars: Lieut. Col. Hon. C. Bruce, from 2nd Dragoons, to be Lieut.-Colonel; Capt. H. Hamilton to be Major, Lieut. W. Le Fevre to be Lieutenant; Cornet W. Le Fevre to be Lieutenant; Cornet W. Hamilton to be Cornet.

66th Hussars: Lieut. Col. Hon. C. Bruce, from 2nd Dragoons, to be Lieut.-Colonel; Capt. H. Hamilton to be Major, Lieut. W. Le Fevre to be Lieutenant; Cornet W. Le Fevre to be Lieutenant; Cornet W. Hamilton to be Cornet.

67th Hussars: Lieut. Col. Hon. C. Bruce, from 2nd Dragoons, to be Lieut.-Colonel; Capt. H. Hamilton to be Major, Lieut. W. Le Fevre to be Lieutenant; Cornet W. Le Fevre to be Lieutenant; Cornet W. Hamilton to be Cornet.

68th Hussars: Lieut. Col. Hon. C. Bruce, from 2nd Dragoons, to be Lieut.-Colonel; Capt. H. Hamilton to be Major, Lieut. W. Le Fevre to be Lieutenant; Cornet W. Le Fevre to be Lieutenant; Cornet W. Hamilton to be Cornet.

69th Hussars: Lieut. Col. Hon. C. Bruce, from 2nd Dragoons, to be Lieut.-Colonel; Capt. H. Hamilton to be Major, Lieut. W. Le Fevre to be Lieutenant; Cornet W. Le Fevre to be Lieutenant; Cornet W. Hamilton to be Cornet.

70th Hussars: Lieut. Col. Hon. C. Bruce, from 2nd Dragoons, to be Lieut.-Colonel; Capt. H. Hamilton to be Major, Lieut. W. Le Fevre to be Lieutenant; Cornet W. Le Fevre to be Lieutenant; Cornet W. Hamilton to be Cornet.

71st Hussars: Lieut. Col. Hon. C. Bruce, from 2nd Dragoons, to be Lieut.-Colonel; Capt. H. Hamilton to be Major, Lieut. W. Le Fevre to be Lieutenant; Cornet W. Le Fevre to be Lieutenant; Cornet W. Hamilton to be Cornet.

72nd Hussars: Lieut. Col. Hon. C. Bruce, from 2nd Dragoons, to be Lieut.-Colonel; Capt. H. Hamilton to be Major, Lieut. W. Le Fevre to be Lieutenant; Cornet W. Le Fevre to be Lieutenant; Cornet W. Hamilton to be Cornet.

73rd Hussars: Lieut. Col. Hon. C. Bruce, from 2nd Dragoons, to be Lieut.-Colonel; Capt. H. Hamilton to be Major, Lieut. W. Le Fevre to be Lieutenant; Cornet W. Le Fevre to be Lieutenant; Cornet W. Hamilton to be Cornet.

74th Hussars: Lieut. Col. Hon. C. Bruce, from 2nd Dragoons, to be Lieut.-Colonel; Capt. H. Hamilton to be Major, Lieut. W. Le Fevre to be Lieutenant; Cornet W. Le Fevre to be Lieutenant; Cornet W. Hamilton to be Cornet.

75th Hussars: Lieut. Col. Hon. C. Bruce, from 2nd Dragoons, to be Lieut.-Colonel; Capt. H. Hamilton to be Major, Lieut. W. Le Fevre to be Lieutenant; Cornet W. Le Fevre to be Lieutenant; Cornet W. Hamilton to be Cornet.

76th Hussars: Lieut. Col. Hon. C. Bruce, from 2nd Dragoons, to be Lieut.-Colonel; Capt. H. Hamilton to be Major, Lieut. W. Le Fevre to be Lieutenant; Cornet W. Le Fevre to be Lieutenant; Cornet W. Hamilton to be Cornet.

77th Hussars: Lieut. Col. Hon. C. Bruce, from 2nd Dragoons, to be Lieut.-Colonel; Capt. H. Hamilton to be Major, Lieut. W. Le Fevre to be Lieutenant; Cornet W. Le Fevre to be Lieutenant; Cornet W. Hamilton to be Cornet.

78th Hussars: Lieut. Col. Hon. C. Bruce, from 2nd Dragoons, to be Lieut.-Colonel; Capt. H. Hamilton to be Major, Lieut. W. Le Fevre to be Lieutenant; Cornet W. Le Fevre to be Lieutenant; Cornet W. Hamilton to be Cornet.

79th Hussars: Lieut. Col. Hon. C. Bruce, from 2nd Dragoons, to be Lieut.-Colonel; Capt. H. Hamilton to be Major, Lieut. W. Le Fevre to be Lieutenant; Cornet W. Le Fevre to be Lieutenant; Cornet W. Hamilton to be Cornet.

80th Hussars: Lieut. Col. Hon. C. Bruce, from 2nd Dragoons, to be Lieut.-Colonel; Capt. H. Hamilton to be Major, Lieut. W. Le Fevre to be Lieutenant; Cornet W. Le Fevre to be Lieutenant; Cornet W. Hamilton to be Cornet.

81st Hussars: Lieut. Col. Hon. C. Bruce, from 2nd Dragoons, to be Lieut.-Colonel; Capt. H. Hamilton to be Major, Lieut. W. Le Fevre to be Lieutenant; Cornet W. Le Fevre to be Lieutenant; Cornet W. Hamilton to be Cornet.

82nd Hussars: Lieut. Col. Hon. C. Bruce, from 2nd Dragoons, to be Lieut.-Colonel; Capt. H. Hamilton to be Major, Lieut. W. Le Fevre to be Lieutenant; Cornet W. Le Fevre to be Lieutenant; Cornet W. Hamilton to be Cornet.

83rd Hussars: Lieut. Col. Hon. C. Bruce, from 2nd Dragoons, to be Lieut.-Colonel; Capt. H. Hamilton to be Major, Lieut. W. Le Fevre to be Lieutenant; Cornet W. Le Fevre to be Lieutenant; Cornet W. Hamilton to be Cornet.

84th Hussars: Lieut. Col. Hon. C. Bruce, from 2nd Dragoons, to be Lieut.-Colonel; Capt. H. Hamilton to be Major, Lieut. W. Le Fevre to be Lieutenant; Cornet W. Le Fevre to be Lieutenant; Cornet W. Hamilton to be Cornet.

85th Hussars: Lieut. Col. Hon. C. Bruce, from 2nd Dragoons, to be Lieut.-Colonel; Capt. H. Hamilton to be Major, Lieut. W. Le Fevre to be Lieutenant; Cornet W. Le Fevre to be Lieutenant; Cornet W. Hamilton to be Cornet.

86th Hussars: Lieut. Col. Hon. C. Bruce, from 2nd Dragoons, to be Lieut.-Colonel; Capt. H. Hamilton to be Major, Lieut. W. Le Fevre to be Lieutenant; Cornet W. Le Fevre to be Lieutenant; Cornet W. Hamilton to be Cornet.

87th Hussars: Lieut. Col. Hon. C. Bruce, from 2nd Dragoons, to be Lieut.-Colonel; Capt. H. Hamilton to be Major, Lieut. W. Le Fevre to be Lieutenant; Cornet W. Le Fevre to be Lieutenant; Cornet W. Hamilton to be Cornet.

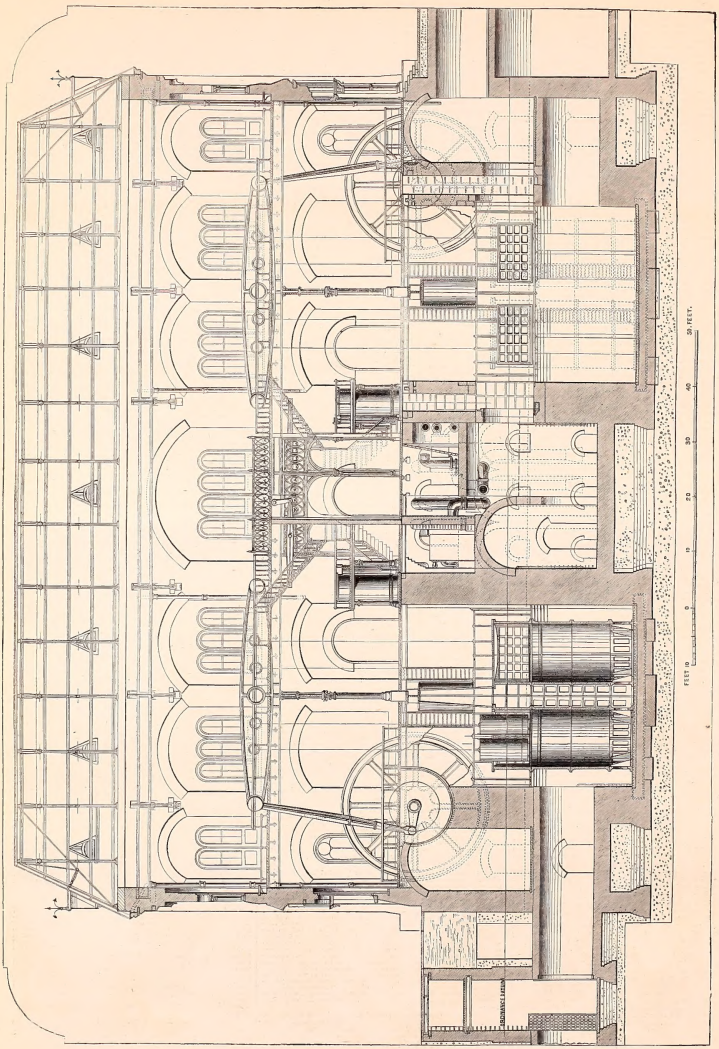
88th Hussars: Lieut. Col. Hon. C. Bruce, from 2nd Dragoons, to be Lieut.-Colonel; Capt. H. Hamilton to be Major, Lieut. W. Le Fevre to be Lieutenant; Cornet W. Le Fevre to be Lieutenant; Cornet W. Hamilton to be Cornet.

89th Hussars: Lieut. Col. Hon. C. Bruce, from 2nd Dragoons, to be Lieut.-Colonel; Capt. H. Hamilton to be Major, Lieut. W. Le Fevre to be Lieutenant; Cornet W. Le Fevre to be Lieutenant; Cornet W. Hamilton to be Cornet.

90th Hussars: Lieut. Col. Hon. C. Bruce, from 2nd Dragoons, to be Lieut.-Colonel; Capt. H. Hamilton to be Major, Lieut. W. Le Fevre to be Lieutenant; Cornet W. Le Fevre to be Lieutenant; Cornet W. Hamilton to be Cornet.

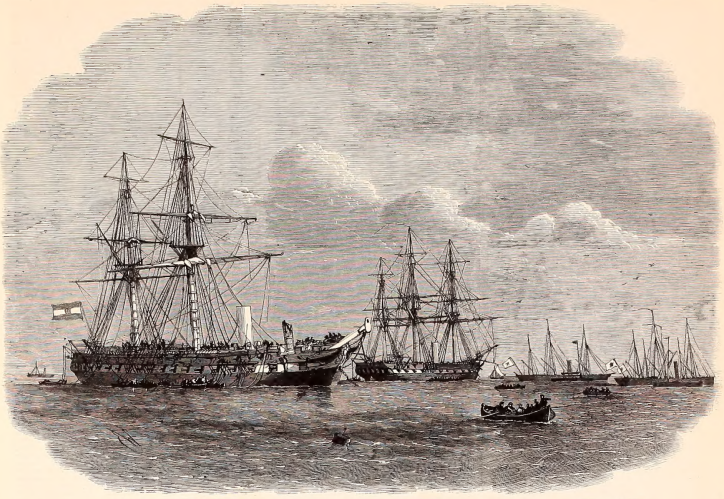
91st Hussars: Lieut. Col. Hon. C. Bruce, from 2nd Dragoons, to be Lieut.-Colonel; Capt. H. Hamilton to be Major, Lieut. W. Le Fevre to be Lieutenant; Cornet W. Le Fevre to be Lieutenant; Cornet W. Hamilton to be Cornet.

92nd Hussars: Lieut. Col. Hon. C. Bruce, from 2nd Dragoons, to be Lieut.-Colonel; Capt. H. Hamilton to be Major, Lieut. W. Le Fevre to be Lieutenant; Cornet W. Le Fevre to be Lieutenant; Cornet W. Hamilton to be Cornet.



93rd Hussars: Lieut. Col. Hon. C. Bruce, from 2nd Dragoons, to be Lieut.-Colonel; Capt. H. Hamilton to be Major, Lieut. W. Le Fevre to be Lieutenant; Cornet W. Le Fevre to be Lieutenant; Cornet W. Hamilton to be Cornet.

94th Hussars: Lieut. Col. Hon. C. Bruce, from 2nd Dragoons, to be Lieut.-Colonel; Capt. H. Hamilton to be Major, Lieut. W. Le Fevre to be Lieutenant; Cornet W. Le Fevre to be Lieutenant; Cornet W. Hamilton to be Cornet.



95th Hussars: Lieut. Col. Hon. C. Bruce, from 2nd Dragoons, to be Lieut.-Colonel; Capt. H. Hamilton to be Major, Lieut. W. Le Fevre to be Lieutenant; Cornet W. Le Fevre to be Lieutenant; Cornet W. Hamilton to be Cornet.

96th Hussars: Lieut. Col. Hon. C. Bruce, from 2nd Dragoons, to be Lieut.-Colonel; Capt. H. Hamilton to be Major, Lieut. W. Le Fevre to be Lieutenant; Cornet W. Le Fevre to be Lieutenant; Cornet W. Hamilton to be Cornet.

97th Hussars:

THE METROPOLITAN MAIN-DRAINAGE WORKS: MACHINERY FOR LIFTING THE SEWAGE.—SEE PAGE 521.

THE WAR IN DENMARK: THE AUSTRO-PRUSSIAN SQUADRON AT CUXHAVEN AFTER ITS DEFEAT OFF HELIGOLAND.—SEE PAGE 493.

FETE GIVEN BY THE PRINCE IMPERIAL TO POOR CHILDREN OF PARIS IN THE TUILERIES GARDENS.—SEE NEXT PAGE.

THE CHILDREN'S FETE GIVEN BY THE PRINCE IMPERIAL IN THE TUILERIES GARDENS.

ONE of our illustrations, from a sketch taken by our Paris Artist in the Tuileries Gardens on Sunday week, represents the fête which was given that day by the little Prince Imperial to the poor children of Paris. This entertainment was nominally connected with the Children's Lean Society, of which his Imperial Highness is the President. The officials of the Emperor's household had caused preparations to be made for the gratification of the young guests as visitors, both old and young. A long line of tables, spread with white damask, with store of cakes and wine upon them, was placed on the broad terrace, parallel to the Rue de Rivoli, from the Palace of the Tuileries to the Place de la Concorde. They were served by waiters in liveries in the Imperial livery, with the addition of a few soldiers. There military bands enlivened the company with music, and set the children dancing with the animation and enjoyment which are natural to their age. The Prince Imperial was present throughout, as an exhibition of lighter performances, merry-go-rounds, puppetshows, Punch and Judy (in the French version of Polichinelle), and the usual amusements of the fair. The presence of Punch, which is seen beneath the stately trees of the palace gardens is portrayed in our Engraving. The moment when the Imperial family visited the gardens was not marked by any particular demonstration. The Emperor, the Empress, and Princess Clotilde were present, walking quietly through the crowd. The little Prince remained there for nearly two hours. The gardens were, of course, full of people, though a charge of 2s. was imposed for their admission by ticket, and none were allowed to enter without having one children's fête in Paris. The success obtained by this means must have brought a considerable augmentation to the funds of the Children's Lean Society, for the receipts for the tickets had been bought up wholesale by good-natured persons, who distributed them among the poor.

AUSTRALIA.

(From our own Correspondent.)

VICTORIA.

MELBOURNE, March 26.—The topic of a month's seldom offers much scope for novelty to a correspondent writing from a colony which, though it has made a very long step indeed since the first days of the earliest youth, is rather looked upon by us in a motherly and somewhat lofty light as unquestionably, but a bit of a fledgling. We wade in the great gold times such a harlequin jump into existence, and were, for at least three or four years, so much the centre of Tom Tiddler's ground, that the announcement that we are now socially, politically, and financially "as well as can be expected," and that each of us pays for the services he receives from the State about a half as much as his brother at home, sounds decidedly flat.

The session of the Legislative Council has been lengthy, like most official papers in great countries as well as small, a year in arrear; but his report on the cost of the Civil List will not be ready for a week. The interesting twelve months we lost half a million of particular revenue by our tardiness, which we have made up again by the increase of economy and old balances. The land is now getting unlocked again, but a new Land Act is under review of the Council. The present Government have partially carried their bill, which is much the same as that of their predecessors and antagonists, but more workable in its details. It has passed the Assembly by a large majority—34 to 20—both sides presenting the most anomalous combination—Irish and Scotch, Orange and Green, Protestant and Romish; old foes for once side by side with old foes, and old friends placed at the end of a session at each other's throats. Best of all, the Pylades and Orestes—O Shaussey and Duffy—the destined two who were to represent Victoria at the Exhibition, the commonplace principles, like the son of Christabel and his friend, and the cold water from the fountain basin. All the Irish and Scotch members stupid enough; but as there is no smoke without fire, so, under the cloud of a wrangle, there is always a quarrelling, the great question of cash versus numbers is as steadily facing for and ever it was in Rome under the Gracchi.

We have had a fine harvest, and the farmers are certainly not thriving; but for this they have chiefly to thank their insane persistence in growing wheat on land which the success of other crops in the grazing feature is the marked increase in the introduction of "small industries." Victorian meat, put up in tins, is now quoted against basalt, and Victorian claimants, which, though somewhat variable, is for as broad an average as can be given, are not to be beaten by anything; but we have been long in finding it out. If things go on, however, at the present pace, we shall soon be able to supply the requirement our gold and wool with wine, silk, olives, tobacco, &c., in every respectable quantity. All that we want is labour; and there is some talk, but no much in Victoria itself to the point, of a new Act, what Australian gold may do towards bringing in a portion of that tide of Coolie labour which has been so long flowing to California.

Business here is a good deal more interlaced with pleasure than in bleaker London. In fact, the fêtes fill nearly as large a portion of the boats are. The saints are pretty regularly respected, so far as respect consists in keeping holiday, but the Queen's Birthday is considered a more eager to show its loyalty by drinking her health and getting up a picnic on every anniversary which could be remotely connected even with the Royal house. Whether from fuller purses or the climate, which makes little children always ready for a holiday, I cannot say, we take our pleasure rather less sadly than our compatriots, and, on the whole, about as orderly. It is true that, for some miles round Melbourne, all is dangerous to throw stones at, from the kangaroo to the turf, which is paved with broken bottles; but the days of hard drinking and spreeing are pretty well over. I do not say that much much the ways we had in the older land. As the Census shows, three females to two males, Victorians are not likely to drink much the last ten years. Ten years make a great change when men are pitchforked single people into a society of a few males and a few long together in masses; and it is therefore intelligible enough that society out here has not yet got into the way of the Continuous the Establishment Church and the sacramentary. The working classes are not much given to drink, and indeed prefer their recreations than those of their order at home; but their tastes are more brought out in the sunlight by the want of the counterbalancing influence of the upper ten thousand. The northern colonies, for instance, is not very liable to the charge of indifference to that noble game; but the Victorians, now of 140,000 souls, and growing, have not have gone mad about the survival of a dozen cricketers, as Melbourne has done. There is a feeling in the air, except that, instead of bringing out Mozely, King, Heenan, and Sayers next year, which, I hastily hope, they will not, but rather Eton, Harrow, and the other branches of muscular schooling we are keeping a very good place. Certainly, little is done in cricketing matters by colonial people as individuals amongst us and the possession of a land-locked bay as broad as the English Channel; but there is a strong feeling in substitution among the rising generation. The Yarra, at Melbourne, is much like the Lower Lake at Windermere, except that, instead of flowing through fields bright with daisies and buttercups, it has on each deep and quiet stream between billsides skirted with vines and dotted with villas and farms, a clear river-road for pleasure-boats above the town; and this is thoroughly used. We have not yet aspired to race an eight-oar, but there is a regular club for it, and very pretty play, considering. The river on a fine day, and Saturday afternoon without fine or not, is studded with boats of every description, and not a few quite worthy of Searle.

One of the most remarkable signs that we must lack is a taste for drawing. A sketcher is a being unknown. When a good painting comes out, makes no commotion. Nobody is at all aware that he has to do with its merits. A year or two ago an art-union was started. At the last meeting its funds were £36, and, though there is a spasmodic attempt at revival, it is unlikely to stand. We have, however, two good landscape painters, who would hold their ground in Europe but both foreigners—M. Chevalier and E. von Guerrard, a pupil of the Dusseldorf school. It is right to say that both these gentlemen have confined themselves satisfied with the encouragement they receive here. They both paint in the thoroughly hard, Continental style; but their subjects are taken by no out of place, as with yours. Tenderness of colouring is chiefly found here in the varying tints of the magnificent atmosphere. I will beneath the sky is stiff, uniform, and angular; our mountains, from their trap formation, being moulded after the stiffest mathematical types, and our olive-green gum-trees, the very widows of the forest, perpetually in mourning. A real artist, however, can make much even of these, and this year our twins have come out splendidly. Chevalier has produced some half-dozen noble specimens of the great mountain of Gipp's Land, that unknown region which, though little known as a human habitation, is the very finest thing about till the summer, when the cry of "Gold, gold!" at once flushed a multitude to the mountains and valleys. Of course, whatever may be said of the paintings, are finer than in two of three years, when the whole country will be one vast Donnybrook, with basalt rise grin and bare, like the skeletons of a pre-Adamite world, and leave on the memorial-stones of Australia the same country stretching far beneath, wide and wild as the ocean in the savagery of the solitude. Mr. Guerrard has a piece in another style, which would exactly suit Cresswick—the light of a bright, clear, summer vegetation, a stream gushing down the bottom, and a cloud of parrots flashing like rainbows through the sunlight—a perfect scrap of Shakspeare, good, but not equal to his group of Burke and Wills, which would be a credit to any gallery. The former is larger, but has not brought him that fame and remuneration which such a work ought to have.

We are not at all satisfied with the decision of the House Government to continue sending convicts to Western Australia. Looking less than an absolute occasion of the evil will please us, and by this small straw communications from the Parliament and the Anti-Transportation League are sent home on the subject.

Since the return of Mr. Commissioner Wilson, the Acclimatisation Society is giving evidence of increasing vitality. The Government has granted £4000, on the condition that the sum of £600 is raised by private subscription; and this has been done, which will doubtless be successful, to collect this sum. The society has already three deer-parks in existence, and is still active.

The Easter holidays—in the midst of which we now are—have been taken advantage of for building a new racecourse, which, for the fourth that has been held since the inauguration of the movement, and it is more successful than its predecessors. That Victoria is a racing country is not to be denied. The scene of the encampment this year is on the banks of Jackson's Creek, on the Sunbury road, about twenty miles from Melbourne. The weather being fine to-day (Saturday), great crowds have flocked to the ground. The Governor is to ride to-day before his Excellency the Governor on Monday.

On the return of the Victoria eleven cricketers from New Zealand, they proceeded to Castlemaine, when, of course, they beat the local twenty-two—the numbers being, Castlemaine (two innings), 49 (1); All-England eleven (two innings), 50 (1). On the second meeting a match of the series took place on the Melbourne ground, on the 6th, 7th, and 8th inst., between the Victoria eleven and the All-England eleven made up by the addition of local players, Parr and Anderson being the only members of the original eleven. The result was 281 for Anderson's beat them, with four wickets to spare. The Englishmen afterwards proceeded to Sydney, where it is that Mr. Lillywhite's name scoring was the wonder of the cricketing world at home, has been particularly conspicuous. He has played in Victoria, and in in Sydney—the majority of his scores not having reached double figures.

Governor Sir Charles Darling has been on a short tour to some of the gold-fields, where he was well received.

NEW SOUTH WALES.

SYDNEY, March 26.—The great event of the month has been the arrival of the All-England eleven cricketers. They were most enthusiastically received everywhere. The first match between them and their visitors took place on the 18th inst., and terminated through wet weather. The game was renewed and finished on Saturday last, the 19th inst., in favour of the All-England eleven, first innings, 128; in the second innings Sydney was beaten with four wickets to spare. The match attracted, on the last day, upwards of 20,000 persons were on the ground at one time. A second match will be played.

A casket of gold, a present from the ladies of Sydney to her Royal Highness the Princess of Wales, is on its way to this country.

Heavy rains have prevailed during the month, causing great floods and the duction of life and property.

Gardiner, the bushranger, has not at length been captured. He was keeping a public-house and store in the neighbourhood of Goulburn-plains, when, on the 15th inst., he fired at Sergeant Day, three Sydney detectives. He has been brought in here where he will quickly be tried.

The capital of the Bank of New South Wales has been increased to £1,000,000.

QUEENSLAND.

BRISBANE, March 26.—The weather has been severe in this colony. The floods caused an entire cessation of communication with the interior, and telegraphic communication with other colonies was also interrupted. The crops have been destroyed, and the sheep submerged. Many sheep have been destroyed. The flood is now subsiding.

The Australian papers state that gold has been discovered in New Caledonia, one of the islands in the South Pacific Ocean.

THE DRAMATIC PROFESSION.—Among the names in that city of Music Gaeta, the widow of Manuel Garcia, the founder of the greatest opera of singers of the age, and the mother of Mme. Malibran, Mme. Pauline Garcia, and M. Garcia, the professor of singing in London.

The Governor of Madras and Lady Denison, the Commander-in-Chief, the Colonel commanding the Madras Fusiliers, and their wives and families, as the local Daily News has it, were present at the first meeting of the Madras Dramatic Amateur Club, on the 5th inst.

IMPROVEMENTS IN ARTILLERY.—A meeting of the members of the Royal United Service Institution was held on Friday, at the theatre of the institution, in Whitehall-yard—Admiral Sir Frederick Nicholson in the chair—when Lieutenant-Colonel Jervis-White Jervis, R.A. F.R.S., Sec., on Improvements in Artillery at Home and Abroad." Captain Jervis-White Jervis, R.A., read a paper on "Improvements in Artillery." He spoke on the subject of rifled guns, and the great advantage which resulted from the various experiments at Shoeburyness, and the importance of maintaining the efficiency of the artillery force of the United Kingdom. It was those experiments which had so much tended to stimulate the energy of the iron trade throughout the country, and to produce the great advance for the manufacture of guns and armour-plates as well as shot and shells; and it placed in the hands of the Royal Artillery a most powerful arm. He pointed out that the great invention came at last to be accomplished. England was the first to adopt the principle of rifling, and she was the first to have to make her gun factory the mast of the world. He next referred to the introduction of the Armstrong gun, and to the success which had attended it. He then referred to Scotland, and to the improvements that the Americans had at length turned their attention to steel, and had put a gun out of their hands which was considered to be most astonishing to common intelligence. The Americans did not use solid steel; they brought forward a gun which was made of wrought iron, and which was greater velocity. Their idea was that the smashing effect was the point most to be desired in a gun. The American gun was made of wrought iron, about 15 inch bore guns, with which they were fortifying all their seaboards. Their object was to have a gun which would be capable of a certain proportion to the weight of the powder. Great attention had also been paid to the subject of rifled guns in Prussia, and the Prussian gun was the third which was considered worthy of notice. The Prussians had recently done much damage to the Danish capsis ship. The Russians had also turned their attention to rifled guns. He next spoke about the French, and it was supposed that the 9-in. and 11-in. guns manufactured by the Emperor Napoleon's orders at the Imperial Foundry, Ruelle, had the gratification of seeing important improvements taking place in the plans of the Government. He then referred to the question of the thickness of armour-plates which was fluctuating in the outset, and would so long be finally abandoned. Referring to the three systems—namely, breech-loader, short-rifling, and muzzle-loader, Captain Scott showed that recent experiments had established the vast superiority of the last named. England had the best armour-plates, and she had also ships better adapted to carry the additional thickness than any other nation in the world. As to the material and construction of guns, the Armstrong, since it was set free, turned out excellent weapons and excellent shot; but he could not say that they had yet attained to the perfection which they were capable of. He then referred to ammunition. What was essential to be known before this country entered into a naval war was the kind of shot and shell which would be most effective. Up to the present time, the Government had not made up their minds what they were going to have gained, there was no fear but that England would beat her antagonists over no inferiority of the seas.

SKETCHES IN PARLIAMENT.

WE have lately heard that, happily for the preservation of the balance of power amongst the different classes of this country, the system of our public schools has had a great deal to do with the formation of the character of the gentlemanly class, who are thus enabled to hold their own against the mere mechanical class. When the deliverer of this opinion uttered it in the House of Commons, he looked before him complacently, half turned to the benches behind him, and, carefully avoiding to even glance at the benches below the gangway on his own side (their turn was to come in a few days), by the significant expression of his countenance seemed to enquire whether he had satisfactorily described the bulk of the members of that assembly. Most observers of their habits will be inclined to say that the assembly does retain many of the peculiarities of schoolboys. Their impulsiveness, their fondness for practical jokes, their love for hunting one another on every possible occasion probably spring from the same root. Nothing; and in nothing do they show the leaven of schoolboyism more than in their eagerness for fighting and pommelling by a few hours their legitimate holidays by a count out on the last evening of their sittings. Their love for fighting is greater than the fondness of Whitcombe awaited them; and certainly they were justified in such a proceeding, both on the score of health and humanity. Part of the malt tax has been practically settled for the present year twice this Session. But Wednesday, Mr. Morritt has shown on the few occasions on which he has spoken a certain geniality, not to say joviality, and a broad way of putting things which is nearly humorous; yet his humour, so to speak, is rather of the calibre of the late Colonel Sibthorpe than of that worthy gentleman's successor in the office of the Sir Richard Mayne. Mr. Morritt in the same manner as the Colonel, and with the same broad brogue, but his contrasts strongly with his earnest, almost irascible, manner when anybody wishes to put him down. Whether on the subject of the police, or the discretion of Sir Richard Mayne—moved the promised House, unites to inquire into the practice of the Council of Education with regard to the Inspectors of Schools, Mr. Morritt declared that every one had discovered that, after his famous explanation, Mr. Lowe—at that moment the most popular reality at his disposal—all the attacks made some weeks ago were directed—was really the most favorable man in the House. Mr. Lowe, in fact, was the only person present to review in debate the little dispute which it had been arranged should be settled privately by a Committee. Mr. Morritt was to be Hoserrie in one's phraseology when desiring to describe Sir John Pakington, and Mr. Lowe was to be Ananias, and in Sydney—the majority of his scores not having reached double figures.

Governor Sir Charles Darling has been on a short tour to some of the gold-fields, where he was well received.

NEW SOUTH WALES.

SYDNEY, March 26.—The great event of the month has been the arrival of the All-England eleven cricketers. They were most enthusiastically received everywhere. The first match between them and their visitors took place on the 18th inst., and terminated through wet weather. The game was renewed and finished on Saturday last, the 19th inst., in favour of the All-England eleven, first innings, 128; in the second innings Sydney was beaten with four wickets to spare. The match attracted, on the last day, upwards of 20,000 persons were on the ground at one time. A second match will be played.

A casket of gold, a present from the ladies of Sydney to her Royal Highness the Princess of Wales, is on its way to this country.

Heavy rains have prevailed during the month, causing great floods and the duction of life and property.

Gardiner, the bushranger, has not at length been captured. He was keeping a public-house and store in the neighbourhood of Goulburn-plains, when, on the 15th inst., he fired at Sergeant Day, three Sydney detectives. He has been brought in here where he will quickly be tried.

The capital of the Bank of New South Wales has been increased to £1,000,000.

QUEENSLAND.

BRISBANE, March 26.—The weather has been severe in this colony. The floods caused an entire cessation of communication with the interior, and telegraphic communication with other colonies was also interrupted. The crops have been destroyed, and the sheep submerged. Many sheep have been destroyed. The flood is now subsiding.

THE DRAMATIC PROFESSION.—Among the names in that city of Music Gaeta, the widow of Manuel Garcia, the founder of the greatest opera of singers of the age, and the mother of Mme. Malibran, Mme. Pauline Garcia, and M. Garcia, the professor of singing in London.

The Governor of Madras and Lady Denison, the Commander-in-Chief, the Colonel commanding the Madras Fusiliers, and their wives and families, as the local Daily News has it, were present at the first meeting of the Madras Dramatic Amateur Club, on the 5th inst.

IMPROVEMENTS IN ARTILLERY.—A meeting of the members of the Royal United Service Institution was held on Friday, at the theatre of the institution, in Whitehall-yard—Admiral Sir Frederick Nicholson in the chair—when Lieutenant-Colonel Jervis-White Jervis, R.A. F.R.S., Sec., on Improvements in Artillery at Home and Abroad." Captain Jervis-White Jervis, R.A., read a paper on "Improvements in Artillery." He spoke on the subject of rifled guns, and the great advantage which resulted from the various experiments at Shoeburyness, and the importance of maintaining the efficiency of the artillery force of the United Kingdom. It was those experiments which had so much tended to stimulate the energy of the iron trade throughout the country, and to produce the great advance for the manufacture of guns and armour-plates as well as shot and shells; and it placed in the hands of the Royal Artillery a most powerful arm. He pointed out that the great invention came at last to be accomplished. England was the first to adopt the principle of rifling, and she was the first to have to make her gun factory the mast of the world. He next referred to the introduction of the Armstrong gun, and to the success which had attended it. He then referred to Scotland, and to the improvements that the Americans had at length turned their attention to steel, and had put a gun out of their hands which was considered to be most astonishing to common intelligence. The Americans did not use solid steel; they brought forward a gun which was made of wrought iron, and which was greater velocity. Their idea was that the smashing effect was the point most to be desired in a gun. The American gun was made of wrought iron, about 15 inch bore guns, with which they were fortifying all their seaboards. Their object was to have a gun which would be capable of a certain proportion to the weight of the powder. Great attention had also been paid to the subject of rifled guns in Prussia, and the Prussian gun was the third which was considered worthy of notice. The Prussians had recently done much damage to the Danish capsis ship. The Russians had also turned their attention to rifled guns. He next spoke about the French, and it was supposed that the 9-in. and 11-in. guns manufactured by the Emperor Napoleon's orders at the Imperial Foundry, Ruelle, had the gratification of seeing important improvements taking place in the plans of the Government. He then referred to the question of the thickness of armour-plates which was fluctuating in the outset, and would so long be finally abandoned. Referring to the three systems—namely, breech-loader, short-rifling, and muzzle-loader, Captain Scott showed that recent experiments had established the vast superiority of the last named. England had the best armour-plates, and she had also ships better adapted to carry the additional thickness than any other nation in the world. As to the material and construction of guns, the Armstrong, since it was set free, turned out excellent weapons and excellent shot; but he could not say that they had yet attained to the perfection which they were capable of. He then referred to ammunition. What was essential to be known before this country entered into a naval war was the kind of shot and shell which would be most effective. Up to the present time, the Government had not made up their minds what they were going to have gained, there was no fear but that England would beat her antagonists over no inferiority of the seas.

ECHOES OF THE WEEK.

Both anyone wish to be royally indignant, and to let the sævæ indignatio vent him like a thing of fire? Let him go to the Royal Academy to find noble rooms, and noble talent too, hoist, not so much for the encouragement of art as for the less worthy object of advertising certain commonplace people who can afford to have whole length portraits done "in this style," price, let us say, 400 guineas. Yes! three weeks have not taken the edge off our temper at the cruelly bad taste of the hanging committee. The number of pictures exhibited is less than usual, but about two hundred, and, to make up for quantity, the selector has taken to size! In one room we have portraits of chimneypiece ornamental beauty, crinoline, exhibited and hidden; cotton and black silk stockings, a mayor's gown, a pair of whiskers, a brooch, and a ring or two, and a few other such pesky faces, in huge frames, about the size of a large drawing-room door, hailed proud and all. The unhappy painters, driven to despair, call forth sarcastic and withering remarks. "Look at Mrs. Blank," cries a lady friend; "I mean to paint her legs as life"—"Yes," says she looks as if she had, in a rage, dismissed her cook." "And quite capable of taking the situation again," is the next sympathetic reply, and the lady speakers pass on. The principle of selection is not Darwinian; it evidently does not aim at the improvement of species," but at the attainment of size. Execution is thought, and the 200 young artists, who, being accepted, could not be placed and are mourning in their less work, are wrong when they do not perceive as exalted as may be, a canvas 11 ft. by 6 ft., and to paint away and cover it with nations and trousers, or beards and armholes, and bust it into the Academy, as their best chance of getting their picture hung and—encored by every lover of art.

Considering the circumstances—not very cheering to artists—above pointed, our rejoicing at the prospect of a new Art Gallery in connection with the gardens of Burlington House must be sincere; and indeed they would be so but for the fact that the Government will be content and all manner of will be cut up when Burlington Gardens are built over. Does not Pope's description of palace Burlington, Richard Boyle, Earl of Cork and Orrery, come back to us as we near the spot—

> "To build, to plant, whatever you intend,
> To rear the column, or the arch to bend,
> To swell the terrace, or to sink the grot;
> In all, let Nature never be forgot."

That nobleman endeavoured "to be whatever Vitruvius was before," and, indeed, had a very pretty building, a villa-like one, in the rear. Here his house and his gardens, we shall lose them in a good cause. Let us hope that the new National Gallery will be worthy of such a notion. Captain Fowke, a much-abused man, did, in the Exhibition of 1851, show us what an English architect could plan and build. The fine-art gallery at the Exhibition was certainly the admiration of all who saw it, and it will be a pity if such a lesson be thrown away, or if the architect of that admirable structure be not consulted in the erection of the new National Gallery. We say nothing against the Dilkosian dish-covers; the gallery, in design, proportion, light, and fitness for its object, was a fine specimen of the work.

The holidays at Whitsuntide, which all coffers were blessed with four weather (late holidays are usually made of, prove to us that summer has come in, and has come to stay, and that the most pleasant and immense prophecies of future hot days, summer goods are called for, and consume beverages in great quantity. The total suppression of the Drinking-fountain Committee appeal to the public for funds. It appears that that excellent charity, the Ragged School Union, has, for instance, in a chronic state of debt, and Mr. Samuel Gurney will be very happy to receive any contributions that may be forthcoming. These can be little doubt that these fountains have done much good, and the cause is worthy of support. Only it is a pity that they were not about it, that the police would drive away the horrid little boys who splash, splash, and make mud-pies over the edges of the water. Can anything be more annoying than to see a pretty marble figure dashed and muddy, the pavement sloppy, the cups torn off, and a ragged urchin sitting in the basin splashing away with both hands and all the same time squirting the water at some other Tommy or Billy who stands in his position? Surely the police force could find time to do well to protect these sacred fountains?

The opening of the summer will no doubt play an important political part. The weather, if commanded by Generals Storm, Snowball, Blight, or Eclipse, Sirocco, or Simoom, will be very distasteful to Conservatives, or that which Tacitus tells us quelled the revolted Roman legionaries, has had a great effect upon the elections. In New York even the women are coming to the rescue, and, at a political meeting, resolved to contribute to the cause their home-made spun, and to eat and drink only of Northern products. At another meeting of women, farewell the fifty per cent import duties, farewell the revenue therefrom, and farewell, no doubt, to the expenses of the war. The Times tries to ridicule this very natural meeting of "mothers and wives," but one would like to see the ridicule of the literary ladies" in New York. We see, however, no footing for ridicule. Our own and warm sympathies are with the Federals, and would do it again in spite of Gladstone's treaty; nay, would vote in favour of our own Coventry Address, if called upon. Meanwhile, fields alike, and British beer against all Continental importations. Moreover, this meeting of women, and women's wives, and daughters are to wear a Boe brooch with a tricoloured ribbon on the left breast, means something else. It means good hard work from husbands in the field, and mothers who have sons alive, will join the revolution, and the widows whose bitter experience have taught them the hopelessness of this war. Woman in America is the real power behind—or, rather, of references to Dr. Goldsmith and Lemprière. The armies are now facing each other in Virginia, and Richmond is safe. Could not a ready cohort of New England matrons emulate the example of the Sabine women, by rushing in and separating their brothers, and their fathers from useless internecine slaughter?

Thirty miles per hour is a rapid pace for a horse, but Reynolds's yard at Poplar is one of those cigar-shaped ships of which we gave an engraving years ago in these pages, rolling on the ways, launched, say, at a pinch, under—the water, and which will keep up at that speed at sea. The communications between this country and America will be executed in half the usual time. Whether ships of this build be for anything but speedy communication and very light freightage is a hard to say. This narrow model must be the fastest of the waves of some pace mast, is 256 ft. long and 16 ft. in diameter.

New literary ventures are always interesting, although there can be but little novelty in a city which produces two or three new journals each week, each of which, as a matter of course, contains poetry and politics, to tickle the witty gentlemen, elevate the dull, inspire the patriot, and make the most extreme a pattern of propriety. But, without any prospectus or promise, a little irregular, fly-by-night journal, like one of a sheet of foolscap, has appeared in numbers of four pages only, and costing sixpence, which is called the Owl, has flown into the public and has made many friends. Its object, as appears to us say or do nothing without present inspiration, carpe diem, and the many quick fancies which it has of the passing hour in jokes are very mild; but it has the air of being "done" by young men of Fleet Office or elsewhere, and we can pick up reliable information, and who are familiar with the facts of the day, and not the mere diplomatists. There is a back-stairs air about it, and it is ready to assure everyone "that you may depend upon it that the news this morning my Lord Duke called out three times, Jerningham, Jerningham, Jerningham, hung up on the wall, and Lord Duke Skeggs says of "her own little things in the Lady's Magazine, there's nothing lowlived there;" and the Owl is not a bad title for a short burlesque letter of M. Mocquard, which, being republished in the Times

PROVIDENT LIFE OFFICE,
No. 50, REGENT-STREET, LONDON, W.
Invested Capital, £ 500,000.
Invested Funds, £ 800,000.
Annual Income, £ 210,000.
Claims paid since the establishment of the office, £ 3,572,253.
FOUNDER—The Right Honourable Earl Grey.
CHAIRMAN OF DIRECTORS—Frederick Squire, Q. C.
DEPUTY CHAIRMAN—Richard Dawson, Esq.
The Profits distributed at a Quinquennial Division.
The Profits distributed at a trading definition are divided among the Insured.
Examples of Bonuses declared by Policies issued by the PROVIDENT LIFE OFFICE.

Number of Policy.	Date of Assurance.	Annual Premium.	Sum Assured.	Amount with Bonus added.
4715	1823	18	£ s. d. 500	£ s. d. 1000
3924	1831	168	5 0	1050
4284	1827	168	5 0	1050
4285	1827	168	5 0	1050
5746	1836	147	5 0	1050
5747	1836	147	5 0	1050
7044	1842	42	1 0	1050
798	1826	29	1 0	1050

Bonuses declared at Quinquennial Divisions.

Sum Assured.	Bonus.	Total Amount.
£ s. d.	£ s. d.	£ s. d.
1000	0 0 0	1000 0 0
1000	50 0 0	1050 0 0
1000	100 0 0	1100 0 0
1000	150 0 0	1150 0 0
1000	200 0 0	1200 0 0
1000	250 0 0	1250 0 0
1000	300 0 0	1300 0 0

Bonuses declared at Septennial Divisions.

Sum Assured.	Bonus.	Total Amount.
£ s. d.	£ s. d.	£ s. d.
1000	0 0 0	1000 0 0
1000	70 0 0	1070 0 0
1000	140 0 0	1140 0 0
1000	210 0 0	1210 0 0
1000	280 0 0	1280 0 0
1000	350 0 0	1350 0 0
1000	420 0 0	1420 0 0

Bonuses declared at Decennial Divisions.

Sum Assured.	Bonus.	Total Amount.
£ s. d.	£ s. d.	£ s. d.
1000	0 0 0	1000 0 0
1000	100 0 0	1100 0 0
1000	200 0 0	1200 0 0
1000	300 0 0	1300 0 0
1000	400 0 0	1400 0 0
1000	500 0 0	1500 0 0
1000	600 0 0	1600 0 0

JOHN HODGSON, Secretary.

BANK of NEW ZEALAND,
INCORPORATED BY ACT OF GENERAL ASSEMBLY.
Head Office—Wellington, Cook's Straits, New Zealand.
Capital, £500,000. RESERVE FUND, £90,000.
Branches and Agencies in New Zealand.
Auckland — Nelson — Christchurch — Dunedin
New Plymouth — Lyttelton — Invercargill
Napier — Timaru — Hokitika
Wanganui — Kaiapoi — Westport
Nelson — Timaru — Greymouth
Picton — Waimate — Wakatipu
The Bank transacts every description of banking business connected with New Zealand, and transacts every description of banking business connected with that Colony, on terms which may be ascertained on application at the London Office.
F. LARKWORTHY,
Manager, London Office, 13, Clement's-lane, City.

MAYALL'S PHOTOGRAPHIC PORTRAIT
CAMERAS, with Rapid Rectilinear Lenses, for taking Portraits in any climate. CARTES DE VISITE and highly-finished PHOTOGRAPHS of Ladies by the new instantaneous process.—Specimens on view. 289, Regent-street, W.

PHOTOGRAPHIC EXHIBITION.—There being no Exhibition of Coloured Photographs held this year by the Photographic Society, a new and separate Exhibition of COLOURED PHOTOGRAPHS has been arranged at the Studio of MESSRS. LOCK and WHITFIELD, 183, Regent-street, where it will remain open every day during the season from 10 a.m. to 7 p.m.

PORTRAITS PHOTOGRAPHED on ENAMEL, rendered unchangeable by LAFON de CAMARA'S PROCESS. These miniatures are taken by Mr. Lafon de Camara, Theodore Hook, Gabriels, or any kind of fancy Articles manufactured to order. 2, Conduit-street, W., and 4, Royal Exchange, E.C.

DECALCOMANIE.—Arms and Crests of Families can be prepared for this interesting work by Messrs. ROWNEY and CO., 51, Rathbone-place, W., who have also a large Assortment of Colours, Oils, Brushes, Glass, and Wood for decorating; also, a large selection of the best Prints for the purpose. Rowney's Manual, Rathbone-place, W., Regent-street, W.

THE RACES.—FIELD GLASSES of ALUMINIUM are third the weight of the usual size, of unequalled brilliancy and power. Price 5 guineas. Sent free by post. Also, 9 ounces of Gutta-percha.

UNIVERSAL MICROSCOPE, price £5 5s.
SMITH, BECK, and BECK,
31, Cornhill, E.C. (late 6, Coleman-street).
Catalogue sent on receipt of six postage-stamps

THE DERBY.—RACE-GLASSES, the best and CHEAPEST, at SOLOMON'S, 39, Ludgate-hill, corner of Bridge-street. Also a large Assortment of Opera Glasses.

OPERA, RACE, and FIELD GLASSES.—The largest and best selection is at CALLAGHAN'S, 63a, New Bond-street, W. corner of Oxford-street. Every illumination recorded glasses in constant stock for H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, Duke of Cambridge, Duke of Beaufort, &c. Also Race Glasses, Lent, for the celebrated Race and Field Glasses made by Voigtländer, Vienna.

"RECONNOITRER" GLASS.
Price 5 guineas. This "Field" or "Reconnoitrer" is a delightful Captain Glass, wonders of small lenses can make of, and is the best glass for the Derby, Ascot, Goodwood, Cowes, and all out-door purposes. Sent carriage free to any part of the United Kingdom on receipt of Post-office order. "The Reconnoitrer is very powerful, and will be found a most useful glass for the Derby."—Sir Digby Dedyer, Brompton, York. "I never met an article which more completely answered the description you gave of it. Although I have tried many, I never met with one which gave so much power, for its size, with so much clearness."—F. H. Hawkes, of Parish, Esq. "Quite as powerful as that for which I paid £5 5s."—Major Stanley, Worsley Hall, Ancrich. Effective on the 20th. "Your Reconnoitrer is a capital glass."—Rev. Thomas Hill, Bath. "Reconnoitrer glass received in safety, and I am much pleased with it; certainly find it at 100-yard rate-range against all the pleasure glasses I have ever had, and I have had a few."—Major Hall, Bath. "Reconnoitrer glass has fine clear lens in field."—Mr. Hall, Bath. Several more will soon follow such an indisputable recognition to the merits of the glass. Sent carriage free to any part of the United Kingdom, on receipt of Post-office order for 5l. 5s. Also a large assortment of three inches, per pair, 10 guineas; and four inches, per pair, 15 guineas. Address, CALLAGHAN, 63, New Bond-street, W., corner of Oxford-street. No agents.

KEYZOR and BENDON'S two-guinea RIFLE, MUSCULAR FIELD or OPERA GLASS, greatly improved for the present season, and now in use by the Commissioners of the Metropolitan Police Force, is the most powerful, the most reliable, the additional power, light, and field, and rendering it unequalled in brilliant definition for use for distant objects. Sent free by post with a maintenance or money at our risk, ordinary objects distinctly at 1 mile, and the Moon and Stars with extraordinary clearness. Sent free by post to any part of the United Kingdom. Illustrated descriptive free.—Keyzor and Bendon, Opticians and Mathematical Instrument Makers, 63, Strand.

THE PLANET JUPITER, when magnified 1,000 times, is seen in NEW ATLANTIS, which is as large as the moon is to the naked eye; and the other planetary bodies proportionably as large. Price 1s. 6d. Atlantis-street, Piccadilly. Powerful small pocket Telescopes, opera glasses, and similar optical instruments.

JUST OUT.—A High-power Opera, Race, and Field Glass, entirely achromatic, of the most powerful, and irrepairable. This Glass will be found to surpass anything of the kind ever offered to the public, either for quality, quality, and cheapness—and is SOLELY MANUFACTURED, Optimum to the Government, 31, Albemarle-street, Piccadilly.

ACHROMATIC MAGIC and DISSOLVING VIEWS.—Mr. HOCKIN'S Lecture on the Art and Science of Optics of portraiture. The advantages of achromatic lenses in half-plate cameras. Mr. Hockin's Lecture on Dissolving Views, with Achromatic effects. Fascinating. Galileo's glass.

SPECTACLES.—TINTED SPECTACLES are patronised by the majority of the nobility, including Viscount Combermere. They give extraordinary strength to the sight and defective vision, with the minimum of exertion or inconvenience. Sold by the Inventor and Patentee, 63, Strand, corner of Bedford-street. The Firm also have a large assortment of Spectacles, Eye-glasses, and Telescopes, at all prices, from 1s. 6d. to 5l. 5s. Established 1819.

DEAFNESS.—Mr. SCHNEIDER'S ARTIFICIAL DRUMS, or INVISIBLE CONDUCTOR, for restoring hearing, enables the most profoundly deaf to converse in a whisper distinctly, and enables deaf persons to hear distinctly at church and at public assemblies.—4, Hanover-square, Regent-street, Oxford-street.

TEETH.—Mr. ESKELL'S TOWN ADDRESS is 19, Berners-street, Oxford-street. Consultations, Mr. Eskell attends the Establishment, 110, Jermyn-street, St. James's, daily, from 10 to 4. Treatise free for 4 stamps.

NEW INVENTION.—ARTIFICIAL TEETH.—These intricate should see Messrs. GABRIEL'S Establishment, 56, Ludgate-hill. Complete sets of teeth, from 5 to 50 guineas, and, for fastening supplied. A consultation invites to the Inventor, and Patentee, 56, Ludgate-hill. Messrs. Gabriel's system of Artificial White Gutta-percha Enamel, prepared for personal use, prevents tenderness, and arrests decay. 56, Ludgate-hill; 134, Duke-street, Liverpool; 10, Sloane-street, Birmingham; 37, Duke-street, W. and 34, Ludgate-hill (next Bayne), London; 134, Duke-street, Liverpool; 60, New-street, Birmingham.

TEETH and PAINLESS DENTISTRY.—Messrs. LEWIN, MOSELY, and SON, 30, Berners-street, Oxford-street, and 440, Strand (opposite Charing-cross Railway Terminus), continue to supply Sets of Mineral Teeth, fixed without springs, and guaranteed to restore their use for articulation. Also for the efficacy, utility, and success of this system, vide "Lancet."
 No connexion with any one of the same name.

PLATE.—A. B. SAVORY and SONS, Manufacturing Silversmiths, 11 and 12, Cornhill, London, invite attention to their Stock of Plate, consisting of Tea and Coffee Services, Waiters, Dishes, &c., of the most recherché Patterns. Many other patterns recently finished, plain or highly-ornamented.

	£ s. d.		£ s. d.
12 Table Forks or Spoons	1 0 0	12 Table Spoons	1 0 0
12 Dessert Ditto	0 15 0	12 Dessert Ditto	0 15 0
12 Tea Ditto	0 7 0	12 Tea Ditto	0 7 0
12 Dessert Ditto	0 10 0	12 Dessert Ditto	0 10 0
12 Tea Ditto	0 5 0	12 Tea Ditto	0 5 0
1 Soup Ladle	0 4 0	1 Soup Ladle	0 4 0
1 Sauce Ditto	0 1 0	1 Sauce Ditto	0 1 0
1 Gravy Spoon	0 3 0	1 Gravy Spoon	0 3 0
1 Fish Slice (pierced)	0 3 0	1 Fish Slice (pierced)	0 3 0
12 Tea Spoons	0 10 0	12 Tea Spoons	0 10 0
1 Pair Sugar Tongs	0 1 0	1 Pair Sugar Tongs	0 1 0

A pamphlet of Prices, with Engravings, sent free by post to the Continent, or to the Provinces. It contains the weights and prices of silver spoons, forks, tea and coffee services, waiters, dishes, &c., with full particulars of ornamental plate for private use or presentation; also, of the Electro-Plate, Table Cutlery, Dressing Cases, Bags, and other articles of the Establishment. Every article is marked in plain figures at the lowest price, and is of the British manufacture.

Every article guaranteen, a work is printed with many illustrations, and sent free by post on application.

ELECTRO-SILVER PLATE.—MAPPIN, WEBB, and CO., Manufacturers, guarantee the richness to be of sterling quality, and exchange any article that may not wear well.

	Fiddle	Thread	Ornamental
	Pattern.	Pattern.	Pattern.
Table spoons or forks, per doz..	£1 7 0	£1 16 0	£2 16 0
Dessert ditto ditto	0 16 0	1 4 0	1 16 0
Tea spoons	0 10 0	0 14 0	1 4 0
Gravy and sauce ladles	0 5 0	0 6 0	0 8 0
Salt cream spoons	0 2 6	0 3 0	0 4 0
Fish carvers and forks, in cases	1 15 0	2 5 0	3 5 0
12 pairs fine ivory knives and forks	2 10 0	3 0 0	3 15 0
2 Bell-seeing knives, in cases	1 10 0	2 0 0	2 10 0
Pair of Game carvers, in case	1 10 0	2 0 0	3 0 0
Pair of Poultry carvers, in case	1 10 0	2 0 0	3 0 0
Bedroom Candlesticks, each	0 3 0	0 3 6	0 7 0
Pair Snuffers and tray	0 5 0	0 6 0	0 8 0
Kitchen table knife, each	0 0 6	0 0 8	0 0 10
Butter cooler, gray variety	0 0 0	0 14 0	0 16 0

The London Showroom, 77 and 78, Oxford-street, Work-shops, 71 and 72, Cornhill, City, are supplied daily from the Manufactory, Sheffield. Mappin, Webb, and Co., 77 and 78, Oxford-street, W., Regent and Queen-streets, and 71 and 72, Cornhill, City. Catalogues free on application.—77 and 78, Oxford-street West; 71 and 72, Cornhill, City.

COVERS for FAMILY JARS, or Jars and Corks complete, for Preserves, Pickles, &c. Illustrations and prices from 1s. per dozen.—Price-list and Tract, Gratis, by Samuel Lobb, Jar and Cork Manufacturer, Bristol.

CHANDELIERS in BRONZE and ORMOLU for DINING-ROOMS, DRAWING-ROOMS, and HALLS, in Old English Bronze, Gothic, China and Glass. Illustrations in Parian, Vases, and other Ornamental Articles. DEANE and CO., 46, King William-street, London-bridge.

OLSEN'S GLASS CHANDELIERS, WALL LIGHTS, and CANDLE and other ORNAMENTS, in Rich Cut Glass. Show Rooms for 12 years, from 7 to 8 guineas. Also Table Decorations, Vases, &c. Illustrations free.—Olsen's Glass Manufactory, 129, Oxford-street, W.
All articles marked in plain figures.
Ornamental Glass Shades for Gas Pendants, Globes, Lustres, &c., cut to any pattern, and supplied to the Trade.
London—Showroom, 45, Oxford-street, W.
Birmingham—Manufactory and Showroom, Broad-street.
Established 1807.

GASELIERS in Crystal Glass, Ormolu, and Bronze, Moderator Lamps, Table Glass, Ornamental Articles, on Sale or Hire, or Exchanged.—F. and C. OSLER, Oxford-street, W. An Illustrated Priced Catalogue sent post-free.

ORNAMENTS for the MANTELPIECE, &c., Lamps and Glass Articles, including sparing ether-lights, Ormolu Chandeliers, Bronzes, Vases, Table Glass, Dessert Services, Ornamental Articles, Cut Glass Chandeliers, Lustres, Candelabra, Candlesticks, and Bohemian Glass.
F. and C. OSLER,
45, OXFORD-STREET, W. Established 1807.

EASY-CHAIRS, SOFAS, and COUCHES, best quality only (no different shapes ever in stock, at 21 and 22, Wells-street, Oxford-street, W. Illustrated Catalogue, Gratis and Post-free.

FURNITURE CARRIAGE-FREE to any part of the Kingdom.
Drawing-room Suites, complete £36 0 0
Dining-room Suites, complete 20 0 0
Bed-room Suites, complete 10 0 0
Illustrated Furniture Lists and Estimates Free.
Illustrated Catalogues gratis and post-free on application.

THE FURNISHING OF BEDROOMS.
It will be found that the following list contains for some time that it would be advantageous to their customers to no longer delay in the purchase of their Bedroom Furniture, as the present time and the ensuing month are the best for the sale of different descriptions of furniture. It is stated that electric lightning destroys the colour of mahogany, and therefore the recent rains and subdivided Showrooms, by which they are enabled to show their Furniture in the best light, will be found to be a great advantage. Their Stock of Bedroom Furniture is very large and well arranged, but also to provide several small rooms for the purpose of showing the effect of the various woods and colours in which they are made.
Japanned Deal Goods may be seen in complete suits of five or six different patterns, as well as in Polished Mahogany, Walnut, and Rosewood. Bedsteads, Sofas, Cots, Washing-stands, Towel-horses, Chairs, Tables, Chests of Drawers, Dressing-tables, Cheval Glasses, and Looking-glasses are also to be seen in the different woods and colours. A Suite of very superior Guelph Oak Furniture will generally be found on view, which is made in the best manner, and is suitable for large rooms and halls.
Bed Furnitures are fitted to the Bedsteads in large numbers, so that purchasers can select the pattern and colour they like best, and have them fixed and delivered, or would appear on the premises.
A very large stock of Bedding, Blankets, and Counterpanes of the best quality is always on hand.
The stock of Mahogany Goods for the better Bedrooms, and Polished Deal Goods for Servants' Rooms, is very extensive, and the Bedsteads in stronger than ordinary make, with extra screws and bolts, and are large enough to suit the whole furniture of the bedroom, including the Wardrobe, Chest of Drawers, Washing-stand, and Dressing-table.
Every attention is paid to the manufacture of the Cabinetwork, and the Bedsteads are put together before leaving the premises for delivery, that purchasers may be satisfied that they are in perfect condition.
Their Stock of Feather Beds, Mattresses, and Bedding in general is very carefully selected.
They particularly call attention to their Patent Spring Mattress, which is allowed by all who have used it to be the most perfect Spring Bed ever introduced.
HEAL and SON'S ILLUSTRATED CATALOGUE of Bedsteads, with Engravings and Prices, sent free by post.—196, 197, 198, Tottenham-court-road, London.

LONDON CARPET WAREHOUSE, 74, WATLING-STREET, CITY.—Families furnishing will find it to their interest to visit this old-established Warehouse, where they will find a large and well-selected Stock of Carpets, Floor-cloths, Oilcloths, Rugs, Mats, &c., at very moderate prices.

CARPETS.—Notwithstanding the late advance in the price of Carpets, TAPESTRY and BRUSSELS are selling at the old prices. The Stock of Kidderminster, Patent Tapestry, Brussels, and Wool Carpets, and all other descriptions, is of the newest and most fashionable patterns, and will be found unusually low for the quality. Inspection is invited to the Stock, which is the largest in the City, and the prices will be found the lowest.—Jackson and Graham, Upholsterers, Cabinet-makers, and Carpet Manufacturers, 37, Oxford-street, and 1, 2, 3, and 4, Newman-street, W.

CHUBBS' LOCKS, FIREPROOF SAFES, DOOR-LATCHES, CASH and DESPATCH BOXES. Price-list free. CHUBB and SON, 57, St. Paul's-churchyard; 28, Lord-street, Liverpool; 16, Market-street, Manchester; and at Wolverhampton.

TO LADIES.—GREEN TISSUE for the Restoration of the ear-complexion. Sold by all chemists, per set of 72 slips. Perfumed Tissue, for Scent Sprays, 6 sample packets, 1s. Sent by post for 14 stamps.—Rimmel, 96, Strand, and 24, Cornhill.

W. F. THOMAS and CO.'S PATENT SEWING-MACHINES.—These Machines, made by the Patentees, are the only Machines which will perform every description of work, from the finest cambric muslin to the thickest cloth, and are the most elegant and economical for all practical purposes. They are practical to perform their work efficiently, will execute rapidly, regularly, and durably, and give no trouble. The stitching cannot be unpicked unless cut with a knife, and the seam will wear as well as the thread would be pulled out. They hem, bind, gather, and braid with equal facility.—Catalogues and samples of the work may be had on application at 66, Newgate-street, and Regent-circus, Oxford-street, London.

EVERY MAN HIS OWN PRINTER.
The Penny Printing Press, price from £3 3s. to £4 4s. Specimens of Printing, Price-list, &c., Gratis and Post-free. J. DEBENHAM, Engraver and Stamp-maker to her Majesty's Post Office, 29, High Holborn, London, W.C.

HEDGES and BUTLER, 155, Regent-street, London, W., and 30, Regent-street, Brighton, invite attention to their Stock of Wines, which they have always found to give the utmost satisfaction to their Customers. Sherry ... 24s. per Gallon.
Hock ... 30s. per Dozen.
Sherry ... 42s., 54s., 36s., 48s., 60s., &c.
Claret ... 42s., 24s., 30s., 36s., 42s., 60s., 72s., &c.
Champagne ... 36s., 42s., 48s., 60s., 72s., &c.
Hedges and Butler's Wine Circular sent free on application.

A LLSOPP'S PALE ALE.—The OCTOBER BREWINGS of the above ALE are now being supplied in the finest condition by the Trade generally.—ALLSOPP and SONS, BURTON-UPON-TRENT.

MENIER'S FRENCH CHOCOLATE differs all honest competition. The immediate and most delicious nourishment, invigorating, and restorative properties, and easy assimilation recommends it.—Menier, Manufacturer, Paris. Wholesale—119, Chancery-lane, Retail—Confectioners, Grocers, and Chemists.

J. S. FRY and SONS, Makers to the Queen and Prince of Wales.

FRY'S CHOCOLATE and COCOA.
The superiority of J. S. Fry and Sons' articles has been attested by numerous public approbation
J. S. FRY and SONS,
THE LONDON GENERAL MOURNING WAREHOUSE,
247, 249, 251, and 253, REGENT-STREET.

MESSRS. SWAN and EDGAR beg respectfully to announce that, in connection with their Mourning Warehouse, they have established a Department for the sale of new and spacious Hose-rooms for the display of Fancy Dress Goods, Shawls, Mantles, Bonnets, Hats, Feathers, Flowers, Ribbons, Laces, Gloves, Hosiery, and every description of Dress and Fancy Articles suitable for the present season, and the business of the Establishment will be conducted on the same principles as the Mourning Department, viz., moderate remunerative profits, and the most liberal system of business, with cash payments only.
SWAN and EDGAR,
Regent-circus, Piccadilly, and Regent-street.

JAMES LOCKE and CO.'S SPRING and SUMMER MANTLETS.
Ladies will find these Mantlets an elegant assortment of the new and fashionable shades of colour in Tweeds, Cloths, Meltons, Velvets, Silks, and Satins, at prices from 1 guinea to 10 guineas. They are particularly adapted for the present season, and include the most attractive styles, designed and manufactured expressly for themselves. 154, 155, and 156, Regent-street.

THE LONDON GENERAL MOURNING WAREHOUSE,
117, 119, and 121, Regent-street.

MESSRS. SWAN and EDGAR beg respectfully to announce that, in connection with their Mourning Warehouse, they have established a Department for the sale of a select stock of Fancy Dress Goods, Shawls, Mantles, Bonnets, Hats, Feathers, Flowers, Ribbons, Laces, Gloves, Hosiery, and every description of Dress and Fancy Articles suitable for the present season, and the business of the Establishment will be conducted on the same principles as the Mourning Department, viz., moderate remunerative profits, and the most liberal system of business, with cash payments only.
SWAN and EDGAR,
Regent-circus, Piccadilly, and Regent-street.

SEWELL and CO.'S MORNING and EVENING DRESSES, Mantles, Bonnets, Millinery, Jackets, &c., ordered on sales.
Regent-street, W., and Cross-street, Manchester.

MOIRE ANTIQUES.—SEWELL and CO. have a large Assortment of Rich Moire Antiques, in White, Black, and all the New Colours, at 4½ guineas the Full Dress.
Frith-street, and 256 Compton-street, Soho, W.

LADIES' MANTLE CLOTHS, Beaver Cloths, Velvets, Satins, Silks, Miss Dorothy Nevill's Cords, and other materials for the present season, in all qualities, at SEWELL and CO.'S, Regent-street, W., and Cross-street, Manchester. N.B. Jet and Gimp Trimmings, and the finest qualities, equally cheap. Patterns free.

SEWELL and CO.'S MORNING and EVENING DRESSES, Mantles, Bonnets, Millinery, Jackets, &c., ordered on sales.
Regent-street, W., and Cross-street, Manchester.

SILKS.—SEWELL and CO.'S NEW SILKS.
ANOTHER DELIVERY of NEW SPRING SILKS.
Rich Glacé Silks, 2½ guineas the Dress.
Several very cheap lots, worthy especial attention.
Widest Black Glacé Silks, 2½ guineas the Dress, worth 3½.
Wide-width STRIPED and CHECKED in newest shades, to 1894.
Wide-width plain GLACÉS in the new shades, from 2s. 6d.
BLACK GLACÉ, GROS GRAIN, and other SILKS, in ANTIQUES, &c.
MILLINERY SILKS, SATINS, VELVETS, SATINS, TERRY VELVETS.
Cut Lengths at Wholesale Prices.
Patterns free.
JAMES SEWELL and CO., Regent-street, and Cross-street, Manchester.
77 and 78, St. Paul's-churchyard, London, E.C.

THE NEW FASHIONS in MANTLES and DRESS.—The Spring Fashions in Mantles, Dress, and Millinery of fashionable resort.—SEWELL and MOORE, 177, Regent-street, W., and Cross-street, Manchester. Patterns free. Her Majesty the Queen and her Royal Highness the Princess of Wales.

MARRIAGE TROUSSEAUX and INDIA OUTFITS.—SEWELL and CO. have a large Assortment of Goods suitable on inspection of their extensive and unlimited stock, over which they have control, and which they can recommend as the most economical and advantageous. Patterns sent for upwards of 70 years.—Christian and Robinson, 31, Wigmore-street, Cavendish-square.

NEW FRENCH SILKS, at 2s. 6d. the yard, 24 inches wide, in the most elegant and fashionable variety of coloured drops in Paris and Lyons. Patterns forwarded stating the colour. Also a large assortment of Black Silks, at 2s. 6d. per yard, 24 inches wide, and a variety of Coloured Silks, commencing with a length not nearly sufficient to make a fashionable dress. The Black Silks are guaranteed to wear well, and the Coloured Silks are of the most elegant and fashionable description. Patterns sent by return of post.—Address, HARVEY and CO., 31, Ludgate-hill, London, E.C.

LADIES' WATERPROOF TWEED CLOAKS and RIDING-JACKETS, Gentlemen's Overcoats and Inverness Capes, of the most fashionable materials and colours.
F. and M. PHILLIPS, 67, High-street, Shrewsbury.

LADIES' INDIA OUTFITS.—WHITELOCK and SON, Outfitters, 168, Strand, have a choice Stock of Ladies' Outfitting Articles, of the most recherché and best work. Price-books free by post.—Address "Ladies' Outfitting Establishment," 168, Strand, London, W.C.

BONNETS.—MARKS and GAVELL, Bonnet-makers, have removed to their new and spacious premises, 4, Wellington-street, Strand. Mr. Shaw, Showroom, First floor. Bonnets, Hats, Feathers, Flowers, Ribbons, Lace, &c.

HUBBELL'S ONDINA OR WAVE-JUPON
cloth is unsurpassed for the graceful and elegant outline it imparts to the figure, and for its durability. It is made in all the new colours, and is sold by the principal Drapers throughout the kingdom and its dependencies. Hubbell's Ondina or Wave-Jupon cloth is manufactured by the patentees, Messrs. Hubbell, Limited, Bradford, Yorkshire, and is the only genuine article in the possession, in fitting in a close carriage, or in coming in contact in the crowded room

THE ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS.

No. 1261.—VOL. XLIV. SATURDAY, MAY 28, 1864. WITH A SUPPLEMENT, FIVEPENCE

THE WAR IN AMERICA.

THOSE political seers whose ken enables them at a glance to comprehend the exact position of American affairs inform us, with an air of authority, that the campaign which has just commenced in Virginia is to be the last of the war between the Federal and Confederate parties. The events of the first few days of the renewal of hostilities alone would suffice to sanctify a fervent wish on the part of all thinking men that the prediction may be verified. If the dispute between these belligerent brethren is to be settled by competitive slaughter, most assuredly a great deal has been already done towards its solution. Making every allowance for a natural, and still more for an American, tendency to exaggeration, the numbers of slain in these last battles on the road to Richmond are such as to lead to a belief that the exhaustion of both parties is a question of a very precisely given time. Nothing has more struck the general mind of Europe in the contemplation of the civil war in America than the vastness of the hosts which have been brought together in the shock of battle. Notwithstanding the felicitous faculty of the Anglo-Saxon race for increase, which has been duly developed in the United States, as compared with its extent of territory, America is a thinly populated country. As a rule, its male population has not been more than adequate to the requirements of its industry; and, taking this fact also into consideration, it is really marvellous that in this later period of a war of desolation and extermination, armies on such gigantic scales should be brought into collision, that one side alone confesses to a loss of 40,000 men. At this rate, the recruiting of the whole world, if it were attainable, would soon be insufficient to meet the insatiable demands of the Transatlantic Bellona.

"FOREST LEAVES," BY S. ANDERSON, IN THE EXHIBITION OF THE SOCIETY OF BRITISH ARTISTS.—SEE NEXT PAGE.

Beyond the immediate influence of the hot passions which inflame the partakers in this direful contest there can be but one wish, and that is, that the time is really approaching when this awful sacrifice of human life may to stay.

The mode in which the news of the events of the American war has reached this country has always been akin to that by which the writers of serial stories contrive to stop short in each number on a sensational point in order to keep interest alive until the issue of the next chapters. The mails are always dispatched at some critical moment of the operations. The situation which was reported at the beginning of this week, although forming no exception to this rule, was yet such as to enable an opinion to be formed of the probabilities of the next week or two. For the first time, the conduct of the Federal forces has been committed to a commander who, if not exactly a great general, is a man of high character and of great tenacity of purpose, who is capable of forming a plan of military movement and of adhering to it. The crossing of the Rapidan, and the simultaneous movement of different Federal corps upon Richmond, were the result of a matured scheme, and, in the main, its execution was good. With his usual strategy, which seems to be to tempt his enemy into the exact position which suits his preconceived plans, the Confederate chief fell back, and on his own ground awaited the shock of the attack which Grant delivered with admirable courage and impetuosity on his front. That Grant was repulsed in this onslaught is shown by the fact that Lee, in the course of the first day's encounter, assumed the aggressive, and took his adversary's line in flank, driving it back on the centre with great loss. During the fearful pause of the following night, although the advantage may be said to have been with Lee, that General, having to make a relatively small army do the work of a large one in the face of a considerable superiority in his foe, wisely declined to fight again on the same ground, and retired in another and a shorter line of defence, against which, for three successive days, Grant hurled his battalions with persistent vigour, but in vain; and there the accounts received in the early part of this week left the combatants.

Unquestionably another battle on the same terrible scale as those of which we know was imminent; but, considering the relative positions of the contending armies, it hardly seemed possible that it could be a decisive one. The Confederates were scientifically posted, so that every advance of ground could be made available almost to security. It appeared quite possible for them to stand fast and to resist any attacks which might be made on them, and to keep themselves for an indefinite period between the two advance if Grant on the one hand, and Sigel on the other hand, the Federal General, acting with a unity of purpose and an independence of will which none of his predecessors in command sound to have possessed in the same degree, the authority with which they were invested, with all appliances and means around him, appears to be fixed in his determination to bring the campaign to a decisive issue. He is asserted to have said that he will fight it out on this line if the whole summer, language which, coming from him, may be taken to indicate a feeling that he is not yet, or not likely just yet to be, completely victorious. Acting on this resolution, in the latest accounts inform us, Grant, again with unabated vigour, and well, indeed nobly, seconded by the troops, who feel that they have at length got a leader who conceives a purpose and holds to it, brought on another fierce contest. In its result it tended no further to a decisive issue than the two preceded the continuance of an evidently predetermined plan on the part of Lee. That General, on the whole, standing, under great difficulties, the ground to the termination of this last battle, again executed a retiring movement, and left his position, at Spottsylvania, crossed the river Po, and occupied another and, no doubt, strong point, against which Grant will be compelled to dash himself as he has done on the previous occasions. That he will take that course is certain; but the tactics of his opponent remain unimpeached. The Federals have fought their way twenty miles into the enemy's country; and their success in their next battle will still further remove them from the base of their operations, and the source of their supplies, their way lying through a desolate middle passage, in an exhausted country. Every inch that the Federals have made in advance is ground to be occupied and, as far as the main features of the war are concerned, the strategical situation is unchanged.

In the mean time, what may be called the outlying parts of General Lee's line of defence Richmond in the seems to have been more successful than his own immediate movement. The detached corps moving on the capital of Virginia are well watched and likely to be intercepted by sufficient Confederate forces to prevent them in a triumphal march on the destined city is not to be predicated. But supposing that Lee should find it expedient still to fall back and occupy Richmond itself, the war would but enter on a new and still more military phase. We have almost forgotten the way to reckon how long Charleston has withstood a siege, and it is not easy to calculate the period during which the Confederates could make a stand around and within the capital of their new-born Republic.

In considering the chances of the campaign of this summer, and its bearings on the ultimate issue of the contention involved, it must be remembered that the Federals almost confess to be staking their last General. It is not necessary to repeat the long list of the men to whom in succession the command of the chief Northern army has been committed, and who, one by one, with more or less noise, have what the Americans themselves would call, burst up. At length, as the Federals believe, the "coming man" has come; and, while placing implicit trust in General Grant to retrieve all the errors and to supply all the incapacity of his predecessors, there is a tacit admission that after him there is no one. Largely provided, how one can scarcely imagine, with money, men, and material of war, the Federal hosts have hitherto been practically without a leader; they did not have the fortune to possess a chief who could develop their capabilities, and their numerous battalions have proved but a cumbrous and unmanageable machine: their ranks have been recruited in immense numbers only to swell the lists of the slaughtered. Up to the present time Grant must be held to have justified, by a proof of his confidence which has been placed in him; but, looking calmly on the events of the late battles, there does creep over one a notion that he has exhausted his strategical ideas in the formation of his preconceived plan for an advance into Virginia, and that in the actual contest he is acting on the old system of simply sending men by hundreds of thousands to an assault upon a resolute foe only awaiting attack on their own well-chosen ground. But whatever fortune may follow this last military hope of the Federals,—if either by his success or his failure he should be the means of bringing this fearful internecine quarrel to such a crisis that the voice of reason and humanity may be heard in the intervals or at the cessation of the din of battle,—shall by any means, direct or indirect, it should be his fate to be the cause of bringing this terrible war to a close, his name will be written indelibly in the pages of his country's history, even though he should be described as no more than her accidental saviour.

"FOREST LEAVES," PAINTED BY S. ANDERSON.

It has been for many years our practice to endeavour to assist in bringing under the notice of our readers the best works and the pleasure of finding many whose merits we were among the first to recognise afterwards rising rapidly in general estimation. The picture by S. Anderson, which we engrave from the Society of Artists' Exhibition has been selected for engraving upon this principle. It appears to us to be a work of high promise, and we hope to hear more from one who is little known. There is a graceful sentiment in the subject, simple as it is; the figure is unaffected in attitude, and the drawing correct and beautiful. It may, indeed, be said that the effectiveness of the colouring is excellent in the rich contrast of the golden-green, glowing hues—the scarlet and crimson, the gold and purple, of sunset. It is not, however, in the colouring that the chief charm lies, but the effectiveness of the contrasts, that a judge would think of estimating the artist's gift by. The pose of the figure, the expression and touch of the tones in shadow; particularly, in this instance, those of the boy's flesh, which have rare delicacy and purity. The title of this picture is very appropriate, for the leaves are falling from the trees which the girl, in her ramble in the neighbouring forest, has gathered to fill up the interstices of her basic ribbon-dyed as they are with the richest hues of autumn. She has woven them into a wreath for the head of her companion, a boy. As she is kneeling, with the sun almost at her back, the rays of light, already splendidly functioned with their own hues of amber, gaze through the coloured leaves and produce a beautiful effect, which cannot, of course, be rendered in black and white. The boy has turned the head the wreath of simple "forest leaves" seems like a "glory" or halo, and looks up to the face of his companion. The child-lover is, perhaps, rather too much in the shadow of the large, ribbed tree into the darkling blue of the sky opposite the setting sun, gives a spirituality to the figure of this little rustic maiden which might afford a reason for its not quite appearing to represent the child Beatrice of Dante or the Mignon of Goethe.

FOREIGN AND COLONIAL NEWS.

FRANCE.

It is stated that the Emperor has offered himself as a candidate for the vacant chair of Mechanics in the Academy of Sciences.

As the Emperor was going to the Tuileries yesterday he passed by the Nottingham cricketers at the Bois de Boulogne end of the Avenue de l'Impératrice. He drove his four horses at a gallop, and cheered vociferously. The Emperor seemed much pleased, and waved his hat to the cricketers.

The birthday of Queen Victoria was celebrated in Paris on Tuesday by a dinner given by Mr. Mitchell, the British Ambassador. Ministers were present, and M. Douyer de Lhuys proposed the health of the Queen. Earl Cowley replied, and proposed the health of the Emperor.

The Government has received from Algeria the news that Princess Clotilde, is expected soon to present her husband with another infant.

The Emperor has been suffering from a bad cold since until Saturday (to-day).

Baron Haussmann had an interview with the Emperor on Saturday and at his conclusion he paid a visit to M. Drouyn de Lhuys. The Baron had returned to Paris from his country residence, and in the evening dined at the Tuileries. His Excellency returned to London on Tuesday. Count Walewski was also in communication with Ministers at the Conference, was on Wednesday received by M. Drouyn de Lhuys.

The Emperor and Empress have chosen Saint-Cloud for their summer and will continue till June 5. Besides the ordinary pieces, amounting in all to 20,000f., the Emperor, the Empress, the Imperial Prince, and the Princess Mathilde will give private representations in their palaces and revelvers to be shot for. All comers are welcome to try their hands.

The Moniteur publishes the following return of the metal coined and £100 prize at the international steam-ploughing match near Lyons.

The Bourse has been unusually animated for the last few days. It began on the 21st, and will close on the 30th inst.

The Duke de Persigny, late Ambassador, Governor-General of Algeria, died recently at Algiers. The Moniteur is announcing his death, says that he was the friend of the Emperor from his youth. The news from Algeria is stated to be satisfactory, nevertheless, a considerable number of troops are being sent thither.

SPAIN.

A committee of the Senate has proposed to authorise the Government to raise in the Bank of Spain 200,000,000 reals (nominally) for liquidating all the deficits of the Treasury. The Bank would have to issue 200,000,000 reals in notes, and 50 million francs, bearing six per cent, interest from the 1st of July, 1864.

In Wednesday's sitting of the Congress an energetic speech was made by Olozaga, in which he complained of the acts of Marines, which the Ministry defended successfully. In a recent sitting of the Congress the Duke de la Victoria had given a remarkable speech upon the Italian question. The declaration of the Minister in favour of the Pope had given great satisfaction to the Conservative elements.

The Minister for Foreign Affairs has taken into serious consideration the differences which have arisen between Spain and Peru. Fresh instructions have been dispatched to the Spanish representative in that quarter, and to the Admiral in command of the fleet in the Pacific.

BELGIUM.

The Duchess of Brabant gave birth to a daughter last Saturday morning. Her Royal Highness and the infant Princess are both doing well. The Princess Clementine is to be godmother, and Princess Clotilde Louise Hermine Marie Charlotte.

The Belgian Senate has resumed and the Ministers having with drawn their resignations. The Chamber of Deputies has been convoked for the 31st inst.

ITALY.

The official account of the state of the Treasury up to the end of December, 1863, reviewing the final results of the Budget of 1863 and the preceding years, was distributed on Wednesday among the members of the Chamber of Deputies. In this account the revenue is stated at 2,233 millions lire, and the expenditure at 2668 millions, leaving a deficit of 435 millions lire. Part of this deficit is covered by advances of 165 millions remaining in the public treasury on the 31st of December, and the remainder will be met out of the loan loan of 200 millions.

On Wednesday, in the Chamber of Deputies, the Minister for War, replying to the questions of Signor Mordini, stated that the active army consisted of 360,000 infantry, eighty batteries of artillery, and nineteen regiments of cavalry. This army was capable of defending the kingdom from any attack whatever, but the Minister could not say whether it was sufficient for Italy to make an attack without allies. The state of the fortifications, he said, was excellent, and the modernisation of the national guns was nearly completed. The Budgets of War and Marine were subsequently approved by the Chamber.

The commercial treaty between Holland and Italy has been approved.

The Chamber of Deputies has appointed a committee of seven of its members to examine the numerous rumours of bribery laid to the charge of several of the Deputies in reference to the South Italian Railway Company.

DENMARK AND GERMANY.

The general elections to the Folkething (Lower House) of the Danish Diet, the special assembly for the kingdom, which were to have taken place on the 14th of June, are now ordered, by public letter of the King, to be held on the 28th inst. It is confidently expected that Julland should send its representatives to the Legislative Body; and, as the armistice expires upon the 15th, it is doubtful whether the elections could take place at the date originally intended.

The Minister for War has resigned, and it is said that several important posts in the Danish Government are hereby vacated.

A deputation from the town of Kolding arrived at Copenhagen, on Monday, to request the King not to prolong the armistice, and in concluding peace, to uphold the rights of Denmark. Several similar addresses have arrived from other towns in Julland.

The inhabitants of Utrecht have forwarded, through the Danish Minister at the Hague, an address of sympathy and admiration to the people of Denmark in their struggle against Austria and Prussia. An address of the same nature has been sent to the Danes from the people of Florence.

The Times prints of a despatch forwarded to the Prussian Ambassador in London by Herr von Bismarck, on the 15th inst., has been published. Its chief feature is a distinct repudiation of the Treaty of London.

The Spenerzche Zeitung of Tuesday publishes a telegram from Vienna asserting that the representatives of Bavaria and Saxe have made declarations to Count Rechberg abandoning the Treaty of 1852, agreeing to the election of Duke Frederick of Augustenburg as separate State independent of Denmark, and absolutely rejecting a personal union between the two.

On Monday an address, bearing 30,000 signatures and requesting the Government to recognise the Duke as a separate State, was presented to the King of Prussia by Count Arnim-Boytzenburg.

The Federal Commissioners have issued a declaration through the Federal Commissioners to the German Diet and Baron von Beust demanding separation from Denmark equally with the two duchies of Schleswig and Holstein.

The Duke of Augustenburg has published a manifesto, in which he protests against the proposed cession to the Crown of the population or his rights. It is stated that, in order to prevent the reception of Duke Frederick by the Schleswig-Holsteiners, the Austrian Holstein having an official character, the Federal Commissioners have instructed the authorities not to receive him.

RUSSIA.

The Budget for 1864 has been published. It shows an equilibrium. The public revenue and expenditure amount to 401,000,000 rbls., of which 355,000,000 are from ordinary sources, 18,000,000 from Treasury bonds, and 28,000,000 from the Polish revenue. The Polish expenditure is estimated at 364,000,000, to which must be added 37,000,000 for extraordinary military expenses.

TURKISH PRINCIPALITIES.

The result of the popular voting in Roumania is almost everywhere unanimous in favour of Prince Couza and his little coup-d'état. Another representative assembly has been convoked in Jassy. A deputy has been arrested, and the papers of some organisation calling itself a National Committee have been discovered.

AMERICA.

The two great armies of the North and the South, let respectively by Grant and Lee, have been engaged in conflict, with slight or prolonged slaughter from the rear of war in Virginia arrive by every mail. Even now, the enormously protracted engagement which have reached us it is not easy to summarise a precise narrative of events.

General Grant took the initiative. The order to cross the Rapidan was given by the latter on Tuesday, May 3, and was effected during the afternoon of that and the early hours of the next day without molestation. Sedgwick commanded the left wing, Hancock the right, Warren the centre, and Burnside the reserve. On each flank Sedgwick commanded the left wing, Hancock the right, Warren the centre, and Burnside the reserve. On each flank Sedgwick was supported by a whole army, with its supply-trains, which had got safely across the river on Wednesday night, and Burnside's corps had not yet got into motion when it became known that Lee's army was advancing upon them. The night was passed in making a line by eleven P.M. Lee had turned from its original line of march and was ordered to take a route said to contain no enemies within ten miles. At five o'clock a detachment was pushed forward from the centre to ascertain Lee's position and strength. They came upon the enemy after advancing about a mile and a half, and found him in unexpected force, and were driven back upon the main body with severe loss. At six A.M. Lee was ready to make his attack on the weak point in the Federal line, and at once attempted to cut off Hancock, who had to retire from his right, to form a line at right angles with that of the centre. Sedgwick was ordered forward to attack, and the completion of the line of battle was accomplished by Hancock, under a terrific fire of musketry. The dense underground of the country prevented the employment of artillery. The battle lasted about 1000 men that day, but Grant had prevented Lee from breaking him through the centre, and was to meet him after the passage of the Rapidan. On the following day (Friday, May 6) the struggle was renewed by the attack on the Federal right wing by the Confederates under the command of General Ewell. It was repulsed, and immediately the left was assailed by Longstreet. This attack was successful, and the men "mauled the right," the right was once more assailed by more formidable numbers, but a second time Ewell was repulsed. On the second line, from ten to five o'clock there was a succession of fierce assaults, but without any decisive success on either side, except that the Confederates repeatedly. The day was excessively hot and the men were exhausted. About five Grant was met with news deeper newly arrived from Orange Courthouse and Hill's corps, made a fierce charge on Hancock's left flank, and forced Getty's division into confusion. The left centre was compelled by this movement to give way, and the conquest of a break. General Hancock ordered Colonel Carroll's brigade to form at right angles with his own, and to charge the enemy's flank. After words this Confederate made a new and fiercer attack. It was this time against Sedgwick's right by a part of the force of the division under General Seymour, and they were at work intrenching themselves when the attack was made. The main line was driven back, but this division of it gave way. Sedgwick's flank was turned in less than ten minutes' time, and the whole brigade, posted with a mule and a half through the wood to a plank road in their rear. Sedgwick, however, retrieved the honour of his corps and maintained his position to the close. The last blow seemed designed only to cover Lee's retreat, which he effected, in good order, during the night. General Grant pushed forward in pursuit, and found his antagonist strongly posted at Spottsylvania Courthouse, on the River Po; and after heavy skirmishing on Sunday, May 8, he attacked his enemy along his whole line on Tuesday, the 10th, the telegrams say, with no decisive result. The battle was severely suffered that no end to doubt. Longstreet is severely wounded, Pegram badly so, and Jackson is killed. On the other hand, Sedgwick and Wadsworth are killed. The losses of officers and men on both sides must have been frightful if there be an approximation to the truth in the estimate which the Federal papers give of the 10th. We suppose, certainly, 10,000 men killed or wounded on the 10th, making an aggregate of 40,000 soldiers, killed, wounded, or missing during the week's campaign.

By the City of Washington and the Belgian we have news from New York to the evening of the 11th.

There was no fighting on the 11th inst., but at an early hour on the morning of the 12th, the 2nd Corps of the General Hancock's corps, which had shifted its position in the Federal line during the night, vigorously attacked the right of the Confederate position at Spottsylvania Court House, carried a line of rifle-pits, and captured 3000 or 4000 prisoners, including General Johnson, who commands the right of the rebel army. The success, however, was said to have been afterwards abandoned or recaptured. A further battle was fought on the 12th, which was said to have lasted all night; but General Grant made no further impression on General Lee's line, the Confederates retaining their positions before Spottsylvania Court House. During the night General Lee withdrew his forces across the River Po, leaving a line of skirmishers in front of General Grant's army. On the morning of the 13th it was reported that two divisions to ascertain whether he had already had retreated.

At the date of the 13th inst. it was not yet known what occupied the General Lee had occupied, or intended to occupy, a strong position on the North and East of Spottsylvania Court House. He had also destroyed several miles of railway in his rear on the 9th or 10th inst. There is a report that General Lee has taken up a position halfway between Chancellorsville and Lynchburg, and another report that he has been attacked and defeated by the Confederate under Breckenridge, General Grant, to whom the Federal Cabinet was sending reinforcements, was supposed to be manœuvring to intercept the retreat of the Confederates with as much speed as was permitted by the state of the roads, which had been rendered difficult by a heavy fall of rain during the night of the 13th inst. The reinforcements had given of the numbers of slain and wounded during the 12th inst.; but we are told that the Washington papers say that they are not calling like grain.

Accounts from other scenes of action are interesting, but for the most part so incomplete, and so far dwarfed by the absorbing interest of the main events, that we have not room for them. General Butler had pushed forward to some extent the auxiliary operations intended to have been effected by a land force, and the rebels claimed to have gained some successes. Nothing having been heard from him for some days, a shade of misgiving was naturally beginning to fall over the hopes of the North, which was likely to deepen any important ad towards the common object of taking Richmond.

The capture of Plymouth, North Carolina, is confirmed, and has been entirely recommenced, with the result, as far as it is known, of leading to the discovery of the Confederate ironclad ram Albemarle. She was destroyed, it is believed, not afloat, but moored to the wharves at Fort Pillow, after having defended it for a long time on the river Mississippi.

From Louisiana the news is more and more disastrous for the Federals. General Banks's retreat from Alexandria by the Red River was cut off by the Confederates, who, after the battle of Pleasant Hill, were endeavouring to reach Bourbeau City. A fleet of steamers, with supplies and reinforcements for him, had been sunk or captured; and Admiral Porter's gunboats above the rapids of the Red River were stranded by a diversion of the waters, and were sure to fall into the hands of the Confederates.

The Governor of Kentucky has issued a call for 10,000 troops, to serve for six months, in order to raise the number of troops in the State for war, and save the Government.

The House of Representatives has adopted a resolution to draw from the army-rolls all unemployed General officers, including Generals M'Clellan and Fremont. It is said that, to speed the bill, plenty of soldiers and sailors, both white and coloured, housetreads from confiscated Southern plantations.

Major-General M'Dowell has been appointed to the command of the military department of the Pacific, and was to leave for California immediately. The object of his appointment is supposed to be the possibility of a rupture with France on the Mexican question.

The letter of the Emperor of the French to M. Rouher, dated April 30, per cent preliminaries.

The Richmond Examiner of the 2nd reports the death, occasioned by a fall, of Joseph E. Davis, aged four years, second son of the Confederate President.

CAPE OF GOOD HOPE.

Governor Wodehouse had returned to Grahamstown, having declined to administer the affairs of the Free State during the present frontier dispute, because the Free State Volksraad would not give him unfettered discretion. They stipulated that the Sand River boundary line of 1852 should be maintained; that the Governor personally should remain in suppressing the frontier cattle-thefts by rigorously enforcing the pass system, upon all natives entering the Orange River territory, of whatever character, or colour.

The mission to the Moselikatzer country was progressing favourably. The missionaries were about to make an application to the old chief for permission to establish a station in Matabele country.

INDIA.

The Bombay mail brings intelligence from Calcutta to the 29th ult., and from Bombay to the 30th ult.

The Viceroy had left Calcutta for Simla, at which place the Viceregal court was to remain until further notice.

The Hon. Ashley Eden had returned to Darjeeling, from Bhotan, where, as is already known, he was engaged on a diplomatic mission by the chief.

The King of Bokhara had released the four Indian officers whom he had imprisoned.

Favourable accounts of the prospect of cotton supplies are received from the Central Provinces, 600,000 acres being under cultivation, with a likelihood of increase if prices keep up.

The Imperial Council has passed a new marriage law for India.

Fresh troubles have broken out in Cabul. The Sirdars had entered into a conspiracy against the Ameer, and had driven him to the hills, urging him to march on Cabul. The Ameer has solicited the aid of the British Government.

The Bombay, Baroda, and Central India Railway has been brought to a successful termination, and was to be shortly opened.

Mr. F. Pulzsky contradicts the report that he has been appointed by the Austrian Government.

A Royal decree has been published at Lisbon creating a colonial bank.

The Queen has approved of M. Gadban as Consul-General in London for the Sublime Ottoman Porte.

Advices received from Alexandria state that 5500 Egyptian troops have been dispatched to quell the insurrection in Yemen.

The people of Winslow, Nevada territory, have adopted measures for constituting a Court of Lynch Law, and Colonel Fossett and English subjects during the insurrectionary movements.

A fete, or rather banquet, was held at Warwick on Friday and Saturday last week, on behalf of the Poles. The articles offered for sale were mainly useful and unpretending, and the sum of 700l. had been sent over to this country to be disposed of in this manner. The presents and ornaments, which were principally of Polish manufacture, were about 100 in number, and comprised necklaces, brooches, earrings, and even wedding-rings, to the value of about 5,000. There would have been many more; but a large number were confiscated on the Austrian frontier, and those which escaped were in the hands of Custom-house officers all the parts of the journey were displayed in the picture-galleries of the mansion, and were under the care of many of the patronesses who had kindly undertaken to preside. Two cave peasants of peculiarly melancholy interest, filled as they were with wedding-rings and keepers belonging to Polish widows who had lost their husbands during the insurrection. The sales were readily effected, and the sympathy excited was deep to the extreme. The house and grounds were crowded by visitors, and amongst them were the Countess Jablonowska, Mr. A. Sallowski, Marquis d'Angelin, and a large number of the members of the Corps Diplomatique, as well as members of the English nobility.

CHURCH AND UNIVERSITIES.

The Venerable John Lee, D.D., was duly installed on Tuesday as Archdeacon of Dudley, in Christ Church Cathedral.

The Church of the Holy Trinity, Birchfield, near Birmingham, was consecrated on the 12th by the Bishop of Lichfield.

A new chancel to the Church of St. John, at Hull, was consecrated yesterday week by the Archbishop of York.

The Rev. Charles Kingsley, Rector of Eversley, Hants, has been appointed Canon of Middleham Collegiate Church, Yorkshire.

The canon d'office has been issued for the appointment of Dr. Jean Joseph Hallaure, Bishop of Clermont (who was created Cardinal Deacon in the Consistory of 1858).

The Rev. Thomas James Church, Leckhampton, Cheltenham, has recently, through the exertions of the Incumbent, the Rev. L. J. Harrison, erected a new and handsome parsonage.

The Bishop of Winchester consecrated, on Thursday, a churchyard and burial-ground, which have been added to the parish of Otterbourne, Bart., of Otterbourne Park, for the use of the inhabitants of the village of Otterbourne and the neighbourhood.

The Venerable Archdeacon Bale addressed the clergy of his Archdeaconry of the diocese of St. Sepulchre's Church, Snow-hill, yesterday week, on the subject of the Bishop of Natal's recent publications, and the position of the Church of England in the Colonies.

The foundation-stone of the parish church of St. Giles's, Dullingham, Sussex, was laid on the 11th inst. by Miss Emily Burton. The church is to be built from designs by Mr. Scott, and to seat 300 persons. The Bishop of the diocese has contributed 250*l.*

Ordinations were held on Trinity Sunday by the Bishops of Bath and Wells, Carlisle, Chester, Chichester, Durham, Ely, Hereford, Lichfield, Llandaff, Oxford, Rochester, and Winchester. The Bishop of St. David's intends to hold a general ordination in the parish church of Lampeter, on Sunday next, as usual.

All Saints' Church, Muston, Yorkshire, was reopened on Whit Tuesday by the Archbishop of York, after having undergone a restoration on the chancel being designed by the patron and lay rector, Admiral Mitford, and the remainder of the church by Mr. Street, of London. The east and west were the gift of his daughter, Mrs. Ambrers.

The Rev. Thomas Hutchinson, to rebuild the old church of Caton, Lancashire, the first stone was laid a few days since by the widow of the late Mr. Littledale, of Halton-house, assisted by the children of the family, the affairs of the parish. The cost has been estimated at about 2,000*l.*, of which Mr. Littledale's friends subscribed 1,000*l.* in his memory.

The new preachers at the Chapel Royal, Whitehall (appointed, 1st, by the Bishop of Oxford, and 2nd, by the Bishop of Winchester), from the 20th of June next for the usual "one years," are—Oxford, Rev. James Riddell, M.A., Fellow of Balliol College, Oxford, and Rev. Joseph Stevenson, B.D., Fellow of Corpus Christi College.

The ceremony of laying the corner-stone of the new chancel of St. John's Church, Stockwell, was performed by the Rev. R. W. Majendie, Rector of the parish. Beneath the corner-stone a glass bottle was deposited, under the stone, bearing the following inscription:—"This stone was laid by the Rev. R. W. Majendie, M.A., Rector, Rev. H. M. Nicolls, M.A., Vicar of Speer, and was consecrated by Richard, Bishop of Oxford, on the 10th day of October, 1850. The chancel was added to the church and consecrated on the year 1864, by the Rev. H. W. Majendie—the Rev. John Adams, M.A., being Vicar of the parish, and Sir Walter Roper Trevelyan, Bart., Patron thereof."

THE UNIVERSITIES AND PUBLIC SCHOOLS.—At Oxford the undermentioned persons have been elected to scholarships and exhibitions as follow:—Chancellor's Prize, to Mr. G. A. Simcox, Fellow of Queen's; Latin Verse, Mr. Wickham, Scholar of New College; Latin Prose, Mr. Cheyne, B.A., Fellow of Worcester; The Newdegate Verse, to Mr. W. J. Courthope, Demy, Magdalen; Chancellor's Essay, Mr. Hutchinson Stephens, one of the Scholars for the ensuing year:—By the Vice-Chancellor, W. G. Ridgway, M.A., Fellow of Brasenose; Ireland Scholar, Mr. H. M. Nicolls, M.A., Vicar of Speer, and was consecrated by Richard, Bishop of Oxford, on the 10th day of October, 1850. The chancel was added to the church and consecrated on the year 1864, by the Rev. H. W. Majendie—the Rev. John Adams, M.A., being Vicar of the parish, and Sir Walter Roper Trevelyan, Bart., Patron thereof.

THE UNIVERSITIES AND PUBLIC SCHOOLS.—At Oxford the undermentioned persons have been elected to scholarships and exhibitions as follow:—Chancellor's Prize, to Mr. G. A. Simcox, Fellow of Queen's; Latin Verse, Mr. Wickham, Scholar of New College; Latin Prose, Mr. Cheyne, B.A., Fellow of Worcester; The Newdegate Verse, to Mr. W. J. Courthope, Demy, Magdalen; Chancellor's Essay, Mr. Hutchinson Stephens, one of the Scholars for the ensuing year:—By the Vice-Chancellor, W. G. Ridgway, M.A., Fellow of Brasenose; Ireland Scholar, Mr. H. M. Nicolls, M.A., Fellow of Queen's; Arnold Prize, Mr. J. G. Hogarth, M.A., Fellow of Queen's.

The Prince of Wales has given 100*l.* to the Welsh Asylum and Prisoners of Wales. The stay of their Royal Highnesses will extend over three days—from Thursday next until Saturday. The Prince and Princess of Wales are prepared, so far as at present arranged, of the festive proceedings:—Wednesday, June 1—Arrival of the Prince and Princess at Chester, and reception by the Mayor and Corporation at the Town Hall. Thursday, June 2—Public Reception and Arrival of the Prince and Princes at noon, presentation of Universities and Public Schools Address, and Reception of Deputations. Inauguration in the Senate House at noon, dinner at Peterhouse, ball at the Fitzwilliam Museum. Friday, June 3—Commencement. Public Orations in the Senate House at twelve, luncheon at King's at two, procession of heads at three, horticultural fete at Chesterton, dinner at Trinity, Fellows' Lodge, ball at Trinity. Saturday—Departure of the Prince and Princess. The Prince and Princess will attend the Commemoration Ball at Fitzwilliam Museum. They have expressed their intention of being present at the Fitzwilliam ball, and on the occasion of the Prince's visit to Cambridge the Prince will distribute prizes to the school of Art. The Prince will take his degree at the Commencement. The Prince will be created M.A. by the Vice-Chancellor, and Prince Leopold Master of Arts. The Prince will receive the honorary degree of D.C.L. will be conferred by special grace during the evening Royal Duke of Cambridge, K.G., Prince Albert, K.G., Prince Leopold, K.G., Prince Louis of Hesse, Earl Granville, the Duke of Manchester, Earl Stanhope, Earl Spencer, Lord Lyttelton, Lord Clarendon, Lord Carnarvon, Lord of the Lord Alfred Hervey, Lord Leigh, Lord Haarts, Sir E. Bulwer Lytton, Sir W. Page Wood, Sir J. Pakington, Sir Roundell Palmer, Sir W. Hardy, Dean of Westminster, Mr. A. J. B. Beresford-Hope, Dr. Watson (President of the Royal Physicians), Dr. Acland, Dr. Jenner, Dr. Wilberforce, Bishop of Winchester.

The election of the manorial fellowship examination in Trinity College, Dublin, which terminated last Saturday week, was highly honourable. The successful competitor is Mr. John P. Mahaffy, who obtained 1054 marks. Mr. Mahaffy's distinguished career in the University includes the first place in honours in classical scholarship; in 1859 he was elected a University student, and was the first in the examination for scholarships in 1860, and in 1861 and again in 1862 and in 1862 and 1863 he was awarded the Madder prize. This splendid honour, therefore, which is given for competition to the first scholar of each of the ordained candidates for fellowship, has this year been awarded, with a colder premium of 40*l.* to Mr. Mahaffy.—Dublin Express.

The Rev. Charles Francis Routledge and Mr. P. Le Page Renouf have been appointed two of her Majesty's Inspectors of Schools.

METROPOLITAN NEWS.

Lord Palmerston was unanimously re-chosen on Monday Master of the Trinity House, in the room of the late Duke of Northumberland.

The exhibition of stained glass is open at the Kensington Museum, and contains contributions from most of the great manufacturers.

The statue of Sir Robert Peel, by Mr. Theed, was placed in the Institute on the 24th of June, at Willis's Rooms, by the Prince of Wales, who had been elected Life Member or President of the Institute.

A floral fête was held in the Royal Horticultural Society's gardens at Kensington on Wednesday afternoon, being one of the first conversaziones for the season on Thursday.

The first grand flower show of the season was held on Saturday in the grounds of the Royal Botanic Society, Regent's Park. Although the weather was dull and wet, there was a large number of the aristocracy as well as of the general public present.

The Islington dog show began yesterday (Friday). The entries are numerous, and the arrangements complete. The exhibition is for one-hound entry is very smart, but the Royal Highness the Prince of Wales has generously offered a prize for a single dog, which will be awarded to-morrow day night.

The first annual general meeting of the Public Schools Club took place on Monday, the chair being taken by Dalrymple Spence, Esq., in the year 1864-65 the average number (corrected) was 1915.—There was an increase of more than a hundred in the deaths of the week that ended last Saturday over those of any of the three previous weeks. The number to last week was 1421. The average number of deaths in the twentieth week of ten years was 1,000. Fortune, in many instances, favoured the brave.

The anniversary meeting of the Royal Geographical Society was held at Burlington House, London, on Monday—Sir Roderick Murchison presiding. From the report is appeared that since the last anniversary meeting 253 new members had been elected, and sixty-one vacancies had occurred, the total number of fellows now being 1,161. The balance-sheet was favourable, the difference between the actual receipts and actual outlay having left a surplus balance in hand of 1,631*l.* The funded capital of the society consists of 4,100 stock, yielding an annual income of 103*l.*, as the reserve fund of the society. The Royal medals were awarded to the travellers, the report stated that the sum of 400 was voted to Mr. Bentley Gerard on the 15th of February, 1864, to assist him in his projected journey to the Interior of Southern Tibetation; and the Council had at present a proposal under the consideration of Government for the exploration of the Nile from Egypt, for which a sum of 1,000 would be required. The founder's medal fell to Captain the Hon. Dr. Dickson, for the journey from the east coast of Africa to the great mountains of Kilimandscharo, and the Victoria medal was presented to Mr. Gray, a speech very complimentary to the zeal and energy of the Baron, who was now filling out his second year of office. The anniversary was presented to Mr. Grant, for his Nile discovery. The annual dinner of the society took place on Whitsuntide in the rooms of the Freemasons' Tavern.

LAW AND POLICE.—A very important decision was given, on Tuesday, in the Court of Exchequer. The question arose whether the Middle-level Commissioners were liable for the neglect of their servants in respect of the repairs of the bridges over the drains. The judges of law and the Lord Chief Justice held they were not; Mr. Justice Blackburn was of a different opinion. The case is to be carried to the Court of Appeal.

Vice Chancellor Sir John Stuart gave judgment, on Wednesday, in the long-pending action between Sir John Shelley, Bart., and the trustees of the Pimlico neighbourhood improvement scheme, which was instituted for the object of granting verbal leases, renewable in perpetuity, and the present Baronet, who succeeded to the estate, claimed the leases on a term of years only, and to raise the rents, which led to a dispute that finally issued in Sir John bringing an action of ejectment. The question was tried in the court of common pleasure, and the Vice Chancellor decided that the tenant had acquired a right to the leases which he claimed, and dismissed the bill, but granted the perpetual right to be declined. Sir John Ramsden to pay the costs of the suit.

Mr. Thomas Hughes, M.P., has addressed a letter to the working classes for raising a subscription to send Nonconformists to New York was finished in the Court of Queen's Bench, on Tuesday, by the sentence of imprisonment upon that the proprietor of a penny gaff, and another for landed over to the United States authority. Justice Crompton, Blackburn, and Shee were, however, of opinion that the sentence was not illegal. Judge Lush in favour of the liberation of the prisoners, they were at once set free.

Yesterday week, application was made in the Court of Bankruptcy on Monday, Colonel Waugh came up before Mr. Commissioner Goulbourn for settlement and discharge, and Mr. Bacon, the solicitor, brought before the Court a petition for proof of his debts. Both bankrupts will appear again, Mr. Windham on the 30th inst., and Colonel Waugh on the 31st.

At the old woman, named Blackie, who is known among the begging fraternity of London as the "Queen of the Gipsies," was brought before Mr. Commissioner Pelice Court, last Saturday, with begging in the streets. She denied that she had ever before been in custody, but from an officer residing in the line of convictions against her, the said, "All right, my pippin, you have done your best; and what is left for me to do is to do mine." The old woman's appeal said he should now send her to the House of Correction for one month, with hard labour. She was then removed, to appear again for the same offence she should make it more. The prisoner—Oh, that is joyful! I'm only going to my home for a few days!" The magistrate smiled while she was removed.

THE VOLUNTEER REVIEW IN HYDE PARK

At its review of volunteers in Hyde Park on Saturday, in celebration of the Queen's birthday, there will be a total of about 22,000 men and twenty-six guns. The force will be divided in addition to Hyde Park, by the 3rd march past the Field Marshal Commanding-in-Chief at six o'clock. The following is the list of corps present:—

TO ENTER BY HYDE PARK GATE.

Cavalry, Captain W. Fitzwygram, Commanding.—1st Surrey Light Horse, Lieutenant Sir Charles Forbes, Bart., 36; 1st Middlesex, Lieutenant J. F. Leach, 11; 1st Hertford, Captain Lord Dacre, 50; total, 97. Infantry, Major Lord Elcho, Commanding.

Artillery Brigade, Lieut.-Colonel Lord Truro commanding.—1st Administrative Brigade Middlesex, eight guns, Lieut.-Colonel Creed, 70; 2nd Middlesex, twelve guns, Captain Hall, 120; total, 176. In column of route on the east side of Stanrower glade; head of column to be opposite Tattersall's at 5.45 p.m., by Albert-gate to south, west entrance of Hyde Park.

Engineer Brigade, Lieut.-Colonel Lord Truro commanding.—1st Middlesex Engineers, Captain Lloyd, 60; 2nd Middlesex, Captain Lewis, 60; Infantry, Major Bateman, Hon. Artillery Company, Light Cavalry, 1st Surrey, Infantry, Major Robinson, 300; 1st Surrey Engineers, Captain Lloyd, 60; 1st Kent, Captain Bowyer, 903; 2nd, 3rd Cambridge (University), Lieut.-Colonel James Baker, 1st Sussex, 1st Middlesex (Victoria Rifles), Lieut.-Colonel Wyndham Lewis, 641; total, 1398. West side of Horse Guards-parade; to march at 6.40 p.m., by Constitution-hill.

First Brigade, First Division, Lieut.-Colonel Gladstein commanding.—1st Administrative Brigade Middlesex, 70; Hall, 600; 19th Middlesex, 1st Kent, Lieut.-Colonel C. Ellis, 800; 2nd Middlesex and 1st City of London, Major Fraser, 1st Warwick, Lieut.-Colonel Wise, 1st Administrative Brigade Middlesex, R.E. Tug Force, 300; 1st Administrative Brigade (Gloucestershire), Lieut.-Colonel Wise, 1st Middlesex (Victoria Rifles), Lieut.-Colonel Wyndham Lewis, 641; total, 4,450 (in column of route); to march under special instructions.

Second Brigade, First Division, Lieut.-Colonel Lord Vernon commanding.—1st Battalion, 11th Middlesex (St. George's) and 32nd Middlesex, Major Fox, 1st Middlesex (Victoria Rifles), Lieut.-Colonel Wyndham Lewis, 641; Cavalry Fitzgerald, 422; 3rd, 32nd Middlesex (Queen's), 2nd Battalion, Major Russell, 421; 4th, 10th Middlesex (Hackney), Lieut.-Colonel Lord Vernon, 1st Surrey, 371; total, 1624. East end of Mall: to march at 4.40 p.m., by Constitution-hill.

TO ENTER BY ALBERT GATE.

Third Brigade, First Division, Lieut.-Colonel Viscount Bamleigh commanding.—1st Middlesex Engineers, Captain Lloyd, 60; 2nd Middlesex, 1st Middlesex Engineers, Lieut.-Colonel Macleod of Macleod, 526; 2nd, 4th Administrative Battalion, Middlesex, Lieut.-Colonel Wyndham Lewis, 641; 2nd Middlesex, Lieut.-Colonel Sir J. V. Shelley, Bart., 291; 4th, 2nd South Middlesex, Captain C. Ashley, 400; 1st Middlesex (Victoria Rifles), Lieut.-Colonel Wyndham Lewis, 641; total, 2,750; to march at 4.10 p.m., by Albert-gate to south, west entrance of Rotten-row.

Fourth Brigade, First Division, Lieut.-Colonel Sir Percy Herbert commanding.—1st Battalion, 1st Middlesex, Major A. L. Cole, C.B., 298; 1st Surrey (Southwark), Major M. Dowdeswell, 250; 2nd, 3rd Administrative Battalion, Surrey, Lieut.-Colonel A. L. Cole, C.B., 298; total, 1236; to march at 4.40 p.m., by Albert-gate to south, west entrance of Rotten-row.

Fifth Brigade, Second Division, Lieut.-Colonel G. E. Thynne commanding.—1st Battalion, 16th, 17th and 23rd Surrey, Major W. H. Lubree, 480; 2nd, 5th, 2nd Tunbridge, 10th Kent (Royal Arsenal), Lieut.-Colonel W. H. Lubree, 480; 2nd, 2nd Tunbridge, 10th Kent (Royal Arsenal), Lieut.-Colonel J. Anderson, 351; 1st, 2nd Tunbridge, 10th Kent (Royal Arsenal), Colonel W. H. Lubree, 480; total, 1,791; to march at 4.40 p.m., by Albert-gate to south, west entrance of Rotten-row, following 4th Brigade, 1st Division.

TO ENTER BY CONSTITUTION GATE.

Second Brigade, Second Division, Lieut.-Colonel the Marquis of Donegall commanding.—1st Battalion, 1st Administrative Battalion Kent, Lieut.-Colonel Cracklebank, 347; 2nd, 4th Middlesex (London Irish), Lieut.-Colonel J. R. Brinckman, 1st Kent, Lieut.-Colonel A. R. Richards, 351; 1st, 2nd City of London Rifle Volunteer Brigade, Lieut.-Colonel G. Wardle, 648; 13th, 2nd Middlesex (Civil Service), Lieut.-Colonel Lord Elcho, 1,000; total, Grosvenor-square, W.; to march at 4.50 p.m.

Third Brigade, Second Division, Lieut.-Colonel J. S. Walker commanding.—1st Battalion, 1st Administrative Battalion Essex, Lieut.-Colonel Sir C. W. G. De Crespigny, 400; 1st, 2nd Administrative Battalion Middlesex, Lieut.-Colonel Charles Capper, 600; 2nd, 2nd Administrative Battalion Essex, Lieut.-Colonel J. S. Walker, 400; 1st, 2nd, 3rd Administrative Battalion Hertfordshire, Lieut.-Colonel Bevan, 400; 1st, 2nd Administrative Battalion Essex, Lieut.-Colonel Bevan, 400; 1st, 2nd, 3rd Administrative Battalion Middlesex, Lieut.-Colonel C. B. Fortescue, 400; 1st, 2nd Administrative Battalion Essex, 400; total, 3,000; to march into north-west entrance of inclosure.

Fifth Brigade, Second Division, Lieut.-Colonel Lord Bolsteck commanding.—1st Battalion, 1st Administrative Battalion Cambridge, Lieut.-Colonel Whitehead, 400; 2nd, 2nd Administrative Battalion Cambridge, Lieut.-Colonel Whitehead, 400; 3rd and 19th Middlesex, Lieut.-Colonel Lord Bolsteck, 1,000; 1st Administrative Battalion Cambridge, Lieut.-Colonel Capper, 300; total, 2,100. Gloucester-square; to march at 5.45 p.m., by Grosvenor-gate to south.

TO ENTER BY CUMBERLAND GATE.

Third Brigade, Third Division, Lieut.-Colonel H. R. Brooke commanding.—1st Battalion, 19th Middlesex and 8th Bedford, Lieut.-Colonel T. Hughes, 691; 2nd, 37th Middlesex, Lieut.-Colonel J. M. Cowie, 377; 3rd, 40th Middlesex, Lieut.-Colonel A. F. Somerset, 602; 4th, 39th Middlesex, Lieut.-Colonel Fenton, 321; 5th, 40th Middlesex, Major G. J. Boyer, 289; total, 1795. Russell square; to march at 4.15 p.m., by Regent-street, Quadrant, Quadrant, Regent-street, Edward-street, and Great Cumberland-street.

Fourth Brigade, Third Division, Lieut.-Colonel Earl Grosvenor commanding.—1st Battalion, 1st Administrative Battalion Worcester, Lieut.-Colonel E. Lloyd, 450; 2nd, 1st Battalion (Devon Mead), Lieut.-Colonel C. F. Wright, 570; 2nd, 1st Warwick (Birmingham), Lieut.-Colonel J. O. Mason, 613; 4th, 1st Administrative Battalion Derbyshire, Lieut.-Colonel H. Wilmot, 600; 25th, 32nd Lancashire (2nd Manchester), Lieut.-Colonel J. H. Cunliffe, 450; total, 2,684. Portman-square; to march at 4.30 p.m., by Great Cumberland-street.

By order,

M. P. MUNDY.

War Office, May 24, 1864.

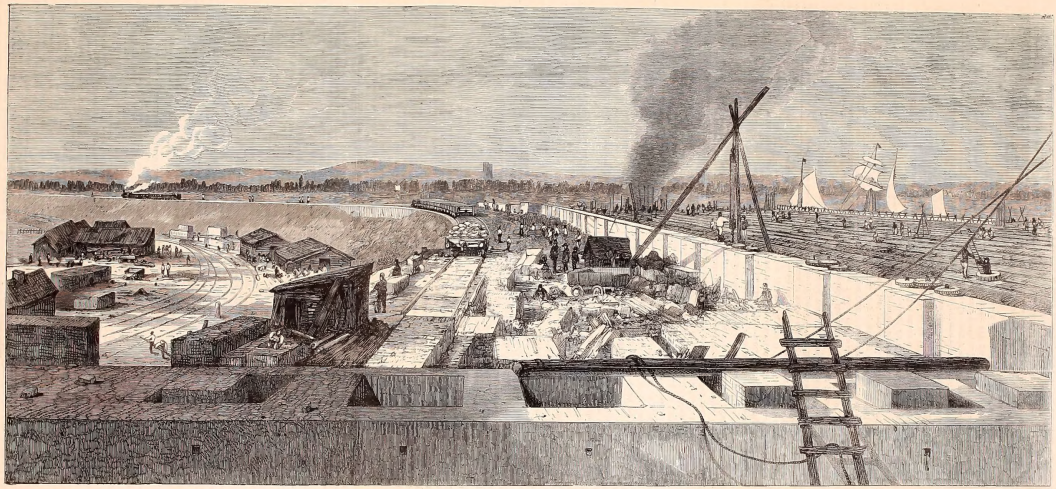
THE RIGHT REV. DR. JEUNE, BISHOP OF PETERBOROUGH.

THE Right Rev. Francis Jeune D.D., the new Bishop of Peterborough, is a son of the late Francis Jeune, Esq., of Jersey, where he was born, about the year 1806. He entered upon one of the Jersey foundations at Pembroke College, Oxford, graduated B.A. in 1827, and, having taken first-class honours in classics, was chosen Fellow of his college. For several years subsequently he held a college tutorship, and was appointed Examiner in 1834. His next became Head Master of King Edward's School, Birmingham, taking, at the same time, his degree of D.C.L. In 1836 he was appointed Dean of Jersey, and obtained the mastership of Pembroke College in 1845. When the question of University reform was in agitation, Dr. Jeune was chosen one of the Commissioners who were directed to inquire into the state of the University of Oxford. In 1859 he was appointed Vice-Chancellor of the University of Oxford, an office which he held for the three following years. During a part of this time the Prince of Wales was an Undergraduate of the University. Dr. Jeune was appointed Dean of Lincoln towards the close of last year. He is now raised to the see of Peterborough.

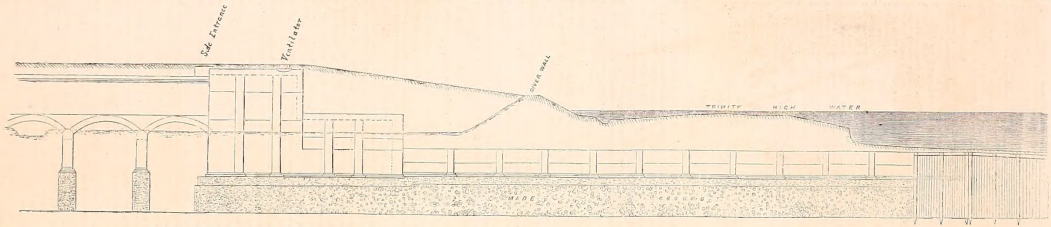
The Engraving of his portrait is from a photograph by Messrs. J. and C. Watkins, of Parliament-street.

THE RIGHT REV. FRANCIS JEUNE, D.D., BISHOP DESIGNATE OF PETERBOROUGH.

LONDON MAIN DRAINAGE WORKS.—NORTH SIDE.



IN the ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS of last week we gave a Map of this portion of the river Thames, below Woolwich, where the outfalls of the northern and southern systems of main drainage are placed on the opposite shores. We also gave two large Engravings representing the buildings and machinery of the southern outfall at Crossness. We now proceed with similar Illustrations of the great northern outfall on the Essex side of the Thames, west of the river Roding (generally known as Barking Creek.) Our Engraving on the next page shows the present state of the works at Barking Creek. The embankment in the distance extends nearly from Hackney to this point, and contains buried in it the great outfall sewers through which the entire accumulated drainage of the metropolis north of the Thames finds its way into the river. The point of sight chosen by the artist is immediately over the outlet to the river (shown in section below). The extensive works indicated on the right of the Engraving are the tops of the arches which cover the reservoir (twelve acres in extent) in which the sewage is allowed to accumulate during the greater part of the tide, and from which it is allowed to escape by gravitation at or near the time of high water, so that it may be carried down the river with the ebb tide. But it is not intended to allow the sewage to run off with the bottom of the ebb; the sluices will be closed two hours before low water, so that the last of it will have travelled sufficiently far down the river before the tide returns to prevent it again visiting the metropolis. Or if it does come back part of the distance, it will be in combination with such a mass of pure water that it will not be noticeable.



The Illustration below shows the manner in which the numerous waterways and branches of the Lea River are crossed by the aqueducts of the main drainage-works. These are generally wrought-iron tubes and girders, supported at each end by piers and abutments of solid masonry. The example shown in the Illustration is that which crosses the canal immediately below Abbey Mills, at West Ham. When the whole of the main-drainage scheme is carried out, which it will be when the Thames embankment from Westminster to Blackfriars Bridge is completed and the new street thence to the Mansion House made, there will be erected at West Ham the largest pumping establishment of the entire work. It will require engine-power to the extent of 1140 horses to give the accumulated drainage of the metropolitan low-level district on the north side of London its final lift into the great outfall sewer, through which it will flow by gravitation into the river at Barking Creek. The engine-power proposed to be erected at this point will consist of eight double-acting condensing engines, with cylinders 84 in. in diameter, with a stroke of 9 ft., and working pumps, two to each engine, of 60 in. diameter.

The sewage from the western districts of the metropolis on the north side of the river, including the localities of East Acton, Fulham, Hammersmith, Shepherd's-bush, Brook-green, Brompton, Chelsea, and Pimlico, which, together with so much rain-water as it is proposed to divert from the river, is estimated to amount to 200,000 gallons per day. It will be lifted, in the first instance, by steam-power to a height of 171 ft. at a pumping-station to be erected near the Thames, at the outlet of the Grosvenor Canal at Pimlico, whence it will be conveyed by a continuation of the Ranelagh sewer, but at a higher level, to be again lifted at the West Hem station. To lift 6000 cubic feet per minute at Pimlico, it is intended to erect four double-acting pumping-engines, each of 40 (nominal) horse power, or 240-horse power in all, working eight double-acting pumps each 42½ in. in diameter, the cylinder of each engine being 36 in. in diameter and having a stroke of 8 ft. The sewage lifted at this point will be carried through the low-level sewer, which for its base since the Thames embankment, now in course of construction, and along the intended new street to the Houses of Parliament so far as Canon-street; and thence in an easterly course past the Tower and the neighbourhood of the London Docks and Limehouse to the large pumping establishment at Abbey Mills. This sewer will collect, in its course, in addition to the water from the storm-overflows, the sewage from Westminster, the City, Mile-end, Shadwell, Stepney, Bow, Limehouse, Poplar, Bromley, and Blackwall; the whole of which—amounting in all to 15,000 cubic feet per minute—will be lifted at Abbey Mills into the outfall sewer, already constructed, and conveyed through it to Barking Creek.

LONDON MAIN-DRAINAGE WORKS: AQUEDUCT AT ABBEY MILLS, STRATFORD.

LONDON MAIN-DRAINAGE WORKS: VIEW AND SECTION OF THE OUTFALL OF THE NORTHERN DRAINAGE AT BARKING CREEK.—SEE PRECEDING PAGE.

In the ensuing autumn, we believe, the southern outfall works will be finished, and there will be a formal opening of the entire system both on the north and south sides of the Thames. It is true that Mr. Bazalgette's plan will not be completely carried out until he has finished the Thames Embankment, the works of the new street from Blackfriars Bridge to the Mansion House, and the completion of Embankment at Abbey Mills, because the drainage of the western suburbs of London, on the north side, will still fall into the river until those works are completed. But, as all the great sewers and storm-overflows into the Thames will have been closed, except for storm waters, we may then consider the sewage question as practically settled so far as the River Thame. We believe it will then ship and flow exceedingly pure; the wash of the steam-boats will be found to be trifling. It shall be pleasanted if we do not find the shore of the Thames between Lambeth and Battersea as clean and sweet as those of the coast.

We have passed over these works during their early stages, we have also watched them carefully as they have approached towards completion, and we feel sanctified in saying that they have been executed with great skill and judgment; the workmanship throughout is unequalled, and the materials used unexceptionable. Those who design and execute works of this class may justly claim the warmest credit than they deserve from the general public, as there is so little seen of them when completed, nearly all the most important parts being buried underground, and with them the history of the exertion and dangers that have been incurred, and the skill and perseverance that has been brought to bear upon them during their construction. Many London tunnels have been driven, however, many fine works above ground, and these are generally as good-looking as they are skilfully constructed. They may also have been carried out in a proper spirit, the skill of the engineer being supported by the liberality of those who employ him; for there is an indication of meanness at any point as much opposed to good engineering. To do the thing well and at once seems to have been the rule; and we feel sure that when both the new and old outfall are brought fairly to the knowledge of the public, the board which has controlled the engineer who has designed and executed them will have executed it will receive the proper amount of credit due to them.

CALENDAR FOR THE WEEK ENDING JUNE 4.

SUNDAY, May 23.—First Sunday after Trinity. Birth of King Charles II. 1630. Sir Rodrigo Diaz de Vivar, the Cid Campeador, died 1099. Grand display of Fireworks on account of the Peace with Russia, 1802.

MONDAY, 25.—Death of Archbishop Usher, 1656. Battle of Palo Alto, 1846.

TUESDAY, 26.—Death of Joseph Haydn, the great composer, 1809. Severe destructive battle of Resaca, near Dalton, Georgia, U.S., 1864.

WEDNESDAY, June 1.—Nicomede Bianchi, Prussian Envoy and Martyr. Jack Cade and his followers defeating the Staffordshire Militia, under Lord Audley, defeated by the Covenanters at Dromlecg, 1678.

THURSDAY, 2.—The Founding Hospital (established by Thomas Coram) opened, 1756. George III. receives John Adams, the first Ambassador from the United States of North America, 1785.

FRIDAY, 3.—Death of William Harvey, discoverer of the circulation of the blood, 1657.

SATURDAY, 4.—Charles I. captured by Argyle, at Kelsey, Northamptonshire, 1647. Battle of Magenta: Victory of the Emperor of the French and the King of Sardinia over the Austrians, 1859. New Moon, 11h. 49m. a.m.

TIMES OF HIGH WATER AT LONDON BRIDGE,
FOR THE WEEK ENDING JUNE 4, 1864.

Sunday.	Monday.	Tuesday.	Wednesday.	Thursday.	Friday.	Saturday.
H. M. A. M.	H. M. A. M.	H. M. A. M.	H. M. A. M.	H. M. A. M.	H. M. A. M.	H. M. A. M.
1 20	2 0	2 40	3 20	4 0	4 40	5 20
1 37	1 57	2 17	2 37	2 57	3 17	3 37

THE WEATHER.

RESULTS OF METEOROLOGICAL OBSERVATIONS AT THE ROYAL OBSERVATORY OF THE ROYAL SOCIETY.

Lat. 51° 29′ 0″ N.; Long. 0° 0′ 45″ W.; Height above sea, 34 feet.

	DAILY MEANS OF				THERMOMETER.		WIND.		RAIN.
	Barometer, corrected and reduced to 32° Fahr.	Temperature of Air.	Dew Point Temperature.	Humidity. Amount of Saturation.	Highest in the Day.	Lowest in the Night.	General Direction.	Horizontal Motion in Miles.	Depth in Inches.
	Inches.	°	°	Saturation = 100	°	°		Miles in 24 hours.	Inches.
13	29·216	59·9	52·4	·56	69·5	47·4	NE. N.	78	·000
14	29·170	60·2	52·6	·56	69·8	47·6	NE. NE.	181	·000
15	30·079	57·4	52·3	·62	69·3	42·8	SW. SSW.	239	·000
16	30·077	57·4	49·9	·87	64·7	47·3	SW. SSW.	227	·000
17	30·053	59·4	45·7	·71	74·2	45·6	SW.	227	·000
18	29·963	57·4	47·7	·77	65·6	47·2	SW. NNE.	192	·000
19	29·917	57·4	48·1	·77	65·6	47·2	SW. NNE.	192	·000

The following are the readings of the meteorological instruments for the above days, in order, at half-past nine a.m.:—

	13th.	14th.	15th.	16th.	17th.	18th.	19th.
Barometer in Inches reduced to 32° Fahr.	29·216	29·170	30·079	30·077	30·053	29·963	29·917
Temperature of Air	59·0°	59·0°	55·0°	55·0°	57·0°	55·0°	55·0°
Temperature of Evaporation	52·0°	52·0°	51·0°	49·0°	45·0°	47·0°	47·0°
Direction of Wind	NE.	NE.	SW.	SW.	SW.	SW.	NW.

THEATRE ROYAL, DRURY-LANE.—Messrs. Gye and Harris have the honour to announce that the Theatre will be closed on WEDNESDAY, MONDAY, and TUESDAY next, and will open on WEDNESDAY, June 1, with a GRAND MUSICAL CONCERT, to take place on SATURDAY, JUNE 6, 1868, when the following eminent artists have promised their assistance:—Mdlle. Titiens, Mdme. Lemmens-Sherrington, Mdlle. Wilde, Mr. Henry Reeves, Mr. Weiss, and Signor Gardoni. Mdlle. Parepa, Mdlle. Tietjens, Mdlle. Lemmens, Mdlle. Adelaide Phillipps, Mr. Sims Reeves, Mr. Santley, and Signor Foli. Director of the Music, Mr. Alfred Mellon. Leader, Mr. Sainton. Conductor, Mr. Benedict. Tickets and places to be had at the Box Office, from 10 till 5 daily.

THEATRE ROYAL, HAYMARKET.—Immense success of A CHARM AND WITH THE CHANGE, and overwhelming success of the farce in the new character of CORNELIUS MOONEY, HAY, by Mr. Buckstone, EVERY EVENING, with Mr. Sothern, Mr. Arthur Stirling, Mr. Howe, Mr. Clarke, Mr. Chippendale, Mr. Compton, and Miss Louise Angel. After which, at a Quarter to Eight, DAVID GARRICK—Mr. Sothern. Concluding with A CHARM AND WITH THE CHANGE. Box-office open from 10 to 5. Doors open at Half-past Seven. Stalls, 10s. 6d.; Dress Circle, 7s.; Upper Boxes, 5s.; Pit, 3s.; Gallery, 2s.; Upper Gallery, 1s. Tickets and places to be had at the Box Office, from 10 till 5 daily.

THEATRE ROYAL, DUBLIN.—Immense success of MR. CHARLES MATHEWS, who EVERY EVENING at Seven o'clock will perform his celebrated Entertainment of AT HOME. Concluding with the new and successful farce of MR. BUCKSTONE'S. Box-office open from 10 to 5. Doors open at Half-past Six. Private Boxes, £2 2s.; Dress Circle, 5s.; Upper Boxes, 3s.; Pit, 2s.; Gallery, 1s. Acting Manager, Mr. Charles Mathews. To conclude with SHAKE HANDS—Mr. J. Cave.

MADAME TUSSAUD'S HISTORICAL GALLERY, the celebrated twenty-eight years, at the BAZAAR, Baker-street.—A MODEL of the Illustrious Duke of Wellington, from the commencement of his career as a private to the present time, is now added. Admittance, 1s.; extra Rooms, 6d. Open from Eleven o'clock until Half-past Five.

CRYSTAL PALACE.—SATURDAY, MAY 28, the GREAT FLOWER SHOW of the Season, Tickets Season Tickets Free. Admission Tickets Seven Shillings and Sixpence. Doors open at Ten. Fine Promenade Gallery of Flowers. Flower Show from Tickets till Seven. Great Fountains at Two. Programme Ticket.

CRYSTAL PALACE.—Extra Attractions and Arrangements for Whit-sunday, Monday, and Tuesday.

Sunday, Open at Nine; Tuesday to Friday, at Ten. One Shilling; under twelve Sixpence.

Monday, Tuesday, Friday, a new and highly interesting Programme, and GRAND FIREWORKS. By J. F. Wonder, Esq.: Music by Signor Alberto Randegger. Characters by Mr. Fox, Mr. Paulo, Mr. Harry Payne, Mr. Rouse, Mr. Wilson, Mr. Bedford, Mr. Bradbury, Mr. Lewis, Mr. Ryan, Mr. Hall, Mr. Hillier attended by the ladies and gentlemen in waiting, entered the concert-room soon after ten o'clock, when the concert was commenced. The performers, exceeding 160 in number, consisted of the Queen's private band, aided by several instrumentalists of the Philharmonic Society, Her Majesty's Theatre, and the Royal Italian Opera, the chorus being selected from the operas and the Sacred Harmonic Society, Exeter Hall. The performance was conducted by Mr. Anderson, the director of her Majesty's private band.

The Baroness of Ely officiated as Mistress of the Robes for the Duchess of Wellington, who was unable to attend from indisposition.

The Princess of Wales wore a black tulle dress, with flounces of tulle and jet ornaments, and a head-dress of tulle and jet. Head-dress, a tiara of jet, with jet ornaments. Her Royal Highness also wore the Order of the Garter and Albert Edward, and the Order of Isabella.

The Duchess of Cambridge wore a black silk dress trimmed with flounces of tulle, and covered with a deep lace tunic. Head-dress, a tiara of diamonds and pearls, with lappets, ornamented with diamond lace and carriage pearls and diamonds.

Princess Mary wore a white satin dress, trimmed with tulle and satin ribbon, covered with a tunic of Brussels lace. Head-dress, a diadem of diamonds and white feathers; stomacher; necklace and earrings of pearls and diamonds.

The Prince of Wales wore the uniform of a general officer, with the insignia of the Garter and the Star and Collar of the Star of Isabella.

THE PRINCE AND PRINCESS OF WALES.

The Prince and Princess of Wales continue at Marlborough House.

Yesterday (to-night) the Prince attended Her Majesty's Theatre concert. Subsequently their Royal Highnesses drove out. The Marchioness of Hastings, with a distinguished party of friends, dined and attended at Marlborough House to present some lace to the Princess. The Marquis of Ely, Equerry in waiting, accompanied the ladies and presented an oak casket. Lady Georgiana Vernon, with a deputation of ladies from Worcester, attended to present to the Princess a work-box and writing-case, enamel, manufactured at the Royal Porcelain Works, Worcester, and presented by the lady of the Mayoress. Several gentlemen and ladies from Worcester attended to present a breakfast service.

On Saturday the Princess of Wales received visits from the Countess of Morton and Lady Teesdale, drove to Hampton Court. In the evening their Royal Highnesses honoured the Royal Italian Opera with their presence.

On Sunday the Prince and Princess attended Divine service at the Chapel Royal, St. James's. The Rev. the Hon. and Rev. Canon Liddell, the Sub-Dean, the Rev. J. V. Povah, and the Rev. T. Helmore.

On Monday the Princess of Wales, with Princess Mary, rode out and visited the Grand Duke of Mecklenburg-Strelitz at St. James's Palace. In the afternoon the Princess honoured the Royal Horse of Leeds. The Princess, attended by the Countess of Morton, drove out.

On Tuesday the Princess of Wales, accompanied by Princess Mary and Prince Adolphus of Mecklenburg-Strelitz and attended by the Countess of Morton and Lieutenant-Colonel Keppel, visited and present at the parade of troops at the Horse Guards in honour of the Queen's birthday. Subsequently the Prince rode out and the Princess took a drive. In the evening the Right Hon. Chichester Fortescue, attended by the Grand Duke of Mecklenburg-Strelitz and Prince Adolphus, honoured the Princess of Wales with a visit. Princess Mary, the Duchess of Montpelier, the Princess Marie Isabella of Orleans, and the Duke of Aumale, visited the Queen Dowager.

On Wednesday the Prince, accompanied by the Hon. C. Carington and attended by the Hon. Col. Keppel, visited the Queen's birthday at "the Derby." The Princess, attended by the Countess of Morton, drove out.

The Rev. Professor Gibson has had the honour of explaining to the Princess of Wales and their Royal Highnesses Princess Mary and Prince Royal Highnesses on their marriage by the Presbyterians of Ireland.

Mr. Leonard C. Wyon has been honoured by his Royal Highness with a sitting for the execution of a bust of his Royal Highness, for which the Prince is president.

His Royal Highness has also honoured Mr. Barraud with a sitting for his portrait for the picture of Hyde Park.

THE PRINCE AND PRINCESS LOUIS OF HESSE.

The Prince and Princess Louis of Hesse arrived in London on Thursday from the Continent. The Royal yacht Victoria and Albert conducted the Prince and Princess from Antwerp, and anchored in the Downs on Thursday morning, from which place their Royal Highnesses travelled by a special train to the Bricklayers' Arms Station, South-Eastern Railway to Charing-cross terminus. Here they were met by the Prince and Princess of Wales and Princess Mary of Cambridge. They proceeded to Marlborough House on a short visit, and in the course of the day left on a visit to her Majesty at Balmoral.

PRINCE ALFRED.

His Royal Highness Prince Alfred was present at the marriage of his cousin, Princess Clotilde of Saxe-Coburg and Gotha, with the Archduke Joseph, which was solemnised on Sunday last at Gotha. His Royal Highness proceeded thence on a visit to the Prince and Princess of Hesse, then, on Tuesday, to Turin and Geneva, to Marseilles, at which place he joined the Racoon on Sunday.

PRINCE ARTHUR.

His Royal Highness Prince Arthur, attended by Major Elphinstone, visited the Dockyard, Woolwich, yesterday (Friday), where he was received by Captain Commissioner Hewett, C.B., and Mr. Barnaby, at the landing-stage, on board the twin screw steam-launch recently completed as a tender to the large ships of the Channel squadron. She which proceeded up the river on a trial-trip. On her return to Woolwich his Royal Highness subsequently visited the Royal Arsenal at Blackheath.

On Saturday last his Royal Highness, accompanied by Prince Mecklenburg, visited the Royal Arsenal, Woolwich, and occupied about three hours in inspection of the gun factories, the laboratories and other departments.

Earl and Countess Russell, accompanied by Lady Georgiana Russell and family, arrived at their residence in Chesham-place on Monday, from Pembroke Lodge, Richmond Park.

The Countess De Grey has left town on a visit to the Marquis and Marchioness of Westminster, at their seat in Cheshire.

Lord Broughan arrived at his residence in Grafton-street, on Sunday, from Paris.

His Highness Prince Mustapha Pacha, brother and heir to the Viceroy of Egypt, arrived at Claridge's Hotel on Tuesday, from Paris.

A marriage is fortunately believed on Mr. Henry Milbank, third son of Mr. and Lady Augusta Milbank, nephew of the Duke of Cleveland, and brother-in-law of the Right Hon. Sir Stafford Northcote, with Miss Dora Deberah, eldest daughter of the Duke of Leeds, and sister-in-law of the Marchioness of Carmarthen.

FASHIONABLE AND POLITICAL ENTERTAINMENTS.

Ministerial banquets were given on Tuesday evening in celebration of the Queen's birthday by the following members of the Government:—The Lord Steward of the Household—The Duke of Somerset; the Secretary of Admiralty, Sir Frederick Grey, Bart.; the Secretary for War, the Right Hon. Sidney Herbert, Palmerston, K.G.; Viscount Hardinge, G.C.B.; the Right Hon. Sir George Grey, G.C.B.; the Right Hon. Sir Charles Wood, G.C.B.; the Right Hon. Edward Cardwell, M.P.; the Right Hon. the Chancellor of the Exchequer; the Attorney-General, Sir Roundell Palmer; and the Royal Body Guard of the Hon. Corps of Gentlemen-at-Arms.

The Archbishop of Canterbury had a dinner-party on Wednesday evening at Lambeth Palace.

The Archbishop of York gave a grand dinner on Tuesday evening at his residence in Cavendish-square, in celebration of the Queen's birthday.

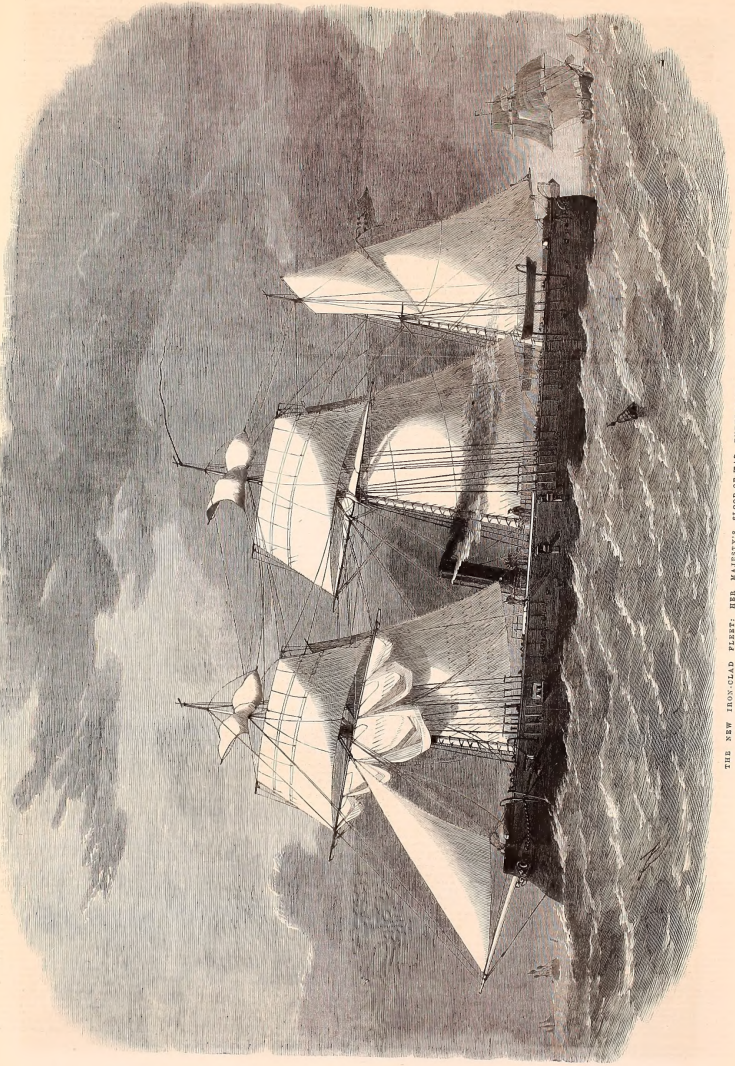
The Duchess of Inverness had an evening party and entertained a select party at dinner on Saturday last at their residence at Prince's-gate.

The Earl and Countess of Jersey had a dinner-party on Saturday last at their residence in Arlington-street, Piccadilly.

The Earl of Wilton entertained a distinguished circle of friends at dinner on Tuesday evening at his house in Grosvenor-square.

Princess Caroline Wallerstein had an assembly on Wednesday evening, which was numerously attended.

Lord and Lady Londesborough entertained a distinguished company at dinner on Wednesday evening at their residence in Grosvenor-place.



The Earl and Countess of Derby gave on Tuesday evening at the Right Hon. the Chancellor of the Exchequer's private residence, in Carlton House-terrace.

The Right Hon. Sir Robert Peel, Bart., M.P., had a Parliamentary dinner on Saturday last at his mansion in Whitehall-gardens.

NATIONAL SPORTS.

THE DERBY Monday at Tattersalls—most probably the last that will ever be held at "the old spot," whose associations years' lease is just waning to its close—was, as usual, a great affair; and, while "the Broom" and "The Chief" backers were in full force on the hows, the hunting-seasoned lovers of a good cob had a strong afternoon cut out for them in the yard, with kingly-crowned "Knight of Snowdon" as chief. Elastic, the Teddington mare which was purchased by Earl Coventry at the Middle Park Stud sale, was second for the Royal Society's Hunter Prize to Mr. Booth's Beechwood, and bought in for 260 gs. There were hardly any buyers of blood stock, and three clever ones of Captain Hatton's Greyhound, a mare by the Professor Pepper and Gambler by Colsterdale, all bred by Sir Tatton Sykes, into but quite large enough to suit the pockets of the modern buyers, went back to Hasketon. Mr. Milward's ponies had more than the best of it, and Mr. Lee's Lady Lee, by Lee Gap, the dealers liked them better for it; and one of the most eminent of the Cockney purchasers was the man who won the last Thurgarton Priory let he had ever seen, and backed his opinion by bidding 30 gs. for Mr. Lee's Lady Lee, 27 gs. was the price for Lucinda, by Mr. Fleming, of Kilkerran, but we believe that she was for a London friend. Mr. Chaplin's Grosvenor Lass, The smallest of the ten, Paul Rizzo, was knocked down to Lord Poltimore at 20 guineas, and Mr. Lee's Lady Lee went to the light hay Bonchore, between Earl Cardigan and Lord Feversham, at 61 gs. The latter, however, terminated in favour of the latter at 61 gs. The noble Earl returned to the Cardigan Arms, Hampton, with Mr. Lee's Lady Lee, and Mr. Lee's Lancet or Gadabout. They averaged very nearly 60 gs., or within a few shillings of it—which is the best average of any previous sales during the afternoon of masters of hounds, with Mr. Foljambe, Lord Macclesfield, Sir Richard Sutton, Captain Percy Wyndham, Mr. Chaplin with Charles Treatwell, Jack Goddard, and Tom Clark at their head, but there are not many of these gentlemen left to encounter to report. We heard however, with great regret, that the Cleveland Hound Show is to be discontinued.

Epsom opened on Tuesday with the very hollow victory of Marksman in the Coulsdon Stakes, which saw the last of Isoline, another misfortune for Mr. Naylor, and one which cuts off a good whatever this year. On the strength of his half sister's and trial with Scottish Chief's friends became very confident, but the mud of the public was so taken up with the favourites that he did not go any better in the race for the Derby than Mr. Merry's Lord Lyon, carried top weight (9st. 7lb.) in the Brighton Stakes, and won a head in the Brighton Stakes, and won a head in the Brighton Stakes, and won a head

THE NEW IRON-CLAD FLEET: HER MAJESTY'S SLOOP-OF-WAR ENTERPRISE.—SEE PRECEDING PAGE.

"THE PHOTOGRAPHER," BY W. MONTAL, IN THE EXHIBITION OF THE SOCIETY OF BRITISH ARTISTS.—SEE PAGE 516.

SKETCHES IN PARLIAMENT.

We were very decidedly told a little time since that after Whitsuntide the business of the Session of Parliament was to begin. There had up to the middle of this week been afforded no definition of when after Whitsuntide meant. Speaking from the stern logic of facts, it must be taken at present that what was intended by that phrase was the week after the Derby. So, next week everything is to be begun, and everything is to be done well, and everything is to be finished by the last week in July; which, being interpreted, means that the Session shall be cowed with the session, although that can scarcely be managed on the Unity Service if Members are spread out this by a process akin to the goldbeater's art. One or two Irish law Bills, which might be fought but can hardly be talked out by the small hours, and perhaps induce the adoption of that system which was invented when a vote to make the public believe that members are superior to women, and which is known as the Closure Bill.

No one could understand why there should not have been a fortnight's holiding at Whitsuntide, and the announcement of the absurd stormcock stuck to the conventional five days, just as if it was only possible to go a moderately long way in the way of a great constitutional party battle, why the House of Commons took the matter into their own hands and made a compromise. Then in the evening when the regular recess was over there stood but a minute between the House and the Row, as if the one or the other had not been forty members. This would have been a disgrace to the great Parliamentary institution, only that it is one which everybody cared whether the House met at all), and Mr. Braid enacted more wonders than a man. He seemed to multiply himself into three whipping-in boys, and he went in and out of the House in a manner-bearer in a limited theatrical procession who has to make his appearance at least ten times in the course of the same piece. He seemed as though he was trying to enrage the Speaker to such a pitch that he would throw over, with a long-suffering air, and respecting the reappearance of Lord Palmerston, which did not receive the cordial welcome he hoped would be the case, because he looked at the notice-paper, and they were not to be done. There was not even one question on a previous matter to engage the active and indifferent legislator to the halls in which he knew there would that night be dazzling light. There was no question on the Irish or other club. Even Mr. Hennessy was not seen flitting from seat to seat, as he usually is, with a view to stardi the House, as he speaks for the thirty-fifth time in an evening, each from a different place. However, by the unearthing of a young member, who had got hold of a large Bradshaw in a remote corner of the library, he was fallen into a state of coma from which he was with difficulty roused by using the most violent exertions although he was supported by the Home Secretary and carefully removing the obnoxious volume to a great distance, but there was made a House, and there was no question of an early adjournment at six o'clock.

Next day was better. There had been rumours that Lord Palmerston was coming down to make a Ministerial statement; formally to take off his coat and sleeves, and roll up his shirt-sleeves, and it was said that Mr. Disraeli had been requested to be present. That gentleman rather discredited the rumour by coming in half an hour later than he usually does, and sitting for a time in the most small House assembled. At length there was a stir amongst the few members present, and then a cheer, and then a cry that the House would allow of, and Lord Palmerston came in by his usual entrance behind the Speaker's chair. He was in a morning dress, but elaborately got up in new spring costume, and, in a sitting posture, looked exactly as he does in a natural position. He has a powerful chest; no man can be great without it. People think states-manship, and wisdom, and long, and weighty words are written in men's heads. A mistake! A man may just as well have no brains, if he has not got a chest to spread himself on. Every one was very glad to see the Prime Minister that every one hopes to ask questions of him; and though he did rise from his seat with some little difficulty, when he had once got himself on his legs he was quite at ease, he spoke then came the grand chest into play once more. It was not, however, still his voice from any weakness, but was remarkably more. Far from it. He parried one of Mr. Whitbread's most vigorous and subtle thrusts, and played Mr. Whitbread's fish with the adroitness of a House which always cheers and sympathises with that gentleman from a conviction of wrong, and a love of persecution. There are three or four members in the house who must think there is amusement to be got out of Mr. Bass. The Ministerial side of face by impeaching the policy of Lord Palmerston in China—that creation of his own by Providence, Mr. Cobden, for which once sent his present chief to a general election being moved forgotten by deadly-lively young Conservatives, or by gentlemen who still professed to be the Liberal supporters of the late Sir W. Gibson, the Minister, a family likeness to a renegade. Well, this time Mr. Bass must have very decidedly got into a mistake about the name when intending to set down that of Mr. Baxter?—introduced a little question about China, and Lord Palmerston, with his usual steadiness, watched the case of the Taepings. There was nothing to be prevented Mr. Layard replying, as was his business; but, somehow, the Under-Secretary for Foreign Affairs always contrives to ruffle somebody's temper, and he did so on this occasion. Mr. Layard, and to say that Mr. Bass's insolent Taepings which caused Colonel Sykes to turn white with the enormity of the suggestion, and made the lookers-on thus get an adequate idea. Consequently, both these gentlemen, when the application of a little cold water had the same effect as the drawing of a tooth, were minded to interrupt and to deny, and endeavour to put down the speech of the new Minister and ready reparties which he poured upon them. It was as good a specimen of a Parliamentary combination debating as any which has been had; and, in its way, it must have been a great physical effort. It was amusing to those who have witnessed it, but it was impossible to be added approval at the points which were made, giving it to be understood, by inference, that he could have done better. It was a wonderful exhibit, supremely unconscious that his chief had put himself to all that trouble for the express purpose of preventing his admiring follower from making one of his invariable messes of a Parliamentary speech. The effort was produced, and things lapsed down to fifteen members, to which were presented the Civil Service Estimates.

But a Parliamentary Nemesis arose in the form of Mr. Augustus Smith, who had had the honour to be elected a week or two since often than any member of the present Parliament, determined to try whether that was the case, and began operations on others that operation which he had so often painfully suffered himself. He did the thing in the boldest way, and with the aid of a martyr if he liked. So dodging behind the Speaker's chair—no faint whisper of "Divide" could be heard—he entered and then rushing away with all speed into Palace-yard, and jumping into a fast cab on waiting for the recovery of the quietest and least frequented room in his club. Up he stood and began to perform his duty to the public and disposing of the money of taxpayers by such a sparse Committee as that, though he failed in his effort, he persisted in a second, and was victorious over foes who were only too happy to be conquered.

Probably on Monday there would have been no House but for the fact that there was a notice of an adjournment for the Derby on Thursday, by which the fortnight's holiday which everybody had determined to have was abolished. The Government were obliged, in its unimportance, was kicked through, and every one went to celebrate the odds on the Derby, and was glad to get off. Mr. Lowe endeavoured to produce something out of nothing, and to turn to the best account in our power nearly the most blank Parliamentary week on record.

Mr. J. Powell, Q.C., recently appointed to the recordership of Wolverhampton, was on Wednesday re-elected for Dissenter.

A general meeting of the International Rifle Association was held, on Thursday, at Willis's Rooms—the Duke of Cambridge in the chair. Lord Elcho explained at some length the present condition of the society. The finances, he said, were in an extremely favourable position, and support had been promised from all quarters. They had in the bankers' hands £810, and £427 in the hands of the secretary. A large increase would take place in the number and value of the prizes to be competed for in 1870, and it was also determined upon adopting Mr. Hill's system of target-marking. The council also proposed that the distribution of prizes should take place this year at Wimbledon, instead of at the Crystal Palace, as heretofore.

IMPERIAL PARLIAMENT

HOUSE OF LORDS.—MONDAY.

The House met on Monday for the first time after the Whitsuntide recess. The Viscount (Sandon) Bill passed through Committee.

The Under-Secretaries Indemnity Bill and the Common Law Procedure (Ireland) Bill were read a second time, and passed through Committee.

The Earl of Kimberley moved for a Return of the Number of Debtors committed, in a speech on the second reading of the Debtors Bill. He contended that the Lord Chancellor had charged the University of Oxford without a shadow of justification with having failed to discharge its duty in not making adequate provision for the Greek Professorship.

COUNTY COURTS.—On the second reading of the Equitable Jurisdiction of Assistant Bill, Lord Brougham and Lord St. Leonards took some objections to the measure, which, however, they did not press to a division. After a few remarks from Lord Cairns, the Bill was read a second time, on the understanding that it should be considered in Committee on Monday next.

ARMAMENT.—Tuesday being the Queen's birthday and Wednesday the Derby Day, their Lordships did not meet again until Thursday.

HOUSE OF COMMONS.—MONDAY.

Sir J. Ray obtained leave to bring in a bill to authorise the Bank of England to issue their notes in exchange for gold coin and bullion at a fixed rate.

It was agreed, after some desultory conversation, that the Fines and Recoveries (Ireland) Continuance Bill should be referred to a Select Committee of five members, chosen in the usual manner, for the purpose of considering the expediency of its provisions.

The Army Prize (Shares of Deceased) Bill, the Bechuana (Ireland) Bill, and the Poor Relief (Ireland) Act Amendment Bill, in their respective stages, were read the first time, on the motion of those sitting in the lower house, were respectively read a second time.

The Lieutenant-Governor Bill, on the motion of Mr. Anthony Hill, and the Chief Rents (Ireland) Bill passed through Committee.

Lord C. Hamilton, in reply to a question from Mr. Hay, stated that the recent expulsion on board the Bacchante during her experimental firing had destroyed a great deal of property, and was a most unfortunate affair. Compensation was not material.

THE DISTURBANCES IN JUTLAND.—Mr. WHITESIDE asked if intelligence had been received that after the armistice had been agreed on a Prussian General had issued a proclamation declaring that the inhabitants of Jutland had forfeited their rights as neutrals, and had become enemies, and also compelled the inhabitants of Duppel to remove the fortifications which had been erected by the Austrians. He would also ask if it was true that the Danish Minister at Berlin had applied to Mr. LAYARD said that the Prussian Ambassador informed him on Friday that the telegram had been received, but the proclamation had not been published. It had been relied on the people of Jutland after the 11th, but that all proclamations issued by the Prussian Generals now in Jutland, and of the proclamation alluded to, her Majesty's Government had sent for full information from Berlin, and would communicate it to the House. In reply to Mr. D. Griffith, Lord PALMERSTON said that the armistice distinctly provided that the fortifications should be removed by the Austrians and Prussians after the face of the armistice. The Government had received an assurance that the Prussian Government would not violate the armistice, and would not take advantage of it in any manner inconsistent with the terms of it.

clouds clearing away in the distance, claims also to be specially noted for its delicate handling. "The Bishopstone Valley, South Wales" (100), by G. Sant, has fine qualities; but there is a want of keeping between the white light and the heavy shadows. Miss A. Blunden, though at present a little photographic in her effects, will make a considerable reputation if she continue to paint with the vivid truthfulness of her "Mullion Cove, near the Lizard" (320). No picture in the exhibition, of similar dimensions or subject, seems more full of promise than a small representation, by C. B. Johnson (177), of a party of fishermen launching a lugger through the surf, and standing on a rocksbeach under a watery sky. Realism is carried almost to excess in A. Rankley's "Mont Blanc from the Col de Voza" (215), which seems in a want of the relative subordination of parts to give the requisite vastness and majesty to the scene. In a view of the Grand Canal at Venice, with the foreground veiled in misty gloom while the horizon is all shining with the "Morning Star," there is, at least, indicated a broad and impressive truthfulness which makes us regret the picture did not find a better place. But many pictures are remarkable for literal and minutely—almost microscopically—elaborate transcription of nature; in the whole Exhibition are, however, "Masks, Bay of Naples" (469), and "A North-West Squall in the Mediterranean," by T. Stothard—the latter a wreck-picture of the first class. Nothing is far from conscientious with the labour. To attempt to explain why would require more than our present space. We must simply maintain that these pictures violate one of the most fundamental principles of art. Take the last, however, for a moment, and a due will be found in our assertion. Here, at least, indicated is the rolling motion of the "swell" and the fierce superficial action of the squall being really suggested; but the microscopic and photographic stillness, while the evidence of toil gives rather pain than pleasure. The accessory information that the artist has got is no reasonable an instrument for interpreting nature to be brought into competition with the unthinking camera.

Other works of merit, generally small in size, deserve notice, especially "On the Quay, Sous-le-Vent, Jersey" (1), by W. J. Hennessy; "Dillon, a study or sketch admirably coloured; "Watergate Bay, near New Quay, Cornwall" (90), by J. Mogford; "Newhaven, on the Way by the Wold" (160), by E. C. Barnes; "Venice" (312), by W. Hoey; showing a profitable study of Canaletto; "In the Cottager's Overpasture" (324), by E. Moore—remarkable for the truth of the sky and the mottled sky; "A Thames Lock" (379), by C. J. Lewis; a view in Sherwood Forest, by N. Longmore; and "Sunset on the Lagoons," introduced, "Scene from Ivanhoe" (311); G. W. Mote's "Poachers" (467), brilliant, but rather overcharged in colour; "Fruit, Flowers, and Game," by Miss Duffield; F. Harrison, C. F. Knight, E. Edwards, A. J. Lewis, J. C. Ramsay, and G. Martin (No. 1).

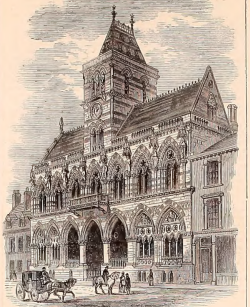
Of the pictures of still-life, the best are the flower-pieces by the Misses Mutrie, and those by F. Smallfield (No. 7), Mrs. Duffield (259), by E. Mason, and water-colour drawings of fruit, by J. Sherrin.

THE PORTRAITS.

The portraits are, generally speaking, even less satisfactory than usual. The causes which have led to the present low state of the British school of portrait-painting have been often discussed, and as there columns to require repetition on this occasion. There is, however, one special cause for regret in the present exhibition. Among the many portraits and busts there is not one of the late Prince Consort, full young bride, which—of course, by loyal deference on the part of the hanging committee—occupy so many of the most conspicuous walls there are scarcely more than three (including busts) which, strictly on their merits as works of art, would have found a place among the rejected exhibition at all. It is easy to appreciate the influences which have given unlucky prominence to a large number of the "Royal Academy Exhibits" artist, which we must refrain altogether from criticising; but the general result could hardly be worse. The fact is, that among of our best-known artists, so many painters and sculptors whose reputation has to be made are represented by their most unfortunate and importunate begging we should, no doubt, refer those instances of the betterment of the Royal grace and favour which have proved most unfortunate to get the public confidence in the Royal discrimination; and there are surely many weighty reasons why the most illustrious patronage in the land should not be given to the wrong man or woman.

Of the many portraits of the Prince and Princess of Wales, the only one which seems to us merely passable is that of the Princess (50), and even this is, like other of the artist's portraits, flattened, pasted, and staged. The "Portrait of Princess Dagmar young English damsel; is her refinement, certainly, but flattening on insipidity, and the general treatment of the complexion is fair and frank carriage of the head which so eminently characterises Englishly lovely in the future. The "Portrait of the Duke of Wellington" (488) indicates what may be expected from artists after having been prematurely brought into notice by Royal favour. Enough to say that this poor picture is poor in colour, effect, and brilliant handling. "The Lord Mayor of London" (35), Mr. Blanchard (79), the well-known portrait-painter, and "Portrait of Judge Bodkin" (283), are admirable; but still more masterly is the head of "General Cubrera" (10)—one of the finest heads in the room exaggerated in the shadows, in force and magic of characsure is not unworthy of Rembrandt, yet the public commission which has produced and thoughtfully elaborated half-length of his friend Gibson, the sculptor (54), and by a singularly unfortunate coincidence, of "Captain Sam Sadler (113), which seems, however, a little black in the flesh-tints. Edwin Grant's marine sea, with a fine sky and atmosphere, but his colour is poor, his drawing not always correct, and one head here (459) is almost a solitary example of any particular claim at effect in light and shade, yet he is rather offended by want of taste. His principal contribution is the mounted group of the "Duke and Duchess of Beaufort" (112); but the head of the Duke is better than the head of the "Hon. Mrs. J. Macdonald" (278). The admirers of manly and full portraiture will find much to please them in the life apprehended, of failing powers in Sir Watson Gordon's works. The portrait which appears to us the most successful example of former years is that of "Sir Alexander Morrison, M.D." (211). The Scotch school of portraiture is, on the whole, somewhat hard, dry, and over-literal portraiture, at the head of which Sir Watson has long been, is certainly not in a flourishing state. A thoroughly well drawn portrait of "Sir David Brewster" (459), and Maclise's portrait of "Captain Forbes" (4), Bart. is more favourable to the impression in this view of the last exhibition. There is too-often-repeated scale of colour and effect in the large group of "Mrs. Fothergill and Children" (111) to be quite pleasant, and those technical qualities press upon the attention somewhat less than they have been apt to do in Mr. Frith's works. In the latter, for cases, as usual most when children are his "subjects"; the little "Lady Gladys Herbert" (222) will be a favourite with all. In "The Riding Hood," a chromotype of which we issued not long ago; and the "Girl at Work, Whittington" (1), we have the usual elements of child-character and rich colouring. G. Richmond's best oil portrait is that of the "Countess of Airlie" (14). The general effect of the painting and the definition of forms are a little hard and cold. A portrait of a little girl in "Fancy Dress" (1), by W. B. Richmond (on of the last names), is charming in character, but heavy in general tone. The full-length of "Lady Constance Grosvenor" (169), by E. Buckner, though not free from the taint of affectation, is the most solid and characteristic piece of work this painter has produced for many a day. E. Armitage, the eminent mural painter, is represented in this department by a portrait of "Dr. Brinton" (229), which, though not very happy in arrangement, is good in drawing and naturalness.

Among our younger or less well-known portrait-painters, the artists who appear to us to have acquired the greatest mastery are H. T. Wells, J. E. Williams, and Miss Gillies. Mr. Wells's full-length portrait of "James Hodgson, Esq., twice Mayor of Newcastle-on-Tyne" (70). Here is a slight want of clearness in the flesh from the exaggeration of the demi-tints, but the insignia of the mayoralty are very cleverly introduced, so as to form an effective picture. The same pictorial feeling, too rare in portraiture, is shown in the carefully painted full-length of Mrs. Stewart Hodgson (290), gracefully lettering, as it were, with her parasol over her shoulder, among the flowers of her garden. In a similar manner the pictorial power evinced in Mr. J. E. Williams's group of "Mrs. Gladstone Spencer," W. F. Withington, F. MacDowell, and F. R. Pickersgill" (317), proudly exhibited in the "Mrs. Gladstone Spencer," W. F. Withington, F. MacDowell, and F. R. Pickersgill" (317), proudly exhibited in valve the fidelity of the portraiture, the force and depth of effect, and the sober richness of the colour. Mr. Pickersgill (the younger R.A. of this name) is seated before his easel, painting, but he has partly turned to make some observation to his friend and brother of the brush, Mr. Witherington, who has thrown himself into a chair unmistakably behind, so as to command a view of the canvas in progress. Mr. MacDowell, the sculptor, standing at the back of Mr. Witherington's chair, forms the apex of Mr. Williams's skilfully composed group. Mr. Lewes Dickenson's portraits—take, for example, that of "The Rev. H. Warnford" (154)—have less of pictorial quality, but they are natural in character, and carefully and fully coloured. There is some excellent painting of accessories in Mr. Collins's portrait of "Mrs. Wm. Ewart" (153), but in his commonplace of self-consciousness in the expression the painter has failed to secure. Mr. Lee's portrait of "Gentleman" (155) deserves attention to a very sweet portrait of a little girl (101) by E. U. Eddis. "Portrait of Gentleman" (156), by Mr. Lee, and Richmond (319); to W. Gosh's meritorious full-length of the late Sir J. Naplier (320); and to those by E. H. W. Pickersgill, entitled "Captain Speke and Grant" (324); to C. Lutyens's group of children (351); "Portrait of Gentleman" (356), by Mr. Lee; and to Mr. Lee's portrait of "A Country Gentleman" (364



THE NORTHERN INDIA RIFLE ASSOCIATION.

THE Northern India Rifle Association, which owes its establishment chiefly to the exertions of Mr. R. H. Dunlop, C.B., musters already nearly 250 members. It holds its meetings successively at Agra, Bareilly, Lahore, and Sestapoor, at different periods of the year. Our Engraving represents the prize cup given by his Highness the Nawab of Rampoor, to be competed for by the members of this association, at their match on the 28th of December, at Agra. Its value is a thousand rupees, and it was manufactured, like all the other prize cups of this association, by Messrs. Angell and Co., of the Strand. The Rampoor prize was won by Mr. R. G. Currie, of the Indian Civil Service, one of the honorary secretaries of this association. The same gentleman also won the gold medal of the association, and one or two other prizes, with the rifle championship of Northern India for 1864. He is a son of Sir F. Currie, one of the Council for the Government of India.

RAMPOOR PRIZE CUP OF THE NORTHERN INDIA RIFLE ASSOCIATION, WON BY MR. R. G. CURRIE, AT THE AGRA SHOOTING-MATCH.

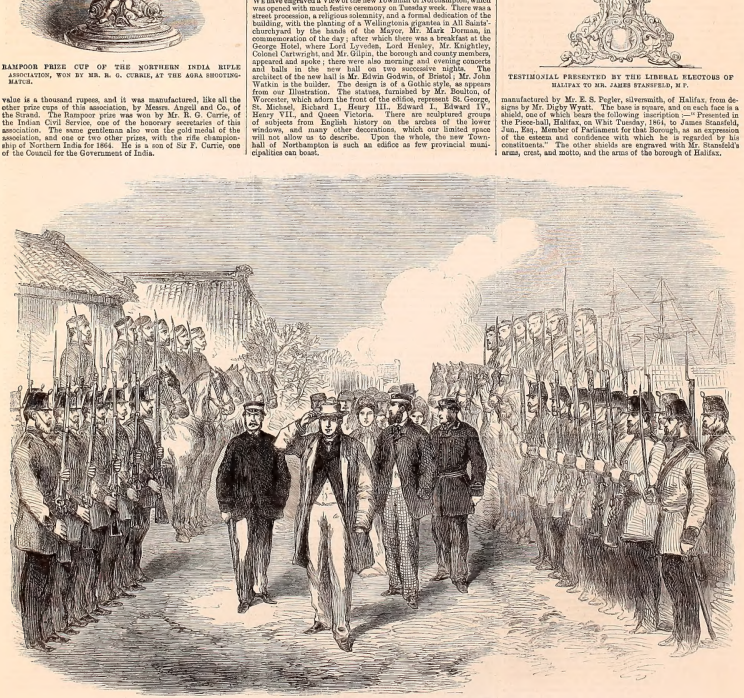
THE NEW TOWNHALL OF NORTHAMPTON.

We have engraved a View of the new Townhall of Northampton, which was opened with much festive ceremony on Tuesday week. There was a street procession, a religious solemnity, and a formal dedication of the building, with the planting of a Wellingtonia gigantea in All Saints'-churchyard by the hands of the Mayor, Mr. Mark Dorman, in commemoration of the day; after which there was a breakfast at the George Hotel, where Lord Lyveden, Lord Henley, Mr. Knightley, Colonel Cartwright, and Mr. Gilpin, the borough and county members, appeared and spoke; there were also morning and evening concerts and balls in the new hall on two successive nights. The architect of the new hall is Mr. Edwin Godwin, of Bristol; Mr. John Watkin is the builder. The design is of a Gothic style, as appears from our Illustration. The statues, furnished by Mr. Boulton, of Worcester, which adorn the front of the edifice, represent St. George, St. Michael, Richard I., Henry III., Edward I., Edward IV., Henry VII., and Queen Victoria. There are sculptured groups of subjects from English history on the arches of the lower windows, and many other decorations, which our limited space will not allow us to describe. Upon the whole, the new Townhall of Northampton is such an edifice as few provincial municipalities can boast.



TESTIMONIAL TO MR. STANSFELD, M.P.

WE noticed last week the presentation of a testimonial, by the electors of Halifax, to Mr. James Stansfeld, M.P. for that borough, who lately resigned his office as one of the Lords of the Admiralty in consequence of the discussions that arose upon his correspondence with Signor Mazzini. We now publish an Engraving of the elegant piece of plate, combining an epergne and candelabrum. It was manufactured by Mr. E. S. Fegler, silversmith, of Halifax, from designs by Mr. Digby Wyatt. The base is square, and on each face is a shield, one of which bears the following inscription:—"Presented in the Piece-hall, Halifax, on Whit Tuesday, 1864, to James Stansfeld, Jun., Esq., Member of Parliament for that Borough, as an expression of the esteem and confidence with which he is regarded by his constituents." The other shields are engraved with Mr. Stansfeld's arms, crest, and motto, and the arms of the borough of Halifax.

TESTIMONIAL PRESENTED BY THE LIBERAL ELECTORS OF HALIFAX TO MR. JAMES STANSFELD, M.P.

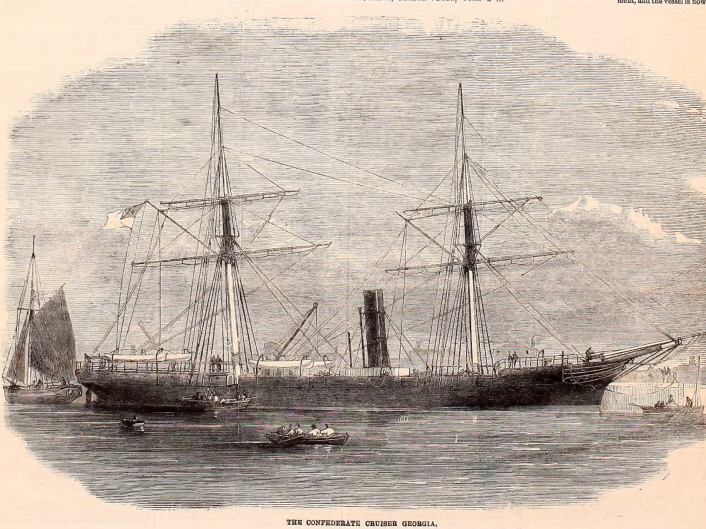
LANDING OF SIR RUTHERFORD ALCOCK, K.C.B., AT YOKOHAMA, JAPAN,—FROM A SKETCH BY OUR SPECIAL ARTIST.—SEE PRECEDING PAGE.

ST. MARY'S CHURCH, CARDEN-PLACE, ABERDEEN.



THE new Episcopalian church, Aberdeen, which has been erected mainly by the efforts of the Rev. F. G. Lee, is one of the handsomest modern ecclesiastical edifices in Scotland. Our Engraving shows its external design, the merit of which belongs chiefly to the clergyman himself, who is an accomplished amateur architect; though he had the able professional assistance of Mr. Alexander Ellis. The building is principally in the middle-pointed style of Gothic architecture, with some of the details partaking of Italian and Scotch character. It consists of nave, transepts, and chancel, the latter being flanked on the north and south sides by small circular-sided buildings projecting therefrom, the one on the north side forming a vestry, and that on the south side containing the organ. Underneath the chancel is a crypt, the ceiling of which is supported on pillars and groined, on which again is formed the floor of the chancel. Externally, on the north and south sides, the large gables of the transepts, flanked on each side by projecting buttresses crowned by massive square pinnacles, mark the divisions of the church—the nave running westward, and the chancel to the east. The nave is divided into five bays by the clerestory windows, which are alternately circular and coupled lancets—three circular and two pairs of lancets on each side. The west front shows the largest circular window, 14 ft. in diameter, and the principal doorway underneath: which is marked by a projecting door-piece, consisting of base and polished granite pillars, with carved capitals of lily pattern, the pillars supporting a massive gablet finished with cross and sunk circular panel filled with Derbyshire marble. The transepts externally present each a large circular window, 12 ft. in diameter, with four lancets underneath. The masonry, is rubble-granite, but the parts are marked by the use of bands of red and white freestone and black granite. These stones are also alternated in the formation of the circular and other windows and principal details throughout. The whole length of the church inside is 128 ft.; the nave, including transept, is 90 ft. long, 26 ft. 4 in. wide; 30 ft. high from floor to top of side walls, and 60 ft. 6 in. from floor to apex of roof. The chancel is 22 ft. wide and 33 ft. 6 in. long; side walls same height as nave, and from floor to apex of roof, 53 ft. The point of cross on spirelet stands 112 ft. above the ground. The interior will accommodate between 700 and 800 persons.

THE EPISCOPALIAN CHURCH OF ST. MARY, CARDEN-PLACE, ABERDEEN.

THE CONFEDERATE STEAMER GEORGIA

WE engrave, from a drawing by Mr. Frank Wilson, of Birkenhead, the steamer Georgia, in the naval service of the Confederate States of America, now lying in the Great Float at Birkenhead. This is the vessel which formed the subject of a debate in the House of Commons on Friday, the 13th inst., when Mr. Thomas Baring contended that the British ports ought to be shut against her, because she had been originally equipped and sent forth from a British port in violation of the laws of this neutral State. It appears that the Georgia, which was formerly called the Japan, was built a year or two since at Dumbarton, on the Clyde. She was equipped by a Liverpool firm. Her crew was shipped by the same Liverpool firm for Shanghai, and sent round to Greenock by steamer. She was entered, on the 31st of March, 1863, as for Point de Galle and Hong Kong, with a crew of forty-eight men. She left her anchorage on the morning of the 2nd of April in that year, ostensibly to try her engines, but did not return. She had no armament on leaving Greenock, but a few days after her departure a small steamer called the Ailar, freighted with guns, shot, and shell, and having on board a partner of the Liverpool firm who had equipped her and shipped her crew, left Newhaven and met the Georgia off the coast of France, near Ushant. The cargo of the Ailar was successfully transferred to the Georgia on the 8th or 9th of April; her crew consisted of British subjects. The Georgia was registered as the property of a Liverpool merchant, a partner of the firm which shipped the crew, and she remained the property of this gentleman until the 23rd of June, when the register was cancelled, he notifying to the collector her sale to foreign owners. From the very first, however, the Georgia has been carrying on war against the United States, cruising in the Atlantic and burning a number of vessels. Her crew have never been paid off in Liverpool without any concealment, and the vessel is now laid up.

THE CONFEDERATE CRUISER GEORGIA,

* The charge for the insertion of Births, Marriages, and Deaths is Five Shillings for each announcement.

BIRTHS.

On the 16th inst., at Cromer Hall, Palemham, Norfolk, the wife of Sir Willoughby Jones, Bart., of a son.

On the 22nd inst., at the Esplanade, Bishopwearmouth, Sunderland, the wife of Edward Haygarth Maling, Esq., of a daughter.

On the 24th inst., at Leytonstone, the wife of T. Powell Buxton, Esq., of a daughter.

On the 22nd inst., at Twickenham, the wife of A. T. Stewart, Esq., of a son.

MARRIAGES.

On the 24th inst., at Acton, by the Rev. James Monkhaus, John Nicholson, Esq., merchant, to Margie, youngest daughter of the late Jas. Alexander, Esq., surgeon, R.N.

On the 19th of March, at St. Peter's, Glenelg, by the Archbishop of Adelaide, assisted by the Rev. J. Stewart, James, M.A., Incumbent, Thomas Wide of Tintinara, South-eastern District, second son of the Rev. Mr. Lambert Boothby, one of the Queen's Justices of her Supreme Court of the province of South Australia, to Mary Ann, eldest daughter of the late Edward Davis Hodding, Esq., of Gwinear, Cornwall.

DEATHS.

On the 21st inst., at 16, Westbourne Park, William Parish Robertson, Esq., late of Valparaiso, aged 46.

On the 19th ult., at Rosia, Florence, Augustus Jones, Esq., aged 38.

On the 23rd inst., at 16, Westbourne Park, London, William Parish Robertson, Esq., late of Valparaiso, South America, aged 46.

On the 20th inst., at Lee, Kent, Adeline Christiana, relict of the late Rev. Thomas Nicol, and eldest daughter of the late John Augustus Dietrichsen, Esq., aged 68.

SOCIETY OF PAINTERS IN WATER COLOURS.—THE THIRTY-EIGHTH EXHIBITION is now open at their Gallery, 5, Pall-mall East (Close to the National Gallery). Admission by Catalogue, One Shilling.

R. SIMPSON'S.

THE SCANDINAVIAN GALLERY, 7, Pall-mall East, is now open. Admission, 1s. Catalogue, 6d. Open from Nine o'clock. Free to Artists' Private Views, by the usual stationed Invitation cards, daily from ten till six o'clock.

INSTITUTE OF PAINTERS IN WATER COLOURS.—The Twenty-Second Exhibition is NOW OPEN, at their Gallery, 53, Pall-mall, from Nine till Seven. Daily from Nine till Dusk. Admission, 1s. JAMES FAHEY, Secretary.

MR. SIMPSON'S WATER-COLOUR DRAWINGS of the ENGLISH, FRENCH, and ITALIAN SCHOOLS, in the GERMAN GALLERY, 168, New Bond-street, DAILY, from Ten o'clock. Admission, One Shilling.

MDME. SAINTON-DOLBY and MR. SAINTON-DOLBY will announce that their ANNUAL MORNING CONCERT will take place at ST. JAMES'S HALL, Piccadilly, on WEDNESDAY, June 15, when they will be assisted by the most eminent Artists of the day.—Programmes, Letters, and Applications for Tickets for Stalls, Reserved Seats, and Balcony, to be addressed to 6, Burwood-place, Edgware-road, and Omnibus Office, 28, Regent-street, Piccadilly. Tickets may be had at Mitchell's Royal Library, 33, Old Bond-street, and Omnibus Office, 28, Regent-street, Piccadilly.

MR. JOHN MACFARREN'S "MORNINGS AT THE PIANOFORTE," ST. JAMES'S HALL, every THURSDAY, at Three o'clock. Subscription for the Series of Seven, Two Guineas. Single Tickets, Half a Guinea. Mdme. Arabella Goddard Viardot. Tickets, 3s., 5s. and 10s., at Austin's, 28, Piccadilly.

OPERA COMIQUE ENTERTAINMENT at the ST. JAMES'S HALL.—Commencing on MONDAY, TUESDAY, and FRIDAY, 1st, 3rd, and 10th, ELIOT WARBURTON'S Entertainment, entitled "THE ROMANCE OF THE CAMP," with Original Music by Wallace. To conclude with a Musical Sketch by Mr. Corney Grain, entitled "Our Volunteers." Stalls, 5s.; Private Boxes, £1 11s. 6d. Office now OPEN. Doors open at Seven, Commence at Eight. Programmes may be had at the Hall, and at Cramer, Beale, and Co.'s, 201, Regent-street. Application for Stalls to be made at the Hall. Arrangements for every form of Pantomime Conducted for Public Entertainments. Address—

MR. BOOSEY'S MUSICAL UNION (Joachim, Jaell, and Sainton), ST. JAMES'S HALL, Piccadilly, TUESDAY, June 7, at Three o'clock. Vocalists—Mdme. Sainton-Dolby, Mr. Sims Reeves. Conductor, Mr. Benedict. Programme—Quartet, No. 2 in G—Beethoven; Songs by Mendelssohn and Schubert; Pianoforte Quartet, No. 1 in E flat—Mozart; Solo for Violin—Spohr; Vocalist—Mr. Sims Reeves; Quintet-duetto, with 16 Violoncellos—Onslow; Solo for Violoncello—Servais; Vocalist—Mdme. Sainton-Dolby; and Quartet, No. 1 in C—Haydn. Tickets, 10s. 6d., at Austin's Ticket Office, 28, Piccadilly. J. ELLA, Director, 19, Hanover-square.

JUNE 7.—HANOVER-SQUARE ROOMS.—MR. BENEDICT'S SONGS of SCOTLAND, and other ENTERTAINING MUSIC, on MONDAY, the 6th of JUNE, at Eight o'clock. Vocalists—Mdme. Rudersdorff, Miss Dolby, Mr. Sims Reeves, and Mr. Santley. Pianoforte, Mr. Benedict. Violin, Herr Joachim. Violoncello, Signor Piatti. Conductor, Mr. Benedict. Tickets, 10s. 6d., 7s., and 5s., at Austin's, 28, Piccadilly; and at the Hall.

MR. BENEDICT'S SONGS of SCOTLAND, and other ENTERTAINING MUSIC, on MONDAY, the 6th of JUNE, at Eight o'clock. Vocalists—Mdme. Rudersdorff, Miss Dolby, Mr. Sims Reeves, and Mr. Santley. Pianoforte, Mr. Benedict. Violin, Herr Joachim. Violoncello, Signor Piatti. Conductor, Mr. Benedict. Tickets, 10s. 6d., 7s., and 5s., at Austin's, 28, Piccadilly; and at the Hall.

A GRICULTURAL HALL.

DOG SHOW OPEN THIS DAY.

ADMISSION, SATURDAY, 28th MAY, open at 9 a.m., 2s. 6d.; at 2 p.m., 1s.; at 6 p.m., 6d.

MONDAY, TUESDAY, and WEDNESDAY, 30th and 31st MAY, and 1st JUNE, Admission, 1s. Open from 9 a.m. to 7 p.m.

FOX-HOUNDS.

HARRIERS.

DEER-HOUNDS.

GREY-HOUNDS.

PACK OF BLOOD-HOUNDS.

POINTERS.

SETTERS.

RETRIEVERS.

SPANIELS.

RUSSIAN TERRIERS.

KANGAROO-HOUNDS.

ENGLISH MASTIFFS.

AGRICULTURAL HALL.

THE PRIZE SHOW opens JULY 11, finishes (not JUNE 25, as previously announced) on SATURDAY, JULY 16.

MR. and MRS. GERMAN REED, with MR. JOHN FARRY, will open every Monday (except Bank Holiday) at 8, with their Unique and Genuine Entertainment, entitled PRIVATE LIFE, followed by THE BARD and HIS RIVALS, and concluding with a BURLESQUE, entitled THE LITTLE FANCY DRESS PARTY, by Mr. John Farry.—Royal Gallery of Illustration, 14, Regent-street.

MR. ARTHUR SKETCHLEY will APPEAR at the ST. GEORGE'S HALL, Pimlico, to his New Entertainment, entitled THE PARK and the PEOPLE, EVERY Evening (except Saturday) at Eight; and Saturday Mornings at Three o'clock. Stalls, 3s.; Admission, 2s. and 1s. Doors open half an hour before the commencement of the Performance.

ROYAL BOTANIC SOCIETY'S GARDENS, Regent's Park.—EXHIBITION of AMERICAN PLANTS, Bulbs and Annuals. EVENING PROMENADE, TUESDAY, June 14. Tickets, to be obtained at the Gardens only by Fellows, 10s. 6d. each. Open from Seven to Ten o'clock. Band in attendance. On June 15 will be admitted again on June 22. Gates open at 2 o'clock.

ROYAL BOTANIC SOCIETY'S GARDENS, Regent's Park.—GREAT SPRING SHOW of PLANTS, FLOWERS, and FRUIT, SATURDAY, JUNE 11. Tickets to be obtained at the Gardens only by Fellows, 10s. 6d. each. Open from Nine to Seven o'clock. Band in attendance. Admission on June 13, 2s. 6d.

FIRST ANNUAL EXHIBITION OF STAINED GLASS, SOUTH KENSINGTON MUSEUM, 1 NOW OPEN.

By order of the Lords of the Committee of Council on Education.

The Exhibition will be open from Ten o'clock to Seven. Admission, Tuesday, 10 A.M. to 1 P.M., 1s.; Wednesday, 10 A.M. to 1 P.M., 6d.; Thursday, 10 A.M. to 1 P.M., 1s.; Friday, 10 A.M. to 1 P.M., 6d.; Saturday, 10 A.M. to 1 P.M., 1s. Admission 6d. each.

THE NEW CLUB (Limited), 17, CHARING-CROSS, S.W.

DIRECTORS.

Captain Adams, M.P., Cavendish-square, and Junior United Service Club.

Lord Garvagh, Dunsilly, Ireland, and Army and Navy Club.

Sir Alexander Grant, Bart., Monymusk, Aberdeen.

Lord Lindsay, Kennedy, Montrose House, Petersham, S.W.

Sir Thomas Moncreiffe, Bart., Moncreiffe, Perth.

Lord Rollo, Duncrub Park, Perth, and Carlton Club.

Lord Strathnairn, Grosvenor-gate, Park-lane.

Lord Wemyss, Gosford Castle, and 3, Upper Wimpole-street.

The New Club is now open for Members and Guests. The Subscription is £5 5s. per annum, and £3 3s. for Country Members. The proposed name of the Club will be submitted to the Members at the first General Meeting.

Applications for membership must be addressed to the Secretary, at the offices of the Club, 17, Pall-mall, S.W.

EDUCATION in GERMANY.—There will be VACANCIES ARRANGED for PUPILS at the FURSTEN SCHOOL, at Frankfort.

Terms, 100 guineas per annum. References to the British Chaplain, Frankfort, and to gentlemen now in charge of the Pupils, Rainer Clemens, Frankfort.

SMART'S SOLE WRITING INSTITUTION for the Improvement of Defective Writing. Open Daily, Ten till Four. Lessons, Private or Class. Terms moderate. Prospectuses sent free on application. Lessons can be had at the Pupils' Residences in any part of London. Also at Eight to Twelve Every Evening. Separate rooms for Ladies, to which Gentlemen are not admitted. Mr. SMART'S Specimen Plate for proper Position of Hand, Pen, and Paper, 1s. 6d.

S.M.—Agent to the West of England Insurance Company.

WANTED a Firsthand DRESSMAKER for one Lady, Residing in Paris, with pretensions of former Employments to 20, Boulevard, Etrangers.

NO. 7, BANK-BUILDINGS, corner of Old Bank-street, to the Post Office, an ELIGIBLE SITUATION for a BUSINESS.

TRELOAR'S COCOA-NUT MATTING and HASSOCKS, FLOOR CLOTHS, LINOLEUM, Remnant from No. 42 to 46, LUDGATE HILL.

ATKINSON and CO., CABINETMAKERS, CARPET WAREHOUSEMEN, UPHOLSTERERS, and FURNITURE DRAPERS, 169, Piccadilly, corner of Bolton-row, Mayfair.

WALNUT DRAWING-ROOM SUITES, carpet and moderate in price.

SPRING-STUFFED EASY CHAIRS and COUCHES.

POLISHED DEAL.—Every Colour of Painted Furniture and Bedsteads.

ALDERMENS cards on the Premises, and especial care is given to Gentlemen's Orders.

Also a large and well-selected Stock of CARPETS in VELVET, BRUSSELS, or KIDDERMINSTER, at last years prices. Also a large Stock of FURNITURE, in Mahogany, Rosewood, and Walnut, in the Newest Designs, at Moderate Prices. Estimates given. Established 1826.

CAUTION.—Office! Office! Office! NEW CURTAINS, 42 in. wide, 2½ yards long, 3s. 6d. per pair. Also Tapestry Curtains, Door Carpets, and other large Consignments of LINENS, DAMASKS, and FURNISHING GOODS, at the Manufacturers' Prices. Patterns free.—WILLIAM SLADE, 1, Blackfriars-road, Southwark, DAMASK, SILK, and TWEED CLOTHS, and all descriptions of Furnishing Goods.

Observe the Address—1, Blackfriars-road, at the back of Messrs. Cubitt's Extensive Premises for every form of Furnishing Contracts for Public Institutions, Hotels, &c.

Address—

THE BURLINGTON FURNITURE WAREHOUSES, Southgate-road, N.—Messrs. JAY, of Oxford-street, have REMOVED to larger premises as above, from which they will continue to supply Furniture, Carpets, Bedding, &c., at moderate Prices.

THE EQUILIBRIUM CHAIRS (Sedley's Patent), also the Victoria and Lord Dunsferry Chairs, at 7, Leicester-square, Manufactory, 1, Cranbourn-street. Illustrated Prospectus free. Cheapside Branch, 4, Bread-street.—A. SEDLEY and CO. Illustrated Catalogue gratis or post free.

ANTIQUE FURNITURE, for Dining-room and Library, to be purchased, or taken on hire, a large and choice collection of ancient and modern Furniture, suitable for mediæval decorations; the carvings are from the Author's own designs, and executed by himself. A set of chairs carved with the Arms of Queen Elizabeth, and other large Dining-tables with extra leaves, Sofa-tables, &c., truly beautiful specimens of Carving. Also a Collection of Ancient Armour, Swords, Daggers, &c. The Carved Oak Chimney-piece, with the Arms of Sir Gilbert Gerard, and a Library Table exactly like one at Hatfield House, from the Author's own designs.—Address, 3, Hyde-park-terrace, Bayswater-road.

FURNISH YOUR HOUSE with the best ARTICLES at DEANE'S IRONMONGERY and FURNISHING WAREHOUSE, 46, King William-street, London-bridge. Illustrated and Priced Furnishing List gratis and post-free.

DEANE, DRAY, and CO., 46, King William-street, London-bridge.

WILLIAM S. BURTON, GENERAL FURNISHING IRONMONGER by appointment to H.R.H. the PRINCE of WALES, has SEVEN LARGE SHOW-ROOMS devoted to the display of his extensive and well-selected STOCK of Electro-plated nickel of sterling Silver and Sheffield plate, Dished Covers, Hot-water Dishes, Stoves, Fenders, Marble Chimney-pieces, Kitchen Ranges, Lamps, Tea Trays, Urns, Kettles, Clocks, Table Cutlery, Baths, Toilet Ware, Turnery, Iron and Brass Bedsteads, Bedding, Bed-hangings, Tables, Cabinet Furniture, &c., with lists of prices and plans of the twenty large Rooms exclusively devoted to their Sale, at 39, Oxford-street, W.; 1, Newman-yard; and 1, Perry's-place.

SLACKS' FENDERS and FIRERIONS, Every New Design always on Show. Black Register Stoves, 30s. to £5 5s. Bright Steel and Ormolu, 4s. to £10. Bright Steel and Ormolu, 4s. to £10. Bronze Fenders, 5s. to £5 5s. Fire-irons, 1s. 6d. to £2 2s. Chimney-pieces, 10s. 6d. to £5. Kitchen Ranges, 30s. to £5. Lists sent free by post. Manufactory, Sheffield. Catalogues, containing 300 Engravings and Prices gratis, or sent free by post on receipt of two stamps.

RICHARD and JOHN SLACK, 336, Strand.

ICE for TOWN or COUNTRY.—Refrigerators, Ice-cream Machines, Freezing Powders, and everything connected with Ice-cream, Ices, and Iced Beverages. Illustrated Price-list, with full instructions, free.

TILLEY, 39, Strand, and 4, Adelaide-street, London.

PURE PICKLES, SAUCES, JAMS, &c., and Table Delicacies of the highest quality, pure and wholesome, are supplied by CROSSE and BLACKWELL, Purveyors to the Queen, Soho-square, London.

May be obtained from all Grocers and Oilmen.

SELECT PLANTS, Post-free, at the annexed Prices:—12 for twelve Fuchsias, &s.; 12 fine var. Verbenas, 3s.; 12 Show Pelargoniums, 3s.; 12 Zonal ditto, 3s.; 12 Scarlet Geraniums, 3s.—Thos. B. W. KNIGHT, Florist, Bettis, Bucks.

NEW BOOKS.

THE NEW AND POPULAR NOVELS.

NOT DEAD YET. By J. C. JEAFFRESON, Author of "Live It Down," &c.

JOHN: a Love Story. By the Author of "Paul Ferroll."

JANITA'S CROSS. By the Author of "Mr. Gresham."

ADELA CATHCART. By GEORGE MACDONALD.

THE WOMAN I LOVE. By AMELIA B. EDWARDS.

MATTIE: a Story. By the Author of "No Church."

Now ready, at every Library,

HURST and BLACKETT, Publishers, 13, Great Marlborough-street.

NEW BOOKS.

WILLIAM SHAKESPEARE. By VICTOR HUGO. Authorised English Translation.

CHARLES DICKENS. By HIPPOLYTE TAINE. By VICTOR HUGO. Authorised English Translation. Illustrated by Wilkie. In HURST and BLACKETT'S, Publishers, 13, Great Marlborough-street.

THE TEMPLE ANECDOTES. No. 1, Containing Sixty-four Stories. Sold by all Booksellers. Prospectuses, with Contents, sent by return of post.

DAVID BOGUE, 3, St. Bride's avenue, Fleet-street.

The Light is now splendidly good, and very fine pictures are produced by it.—Athenæum, Feb. 20, 1864. Apparatus and Materials for Albumen and Collodion Photography, Stereoscopic Views, &c., may be had at the sale of the Ordnance Maps, Geological Survey Maps, and Admiralty Charts.

SHAKSPERE'S WILL, in, from Phototypha. STEREOSCOPIC COMPANY. Post-free for Sixpence.

PORTRAITS. Stereoscopic Company, 54, Cheapside, and 110, Regent-street.

Just-are opening!—Photographic Boxes.

Drawing Boards, Paper, and Colours.

The Light is now splendidly good, and very fine pictures are produced by it.—Athenæum, Feb. 20, 1864. Apparatus and Materials for Albumen and Collodion Photography, Stereoscopic Views, &c., may be had at the sale of the Ordnance Maps, Geological Survey Maps, and Admiralty Charts.

PHOTOGRAPHIC BATHS, TRAYS, Bingues, Funnels,
Developing Jars, Dipping Glasses,
Printing Frames,
very light, well made, and well broken,
N.B. An Examine Bath, fitted with stands of silver solution, to set about one dozen Pictures, 5s. 6d. each.
Photographic Paper, 1s. per dozen.
Photographic Apparatus,
wholesale and retail, at WILLIAM HARRISON'S,
SILVER Inventor Works and Telegraph and Daguerreotype Establishment,
7 and 8, Bishopsgate Within.

PICTURE-FRAMES.—Best and Cheapest in the London Trade. Manufacturers of Picture-Frames in all sizes. The Trade and Country Dealers supplied with every description of Engraved Frames, Looking-glasses, and Cornices. Estimates given. At 6GO, HERO, 67, Drury-lane, and 39, St. Martin's-lane, W.C.

CARTES DE VISITE, 12 for 2s. 6d. Forward your Carte de Visite, and you will receive by return of post 12 LONDON PHOTOGRAPHIC COPIES INSTITUTION, 34, Tavistock-street, Covent-garden, W., and you receive it the exact size and copy of original, which will be returned. A carte sent to any address on receipt of twenty-four stamps. Trade supplied.

FOR FAMILY ARMS—the LINCOLN'S-INN HERALDIC OFFICE—Mr. R. LILLY, Heraldic Painter, Designer, and Engraver, 62, Chancery-lane, Patentee of the Lincoln's-inn Heraldic Office.

LINCOLN'S-INN HERALDIC OFFICE.—The established office of authority in England for furnishing Arms, Crests, Pedigrees, Quarterings, Genealogies, and Family Histories, 4s. 6d.—R. LILLY, Great Turnstile, Lincoln's-inn-fields.

LINCOLN'S-INN HERALDIC OFFICE.—Arms found, Sketched, and Painted for Painting on Carriages, Seals or Rings, 3s. 6d.; Arms on Stone, 10s.; Relief Seal Engraved Steel Die, 5s.; Arms Painted and Quartered, 5s.—R. LILLY, Great Turnstile, Lincoln's-inn-fields.

FOR FAMILY ARMS send Name and County, No fee for search. Arms quartered and Impaled for Widows and Heiresses. Sketch, 2s. 6d. Painting in proper colours, 5s. Engraving on Seals, Rings, or Dies, 5s. Arms and wills painted, by T. CULLETON, 6, Cranbourn-street, W.C.

HERALDIC LIVERY.—The proper Colours and Harness for Servants' Liveries, with Engravings of Costumes to be used, how the Carriage should be Painted, and the way Arms should be Emblazoned, sent free by T. CULLETON, Heraldic Artist, 6, Cranbourn-street, W.C.

SEAL ENGRAVING.—Arms, Crests, and Monograms engraved in artistic style. Crest on Rings, 7s. 6d.; Crest on Seals, 7s. 6d.; Arms on Seals, 15s.; Arms on Rings, 15s.; Die sunk, Hall marked, engraved with Crest, 15s.; Arms, 25s.; Postage, 6d. extra. Arms found, 2s. 6d. Sketch, 2s. 6d. Arms painted in proper colours, 5s. Manuals of Heraldry, 5s. Tricks of Wafer, 2s. Cranbourn-street corner of St. Martin's-lane.

NO CHARGE FOR ENGRAVING DIES when Stamping Paper and Envelopes. Send a Sketch for a note of the very best PAPER and 100 ENVELOPES to match, with Crest, Initials, or Address, Stamped, 5s. Cranbourn-street corner of St. Martin's-lane.

ENGRAVING CARD-PLATE ENGRAVED, 4s. and 50 best Cards Printed, in one hour, 2s.; wedding or invitation Cards, Envelopes, Dies, Seals, Rings, Steel Plates, Hall Marked, engraved with Crest, 15s.; Arms, 25s. Cranbourn-street corner of St. Martin's-lane.

CULLETON'S PLATES for MARKING LINEN, with Crest and Name complete, 3s. 6d. Set of Numbers, 1s. Crest and Name for Marking Linen, 5s. Best Rose Ink, 1s. Cranbourn-street corner of St. Martin's-lane.

JENNER and KNEWSTUB, to the Queen, 33, Piccadilly, and Princes-street, Hyde, beg to call attention to their Stock of Dressing-cases, Bags, Portmanteaus, Writing-desks, Envelope-cases, Work-boxes, Tea-trays, Tea-caddies, and every requisite for travelling. Manufacturers of Records and Memorandum Diaries for Stamping Name and Address. Jenner and Knewstub, 33, Piccadilly, and Princes-street, Hyde, 1861, St. 35, James's-street; 19 and 20, Jermyn-street.

PENCILS, Black and Coloured Chalks, and CRAYONS sold by all Stationers and Artists' Colourmen. Agents—Rowney and Forbes, 51, Rathbone-place, London, E.C.

TO SHIPPERS, MERCHANTS, DEALERS, AND STATIONERS.

C. BRANDAUER,
STEEL PEN MANUFACTORY,
49, Upper Thames-street, Blackfriars, London, E.C.

PEN MOUNTS.—Messrs. JOSEPH GILLOTT and JONES have REMOVED their PRACTICE to 23, Brook-street, Holborn-hill, corner of Leather-lane, Holborn. Pens Mounted in Silver, being required by the London, Chatham, and Dover Railway.

MR. LAWRENCE VANDERPANT, Dentist, 57, Gloucester-place, Portman-square, continues to supply Artificial Teeth, by means of the newly-invented system, without springs, wires, or ligatures, at the rate of from £1 till £—20, Middle-street, Brighton.

TEETH.—Mr. ESKELL'S TOOTH ADDRESS is only at 5, Grosvenor-street, Bond-street. Eligibility secures the most moderate charges. Consultations free. Mr. Eskell's Treatise on the Teeth, gratis and post-free.

DYSPEPSIA. — MORSON'S PEPSINE WINE, a perfectly palatable form for administering this popular remedy. Manufactured by T. Morson and Son, 31 and 32, Southampton-row, Russell-square, W.C., to be had, 2s. 9d., and 4s. each. Pepsine Lozenges, 1s. 6d. and 2s. 6d. and 4s. 6d. each.

YOUNG'S ARNICATED CORN PLASTER, 1s. 6d. YOUNG'S ARNICATED BUNION PLASTER, 1s. Sent over Invalids. 17, Southampton-row, Holborn, 19, Shaftesbury-place, City.

SALVEO FEDES.—TENDER FEET.—A sure remedy in ARNOTT BLENDED Salvio Fedes. Sold by Chemists, Perfumers, and Hairdressers, in bottles, 1s., 1s. 6d., and 2s. 6d., and bottles at 6d. each. Wholesale 13, Little Britain, E.C.

NEW MUSIC.

ROBERT COCKS and CO.'S LIST OF NEW MUSICAL PUBLICATIONS.—
"SONG OF THE MILL." Song. Illustrated. 3s. Sung by Miss Lemmens-Sherrington. A divided success.
"THE SONG OF THE FAIRIE." The far-famed waltzes. By Henry Farmer. 3s. 6d.
"THE SONG OF LOVE AND DEATH." Poetry by Alfred Tennyson. Music by Henry Farmer. Sung by Mr. Sims. 3s. 6d.
"THE SONG OF THE SEA." Song. By Stephen Glover. 3s. 6d. Sung by Mr. Lawler.
"THE ENGLISH BOUQUET." Vocal Duet. By the Composer of "The Englishman Remembered Up." Poetry by W. Hine. 3s. 6d.
"THE SONG OF THE SEA." Song. By Stephen Glover. 3s. 6d. Sung by Mr. Lawler.
G. F. WEBB'S "JERUSALEM THE GOLDEN" and 18 other pieces of Music, carefully fingered, and free from undue pressure. Sent for 24 stamps.
PIANOFORTES FOR SALE OR HIRE, upon easy terms. Full descriptive lists forwarded on application. Established 1760.
CHERUBINI'S New Study, Catalogue of Vocal Music and Pianoforte Works, gratis and post-free.
London: Robert Cocks and Co., New Burlington-street, Music Publishers to the Queen, H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, and the Royal Family. Agents for Breitkopf and Härtel, Leipsic.

GABRIALDI'S TRIUMPHAL MARCH, for the Piano. By STEPHEN GLOVER. Sent for fifteen stamps. This admirable march, in honour of the marriage, is now being played by all military bands.—HUTT and HODGSON, 31, Oxford-st.

NEW SONG.—"RESSY GRAY." By E. L. HIME. Sent for 15 stamps. One of the prettiest Ballads that has been published for some time. The effect produced by the words is very interesting, the melody remarkably touching and effective.—HUTT and HODGSON, 31, Oxford-street.

DARPART AMOUR. Romance for the Pianoforte. By L. GRO. Sent for 15 stamps. One of the most exquisite and captivating romances we have heard.—the Hire.
HUTT and HODGSON, 31, Oxford-street.

Sixth Edition—THE GREATEST SUCCESS OF THE SEASON IS THE MATRIMONIAL GALOP, by A. BENEDICT, performed with the most enormous success at the Italian Opera, encored, and sold in thousands.

ANOTHER EDITION.—THE GALOP OF ALL GALOPS IS THE MATRIMONIAL GALOP. By A. BENEDICT. "The most spirited Galop of the season."—Morning Post, 3s. 6d.—CHAPPELL and CO., 50, Bond-street, Pantomime-square.

THE MATRIMONIAL GALOP, by A. BENEDICT, beautifully illustrated. Dancing Quadrilles, Arrangements for Harmonium, Concertina, Accordion, Pianoforte Duet, and Septuorum. Post-free, 18 stamps.—CHAPPELL and CO., 50, Bond-street, Pantomime-square.

MAGNIFICENT, CHEAP AND GOOD PIANOFORTES.—Ancient Sacred Song, by PETER THE TOTTERER, 24th Edition, Composed by C. H. RAMELLO. "The most beautiful sacred song ever published."—Post-free, 24 st.
CHAPPELL and CO., Bond-street, Pantomime-square.

Fifty-fifth Edition of the Dancing-room Piece
LA PRIERE D'AMOUR. Prayer of Love. By Gumbert. Reply to "Le Prière d'un Triste." Per TRIBUNA ESPAGNOLA. Post-free, 24 st.
CHAPPELL and CO., 50, Bond-street.

MUSIC AT HALF PRICE and Post-free. The High Price of Music. All Subscribe Mode of every Publisher forwarded on receipt of Subscription. Country Organists and the Country Trade supplied to sell at Half Price.
CHAPPELL and CO., 50, Bond-street, Pantomime-square, the most popular Music and Music Publishers in the World.
CHAPPELL and CO., 97, Baker-street, Portman-square, London, W.

PIANOFORTES.—The best 30-Guinea Piano in the Trade—Full Trichord Cottage, with all the latest improvements and handsome walnut case (unique or successful). A large selection of Pianofortes at 20 guineas.—CHAPPELL and CO.

CHRISHOLME and SON'S TRICHORD COTTAGE PIANOFORTES, in Rosewood or Walnut, from 21 to 45 guineas. Check-action Semi-Grands, from 50 guineas. Pianos on hire from 12s. per month.—91, Berners-street, Oxford-street, W.

PIANOFORTES.—H. TOLKIEN'S CELEBRATED MODEL COTTAGE PIANO, for having elicited universal approbation, the public is respectfully informed that the price of this instrument, in Rosewood case, will be 35 guns, in best manner, from May 1st. Every Pianoforte warranted and kept in tune. Pianos for hire, with option of purchase, on easy terms, and taken in exchange, or sold on commission.—H. TOLKIEN, 27, King William-street, London Bridge. Est. 30 years.

MUSICAL BOX DEPOT for the Sale of Musical Boxes, by the best makers, playing the newest airs from the Italian Opera, Concerts, Ballets, and Dramas, and all the airs from dramas last revived. Lists of Tunes and Prices gratis and post-free.
MUSICAL-BOX DEPOTS, 32, Ludgate-hill, and 56, Cheapside, London, Wholesale, Retail, and for Exportation.

WATCHES and CLOCKS.—FREDERICK DENT, Watch and Clock Maker, by special appointment to his late Majesty George IV., invites inspection of his carefully finished Stock, at 61, Strand, near St. Mary-le-Strand, comprising Chronometers, Repeaters, Chronographs, Watches, Clocks, &c. Established nearly a century.—Chronometer Manufactory, Somerset House, Strand.

DENT, Chronometer, Watch, and Clock Maker, by special appointment to Her Majesty the Queen and H.R.H. the Prince Consort, and maker of the Great Clock for the Houses of Parliament, 33, Strand, adjoining Somerset House, and 82, Royal Exchange.

ANCIENT and MODERN COINS.—A. MEDALS, &c., of every description, and in the choicest condition, may be obtained on moderate terms from the Proprietors, Mr. C. R. TAYLOR, Numismatist and Antiquarian, at his residence, 5, Bloomsbury-place, Bedford-square, where specimens may be seen, or views. Introduction only required.

RAMAGE-GLASSES.
BURROWS (Malvern) are the BEST.

FIELD-GLASSES.
BURROWS (Malvern) are the BEST.

LANDSCAPE-GLASSES.
BURROWS (Malvern) are the BEST.

OPERA-GLASSES.
BURROWS (Malvern) are the BEST.

RIFLE-GLASSES.
BURROWS (Malvern) are the BEST.

YACHTING-GLASSES.
BURROWS (Malvern) are the BEST.

UNIVERSAL MICROSCOPE, price £5 5s., SMITH, BECK, and BECK,
31, Cornhill, and 6, Coleman-street, London.
Catalogues, stamp; testimonials, and any package gratis.

EVERY MAN HIS OWN PRINTER. The Penny Printing Press, price £3 3s. in 24 st., a Catalogue of the Art of Printing, Gutt Beddings at 3s per 24 square. Y. D. BENZI, Engraver and Electrotypist to her Majesty's Post Office, 4, High Holborn, W.C. Est. 1840.

PLANTS and PLANT-CASES, 10s. 6d., in Wardian Cases, Rosewood, with Zinc Shelves and Plate Glass, are elegantly filled with choice ferns and flowering exotic decorative plants, and delivered.—BASS and GOLDING, Plant Merchants and Growers, 37, King's-street, Covent-garden, W.C. (opposite the Garrick Club).

GREAT FAILURES.—KING and CO., Silkmercers, &c., Regent-street, beg to announce that they have purchased the Stock of a Manufacturer who has failed in Spitalfields and the other Country, and is now giving sixty of the Season. They are now SELLING ONE dress made at a discount of 20 per cent from the manufacturers' prices. Patterns and guide-book of all parts of the world.
Address King and Co., Regent-street, London.

PATTERNS POST-FREE.
£1500 WATERPROOF FOULARDS, £1 1s. a Dress.
At KING'S, 243, Regent-street.

PATTERNS POST-FREE.
£3762 STRIPED SILKS, £1 5s. 6d. a Dress.
At KING'S, 243, Regent-street.

PATTERNS POST-FREE.
£2653 CHECKED SILKS, £1 15s. 6d. a Dress.
At KING'S, 243, Regent-street.

PATTERNS POST-FREE.
£3175 GROS GRAIN SILKS, £1 15s. a Dress.
At KING'S, 243, Regent-street.

PATTERNS POST-FREE.
£2742 CORDED SILKS, £2 5s. a Dress.
At KING'S, 243, Regent-street.

PATTERNS POST-FREE.
£1682 MOIRE ANTIQUES, £2 15s. a Dress.
At KING'S, 243, Regent-street.

PATTERNS POST-FREE.
£1764 CHENE DRAP DE LYON, £2 10s. a Dress.
At KING'S, 243, Regent-street.

PATTERNS POST-FREE.
£2353 PLAIN POULT DE SOIES, £2 15s. a Dress.
At KING'S, 243, Regent-street.

PATTERNS POST-FREE.
£1974 BLACK GLACÉ SILKS, £2 15s. a Dress.
At KING'S, 243, Regent-street.

PATTERNS POST-FREE.
£2153 BLACK BROCHÉ SILKS, 2s. 75d. per yard.
At KING'S, 243, Regent-street.

PATTERNS POST-FREE.
£1653 BLACK GROS GRAINS, 2s. 105d. per yard.
At KING'S, 243, Regent-street.

PATTERNS POST-FREE.
£1595 BLACK DRAP DE LYON, 3s. 6d. per yard.
At KING'S, 243, Regent-street.

PATTERNS POST-FREE.
FINE MUSLINS, 5s. 6d. a Dress.
Lama Grenadines, 5s. 6d.
At KING'S, 243, Regent-street.

PATTERNS POST-FREE.
NEW GRENADINES, 12s. 6d. a Dress.
Mousseline de Soie, 12s. 6d.
At KING'S, 243, Regent-street.

BLACK LACE SHAWLS, in Guipure Lace, from 10s. 6d. to 63 guineas.
At KING'S, 243, Regent-street.

GLOVES—GLOVES—GLOVES!
The best Kid Gloves, 1s. 6d. per pair.
The best Brussels Kid, 2s. per pair; 24s. dozen.
The best Lisle Thread, 1s. per pair; 12s. dozen.
Patterns and Directions for Self-Measurement free.
BAKER and CRISP, 198, Regent-street.

NEW MUSLIN JACKETS, with Velvet Bands, Buttons, and Lace Collars, at Sprigs and 24s. 6d. each. Post-free for stamps.
BAKER and CRISP, 198, Regent-street.

THE NEW HEAD-DRESSES, Velvet Bands, Bandeaux, Flowers, Feathers, Lace Lappets, and Veils, at 24s. 6d. each. Post-free for stamps.
BAKER and CRISP, 198, Regent-street.

THE NEW FRENCH SILKS, in the yard wide, for Young Ladies' Dresses, striped, checked, fancy, and corded. The cheapest lot that have been sold for 50 years. Patterns free. Also a large assortment of Fancy Dresses to draw to with a deduction of 20 per cent.
BAKER and CRISP, 198, Regent-street, London.

LAST YEAR'S MUSLINS, DRESSINGS, &c.—Six-and-sixpence worth for 3s. 6d. Patterns free. Also a lot of Ladies' Cloth, reduced to 10s. Second-street.

ONE THOUSAND PAIRS of LAST YEAR'S KID GLOVES, 1s. 6d. per pair, 12s. per dozen. Also a few pairs long, to put over under regular prices, guaranteed to fit. Patterns free.
BAKER and CRISP, 198, Regent-street.

THE NEW SILK TICKER and CHIEF, to match every Novelty of the Season, form 6d. to 4s. 6d. each. Patterns free.—198, Regent-street, Sloane-square, Chelsea. Take the Sloane Bus. Patterns free.—198, Regent-street.

BLACK SPANISH LACE SHAWLS, two yards square, Good for 21s. Patterns free.—198, Regent-street, and 67, Second-st. CRISP, reduced to 10s. Second-street.
BAKER and CRISP, 198, Regent-st. (nearly opposite Garrick-street).

BLACK SILKS AT 1 GUINEA PER YARD.
Corded Silks at 1 guinea per yard.
Very fine Blacks in full Corded Silks, 24 in. wide, at 1s.
Rich Corded Silks, 24 in. wide, at 1s. 6d.
Striped Silks, 24 in. wide, at 1s. 6d.
Patterns free.
BAKER and CRISP, 198, Regent-street.

THE NEW 2-YARD WIDE ALPACAS, in every Shade of Colour, 2s. 6d. yard.
Patterns free.—BAKER and CRISP, 198, Regent-street.

REAL IRISH LINENS, direct from the Belfast Looms, at manufacturers' prices. Samples and Price Lists forwarded. Damask Table Cloths and Napkins and Strips in matchs; Sets, comprising Dinner, Tea, and Breakfast Cloths, Napkins, Doylies, Kitchen and Fancy Towels, Glass Cloths, Huckaback, Diaper, Sheetings, Shirtings, Cambrics, Lawns, Linen Cambrics, Dress Linens, Linen Drills, Ticks, Quilts, Blankets, Flannels, Baize, Furniture Dimities, Damasks, Chintzes.—JAMES LINDSAY and CO., Belfast.

LIGHT MOURNING CLOAKS. Messrs. JAY have a large Stock of Cloaks, Shawls, Dresses, &c., suitable for Mourning, at their Establishment. The increased demand for them at their Establishment has induced Messrs. JAY to purchase a large and varied number of the richest appearance French mats and French fabrics.
247, 249, and 251, Regent-street.
LONDON GENERAL MOURNING WAREHOUSE.

BLACK, WHITE, and GREY SILKS, Moires Antiques, Checks, Stripes, Brocades, Glacés, Gros Grains, Satins, Poult de Soies, and Reversible Silks, illustrated in their elegant Illustrated Book of Patterns, sent free by post. Also Fancy Silks, in every variety of Silks in the above names, manufactured from the finest materials and sold by the yard or piece.
THE LONDON GENERAL MOURNING WAREHOUSE,
247, 249, and 251, Regent-street.

BROMENADES, FETES, and MORNING RECEPTIONS.—MR. HERBERT, of the newest French Designs and Fashion, direct from Worth's Establishment, Paris, has the honour to announce that he has received a number of the richest appearance French mats and French fabrics.
247, 249, and 251, Regent-street.

MESSRS. SEWELL and CROMAR beg to announce that their FASHIONS FOR JUNE are now ready, and may be had on application. Their new Show-rooms on MONDAY, May 13th.—St. Paul's-churchyard.

NEW FOULARDS, in all reasonable patterns only.
Oxford, Chené, and Checked Silks, 2½ yds. wide, for Full Dress.
Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

CHECKED SILKS, at £1 12s. 6d., £1 15s. 6d., and £2 10s. 6d.
Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

A MANUFACTURER'S STOCK of Striped, Checked, and Brocaded Silks.
Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON, 101 to 108, Oxford-street.

GROS DE NAPLES SILKS, in many new shades of the season's introduction.
Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

MOIRE ANTIQUES, in Black and White, and Coloured.
Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 108, Oxford-street, W.

FRENCH BROCHÉ SILK POPLINES, £1 15s. a Dress. Full Length.
Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

MOZAMBIQUE BAREGE, 10, 10½, 11, 11½, and 12s. the Entire Full Dress.
Soft colours and Stripes.
Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 108, Oxford-street, W.

NEW SUMMER DRESSES, embracing every novelty in Muslins and Barèges, at prices ranging from 10s. 6d. to 3 guineas.
Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 108, Oxford-street, W.

ALL LAST YEAR'S FRENCH ORGANDIE MUSLINS, perfectly fresh, and many of the patterns equal to the richest Brocaded Silks.
Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

NEW SUMMER GRENADINES, both British and Foreign Manufacture, at 10½, 12½, 15s. 6d., 18s. 6d., and 21s. a Dress Length.
Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

PRINCE CAMBRICS, Plain Poults, Brilliants,
All the New Fancies for the present year's Dress.
French Organdie Muslins.
Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

WASHING GRENADINES (Pure White), 10½, 12½, 15s. 6d., 18s. 6d., and 21s. a Dress.
Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

LACE, LINEN, AND MUSLIN CURTAINS.
At 6d. to 3 guineas per pair.
Sample Curtains, at any price, sent on approval.
Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

LACE SHAWLS, in all Shapes and Sizes.
A Selection from more than 100 Shawls
Sent on approval to any part of the country.
PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 108, Oxford-street, W.

UNTEARABLE BARÈGES, in every variety for Dresses.
Several New Makes this Season.
Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON'S
Mourning Warehouse, 103, Oxford-street.

THE NEW FASHIONS in MANTLES and SHAWLS, Illustrated in the Fashion Plate of the Queen, Lady Clothes, Ladies' Fashion Gazette, Nos. 111, 112, and 113, Regent-street, India Shawl Warehousemen by appointment to Her Majesty the Queen and H.R.H. the Prince Consort and Princess of Wales.

ORGANDIE MUSLINS, GRENADINES, &c., in GRAY'S and GAGE'S
Are equal to Manufacturer's prices for the very highest class of Printed French Organdie Muslins, comprising upwards of 3000 Dresses, all marked at 1 guinea, 25s. 6d., and 21s. 6d. per Dress. Also a large Stock of Fancy Muslins, at 10s. 6d. per Dress.
AT THE MORE THAN USUAL PRICE
Are several hundred pieces of Grenadines, Barège Anglais, &c., in Stripes, Checks, and Figures, at 12s. 6d. per Dress, usually sold at 21s.
Patterns forwarded to the country.
In the Mantle Department, Gray and Gage's New Double de Lyon, Lined throughout, at 21s. 6d.
Also, the Yak Burnous and Rotunda in great variety.
GRAY and GAGE, 57, 58, and 59, Ludgate-hill.

FRENCH SILKS, £1 19s. 6d. FOR JUNE,
PATTERNS POST-FREE.
Rich Fancy Checked Silks,
19s. 6d. Full Dress.
Rich Fancy Corded Silks,
19s. 6d. Full Dress.
Rich Black Alexines,
19s. 6d. Full Dress.
The New Mexican Fancy Silks,
19s. 6d. Full Dress.
The New Striped Silks,
19s. 6d. Full Dress.
Rich Glacé Silks de Lyon,
19 guineas.
Very New Shades in Rich Glacé Silks,
19 guineas.
Rich Gros Grain Silks,
£1 19s. 6d.
Magnificent Corded Silks,
£1 19s. 6d.
The Rich Genoese Imperial,
£2 2s. 6d.
The New Gros d'Italia,
£2 2s. 6d.
The New Corded Silks and Gros de Londres,
24 guineas.
Rich Chiné, Brocaded, Striped, Checked, and other Rich Fancies, in endless variety, from 19s. 6d. to 10 guineas.
Rich Moiré Antiques, all Silk,
£2 2s. 6d.
Special 1,000 yards of the richest and most Rare Antiques in the Trade, all Silk, and Warranted, £2 2s. 6d. per yard.
To ensure a reply and the discount of patterns five sixths day in addition to the above, that all letters should be addressed to the Crystal Warehouse.
ARCOTT and NICHOLSON,
Crystal Warehouse,
41 and 42, St. Paul's-churchyard.

SILKS! SILKS! SILKS!
ANOTHER DELIVERY of DEEP MOURNING SILKS,
SILKS, SILKS, SILKS,
Several very cheap lots, newly opened attention.
Wide-width SILKS and CHECKS, 2s. 9d. per yard, worth 4s.
ANTIQUE SILKS,
Wide-width STRIPED and CHECKED SILKS, SATINS, TERRY CLOTHS,
Cut Lengths at Wholesale Prices.
Patterns free.
JAMES HERRING and CO., Wholesale and Retail Silkmercers, &c., 77 and 78, St. Paul's-churchyard, London, E.C.

JAMES LOCKE and CO.'S SPRING and SUMMER NOVELTIES.
Ladies will find upon inspection an excellent assortment of all the Novelties of the season, including Fancy Silks, Checked and Striped Silks, Glacés, Poult de Soies, Corded and Moiré Antique Silks. Experience has also particularly worthy of attention, having reports with worn out articles very much improved and recommended expressly for themselves.
THE SOUTH WARehouses,
151, 153, and 155, Regent-street.

SCOTT ADIE, by Special Appointment to her Majesty and H.R.H. the Princess of Wales, has on view the latest choice of Ladies' Waterproof Cloaks and Jackets in the newest bark grains and mottled stripes; suited for all seasons and climates; the Waterproof Tweeds are also adapted for Gentlemen's wear.—14, Royal Exchange, and 49, Cheapside, London, with the Union Jack in order.—13, Regent-street (entrance, corner of Vigo-street).

A BOON to LADIES in the COUNTRY. Paris, The EXCELLENT BOURSE, Corsetière et Modiste, and La Maison Anglaise, Dressmaker and Milliner, 44, Rue de Rivoli, beg to say that they have made arrangements with the Compagnie des Petites Voitures (Parisian Omnibuses) to call once a-week at the Hotel de Meurice, Rue de Rivoli, and Hotel Mirabeau, 8, Rue de Havre, MAITLAND, Paisner, 250, Oxford-street (opposite Park-lane).

GRATIS.—EIGHTEEN PORTRAITS, Fashion Plate, and Book, containing Engravings and Descriptions of the newest patterns, faithfully representing the prevailing fashions, will be sent Gratis and Post-free on application.
Address Jay's Mourning Warehouse, 247 to 251, Regent-street.

SPRING SUITS.—SAMUEL BROTHERS' Business Suits, 30s.; Cut, 17s.; Vest, 6s.; Trousers, 12s. 6d. Boys' Suits, Jackets, Trousers, Hats, Caps, Shirts, Hosiery, &c.
New Illustrated Books and Patterns free.
65, Ludgate-hill.

SPRING SUITS.—SAMUEL BROTHERS' Tourists Suits, 42s.; Cut, 21s.; Vest, 7s.; Trousers, 14s.
New Illustrated Books and Patterns free.
65, Ludgate-hill.

SPRING SUITS.—SAMUEL BROTHERS' Spitalfields Suits, 70s.; Coat, 32s.; Vest, 9s. 6d.; Trousers, 19s. 6d.
New Illustrated Books and Patterns free.
65, Ludgate-hill.

SPRING SUITS.—SAMUEL BROTHERS' Clerical and Professional Suits, 5l., 7l., 10l., 12l.
New Illustrated Books and Patterns free.
65, Ludgate-hill.

SPRING SUITS.—SAMUEL BROTHERS' Saxony Suits, Gentlemen, 30s.; Youths, 21s.; Boys, 14s.
New Illustrated Books and Patterns free.
65, Ludgate-hill.

SHIRTS.—FORD'S EUREKA SHIRTS, 40s. the half-dozen, are allowed by all who wear them the most perfect-fitting shirt made.—Observe: His very superior quality at 45s. the half-dozen, and his new Dress Shirt, unequalled at 42s.—41, Poultry, and 10, Cornhill, E.C.

FORD'S EUREKA SHIRT.—Patterns of the new French Coloured Shirting, for making Ford's Eureka Shirts, sent free by post on application.
Richard Ford, 41, Poultry, and 10, Cornhill, E.C.

SHIRTS.—BOWRING, ARUNDEL, and CO. beg to call attention to their new patterns in DIMITY and MUSLIN SHIRTS, as made and worn by princes with every novelty for the present season.
76, St. James's-street, S.W., and 41, Old Broad-street, E.C.

SHIRTS.—Morning and Evening Shirts of every description, fitting with precision and ease, at moderate prices.—Illustrations and directions for self-measurement sent free.—CAPTAIN PATERSON, 9, Sackville-street, London.

BY APPOINTMENT TO THEIR ROYAL HIGHNESSES THE PRINCE AND PRINCESS OF WALES.
W. and G. SANGSTER, 140, Regent-street, W., to solicit an inspection of their large assortment of STRAW HATS, in both Fancy and Plain Shapes, for the Present and Coming Season.
140, Regent-street; | 94, Fleet-street;
1, Royal Exchange. | 10, Cornhill.

MDME. MOREAU'S CRÈME de CIMIERATEUR, for Clearing the Skin from Freckles and Tan, Pimples, Redness, Roughness, and Discolorations of every description, leaving the Complexion Clear, Soft, and Blooming. Also the celebrated Dissimulating Moulties at the International Exhibition.
Sold by Mdme. Moreau, 26, Burlington-arcade.

BREIDENBACH'S WOOD VIOLET, the most delicate and lasting Perfume. Sold by all Perfumers.
Breidenbach and Co., 157a, New Bond-street.

BEAUTIFUL HAIR.—CHURCHER'S TOILET CREAM is the best and cheapest Crème for Beautifying the Hair. Sold by Churcher's Agents throughout the World. Wholesale and Retail, at Churcher's Emporium, 4, Broadway, Ludgate-hill, E. ROWLANDS and SONS, 20, Hatton-garden, London.

HAIR-CURLING FLUID.—248, High Holborn, London.—ALEX. ROSS'S CURLING FLUID dyes the hair or whiskers in five minutes to a permanent brown or black, and will curl to any degree required. Sold by all Chemists.

THE Romans made LASTING PERFUMES, as do NAPOLEON PRICE. Princess Rose, Maid Rose, Tea Rose, Frangipanni, Jockey Club, Lily of the Valley, Violet, Millefleurs, 2s. 6d.

CREAM OF LILIES, for beautifying and improving the complexion, and effectually removing freckles, sunburn, &c. 2s. 6d. per bottle.—ROWLAND and SONS, 20, Hatton-garden, London.

ALEXANDER PRICE'S REGISTERED GOLDEN OIL is the only article that really possesses the invigorating properties necessary to restore the hair to its natural hue. Restores at an imitation. The genuine is sold in the wide-pattern bottles, with the name of the Inventor, 24, Wellington-st. North, Strand.

SWETZERIAN, JASMINE, and the New ITALIAN BOUQUET, prepared in honour of Garibaldi, universally admired Perfumes, 2s. 6d. each bottle. Sold by all Bloomsbury Perfumers, 37, Great Russell-street.

ROWLAND'S MACASSAR OIL.—This elegant and fragrant Oil is unrivalled in both repute for its unprecedented success in promoting the growth, and beautifying the Human Hair. Its invaluable properties as a restorative are supported by the testimony of the most distinguished individuals in the Nobility, Clergy, Army, Navy, and the public generally. Sold at 20, Hatton-garden, and by Chemists and Perfumers. Ask for ROWLAND'S Macassar Oil.

HAIR DESTROYER.—248, High Holborn, London.—ALEX. ROSS'S DEPILATORY removes superfluous hair from the face, neck, or arms in five minutes, without injury to the skin. 3s. 6d. and 7s.

STOCKER MANUFACTURES TO HER MAJESTY THE PALATINE FAMILY,
GLENFIELD PATENT STARCH,
Awarded the Prize Medal.

DR. LONG'H'S
Well-known Disorder of the Liver,
SICK HEADACHE, BILIOUSNESS, &c., prescribed by the most eminent Medical Men throughout the world as the most effectual remedy in all cases of CONSTIPATION, CHRONIC DYSPEPSIA, ASTHMA, COUGHS, DISORDERED STOMACH, PILES, and all DISEASES arising out of the SKIN, BLOOD, IDIOPATHIC WARTING, and ALL IMPURITIES of the SYSTEM.
Sold by all Chemists, in bottles at 2s. 9d. each.

SELECT MEDICAL OPINIONS.
BRIGHTON, 1st March, 1861.
Medical Officer of Health to the City of London.
"Sir, I have much pleasure in recommending Dr. Long'h's Liver Pills to your notice. I have used them for several years past in my own family, and have found them to be a most valuable and efficacious medicine."
To Mr. LAWRENCE.
Physician to H.R.H. the Princess Mary Adelaide Duchess of Cambridge.
"I frequently prescribe Dr. Long'h's Cod-liver Oil in preference to any other, and have found it to be a most valuable remedy in my practice, and not a manufactured compound in which the efficacy of the Oil is destroyed by adulteration."
To Dr. LONG'H.
DR. DE JONGH'S LIGHT BROWN COD-LIVER OIL is sold only in Imperial Half-pints, 2s. 6d.; Pints, 4s. 9d.; Quarts, 9s.; capsuled and labelled with his Signature, without which none can be genuine. It has CONQUERED PROSECUTION by respectable Chemists and Druggists.
Analysis, Hassall, and Dr. Normandy.
ANSAR, HARFORD, and CO., Bread-street, E.C.

COD-LIVER OIL SUPERSEDED, by DR. DE THEBES CORDIATED COD PEARLS, called the Elixir of Cod-liver Oil, Iodine, and Bromine, in a Pearl. Sold by Lamplough, 113, Long Acre; Sutton, 10, Bond-st.; Wilcocks, 238, Oxford-st.; Barclay, 95, Farringdon-st.; Sanger, 150, Oxford-st.; and Hannay, 63, Oxford-st.

ELAM'S ABDOMINAL SUPPORTERS, for Debility, Corpulency, Prolapsus, &c., attending the greatest relief and support. Elam, 276, Strand (two doors from Somerset House).

NEW MUSIC.

M. THALBERG'S NEW PIECES.

THALBERG'S BALLO IN MASCHERA. Just published, a charming Fantasia for the Pianoforte, on favourite airs from Verdi's Opera, By M. Thalberg. Price 3s. CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

THALBERG'S RIGOLETTO. Just published, a Fantasia for the Pianoforte, on favourite airs from Verdi's popular Opera, By M. Thalberg. Price 3s. CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

NEW FIANOFORTE PIECE FROM FAUST.

BENEDICT'S FAUST. Just published, a Grand Fantasia on favourite melodies from Gounod's celebrated and popular Opera. Price 4s. CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

NEW PIANOFORTE PIECE FROM FAUST.

FAVARGER'S FAUST. A Fantasia on the most favourite melodies from Gounod's Opera. Price 4s. CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

KUHE'S FAUST. Fantaisie de Salon for the Pianoforte on favourite Airs from Gounod's Opera. Price 4s. CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

OSBORNE'S FAUST. A Fantasia on favourite Melodies from Gounod's celebrated Opera, by the above popular Composer. Price 4s. CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

OSBORNE'S SALVE! DIMORA. Cavatina from Gounod's "Faust," Arranged for the Pianoforte by this favourite Composer. Price 3s. CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

BRINLEY RICHARDS' SOLDIERS' CHORUS, from Gounod's celebrated Opera of "Faust," Arranged for the Pianoforte. Price 1s. Duet, 4s. CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

W. H. CALLCOTT'S BEAUTIES OF FAUST. A new arrangement of the most favourite subjects in Gounod's Opera, for the Pianoforte. Price 3s. Published at 4s. and 5s. two books, 2s. each. CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

THE SOLDIERS' CHORUS in FAUST, as performed in the Opera. Arranged for the Pianoforte by W. H. CALLCOTT. Price 1s. Duet, 4s. CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

A CHARMING SONG FOR THE DRAWING ROOM.

QUANDO LE LIETA. Romance, Composed by GOUNOD, and sung by Mme. Didiée in the Opera of "Faust." Price 3s. CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

M. BLUMENTHAL'S NEW PIECES.

M. Blumenthal's LA MADRE. Morceau. Price 3s. 6d.
Blumenthal's BRIDAL REVELS. Morceau. Price 3s. 6d.
Blumenthal's FRIEDEN DES MATTGOTH. Price 3s.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

KUHE'S LEGGERO INVISIBILE. Just published, Andito aere Solero, sung by Miller. Tiffins and Reigal, with Brilliant Accompaniments for the Pianoforte. Price 3s. CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

KUHE'S SEMIRAMIDE. Grand Fantasia on Airs from Rossini's favourite Opera, for the Pianoforte, by this popular Composer. Price 4s. CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

KUHE'S MASANIELLO.—Just published, a Fantasia for the Pianoforte on Airs from this charming Opera. Price 4s. CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

NEW DANCE MUSIC.

HAPPY MOMENTS VALSE. By GUSTAVE LAMBERT. Just published, Beautifully Illustrated. Price 4s., Orchestra, 3s., Septet, 2s. CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

THE FORGET-ME-NOT WALTZ. By GUSTAVE LAMBERT. Just published. Price 4s., Orchestra, 3s., Septet, 2s. CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

THE GUARDS' WALTZ. By D. GODFREY. The Second Set of Waltzes by the Bandmaster and Princess of Wales' Just published, price 4s., Duet, 4s. CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

THE MERRY TUNES LANCERS. Just published. A new set of LANCERS, composed on all the popular and merry tunes of the day. By D. GODFREY. Price 4s. Orchestra, 3s.; Septet, 2s. CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

THE HAUM-SCARUM GALOP. By JAMES CASSITY (Composer of the Buffoons Galop). Just published, extremely Illustrated. Price 4s., Duet, 4s., Orchestra, 3s., Septet, 2s. CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

HELTER-SKELTER GALOP. Just out, price 4s. Duet, 4s. Septet, 2s. By CASSITT (Composer of the Buffoons Galop). Capitally Illustrated. Price, 4s. Solo or Duet; Orchestra, 3s.; Septet, 2s. CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

COOTE'S FAUST WALTZ, on Airs from Gounod's Opera. Beautifully Illustrated. Price, Solo or Duet, 4s.; Septet, 2s.; Full Orchestra, 3s. CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

COOTE'S FAUST QUADRILLE, on favourite Airs from Gounod's Opera. Beautifully Illustrated. Price, Solo or Duet, 4s.; Septet, 2s.; Full Orchestra, 3s. CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

COOTE'S FAUST GALOP, from Gounod's Opera. Beautifully Illustrated. Price, Solo or Duet, 3s.; Septet, 2s.; Full Orchestra, 3s. CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

FAUST POLKA. By F. WALLACE-TITUS. Just published. Beautifully Illustrated. Price 3s., Solo; Orchestra, 2s., Septet, 2s. CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

NEW SONGS BY STEPHEN GLOVER.

WON'T YOU TELL? New Song. Words by GARVESTER; Music by STEPHEN GLOVER. Price 2s. 6d. CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

MR. SANTLEY'S NEW SONG.

SOFT AND LOW. From Gounod's Opera, "Le Medicin malgré lui." Sung by Mr. Santley at the Monday Popular Concerts. CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

THE SIRDUP CUP, MR. SANTLEY'S NEW SONG, most humorously composed by Mr. Santley himself and impressively sung, is now ready, in C, D, or E flat. Price 2s. 6d. CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

THE WATCHING MOTHER. New Song, Words and Composed by CHARLOTTE M. E. OLIVER. Price 2s. CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

A THOUSAND LEAGUES AWAY. New Song. Words by W. C. BENNETT; composed by ANDREW BARNEY. Price 2s. 6d. CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

EWER and CO.'S MUSICAL LIBRARY, British and Foreign, 308, Regent-street, London. Prospectuses gratis. 87, Regent-street, London.

KATE OF ABERDEEN. New Ballad, By CLARIBEL. sent free for 18 stamps. EWER and CO., 308, Regent-street, 87, Regent-street.

NEW MUSIC.

NICOLAI'S MERRY WIVES of WINDSOR. Book of the Words and Overtures Airs. Solo, 1s.; Duet, 2s. Selection of Airs ... Duet, 2s. Polyposet (for Piano) ... Duet, 2s. Fantasia on Popular Airs ... P. Beyer ... 3s. Fantasia ... Kuhe ... 4s. Fantasia ... Osborne ... 4s. Fantasia ... C. Coote ... 3s. Fantasia et Valse ... Ascher ... 4s. The Favourite Duet Theme ... Italian Words, as sung at Her Majesty's Theatre.

DANCE MUSIC.

The Falstaff Polka (Illustrated) ... A. Mazas ... 3s. Quadrilles ... Coote ... 3s. Waltzes ... Coote ... 3s. CRAMER, Wood, and Co., 201, Regent-street.

SWEET SPIRIT WALTZES. By T. PLAKKEN LAST SET. Beautifully Illustrated, 4s. Extended Arrangement of the same Waltzes, Full Set, 4s. CRAMER, WOOD, and Co., 201, Regent-street.

BRINLEY RICHARDS' LEAH'S SONG. In the most successful Opera, "Leah." CRAMER, Wood, and Co., 201, Regent-street.

THE PIPE. A Student's Song. Illustrated with a facsimile Portrait of "the great Sir Walter Raleigh." CRAMER, Wood, and Co., 201, Regent-street.

BOAT SONG. By VERDI. 2s. 6d. A splendid Barcarolle. CRAMER, Wood, and Co., 201, Regent-street.

THE MAIDEN'S PRAYER. By VERDI. 2s. 6d. Original Words by VIRGINIA GABRIEL. CRAMER, Wood, and Co., 201, Regent-street.

LITTLE BIRD. A Venetian Ballad. By VIRGINIA GABRIEL. 2s. CRAMER, Wood, and Co., 201, Regent-street.

GARIBALDI. Song. By ARDITI. Words by Henry Farnie. With capital Portrait of Garibaldi. 3s. CRAMER, Wood, and Co., 201, Regent-street.

ANITA. By BRINLEY RICHARDS. 3s. (Founded on a pathetic passage in the life of Garibaldi). CRAMER, Wood, and Co., 201, Regent-street.

ARDITI'S LA GARIBALDINA. 2s. 6d. A Song with Chorus, performed at the Crystal Palace, Her Majesty's Theatre, and elsewhere. CRAMER, Wood, and Co., 201, Regent-street.

ARDITI'S GARIBALDINA. BRINLEY RICHARDS. Coloured Satirical Sketch for the Pianoforte. Price 3s. CRAMER, Wood, and Co., 201, Regent-street.

JACQUES BLUMENTHAL.

1. Les Cloches (Campanella). ... 3s. 0d.
2. La Sotte de L'Arcevêle. Chinese Dapolitaine ... 3s. 0d.
3. Les Cloches du Monastère ... 3s. 0d.
4. Le Rêve ... 3s. 0d.

CRAMER, Wood, and Co., 201, Regent-street.

GRAZELLA. A Musical Story. By J. G. LONSDALE. Price 4s. Illustrated with Portrait of Grazella, Scene from the Opera, Portrait of Composer, Fac-simile, &c., or especially—

Under the Olive Tree. Romance. ... 2s. 6d.
Though the tempest wild surrounds me. (Bass). ... 2s. 6d.
Thou art fair as the Rose. (Tenor). ... 2s. 6d.
Thou art the Star. (Soprano and Tenor). ... 2s. 6d.
The moment of parting. (Duet. Soprano and Tenor). ... 2s. 6d.
Grazella. Valse. ... 3s. 0d.
Song for a Bass Voice. Full Chorus. ... 2s. 6d.
The separate Choral Parts may be had at 6d. each; 7s. the Set of 24 Parts. CRAMER, Wood, and Co., 201, Regent-street.

METZLER and Co., 37, 38, 39, and 40, Great Marlborough-street, W.

THE GEM OF THE SEASON.

SWEET NIGHTINGALE. By F. BOSCOVITCH. Sung by Mdme. Rudersdorff. Price 4s. Duet, 4s. Solo or with any voice.—A original, G, and F. Free 18 stamps. METZLER and Co., 37, 38, 39, and 40, Great Marlborough-street, W.

SUNG BY MR. KENNEDY.

THE BREAK OF MORN. By E. LAND, Price 4s. METZLER and Co., 37, 38, 39, and 40, Great Marlborough-street, W.

THE LAST QUARTER OF AN HOUR. By WALLERSTEIN. Played by all the Band. Illustrated, 4s. Duet, 4s. Septet, 2s. Solo or Duet, 4s. Full Orchestra, 3s. Gd. METZLER and Co., 37, 38, 39, and 40, Great Marlborough-street, W.

THE MAIDEN AND THE STREAMLET. A very pleasing Nocturne for the Piano. By H. W. GOODBAN. Price 4s. METZLER and Co., 37, 38, 39, and 40, Great Marlborough-street, W.

A NEW PIANOFORTE PIECE BY

H. W. GOODBAN.—JERUSALEM THE GOLDEN. A charming Arrangement of the favourite Melody. METZLER and Co., 37, 38, 39, and 40, Great Marlborough-street, W.

PLAYED BY THE BAND OF THE GUARDS.

LES PATINEURS. By F. BOSCOVITCH. A charming Galop for the Pianoforte. Price 3s. METZLER and Co., 37, 38, 39, and 40, Great Marlborough-street, W.

MDME. OURY'S CHANT DU PATRIOT (Marseillaise). Arranged for the Pianoforte by Mdme. Oury's popular arrangement of the Danish Hymn. Price 3s. METZLER and Co., 37, 38, 39, and 40, Great Marlborough-street, W.

COUSIN KATE.

LEAP YEAR. The popular Ballad in the Pantomime. Sung by Miss Woolgar. Illustrated, price 2s. 6d. METZLER and Co., 37, 38, 39, and 40, Great Marlborough-street, W.

THE HAUNTED MILL.

MARY ANNE BRADFORD'S RETURNING HAIR. The popular Ballad in the Opera Cousine Encouragement at the Adelphi. Price 2s. 6d. METZLER and Co., 37, 38, 39, and 40, Great Marlborough-street, W.

SCHOOL, SCHOOL.—GANZ'S popular Song, sung by Miss. Fergus with great success at the Concerts of the Royal Italian Opera. Price 2s. 6d. KUHE'S brilliant Transcription for Pianoforte Solo. Price 3s. ADDISON and PARKY, 210, Regent-street.

GANZ'S QUI VIVE! Grand Galop, "One of the most popular and brilliant pieces of the season." Illustrated with Portrait of Ganz. Price 3s. "Until I meet thee by moonlight." Song and Chorus. 2s. 6d.

SYDNEY SMITH'S GOLDEN BELLS. A most attractive, elegant, and tasteful piece, destined to become a favourite. Price 3s. ADDISON and PARKY, 210, Regent-street.

SYDNEY SMITH'S PAS REDOUBLE. A very spirited and highly effective martial piece. Played by the military bands with great success. Price 3s. ADDISON and PARKY, 210, Regent-street.

SYDNEY SMITH'S UNE NUIT ÉTOILÉE. Solo and Duet. Price 3s. Each. This piece has been universally pronounced popular composer. Price 3s. ADDISON and PARKY, 210, Regent-street.

SYDNEY SMITH'S MARSHALL. A new and effective Galop, on the subject of the popular melody and pleasing pieces. Price 3s. ADDISON and PARKY, 210, Regent-street.

NEW MUSIC.

STRADELLA, by FLOTOW, complete, with the Italian words, price 20s. Also, the whole of the Vocal Music in Italian, in the original and transposed Keys. Pianoforte Arrangements by Mallaroy Oury. Kuhe (Second Fantasia). Benedict. Osborne (Quadrilles and Waltzes). Brinley Richards. Wright and Rowe, Soho-square.

KUHE'S SECOND FANTASIA on STRADELLA includes the celebrated Prayer and the beautiful Barcarolle. Price 4s.—ROBERT and KOHL, Holles-street.

MDME. OURY'S STRADELLA. Fantasia on Flotow's Opera. Just out. Price 3s. ROBERT and KOHL, Holles-street.

MDME. OURY'S MERRY WIVES OF WINDSOR. Fantasia. Just published on the same Plan. Price 4s. Published this day.—ROBERT and KOHL, Holles-street.

GANZ'S MERRY WIVES OF WINDSOR. Fantasia. Just published on the same Plan. Price 4s. ROBERT and KOHL, Holles-street.

GOUNOD'S NEW OPERA, MIREILLE. The complete Pianoforte Arrangement by Benedict, Kuhe, the Florentine Set, Coote, and Rivière. Illustrations.

THE MERRY WIVES OF WINDSOR. By NICOLAI. As performed at Her Majesty's Theatre. Complete for Pianoforte. Price 20s.—ROBERT and KOHL, Holles-street.

FORBES' CAPRERA.—CHANSON NAPOLITAINE, for the Pianoforte. A most fascinating little piece. Illustrated with Portrait of Garibaldi. Price 3s. To be had everywhere.—ROBERT and KOHL, Holles-street.

MISS HAWLEY'S IVANHOE. New and beautiful arrangement of "Auld Robin Gray." By the Author of "Rosalie." ROBERT and KOHL, Holles-street.

BRINLEY RICHARDS' JANET'S CHOICE. Illustrated Fantasia. Arrangement of "Janet's Choice," Sung by Miss Dolby. By Brinley Richards. Price 3s.—ROBERT and KOHL, Holles-street.

KUHE'S MAGGIE'S SECRET. Illustrated Fantasia, which Mdme. Lemmens has rendered so famous, has been transcribed by Mr. Kuhe in his happiest manner. Price 3s.—ROBERT and KOHL, Holles-street.

LITTLE BIRD, LITTLE BIRD ON THE GREEN TREE. New Song. By CLARIBEL, in her most popular style. Price 2s. To be had everywhere.—ROBERT and KOHL, Holles-street.

BEHOLD MY LOVE! SHE SLUMBERS. New Song. By CLARIBEL. Illustrated with Portrait of "Fascination." A most charming melody and effective song for tenors. Price 2s. To be had everywhere.—ROBERT and KOHL, Holles-street.

NORA'S TREASURE. New Ballad, By Written by CLARIBEL. Adapted to an Irish Melody and sung by Mr. Lawler. Price 2s. To be had everywhere.—ROBERT and KOHL, Holles-street.

SUSAN'S STORY. A New Ballad, by the Author of "Janet's Choice." Price 2s. ROBERT and KOHL, Holles-street.

SIGNOR CAMPANA'S NEW DUET, "Gli amanti Tristi"—a companion to, and in the same style as, "Ne mia madre." Price 4s.—ROBERT and KOHL, Holles-street.

BOOSEY'S LIBRARY.—Two-Guinea Subscription for the use of twelve pieces of Music to be exchanged every month, twelve reserving gratuitously a guinea worth of the same amount of Music.—28, Holles-street.

CANST THOU NOT READ THE MUTE LETTER? Song, as Solo or Duet. Composed by CESARE PUGNI. Price 3s. Sung by Mdme. Lemmens Sherrington. Published this day.—BOOSEY and SONS, Holles-street.

THE SWEET BIRD. Song. By MEYERBEER. Written expressly for Mdlle. Titiens. Sung by Mdlle. Titiens and Mdme. Lemmens Sherrington. Price 3s. Published this day.—BOOSEY and SONS, Holles-street.

NOTICE.—HALF PRICE.—All Music, and the best Editions, at half the published price, sent post-free on receipt of postage stamps. Catalogues gratis and post-free.—BOOSEY and SONS, 28, New Bond-street, W.

THE GEM OF THE SEASON.

GANZ'S BALLERINA MAZURKA. Price 3s. Illustrated with Engraving Showing the Costume of the celebrated piece therein to!—

BOOSEY and SONS, 28, New Bond-street.

THE PIANO PRICE FOR 18s.

KUHE'S "SEE THE CONQUERING HERO COMES" Brilliantly Illustrated. Price 4s. Hopwood and Crew, 42, New Bond-street.

COOTE'S POLLY PERKINS QUADRILLE. Price 4s. Introducing Chilvers celebrated Song, "Isabella," Which is now being sung with great success at the Alhambra, &c. Hopwood and Crew, 42, New Bond-street.

The facts of Gigantia.

COOTE'S INFANT PRINCE VALSES, Illustrated. Hopwood and Crew, 42, New Bond-street.

COOTE'S EXTRAVAGANZA GALOP. Price 3s. Second Edition. Now ready. Hopwood and Crew, 42, New Bond-street.

THE BEST SET OF LANCERS ARE

COOTE'S MERRY LANCERS. Price 4s. Introducing "The Pilgrim of Love," by Percy Pope," "O by joy be blest," "Ever of thee," "Ever and Anon," and the merry set. No dumb gentlemen complete without them. Always encored. Hopwood and Crew, 42, New Bond-street.

COOTE'S KATE KEARNEY WALTZES, Illustrated. Introducing "Kate Kearney," "Rosy Morning," "Farewell to Kathleen," "Kate Kearney," "Scrapping Denis." Solo or Duet, 4s.; Orchestra, 3s.; Septet, 2s. Hopwood and Crew, 42, New Bond-street.

THE NEW VALSE OF THE SEASON.

COOTE'S HUMMING BIRD. Price 4s. Illustrated with Portrait of Mdme. Lemmens Sherrington. Hopwood and Crew, 42, New Bond-street.

COOTE'S FAUST QUADRILLE. Illustrated. Price 4s. Hopwood and Crew, 42, New Bond-street.

LEAP BY LEAP from the ROSES FALL. Price 2s. 6d. Sung by Mdme. Lemmens Sherrington. Hopwood and Crew, 42, New Bond-street.

UPWARDS HUNDREDS OF MR. COOKE'S NEW SONGS.

A NORTHERN MAID; or, The Suicidal Fourth. Price 2s. Beloved for three nights in the Face of "The Arrow and the Rose." Price 2s.

THE MERRY CHAT, Price 2s.

NEW CHEAPER SONGS. 2s. 6d.

OH! WOULD I WERE A BIRD. Hopwood and Crew, 42, New Bond-street.

MERRY SONGS. Mary Ann. A Rare Darling Gardener ... 2s. 6d. Have you seen the Gleam? ... 2s. 6d. Oh! Mary Ann, Oh! Darling Dumbrella ... 2s. 6d. Lovely Spring ... 2s. 6d. Lassie's Ball ... 2s. 6d. Hopwood and Crew, 42, New Bond-street.

SONGS OF THE DAY.

POLLY PERKINS. By HARRY CLIFTON. Price 2s. 6d. Sung everywhere. Hopwood and Crew, 42, New Bond-street.

THREE GREAT SONGS.

OH! IF HAD SOME ONE TO LOVE ME. By F. H. COWEN. Sung by Mdme. Lemmens Sherrington. Price 2s. 6d. "I'LL NOT LOVE YOU." By Miss Lindsay. Sung by Mdme. Lemmens Sherrington. Price 2s. 6d. NO ONE TO LOVE, NOUGHT TO CARESS. By Mr. Hopwood and Crew, 42, New Bond-street.

BOOSEY'S 17-GUINEA PIANOFORTE (The Student) is the best cheap Pianoforte ever manufactured. It has the trichord structure, is in walnut, and possesses an excellent touch and quality of tone.

BOOSEY'S 26-GUINEA PIANOFORTE, in rosewood, or 27 guineas in Italian walnut, is a highly finished, elegant case, suitable for any drawing-room; the workmanship, quality of tone, and touch are unsurpassed. From the time of that year, this quality has especially distinguishes foreign English pianos.

BOOSEY'S 35-GUINEA PIANOFORTE in rosewood, or 37 guineas in Italian walnut, four octaves and a half, with trichord throughout, and the tone is consequently more powerful. This piano is very elegant in appearance, and the touch is remarkably good, as well as the quality of tone. Descriptive catalogues of 7 varieties.—BOOSEY and SONS, 28, Holles-street, London.

THE COTTAGE, or SIX-GUINEA, HARMONIUM has a rich, full tone, suitable for leading church singing, &c.—BOOSEY and SONS, 28, Holles-street.

THE SCHOOL, or TEN-GUINEA, HARMONIUM has a rich, full tone, suitable for leading church singing, &c.—BOOSEY and SONS, 28, Holles-street.

THE CHURCH HARMONIUMS, at 20, 25, and 40 guineas. Very powerful, and admirably adapted for the performance of Chants.—BOOSEY and SONS, 28, Holles-street.

BOOSEY'S ENGLISH HARMONIUMS, for Drawing-room and Concert, in extensive variety, new and unconfined, at greatly reduced prices, including instruments with two rows of keys and pedals.

BOOSEY and SONS, 28, Holles-street.

PIANOFORTES at CHAPPELL'S.—The largest Stock in London, by Broadwood, Collard, Erard, &c., for Sale or Hire.—30, New Bond-street.

CHAPPELL'S FOREIGN PIANINO is the only Pianino to which the Prize Medal was awarded.—A full compass Pianoforte, in a handsome Italian walnut case, with fine trichord tone, check action, repetition touch, Vienna, Bordeaux, &c. Warranted to keep in tune, and to be the best Pianoforte ever made for the price, either English or Foreign. Price 35 guineas.

Prize, in mahogany, rosewood, or walnut, 25 and 26 guineas. A small cottage model.

CHAPPELL and Co.'s, 50, New Bond-street.

CHAPPELL and CO.'S ENGLISH MODEL COTTAGE PIANOFORTE, in Broadwood's best quality tone. English model will be found the most perfectly satisfactory instrument, as to durability, quality of tone, and touch, ever manufactured for the money ordered, and therefore especially adapted to the country. Price 50 guineas, in handsome rosewood case, with fine trichord tone, check action, repetition touch, improved sound board, and all the latest improvements. Every respect, to other instruments at 50 guineas, price 35 guineas; in black walnut, 30 guineas.

CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

CHAPPELL'S FOREIGN MODEL PIANOFORTE, price 42 guineas in rosewood; or in walnut, handsomely carved, 45 guineas. A full compass Pianoforte, in elegant cases of Queen Ornate. It is strengthened by every possible improvement, and is unrivalled for its brilliant and powerful tone in any climate. The workmanship, quality of tone, and touch are less in vacuo, full, and rich; and the power equal to that of a Pianoforte of the first class. Warranted to keep in tune, and to be the best Pianoforte ever made for the price, either English or Foreign. Prize, in mahogany, rosewood, or walnut, 35 guineas.

CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

CHAPPELL'S TWENTY-GUINEA PIANOFORTE, in solid mahogany or plain walnut, the best English Pianoforte ever made for the money. It is strengthened by every possible improvement, and is unrivalled for its brilliant and powerful tone. Recommend this instrument as superior to any other pianoforte at or about the price, either English or Foreign.

CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

CHAPPELL'S SMALL FOREIGN MODEL PIANOFORTE, 38 guineas, a new Oblique Piano, with the full compass of seven octaves, in handsome Italian walnut case, with fine trichord tone, check action, Repetition Touch, Sostenente Pedal, and all the latest improvements. Every respect, to other pianos at 50 guineas, price 38 guineas.

CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

ALEXANDRE'S AWING-BOOM MODEL HARMONIUM, the best that can be made, price 40 guineas, in handsome case, with two rows of vibrators, and the full register of Pianoforte and Harmoniums open application to

CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

SIX-GUINEA HARMONIUM, by ALEXANDRE, nearly of cut guitar: as good as new, with twenty-seven stops. CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

SECOND-HAND HARMONIUMS, by ALEXANDRE, nearly of cut guitar: as good as new, with twenty-seven stops. CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

ALEXANDRE'S PRIZE EXHIBITION MODEL HARMONIUM, for the CHURCH, 13 stops, 4 rows of vibrators, and the full compass of Pianoforte and Harmonium Keys, in handsome Gothic case, price 60 guineas, which was awarded at CHAPPELL and CO.'S, 50, New Bond-street.

SECOND-HAND PIANOFORTES, by BROADWOOD, COLLARD, ERARD, &c., and NEW PIANOFORTES, by CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street, have been hired for the season, at very reduced prices. Also, New Pianofortes for Sale.

CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

PIANETTES.—CHAPPELL and CO. PLUMB'S New Pianette is acknowledged the best and cheapest in Europe, and the trade of this firm is unrivalled by any Pianoforte Piano. Can be had twelve months on trial. One in the window WILL ONLY BE LET ON HIRE.—50, New Bond-street.

PIANETTES, 16l., Rosewood.

PETZMANN and PLUMB'S DRAWING-ROOM PIANOFORTES, in fine walnut cases, 32 to 33 guineas, recommended for brilliancy of tone and elegance of appearance.

PIANOFORTES.—PETZMANN and PLUMB'S Pianofortes, in handsome rosewood cases, only 27 guineas. These instruments are manufactured in London, by experienced workmen, and are warranted for seven years.

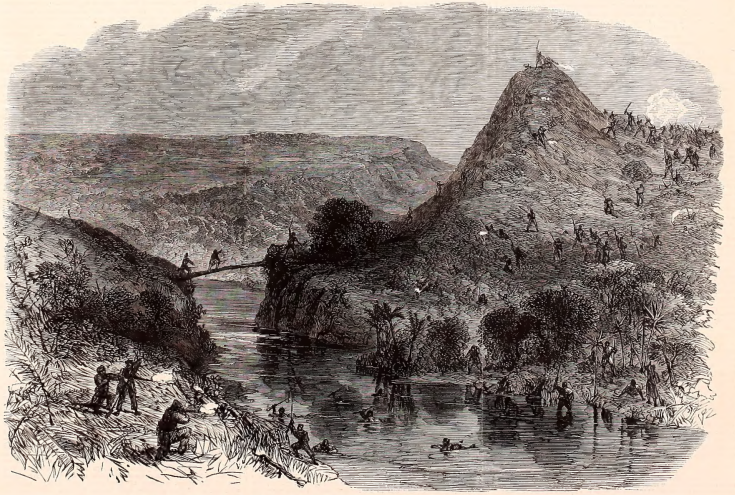
PETZMANN and PLUMB'S INDIAN PIANOFORTES, with all the latest improvements, and especially adapted for the Indian climate, are in use in every part of India, as a superior climate, a useless article. Packed in tinned case and shipped to any part of India, 40 guineas.

PIANOFORTES AND HARMONIUMS, GUITARS AND BANJOS, with descriptions for Hire. Buyers will find at 101, Regent-street, all they can desire in good Pianofortes, Harmoniums, Guitars, and Banjos, at the lowest prices for ready money, or on the three years' system. Every instrument is manufactured by experienced workmen.—101, Regent-street, the only address.

CRAMER and CO.—PIANOFORTES for SALE, Pianoforte Gallery, 207, 209, Regent-street.

CRAMER and CO.—HARMONIUMS for HIRE. 201, Regent-street.

CRAMER and CO.—HARMONIUMS for SALE. 201, Regent-street.



CRAMER and CO.'S ARTIST'S CONCERTINAS. (12 and 16 guineas) 201, Regent-street.

CRAMER and CO.'S FOUR-GUINEA CONCERTINA. The best Cheap Concertina ever produced. 201, Regent-street.

ENGLISH CONCERTINAS, by WHEATSTONE and CO., the only Concertinas that have the full compass of the Pianoforte, with perfect equality of tone, from very gentle to very full power, with ease, lock, and key, &c. HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

BAZAAR AT ST. JAMES'S HALL IN AID OF THE FRENCH PROTESTANT SCHOOLS IN SOHO.—SEE NEXT PAGE.

FIGHT AT WAIARI, ON THE MANGAPIKO RIVER, NEW ZEALAND, ON THE 11TH OF FEBRUARY.—SEE NEXT PAGE.

BAZAAR FOR THE FRENCH PROTESTANT FREE SCHOOLS.

THE opening of the grand fancy bazaar, on Thursday week, at St. James's Hall, for the benefit of the French Protestant Free Schools situated in Gerrard-street, Soho, was honoured by the presence of the Prince and Princess of Wales. It was not expected that his Royal Highness would have attended the bazaar; but, greatly to the pleasure and profit of the fair stall-keepers, he accompanied the Princess of Wales, and during the time of his visit purchased many of the exquisite contributions sent from Paris, Geneva, and Berlin for the benefit of the schools. Her Royal Highness was accompanied by Countess of Morton, and the Prince of Wales by Major Teesdale. They were received at the entrance of the hall by the Committee—the Duchess of Grafton, the Duchess of Somerset, the Marchioness Maria de Casa Irujo, the Marchioness of Westminster, the Marchioness of Bath, the Marchioness of Ely, the Countess of Shaftesbury, the countess Grey De Wilton, Viscountess Jocelyn, Lady Charles Beresford, Lady Caroline De Grey de Malin, the Hon. Mrs. Grosvenor, Lady Isabella Barnes. The bazaar was in every respect a great success, and the funds of the French Free Schools were materially benefited by its operations.

THE WAR IN NEW ZEALAND.—FIGHT ON THE MANGATARA HILL.

THE skirmish which took place on the 11th of February, at Waitoi, on the Mangapiko River, between the Maoris and a small party of British troops is well illustrated in our Engraving on the opposite page, which is a sketch taken on the spot. This place lies in the Waikato Valley, about 15 miles from Auckland. The Engraving represents the position which we describe the almost impregnable position of Paltaranga, held by 700 or 800 of the enemy, had been engaged all the morning by a force under Colonel Waddy, C.B., consisting of 500 men of the 40th and 50th Regiments, with about 300 yard between the two parties of the Queen's forces, with a ravine and small stream between them. This stream flows into the river Mangapiko, distant not more than half a mile from the position, and about the same distance from Paltaranga. The river here makes a bend, running first nearly towards the front, on which both the Maori and British positions are situated. The small party of troops formed on the opposite or east bank of the river is covered with thick scrub, and the position on the west bank is covered with a similar scrub, which joins the peninsula with the country eastward. Across the neck of this high ground, between the river and scrub, is about one third of a mile in breadth, are three parapets and ditches of some old Maori fortifications. It seems that the enemy were aware of the enemy having got into the peninsula, just opposite to our camp, till about 11 o'clock, in the afternoon, when the Maoris, finding that some of our soldiers went into the river to bathe, and were suddenly fired upon by the Maoris, who had crept down to the river-bank. The covering party, under Lieutenant Simeon, and the picket on duty near the river, under Major Bewsher, immediately replied to the enemy's fire, while the bathers got out of the water and dressed as quickly as they could. The Maoris now slowly retired towards the old fortifications on the neck of the peninsula, but not before the alarm was given in our camp. A party of officers had been out on the left, reconnoitring Paltaranga, when they now hastily returned. They were Colonel Sir Henry Havelock, V.C., Captain Cole of the 65th, and Captain Lloyd of the 1st Waikato Rifles. Collecting a handful of men, who ran out to see the skirmish, they formed a bend connecting with the original line position, and, after a sharp run, gained the neck of land already spoken of by which the Maoris of the peninsula must retreat. Here they met with a small reserve of the enemy, who, after a few minutes of sharp firing, were dispersed. Captain Fisher now descended a bridge over the river. It consisted of a single tree, 18 in. long and about 15 ft. above the water, here running in a deep narrow channel, 15 ft. below the bridge. Captain Fisher, with about 20 men, and Captain Heaphy in support of him with four more, at once put across this bridge. They were in the act of crossing when the scrub on the other bank, but no one was hit; and, rapidly ascending the high bank on the opposite side, they had the satisfaction to see some fall upon the retiring ambuscade party of the enemy. The Maoris for a moment seemed panic-stricken, astonished at the presence of mind, fired an ill-directed volley at the British, and ran for the shelter of the next parapet. Here Captain Fisher, with about five or six men, whose rifles were loaded, charged into them, and Captain Heaphy coming up with his three or four men cleared them out of the ditch. They took refuge in the next parapet, which Major Havelock now came over to the isthmus and took charge, assisted by Captain Fisher and Captain Heaphy, of the skirmish with some Maori reinforcements that were coming down from Paltaranga. The Maoris in the ditch retired to the next parapet, lying close in the thick scrub of the ditch. Sir Henry Havelock and Captain Heaphy with their men, on reaching it, turned these out, pushing them back into the fire of Major Bewsher's party, who had got their range from the parapet on the other side. Of the twelve men (40th and 50th Regiments) who were with Sir H. Havelock five fell at this charge. Their success was complete, the enemy had no way of escape; some hid themselves in the scrub, lying perfectly still for hours, with our people within a few feet of them; others attempted to swim across the river, but were shot. Desperate hand-to-hand fights here and there took place in the scrub. After every assembly of the Maoris had been dispersed, they committed the murders of unarmed settlers and children near Auckland, the full extent of which horrible atrocities remains unscathed. One soldier—Cousins, of the 50th—pursued the enemy too far into the scrub, and was wounded, in a dangerous part, by one of the scrub. He waved his hand, poor fellow! for assistance, expecting no doubt the instant temptation would be overcome by the volunteers, ran into the hollow to aid him, and, as he stooped to examine his wound, received a ball in the back of a few feet distance from seven or eight Maoris in the scrub. Four balls entered his body, but only inflicted slight wounds, while his clothes and cap were perforated with bullets, one cutting the feather in his cap, which fell quivering on the ground. Recovering himself in a moment, he took aim at the Maoris, and one of them fell dead, shot by him. The loss at the 40th gallantly came to his support before the enemy could reload, and seven Maoris were shot down in the scrub in front of the ditch. Strong reinforcements now came down from the enemy's main position at Paltaranga, and Captain Heaphy, assisted by Captain French, of the 40th, skirmished with them across the bridge. Sir Henry Havelock, with his handful more, kept in the ditch, still in position in the old fortifications. He placed Lieutenant Leach, of the 50th, with a few men at the bridge, to support Captain Fisher, and gave to Captain Heaphy a mixed party of 40th and 50th soldiers, to go on without an order. Thus, formed under a heavy fire and gaining a commanding position, three men in the scrub were shot by the flank of the Maori rebels as, with French's and Fisher's cross-fire, entirely prevented them from joining the fight in front.

At sunset there yet remained some lurking Maoris in the scrub at the riverside, about three men in a place, and Captain Heaphy, at the head of a small party, under Captain Jackson and Von Tempsky, Sir Henry Havelock's volunteers, went to get into the scrub, with their swords and knives. They went down, and in a minute the most awful yells and Maori curses were heard, followed by the fire and fierce fight of muskets and the quick popping of revolvers. In ten minutes, the Rangers appeared on the parapet carrying up five Maori bodies, and two Maoris wounded. They had not themselves sustained loss. Night fell; the wounded and dead, at the first and fierce fire of the latter, were carried into camp, with ten Maori corpses and the wounded; six more Maori bodies were left on the path and seven in the river. With those who fell in the scrub, and whom it was too dark to find, and those who were shot of the reinforcements, forty-eight were killed or mortally wounded. Such was the skirmish at Waiari. It not only inflicted a severe defeat upon the enemy, but it has opened a "short-cut" road to Rangiawhia, by which the whole of the Maori positions can be turned.

The Prince del Drago has found some beautiful ancient mosaic pavements on one of his estates in the country, and he has just now entrusted them to the cellar of his palace for some unexplained matter of Venus, minus the head and arms unfortunately, but perfectly beautiful as to the body and lower limbs. It is about 9 ft. high.

CURRENT LITERATURE.

The Life and Genius of Shakspeare. By Thomas Kenny. (Longmans.) This is no hasty concoction of Shakspearana, which the occasional popularity of that theme on the eve of the tercentenary festival might prompt a biographical gossip to compile. It is a thoughtful essay, the result of much reading and reflection upon the characteristics of Shakspeare as a man and poet, so far as they are revealed to us in his writings and by the few authentic dates of his personal career. The essayist, wherever he may be—for we suspect that "Thomas Kenny" is a mere nom de plume—has applied rare powers of historical criticism to the task he has undertaken. The remarkable independence and serenity of judgment, he claims away in the mythical controversies which Richard Barnfield, when he grown out of the fancy of so many enthusiastic worshippers of the mightiest Master of the Drama, are exhibited in the calm and unprejudiced spirit of inquiry. With a firm and careful hand he separates from the life of Shakspeare the mass of fable and legendary biography a snarky collection of facts well ascertained from the registers, records, and contemporary notices of Stratford. He regards Shakspeare as "a man of easy temper, intent on securing the social advantages of respectability and independence," who came up to London because he could not earn a living for himself and his household on the side and children of an imprudent early marriage, and here joined the theatrical company of Richard Burbage, whom he may have known as a Warwickshire man. The manager was a person that, whatever might be the estimate of Shakspeare as an actor, it was more profitable to use his literary talent in adapting or composing plays for him. "Shakspeare's letters, diaries, or other dramatists in their disappointment would call him, because the most successful playwright of the day, and the owner of the Globe Theatre, like to know what salary or prices of copyright Master Shakspeare received. With his facility of rapid composition he must have earned a good deal of money in this way. It is said that Lord Southampton gave him a thousand pounds at one time, which was a large sum then in the theatre. That Shakspeare was under some personal obligations to his noble patron is proved by the dedication of a manly and respectful but still grateful service. It was perhaps the only way for the stage than by his narrative and lyrical poems that he hoped, in those days of the Queen's displeasure, to be heard and fancied muse of Ovid was a favourite study at the Elizabethan Court. Shakspeare took up the theme of Venus and Adonis, and wrought for the subjects of those pleasing compositions, which were the first published with his name. The poet's fancy and fine feeling of his "ungrand sonnets" were bespoken by one or other of his aristocratic patrons, who may have had the honour of inspiring some of them. Some verses for the purpose of an amorous intrigue. Mr. Kenny's opinion is that the sonnets were written by Shakspeare himself was enslaved by a guilty and extravagant passion. From seventy-nine to eighty-eight sonnets it would appear that there was a partnership or a divided interest in the object of the poet's love, to whom these effusions were addressed, probably on behalf of the Earl of Southampton, "Mr. W. H." Mr. Kenny's theory in view of the case with that ability which distinguishes the whole of the book. He is not afraid to look the matter in the face. On the personal character of Shakspeare, the essayist shows a faculty of discrimination which many critical writers since Hazlitt have displayed upon that theme. Some have gone into extremes of fine-drawn panegyric on the several plays. "The Life and Genius of Shakespeare" is one of the best books that could be placed upon that inexhaustible topic of critical and biographical investigation.

Foreign Travel. By the Author of "Lady Audley's Secret." 2 vols. (John Maxwell and Co.) The author of this book has seen vast crowds of spectators, and Miss Braddon attracts vast crowds of readers. Her power of writing a sensational narrative of incident has been considered questionable, and the taste which is displayed by the author has been occasionally censured as defective. But the defective taste in a very difficult subject upon which to speak authoritatively, and taste in one age or one country is not the same in another. The bloody contests of the gladiators, the scarcely less sanguinary combats of the bull-fight, the fierce excitement of the prize-ring, the bull-fight, bear witness to this; for, without prejudice to their good taste, they are the delight of thousands. The reluctant heroism of the dying gladiator and the voluntary immolation of the bull-fighter soon scare, beneath the strokes of the guillotine. It may be, and, I thought, was, that the "Lady Audley's Secret" has been thrown in feeding the mind upon "sensational" garbage. As my readers know, I am not a reader of sensational novels. But I have for some time been enthroned Queen of Sensation. Wherein her great strength lies may be a difficult matter for the critics calmly to understand as it was to the Philistines to discover the secret of Samson's locks of strength. But denying her power of fascination over a particular class of persons. And I am very far from even principally that her power prevails. Whether it be that there is a subtle affinity between the "sensational" and the "natural," as their detractors affirm, causes the best as well as the worst of them to be popular, or that the "sensational" is the "natural" and perplexities, and to consider it beneath the dignity of womanly clever-ness to write about them, I cannot determine. But I do know that the manœuvres, or whether it be nothing of the kind, let physiologists determine, but I do know that the "sensational" novelists and that it is the fascination exercised by Miss Braddon. The art of ingenious author's hands to the Philistines to discover the secret of her Beethoven's concerto (a piece which he has made peculiarly his own) at the Philharmonic Society's Concert on Monday next. The singer was Mr. Banks, a confirmed favourite at the Monday Popular Concerts. She sang with her usual sweetness, and received the usual meed of applause.

Two State Concerts have been given by command of the Queen at Buckingham Palace—the first on Wednesday (last week), the second on Monday last. In the musical entertainment of the Court are naturally interesting to every lover of the art, as they indicate the state of musical taste in the most exalted and fashionable circles. The indication given by the concerts in question is highly favourable, as they were of a very classical character. Haydn was represented to the most refined and intelligent audience. Without transcribing the programme of either concert, it may be mentioned that the last included Mendelssohn's overture and music to the "Midsummer Night's Dream," the chorus, "Amiel, Amiel," from Mosaniello; the gipsy chorus from Weber's "Preciosa;" Niedermeyer's quintet, "Pour la strada," from "Marie Stuart;" and a selection from the "Lohingrin" of Wagner. These were interspersed with some of the finest Italian and German airs and duets of the day. The principal vocalists were Mdlle. Titiens, Mdlle. Miso Liscelles, Signor Gardoni, Signor Delle-Sedie, and Herr Wachtel. The instrumental accompaniments to the vocal music consisted of the Queen's private band, reinforced by performers from the two Italian theatres and Her Majesty's Chapel Royal, the whole being selected from the Operas and the Sacred Harmonic Society. Mr. Anderson, the director of her Majesty's private band, presided at the pianoforte; and Mr. Cusins was at the pianoforte. In the absence of the Queen, their Royal Highnesses the Prince and Princess of Wales did the honours of the entertainment to a party of nearly eight hundred persons of the highest rank and distinction. We hope that these Court concerts will be frequently repeated, for they are in every way calculated to improve the art to distant period, and have a great and healthy influence on the progress of music in this country.

Mr. Kennedy's entertainment, "The Songs of Scotland," was brought to a successful close on Monday evening at the Royal Gallery Hall in Store-street. In addition to a miscellaneous selection of the most favourite Scottish songs and ballads, Mr. Kennedy introduced a new and attractive feature in a condensation of Burns's celebrated "The Jolly Beggars," with the incidental songs, as arranged and composed by Sir Henry Bishop, in 1813, for Thomson's famous collection. These rare effusions of the poet's genius were given con amore by Mr. Kennedy; and the elegant pianoforte accompaniments were admirably played by his able coadjutor, Mr. Lask. The whole work was filled with characteristic humour. A new Scottish ballad, "Ye're a' the world to me, lassie," from the classic pencil of Mr. Kennedy, was also produced; and Mr. Kennedy is a worthy successor of the late John Wilson. His "Songs of Scotland" have taken a permanent position among the attractions of the London season, and will be brought to a conclusion, for this season, by the two Saturday morning performances at the Hanover-square Rooms.

THE THEATRES.

LYCEUM.—That the earliest of Shakspeare's tragedies should also be the most popular is one of the facts which go to show how much the very worst is intelligible. The manner in which he has studded the very worst materials of the Elizabethan drama with the most dramatical, and not much improved by Belleforest in the novel from which, no doubt, he derived the story, is a curious illustration of the genius that the judgment of our great dramatist was at all times equal to his genius. The taste in the matter of horrors which Shakspeare found, indeed, the subject already popular, a previous play, now lost, having existed, together with the incidental songs, as arranged and composed by Sir Henry Bishop, in 1814 were unbecoming to most ladies. The strange little form, however, which has been decidedly fixed upon for the summer is generally adopted. Some of the latest novelties in the way of bonnets are without the ordinary bavolet, a floral ornament replacing that portion of the capricious article de toilette. It is now quite the mode to wear a small lace veil; the loop, as it is called, descending as far as the nose, which should be irreproachable in form, or the effect thus produced is not sure to be advantageous.

THE WAR IN DENMARK: VIEW OF AALBORG, IN JUTLAND, NOW OCCUPIED BY THE PRUSSIAN ARMY.—SEE PRECEDING PAGE.

In imitation of the English, enormous gold earrings are becoming very fashionable in Paris; and the jewellers in the Palais Royal are applying their taste to the production of some most extraordinary appendages of this sort.

PARIS FASHIONS FOR JUNE.

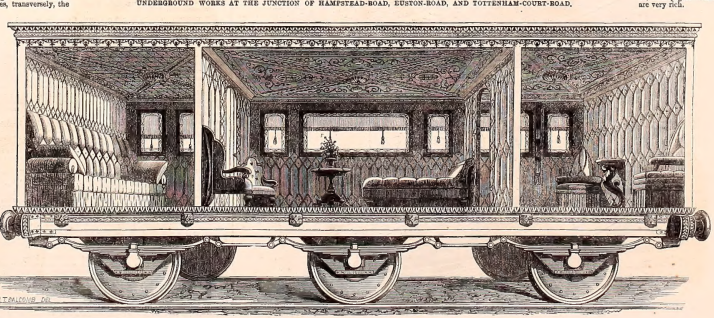
THE ILLUSTRATIONS.

Fig. 1. Walking Dress. Dark lilac poplin robe, trimmed with black passementerie ornaments. The corsage is cut in the style known as the corsage Impératrice, without seam. Lilac crape bonnet, covered with black tulle, and ornamented with lilac marguérites beneath the front edge.

Fig. 2. Carriage Dress. Slate-coloured moire antique robe, trimmed with violet ribbon, fastened at intervals by bows of the dress material: the sleeves are similarly ornamented. Rice chip bonnet, edged in front with a trimming of black lace, and provided on one side, behind, with a violet bow and green leaf; a small bouquet of green leaves is also placed upon the violet silk bavolet.

Fig. 3. Dress for a Watering-place.—Robe of grey moire, which it is needless to describe, as the principal feature of this figure is the Mainteno mantle, composed of cashmere, lined with taffety. The hood is flat, trimmed with lace, and, forming a pelerine, falls over the shoulders when worn out of doors with a bonnet. With the hood raised over the head, as shown in our Illustration, this mantle will be very convenient for evening rambles in the country, or at the seaside.

UNDERGROUND WORKS IN THE EUSTON-ROAD.



OUR Engraving represents a section of the underground works at the junction of Tottenham-court-road and Hampstead-road, with Euston-road. The view is taken from beneath the north-west corner of Tottenham-court-road looking towards the east along the line of Euston-road. It will serve to show what extensive subterranean works are being constructed in different parts of London, yet which make no show on the surface, and the very existence of which is probably unknown to a very large portion of the inhabitants residing in the neighbourhood or daily walking over the site. We have chosen this particular locality because it is a point where the lines of a number of different works intersect each other. There is, first, immediately under the surface of the road, a double set of mains and pipes for supplying the district with water and gas. Beneath these passes, transversely, the iron tube belonging to the Pneumatic Dispatch Company, through which parcels are constantly being conveyed backwards and forwards, and occasionally the mail-bags also, between the General Post Office and this district. Under this tube, in the tunnel of the Metropolitan (or, as it is more generally called, the Underground) Railway, through which trains are constantly passing and repassing. The Pneumatic Dispatch Company's tube cuts through the crown of this tunnel. On each side of it run large sewers which form part of the London Main Drainage works. Beneath all these structures we have shown a longitudinal section of the proposed Hampstead, Midland, North-Western, and Charing-cross Railway—a line which is not yet made, but which has been recommended by a Committee of the House of Commons, and is likely, sooner or later, to be constructed, passing the junction of Euston-road and Tottenham-court-road in the manner here displayed.

UNDERGROUND WORKS AT THE JUNCTION OF HAMPSTEAD-ROAD, EUSTON-ROAD, AND TOTTENHAM-COURT-ROAD.

SALOON CARRIAGE FOR THE PRINCE OF WALES ON THE GREAT EASTERN RAILWAY.

A REPRESENTATION of the new and elegant saloon carriage, built expressly for the use of the Prince and Princess of Wales, in their journeys to Sandringham and back by the Great Eastern Railway, is engraved in our pages this week. Their Royal Highnesses, with the infant Prince, attended by their ordinary suite, travelled by this conveyance from the Bishopsgate terminus to the Wolferton station on the occasion of their last visit to Norfolk, when the Prince expressed himself much pleased with the arrangements made by the railway company, and especially with this beautiful carriage. It has been constructed in the workshops of the company at Stratford, by Mr. G. Attock, superintendent of the carriage department, from the designs of Mr. R. Sinclair, the chief engineer. Its total length is 26 ft., width 8 ft., and height 7 ft. 3 in. The interior is divided into three compartments—ante-room, saloon, and retiring room. The length of the saloon is 12 ft. 6 in., with doors leading to ante and retiring rooms. The fittings and decorations, by Mr. Thomas Fox, of 20, Bishopsgate Within, are very rich.

NEW RAILWAY CARRIAGE BUILT FOR THE USE OF THE PRINCE AND PRINCESS OF WALES ON THE GREAT EASTERN RAILWAY.

RESTORATIVE TREATMENT OF THE APPARENTLY DROWNED.

INSPIRATION.

EXPIRATION.

DR. MARSHALL HALL'S METHOD OF INDUCING RESPIRATION.

INSPIRATION.

EXPIRATION.

DR. SILVESTER'S METHOD OF INDUCING RESPIRATION.

At this season, when accidents in boating and bathing will frequently occur, it may be useful for us to publish, with the engraved Illustrations on this page, the text of those instructions for the revival of persons apparently drowned, which the Royal National Life-boat Institution has lately compiled. The Board of Admiralty and the Comptroller of the Coastguard Preventive Service have each ordered a large number of copies to be distributed amongst the seamen of our Navy and those of the Coastguard respectively. The leading principles of this method are founded upon those prescribed by the late Dr. Marshall Hall, combined with those of Dr. H. R. Silvester, but modified or tested by the results of extensive inquiries which the Life-Boat Institution has set on foot amongst the medical practitioners, Coroners, and other experienced persons throughout the kingdom. The following are the rules, which do not require any comment or explanation :—

DIRECTIONS FOR RESTORING THE APPARENTLY DROWNED.

Send immediately for medical assistance, blankets, and dry clothing, but proceed to treat the patient instantly on the spot, in the open air, with the face downward, whether on shore or afloat, exposing the face, neck, and chest to the wind, except in severe weather, and removing all tight clothing from the neck and chest, especially the braces. The points to be aimed at are—first and immediately, the restoration of breathing; and, secondly, after breathing is restored, the promotion of warmth and circulation. The efforts to restore breathing must be commenced immediately and energetically, and persevered in for one or two hours, or until a medical man has pronounced that life is extinct. Efforts to promote warmth and circulation, beyond removing the wet clothes and drying the skin, must not be made until the first appearance of natural breathing. For if circulation of the blood be induced before breathing has recommenced, the restoration to life will be endangered.

TO RESTORE BREATHING.

Place the patient on the floor or ground with the face downwards and one of the arms under the forehead, in which position all fluids will more readily escape by the mouth, and the tongue itself will fall forward, leaving the entrance into the windpipe free. Assist this operation by wiping and cleansing the mouth. If satisfactory breathing commences, use the treatment prescribed below to promote warmth. If there be only slight breathing or no breathing, or if the breathing fail, then, to excite breathing, turn the patient well and instantly on the side, supporting the head, and excite the nostrils with snuff, hartshorn, and smelling salts, or tickle the throat with a feather, if they are at hand. Rub the chest and face warm, and dash cold water, or cold and hot water alternately, on them. If there be no success, lose not a moment, but instantly—to imitate breathing—replace the patient on the face, raising and supporting the chest well on a folded coat or other article of dress. Turn the body very gently on the side and a little beyond, and then briskly on the face, back again, repeating these measures cautiously, efficiently, and perseveringly about fifteen times in the minute, or once every four or five seconds, occasionally varying the side. On each occasion that the body is replaced on the face make uniform but efficient pressure with brisk movement on the back between and below the shoulder-blades or bones on each side, removing the pressure immediately before turning the body on the side. During the whole operation let one person attend solely to the movements of the head and of the arm placed under it. Whilst the above operations are being proceeded with dry the hands and feet, and as soon as dry clothing or blankets can be procured strip the body and cover or gradually re-clothe it, but taking care not to interfere with the efforts to restore breathing. (See the two Engravings illustrative of Dr. Marshall Hall's method.)

Should these efforts not prove successful in the course of from two to five minutes, proceed to imitate breathing by Dr. Silvester's method, as follows :—Place the patient on the back on a flat surface, inclined a little upwards from the feet; raise and support the head and shoulders on a small firm cushion or folded article of dress placed under the shoulder-blades. Draw forward the patient's tongue, and keep it projecting beyond the lips; an elastic band over the tongue and under the chin will answer this purpose, or a piece of string or tape may be tied round them, or by raising the lower jaw the teeth may be made to retain the tongue in that position. Remove all tight clothing from about the neck and chest, especially the breast. To Imitate the Movement of Breathing—Standing at the patient's head, grasp the arms just above the elbows, and draw the arms gently and steadily upwards above the head and keep them stretched upwards for two seconds. (By this means air is drawn into the lungs.) Then turn down the patient's arms and press them gently and firmly for two seconds against the sides of the chest. (By this means air is pressed out of the lungs.) Repeat the measures alternately, deliberately, and perseveringly about fifteen times in a minute until a spontaneous effort to respire is perceived, immediately upon which cease to imitate the movements of breathing and proceed to induce circulation and warmth. (See the Illustrations of Dr. Silvester's method.)

TREATMENT AFTER NATURAL BREATHING HAS BEEN RESTORED.

Commence rubbing the limbs upwards, with firm, grasping pressure and energy, using handkerchiefs, flannels, &c. (by this measure the blood is propelled along the veins towards the heart). The friction must be continued under the blanket or over the dry clothing. Promote the warmth of the body by the application of hot bricks, bottles, or bladders of hot water, heated jacks, &c., to the pit of the stomach, the armpits, the soles of the feet, and to the sides of the feet. If the patient has been carried to a house after respiration has been restored, be careful to let the air play freely about the room. On the restoration of life a teaspoonful of warm water should be given; and then, if the power of swallowing have returned, small quantities of wine, warm brandy-and-water, coffee, or tea should be administered. The patient should be kept in bed, and a disposition to sleep encouraged.

APPEARANCES WHICH GENERALLY ACCOMPANY DEATH.

Breathing and pulsation entirely cease entirely; the eyelids are generally half closed, the pupils dilated, the jaws clenched, the fingers semi-contracted, the lower portion inconstant to the under edges of the lips, and these, as well as the nostrils, are covered with a frothy mucus. Coldness and paler of surface succeeds.

CAUTIONS.

Prevent unnecessary crowding of persons round the body, especially if in an apartment. Avoid rough usage, and do not allow the body to remain on the back unless the tongue is secured. Under no circumstances hold the body up by the feet. On no account place the body in a warm bath, unless under medical direction, and even then it should only be employed as a momentary excitant.

A curious rumour comes from Stratford-on-Avon. Certain actors, about whose gratuitous services so many handsome things have been said, have sent in claims for remuneration. One of them demanded £10.

Mr. Barry Sullivan has erected a handsome obelisk of white marble over the grave of the late Sir R. R. Wallis, in New Cemetery, Melbourne, Australia.

A letter from Rome in the Cologne Gazette states that the Emperor of Mexico, before leaving the Roman capital, paid to the fund of Peter's pence a sum of 10,000*l.*

The vacancy in the Supreme Court, Calcutta, caused by the death of Henry Mills, Esq., Q.C., has been filled up by the appointment of John Budd Phear, Esq., M.A., of the Norfolk Circuit.

The new Government house about to be erected for the residence of the Governor of Victoria will cost £50,000. On half the amount has been already voted; the other half will appear in next year's estimate.

On the last night of an engagement at Ballarat Mr. C. S. Cran, after the termination of Louis XI., received upon the stage a characteristic testimonial in honour of his first visit to the gold-fields. He was presented of a nugget of gold and quartz, which had been purchased for one hundred guineas.

The Echo of Honfleur states that for some days past a person from Paris, with an official introduction, has been making experiments with electric light in fishing. The fish, attracted by this great light, arrive in shoals at the surface of the water, and are easily taken with a net.

Garibaldi continues in the enjoyment of excellent health at Caprera. Four letters, written at his own hand since his return to his island home, have been received by Lady Pepoli. In the last he says:—"Having returned to my rock, I write to every way to make known my love for England. The people of England I love with my entire heart."—Colonel Forbes of Sutherland has arrived at Naples, and the Times' correspondent states that he has received addresses, ceremonies, and demonstrations.

A correspondence between Lord R. Cecil and Mr. T. Baring has been published, in consequence of the former having in a recent speech in Hallamshire censured the firm of Baring with having violated neutrality in favour of the Federals, whilst its representative was bringing charges in the House of Commons against the builders of the Georgia for doing the same by the Confederates. "Lord Robert, in reply to the request for an explanation, referred Mr. Baring to the Queen's Proclamation, in which reference is made to munitions of war as well as ships as being contraband. Mr. Baring replies that all the firm has done has been done openly as bankers discounting drafts for merchants, remarking that he has heard the building of the Georgia was condemned, and by that Lord Robert replies that Federal rights compelled the condemnation of the Confederates, not being represented in this country, could not even remonstrate."

A Portuguese man-of-war, calling at the Cape from the east coast, has brought letters from Dr. Livingstone, who was at Mozambique on the 27th of February. He was then waiting for the Pioneer, Sir Roderick Murchison, and Orestes, and on the 19th of January, the expedition party came to Kellimane. We found that Bishop Tozer had already left Mozambique for Kellimane." Dr. Livingstone left the Kongone bar on the 14th of February. Bishop Tozer and Dr. Steere were at Kellimane when they left. The Orestes and Pioneer, with the Rev. C. A. Alington, Mr. Drayson, Messrs. Waghorn, Adams, Blair, Kelloway, Harrison, and Stibl, started for Mozambique from the Zambesi, at the same time as Dr. Livingstone, with Mr. Bay, Mr. Walker, and the natives under their charge, left in the Ariel and Lady Nyanza. The former vessels had not arrived at Mozambique when Dr. Livingstone wrote.

ECHOES OF THE WEEK.

It is said that in the Conference Baron Brunnow alone is on the side of England; France sometimes holding quite aloof, and at other times being impertinently indifferent; and the German Powers pulling well together and adhering to repeal the Treaty of London of 1852 as a mere protocol, and one which has now ceased to have any effect. At the same time, as Queen Isabella used to say to her Royal pulpit, so the King of Prussia tunes his organs, or German bands, of the press, and the fulminations against England are amusing, if not instructive. German ladies, forsooth, are not to indulge in English goods; and Germany, like America, will suit herself with some other Cotton famine than that which the latter made she is determined to be satisfied with trumpery foreign imitations. Several German merchants have signified to their English customers have determined not to renew their insurances: which, in case of a Hamburg conflagration, or any such disaster, will be a loss of money for them. In other points a petty spirit of hostility is being shown even by English merchants and traders; but this is not to be set down entirely unworthy of a philosophic nation, and which may bear for them very material profits.

Mr. Gladstone, we hear, will not stand again for Oxford, and will himself serve in connection with that city for the next twenty years; for it was in 1847 that the "Alma Mater" was first represented in Parliament by her distinguished son. Mr. Gladstone's speech enough to submit to the frequent misunderstandings which a tribune of the people always has to bear, a great many result visibly and like "a particulate dumb wishes," as Carlyle has it, of the workers will be interpreted to some end.

The Pope has his time—and Europe may be congratulated on his apparent recovery—issued a bull against the comet; but Cardinal Wiseman, in his Priestly Synod, has failed against sciences led by Lyell, Darwin, and Huxley. It is impossible not to admire the manful and insinuating language of his Cardinal's pastoral, and his description of the Darwinian theory, as recognising "in man the natural intelligence, in woman the physical graces, of the ape or the baboon," should become a phrase. But Darwin's monstrous theory should be met by scientific proof and argument, and not wholly by an appeal to mere theologically-taught feeling. Darwin and Huxley have given good symptoms of stench one in Professor Owen, who, by-the-way, is preparing a new charge against his scientific enemies, and who is likely soon to astonish the world with a proof that the dwellers in caves and on lakes, and the makers of flint knives and arrow-heads, were not only much more modest than modern men like ourselves, but also far less conscientious about science. Surely Milton's defence of Truth is much finer and bolder than the last in which the Cardinal would block the ball:—"For who knows not," says our poet, "that Truth is strong next to the Almighty: she needs no policies, nor strategems, nor licensings to make her victorious. Give her but room and do not bind her when she starts!"

Perhaps the most amusing portion of the Cardinal's pastoral was his cunningly implied wish that the Anglican Church should take up the sword and commence decisive measures. He believes that the sword should have been drawn, if not to smite the Blasphemy, at least to cut out this infecting sore"—i.e. Dr. Colenso and his rationalistic interpretations. We must thank him for his sympathy, unless it be merely a covert wish that Colenso should be "cut" in the Establishment. We also thank him for his implication that England welcomed Garibaldi as a conqueror, a traitor, and an infidel; and that English ladies knelt to him as such. Really, the motives that some Catholic clergymen can ascribe to their fellow-creatures of Mrs. Bull and her fair daughters are perversely ingenious. Mr. Punch, the other day, pointed out that the Cardinal mistook the French Solicitor-General—as a fat brigand, with daggers by the score and pistols by the dozen; with moustaches "en croc," whiskers with lips drawn as rigidly as the mouth of a miser, and a frown that would frighten a baby into fits. And now the Archbishop opens out an embodied mixture of Atheism, spoliation, anarchy, and revolution.

A pamphlet by a Protestant divine has lately been issued, in which the Cardinal will surely find some details in "Astronomy without Astronomy Examined and Exposed," and it insists that astronomy is no exact science, because the sun's velocity, in its recent astronomical calculation from three millions and a half to four hundred millions of miles, and that 112,000,000 miles has not been found sufficient to stay an ox at one stroke! Emboldened by these little facts, the author cites Messrs Challis and Burchett to prove that, according to Newtonian view, the earth is flat, and, by an ingenious reading of perspective, determines that the distant view of a mast does not prove the earth's rotundity. No, says he, does our pleasant sun rise, but is not a planet—now round the sun. The sun moves: Galileo was wrong: Copernicus a driveller. Space is not filled by flat face or the edge of which any one may peep. The stars and the moon are merely its lights. The sun travels round the earth, and we may get back to the east every morning, and how the calculation of eclipses and the discovery of the satellites of Jupiter are explained which is all a supposition and a delusion happen to be right, it is hard to say!

The narrative of the slaughter of the Federal troops in Grant's last advance has driven some leader writers to despair. Never was such slaughter, they cry; we cannot match it in the battles of the old world. Indeed it was so: for 7 the days that we have here, it appears, lost 40,000 men killed, wounded, and skedaddled; and about 8000 a day, a dreadful number, certainly. But at Waterloo the total loss of life killed and wounded on both sides amounted to 25,976 in one day: at Crecy we slew 30,000 of the French private men and nearly 3000 nobles and knights in one day, and took three crowned kings prisoners; and at Blenheim Marlborough slew 27,000 allies and took 13,000 prisoners: while at Malplaquet we slew and wounded the fight of five days in America. It is just as well to recall these facts, for some people are inclined to look on the slaughter of their misfortunes just as a bankrupt rejoices when he breaks for forty thousand, and looks with wistful envy on the man who breaks for twenty which who stops payment just for the want of a few hundreds.

A much pleasanter note comes from the Canadians in the account of the Tercentenary Shakspeare celebration at Montreal. There everything was a success, and a thoroughly good fellowship and mutual well-feeling was the day. The leading men in Canada came forward and spoke well on the occasion, and the university Revue Villemar was properly honoured. Shakspeare was hailed as the Lowyer's house in the Green Park. The Birmingham Shakspeare Library presumably received a handsome addition to its magnificent collections of books, &c., to it. Liverpool realised £200 by her celebration; but Strafford, alas! refuses, it is said, with a loss of £2000, which will have to be borne by the public-spirited guarantors. This is a sad termination to the celebration of the birthday of the greatest poet in the world.

The Newspaper Press Fund held its first dinner on Saturday last, under the presidency of Lord Houghton (Mr. Monckton Milnes), who, although not a man of the press, is a man of letters, a poet, and a friend of the irritable tribe of writers. Somewhat more than £1400 was subscribed in the room, and the writers for the press will soon have their charity, and be on a par with dancers, singers, tragedians, and governesses. Let us hope that they will gain a considerable accession of dignity by this step.

NOTICES.

TO CORRESPONDENTS.

D. C. L.—In compliance with the wishes of many correspondents, our "New Record of Old Causes" shall be resumed next week.

W. H. M.—The volumes you mention are very common, and may be obtained for a mere trifle. The volumes most difficult to meet with is No. V.

T. H. B.—The Chess Column is under the sole superintendence—the name of the composer.

Mr. Pitt.—Your letter has been forwarded to the publishers of our next Number.

D. S. Putney.—No; look at the position again.

J. Pullen.—Your solution of Problem No. 1035 is correct.

A. M. Lord.—All subscribers to (the volume of "I. L. N. Religion"," beautiful gratuitous will accompany the book; and it will be a great reproach to British chess gentlemen if they do not subscribe.

MARTIN HANNAH.—If you send us your solution of April 9 you will find no mention respecting Mr. Landsborough's Problem No. 1031 is there proposed to the correspondent of the Field. Mr. Landsborough's Problem No. 1031 is correct. Solutions of Problem Nos. 1032, 1033, and 1034 received from Mr. Hugh Wyatt, Dublin.

TONY LUMPKINS.—Look again.

C. W. M.—The Chess Column of the Sunday Times is conducted by Mr. Staunton.

Solutions of Problem No. 1031, by Dr. Jaenisch's great work, "Traité des Applications de l'Analyse Mathématique au Jeu des Echecs," &c., is now published, and the whole may be had of Messrs. Dean and Son, Threadneedle-street, and of Mr. Simpson, Museum Tavern, Bloomsbury.

C. W. G.—Canterbury, New Zealand.—They are now in the cemetery lands.

Solutions of Problem No. 1032 received from Mr. Hugh Wyatt, Dublin; Lauri, R. K., Torquay; G. F., Bath; Pilkington, Miss; Pyne, W. J., Guildford; Sorrow, H. S., Cambridge; Ould, F. C., Dublin; Aubrey, T. B., Exmouth; Surrey, C. H. St., Young Basil, B. D. F. A., Lady; Bell, Miss, Leamington; Hannah, Martin; Hopps, J. Pullen, Miss Jane, Ilfracombe; Edwards, Miss; Spens, J. A., Norwich; Bingley, Rev. W., Bath; Dowsing, Rev. T., Swaffham; Bloxham, F. F., Dublin; Mabe, A. W., Stratford, Upfield, Medium, Balcombe, Greene, Tetcombe, Sandwith, Dublin; Hall, Rev. T. W., Ramsgate; Hall, Mrs., Ramsgate; J. G. W., Jane, Oxford; Lee-Bonton, W. E., Ayr

THE ALEXANDRA HOTEL, Hyde Park-corner, London, overlooking Hyde Park, Belgrave-square, and the Serpentine, offers to the families of the nobility and gentry, and the tourists and members of a private residence, with every air and convenience. Apply to Mr. Pacini, Hotel Alexandra, Hyde Park, Piccadilly, and Regencia. Communications to be addressed to the Secretary, Alexandra Hotel Company (Limited), Hyde Park-corner.

ISLE OF MAN.—HILL'S ROYAL HOTEL, Douglas, is replete in Pastel Office. Board lodging and attendance, 4s. including a tumbler a stamp for an interesting Sketch of the Island and Map.

MAYALL'S PHOTOGRAPHIC PORTRAIT GALLERIES, 224 and 225, Regent-street (late of 289, Regent-street). CARTES DE VISITE and highly-finished PHOTOGRAPHS by the late Mr. Mayall, are to be obtained at the above address.

PHOTOGRAPHIC EXHIBITION.—There may be seen at the Exhibition of Coloured Photographs, now open at the Photographic Society, a new and extensive COLLECTION OF WINDSOR PORTRAITS, by the eminent photographers of HERON and WHITFIELD, 179, Regent-street, which may be inspected every day (Sundays excepted) from ten to four.

PORTRAITS PHOTOGRAPHED on ENAMEL, and mounted uncleanably in LOCKET or CAMARAC'S process. These miniatures are suitable for Brooches, Bracelets, Rings, Studs, &c., and forwards the same at short notice, and guaranteed not to fade, at A. MARAIS and CO., size agents, 110, Regent-street, W.

DECALCOMANIE.—Arms and Crests of the Nobility, Gentry, and Clergy for ink transferring, by Messrs. A. MARAIS and CO., 110, Regent-street. They have a large assortment of Coats of Arms, Crests, Monograms, and Addresses, and also a large selection of the best designs for the above work.—A. Marais and Co., 110, Regent-street, W.

RODRIGUES' DRESSING CASES and BAGS, TRAVELLING DRESSING BAGS, the silver and ivory fittings, to every variety. Manufactured and Ornamental Articles of the Newest Designs and Best Workmanship. Rodrigues' Dressing Bags for Gentlemen, 42, Piccadilly, and 143, Regent-street, W.

RODRIGUES' DESPATCH BOXES and TRAVELLING WRITING CASES, in vanity or morocco, of the best workmanship and materials, fitted with every requisite, and lockable on the Patent Principle.—RODRIGUES, 42, Piccadilly.

CARTE DE VISITE PORTRAIT ALBUMS, in splendid Binding, from 5s. to 3l. guineas. Albums for Photographs and Monogrammes. Portraits of Celebrities, 1s. each, at 31, RODRIGUES', 42, Piccadilly, W. Catalogues post-free.

NO CHARGE MADE for STAMPING Paper and ENVELOPES with Crest or Initials. Thick Cream-laid Note, Sixteen Quires for 5s. Wedding Cards and Envelopes, Best Note Paper, Wax, and Seals. Illustrated Price List free.—RICHARD SAUNDERS, 9, Princes-street, Cavendish-square, W.

A VISITING CARD-PLATE ENGRAVED, and 50 Cards Printed for 4s. 6d. Arms, Crests, Initials, Monograms, Seal Engravings, and Seals of Pure Gold and stamped with Crest or Initials. RICHARD SAUNDERS, 9, Princes-street, Cavendish-square, W.

WATCHES.—A. B. SAVORY and SONS, MANUFACTURERS, 11 and 13, Cornhill, opposite the Bank. First-class Patent Detached Lever Watches, with the latest improvements and maintaining power, in strong hunting or hall-marked cases, jewelled in ten holes, 4 guineas.

Patent Lever Watches, jewelled in eight holes, in hunting cases, 5 guineas.

Patent Lever Watches, jewelled in eight holes, in hunting cases, with very strong case, and jewelled in four holes ..... 6 guineas.

Patent Lever Watches, jewelled, chronometer balance, in hunting cases, with extra jewelled movement ..... 8 guineas.

Patent Lever Watches, jewelled, enamel dial and seconds 10 10 0

Gold Watches in Hunting Cases, 4 guineas, extra.

Gold Watches in Hunting Cases, £3 3s. extra.

List of prices and remarks on watches, post-free.

DENT'S CHRONOMETERS, WATCHES, and CLOCKS.—E. DENT, 33, Strand, Chronometer, Watch, Clock, and Chronometer Maker by special appointment to her Majesty the Queen, 33 and 34, Strand; and 61, Royal Exchange, corner of Spring-gardens.

HAIR JEWELLERY.—G. HOOPER, Artist in Hair, Gold Cut Lockets for Hair, from 5s. each; Hair Rings, from 3s. 6d.; Bracelets, from 15s.; Brooches, from 12s.; Ear-rings, from 10s.; Studs, &c., from 5s. Gentlemen's Chains set from, 30s. Hair Jewellery, Registered Designs, Gold Lockets, Brooches, Rings, Pins, Studs, &c., and forwards the same at short notice, and guaranteed not to fade, at 31, Regent-street, Piccadilly. Engravings and Prices sent free. Observe, 31, Regent-street, Piccadilly.

A. FORBER, HAIR JEWELLER to the ROYAL FAMILIES, Manufacturer, Discoverer, and Patentee.

STEWARD'S celebrated LORD BURY TEETHCUPE, 2s 9d. Gargarisme, with Tooth-powder of the same composition, 2s. 6d. per bottle. Sold by all Chemists. 10, Argyll-street, Regent-street, and Nottingham Hill-gate, London.

SCOTT RACES.—RACE-GLASSES, the best at CALLAGHAN'S, No. 20, New Bond-street, W. (corner of Grosvenor-street), who is sole Manufacturer of the celebrated Race and Field Glasses made by Voigtlander, Vienna.

"RECONNOITRER" GLASS, 45s. or 3l. 10s. post-free. This "Tourist Recorder" shows every object with surprising clearness, and is unequalled for its power and indication of thirty miles and the extraordinary distinctness it discovers being simply the re-entering rays, which permit naked eye to see through the darkest night. Address, CALLAGHAN, 20, New Bond-street, and Cranwell, Lincolnshire. "A new and excellent Glass."—The Queen. "Quite as powerful as that for which I paid 25 guineas."—Lord Ward. "Very good."—Lord Ward. "Very good."—Lord Ward. "Very good."—Lord Ward. "Very good."—Lord Ward. "Extraordinary power is not needed in the cost of efficiency. We have tested your Glass, and find it very good."—Lord Ward. "Very good."—Lord Ward. "Very good."—Lord Ward. "Very good."—Lord Ward. "

THE ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS.

No. 1262.—vol. xliv. SATURDAY, JUNE 4, 1864. With a Supplement, Fivepence

INDIA AND CHINA.

Under the above heading is usually comprised the intelligence brought to this country by the overland mail. The words and their stereotyped collocation are suggestive. From 1857 down to a very recent period they served to awaken in a few minds hope, in a far greater number of minds fear, that the policy which had made India an integral portion of the British Empire was rapidly tending towards the same consummation as it regards China. Thoughtful politicians were beginning to apprehend lest the true strength of the United Kingdom should be drawn off from its centre to its distant extremities, and lest events might so widen our dominion as to impose upon us a burden of responsibility too gigantic to be borne. Their anxieties on this score will have been greatly lessened, if not altogether removed, by the declaration made by Lord Palmerston in the House of Commons last week, that the policy henceforth to be observed towards China by her Majesty's Government is to be limited exclusively to the protection of our commerce; that every form of intervention or quasi intervention in the domestic concerns of that immense and populous empire is to be discouraged; that the Order in Council sanctioning British officers in taking service under the Imperial Government, with a view to the extirpation of the Taeping insurrection, is to be withdrawn; and that, for the future, the security of our trading ports and of a thirty-miles' radius of country round them, will constitute the sole object of our naval and military forces in that part of the world. With this exception, our relation to China is to be a purely commercial one; and its internal politics will be left, so far as we are concerned, to take their own course.

Two or three incidents, of which information was brought by the last overland mail, show the wisdom and worth of this opportune decision. They are of no very serious importance in themselves, but present to us just that kind of illustration which should commend the resolution of her Majesty's advisers to the approving judgment of the country. We ask leave of our readers briefly to direct attention to them, in the hope that in so doing we may contribute to the maturing of that public opinion without which no Cabinet can effectually and permanently control the policy of this country in respect of the Far East.

India furnishes us with the first and most characteristic of these incidents. Some few months back, it will be remembered, the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal, moved by a report of a recently appointed sanitary commission, forbad the Hindoos, who swarm along the banks of the Hooghly, to cast the bodies of their dead into the river, as from time immemorial they had been wont to do; and laid down what Europeans in general would consider wholesome regulations for the burial or incremation of the dead. The necessity of the case was thought to require strong and immediate measures. The waters of the Hooghley were constantly laden with human corpses, which the tide bore to and fro in a state of putrefaction, and which filled the air with pestilential vapours. The order, it is true, was needlessly abrupt, and took but small account of the superstitious prejudices of the native population. But, though clearly called for, even in the interests of the Hindoos themselves, it excited such a dangerous commotion among them as to render the withdrawal of it imperative. The same commission, we believe, has just brought to light a still more frightful nuisance. For several years an epidemic of the worst and most fatal character has raged over various tracts of Lower Bengal, increasing in virulence year by year, and carrying off a large percentage of the population of the infected districts. In one part, it is said, out of 18,000 inhabitants no less than 12,000 fell victims to it in about six years. The disease comes on suddenly, baffles all medical skill, and generally kills the patient in from thirty-six hours to four or five days. The natives regard it as a new disease, a mysterious infliction with which their gods have chastised them, and, terrible as it is, they have quietly resigned themselves to its ravages. The Commissioners, upon investigation of its causes, speedily found out that the fever was generated by that utter violation of all sanitary laws which characterises village life in Bengal. "Close to the mud hut of the ryot," says the Calcutta correspondent of the Times, "is a hole where he places all filth and refuse. The hut itself is surrounded with jungle or bamboo, through which scarcely a breath of fresh air can ever penetrate. There is, perhaps, a tank near, covered with slime and vegetation, in which the people bathe and wash their clothes, and the water of which they daily drink. They have no other. In the Mohammedan quarters the dead are buried in the houses, and these tanks, and those graves, the Commissioners state in their report, 'are schools made sufficiently deep to insure the people against poisonous exhalations from the interred bodies. The bodies lie so near the surface that scratchings, as is well known, they are frequently dug up by jackals and dogs.' Or the water is obtained from the river, into which dead Hindoos by the hundred are thrown." And yet the Commissioners are at their wits' end how to stay the plague thus engendered. "The inhabitants of the villages are attached with their mode of life, and will not change it; and the Commissioners say they are not prepared to advise that they should be compelled to do so."

GENERAL ROBERT EDMUND LEE, COMMANDER-IN-CHIEF OF THE ARMY OF THE CONFEDERATE STATES OF AMERICA.

SEE NEXT PAGE.

Now, here we have an illustration of the extraordinary difficulty and delicacy, not to say danger, of the task we have undertaken in assuming to govern India. It is a task which England as a nation did not seek, and one which she is no longer free to decline. We will not say that the means by which she acquired her magnificent dependency, nor, if we did, could we acquit her of connivance at and complicity with grave political misdeeds. It may suffice to remark that, by whatever chances or crimes the Government of India has come to be in our hands, we are bound to prove that fact it has so fallen and we can only see in it a weighter obligation to use our power for the advantage of the teeming population. But it must be admitted on all hands that the practical problem we are thereby committed to solve is no easy one. Our very position is anomalous. Our swords have conquered the people of India, but our physical constitutions cannot support the climate. We are, and Nature seems to decree that we must be, an alien race. We are trying to adapt Western civilisation to Eastern immobility. Our conscientious prescribe remedial action for the evils which fatten on the land, and we interfere with our own empire. Yet every step we take is fraught with mischief of some kind, and brings us right athwart ancient and inveterate prejudices which we cannot understand. Our most disinterested efforts provoke suspicion. We cannot move or move towards even a philanthropic end but we are sure to put our foot upon some latent superstition, and to sting into irritation by that act some people or other. We are in the most honest intention to befriend and elevate. It is so in our sanitary reforms, in our improved modes of locomotion, in our administration of justice, in our military arrangements, in our educational institutions and conversions, and in our commercial views and tendencies. We never know how near we may be to a general insurrection. We congratulate ourselves upon the profound tranquility which prevails over the entire continent, and yet ever and anon some inexplicable symptom of disaffection is upon which we have been walking with so much confidence is undermined, and that we may be surprised any day by a fearful eruption of subterraneous fire. Most of us hope that we shall yet succeed in making the best of a bad business in India. Most of us feel that Divine Providence has laid upon us a responsibility in connection with that dependency, the faithful fulfilment of which we may look upon as our mission. But, on the other hand, few of us can fail to have become aware that the experiment is anything but closed. There may issue from it, for aught we can confidently predict, a crisis, or a series of crises, which will severely test our national character. There have already grown out of it supposed necessities in our European policy, which tell rather heavily against the dictates of our sober judgment. At any rate, one India is enough for the most powerful and the most conscientious empire; and we have accepted our "mission," and we are intent upon fulfilling it; but almost every mail from the East conveys to us some petty but significant warning that it will task our utmost wisdom, patience, and, perhaps, courage.

Such considerations as the foregoing have made the most reflecting of our political thinkers observe with anxiety, and even alarm, the gaze upon which we had set out towards China. There appeared to be in that empire a rapid development of precisely the same tendencies and policy which caused India to fall under our control. Commercial enterprise seemed to be expanding into political aspirations, and private adventure, sanctioned by the Government, was paving the way to British dominion. The Manchou dynasty, like that of the Great Mogul, is tottering in its feebleness, and the throne we have dealt in, and likely enough, in the end shall deal in, is vacant. There has been great danger lest we should encourage effete Imperialism to lean upon our arm for support, and, as is usual in the East, to take advantage of the strength which that support might give or promise to give it to indulge without restraint in the very vices which had imperilled it. Had Captain Sherard Osborn and Major Gordon succeeded in their undertakings on behalf of the Throne and Government of China, the time would not have been far distant when, for the sake and in the name of humanity, British authority would have felt itself compelled to exercise the internal policy of that empire, and, defeated at every step by the cruelty and corruption of its administrative agency, to take it at length into its own keeping. The history of the acquisition of India would have been repeated, and England would have become responsible for the protection and the rule of well nigh half the Asiatic races.

The news which has reached us from Shanghai makes us all the more thankful that her Majesty's Ministers have reconsidered and recalled Order in Council which permitted unemployed British naval and military officers to enter the service of the Emperor of China. Major Gordon has found more than once that his very triumphs were converted by those whom he assisted into occasions for atrocious barbarities. He has now learned that he cannot use the secret of his power without also communicating it to those against whom he is contending. He has met a rebel at Le-Yang which shows that, in China at least, the intellectual force of the Western is in military drill and discipline in self-defence as well as suffer from it. We need not recount the particulars. They suffice to show that it will be easy enough for us to get ourselves entangled in a quarrel to which there is no visible termination, and that, being once fairly entangled, it would be hard to say whether success or failure would bring with it the greater embarrassment and discredit. For the present, however, we hope we have read the last of these Chinese Taeping incidents.

The debate in the House of Commons on Mr. Cobden's motion on Tuesday shows the disapproval of that House of any settled policy of interference in the affairs of Continental States. The House has not deemed it necessary, indeed, to embody its judgment in a formal resolution; but the tone of the discussion indicated clearly enough the direction in which its opinion and wishes tend. The debate was, as might have been expected in harmony with the delicately-hinted mind of the Commons, as, virtually and substantially, it has announced its intention of doing. We shall get back to a simpler and more manageable policy. Lord Palmerston's speech was a fitting finale for it. If consistently adhered to, it will save England from a responsibility too heavy to be borne, and China, perhaps, from utter disorganisation. We shall then read the familiar heading of "India and China" with a conviction that the destiny of the last is foreshadowed by that of the first.

GENERAL R. E. LEE, COMMANDER-IN-CHIEF OF THE ARMY OF THE CONFEDERATE SOUTHERN STATES.

THE Engraving on our front page is a faithful likeness of one of the greatest soldiers of the day. Two years' campaigns, in defence of his native State of Virginia—undertaken, doubtless, from motives of conscience—have shown his consummate mastery of the art of war, which he has exercised with honour in the face of the whole United States. General Lee has proved himself to possess, in high perfection, that generalship—including all the moral and intellectual qualities which fits a man for military command. Since the fighting days of Marlborough no Englishman has been so conspicuous an example of ability for the direction and control of a large army, whether contending against a wide extent of country or engaged together with a view to bear upon a single point. Even his opponents, who would not have dreamed of placing themselves in the position of the genius which has so long held them in check on the road from Washington to Richmond, have conferred unqualified praise upon the commander of the Federal army. The biography of this eminent man will be written when his glorious deeds have emerged from the bewildering conflict of the civil war. His personal and family history will then be fully appreciated. In the meantime, we have only to note a few of the dates in his career.

Robert Edmund Lee was born, in 1808, of an old English family which has been settled in Virginia for many generations before the American colonies separated themselves from their allegiance to the British Crown. His father, Henry Lee, occupied a prominent position. He is a large landed proprietor; being the owner of Whitehaven, a magnificent property, including Arlington, which is situated upon Arlington Heights, on the Virginia shore of the Potomac, opposite Washington. Mrs. Robert Lee derives her name from that hero. Lee was regularly educated for the profession of arms in the United States Military Academy at West Point. He served with the Engineer Corps in the Mexican campaign of 1846-7, under the Chapultepec he was severely wounded, and was twice promoted for conspicuous gallantry on the field. In 1852 Major Lee was appointed Superintendent of the Military Academy at West Point, where his son also was sent to Europe in company with M'Clellan, then a Captain, as a scientific military commissioner, to report upon the operations of the French and English armies in the siege of Sebastopol. On that occasion Lee was presented with the Imperial Commandership of the 2nd Regiment of Cavalry, and this was his position at the beginning of 1861, when the civil war between the States broke out. He was at San Antonio, in Texas, commanding his own regiment, when the head of the State of Virginia, which he regards as his proper country, had withdrawn himself from the Union. Troops from the Northern States were going to make war upon the South, in order to force them to their allegiance. Colonel Lee felt it was his duty, under these circumstances, to be a soldier of Virginia, and he resigned his position in the United Service, in which Virginia had now no part. He raised a small body of militia in his own neighbourhood, and was placed at the head of the heard. His Royal Highness landed on Monday. The King went from Cintra to receive him.

A bill to establish free trade in corn has been introduced to the Cortes.

The Chamber of Deputies has adopted by a large majority the bill abolishing hereditary succession in the peerage.

ITALY.

A telegram from Rome announces that the Pope's health is re-established, and that His Holiness has resumed his receptions.

The Liberia Italiana of Naples states that a band of one hundred brigands, commanded by the Pontifical Sbaies, has made its appearance in the vicinity of San Germano.

GREECE.

The King left Athens on the 24th ult. for the Provinces and Corfu. M. Delyorghi has been re-elected President of the Assembly.

DENMARK AND GERMANY.

The Plenipotentiaries assembled in the London Conference met on Saturday last, at the official residence of the First Lord of the Treasury in Downing-street. The Conference met again on Tuesday. All the members were present on both occasions.

Tuesday's Gazette contains an intimation from the Danish Minister at the Belgian Court that the ports of Germany and Austria ports by Danish ships of war, will be resumed on the 12th inst., unless, in the mean time, the deliberations of the Conference bring about some arrangement of the dispute between Denmark and Germany.

The Berlin official Miscellaneous of Saturday contradicts the assertions which have been made, chiefly upon telegrams from Copenhagen, that the Prussians and Austrians in Jutland have failed to comply with the stipulations of the armistice. Some of the assertions made are entirely devoid of truth, it declares.

The Duke of Augustenburg left Kiel on Tuesday evening en route for Berlin.

AMERICA.

We have information from New York to the afternoon of the 21st ult. Preceding advices were informed us that on the previous day General Lee had retreated from the scene of battle of the 12th at Spotsylvania, and that General Grant, with the bulk of the Federal army we were enabled to contradict in a portion of our Impression last week. Lee still holds a strong position north of the Spotsylvania Courthouse, and the two armies are confronting each other. No fighting occurred on the 20th, except a few slight skirmishes. It is stated, of heavy rains. An impression has gained ground that Grant's losses were greater than the condition of his army less favourable, than was previously supposed. Secretary Stanton announced on the morning of the 16th ult. that, according to General Grant's latest reports, the casualties of the last eight days' fighting in the Federal Commander-in-Chief, who was receiving large reinforcements, designed leaving against the enemy without delay. Facts bore out the assertion, for at daybreak on Wednesday, the 18th, Grant again unsuccessfully attacked Lee's centre and left. After a desperate conflict, lasting throughout the forenoon, the Federals were forced to retreat, with loss of 3,000 prisoners and several guns. Lee is stated to have been subsequently made upon Grant's front, and repulsed. On Thursday, the 19th, Grant, with his whole army, again attempted the capture of the Federal supply-trains. After an hour's fighting, in which the Federals were upwards of 1,000 men, the Confederates returned to their intrenchments, leaving 300 prisoners in the hands of the Federals. General Lee has, it is said, been reinforced from North Carolina and Richmond.

Reverses have befallen the Federal corps operating against Lee's left flank and rear. Hill's corps has been attacked by Early in front and rear, and compelled to retire within his lines. The Confederates captured General Birney's division, with twelve guns, and pursued for ten cannon, and drove the whole Federal force to their intrenchments at Bermuda Hundred. The Federal loss in prisoners is admitted to be 2,500. General Ransom commanded the Confederates. General Butterworth's brigade of Federals was despatched overnight to assault his intrenchments. Signal has been defeated at Newmarket and forced to retreat across the Shenandoah with loss of five guns and 650 men. General Sheridan's cavalry has, however, reached round Lee's rear, and joined Butler on the Peninsula. He destroyed the railroad at Beaver Dam Station, on the 12th, a sharp engagement with General Stuart. He marched between the first and second lines of Richmond defences, and found the latter then too strong for assault, retreated across the Chickahominy to Bottom's Bridge. Richmond papers announce that General J. E. B. Stuart has been killed, and that Longstreet's wound is not mortal. According to Federal accounts received on the 20th, the lines of communication had been repaired.

The capture of Alexandria by Sherman is confirmed, and the retreat of Johnston. Two hard days fighting had taken place in that quarter. Johnston continues to draw Sherman away from his base. Official despatches declare that Sherman, on the 17th, occupied the city of Kingston, seventy miles south of Chattanooga, and that he was still advancing and Johnston retreating.

General Banks had been compelled to fight his way overland to the Mississippi.

A severe engagement is progressing at Charleston between the Federal ironclads and the Confederate batteries. The former are bombarding Sumter.

Confederate despatches report that a Confederate ram has sunk a Federal gun-boat off Newbern.

A forged proclamation of Mr. Lincoln's signature, calling out 400,000 men and declaring Grant's campaign at an end, was issued at New York on the 18th, and caused great temporary excitement. Mr. Wood, of the Brooklyn Daily Eagle, was arrested on the charge of the proclamation and sent to Fort Lafayette. He has confessed his guilt, and implicated Mr. Bennett, the journalist has expressed the World and Journal of Commerce for having published the proclamation. The Police Commissioners have dismissed Mr. Wood.

The Secretary of the War Department says that it is the intention of the Government to maintain the present military force until the war is overthrown, and to provide against inopportune reduction when the reverses of the Federal arms have ceased. Gold was at 52½ at New place and all other reductions will be ordered on July 1.

The Governor of Maryland has ordered the three volunteer regiments for a hundred days at President Lincoln's request. The Governor of Jersey has called for all the infantry militia that can be raised in fifteen days for one hundred days' service.

On the 21st ult. gold was at 53 premium in New York.

CHINA, INDIA, AND AUSTRALIA.

At Calcutta the state of the currency has caused a good deal of anxiety, and given rise to much discussion. By a telegram from Bombay dated the 14th ult. we learn that the Viceroy was expected at Simla. The same telegram conveys the intelligence that the Rev. Isaiah Lawrence Sawendal, missionary to the Santals, was murdered at Peshawur.

From China the chief subject of interest is the Taeping rebellion. The China Mail has some details of the two disasters which Colonel Gordon's force had experienced, in which the Imperial troops were wounded. Notwithstanding their temporary success, the rebels were, on the whole, losing ground. Nanking still had a large force of these men in the field. Colonel Gordon was recovering from his wound, and was expected to be shortly able to resume command. The city of Hangchow, which has been for nearly three years in rebel possession, fell to the Imperialists on the 31st ult.

From Japan there is no definite news of importance. The Tycoon and Mikado are said to be on good terms, and the foreign question still engages the serious attention of native statesmen.

The accidental explosion of a gun's limber during the drill of the D battery, 3rd brigade R.A., at Belfast, April 5, killed four men and injured seven others. Thirteen horses were wounded, three of which had to be shot on the spot.

General Benedek arrived at Venice on the 18th ult., and reviewed the whole of the Austrian garrison, amounting in number to from 30,000 to 31,000 men. In the evening a serenade was organised in honour of the General by the military authorities. The inhabitants assisted from taking any part in the fête. The proprietors of the Fenice Theatre have the chief to again keeping their rooms this season.

METROPOLITAN NEWS.

The Lord Mayor gave the customary dinner to the Judges on Friday last, and on Sunday they were present at St. Paul's Cathedral.

The Council of the Society of Arts have arranged for a Conversazione at the South Kensington Museum on the 16th inst.

The nineteenth anniversary dinner of the Royal Humane Society was celebrated in Freemasons' Hall yesterday.

On the 10th inst. the Crystal Palace will have been opened ten years. Since its opening it has been visited by fifteen million persons.

The Right Hon. Robert Lowe, M.P., has been elected a trustee of the British Museum, in the room of Sir G. C. Lewis.

On Thursday week a gentleman riding in Rotten-row was thrown from his horse, and, in endeavouring to save it, the unfortunate collapsed to the gentleman's assistance, and was the first to render help.

The first stone of the new Roman Catholic church in Talkington was laid on Monday by James Harvey, Esq., chairman of the Board of Guardians. The church will be situated on the road, Hornsey.

The temporary bridge across the Thames at Blackfriars was opened for the public on Wednesday. The passenger-bridge, which is erected overhead of the carriage-way, is 1,000 feet in length. Vehicles pass on the south and the temporary carriage-way, thus opening to the City the east bridge.

A new station and shelter in a mile of new line were opened on Wednesday on the London, Chatham, and Dover Railway. The station is on the south side of Southwark Bridge, and the line runs thence to the station of the Elephant and Castle, and so through to the coast.

The annual meeting of the Royal Society of the Institute of Civil Engineers was held on Tuesday, at the hall, Great George-street, Westminster, and the attendance was unusually large. Distinguished. The rooms were beautifully decorated with flowers, pictures, and articles of taste.

The congregation of the Rev. Newman Hall, Surrey Chapel, Union-street, Westminster-bridge-road, have presented their minister, the Rev. Dr. Hall, with a handsome silver tea-service, a silver salver, Dr. Smith's "Bible Dictionary," a gold watch, and a purse containing sixty guineas, in testimony of their regard and affection for their pastor, and appreciation of his services to the South Church in the metropolis.

The Council of Legal Education have awarded to D. Lyell, Esq., one of the Inner Temple, a studentship of fifty guineas per annum for three years, to be given to the student who shall pass the best examination during the course for seven terms; and to J. Chester and M. F. Morris, students of the Inner Temple, and H. E. Lascelles, student of the Inner Temple, certificates of honour of the first class.

The births of 1906 children—1030 boys and 936 girls—were registered in London last week. In the ten corresponding weeks of the years 1854-63 the average number increased was 1,960, the deaths to London, 1,170. The average number of births registered in the week ending the 14th inst. was 1,906, with a correction for increase of population, 1,939.

The Mansion House Committee held a meeting on Saturday, the Lord Mayor and Sheriffs presiding, to distribute the funds. Alderman Morley, and Gibbs being present and made grants to the amount of £620 in aid of distressed persons in the parishes of St. Giles, Bloomsbury, and the Tower Hamlets. The Lord Mayor stated that the Mansion House relief committees having now suspended operations in consequence of the mills resuming work, the London Committee would meet for the last time on the first Tuesday in every month, instead of fortnightly, their next meeting being on the 7th of June, at two o'clock.

The annual meeting and half-yearly election in connection with the London Orphan Asylum, Watford, was held at the asylum in the London Tavern, for the purpose of hearing the report of the committee of management, and electing fifty children into the institution. Out of upwards of thirty children out of a list of 129 approved candidates to the benefits of the charity. There were 1,000 votes recorded in favour of each child, and the election of that day would increase the number to 981. The total receipts for the year had been £11,000, and the expenditure £10,000. The list being having been adopted, the election of the children was proceeded with.

A Court of Common Council was held on Thursday, to consider the report which was brought before them by a committee, on the subject of promoting the passing of the Bill now before Parliament, and sanctioned by the Court by a recent Act of Parliament. It may be remembered that a series of letters on the subject appeared in the columns of the Times under the signature of the Government. Sir George Grey now recommended that it should be carried out in the City of London. The Corporation had had experience with this the committee now only sought to carry out three regulations, the diversion a portion of the metropolitan Police Commissioners' jurisdiction, and the other regulating the hull and loading of drays in the City. There was a long discussion, and the report was adopted.

The first grand flower show of the season, under the auspices of the Royal Horticultural Society, was held on Tuesday in the gardens at South Kensington. The attendance was numerous. At an early hour the tents were filled with company, and the gardens were full. The Princess Mille. de Demey, and Lord Harris, honoured the gardens with their presence. The show was a very fine one, and the display of fruit, flowers, and vegetables was also excellent. The collection of orchids, from Messrs. Low, had never had a more effective display been seen under similar circumstances. The display of fruit was also extremely creditable, pines, grapes, peaches, nectarines, strawberries, &c., that were seen were sufficiently tempting to divert eye for the moment from the more showy productions.

On Tuesday afternoon there was a large assemblage of ladies at Hastings, Bedford, to witness the distribution of prizes to the girls in the successful competitors amongst the pupils of the Female School of Art, which is under the patronage of Lord Sidney Osborne. The Mayoress, Mrs. Lord Houghton took the chair. Professor Donaldson read a statement and report, which gave a satisfactory account of the progress of the institution in a manner, and that the ability displayed by some of the students was of a very high order. The Chairman then distributed the prizes to the girls, the chief of which were the national medallions, seven having been granted. The Lady Isabella Kerr, Miss Katherine Elizabeth Cochrane, Miss Ellen Mary Bennet were Misses Katherine Eliz. Alice Manley, Mary Julian, Anne Coster, Mary Ann Hall, and Mary Ann Hall. The latter young ladies took two national medallions. Some honourable mentions were awarded other prizes.

The premises of Orchard House, Chesterham, the seat of the Duke and Duchess d'Aumale, were thrown open on Wednesday and Thursday in fancy bazaar in aid of the funds of the Orphan Working School. This society was formed in 1862, under the patronage of Count de St. Antoine, the French ambassador, and the Duchess d'Aumale, for the purpose of providing Frenchmen in London who have lost their parents, or orphans of existing members of the society, annually distributed more than £1,000, which has also upon the maintenance of the children in the Orphan School at Chesterham. A family character. The stalls were held by the Duchess of Chartres, the Duchess d'Aumale, the Princess de Joinville, the Princesse de Leon, the Countess of Tankerville, the Countess of Waldegrave, and Lady Fenly. An elegant museum of curiosities, formed by the Duke d'Aumale, with interior craftsmen, which also lined the road up to the grounds. The chief attraction was the Duke d'Aumale's stud of horses, which the Duchess d'Aumale remained for some time. The charity benefited largely by the visit.

The metropolitan police force assembled on Wednesday at Lord's ground by a race between five cutters, the property of members of the Royal London Yacht Club, from Greenwich to the Nore and back. The Club has given a piece of plate worth £60 for the first cutter, and another worth £10 for the second. The wind was favourable for the start, but fell light, and as the race was therefore, one of pluck rather than speed. The race was won by the Lord Clyde, Mr. Dunsford's cutter, which arrived at the goal about twenty minutes before the Alarm, which had taken the lead at the start, arrived on Tuesday. There were two matches—one for cutters of the first class, prizes £10 and £5, and the other for cutters of the second class, prizes £5 and £3. The first prizes were won by Mr. Duncan's Vesper and Mr. Holdsworth's Mosquito. The prizes in the second class were won by Mr. Hamilton's Ariel and Mr. Captain Bedwell's Dudu. The Ocean Match of this club, from the Thames to Harwich Harbour, and back, a distance of about 200 miles, for the prize given in the Prince of Wales Yacht Club took place on Wednesday. The prizes were £30 for the first, £20 for the second, and £10 for the third. The Alarm, Mr. Perry's Fely won the first, and Mr. Rousseau's Agerine the second.

The annual meeting of the Governors of the Royal Naval College took place on Tuesday, on the stage of the Adelphi Theatre—Mr. B. Webster in the chair—when the report of the committee was read by the secretary, both ladies and gentlemen. Mr. J. W. Anson, the secretary, read the report of the council, which commenced by stating that on the 31st ult. Mr. P. Cooke and his assistants had presented £1000 to the college. The report then referred to the fact that the Duke of Somerset had given £100, and a large sum had been collected in Australia. The report was then read, which, after much litigation, had been given in favour of Mr. Wood, with costs, which were to be assessed by the Master. The costs to be paid by the council, amounting to about £400. The report then acknowledged the receipt by the council of several bequests, and presents of books and pictures. The funny fair and fête at the Crystal Palace had produced a profit of £1000, and the recent benefit at Drury-lane Theatre, £681. The annual ball had realised £171. The whole of the buildings for the pensioners have now been completed. The financial statement showed the gross receipts of the year to be £2322; and the expenditure, including the maintenance and education of the children, £2,000. Among the list of the Governors were noticed Admiral Sir Thomas Pasley, Mr. G. Cooke, Mrs. Anne Smith, Mr. Frederick Pringle, and Mr. John Wyse.

A meeting of the Royal National Life-boat Institution was held on Thursday at its house, John-street, Adelphi—Thomas Chapman, Esq., F.R.S., V.P., in the chair. A reward of £5 10s. was voted to the crew of the institution's life-boat stationed at Dungeness for putting off and saving the crew of three men from the schooner Maria, of Milford, which was wrecked on Dungeness Bar on the 9th ult. Rewards were voted to the crew of the Ramsgate life-boat of the institution, and to the crews of shore-boats, for their laudable exertions on occasions of wrecks. It was reported that benevolent persons had presented the institution with the cost of new life-boats to be stationed at New Brighton, near Liverpool; Donna Nook, on the coast of Lincolnshire; Tramore, near Waterford; Poole, Dorset; and Sunderland. Mr. Lewis reported the important new restorations of the institution for the protection of persons escaping from wrecks, which had been successfully executed by the Commissioners of Northern Lights. The Duke of Northumberland forwarded to the colonial Governors and to the Ambassador at this Courts. The letter to the Governor of Victoria, in the absence of the same. A vote of thanks was read from the French Minister of Marine acknowledging, with thanks, some drawings of the new form of fastening of the institution's rockets and life-boats. The late George Wheelhouse, Esq., of Deptford Bridge, had left a handsome bequest to the institution. The South Holland Society of Sunderland had requested the institution to order for them a new life-boat, transporting carriage, and transporting to be stationed at Sunderland, and to be sent to Padstow, Cornwall; Redcar, Yorkshire; and Teignmouth, Devon. Other communications had been made on various life-boat matters. Among the subscriptions announced was £100.

LAW AND POLICE.—In the Court of Queen's Bench, on Saturday, the Lord Chief Justice announced that in future all criminals at-bar, whether with or without counsel, in attendance, would sit within the bar. The Lord Chief Baron of the Court of Exchequer has also notified that the like practice will be followed in that Court. The practice has been followed for some time in the Court of Common Pleas. Mr. Hawkins, junior counsel, and to those serjeants or barristers who have been published of prisoners.

Mr. Philip Pusey, Member of Parliament for the Wantage and Chancellor, has been appointed a registrar in the Court of Bankruptcy, in the room of the Hon. R. Bethell, resigned. Mr. Pusey is a barrister, and has practised under his appointment.

Mr. Cuthbert Ellison, formerly of the Home Circuit, and more recently stipendiary magistrate at Birmingham, has been appointed a barrister at the Worship-street Police Court, in place of Mr. Leigh, who has resigned.

An important case in the case in which Vice-Chancellor Stuart gave judgment on Saturday that some inquiries individuals have been working on the property of the late Mr. Hatton, in the hope of discovering some deeds and a set her. This compound has been offered to the Crown for purchase; but it is some satisfaction to know that the speculation has proved a failure.

CHURCH AND UNIVERSITIES.

The Dean of Westminster will preside at the Rugby School dinner, at Willis's Rooms, on the 10th inst.

The Vice-Chancellor of Cambridge has appointed the Rev. J. S. Howson, D.D., to be the Lady Margaret's preacher for the year coming.

The fine old church of Llanrhaiadr, in Pembrokeshire, dating from the fourteenth century, has been reopened after a thorough restoration.

The Bishop of Norwich consecrated on Thursday week a new church erected at Gorleston, in the place of the dilapidated structure which has for a long time past been the parish church.

The Cambridge Local Examinations University have under consideration a scheme for conferring degrees in music, a privilege enjoyed by the Universities of Oxford and Cambridge.

A beautiful east window, consisting of two lights, has lately been erected in the parish church of Ludlow, by Lady Rotherwood, in memory of Mr. Henry Drummond, M.P., and Lady Harriet Drummond.

The following are the morning preachers at St. Paul's for this month:—June 5th, the Rev. C. Geek; 12th, the Rev. J. Jackson; 19th, the Rev. W. B. Mimar; 26th, the Rev. J. E. Kempe.

The following are the preachers at the Lent Administrator Abbey Evening Services for the month:—June 5th, the Rev. F. D. Maurice; 12th, the Rev. J. Ll. Davies; 19th, the Rev. Canon Duckworth; 26th, the Rev. Canon Jackson.

The Bishop of Exeter, who is eighty-seven years of age, conducted the ordination service in the Cathedral on Sunday, assisted by the Bishop of Jamaica and the dignitaries of the cathedral, celebrated the Holy Communion.

Bishop Colenso was served on Tuesday with a copy of the sentence of deprivation passed on him by the Archbishop of Cape Town. Colenso, of course, disputes the right of Dr. Gray to deprive him of his see, and has also will appeal to the Queen in Privy Council.

The Duke of Devonshire presided on Monday over a meeting of the parish of St. George, Hanover-square, for the furtherance of the Bishop of London's Fund for Building New Churches. The speakers were Lords Shaftesbury and Seaton, and Mr. Hanbury, M.P.

The new church of St. Augustine, Highbary New Park, which has erected through the munificence of Henry Bolden, Esq., in the centre of that rapidly-growing neighbourhood, was consecrated on Wednesday night by the Lord Bishop of London.

Testimonials have been presented to the Rev. G. Gould, Rose, on giving up temporary duty at St. Goran, Cornwall—a Bible from the church choir; and to the Rev. J. Hall, Rector of Ladock, Cornwall, a silver candelabrum and silver claret-jug, by his parishioners.

Finchfield Church was consecrated on Wednesday week, when the Bishop of Lincoln preached. The work has been executed at the expense of Mr. Thomas Brassey, M.P., at a cost of about £2000. The architect, Mr. Sugo, Mr. Wagett erected and endowed a church at Finchfield West.

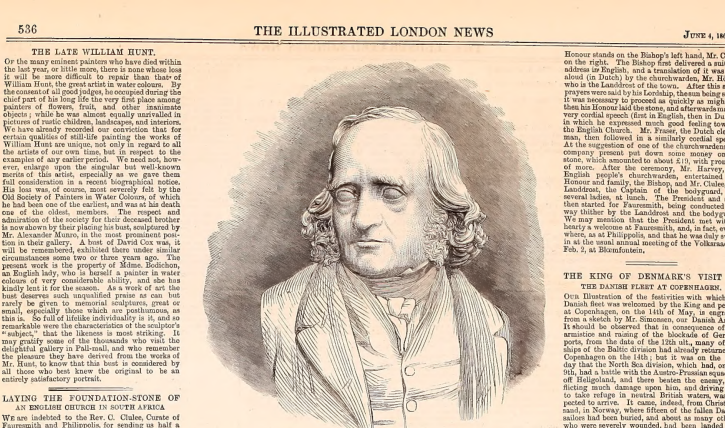
The annual meeting of the Church Building Society took place yesterday week, in Willis's Rooms, under the presidency of the Bishop of London. The report was read, and the meeting was urged by the Bishop of Oxford, Sir John Coleridge, Mr. Powell, M.P., and the Rev. H. Mackenzie.

The remaining transept of the celebrated abbey church at Romsey, in Hants, is about to be restored. Lord Palmerston and the Dean and Chapter of Winchester have promised liberal subscriptions towards the undertaking. The estimated cost of the work is £2000, and the Rev. W. Hall Vicar of the neighbouring parish of Hoyton, £200, exclusive of £1000 for the enlargement of the church.

The east window of St. Chad's Church, Over, Cheshire, has been filled with stained glass by Messrs. Ward and Hughes, as a memorial of the late Vicar. The inscription is as follows:—"To the glory of God and in memory of the Rev. Thomas Hall, for thirty-seven years Vicar of this church, who died Jan. 28, 1863, aged seventy-nine, this window is given by worship." trustees.

A numerous deputation, including a number of members of Parliament, waited upon Lord Palmerston on Tuesday at his residence, to urge upon him the Church-Building Acts Amendment Bill so far as to enable the Commissioners to make grants for the erection of new churches in populous places on the recommendation of the Bishop. Government has not yet decided upon the various clauses of the measure to the church-building Acts through committee, and he could only promise to lay the suggestions of the deputation before the Government.

The Bishop of London consecrated the new church of St. Paul's, Bethnal-green, on Wednesday week, in the presence of a large number of the clergy and laity. The church is the fifth which the Bishop of London has consecrated in that district since his appointment to the see. The church, which is a handsome structure, in the Gothic style, and capable of seating about 700 persons. A district has been assigned to it out of the parochial district of St. Matthew, Bethnal-green, and of St. Peter, Bethnal-green, previously Curate of St. Matthew, has been appointed the first incumbent. The Bishop of London consecrated the churchyard, and preached in the church on behalf of the building-fund.

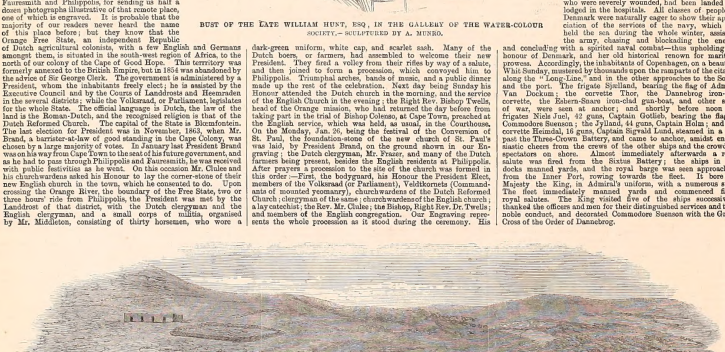


PREFERMENTS AND APPOINTMENTS.—The Rev. A. M. Hoare, Rector of Fawley, Hants, to be Rural Dean; Rev. H. Pearson, Vicar of Hambledon, Surrey, to be Rural Dean; Rev. Thomas Hall, Vicar of St. Chad's, Daresbury, to be Rural Dean; Rev. E. Sendall to Litton, Somerset; Rev. F. Smith to Worsley-with-Hindley, Lancashire; Rev. D. F. E. Shaw to Edgworth; Rev. J. F. Goggin to Lockington, Wilts. Preferred: Rev. B. Maltby to Burnham, Berwick; Rev. E. M. Pugh to Braintree, Essex; Rev. G. T. B. Morette to Parkbourney, Devon; Rev. F. P. Nicholl to Lanock, Wilts. Appointed: Rev. Lemuel Sayward to Trinity Church, Quebec; Rev. J. Bell, Incumbent of Brampton, to be Rural Dean for the Archdeaconry of York; Rev. J. Ingram, Missionary Establishment at Shanghai, China. Perpetual Curacies: Rev. W. O. Geary Ireland to Chalford, Gloucestershire; the Rev. A. S. Page to Sudeley, Gloucestershire. Curacies: Rev. A. H. Fuller to Grantham; Rev. Edward Hall to Bishop's Hull, Somerset; Rev. J. Bowden to Bristol; Rev. J. Bullen to St. John, Beverley; Rev. T. F. Collins to Bilton; Rev. J. Cooper to Bilton; Rev. J. Cooper to Bilton; Rev. J. Cooper to Bilton; Rev. J. Cooper to St. James, Hull; Rev. J. W. Marshall to Holy Trinity, Birchfield, Hanley; Rev. H. Wardle to Hanley.

THE LATE WILLIAM HUNT.

Of the many eminent painters who have died within the last year, or little more, there is none whose loss it will be more difficult to repair than that of William Hunt, the great artist in water colours. By the consent of all good judges, he occupied during the chief part of his long life the very first place among painters of flowers, fruit, and other inanimate objects; while he was almost equally unrivalled in pictures of modest children, landscapes, and interiors. We have already recorded our conviction that for certain qualities of still-life painting the works of William Hunt are unique, not only in regard to all the artists of our own time, but in respect to the examples of any earlier period. We need not, however, enlarge upon the singular but well-known merits of this artist, especially as we gave them full consideration in a recent biographical notice. His loss was, of course, most severely felt by the Old Society of Painters in Water Colours, of which he had been one of the ancient, and was a late death one of the oldest, members. The respect and admiration of the society for their deceased brother is now shown by their placing his bust, sculptured by Mr. Alexander Munro, in the most prominent position in their gallery. A bust of David Cox was, it will be remembered, exhibited there under similar circumstances some two or three years ago. The present work is the property of Mdme. Sedlitzkaa, an English lady, who is herself a painter in water colours of very considerable ability, and she has kindly lent for the season. As a work of art the bust deserves such unqualified praise as can but rarely be given to memorial sculpture, great or small, especially those which are posthumous, as this is. So full of lifelike individuality is it, and so remarkable were the characteristics of the sculptor's "subject," that the likeness is most striking. It may gratify some of the thousands who visit the delightful gallery in Pall-mall, and who remember the pleasure they have derived from the works of Mr. Hunt, to know that this bust is considered by all those who best knew the original to be an entirely satisfactory portrait.

LAYING THE FOUNDATION-STONE OF AN ENGLISH CHURCH IN SOUTH AFRICA



We are indebted to the Rev. G. Chiles, Vicar of Fauresmith and Philippolis, for sending us half a dozen photographs illustrative of that remote place, one of which is engraved. It is probable that the majority of our readers never heard the name of this place before; but they know that the Orange Free State, an independent Republic of Dutch agricultural colonists, with a few English and Germans amongst them, is situated in the south-west region of Africa, to the north of our colony of the Cape of Good Hope. This territory was formerly annexed to the British Empire, but in 1854 was abandoned by the advice of Sir George Clerk. The government is administered by a President, whom the inhabitants freely elect; he is assisted by the Executive Council and by the Court of Landdrost and Heemraden in the several districts, while the Volksraad, or Parliament, legislates for the whole State. The official language is Dutch, the law of the land is the Roman-Dutch, and the recognised religion is that of the Dutch Reformed Church. The capital of the State is Bloemfontein. The last election for President was in November, 1863, when Mr. Brand, a barrister-at-law of good standing in the Cape Colony, was chosen by a large majority of votes. In January last President Brand was on his way from Cape Town to the seat of his future government, and as he had to pass through Philippolis and Fauresmith, he was received with public festivities as he went. On this occasion Mr. Chiles and his churchwardens asked his Honour to lay the corner-stone of their new English church in the town, which he consented to do. Upon crossing the Orange River, the boundary of the Free State, two or three hours' ride from Philippolis the President was met by the Landdrost of that district, with the Dutch clergyman and the English clergyman, and a small corps of militia, organised by Mr. Middleton, consisting of thirty horsemen, who wore a dark-green uniform, white cap, and scarlet sash. Many of the Dutch boers, or farmers, had assembled to welcome their new President. They fired a volley from their rifles by way of a salute, and then joined to form a procession, which conveyed him to Philippolis. Triumphal arches, bands of music, and a public dinner made up the rest of the celebration. Next day being Sunday his Honour attended the Dutch church in the morning, and the service of the English Church in the evening; the Right Rev. Bishop Twells, head of the Orange mission, who had returned the day before from taking part in the trial of Bishop Colenso, at Cape Town, preached at the English service, which was held, as usual, in the Courthouse. On the Monday, Jan. 26, being the festival of the Conversion of St. Paul, the foundation-stone of the new church of St. Paul's was laid, by President Brand, on the ground shown in our Engraving; the Dutch clergyman, Mr. Fraser, and many of the Dutch farmers being present, besides the English residents at Philippolis. After prayers a procession to the site of the church was formed in this order:—First, the bodyguard, his Honour the President Rich, members of the Volksraad (or Parliament), Veldkornets (Commandants of mounted yeomanry), churchwardens of the Dutch Reformed Church; clergyman of the same; churchwardens of the English church; a lay catechist; the Rev. Mr. Chiles; the Bishop, Right Rev. Dr. Twells; and members of the English congregation. Our Engraving represents the whole procession as it stood during the ceremony. His Honour stands on the Bishop's left hand, Mr. Chiles on the right. The Bishop first delivered a suitable address in English, and a translation of it was read aloud (in Dutch) by the churchwarden, Mr. Hohns, who is the Landdrost of the town. After this a few prayers were said by his Lordship, the hasty beings so that it was necessary to proceed as quickly as might be, then his Honour laid the stone, and afterwards made a very cordial speech (first in English, then in Dutch), in which he expressed much good feeling towards the English Church. Mr. Fraser, the Dutch clergyman, then followed in a similarly cordial speech. At the suggestion of one of the churchwardens the company present put down some money on the stone, which amounted to about £10, with promises of more. After the ceremony, Mr. Harvey, the English pastor's churchwarden, entertained his Honour and family, the Bishop, and Mr. Chiles, the Landdrost, the Captain of the bodyguard, and several ladies, at lunch. The President and suite then started for Fauresmith, being conducted half way thither by the Landdrost and the bodyguard. We may mention that the President met with an hearty a welcome at Fauresmith, and, in fact, everywhere, as at Philippolis, and that he was duly sworn in at the usual annual meeting of the Volksraad, on Feb. 2, at Bloemfontein.

BUST OF THE LATE WILLIAM HUNT, ESQ., IN THE GALLERY OF THE WATER-COLOUR SOCIETY.—SCULPTURED BY A. MUNRO.

THE KING OF DENMARK'S VISIT TO THE DANISH FLEET AT COPENHAGEN.

OUR Illustration of the festivities with which the Danish fleet was welcomed by the King and people at Copenhagen, on the 14th of May, is engraved from a sketch by Mr. Simonsen, our Danish Artist. It should be observed that in consequence of the armistice and many of the blockade of German ports, from the date of the 12th ult., many of the ships of the Baltic division had already returned to Copenhagen on the 14th; but it was on the next day that the North Sea division, which had, on the 9th, had a battle with the Austro-Prussian squadron off Heligoland, and there beaten the enemy, inflicting much damage upon him, and driving him to take refuge in neutral British waters, was expected to arrive. It came, indeed, from Christiansand, in Norway, where fifteen of the fallen Danish sailors had been buried, and absent as many others, who were severely wounded, had been landed and lodged in the hospitals. All classes of people in Denmark were naturally eager to show their appreciation of the services of the navy, which had held the sea during the whole winter, assisting the army, chasing and blockading the enemy, and concluding with a spirited naval combat—thus upholding the honour of Denmark, and her old historical renown for maritime prowess. Accordingly, the inhabitants of Copenhagen, on a beautiful Whit Sunday, mustered by thousands upon the ramparts of the citadel, along the "Long-Line," and in the other approaches to the Sound and the port. The frigate Sjelland, bearing the flag of Admiral Van Dockum; the corvette Thor, the Danneborg iron-clad corvette, the Ebern-Snare iron-clad gun-boat, and other ships of war, were seen at anchor; and shortly before noon the frigates Niels Juel, 42 guns, Captain Gedde, bearing the flag of Commodore Suenson; the Fylland, 44 guns, Captain Holm; and the corvette Heimdal, 16 guns, Captain Sigvald Lund, steamed in a line past the Three-Crown Battery, and came to anchor, amidst enthusiastic cheers from the crews of the other ships and the crowds of spectators on shore. Almost immediately afterwards a royal salute was fired from the Sixtus Battery; the ships in the docks manned yards, and the royal barge was seen approaching from the Inner Port, moving towards the fleet. It bore his Majesty the King, in Admiral's uniform, with a numerous suite. The fleet immediately manned yards and commenced firing royal salutes. The King visited five of the ships successively, thanked the officers and men for their distinguished services and their noble conduct, and created Commodore Suenson with the Grand Cross of the Order of Dannebrog.

LAYING THE FOUNDATION-STONE OF AN ENGLISH CHURCH AT PHILIPPOLIS, ORANGE FREE STATE, SOUTH AFRICA.

THE KING OF DENMARK VISITING THE MONITOR-SEA SQUADRON ON ITS RETURN TO COPENHAGEN.—SEE PRECEDING PAGE.

CALENDAR FOR THE WEEK ENDING JUNE 11.

SUNDAY, June 5.—Second Sunday after Trinity. Boniface, Bishop of Mentz, and Archbishop of Germany, Martyr, 755. The Irish Churchills (Duke) [illegible] of the English Army at Sedgemoor (“the last great victory of an Irish chieftain in Ireland”) born at Ashe, Devon, 1660.

MONDAY, 6.—King John lands in Ireland and receives the homage of twenty-five Irish Princes, 1210. The British Institution (for the exhibition of ancient pictures) opened, 1813.

TUESDAY, 7.—Death of the great Robert Bruce, King of Scotland, 1329. The English Reform Bill receives the Royal assent, 1832.

WEDNESDAY, 8.—Death of the Emperor Nero, by suicide, 68; of Edward the Black Prince, 1376.

THURSDAY, 9.—Foundation of the hall and chapel at Greenwich Hospital, 1696. Death of Thomas Moore, the celebrated Irish poet, at Sloperton, 1852.

FRIDAY, 10.—Queen Victoria opens the Crystal Palace, Sydenham, 1854. Inauguration of the Great Exhibition of Industry of all Nations, Dublin, 1853.

Prince of Wales, 1841.

SATURDAY, 11.—St. Barnabas, Apostle and Martyr. Death of Roger Bacon (the magician), 1294.

TIMES OF HIGH WATER AT LONDON BRIDGE,
FOR THE WEEK ENDING JUNE 11, 1864.

Sunday.	Monday.	Tuesday.	Wednesday.	Thursday.	Friday.	Saturday.
m. h.	m. h.	m. h.	m. h.	m. h.	m. h.	m. h.
5	6	7	8	9	10	11
0	0	0	0	0	0	0
30	30	30	30	30	30	30
1	1	1	1	1	1	1
30	30	30	30	30	30	30

THE WEATHER.

RESULTS OF METEOROLOGICAL OBSERVATIONS AT THE KEW OBSERVATORY OF THE BRITISH ASSOCIATION.

Lat. 51° 28′ 6″ N.: Long. 0° 18′ 43″ W.: Height above sea 24 feet.

DAY.	DAILY MEANS OF				THERMOMETER.			WIND.	RAIN in inches and hundredths.
	Barometer reduced to 32°.	Dew Point.	Humidity.	Ozone.	Highest.	Lowest.	Range.	General Direction.	Sum of Hourly Values.
	Inches.	°	°	0–10	°	°	°		Inches
25	29·698	47·8	74·5	7·0	59·5	42·6	W.WNW.NW.	Variable	0·135
26	30·013	47·8	84·1	6·2	63·5	54·3	N. NNW. NE.		0·369
27	30·019	49·6	87·1	7·0	65·5	51·5	NNW. NW. W.		0·260
28	30·020	51·6	89·1	7·7	69·5	51·4	NE. NNE.		1·164
29	29·922	50·1	92·1	7·2	67·5	51·6	NW.		0·190
30	29·922	51·1	92·1	7·2	68·5	51·6	NW.		0·164
31	29·729	49·2	89·9	7·0	61·1	39·9	NE. NNE.		0·151
May

The following are the readings of the meteorological instruments for the above days, in inches, at 9 A.M. and noon and 3 P.M.:

Barometer (in Inches) corrected	29·927	29·905	29·971	29·944	29·915	29·893	29·737
Temperature of Air	59·5°	63·5°	65·5°	69·5°	67·5°	61·1°	59·5°
Temperature of Evaporation	51·5°	54·3°	51·5°	51·4°	51·6°	51·6°	51·6°
Direction of Wind	N.W.	N.W.	N.W.	N.E.	N.W.	N.E.	N.E.

THE ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS.

LONDON: SATURDAY, JUNE 4, 1864.

THE great Finance Minister is not of a temperament which will long allow him to remain the victim to a misconstruction of his utterances; and the great politician is not a man to permit his future to be seriously injured by the unassumption of a false position. We devoted some space to the examination of the motives which might have induced Mr. Gladstone suddenly to walk out of his ordinary groove and to proclaim himself the supporter of a bill which was not only not a Government bill, but which set itself directly in opposition to Governmental declarations that this was no time for the disturbance of the settlings, as regarded the representation, of which the present Premier and the present Foreign Secretary were members; we are therefore bound to notice the manifesto by which the Chancellor of the Exchequer proposes to set himself right with a misunderstanding public.

Mr. Gladstone has published the speech which he delivered on the celebrated Wednesday when the bill for lowering the borough franchise came before the House of Commons. He has prefixed to it some comments which are not unaccompanied with the scholarly grace that attaches itself to all the productions of the present member for the University of Oxford. That the document should be Gladstonian in cruditis was to be expected in presence of the circumstances which were calculated to arouse the distinguished author to marked self-assertion. We mean no disrespect—indeed, we mean the reverse—when we say that, in all probability, the reader of average intellect had to peruse the composition more than once before he grasped its intent and assured himself whether Mr. Gladstone were fighting or flying. Another point which it is needless to say that the very complished champion was doing neither, but only adjusting his shield. We pay no insincere compliment to Mr. Gladstone's periods in saying that, as he was presumably appealing to minds not only of the higher grade but of the highest grade, he has elevated his gracious eloquence to an exalted standard. To express ourselves still more clearly, we may add that his manifesto is vaguely unlike the address which scornful foes suppose him that he had better prepare for the people, and suggests that the great Mother of Churchmen and Tories will at the earliest opportunity dismiss him from her aged embrace.

Naturally, those who were extra prompt with censure and with applause when the Minister and member for Oxford seemed to announce himself in favour of universal suffrage have had some difficulty to contend with in settling accounts with him on the basis. Indeed, members of this Journal may be supposed to know what is meant by “the sell” of a game of chess. Those who do not, may be informed that it is a double move, by means of which the point which is attacked is suddenly shifted, and the artillery of opposition is, for the moment, brought to bear upon an abandoned position. Mr. Gladstone has cashed, and some little allowance must be made for the discomfiture of the artillerymen who were either saluting or bombarding him. But we have still recovered ourselves, and nobody is beaten. Moderate Conservatism rejoices to see Mr. Gladstone making handsome amends for a momentary error, which may have been the result of impulse or of the impatience of a clever man who beheld truths supported by abominable platitudes and debilitated rhetoric; and moderate Radicalism sees nothing in his preface which disentitles his new admirers to believe that when the signal is given for the extension of the franchise Mr. Gladstone will be one of the foremost to obey it. And, as was remarked of the character in “The Critic,” when we do agree, our unanimity is wonderful. In fact, then, the man as a master in his craft, and has he not vindicated his claim to be considered one of the strongest intellects of the age, when he can explain away an apparent eccentricity to the satisfaction of everybody? Any one may make a blunder, make it worse by explanation, and be ruined; any one may avoid blunders and be content to dwell in decencies for ever. But it is no ordinary man who can first indulge, to an extraordinary extent, his liking to astonish mankind and can then defend himself so dexterously as to increase his reputation and consolidate his supporters. A political tour-de-force has similar effect to a mental one—it is startling.

But, as we joined neither in the chorus of blame nor of praise, but saved our voices, believing that Mr. Gladstone had not finished, and regarding it as civil and polite to wait until a gentleman has done, Mr. Gladstone has a right, we may now be allowed to remark that we do not think that anybody, except Mr. Gladstone himself, is exactly a gainer by what has occurred. The Minister has once more shown—perhaps needlessly, after all his Budget speeches—that a more able man is not now to be found in the political ranks. But, if we look at the terms of the one sentence which comes neither in hasty haste at the beginning nor in cowardly fashion at the end of his preface, but is practically at the middle of the most effective, and garnished rather than guarded with a euphemistic contrivance of sentences, we find that Mr. Gladstone will not extend the suffrage to those to the deserving. If such exte nsion should endanger the balance of the representation. The ultra-Tory, who believes every mechanic a desperado, may be satisfied with this, for he considers every new vote likely to be given as a mental addition to Radicalism. The ultra-Radical, who believes every mechanic was a tyrant, may be satisfied with this, for he holds that there can be no real adjustment of repres entation until the governing classes shall be as dead as the labourers. But Mr. Gladstone has assumed the right of deciding whether the addition of a myriad or so of voters will or will not disturb the working of the constitutional machine, and if there is nothing in the speech and the preface, taken together, to prevent the Chancellor of the Exchequer from becoming the leader of a Government that shall bid us rest and be thankful, or shall invite Parliament to consider whether the franchise may not advantageously be conceded to a class hitherto distinctly represented, it is, in closing the account of this transaction, a nation of shopkeepers may fairly write down that, errors not excepted, the profit remains to our admirably adroit man of financial resources.

THE COURT.

The Queen, with the jun ior members of the Royal family, continues at Balmoral Castle, in the enjoyment of excellent health.

On Wednesday week the Princess Louise of Prussia Helena and the Princess of Leiningen, walked in the castle grounds. Later in the day the Princess Louise of Prussia Helena and the Princess of Leiningen, drove by Castleton Corriemulzie and Mar Lodge, returning by Invercauld. Prince Arthur went fishing at Monaltie, and caught a fine salmon, weighing 15 lbs., after a search exhibited to the Royal family. This was the eighteenth anniversary of the birth of Princess Helena.

On Thursday week the Queen, accompanied by Princess Beatrice and attended by Lady Churchill, walked in the garden at Frogmore and through Glen Beg. Prince Arthur and Prince Leopold went fishing at Invercauld.

Yesterday week the Queen walked and drove out twice, accompanied by Princess Beatrice and attended by Lady Churchill.

On Saturday last the Queen, accompanied by Princess Louise, walked and drove in the castle grounds.

On Sunday the Queen, Princess Helena, Princess Louise, Prince Arthur, Princess Leiningen, and Princess Alice Leiningen attended Divine service, performed at the castle by the Rev. Dr. Lee, one of Her Majesty's chaplains. In the afternoon Princess Helena and the Princess of Leiningen walked in the castle garden with Colonel Cruithie. The Rev. Dr. R. Lee officiated. The Duke of Argyll and the Rev. Dr. Lee dined with the Queen and the Royal family.

On Monday the Queen walked and drove in the castle grounds. The Earl of Clarendon arrived at Balmoral Castle, to visit the castle.

The Court is expected to leave Balmoral and arrive at Windsor Castle on Friday next. The Queen, it is expected, will then visit the Queen at Windsor, where, it is understood, the approaching accouchement of the Princess Christian will take place.

By the Queen's command, a full-dress evening party will be given at Buckingham Palace, on Friday next, at Buckingham Palace. By her Majesty's command, cards have also been issued for a full-dress ball on the 27th inst., at Buckingham Palace, the Princess of Wales representing the Queen.

THE LEVÉE

By command of the Queen, a levée was held, on Wednesday, at St. James's Palace, by the Prince of Wales. Presentations at this Court were, by the Queen's pleasure, limited to those required to presentations made to her Majesty. The Prince, attended by his suite, arrived at the Palace, from Marlborough House, at two o'clock, and was received by the great officers of the Queen's household. Prince Louis of Hesse, the Duke of Cambridge, the Grand Duke of Mecklenburg-Strelitz, and the Duke of Saxe-Weimar were present at the Court. The Prince entered the throne-room, and took his seat on the throne, which was then attended by the Earl of St. Germans, Viscount Sydney, the Marquis of Abercorn, and Lord Alfred Paget, Equerries in Waiting, Colonel Ged Charles Lennox Fitzroy, Colonel the Hon. Sir Charles B. Phipps, Colonel Sir Henry Ponsonby, Lord Hatherton, Earl Spencer, the Earl of Mount-Edgcumbe, Lord Alfred Hervey, the Duchess of Wellington, Lord Ashburton. Foreign Ambassadors and Ministers having been introduced, some presentations in diplomatic costume took place. The general circle included most of her Majesty's Ministers, and a large number of persons of distinction. His Royal Highness, on his way to and from the palace, was loudly cheered.

THE PRINCE AND PRINCESS OF WALES.

The Prince and Princess of Wales arrived at Marlborough House, Yesterday week the Prince, accompanied by Prince Louis of Hesse and attended by Major Teesdale, went to the International Dog Show at the Agricultural Hall, Islington. Their Royal Highnesses left the House of Lords in the afternoon. The Princess, accompanied by Princess Mary and Princess Louise of Hesse, Mr. Burton and Lord Harris, went to a concert at St. James's Hall. Subsequently her Royal Highness visited the Queen at Buckingham Palace, and the Princess Mary, drove out. In the evening the Prince and Princess entertained at dinner the Prince and Princess Louis of Hesse, Prince Edward of Saxe-Weimar and Countess Dornberg, Prince Theodore of Teck and Tatoi, Countess Gleichen, the Duke of St. Albans, and a distinguished circle.

On Saturday last the Prince, accompanied by Prince Louis of Hesse and attended by Lieutenant-General Knollys, Major Teesdale, Lieutenant-Colonel Keppel, Captain Grey, and Captain von Westerweller, went on horseback to the review of volunteers which was held in Hyde Park. The Princess, accompanied by Prince Louis of Hesse and Princess Mary and attended by the Countess of Morton and Mdlle. de Gramy, went in an open carriage and four to the review. Their Royal Highnesses were escorted by a detachment of the Horse Guards. In the evening the Prince dined at the annual dinner of the officers of the 10th Hussars, at Willis's Rooms, St. James's. The Princess, accompanied by the Prince and Princess Louis of Hesse and attended by the Countess of Morton, Mdlle. De Gramy, and Captain von Westerweller, honoured the Princess' Theatre with her presence.

On Sunday the Prince and Princess attended Divine service at the Chapel Royal, Whitehall. The Rev. C. Merivale, B.D., the Bishop of Carlisle, the Dean of Westminster, and the Sub-Dean of the Chapel Royal officiated. In the afternoon the Prince and Prince Louis of Hesse attended Divine service at the German Chapel, St. James's. Subsequently the Prince and Princess, accompanied by Princess Mary of Cambridge, Prince Louis of Hesse, drove to the White Lodge, Richmond Park.

On Monday the Prince and Princess, accompanied by Prince and Princess Louis of Hesse, drove to Claremont, and remained at that delightful residence in honour of the marriage of the Count de Paris and Princess Isabelle d'Orleans. In the evening Prince Louis of Hesse and the Duke and Duchess de Chartres with their presence at a ball at Morgan House, and subsequently proceeded to the White Lodge, Richmond Park.

On Tuesday the Prince and Princess, accompanied by Prince and Princess Louis of Hesse, returned to Marlborough House from the White Lodge, Richmond Park. In the evening the Prince and Princess received at dinner Prince and Princess Louis of Hesse, the Duke of Cambridge, the Grand Duke of Mecklenburg, the Duke and Duchess of Buccleuch, the Marquis of Normanby, the Marquis and Marchioness of Ailsbur, and a distinguished circle.

On Wednesday the Prince, attended by Major Teesdale, visited the Duke of Cambridge at his residence in Carlton House-terrace. Later in the day his Royal Highness, accompanied by Prince Louis of Hesse, went to the London Fencing Club, to witness an assault of arms. The Princess, accompanied by Prince Louis of Hesse and attended by the Countess of Morton, Mdlle. de Gramy, and Lord Harris, went to the Royal Horticultural Gardens, Kensington. Subsequently, the Prince and Princess, accompanied by Prince and Princess Louis of Hesse, visited the French Exhibition of Paintings in Pall-mall. The Prince held a levée on behalf of the Queen at St. James's Palace. In the evening the Prince and Princess, accompanied by Prince and Princess Louis of Hesse and Prince Philip of Wurtemberg, honoured the Haymarket Theatre with their presence.

On Thursday the Prince and Princess left Marlborough House for Cambridge. In the evening their Royal Highnesses honoured the performance of the Cambridge Amateur Dramatic Club with their presence, at the Town Hall, Market-hill, Cambridge. Park-street, Milne. Archivan has been honoured with ittings for a portrait of Prince Albert Victor of Wales.

His Royal Highness the Count de Paris has taken York House, adjoining the church at Twickenham, for a term of years.

The Duke of Marlborough has returned to town from a cruise off the coast of Devon.

The Duke of Manchester has left town for Kimbolton Castle.

The Marquis and Marchioness of Tweeddale have left Cambridge's Hotel for Yester House.

Lucius Marchioness of Waterford has arrived at Fa: nace's Hotel from Fort Castle, Portpatrick, N.B., for the season.

MARRIAGES IN HIGH LIFE.

The marriage of Captain Hon. Frederic Arthur Stanley (of the Grenadier Guards), youngest son of the late Lord Stanley of Alderley, and Lady Constance Villiers, eldest daughter of the Earl and Countess of Clarendon, was solemnised at the residence of the bride's father-in-law, Clarendon House, amid the ceremony and of considerable eclat. The Queen gave a costly shawl; the Prince of Wales, a gold bracelet; the Duke of Cambridge, a locket made by Mr. C. Frodsham; and the Princess Louise of Prussia and Princess Louis of Hesse and received presents from the Duchess of Cambridge, Princess Mary of Cambridge, Princess Augusta Caroline, and the Hon. Miss Lyttelton to fund to take place on Tuesday next.

FASHIONABLE AND POLITICAL ENTERTAINMENTS.

The Prince and Princess of Wales gave a grand banquet on Tuesday evening, at the Clarendon Hotel, to the Duke and Duchess Augustus of Saxe-Coburg Gotha, the Duke and Duchess de Chartres, the Count and the Duke de Montpensier, Prince Philip of Wurtemberg, the Count d'Eu, the Duke de Nemours, and a numerous party.

His Excellency the Ambassador of France entertained a large party at dinner on Saturday evening last.

The Duke of Cleveland entertained the members of the Jockey Club and held a conversazione on Thursday se'nnight, in the conservatory at the Royal Horticultural Society's Gardens, South Kensington. About 400 visitors were present.

The Duke and Duchess of Cleveland entertained a select party at dinner on Tuesday evening, at their residence in Curzon-street, Mayfair.

The Duke of Devonshire entertained at assembly this season at Devonshire House, on Tuesday evening, which was attended by upwards of 400 of the leading members of the fashionable and political world.

The Russian Ambassador and Countess gave a dance last evening at the family mansion in Belgrave-square, which was attended by many of the leading members of the aristocracy.

The Earl and Countess of Derby entertained a distinguished company at dinner, on Monday evening, at their residence, in St. James's-square. After the dinner her Ladyship had an assembly, which was attended by nearly five hundred of the elite of the fashionable and aristocratic world.

The Earl and Countess of Shrewsbury entertained a select party at dinner on Monday evening, at their residence in Belgrave-street.

The Earl and Countess of Zetland received a large party at dinner on Saturday last, at their residence in Grosvenor-street.

The countess of Strafford will have an assembly this evening at the family mansion in Portman-square.

The Earl of Westmeath entertained a select party at his residence in the world on Saturday afternoon last at Dudley House, Park-lane, Soho.

Viscountess Palmerston will receive at her residence in Cadogan Place on Saturday evening last. The reunion was attended by above 400 of the élite of society.

Mrs. Disraeli gave a morning party on Saturday last at Grosvenor-gate.

MARRIAGE OF THE COUNT DE PARIS AND PRINCESS ISABELLE D'ORLEANS.

THE marriage of Louis Philippe Albert d'Orleans, Count de Paris, eldest grandson of King Louis Philippe, with the Princess Maria Isabelle d'Orleans, eldest daughter of the Duke de Montpensier, and niece of the reigning Queen of Spain, was solemnised on Monday at the Royal Chapel at Kingston. The auspicious event was the occasion of a general holiday in the neighbourhoods of Kingston, Claremont, and Esher. At half-past ten the guests invited to the Royal wedding ceremony arrived at the chapel, among whom were many tried friends of the Orleans family, the principal members of the Royal Family of England, the Duke of Saxe-Weimar, the Marquis and Marchioness of Clanricarde, Earl and Countess Russell, Earl and Countess Granville, &c.

The ceremony was performed by the Right Rev. Dr. Grant, Catholic Bishop of Southwark, assisted by the Rev. Canon Oakeley, Queen's French Chaplains; the Abbé Teulie, Chaplain to Queen Amélie; M. Pierre Mailly, Canon of Arras; Dr. Barthlli, Spanish Chaplain; and Canon Holdstock.

Groups of beautifully-dressed children strewed a pathway of flowers to the chapel.

The members of the House of Orleans who were present comprised the Prince and Princess de Joinville, the Duke de Nemours, the Duke d'Aumale (the Duchess d'Aume's was prevented from attending by indisposition), Prince Augustus of Saxe-Coburg and Princess Clotilde of Coburg, Prince Philippe of Wirtemberg, the Duke Augustus of Saxe-Coburg-Gotha, Princess Augusta of Saxe-Coburg, Princess Marguerite, the Duke d'Alençon, Princess Blanche, the Count d'Eu, Princess Clementine, the Duke de Penthièvre, and Princess Amélie of Coburg.

Shortly before eleven Queen Marie Amélie, conducted by the Count de Paris, entered the chapel and proceeded to the altar, followed by the bride, conducted by her father, the Duchess de Montpensier, and the Duke and Duchess de Chartres. There were no bridesmaids. The Bishop, who wore his pontifical vestments, read a short discourse in French. The service then proceeded according to the ritualist the Roman Catholic Church. At the conclusion of the ceremony the bride and bridegroom retired to the sacristy to sign the register, which was witnessed by the Duke de Montpensier, the Duke de Chartres, and the Spanish Ambassador. Their Royal Highnesses returned to the chapel, when the Bishop celebrated low mass.

The Royal bridal party then left the chapel amid enthusiastic cheering, the firing of cannon, and ringing of bells, and proceeded to Claremont. Upon leaving the chapel the bridegroom was met by a group of young ladies representing the French deputation, one of whom presented to the Countess a bouquet, composed of choice white flowers, which was received most graciously by her Royal Highness, who, on accepting it, gracefully saluted the young lady.

After the company had reassembled at Claremont the Count de Paris led his bride to the entrance of the house, where their Royal Highnesses were greeted with enthusiastic demonstrations, in acknowledgment of which the Count said—"Ladies and Gentlemen,—I thank you, for myself, in the name also of my wife, my mother. Nothing can be more gratifying to me than to see this happy day celebrated by the presence of so many friends, especially those of my youth. The feelings towards us that have grown up during those years can be at last openly expressed, and we feel them more deeply because I may conceive that they are quite spontaneous. They have been to my family a great comfort during the years of exile. Therefore you are welcome on the day of a great domestic joy, and I trust that your good wishes will prove to be the happy omens of a future good-natured advice was greeted with renewed applause, amidst which their Royal Highnesses withdrew.

At half-past twelve the Prince and Princess of Wales, accompanied by Princess Louise, Duke of Edinburgh, arrived at Claremont. The Duke de Nemours, the Prince de Joinville, the Duke d'Aumale, and the Duke de Chartres conducted their illustrious visitors into the reception-room, where they were received with the greatest cordiality by the venerable Queen. The Duke and Duchess of Cambridge, Princess Mary, and the Grand Duke and Duchess of Mecklenburg-Strelitz, with the younger members of their family, also arrived. At three o'clock the company proceeded to the dining-room, passing through the great hall, into a temporary banqueting-room, where a déjeuner was prepared. The Prince of Wales led the Princess Amélie to her seat while the Grand Duke of Mecklenburg conducted the Princess of Wales. Queen Amélie sat in the centre, with the bride and bridegroom, having on her right the Prince of Wales and Princess Louise, and on her left the Grand Duke and Duke of Mecklenburg and the Princess of Wales. Before the company present at the déjeuner had separated, Queen Marie Amélie rose and proposed a toast to the health of the bride and bridegroom and Princess, which was most enthusiastically responded to by all present. The Count de Paris briefly returned thanks.

The bride and bridegroom took their departure in the afternoon for Woolverton, Worcestershire, the seat of the Earl of Jersey, where they will pass a few weeks.

After dinner the Queen gave a drum of palle blue, trimmed with white lace. The bride wore a dress of white silk trimmed with white lace, and a bridal veil. The Princess of Wales wore a dress of pale bleuh pink; Princess Alice a lilac silk; the Duchess de Montpensier a dress of white silk trimmed with lace and flowers; the Duchess and Princess Mary of Cambridge a dress of pale salmon-coloured silk.

The bridal presents were magnificent. The Queen, the Prince and Princess of Wales, the Duchess of Cambridge, and Princess Mary were munificent in their gifts. Queen Amélie's gift to the Count de Paris consisted of a white leather dressing-case, containing an exquisite miniature of her Majesty on ivory, with gilt mounts, made by Lavaden, from the Queen's own designs.

In the evening a ball was given by the Duke and Duchess de Chartres at Orleans House, Twickenham, to celebrate the event. Their Royal Highnesses were honoured with the presence of the Prince and Princess of Wales, the Duke and Duchess of Cambridge, the Duke of Cambridge, the Grand Duchess of Mecklenburg-Strelitz, Princess Mary of Cambridge, and the principal nobility and gentry assembled at the wedding, about 300 in number. Dancing was continued until half-past two, when supper was served. Dancing was afterwards resumed, and kept up until past three.

NAVAL AND MILITARY INTELLIGENCE.

WAR OFFICE.

6th Lancers: Capt. C. H. Chichester to be Major, dated 28th May, 1864. 17th: Lieut. D. R. Vandeleur to be Captain, vice R. A. Bagge, who has retired. H. L. Duchesne to be Cornet.

Royal Artillery: Lieut. and Adjutant Hon. A. Gordon to be Capt. H. Kennard to be Lieutenant-Colonel, vice W. E. Hamilton, who has retired upon full pay.

1st Foot: Lieut. Hon. F. G. W. Pomeroy to be Captain, Reuben B. A. Mercer to be Lieutenant, vice Hon. Pomeroy, who has retired. 2nd: Lieut. W. Hyde to be Captain. 3rd: Capt. J. F. Hunter to be Major; Lieut. W. J. Dobbyn to be Captain; Ensign W. Hamilton to be Lieutenant. 4th: Lieut. C. Hamilton to be Captain. 5th: Major Quartermaster-Sergt. J. Armstrong to be Quartermaster. 6th: Lieut. J. W. Fraser to be Captain. 7th: Capt. C. G. O'Brien to be Captain. 8th: Lieut. J. H. Harvey to be Captain. 9th: Lieut. J. Hamilton to be Captain. 10th: Lieut. and Capt. J. Hall to be Major; Lieut. W. Hamilton to be Captain; Ensign W. Hume to be Lieutenant. 12th: Lieut. W. Hall to be Lieutenant. 17th: Capt. W. Day to be Captain. 18th: Lieut. C. Bowness to be Captain. 19th: Lieut. J. Hall to be Captain. 20th: Lieut. C. Knapp to be Ensign. 24th: Ensign F. J. Hassard to be Lieutenant; G. R. A. Bentley to be Ensign. 27th: Ensign J. Hall to be Lieutenant.

Royal Marines: Capt. J. Bowden to be Major, dated 28th May, 1864. Lieut. and Capt. C. Price to be Major. Lieut. R. Kinsey, and G. J. Wilkie to be Majors. The undermentioned Lieutenants to be Captains, dated 28th May, 1864:—J. Hall, and the gentlemen at present doing duty with the Royal Marine Artillery and Royal Marine Light Infantry; and C. H. Gregson (Royal Artillery, as Major-General, at Malta), 1864.—Major W. Williamson, Royal Engineers, to be Lieutenant-Colonel, dated 28th May, 1864. Capt. J. Hall to be Major.

Major Patrick Steward, of the 1st (late Bengal) Engineers, has been appointed a Companion of the Order of the Bath.

Major-General Sir Richard Dacres, K.C.B., of the Royal Artillery, died at his residence, Shooter's-hill, on the 19th ult., aged sixty-four.

A memorial drinking-fountain, surmounted by an obelisk, having suitable inscriptions, has been erected in commemoration of the memory of the late Major Little, for many years barrack-master of the Weedon Hill and Bridge Barracks, Aldershot Camp.

On Thursday week the annual general meeting of the Cambridge Asylum for Soldiers' Widows was held at the Horse Guards, the Duke—Lieutenant-General Sir James Yorke Scarlett in the chair—when three widows were elected, making the number of the inmates 30.

The vessels forming the Anglo-Chinese fleet, recently in command of Captain Sherard Osborn, R.N., C.B., are about to be ordered to be removed from Woolwich and placed under charge of Captain W. E. Hall, C.B., of the Victor Emanuel, 94, guardship, at Portsmouth. The Tien-Tsin, the Pekin, and the China arrived at Sheerness on Friday.

Major-General Sir Richard Dacres, C.B., late commandant at Woolwich, last week terminated his final inspection of the whole of the district within his command, and forwarded a very complimentary report of the district to the Field Marshal Commanding-in-Chief. The term of his appointment (five years) expired on the 24th inst., when he will be succeeded by Major-General—Colonel E.C. Wemyss, C.B., who will be promoted to the rank of Major-General, consequent upon the Royal Artillery promotion on the 28th inst. On Monday night the officers of the garrison entertained Sir Richard Dacres at a farewell banquet in the barracks.

The Enterprise iron-clad sloop of war (of which we gave an illustration last month) underwent her official trial on Thursday week. On reaching the measured mile six runs were taken over the mile at full-power trials. The average speed of the six runs proved to be 12.65 knots, a consistently satisfactory. The average pressure of steam was 23lb., and the average number of revolutions of the screw was 70.5. The average speed of steam attained was 8.203 knots. The greatest speed of any one run was made in 4 min. 15 sec., and during the trial the boilers emitted an abundance of steam. The Enterprise has four guns on board, and is rigged as the new designers contemplated.

The annual meeting of the members of the Royal Naval School, New-cross, was held at the Royal United Service Institution, Whitehall, on Saturday—the presidential chair being filled by Admiral Sir W. Bowles, K.C.B. The report stated that the institution was making satisfactory progress. The average number of pupils for the past year was 400, and the number of vacancies was 97 pupils in the school. Several liberal donations had been received during the year, including £50 from the local authorities of Deptford, and £100 from Patriotic Fund, £100 from Mr. W. Peek, and £100 from the late Captain Montagu. The prizes for the proficiency of the pupils were given out by the June treat. The total income for the past year was £3271, and the ordinary expenditure £3251. The amount of invested funds was £1000.

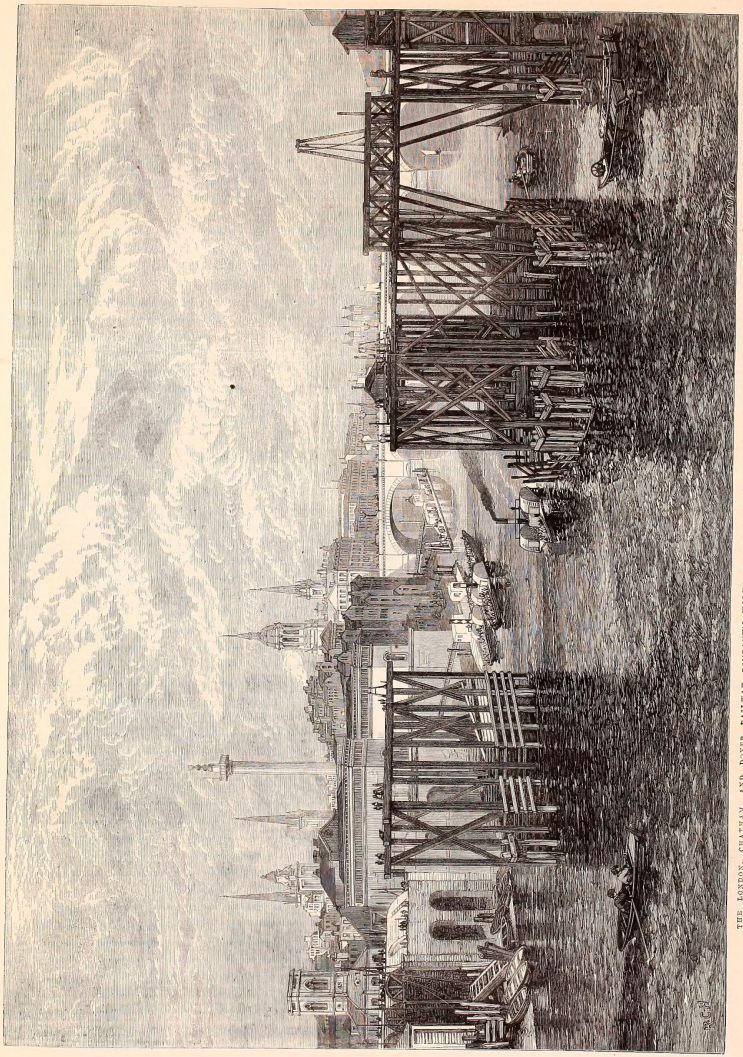
A regimental parade of the Royal Artillery stationed at Portsmouth and Hilsea took place on Southsea-common on Monday. The force on the ground was drawn up with the sixth brigade of garrison artillery in the centre and a field battery of artillery on each flank, forming three sides of a square, the objects of the parade being—first, the presentation of a medal and clasp to Sergeant-Major Cole; and secondly, the formal inspection of the force by Colonel Wardle, C.B., the officer commanding the artillery in the south-west district, previous to his handing over the command to Colonel Lefroy, and leaving the garrison to assume the command at Woolwich, to which he is appointed. Master-Gunner James Dorg, of Portsmouth, was called to the front and presented by Colonel Wardle with the silver medal for meritorious conduct, and to which is attached an annuity of £10. Colonel Wardle also warmly complimented the men. He is succeeded in the command of the artillery stationed in the south-west district by Colonel Hillyard.

CURRENT LITERATURE.

Diaries of a Lady of Quality. Edited by A. Hayward, Esq., Q.C. (1 vol. Longman.) The editor, by diligent labour, has compiled from ten volumes of manuscript a single, most entertaining, volume of print. The title will cause the scandal-hunters to prick up their ears, but they will be doomed to disappointment; for of scandal, properly so called—libel on private life—there is not a single trace in these pages. Envy, eagerness and innocendom—there is little or nothing. Miss Frances Williams Wynn (Lady Charlotte Lindsay's daughter of Sir Watkin Williams Wynn (fourth Baronet) and Charlotte, daughter of George Grenville, Duke of Buckingham (1782–1861)). She professed amongst her near relatives the first Marquis of Buckingham, Lord Grenville, Lord Thurlow, Lord Ellenborough, Lord and Lady Bunbrooke, Lord Nugent, and many other grandees, and she may therefore be fairly said to have had the opportunity of knowing and hearing what most people would desire to see and hear, or, in default, to read of. She died in 1857, in her seventy-seventh or seventy-eighth year, when the contents of her diaries were handed to her nephew, the Hon. Mrs. Rowley, under whose sanction these selections from them are published. Her diaries are, as they ought to be, records of facts and feeling, of cultivation and discernment," and to have stored up for future generations a mass of information and anecdote which attracted her attention in the course of her daily intercourse with the most cultivated society of her time, constitutes the true interest of the manuscripts." Hence this volume of interesting anecdotes, into which one may dip again and again without satiety. It is a treasure, without end or pain. As a specimen, a sole named "In Voluptuous" (Dated 1st January, 1814) will suffice. "Lady Cork's ball was the first I ever entered." Lady Cork was the wife of Lord Lindsay Viper on Tuesday. The said gentleman also performed a beautiful air, with variations, entitled "Les Mois de Delphine" (Dated 1st January, 1814). Rossini was grown and more and so eventually reproduced that of Lolly. The lecture was concluded with remarks on the relations of Rossini and Meyerbeer. J. Rossini as a musician, after declaiming against all the essential charms of modern music and studying to restore the ruling principles of composition, has been ended by adopting all his compositions the effects which he had so strongly decried. The illustrations produced from the lecture were given by Miss Parkes and Mr. Randall from "Le Gondoliere des Mares de ma Vie" (1820), "Je l'ai plainte" and "Le Rendez-vous" (1824), and "Le Contemplation" (1829), and "Le Contemplation" (1829).

Mr. Reginald Stuart Poole, of the British Museum, gave the Friday evening discourse on May 27, his subject being, "Greek Art, as illustrated by the Newly-Discovered Sculptures of Lycia." He said that it was impossible to be insensible to the interest which had not yet ceased to attach to the subject of a serious essay defining their exact value as documents in its history. It has been laid down as a principle that the arts of ornament are those in which the art of relics is immediately related. In their highest function, the representation of the human figure, they are subordinate to architecture as the former (sculpture) character, the dominant and leading quality; the latter (painting) requiring a separate and independent wall. The style, or rather as has-relics in miniature, being, as intermediate, being sometimes treated in the manner of architecture, sometimes in that of painting. The character of Greek sculpture (technically including ordinary bas relief) is very scanty and meagre. Of the sculptures of Egypt, Assyria, and Persia on the contrary, we have historic records. Certain works of art stated in the monuments of Europe and Greece—Rome, Egypt, Assyria, Persia, and India—are of the most ancient art, from the Egyptian to the Roman, and the most perfect work of the Greek world. We are thus able to reason inductively. By going on Mr. Poole said, we have discovered that Greek art, like all other widespread art we know, was marked by local characteristics, which, in the case of Greek art, have been classified on a local principle—that of Greece, resolute-like; that of India, pie-rare-like; and that of Italy and Rome, Italian-like. The character of Greek sculpture, and that of Asia (including the west coast of Asia Minor), architectural. The Greek sculptures (technically including ordinary bas relief) is very scanty and meagre. Of the sculptures of Egypt, Assyria, Persia, and India we possess only the history of art. The lecturer illustrated his theory by diagrams representing some of the Lycian sculptures, and concluded by commenting on and criticised them. He concluded by remarking on the beautiful effect of the study of art upon the mind, and the influence which it had had on the people like our own, where commerce was adroitly pursued; upon the merits and effects of contemporary art, and upon the general character of existing Greek art. The hon. secretary, Dr. Bence Jones, F.R.S., took the chair on the occasion.

Mr. Alexander Hunter's second lecture on "Shooting-Stars," delivered on Saturday week, was also very amply devoted to proving the correctness of Chladni's theory that shooting-stars, fire-ball, and aerolites are meteoric bodies which enter the earth's atmosphere at the rate of from 15 miles to 163 miles per second through three bodies named, and showed how this theory was confirmed by observations made on the 27th of Nov., 1798, by Brandes at Lilienthal, and by Benzenberg and velocities of 37 miles per observed between 1798 and 1803 Mr. Herschel constructed a diagram illustrating the theory. "The meteoric bodies," said Mr. Hunter, "are in a height varying from forty to eighty miles above the level of the sea in their first visible appearance in the atmosphere of the earth's the maximum being at sixty miles. As the first ten-thousandth part by weight of the atmosphere is of sufficient resistance to destroy the velocity of the meteorite, it is no wonder," says Quetelet, "that no person should hitherto have had the fortune to see one fall." There is a sufficient resistance in the remaining 999 parts of pondorable matter that no shooting-star will ever reach the earth. Mr. Hunter said that the fact that the meteoric stars is found in the atmosphere of the earth at a height of sixty miles now generally admitted that they are not of a planetary nature, and are neither of volcanic or terrestrial origin. They appeared another year, in ordinary and extraordinary numbers. Brandes calculated the average number of shooting-stars in January to be 7 an hour, and in for July to December at fourteen per hour; but in the extraordinary days of August and November the number had been ascertained to be forty per hour. The days of the great star showers have been proved to be Nov. 12, 13, and 14, and Aug. 9, 10, and 11, corresponding to the appearance of 1799. Of these records, is now found to correspond with Aug. 11. Great showers of shooting-stars have been observed in Nov., 1799, 1833, 1834, and 1837, and a shower of shooting-stars on the 27th of Nov., 1863, was observed by Mr. Hunter.—As a result of authentic records of preceding observations, he suggested that an extraordinary display might be expected on the 13th of Nov., 1866. He suggested that this should be borne in memory, that means might be taken to secure accurate observations of the phenomena. He concluded with observations on the nature of the meteoric light might be rarely and readily ascertained. In conclusion, he observed that the meteoric stones might be readily ascertained by them by means of the electric light.



Professor Owen delivered the first lecture "On the Morphological Phenomena of Animal Life," delivered on Tuesday last, May 31, was devoted to the consideration in the abstract of the principles of unity and diversity, of likenesses and differences, in the several divisions of the various groups of the animal kingdom—vertebrate, articulate, mollusc, radiate, zoophyte, protozoon, and protozoa. By means of large coloured diagrams he pointed out, in examples of the several groups, the principles of unity of plan, of unity of composition, and as signs of unity of purpose form of them, and their relative position in the body of the animal. In reference to the progression of animal life, he referred to the following principles of progression in animals, and to their organs, and to the tissues of which they are composed. Whether they had been produced from an egg, or from a germ, or from a bud, or by fission, or by gemmation, or by evolution, simple and complex; transformation, metamorphosis (progressive, retrograde, or retrogressive). In conclusion, Professor Owen remarked set forth at some length the arguments of Poucbet and his friends, and the opinions entertained by Mr. Darwin and his friends, on the supposed generation of inferiorial animalcules; and he also described the experiments and observations of Mr. Crosse, which had been so carefully noticed. Professor Owen's next lecture will be on Tuesday evening.

Professor Tyndall will give the last Friday evening discourse, on the 10th inst., "On a Magnetical Experiment."

VIEW FROM SOUTHWARK BRIDGE.

LOOKING EAST.

We lately gave an Illustration of the progress of bridge-building across the Thames in course of execution by the London, Chatham, and Dover Railway Company at Blackfriars. The view we engraved which we now invite the attention of our readers presents a view of the piles and scaffolding erected for the purpose of building another viaduct, which is to run parallel with Southwark Bridge and the South-Eastern Railway (not the London, Chatham, and Dover line, as we inadvertently stated, under this head, in a small part of our Impression) with the intended City station in the immediate rear. The new viaduct spans Southwark Bridge, looking down the river. A part of London Bridge, with the Tower in the distance, is seen behind the huge timber framework that stretches half way from the Surrey to the Middlesex side. The workhouses of Adelaide Wharf and those of the Old Swan Pier, below and above bridge respectively, look down upon the traffic of steam-boats which ply to and from the floating platforms or pontoons moored for the passengers' landing. Fishmongers' Hall is just seen above the houses at the Old Swan. The spires and turrets of half-a-dozen City churches, with the Monument, "London's pillar," lifting its head above them all, complete this familiar scene, the feature of it alone being unfamiliar—the works now going on for the construction of the railway bridge.

THE LONDON, CHATHAM, AND DOVER RAILWAY COMPANY'S WORKS ON THE RIVER: VIEW FROM SOUTHWARK BRIDGE, LOOKING EAST.—SEE PREVIOUS PAGE.

"SEULE À LA MAISON," BY C. BISSCHOP, IN THE EXHIBITION OF FRENCH AND FLEMISH ART, PALL-MALL.

We give the original title which was attached by the artist himself to the picture we have selected from the Exhibition at the French Gallery, because it is difficult, indeed impossible, to convey the significance of the idiomatic French words employed, by a mere literal or word-for-word translation. The title in the catalogue of the Exhibition, "All Alone in Doors !" is obviously Gallican English; which, though compounded of two idiotismes (as the French call them) is hardly more essentially accurate than such announcements in Paris shop-windows as "Here one speaks English," or "Here they cut of the hairs." The force of the French phrase, a la maison, is hardly to be rendered, indeed, by literal translation—i.e., by the words "in the house," seeing that it is often employed analogously to our "home." Then, again, to say "All alone at home" would be at least clumsy. While, however, the French à la maison often implies more than the English "in the house," it is equally certain—and at the same time very significant of differences of national character and habits—that there is no word or phrase in the whole French language which has the fulness of meaning and association of that dear little English, domestic word "home." Maison, demeure, logis, ménage, chez moi, chez soi, are all comprised, with something more, in "home, sweet home."

This philological and linguistic preface will not be altogether misplaced (apart from the desirability of finding a title) if it lead the reader to dwell upon and fully appreciate the artist's representation of home, but home made lonely and almost desolate by the absence of its natural head; this being the dominant sentiment of M. Bisschop's beautiful and touching picture. The model of a quaint old Dutch ship in this picture seems to intimate that the trim, comely, young Dutch woman has a mariner husband, who wins bread and provides this home for both by committing himself to the cruel and treacherous sea. Ah! ye fine ladies who "sit at home at ease," with your husbands always near you, or only absent a few hours, what can you know of the anxieties of a poor sailor's or fisherman's wife when the expected and promised return is long and unaccountably delayed; or of her sorrows when the loved one, the sole stay of life, never reappears? But we will, as the artist has cone, only suggest such terrors. We must not, then, allow our thoughts to carry us out over and beyond that frozen canal, through the silent endless wilds of snow, to the lodge for one that "cometh not" with such yearning, wistful earnestness. Let us rather confine our attention principally to the cleanliness and comfort of that Dutch home. Of course it exemplifies the scrupulous cleanliness which is a national characteristic, and amounts to a passion with all Dutch housewives. But besides this, and the general air of comfort and prosperousness, there are evidences—in the handsome marqueterie cabinet, in the looking-glass with the favourite china frame of the Dutch, in the pipes and tobacco-jars, and in the superior quality as well as nattiness of the dress of the group—to herald—before one, we say, in this fortunate evidences of moderate fortune and of a love of home and its position. Such hints are at once appropriate to the thrifty and home-loving Dutch, even of the humblest class, and are not out of time help ful to the intention of the picture. Lastly, we must not forget to notice the skates, which are lying about in front. It is to these whoever looks at our Engraving will be reminded of the almost incredible number of miles some of the Dutch women will skate along the canals by which the country is intersected, when frozen in winter, merely for pleasure to the sweetheart or for a visit to friends or pleasure. If we may hazard a final guess, we should fancy that this most interesting young wife has been out for a skate with her husband, or, in the expectation of meeting her husband, but that she has been compelled to return disappointed; and that, before resuming her usual domestic employment, she throws open the casement in the fond though groundless hope of still seeing the goodman appear on the horizon.

We have engraved this picture not merely on account of the popular interest of the subject, but because it is one of the most unknown in England, it is a work of extraordinary merit, particularly as regards correctness of drawing. The painter, Monsieur Ch. Bischop, a pupil of Comte, the eminent French painter, and he has been rewarded with the distinction of a Chevalier of the Dutch Order of the Couronne de Chêne.

SKETCHES IN PARLIAMENT.

THERE were symptoms in the beginning of the week that the task for that real hard work which is called amusement was predominant amongst many of the members of the House of Commons, and that it is, in fact, amusement. The unobtrusive clerk, which, as they generally do days, the Derby, the Queen's Birthday, and the Volunteer Review in one sequence, had their meat and rest at home, and not in the Parliamentary vigour. Everybody seemed to desire to postpone everything, unconscious that they were but the tools of a power at work with all their paraphernalia for quenching Nonconformist attempts at Church reform, were hurrying down to the House of Commons. And as early as twelve o'clock Mr. Disraeli, the political Bradwood of the moment, was present, and could be seen, through the open door at the air anxious adjutant when his regiment is mustering; and having received the roll from his non-commissioned officer, was ascertaining if he took his place in the front rank and assumed his usual immovable attitude and his sphinx-like expression of countenance. At this time there were very few members in the house, so that the cheer with which he was hailed on his arrival, was not so appreciated as he ought to have been; that is, Mr. Trefusis was there, and Mr. Bernal, and Mr. Bass, and his speech neatly and fluently—the only fault being that it was too short and too much to the point—in favour of preparation of the reverent character—had small chance of distinction beyond that, which, after all, was not to be despised, as it was the opportunity of showing his quality to his watchful and critical leader. But his debate there ought to have been all very good to encourage a speaker. Mr. Cavendish Clifford, seems to go in for eccentricity in appearance and speech, and is generally good-natured in the House. Once and again he has delivered himself of Parliamentary addresses, which merely by the fact that they were quaint would be to give no adequate idea of them. Although there is a fine old-fashioned air of running through them, they sound as if the hon. gentleman, having the advantage of retentive memory, had learnt them by rote, rather than that morning, and, being minded to make a speech, unconsciously reproduced all the notes which he had taken, and was looking over in his pocket chronicle. Nobody is likely to complain, for the result is very pleasant, and there is sometimes a touch of quaint humour by which the speaker is palpably influenced. Oddly enough, as the house filled, the debate grew more and more dull, and Mr. Cavendish position brought on an episode that stimulated the interest, which was flagging fast down to the meagre attendance at the time of division. Some unaccustomed and sudden "affairs" came upon Mr. Neate, and instead of his usual quiet, business talk he uttered small and telling sentences against Lord Robert Cecil, who, as Member for Marylebone against Mr. Gladstone in the University of Oxford, who has found a defender in the Member for the city of the town of that name. We know that in his heat, and in the unwonted rush of ideas and words, he has been unjust to Mr. Gladstone's face, or he would have repented having been drawn into the error of saying that gentleman's speech was not a speech at all, very one-sided one. For it is known that sweet phrases directed at Mr. Gladstone usually meet an accommodating and appreciative audience while he feels bound to call up being more ironical and contemptuous than appreciative, and indeed he has a peculiar way of his temperament; if they sought to please him, would rather put an argument at him which he would have to answer, than utter the honeyed platitudes about his great powers and his matchless oratory. I prize for receiving pungency into debate, the distinction having been duly awarded to Mr. Neate though disputed by Mr. Cavendish Clifford, that he has been for more out of order in the introduction of irrelevant topics, the debate grew serious, and Mr. Neate, who always was not effectual in keeping out that horrid thin edge of the wedge. It was, on the whole, a successful Wednesday evening's entertainment.

Amongst the few noticeable features in a rather colourless Parliamentary week may be mentioned the appearance of Lord Palmerston. The noble Lord has assumed, in all its entirety, his function of Commander-in-Chief, and has commenced the duties of his position by taking the conduct of everything into his own hands. He replies to every question that is addressed to him by any body, and he has made two or three regular speeches in the regular way, for the leader of the House towards the close of debates. One night he placed himself before Sir Charles Wood on a subject which was Indian in its nature, at least, and dealt with it in quite an official manner, of course, as the head of the Government, and the paying power for India, who only gave the sanction of his solemn presence to the debate. Then the House was in a very old ground, and as stalwart as ever, diplomatically and foreign—politically we mean—in the subjects which it took up, and at length been brought forward by Mr. Hennessy, fresh, as we take it, from a study of "Handbook of Wines," to ask why the wine duties were to be pathetic, and did put together some graceful and pointed sentences which he delivered with marked effect and considerable power; but, somehow, there is a dryness in his voice, and a want of zap about his style, which even real feeling cannot remedy in the arrangement of facts, and in careful deductions from them, he is very successful; and though he did on this occasion place Sir Walter Raleigh and Mr. Spurgeon in rather ridiculous juxtaposition as authorities, his illustrations generally are apt enough. Still, for some reason which one understands but cannot explain, he does not satisfy, if, by-the-by, any one particularly wishes that he should satisfy.

Most people thought that the subject of China could not be galvanised, even by Mr. Cobden. He had already been raised about with a certain frantic enthusiasm by Mr. Liddell, and squeezed economically dry by Mr. Baxter; and the policy of Lord Palmerston, as it is supposed to be distinguished from that of a number of his colleagues, was a question of whom were we to support, and to find out of office on this very question—had been formally enunciated, and in some respects formally apologised for. What more could be got out of such a thrice-told tale? Well, there was got out of it—firstly, the second best House—being next to that for the Budget—of the Session, and the very best speech Mr. Cobden ever made in Parliament—and that, in the judgment of many, is not to be particularly prone to be his admirers. One hardly remembers any occasion when Mr. Cobden was more in his element in the House of Commons, while preserving his idiosyncratic qualities just so much as to be prevented from being offensive. There was none of that hard snapping and jerking in his manner, which, from the days of Peel down to that of Cobden as air of querulousness and irritability; and there were no sharp personalities in his speech. He was calm, and in a good feeling towards those—Lord Palmerston especially—whom he was attacking, and was content to rest his case upon the merits of the case whole, his speech, while clear and argumentative, as might have been expected, was genial, and in its way unexceptionable in its interest. At any rate, it resuscitated the Chinese question to such an extent as to make it a very lively one, and to give it a place in the privileges which it has decidedly lost in the last two Sessions. In the House of Commons, as elsewhere, Mr. Baring caused considerable relieves to break a custom and to listen to Colonel Sykes for more than on the subject of Indian finance, bringing most interesting statements, and displaying a knowledge which, if Parliamentary proceedings would be most valuable. Those who wished to be informed, if there were any in the House, on Indian matters, should have confessed the rugged sectaness and the seeming irascible manner of the excellent Colonel, and have listened to him when he was saying that which was really worth hearing. It has been a fashion to say that Mr. Bright has ceased to be a power in the House of Commons, but only to the initiated expressive, definition of a House of Commons which is only to be found in Parliament. Whenever only powerful in a set speech, the basis of which at least has been prepared, he is powerful. Any opinion would have changed it on hearing him the other night on the China question, but that opinion, in the place all right, he evidently did not mean to speak formally; and it was then that Mr. Bright showed his wit, his complimentary jape of tact, rose just as the debate had practically died away, and delivered a speech which was saying,

NATIONAL SPORTS.

THE Derby settling has gone, as the huntsman said of his old mare, "as smooth as oil." There are only two or three very heavy winners, but the money has come out of an infinity of pockets. Mr. I'Anson and Captain Cornish win between them about £15,500, and put on their money through Mr. Jackson. The commissioner who caused all the bother got his money off and lost by the race. It is said that he was originally requested by Mr. I'Anson to get a "monkey" on at 20 to 1, but not being able to get more than 25 to 1, he booked Abe bet to himself and refused to recognise it as a commission at all. This difference caused the entanglement; Mr. I'Anson, not feeling at all sure that he had a Derby winner in hand, secured himself by laying a certain amount against him, and the bet was consequently grew frightened and hedged all his money. So the story goes. The horse had been for some months in his name, but he ran for the Derby; and, as he was beaten by Borealis at 7 lb., Mr. I'Anson did not think the trial good enough to encourage him to run for the Oaks, one of whom he had borrowed a horse to put to the trial, and was most decidedly beaten as to which he could beat. Scottish Peel and one or two others in the race. In fact, he thought it made an open question, and left the matter in the hands of his friends. It is stated in Bell's Life that the officers of two cavalry regiments intend to back the colours of the winner to the extent of about £12,000. Captain Little's dreams have been most remarkable, as he saw the winning number both the Derby and Oaks, and put his friends on. The Sporting Gazette may well declare that it would be glad to give him "a good round sum for his dreams." The saddle at Pile de Lin was sold at a very low figure, as well as the gear of the saddling avenue if Mr. Payne and Captain White had not helped to rescue it. The friends of Lie Tenant Temple, who was killed by running in the Two Thousand was owing to Jennings having been anxious to put two more on her, and thus lost heart in the race. So far, "the champion" and two other ex-prize-fighters are the only ones who have put their fists to work. The Jockey Club has but their statements as to "no office" having been given them the day before to not tally with what one of them said at the police court waiting for his own and his friends' fines." It is a sad thing that Sarpedon should not get pardon, if he was "off his head" when he bet, for two causes, one of the most uproarious demonstrations that Epsom ever witnessed on "the ladies' day." The French have no right to such a thing, but it was a very public demonstration, and there has never been a word of jealousy expressed either about the French or the American winnings. Last year Mr. Merry, Mr. Payne, Count Lagrange and Baron Nivière should boldly ask the Jockey Club for an inquiry into both, perhaps, after the Derby and the example of its powers, they have no special faith in that tribunal; and who can blame them?

The Derby and Oaks winners are pretty certain to meet for the great Foxhall event next week, and many will be glad to see the race forward for the Derby will be content to stay at home, and not risk the voyage for an outside chance. The Oaks will be run for by Mr. Breese, who ran a good second to her at Epsom, is. The very nerve you which was made of iron, and Mr. Merry's Lady Elgar would seem to have overpowered him, gives the party strong reason to hope that when nearly four months have ripened the bay's great frame he may be able to lay up the Derby and Oaks double. Blair Athol on the Doncaster post. It was bitterly hard on Lord Glasgow, who thought he was going to have a good race, and which he had hoped for during nearly half a century, to see his jockey running home with his own in the Doncaster stand over the jockey. Fatalists argue that the riding of Ashmall on The Marquis, but of Bloomsbury on Lord Glasgow's horse in the 1862-3 for the same thing, and as these Epsom seconds were both converted into Doncaster firsts, Goodwood will be the test. The Leger victory grooves. We trust it may be so; but the whitebeard chestnut is a very queer horse, and may be as bad as he is good as game as a pebble. We do not see how Scottish Chief can expect to reverse the running with General Peel, as he was waited with steadily all the way, and when Peel came with his run he was left to finish within three lengths of Lord Glasgow's horse, who had nearly ten pounds to the standard. It would be a very much different ground may do a good deal for Cambuscan, and if Ayr had not been ridden into the ground the winner of the Two Thousand might perhaps have been a little nearer, but not have interfered with the two first. Every year there is some horse brought out to run for the turned weary). Cosagrand, Scottish Chief, Paris, and Cambuscan, he is in the St. Leger. It seems that Cambuscan may be for the Leger, and Birch Tree and Sly Fox together that Mr. Clark could not assign them places. Considering his unlikely looks, Cathedral ran very forward.

Mr. I'Anson's Breadalbane, own brother to Blair Athol, is, of course, first favourite for next year. Mr. Merry's Liddington, a half-sister from Lady Roden, is backed, and so is his Sambeek by Saunterer, for which the yearling mammoth gave 1,000 guineas. Lady Elgar is down to £800 from Messrs. Jackson and Steel in the betting-rooms at night, closing the bet with a guinea each way. The Cambuscan composition, who was looking on at the fun. Broomlelaw by Stockwell from Blink Bonny's dam, Sulpicius by Trumpeter from May Bell, a Y by Seventeen from Jamilla (dam of Cathedral's Leger) Eatapian from Mistletoe, Jack-o'-Lantern by Stockwell from Lantern, and from old by Sauterer from Lady Coventry, are all reported backed, and perhaps one or two of them may afford us a maiden taste of their quality at Ascot. Little Red Riding Hood is also to make her work of it at Epsom; and will, we conclude, be his champion, vice Lord Clifden, as the Duke of Cleveland's representative in the race so does Uncle Jack, while Queen Bertha no doubt goes. Caller Ou, Little Red, Zaccarelli, East Lancashire, and Lord Lyon complete the fourteen in her Majesty's Vase.

The vice by Zoyder (ex Mr. Naylor, 500 gs.) was the pick of the Stonehall, as Big Ben fifty from Ada (Mr Jackson, 700 gs.), of the Swaleliffe, yearlings at Stockwell on Saturday. Twenty of the former averaged 111 and thirteen of the latter 97 guineas. Mr. Merry Dawsen bought four lots for his employers, and Mr. H. Hill gave the highest price for a single lot, 710 gs. for Mr. Naylor's Bessie by Heuvelina's Young Melbourne filly died of paralysis three days after her dam, and Mr. Merry's Cambuscan colt, who is not to be sold at all what with other casualties, there are only two colts and two fillies at Streatham paddock this year. There are three colts and a filly at Middle Park on Saturday (June 11). Among them are seven Dundees four of them colts from Cremorne, Lady Dundee, Dundee in blood to Dundee; five Will Daysdils, one of them a filly from Silvertail's dam, a chestnut by Flatcatcher from Cremorne, Governess, a Flying Dutchman colt from Magic, five Marmosets, three fillies by Lord of the Isles (one of them a chestnut from Lady Lago), a Parmesan colt from Sauterer's dam, and Fandango, Colsterdale, Fitzroland, Prime Minister, Windh ound, and Idle Boy blood so well.

The Islington dog show has been as great a success as in previous years, except in its foxhound department. His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales was two brood mares and foals, a pair of cart-horse cobbits, a cup, and a tankard as his prizes. The greyhound class did not bring out any especially notability, except Belle of the Village, who got a commendation. Ranger was only highly commended, and among the most prominent features of the show were the first prize team of Clumbers, sent by Mr. Holford, M.P.; Mr. Race's prize harriers, the Lady Morgan foxhounds; the Cremorne Fund's "perfect form in perfect rest," under a perforated glass case; and King Dick, the bulldog, who is as well known to the British public as Tom Sayers himself.

Mather and Professor Beckwith (the champion) swim for the champion cup and £100 a-side, on Monday afternoon, from Hammersmith to Putney Mather has won the cup twice, but was beaten in a mile race on the Mersey by Johnson, also of Manchester, last Saturday.

COUNTRY NEWS.

The Privy Council have decided that the Assizes for the West Riding of Yorkshire are to be held at Leeds instead of at York.

The annual session of the General Assembly of the Church of Scotland, which was held last week, was brought to a close on Monday.

A lady has given a new life-boat, the station of which is to be that of the Bonnie Dundee, to Dundee.

The Hants papers record the death, in his seventieth year, of Mr. Abraham Gowley, late mayor of Romsey. Mr. Gowley was a great advocate of education, and his firm solely supported a girls' school, which were 150 children in connection with the Independent Chapel.

A public meeting was held in the Assembly Hall, Edinburgh, yesterday week, to celebrate the tercentenary of Calvin. The Earl of Dalhousie presided. Papers were read by Principal Lee, Professor Blackie, and Professor Calvin, and other kindred subjects.

A new life-boat, named Lady Bertha, of Liverpool and Garston, where it joins the railway communication between Warrington, Manchester, and Liverpool, and the Mersey, was launched at Hoylake, in Cheshire, and opened for traffic on Wednesday.

An explosion took place on Thursday week in a gun-cotton mill at Stowmarket, when a girl, named Burrows, was killed, and three others had a narrow escape. The explosion took place in the drying-room, and the cotton into lengths must have come in contact with some hard substance, or had become heated by friction.

Captain T. F. Boskell, of the Inman steamer Edinburgh, and Mrs. S. Thompson, chief officer of the same vessel, have been promoted, the former with a scutari and the latter with a quadrant, suitably inscribed, as a recognition of their conduct in connection with the wreck of the ship Miss Ann, of Plymouth, when in a sinking condition in the Atlantic.

Between four and five years ago a subscription was set on foot among the working men of Birmingham for the purpose of raising £200 to be presented to the Royal National Life-boat Institution for a life-boat. This has now been carried out by the launch of the life-boat "The Tom Egan," after the originator of the idea, who was formerly President of the Old Society Boat Club. The life-boat was launched from the Penarth dock, on the south coast of Ireland, which has been found too small for the locality.

Warwick has been the scene of the annual meeting of the Archæological Institute, and excursions will be made thence to Stratford-on-Avon, Tewkesbury, Worcester, Kenilworth, and other places. The election of medieval antiquities will be conducted by Dr. Guest, the Master of Caius, Cambridge; while Mr. Albert Way, the secretary to the Institute, will be respectively under the presidency of Dr. Hook and Mr. A. J. B. Hamilton Gordon, the latter of whom is the brother of the new M.P. for the latter of whom is the brother of the new M.P. for Inverness-shire, and is the nephew of Mr. G. Tomline, M.P., from Aug. 8 to 13.

The Lord Chief Justice of England has had the honour of having liberally offered several handsome prizes for competition among the Artists who exhibited their works in the grounds of the recent great show opened on Monday last in the grounds of Wycombe Abbey. At the close of the competition the following were the awards announced to be the winners:—First prize, Sergeant Stradling (Marlow); second, Lieutenant War (Aylesbury); third, Sergeant Lehman (Aylesbury); fourth, Sergeant Lehman (Aylesbury); fifth, Sergeant Lehman (Aylesbury); sixth, Sergeant Hounsfield (Aylesbury); seventh, Sergeant Lehman (Aylesbury); eighth, Private Hall (Aylesbury); ninth, Sergeant Lehman (Aylesbury); tenth, Private Hall (Aylesbury). The competition of military exercises will be excellent; and at the close of the competition the prizes, consisting of seven handsome silver cups, were distributed by Lady Jane Scott Montagu.

The annual celebration of the ancient festival of "Court of Array" took place on Monday in Shrewsbury. The pageant, which originated in the reign of Edward III., and which is said to be one of the most ancient in the country. The procession, the principal feature of the day, was headed by the marshal, Mr. Thomas Eyton, of Eyton, who was followed on horseback, bearing a white staff, by the sheriff, Mr. Lloyd, and immediately following the marshal came the representative of King Henry I., the standard-bearer, and the trumpeters, the Shrewsbury Bugle and Clarionet Corps next, followed by the shoemakers; these were followed by bakers, drapers, tailors, ironmongers, and other trades, each bearing their crafts succeeded. In various parts of the pageant allegorical and historical characters were introduced, and the whole presented a very gay scene. The procession reached Kingsland at three o'clock. Here the various mounted and lower divisions reined from their temporary stale and joined heartily in the festivities.

A congress of German journalists was opened at Eisenach, in Saxony, a few days since. The principal subject of discussion was measures with regard to the press, and all police or administrative jurisdiction, and the question of literary property.

On Saturday there was a special rhododendron fête in the Royal Horticultural Society's Gardens, the show being supplied by Messrs. Veitch and Godfrey, Messrs. Standish, Messrs. Waterer, and others. The weather was comparatively fine, and the attendance was 339 fr. long by 150 ft. broad, furnished by Messrs. Hall and Co., of Bagshot, and Messrs. Rollison and Sons.

A fourth collection of works of decorative art was on Tuesday opened to private view at the rooms of the Society of Arts, Adelphi, Little Trinity-lane, City. The object of this exhibition is to stimulate the production of beautiful objects of domestic use. The contributions to the competition are very numerous, notwithstanding they are limited to four days' exhibition. The decorations, painting, &c., for the Temple Bar arrayed in the large hall, which is admirably adapted for the purpose.

The Treasury, chief officers of the Navy, and the 20th (the Prince of Wales's Own Regt. Regiment) Hussars, dined with the officers belonging to, or late of, the 20th Regiment, at the Royal Clarence Hotel, at Mr. Hodge, King-street, St. James's. Covers were laid for fifty persons. The annual income of the Royal Institution for the Blind, Upper Norwood, has been held last Saturday, and of the 3rd Guards on Monday. The others of the 40th (2nd Bn.) Prince Albert's Somersetshire Light Infantry, Taunton (on Saturday)—Colonel North in the chair.

BRIDES AND BRIDEGROOMS.—According to an official paper recently issued from the Admiralty there are sixteen iron-plated vessels afloat, eleven building, and seven projected, besides the three sent out to the Black Prince, Warrior, Defence, Resistance, Hector, Valiant, Achilles, Minotaur, Agincourt, Northumberland, Bellerophon, Prince Consort, Ocean, Lord Clyde, and Royal Sovereign. The first five cost, respectively, £363,815, £363,395, £363,716, £363,716, and £363,716. The Royal Oak cost £363,716, the Prince Consort £294,064, so far as the accounts at present show; and the cost of other vessels afloat has not yet been ascertained. The vessels being built are the Agincourt, Northumberland, Bellerophon, Prince Albert, Royal Alfred, Lord Warden, Lord Clyde, Lord Gough, Lord Nelson, Lord Raglan, and Lord Hardinge. The floating batteries are Aetna, Glatton, Meteor, Trusty, Thunderbolt, £80,230; Rinaldo, £95,000; Citadel, £97,303; Terrible, £97,303; Enterprise, £97,303; Favourite, £97,303; and an official list of ten-armour-plated ships ready or to be built this year:—Hercules, Sultan, Monarch, Research, Penelope, Pallas, Favourite—not begun, cost of hull, £2710; Helicon, one gun, cost of hull, £39,093; Cherub, one gun, cost of hull, £39,093; Zebra, one gun, cost of hull, £39,093; Vigilant, four guns, cost of hull, £34,932. The cost in each case is merely an estimate, as two of the vessels are French-owned and two American, have not yet been surveyed, and it is thought that the others cannot be launched before March next.

THE MARKETS.

CORN EXCHANGE (Mar 31).—Only a limited supply of English wheat was on sale here to-day, and the demand for most kinds ruled steady, at, in some instances, an advance in the quotations of last week. Foreign wheat was in moderate request, at full prices. Barley qualities were very dull, at barely late rates. Grinding and distilling barley supported previous quotations. Malt was in slow request, at late rates. Oats were in fair demand, at last week's prices. Beans and peas were quite as dear as last week, and the supply on offer was moderate. Flour was in steady demand, at full prices.

Mark Lane Express (Monday).—Wheat, 33s. 6d.; barley, 29s.; oats, 18s. 10d.; rye, 37s. 6d.; beans, 32s. 11d.; peas, 32s. 6d.

The Weekly Average.—Wheat, 33s. 6d.; barley, 29s.; oats, 18s. 10d.; rye, 37s. 7d.; beans, 32s. 11d.; peas, 32s. 6d.

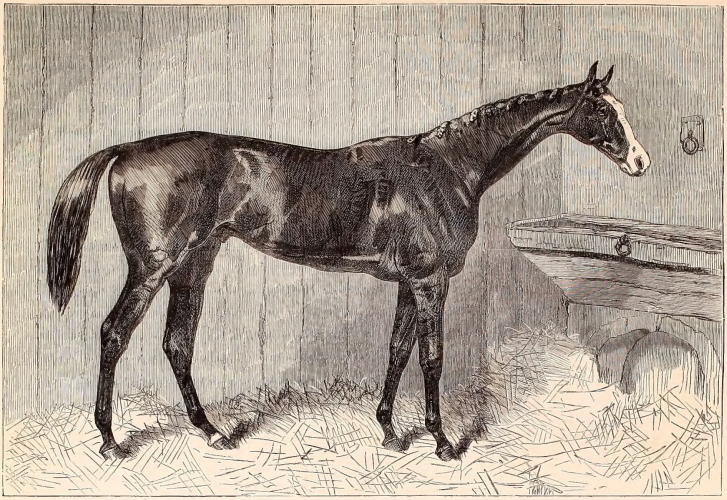
Gazette Average.—Wheat, 33s. 6d.; barley, 29s.; oats, 18s. 10d.; rye, 37s. 7d.; beans, 32s. 11d.; peas, 32s. 6d.

Duties.—Wheat, 1s.; barley, 1s.; oats, 1s.; rye, 1s.; beans, 1s.; peas, 1s.; flour, 1s.

Flour.—The demand is by no means active; nevertheless prices are well supported.

Sugar.—The transactions have been on a full average scale, and the quotations have been tolerably firm. The stock is 77,000 tons, against 78,313 tons last year. Refined goods were in fair request, at full prices. Molasses were steady.

Coffee.—The sales have been moderate to-day, but prices are firmly maintained.

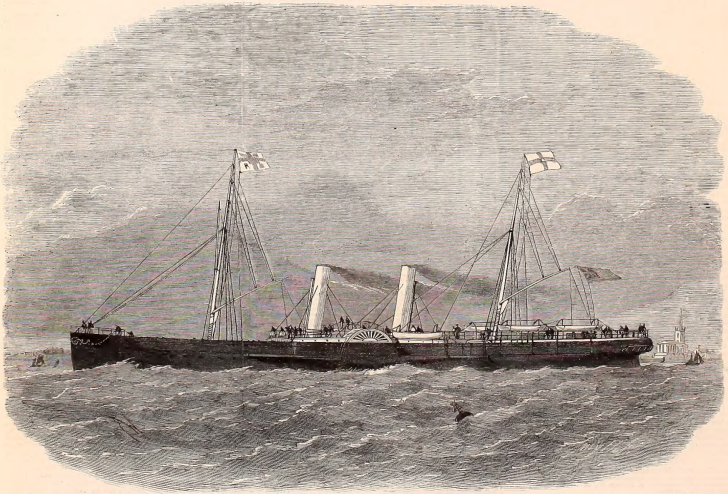


Rice.—Sales have progressed slowly, and in some instances the quotations have had a downward tendency. Stock, 12,000 tons, against 12,000 tons.

Provisions.—Irish butter moves off slowly, at about stationary prices. Foreign qualities are in fair request, at full quotations. Bacon is in steady demand, at late rates. Hams are dull, at 6s. per cwt. All other provisions are very dull, at late rates.

Tallow.—There is rather more doing in this article, at full quotations. P.Y.C., on the spot, is offering at 37s. per cwt. The stock is 43,637 casks, against 27,714 casks last year. Rough fat, 2s. 3d. per 8 lbs.

Oils.—Linseed oil is dull, at £31 5s. per ton. Rape is selling at £34. 10s. to £34; cotton, £31 to £31 10s.; olive, £51 5s. £51; cocoanut, £39 10s. to £41 10s.; and fish, £26 10s. French turpentine, 35s. per cwt.



Hops.—Mid and East Kent pockets, 5l. 5s. to 6l. 15s.; ditto, 4l. to 5l. 15s.; Sussex, 4l. to 5l. 5s.; Farnham, 6l. 6s. to 8l. 8s.; Surrey, 4l. to 5l. 5s.; Ess gally. The discrepancy in the size of his feet and the twist of one of his pasterns are peculiarities which he inherits from his dam. As a goer he cannot be exceeded; but he looks as if he would be rather difficult to [illegible]. Mr. D'Arcy, however, gave him plenty of time, and hopes to make him fitter still when he encounters General Peel over Doncaster Moor. He was ridden with great care and determination by Lord Zetland's jockey, James Snowden, brother to the late Luke Snowden, who won the Oaks on Butterfly four years ago. He is engaged in the Grand Prize of Paris next week, and in the St. Leger, the Prince of Wales's Stake at Ascot, and several other races.

BLAIR ATHOL, THE WINNER OF THE DERBY FOR 1864.

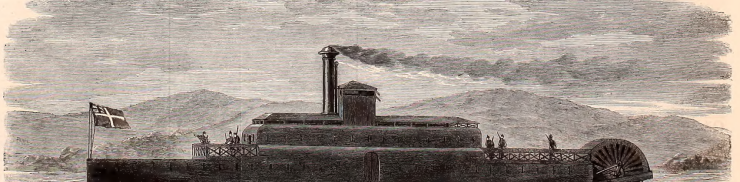
Fille de l'Air, who will, like Cambuscan, Scottish Chief, Ely, and Paris, have an opportunity, if their owners are so minded, of reasoning conclusions with Blair Athol at Paris, is a chestnut filly without white, fifteen three in height, and wonderfully level and truly made; in fact, almost as shaking a mare as was ever registered in the list of Oaks winners. She commenced her career over the Epsom course, beating Molly Carew and thirteen others for the Woodcote Stakes; and, with 5lb. extra, she was beaten at the same meeting by Midnight Mass and Tomato. At Goodwood, carrying only 2lb. less, she defeated Scottish Chief cleverly at Doncaster she was second for The Champagne Stakes to Ely, after cutting herself down by racing from the post with Linda. At the Newmarket First October she was third, carrying 9lb. extra, to Yamuna and Tomfoolery for the Hopeful Stakes; and at the Newmarket Houghton, with 5lb. extra again, she scattered Prince Arthur, Ely, Coast Guard, and several others for the Criterion. In fact, she was a regular thorn in the side of the Derby colts. The present season found her "nowhere" for the Two Thousand, and an easy winner of the French Oaks; and the public's deductions from these in and out performances and the Oaks betting caused such a demonstration that it was all "the fancy," and the police, mounted and foot, could effect to prevent her jockey being torn out of the saddle. In fact, to get the saddle, so as to prevent Edwards from weighing in, seemed to be the great ambition of King Mob.

THE PADDLE-WHEEL STEAMER AVALON, OF THE HARWICH AND ROTTERDAM LINE.—SEE PRECEDING PAGE.



FILLE DE L'AIR, THE WINNER OF THE OAKS FOR 1864.

Nineteen ran in the race, but it was never really in doubt; and the smashing of Saraposa's pastern at Tattenham Corner effectually stopped all danger from the third favourite. She was very steadily ridden by Arthur Edwards, son of the late jockey, Edward Edwards, and grandson of the Earl of Jersey's celebrated trainer, "Tiny" Edwards. It is stated that he backed her for £50 in the Two Thousand. Our sketches are by Mr. Harry Hall, of Newmarket, who recently had the honour of submitting his large portrait of Stockwell, the sire of Blair Athol, to his Royal Highness the Prince of Wales, at Marlborough House.

THE IRON GUN-BOAT RANGARIRI, BUILT AT SYDNEY FOR THE NEW ZEALAND GOVERNMENT.

IN the ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS of the 28th of November last was an Engraving of the gun-boat, since named the Pioneer, built by Messrs. P. N. Russell and Co., of Sydney, for the colonial government of New Zealand, at the outbreak of the Maori war. The same firm have constructed a couple of river gun-boats, the Koheroa and Rangariri, drawing much less water, which are so original in their form that it is worth while to give a representation of one of them, and to notice how well she is adapted for her purpose. This boat, which can turn easily in the space of a little more than her own length, may follow the bendings of such a river as the Waikato in its narrowest part, and may either be used as a steam-tug, towing flats for the conveyance of troops, or may be armed with a gun at each of the singular-looking portholes, which are closed with folding doors in the middle of the lower deck; while the bulwarks on each side are pierced with twenty or thirty loop-holes for rifle-shooting, and the covered platform or tower amidships will afford shelter to a number of men, whose fire commands the river and its banks. The paddle-wheel is placed astern of the vessel, so as to take up less room. The first of these gun-boats, the Koheroa, was built in less than six weeks after Messrs. Russell got the contract from Mr. Stewart, engineer to the New Zealand Government, who had been sent to New South Wales for the purpose. This boat was immediately sent to Auckland in sections, and there put together for service. The New Zealand papers give a favourable report of her expedition, in company with the Pioneer, up the Horsfal River, which flows from the Taupo Lake, through a very wild tract of country, and, joining the Waipa at Ngaruawahia, forms the Waikato, just now the seat of war. Commodore Sir William Wiseman, with a party of naval and military officers, had gone in the Pioneer twelve miles above Ngaruawahia, with the Koheroa in their wake. At this point the river began to narrow very considerably and the banks to become more lofty and precipitous, so it was judged wiser to anchor the larger boat, and to proceed in the short tug. All the party, therefore, removed into the Koheroa, which steamed rapidly up the narrow and sombre-looking river, the banks of which, with all their luxuriance of ferns and climbers, so characteristic of New Zealand, overhang the stream from a great height, and almost seem to close out the light from above. The little steamer did her work well and rapidly, and it was still early in the afternoon when the Commodore found he had gone twenty-two miles above the place where he left the Pioneer, and must now be abreast of the Maungatautari ridge, the back of which he wanted to see. With considerable trouble a party scaled the precipitous bank, and made out the position of the natives, which was completely turned by the Koheroa. The Commodore would not allow the party to go far from the river, in case of ambush; so all embarked again and steamed down the Horatu at full speed. This vein clearly demonstrated—that if the General means to move across to the neighbourhood of the Horatu, he can get his stores by that route; and that the new gun-boats will help him much.

THE IRON GUN-BOAT RANGARIRI, BUILT AT SYDNEY FOR THE NEW ZEALAND GOVERNMENT.

 The charge for the insertion of Births, Marriages, and Deaths is Five Shillings for each announcement.*

BIRTHS.

On the 27th ult., at Wennington, Essex, the wife of W. H. Walker, Esq., of a son.

On the 28th ult., at Benwood Court, Herefordshire, the wife of R. S. Cox, Esq., of a son.

MARRIAGES.

On the 26th ult., at St. Mark's Church, Jersey, by the Rev. E. Smith, Captain George A. C. Brooker, Royal Navy, to Emma Charlotte, eldest daughter of William De Lisle Tupper, Esq., of Rio de Janeiro.

On the 1st inst., at St. George's Church, Hanover-square, by the Rev. Frederick Gell, M.A., Rector of Ashbourne, Holy Trinity Church, Leek, and St. Mary's, Uttoxeter, Lee, and of Washbourn Manor, Kent, to Mary Kentish, of Gloucester-terrace, Hyde Park, widow of the late William Kentish, Esq., of Belmont, Lee, Kent.

DEATHS.

At Hinse, R. Escott, widow of Lieutenant-General Sir T. Dewsnapp, K.C.B., K.C.H., aged 78.

At the Manning House, Lawrence, Esq., son of the late Alderman Lawrence and brother of the Lord Mayor and Lady Sophia Lawrence.

MONETARY TRANSACTIONS OF THE WEEK.

(From our City Correspondent.)

COMPARED with last week, home loans have shown more firmness in price; but the amount of business doing in them, both for Money to Lend and Borrowed Money, is very small. Advances on Stock have also been fixed for the next fortnight at the former rate of interest, the rate of 2½ per cent per annum, the Unfunded Debt Office recovered all its loans at that rate of interest. The demand for most bills, however, has been far from active.

The Bank of England's last published discount market has further increased, and the Rate of Discount remains at 2½ per cent, the rate for 4½ kinds of paper have declined. The best bills are now those at three months.

The Bullion in the Bank of England, at their weekly meeting held on Thursday, showed a slight increase, a circumstance in any way uncommon rate of discount.

Throughout the Continental capital is to be met with no change of supply, however, is on the increase. The rates in the leading cities are:—

	Bank rate.	Open market.
	per cent.	per cent.
Paris	3	2½
Berlin	4	3
Hamburg	4	3
Frankfort	4	3
Amsterdam	3	2½
Madrid	6	5
Vienna	5	4½
Trieste	5	4½
Genoa	6	5
Hamburg	4	3
St. Petersburg	6	5

The imports of bullion which have been announced to amount to £400,000, and about £300,000 has been sent into the Bank of England, the latter for home and foreign purposes in very liquid, and has by no means been so bad as last year.

The Bank of England has received £1,000,000 from the various Presidencies. The application for shares in the Bank has amounted to £3,500,000.

Consols, Home Stocks were steady to prices. Consols for Thursday, 90½ to ¾; Friday, 90½ to ¾; Saturday, 90½ to ¾; Monday, 90½ to ¾; Tuesday, 90½ to ¾; Wednesday, 90½ to ¾. Three per Cents, 1854 to 1858, 90½ to ¾; Three per Cents, 1859 to 1861, 90½ to ¾; India Stock, 90½ to ¾; Ditto, Bonds, 90½ to ¾; Ditto, Bonds, 90½ to ¾; Ditto, Bonds HOSPITAL FOR CONSUMPTION AND DISEASES OF THE CHEST, BROMPTON, S.W. Supported by voluntary contributions. Lifeboat and other Governors are REQUESTED to use their earnest exertions to procure Contributions.

PHILIP ROSE, Hon. Sec.
HENRY DOBSON, Sec.

THE LONDON and NORTHERN BANK Limited,
2, Bank-buildings, London.
Branches—Ecclesall, Leeds, Maidenhead, and Sheffield.
Agencies—Ashbourn, Alnwick, and Hexham.
Deposit Accounts are received, and Interest allowed on the Balances of the Bank, subject to such Charges may be deemed necessary, not exceeding a reasonable rate of £10. Interest will be allowed on the balance of those accounts at the rate of 2½ per cent.
F. ROBERTSON, General Manager.

NO. 7, BANK-BUILDINGS, corner of Princes-street, Cheapside, London, E.C. (late of No. 9), is the Chief Office of the ACCIDENTAL DEATH INSURANCE COMPANY.

REMOVAL.—Messrs. ALEX and JONES have REMOVED their PRACTICE to 63, Brook-street, Grosvenor-square, from their late residence, 4, Mount-street, Grosvenor-square, where they may be consulted, as usual, by Patients.

TO THE WINE and SPIRIT TRADE.—Wine and Spirits bought or sold on commission. The Advertiser, who has had many years' experience in the trade, is attached to no party.—W. W. BURNES, 6, Mincing-lane, E.C.

GARDNER'S £2 2s. DINNER-SERVICES. An enquiry, post unpaid. Illustrated Catalogue post-free.—GARDNER'S Manufactory, 453 and 454, Strand, opposite Somerset-house. 18 doors from Trafalgar-square, Regent, and Bond-streets.

SLACKS' SILVER ELECTRO-PLATE is a mating of pure silver over Nickel. Manufactured solely by S. and J. Slack, 336, Strand. The fact of ninety years' wear is ample proof of its durability.

Fiddle Pattern.	Thread.	King's Pattern.	Old Silver.
Table Spoons	£1 10 0	£2 1 0	£2 5 0
Dessert Ditto	1 0 0	1 10 0	1 15 0
Table Forks	1 10 0	2 1 0	2 5 0
Dessert Ditto	1 0 0	1 10 0	1 15 0
Tea Spoons	0 15 0	1 0 0	1 5 0

Kitchen Furnishing Ironmongery in great variety. Catalogues sent free by post.—Nos. 336, Strand, and 1, Duke-street, Adelphi. Orders carriage-free by rail.

RICHARD and JOHN SLACK, 336, Strand.

WILLIAM S. BURTON, GENERAL FURNISHING IRONMONGER, by appointment to H.R.H. the PRINCE OF WALES, sends a CATALOGUE gratis and post-free. It contains Prices and Plans of 850 Illustrations of his Stock of Electro-plate and Nickel Silver, Fenders, Stoves, Kitchen Ranges, and Fenders, Stoves, Kitchen Ranges, and Fenders, Stoves, Kitchen Ranges, and

NEW MUSIC.

BENEDICT'S "WHERE THE BEE SUCKS." Played by Miss Arabella Goddard at the Shakespeare Festival, and other concerts, with immense success. Price 3s. 6d.—CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

M. TH ALBERG'S NEW PIECES.

THALBERG'S BALLO IN MASCHERA. Just published, a charming Fantasia for the Pianoforte, on favourite airs from Verdi's Opera, Ry M. Thalberg. Price 3s. CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

THALBERG'S RIGOLETTO. Just published, a Fantasia for the Pianoforte, on favourite airs from Verdi's Opera, Rigoletto. Price 3s. CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

NEW PIANOFORTE PIECE FROM FAUST.

BENEDICT'S FAUST. Just published, a Fantasia for the Pianoforte, on favourite melodies from Gounod's "Faust." Price 3s. CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

NEW PIANOFORTE PIECE FROM FAUST.

FAVARGER'S FAUST. A Fantasia on the most favourite melodies from Gounod's "Faust." Price 3s. CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

KUHE'S FAUST. Fantaisie de Salon for the Pianoforte, on favourite airs from Gounod's Opera. Price 4s. CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

OSBORNE'S FAUST. A Fantasia on favourite Melodies from Gounod's celebrated Opera, by the above popular Composer. Price 3s. CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

OSBORNE'S SALVE! DIMORA. Cavatina from Gounod's "Faust." Arranged for the Pianoforte by this favourite Composer. Price 3s. CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

BRINLEY RICHARDS' SOLDIERS' CHORUS, from Gounod's celebrated Opera of "Faust." Arranged for the Pianoforte. Price 3s.; Duet, 5s. 6d. CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

W. H. CALLCOTT'S BEAUTIES OF FAUST. A new arrangement of this celebrated Opera as Pianoforte Duets in a very easy, sociable style, and without skipping not before published as duets. In two books, 4s. each. CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

THE SOLDIERS' CHORUS in FAUST, as performed in the Opera. Arranged for the Pianoforte by W. H. CALLCOTT. Price 3s. CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

A CHARMING SONG FOR THE DRAWING-ROOM.

QUANDO A TE LIETA. Romance, composed by GOUNOD, and sung by Mdme. Dobbs in the Opera of "Faust." Price 3s. BOOSEY and SONS, Holles-street.

M. BLUMENTHAL'S NEW PIECES.

M. Blumenthal's LA BLONDE. Morceau. Price 3s. 6d. Blumenthal's LA JOYEUSE. Morceau. Price 3s. 6d. Blumenthal's PRIÈRES DES MATELOTS. Price 3s. CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

KUHE'S LEGGIERO INVISIBILE. Just published, Arditi's new Valse, sung by Miller, Tietjens and Vialetti with immense success. Price 3s. CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

BRINLEY RICHARDS' "I WANDER IN THE SEASON OF A TREASURE." The favourite song from Benedict's Opera, Lucrezia Borgia, sung by Madame Rudersdorff. Price 3s.—CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

NEW DANCE MUSIC.

HAPPY MOMENTS VALSE. By GUSTAVE LAMBERT. Just published. Beautifully Illustrated. Price, Orchestra, 1s.; Septet, 1s. CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

THE FORGET-ME-NOT WALTZ. By D. GODFREY. Just published. Played at the Ball given to the Prince and Princess of Wales. Price, Full Orchestra, 1s.; Septet, 1s. CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

THE MERRY TUNES LANCERS. Just published. A new set of Lancers, founded on the popular and merry tunes of the day. By D. GODFREY. Price 4s.; Orchestra, 1s.; Septet, 1s. CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

THE HAREM-SCARUM GALOP. By JAMES CARBERY (Composer of the Beggar's Opera). Just published, beautifully Illustrated. Price, Full Score, 1s.; Orchestra, 1s.; Septet, 1s. CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

HELTER-SKELTER GALOP. Just out, a New Galop, by CARBERY (Composer of the Harem-Scarum Galop), beautifully Illustrated. Price 3s.; Solo for Concertina, 3s.; Septet, 1s. CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

COOTE'S FAUST WALTZ, on Airs from Gounod's Opera. Beautifully Illustrated. Price, Solo or Duet, 4s.; Septet, 2s.; Full Orchestra, 2s. CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

COOTE'S FAUST QUADRILLE, on Favourite Airs from Gounod's Opera. Beautifully Illustrated. Price, Solo, Duet, or Full Orchestra, 4s.; Septet, 2s. CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

COOTE'S FAUST GALOP, from Gounod's Opera. Beautifully Illustrated. Price, Solo or Duet, 3s.; Septet, 2s.; Full Orchestra, 2s. CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

FAUST POLKA. By F. WALLERSTEIN. Just published. Beautifully Illustrated. Price 3s.; Solo; Orchestra, 1s.; Septet, 1s. CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

A THOUSAND LEAGUES AWAY. New Song. Written by W. G. BENNETT; composed by JOSEPH BARNBY. Price 3s. CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

MR. BARNBY'S NEW SONG.

SOFT AND LOW. From Gounod's Opera, "Le Médecin malgré lui." Sung by Mr. Santley at the Monday Popular Concerts. Price 3s. CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

THE STIRRUP CUP. MR. SANTLEY'S NEW SONG, expressly composed for him by Signor Arditi, and received enormously new songs, and it is a fine. Price 3s. CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

NOTICE.—HALF PRICE.—All Music, and all the Music Publishers' Stock, reduced to half price, and post-free for 12 or 24 Postage Stamps. Catalogues gratis and post-free. CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

EWER and CO.'S MUSICAL LIBRARY, British and Foreign. Subscribers may enter daily. Prospectuses gratis. 97, Regent-street, London.

KATE OF JAMES BORDEN. New Ballad. By CLIFFORD. Sent free for 18 stamps. EWER and CO., late Mallandy Musicsellers, 97, Regent-street.

NEW MUSIC.

STRADELLA, by FLOTOW, complete, with Italian words, price 2s. Also, the whole of the Vocal Music in Flotow's two original and interposed Keys. Pianoforte Arrangements by Halfdane Duay.

Echo (Second Fantasia).
Fatinitza Waltz.
Leonora Quadrilles and Waltzes.
Le Rêve Waltz and Quadrilles.
BOOSEY and SONS, Holles-street.

KUHE'S SECOND FANTASIA on STRADELLA is now published and may be had of all Musicsellers in Town and Country. BOOSEY and SONS, Holles-street.

MDME. OURY'S STRADELLA, Fantasia on Flotow's Opera. Price 4s. BOOSEY and SONS, Holles-street.

MDME. OURY'S MERRY WIVES OF WINDSOR. Fantasia Brillante on the new Opera. Price 4s. Published this day. BOOSEY and SONS, Holles-street.

GANZ'S MERRY WIVES OF WINDSOR. Fantasia for Pianoforte on the new Opera. By W. GANZ. Price 4s. BOOSEY and SONS, Holles-street.

GOUNOD'S NEW OPERA, MIRILLE, in the Press, and will be published on Thursday next, the Pianoforte Solo, 7s.—BOOSEY and SONS, Holles-street.

THE MERRY WIVES OF WINDSOR. Duet for Two Performers on the Merry Wives of Windsor. By CHARLES SALAMAN. Price 5s.—BOOSEY and SONS, Holles-street.

FORBES' CAFE A LA CHANSON NAPOLITAINE, for the Pianoforte. A most fascinating Gem. Price 3s. By the Author of "Regatta Waltz." Price 3s. "To be had everywhere."—BOOSEY and SONS, Holles-street.

MISS HAWLEY'S IVANHOE. New and Popular Pianoforte Solos, "Ivanhoe Gems." By the Author of "Les Perles." Price 3s. BOOSEY and SONS, Holles-street.

KUHE'S MAGGIE'S SECRET, for the Pianoforte. Performed at Her Majesty's Theatre. Considered as fantasia, has been transcribed by Mr. Kuhe in his happiest manner. Price 3s. BOOSEY and SONS, Holles-street.

LITTLE BIRD, LITTLE BIRD ON THE WING. New Song. By CLARIBEL, in her most popular style. Published this day. Price 3s. BOOSEY and SONS, Holles-street.

BEHOLD MY LOVE! SHE SLUMBERS. New Song. Composed by CHARLES GLOVER, Composer of "Pandolfo." A most charming melody and effective song for Tenor or Bass. Price 3s.—BOOSEY and SONS, Holles-street.

NORAH'S TREASURE. New Ballad. Price 3s. CLARIBEL. Adapted to an Irish Melody and sung by Miss Dolby. BOOSEY and SONS, Holles-street.

SUSAN'S STORY. A New Ballad, by the Author of "Jessie Cairnie." Price 3s. BOOSEY and SONS, Holles-street.

SIGNOR CAMPANA'S NEW DUET, "Gli amanti Uccelli"—a companion to, and in the same style as, "Una sera d'estate." Price 4s. BOOSEY and SONS, Holles-street.

CANST THOU NOT READ THE MUTE SPEECH OF MY EYES? New Song. Composed by CIPRIANI POTTER. Price 3s. By the same Composer, ODE (SENTA) "Hark! the Chorus of the Ocean Spirits." Price 4s. Sung by Madame Rudersdorff. Price 3s. 6d. London: BOOSEY and SONS, Holles-street.

BOOSEYS' LIBRARY.—Two-Guinea Subscription has the use of from 50,000 pieces of Music in Town or twenty in the country, besides receiving gratuitously a guinea in Music every month. 24, Holles-street, Cavendish-square.

THE GEM OF THE SEASON.

LA SCALA BALLERINA MAZURKA. Price 3s. 6d. A bright and sparkling Mazurka, by the Composer of the celebrated galop, LA SCALA. HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

THE PIANO PICCO FOR 1864.

KUHE'S SPIRITUOUS SPARKLING HERO COMES." Price 4s. (Brilliant but not difficult) HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

A REAL MERRY SET.

COOTE'S MERRY PERRINS QUADRILLE. Price 3s. Illustrated with Comic Portraits of the Performers at Wallerstein's Concerts. "Full of fun and humour."—Orchestra. HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

Trio facile et élégant.

COOTE'S INFANT DANCE VALSES. 4s. Expressly Illustrated. HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

SENSATION GALOP.

COOTE'S EXTRAVAGANZA GALOP. Price 3s. Beautifully Illustrated. HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

THE BEST SET OF LANCERS ARE

COOTE'S CURE LANCERS. Price 4s. "Equal to Coote's Merry Perrins or Faust."—Orchestra. "Nearly up to Herwig."—The Queen. And other popular Airs. A most effective Set of Lancers, and not difficult. Illustrated.—HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

COOTE'S KATE KEARNEY WALTZES, introducing "Kathleen O'Moore," "Tommy Linsey" &c. Beautifully Illustrated. Price, Pianoforte Solo or Duet, 4s.—HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

THE GREAT VALSE OF THE SEASON.

COOTE'S HUMMING BIRD. Price 4s. Considered the best set of Valses by the popular Composer. HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

UPROARIOUS SUCCESS OF MR. TOOLEY'S NEW SONG.

A HORRIBLE TALE. The Suicidal Family. Price 3s. Encored five times nightly in the Farm of "The Area Sneezer." HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

NEW CHRISTY SONG.

OH! WOULD I WERE A BIRD, by Mr. Tom Hughes. HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

MERRY SONGS. Many Sung at the Haying Gambols. Price 3s. each. Here you mun the Ghost ... ... 3s. 0d. Ye Gentlemen of the Yorkshire Hunt ... ... 3s. 0d. Carrion Crow ... ... 3s. 0d. Lancaster's Ball ... ... 3s. 0d. HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

SONG OF THE DAY.

POLLY PERKINS. By HARRY CLIFTON. Price 3s. 6d. Sung by Mr. Sam Cowell. HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

THREE GREAT SONGS.

OH! IF I HAD SOME ONE TO LOVE ME. Words by Longfellow. Music by HENRY SMART. "AT LAST I'VE FOUND SOME ONE TO LOVE ME. When beautiful, sweet, black hair." Words by Longfellow. Music by HENRY SMART. Price 3s. each. HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

NEW BALLAD.

SIGHING FOR THEE, by F. BUCKLEY, price 3s. 6d., is considerably going. HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

THE NIGHT IS CALM AND CLOUDLESS. Ballad. Words by Longfellow; Music by C. E. GLOVER. Price 3s. 6d. HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

C. M. S. OUSELEY'S NEW SONG.

OH! BLOW ME A KISS ON THE WIND, Price 3s. 6d. This Composer's best effusion. HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

NEW MUSIC.

NICOLAI'S MERRY WIVES of WINDSOR, The only Authorised Edition.

Book of Favourite Airs, Solo, 3s.; Duet, 4s. Overture (for four hands) ... ... 2s. Fantasia (for four hands) ... ... 2s. Polka-Mazurka (for four hands) ... 2s. Improvisation ... ... W. Kuhe. Fantasia ... ... Brinley Richards. Fantasia ... ... Osborne. Fantasia de Salon ... ... Benedict. The principal Vocal Pieces, with Italian Words, as sung at Her Majesty's Theatre.

DANCE MUSIC.

The Falstaff Polka Mazurka ... A. Mosse ... 4s. Set of Waltzes ... ... C. Coote ... 4s. Set of Quadrilles ... ...

THE VOLUNTEER REVIEW IN HYDE PARK: THE PRINCE OF WALES AND HIS STAFF.

WE present three Illustrations of the great Volunteer Review which took place in Hyde Park last Saturday evening, and which is pronounced, by common consent, the most creditable exhibition of our unpaid military forces that has yet been seen in London. The total number of men in the three divisions brought upon the ground that time was 21,745, which considerably exceeded the muster of any former occasion. It will be remembered that the first of these reviews since the formation of the new volunteer corps, which commenced five years ago, was held in 1860, when the Queen and Prince Consort were there to see it; but the number of volunteers then present amounted to no more than about 14,000, who by no means displayed such a soldierly appearance, or marched past the Royal spectators with such well-drilled regularity, as those of 1864 have displayed. In the absence of her Majesty on Saturday, the Prince and Princess of Wales came not only to witness the affair, but his Royal Highness took an active part in it as commander of his own brigade. This circumstance, with the general popularity of the young couple, as well as the growing interest that is felt in the volunteer movement, drew together a still larger multitude of all ranks and classes of the people than was attracted by the novelty of the first Hyde Park review.

THE START FOR THE DERBY.—FROM A PHOTOGRAPH BY MR. HERBERT WATKINS.—SEE NEXT PAGE.

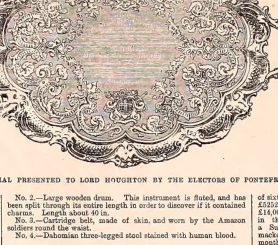
The volunteer troops were drawn up in lines of contiguous columns of companies, the whole width of the park. The Prince of Wales's regiment, which had been kept clear for them, extended from Rotten-row, on the extreme right of their line, to the Bayswater-road, near the Marble Arch, on their extreme left, so that they stood facing towards Park-lane. But even this space was too little to permit of the full alignment of all their forces; so that the right wing, near Rotten-row, was obliged to be thrust forward at an angle with the main body. The privileged persons who had paid for reserved seats, accommodated with raised seats in the oblong inclosure formed by wooden barriers in the centre of the park, were somewhat crowded. Here a flagstaff was erected, bearing the Royal standard, which was hoisted at six o'clock, when the Prince of Wales arrived on the ground, amidst a salute of guns fired at the Knightsbridge Barracks. They came from Marlborough-house, the Prince riding a dark, sweeping charger, and Colonel of the Hon. Artillery Company, which resembles very nearly, as Londoners are aware, the blue ribbon of the Garter, and the star of the Order of the Bath, and has nine ribbon of the Order

TESTIMONIAL TO LORD HOUGHTON FROM THE ELECTORS OF PONTEFRACT.

We have already mentioned the presentation of a testimonial to Lord Houghton, who sat for so many years in the House of Commons as Mr. Richard Monckton Milnes, M.P. for Pontefract, in Yorkshire. We now publish an Engraving of the handsome silver salver which the Liberal electors of that borough subscribed to give him, as a token of their esteem for this accomplished and popular gentleman, by whom they were long represented in Parliament. This elegant piece of plate was handed to his Lordship by Mr. John Moxon, the Mayor of Pontefract, at the meeting held in the Townhall on Whit Monday. It bears the following inscription:—"Presented to the Right Honourable Richard Monckton Milnes, first Baron Houghton, by many of his friends, to mark their high appreciation of the manner in which, for twenty-five successive years, he represented in Parliament the ancient borough of Pontefract; after which, in recognition of his long and eminent services, he was elevated by her most gracious Majesty to the Upper House, carrying with him the good wishes of the whole constituency, to whom he had endeared himself by urbanity, kindness, and generosity, as well as by constantly solicitude for their privileges.—Pontefract, May, 1864." In returning thanks for this compliment, Lord Houghton gratefully referred to the long-continued friendship which had subsisted between himself and the people of that borough, and declared that he would not have felt himself so much at home with a larger constituency, as he was conscious of not possessing those qualities which usually win the suffrages of a great multitude of men. Whatever estimate he may have put upon himself, the country has always reckoned Mr. Monckton Milnes one of the most amiable and respectable of its public men.

WAR TROPHIES TAKEN FROM THE KING OF DAHOMEY AT ABBEOKUTA.



We are now enabled to present a slight Illustration of the great battle of the 15th of March, when the King of Dahomey's army, reckoned at from ten to fourteen thousand warriors, of whom two thousand were women, suffered a disastrous repulse from the walls of Abbeokuta. The English musketry, with cartridge-belt, and stood, depicted in our Engraving, came out of a box full of trophies of the victory sent by the Rev. H. Townley, an English missionary at Abbeokuta, to his brother, Mr. George Townsend, of Exeter, who has made a drawing of them for the Illustrated London News. Two copies of the Iase Irohin, or "Book of News," for March 22 and April 5. This interesting little newspaper, edited by Dr. Harrison, a distinguished Cambridge scholar, is published at Abbeokuta once a fortnight, partly in English, partly in the Egba language. It is very neatly printed, in a miniature form, and written in a simple narrative style, clear of all sensational matter, and by no means peculiar to the African reader. The great negro city and Free State of Abbeokuta is well described in Captain Burton's recent book of travel. Its population is always set much less than 200,000, though it has grown up since 1825 around the ancient rock, called "Olumo," or "The Hiding-place," now standing in the very midst of the town. The native tribe of this district, is that of the Egbas; but wanderers who arrived, year after year, from all parts of the neighbouring country, have hospitably received, and have been gradually incorporated with the Abbeokuta people. The site of the West African City of Refuge, like the site of ancient Rome, is formed by a number of small rocky hills, upon which the different parties of immigrants established themselves in separate townships, each ruled by its own laws, with its own chief, judge and war-captain, and council-house. Each family brought the name of the township where its people had originally been driven. There is, however, no fence or boundary to mark these divisions. The whole city of Abbeokuta, extending four miles by two, is surrounded with a mud wall five or six feet high, and with a moat or ditch. There is a triple wall on the north side, where the direction of the hostile country lies. Captain Burton says, however, that "the wall is without embrasures, and only here and there pierced with a round aperture by way of loophole; in some places it is weather-boarded with palm-leaves, the object of which, when once set on fire, would soon clear away the defenders; and a 100 lb. bag of powder, hung to a peg, and provided with a slow match, would blow a hole in this wall big enough for a Cape waggon to pass through. The ditch or moat, perhaps five feet broad, is equally efficient. It is wet with sundry rain puddles, but half choked with bushes, and requires only a dozen fascines or dead bodies to make the passage thoroughly comfortable." Such is Captain Burton's account of the fortifications of Abbeokuta, which he states to be at least seventeen or eighteen miles in circumference, or twenty miles, taking in all. The place had repeatedly been attacked by the King of Dahomey, its powerful and malignant neighbour. In 1851 it withstood his besieging army, but has since been threatened with destruction year after year. In March, 1863, the Dahomians were encamped within sight of the town for a fortnight, but were then frightened away by a panic scare, and suddenly made off, leaving their tents behind them. On the 15th of last March their formidable host, with the King at its head, encamped at Owiwi, which is about twelve miles from Abbeokuta. At daybreak, on a misty morning, the frequent reports of a gun fired at Aro, one of the five gates of Abbeokuta, gave warning to the Egbas that the Dahomians were in sight. The Ababorun had made every preparation for the defence of the town. "Aboborun," signifies the principal chief, and the literal meaning of the word is "A Lump of Heaven, bringing out everything. The enemy approached boldly enough. He had three barrelled six-pounder pieces, besides the inscription upon the breech of "Mexico, 1815." He advanced in a column of 6000 strong till within fifty yards of the wall of Abbeokuta, then suddenly displayed his flags, extended his lines, and rushed rapidly towards the wall. The Egbas immediately opened a tremendous fire on the serried lines, and wrested them at once. In the advancing column were Amazons, who fought bravely and desperately. Many of these furies climbed the wall; but, so soon as they had reached the top, the Egbas dragged them over and slew them. One Amazon, who had one of her hands cut off in her efforts to clamber over the wall, discharged her musket with the other hand and shot an Egba. She received a severe blow from a sabre, and fell backwards into the trench. The Dahomians were utterly defeated. In fact, they have never met with such a signal defeat. They lost upwards of 1000 in killed; and the number of prisoners is said to exceed 2000. The whole strength of the King was certainly not less than 10,000, men and women. He lost two of his field-pieces. The Dahomians fled in two divisions. In front of the division which took first to flight was the doughty King himself. The Egbas pursued both divisions and slaughtered the fugitives without a pause, while the inhabitants of the neighbouring villages turned out and joined heartily in the work of vengeance. The following is a list of the Dahomian war trophies represented in our Engraving:—

WAR TROPHIES TAKEN FROM THE ARMY OF THE KING OF DAHOMEY AT ABBEOKUTA.

No. 1.—Decapitating-knife, resembling a huge razor, in length about 40 in. It is made to shut like an ordinary razor, and when used, kept tight by a spring.

TESTIMONIAL PRESENTED TO LORD HOUGHTON BY THE ELECTORS OF PONTEFRACT.

No. 2.—Large wooden drum. This instrument is fluted, and has been split through its entire length in order to discover if it contained charms. Length about 40 in.

No. 3.—Cartridge belt, made of skin, and worn by the Amazon soldiers round the waist.

No. 4.—Dahomian three-legged stool stained with human blood.

SPORTS OF THE MONTH.

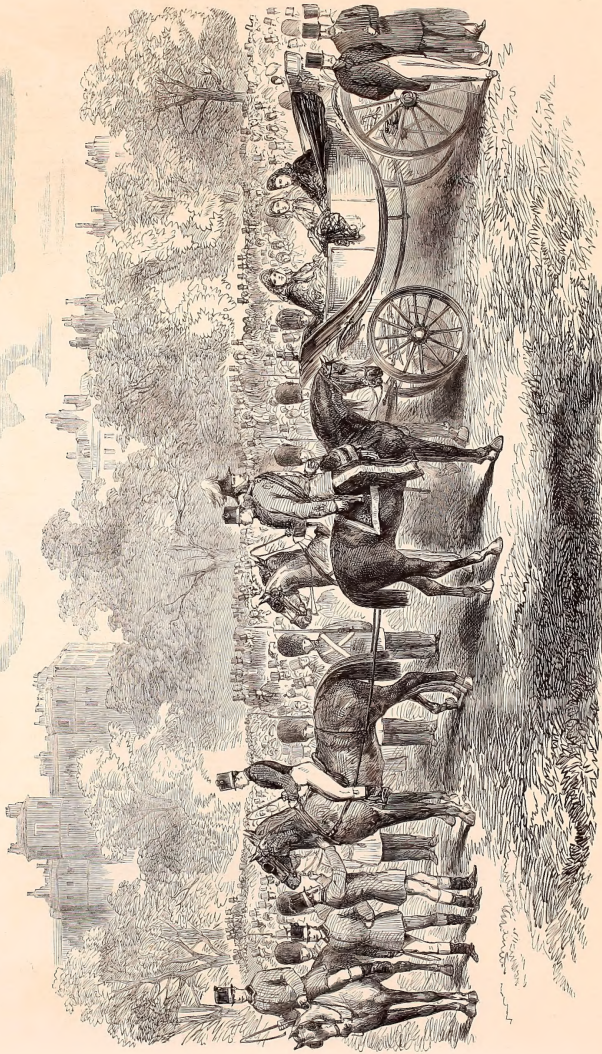
JUNE.

In 1630 Quarles wrote :—"I love the sea; she is my fellow-creature, my careful purveyor; she provides me store." And to all who feel the same affection for the mighty ocean and its fussy stores we would recommend a month's sea-fishing. To those who do not wish to combine yachting with piscatorial pursuits, we should advise a sojourn at any watering-place on the English coast, where the services of an expert fisherman, a well-found boat and gear, may always be secured by the day, week, or month. If yachting is to be added, and the host is content to keep close to the shore, a cutter or wherry of sixteen tons will answer every purpose, and may be engaged, men included, for about six guineas a week. Although many of our readers may not be able to follow us in the sports we have enjoyed in deep-sea fishing, from the time we first bobbed for a whiting pout from a summer-house in Cowes Harbour to the period we fished for cod on the submarine mountains on the banks of Newfoundland, we will lay before them a brief account of the fish that may be taken during a summer's trip on the coast of England.

The red mullet is a rare fish on the British shores, though it exists on the coast of Scotland. A species of this fish, the surmullet, was celebrated among the Romans for the excellence of its flesh, its extreme beauty, and the extravagant prices it brought. The gourmets in Horace's day valued it in proportion to its size; not because it was in reality better, but because it was more difficult to procure. Galen, according to Salviani, states that it was esteemed above every other article of food, and that the larger tort were only to be obtained at prodigious prices. Seneca mentions that a mullet of 4 lb. weight was presented to the Emperor Tiberius, who sent it to the market, where it was purchased by Octavius for 5000 sesterces; rather an expensive fish—namely, £10 4s. 11d. a pound. During the reign of Caius one of these finny luxuries was sold for 8000 sesterces, which, at the above rate of sixteen bowls from Lowestoft, on the 30th of June, amounted to £3512 ; and it is supposed that as the roe was not then considered worth £14,000 altogether realised by the curers and men concerned in the delivery off the Suffolk coast. In March, 1833, on a Sunday, four Hastings boats brought on shore 10,000 mackerel, and sold the whole of the produce for £1000. Again, in the month of February, 1834, one boat's crew from Hastings cleared £100 by the fish caught in one night; a large quantity of herrings and mackerel appeared in the London market in the second week of the same month. They were chiefly brought from the coast of Kent on the 14th and 22nd of March, 1834, and had then been plentiful for a month.

There are three ways of catching mackerel: by drift-nets, in despish water; by the seine net, near the shore, and by the hook; the latter of which we recommend to our yachtsmen whenever the wind suits, for we cannot forget some excellent sport we had in the Lodaster cutter, more especially on one day, when we were off the coast of Cherbourg, when we caught such an immense quantity that we fear to enumerate them, lest we should be classed among the fish stories of the present day. We may, however, as confirmatory of our success, give an extract from the memorandum-book of the late "Jack of the West of Ireland." "It was evident," says the writer, "that the bay was full of mackerel, by the disturbance, and as far as we could coil range, gulls and puffins were collected, and, to judge by their activity and clamour, they were enjoying a plentiful feast on the surface of the fry beneath. We immediately bore away for the place where these birds were most enormously congregated, and the lines were scarcely overboard when we found ourselves in the centre of a shoal of mackerel. Directed by the movements of the birds, we for two hours killed these beautiful fish as fast as the bait could be renewed and the lines hauled in; and when we left off fishing, actually wearied with sport, we found that we had taken 360 fish."

We enjoyed a glorious day's fishing some years ago when on board H.M.'s frigate Iphigenia on the banks of Newfoundland, bound for Quebec. It was upon a lovely day in the beginning of July that the frigate lay to, almost becalmed, on a shoal that had been three weeks at sea, it was a most pleasurable sensation to hear the order given for procuring hooks and lines, and in a few minutes hundreds were hailed and in the sea. These banks swarm with cod and halibut, and, as they catch at any small object moving in the water, it is not difficult to attract them with any bait from a bit of pork down to a live fowl. In the present instance, the halibut that it has been our fortune to encounter in the depth at the end of a line with which mariners have been familiar, in turn to our day's sport. In a few minutes the decks were covered with the finest fish, and every one on board was in a gastronomical state, under the circumstances, was equal to any fish dinner at Greenwich, for we had for that and the following days cod in every form; scores enough was salted to keep us during the rest of the voyage. It has been truly said that "almost all the parts of the halibut's flesh are adapted for the nourishment of man and animals, or for some other purposes of domestic economy. The tongue, for instance, whether fresh or salted, is a great delicacy; the liver furnishes a large quantity of most nutritious oil; the swimming bladder produces an isinglass not inferior to that yielded by the sturgeon; and the head supplies the fishermen and their families with food. The Norwegians dry it with marine plants to their cows for the purpose of producing a greater proportion of milk. The vertebræ, the ribs, and the fins are also said to be given to their cattle by the Icelanders and to be much relished by their dogs. These same parts, properly dried, are also employed as fuel in the desolate regions of the shores of the Icy Sea. Even their intestines and their eggs contribute to the luxury of the table." We ought not here to omit to mention that one of the purposes to which we put the codfish on the above memorable occasion was making it into soup. A young Lieutenant who had travelled in the United States of America gave the receipt for it, and every officer's mess received the benefit of his culinary knowledge. As far as I can recollect, a considerable quantity of claret was used, but what other ingredients were introduced in this epicurean luxury I know not. It was, however, pronounced by every one at all fond of good living down to the youngest middy, as one of the best soups that had ever been tasted on board the good ship Iphigenia.



weight of 41b., would amount to £16 3s. a pound. The cruelty of the Roman epicures in boiling the mullet alive over a small fire deserves the reprobation that ought in our days to be attached to those who prepare the geese for the celebrated pates de foie gras of Strasburg. The striped surmullet is often to be found in abundance on the south coast of England, and are sometimes taken in the mackarel-nets upon the surface, and at other times by the trawl-net on the bed of the ocean. In August, 1819, 5000 were taken during one night in Babbacombe Bay; and in May, 1831, 10,000 were sent from Yarmouth to Billingsgate. The grey mullet is plentiful on the southern and eastern shores of England, and is occasionally to be found at the mouth of the Exe, in the Frith of Forth. This fish never goes a great distance from land, but delights in shallow water when the weather is warm and fine.

We now approach the mackerel, so universally known for the beauty and brilliancy of its colours, the elegance of its form, and its intrinsic value as a luxurious addition to the dinner-table. The mackerel is taken nearly round the whole coast of Ireland, and it visits the western isles of Scotland, but not in great abundance. In some seasons, on the Cornish coast, it appears as early as March, pursuing a course from west to east; and they are plentiful on the Devonshire coast about June; on the Hampshire and Sussex coasts they arrive as early as March, and sometimes in February; the fishermen follow them further from the shore the earlier they go in search of them. On the eastern coast May and June are the best months; June and July in the Frith of Forth; while in Torbay they do not appear until the last week in July. The ordinary length of a mackerel varies from 11 in. to 14 in., in average times, however, attain to 20 in.; and their weight is about 1 lb. each. To be eaten in perfection, the fish should be perfectly fresh caught, hence the delight of catching them from a yacht, and handing them over to the cook within an hour or so of their being taken. So perishable are they that, to afford a facility of sale to the dealers, mackerel were first allowed to be cried through the streets of London on a Sunday in 1696, during the reign of William III.

The season for mackerel fishery is one of the greatest bustle and activity, and a few particulars from various sources, ably selected by R. Hamilton, Esq., M.D., of the fish caught upon our coasts will not prove uninteresting. In May, 1807, the first Brighton boat boulaged of mackerel off Shoreham for forty guineas per hundred, seven shillings each, reckoning six score to the hundred, the highest price ever known. In that month, also, a Scotch bootland produced about thirteen guineas per hundred. Shortly on the contrary, were so plentiful at Dover in 1808, that sixty were sold for one shilling. At Brighton, on June of the same year, the shoal of mackerel was so great that one of the boats that the mender of her nets so completely occupied by them that it was impossible to drag them to the land with safety. Towards the end sank together, the fishermen thereby sustaining a loss of nearly £40, exclusive of their cargo, could it have been got into the boat, would have produced. The value of the fishing in 1821 was beyond all precedent. The value of the catch in a Sunday, four Hastings boats brought on shore 10,000 mackerel, and sold the whole of the produce for £1000. In the month of February, 1834, one boat's crew from Hastings cleared £100 by the fish caught in one night; a large quantity of herrings and mackerel appeared in the London market in the second week of the same month. They were chiefly brought from the coast of Kent on the 14th and 22nd of March, 1834, and had then been plentiful for a month.

There are three ways of catching mackerel: by drift-nets, in despish water; by the seine net, near the shore, and by the hook; the latter of which we recommend to our yachtsmen whenever the wind suits, for we cannot forget some excellent sport we had in the Lodaster cutter, more especially on one day, when we were off the coast of Cherbourg, when we caught such an immense quantity that we fear to enumerate them, lest we should be classed among the fish stories of the present day. We may, however, as confirmatory of our success, give an extract from the memorandum-book of the late "Jack of the West of Ireland." "It was evident," says the writer, "that the bay was full of mackerel, by the disturbance, and as far as we could coil range, gulls and puffins were collected, and, to judge by their activity and clamour, they were enjoying a plentiful feast on the surface of the fry beneath. We immediately bore away for the place where these birds were most enormously congregated, and the lines were scarcely overboard when we found ourselves in the centre of a shoal of mackerel. Directed by the movements of the birds, we for two hours killed these beautiful fish as fast as the bait could be renewed and the lines hauled in; and when we left off fishing, actually wearied with sport, we found that we had taken 360 fish."

We enjoyed a glorious day's fishing some years ago when on board H.M.'s frigate Iphigenia on the banks of Newfoundland, bound for Quebec. It was upon a lovely day in the beginning of July that the frigate lay to, almost becalmed, on a shoal that had been three weeks at sea, it was a most pleasurable sensation to hear the order given for procuring hooks and lines, and in a few minutes hundreds were hailed and in the sea. These banks swarm with cod and halibut, and, as they catch at any small object moving in the water, it is not difficult to attract them with any bait from a bit of pork down to a live fowl. In the present instance, the halibut that it has been our fortune to encounter in the depth at the end of a line with which mariners have been familiar, in turn to our day's sport. In a few minutes the decks were covered with the finest fish, and every one on board was in a gastronomical state, under the circumstances, was equal to any fish dinner at Greenwich, for we had for that and the following days cod in every form; scores enough was salted to keep us during the rest of the voyage. It has been truly said that "almost all the parts of the halibut's flesh are adapted for the nourishment of man and animals, or for some other purpes of domestic economy. The tongue, for instance, whether fresh or salted, is a great delicacy; the liver furnishes a large quantity of most nutritious oil; the swimming bladder produces an isinglass not inferior to that yielded by the sturgeon; and the head supplies the fishermen and their families with food. The Norwegians dry it with marine plants to their cows for the purpose of producing a greater proportion of milk. The vertebræ, the ribs, and the fins are also said to be given to their cattle by the Icelanders and to be much relished by their dogs. These same parts, properly dried, are also employed as fuel in the desolate regions of the shores of the Icy Sea. Even their intestines and their eggs contribute to the luxury of the table." We ought not here to omit to mention that one of the purposes to which we put the codfish on the above memorable occasion was making it into soup. A young Lieutenant who had travelled in the United States of America gave the receipt for it, and every officer's mess received the benefit of his culinary knowledge. As far as I can recollect, a considerable quantity of claret was used, but what other ingredients were introduced in this epicurean luxury I know not. It was, however, pronounced by every one at all fond of good living down to the youngest middy, as one of the best soups that had ever been tasted on board the good ship Iphigenia.

THE VOLUNTEER REVIEW IN HYDE PARK: THE PRINCESS OF WALES AND HER SUITE.

THE VOLUNTEER REVIEW IN HYDE PARK: GENERAL VIEW.—SEE PAGE 561

FINE ARTS.

EXHIBITION OF THE ROYAL ACADEMY.

SCULPTURE, &c.

BEFORE reviewing the sculpture, a few pictures by animal-painters (besides those of Sir Edwin Landseer, already noticed), with the drawings, &c., still claim attention, as the most valuable examples.

In regard to Sidney Cooper's animal-pieces, we have, however, only the duty of the chronicler; they are what so many have been before them, except that repetition of the same subjects betrays itself, as it is sure to do, in diminished spirit and feeling. Azadeh is neither above nor below his usual level in "Sheep being Rescued from the Rocks" (231) where overshadow a Highland Loch and Pass. The picture of cattle on "Lytham Sandhills" (513), with an effect of cold, hazy, morning light, suggests unfavourable comparisons with Troyon, the eminent French painter, recently deceased. Mr. Cassiday's new picture appears to us to be "Exodus—Spanish Travellers" (367). Other painters in this department have works deserve notice not by W. Hopkins, R. Ansell, E. N. Downard, and J. W. Bottomley.

Of the drawings, the best are by Edmund Warren (1), the son of the Rev. John Keble, the poet of "The Christian Year;" S. Laurence's ballet-girl and blackbird (1,000), and Frank Dillon's "Ruins" (at least more fully modelled, one of Froude; a rather rigid and unpleasant study of Hermann Weber (1,000); Wm. Bell Scott's "Bothwell Castle," H. T. Wells, and Thorburn. There is a remarkable pen-and-ink drawing of "Judith," by M. Isaacs (1,000).

The miniatures most worthy of notice are those by H. T. Wells, J. Morris, W. Egley, and Miss L. Sharpe. The miniature of the Princess of Wales by the last-named artist is, however, scarcely worthy of her talent.

After visiting the more than usually admirable display of pictures in the Royal Academy and finding an increased proportion of our younger painters exhibiting their contributions chiefly in chalks or subject, it is not a little depressing to discover in the sculpture-room that the sister art is in a condition almost unexampled for the poverty of works in this, with some few exceptions, not of the larger monumental kind, but in the limited class of busts. The most striking exceptions are two of the two hundred sculptures and models exhibited, scarcely half a dozen tolerable examples of the figure. Sculpture appears to be much more remarkable in this age of commemorations. Several sculptors are, it is true, employed upon public monuments; but these will not be thought too cumbrous for removal, but this will not account for the absence of models for the monuments. Mr. Foley in the last three exhibitions we feel justified in calling particularly unfortunate, because we understand the artist is resenting in this way the displacing of a bas-relief of his in the Lecture Room of the Royal Society, we believe, just cause for complaint; but we trust he will, on public grounds, reconsider his determination, as it is not reasonable upon so eminent a sculptor from the annual exhibitions, and one, too, happily now engaged upon many works of public importance.

The general aspect of the sculpture-room is certainly calculated to increase popular indifference to the true interests of sculpture. To strengthen the impression commonly entertained abroad of the low state of sculpture in this country, we add the unfavourable pretext for ignorant, interested, or bigoted partisanship to advocate some special favourites. Assuredly, there will be found, even in this exhibition (if the visitor will be at the trouble to look carefully examination) much that is encouraging. There is a great deal of good technical work, in many cases of a kind to have better employment to produce valuable results. As regards the general arrangement of the sculpture within this year, it is but fair to say that it is unsatisfactory, so difficult must be the task; we were, however, much more pleased with the new and extended lighting of the rooms, and its disadvantage to many works of merit.

The Royal Academy has been favourable to some somewhat better forms of sculpture than painters. A bust of the Princess of Wales, by Theed, is one of the most successful busts for classic style, but in giving the head of her Royal Highness that ideality of expression which is so remarkable in the original bust, the sculptor has, we think, missed some of the most striking facts and characteristic forms in the front view. The only thing, however, which can perhaps be considered a failure in the bust is the treatment of the hair. The fine and poetical portions of the head; for in these justice is certainly not done to the delicate and characteristic beauty of the lines surrounding the original. Some most severe strictures have been aimed at this bust of the Princess and Princess of Wales by Mr. Gibson, R.A. So unscrupulous and palpably uncalled-for has the attack from some quarters become, that it is only fair to say that we have already met worthy for their conscientiousness. On the contrary, we have the most faithful likenesses of the Royal pair hitherto executed, and at the more ordinary distance of observation chiefly for works in public idealism, such as this statue of "Daphne," in the International, and the bust exhibited (Royal Academy, 1861), in the present exhibition. In respect of resemblance, they will certainly bear comparison with Lubson's bust of the Princess—a work which, in its extremely feeble and comparatively formless bust of the Prince, by Morton Edwards, bust (1863), and which had so unaccountably the honour of the Royal Union of London for reproduction! We cannot too strongly deprecate the fashion of "treating" the busts of princes as patronage of historical importance. What is it that gives their great value and interest to the collections of busts at Rome, Florence, Naples, Florence, and elsewhere, over even earlier Greek productions? It is the fact of individuality which conveys the impression of evident fidelity of resemblance. Of W. Theed's model of the statue of the Prince Consort in Highland kilt and sporran erected at Balmoral, we can only say that nearly every part is unsatisfactory, and assuredly does not relieve a sculptor from the necessity of giving a noble head in the proportions of life.

The finest and most important monumental work in Weekes's, hereally recent and very great improvement in the Lecture Room, for the College of Surgeons, which we are engraving, and shall have occasion to notice more particularly hereafter. It is that of Cuvier by the same sculptor, of Harvey, the discoverer of the circulation of the blood, and that of Hunter, the statue of which we have already engraved, is also here. Mr. Weekes has, besides, a statue of Sir Wilfrid (166), abundant with life and character, large in style, and manly in execution; and another (colossal), with similar fine qualities, of Sir George Cornewal Lewis (911), for Westminster Abbey. A model is included of the statue of Lord Clyde at Bedford, for Twinbury, by E. B. Stephens. The thoughtful, lettering attitude is happy and the head is full of character, though rather soft and without style. Altogether, the work does not heighten our expectations from the hand which executed the statue of Peel, which everybody (including the sculptor) seems to have forgotten. Among busts we have a fine and characteristic one of the late "Lord Seaton" (1805), by G. Adams, which we engraved a short time ago; "Lord Brougham" (902), Fleming (1107), both Sir James Outram (1010), by Noble, not very favourable examples of the sculptor and Lord Hampton (1,011), by F. G. Papworth, jun.—a rather commonplace likeness of the Premier.

The most remarkable poetical work is Leifchild's colossal statue, entitled "The Task of Genius"—the Greek poetess who, though she died at the untimely age of nineteen, left behind her poems which were thought worthy of Homer. An inverted torch is the key of her principal poem, "The Distaff," are extant, we cannot estimate the justice of sculptural criticism. Under the impression that we had hanging on one side, the eyes closed, with an expression of faintness, her distaff dropped from her relaxed hands, in her lap, a scroll inscribed with lines of her friend Sappho, indicating the similarity of fate of the two poetesses.

Sweet mother, I cannot ply the loom,
Since vanquished by desire.

This statue naturally invites comparison with certain antique sculptures which can hardly prove quite favourable as regards the drapery and the slight want of softness and suitedey of curve in the head; nevertheless, it is a truly grand work, and should establish the fame of any modern sculptor. Calder Marshall's "Wellington" and "Anone" are graceful facsies. J. Sherwood Westmacott's "Naiade" (898) is elegant. Among "romantic" sculptures, the model of the statue of "Tennerso," by Hancock, lately placed in the Egyptian Hall of the Mansion House, should be seen by the sculptor himself, though too "ornamental" in style. The statue of the "Lady of the Lake," by J. Adams, is perhaps chiefly remarkable for the excellence of the drapery. A bust of Mr. Colnaghi, the well-known printpublisher, by the same sculptor, is however, a very lifelike and characteristic work.

Of naturalistic sculptures the "Joueur de Billes" (876)—a Roman boy playing marbles—by Calder Marshall, is the most realistic example. It is a very clever as well as careful work, having a great deal of spirit in action and expression, as well as close, truthful nature. This latter quality is, however, unpleasantly apparent; and we doubt whether these pieces, as well as Woolner's "Puck," and other works which so forcibly challenges attention, would be found true to the best sculpturesque style if we were to call in "mode" or "method" to aid the criticism. Woolner's "Puck" is, however, the most remarkable work in Mr. Woolner—should be handled by some critics at the expense of every other? Whoever its merits or faults, Gainsborough's picture, or copyism may be, it is assuredly opposed to the principles which would have required the exercise of the sculptor of the greatest artists and the first authorities on art in the world. The "Puck" is a work which will be buy by Phidias or Praxiteles would be, and it will at once suggest the infinite inferiority of the one to the other. Mr. Woolner's highest rank so fine art more than can be expected from work which seems to us at his qualities. It is, in fact, a work of the highest order in the hid hands on. Though the principles of painting are not capable of universal application, as those of sculpture undoubtedly are, yet we may profitably look at the analogies presented by the first. Are, for example, the works of Dalu or Gainsborough true to tone to nature, become beautiful and broad in style, than those minutely-elaborated pictures which modern critics give us by way of example? In a landscape by Turner, Cox, or Linnel really less faithful and characteristic than Mr. Dobson's?

As indicating the way in which the softness of the forms of children's heads may be represented, we would point to the "Boy Asleep," (1032), by A. Munro. The sculptor has, we think, not consider the innocence of infancy with the beauty of womanhood—seen in this work and in the "Infant Bacchus" (1,033), by the same artist, in the character and individuality without hardness we find in Mr. Munro's other works. The "Duke of Argyll" (1,034), by Thornycroft, is a poor, and the sketch in plaster of the Rev. T. Baker (1022). We believe that the "Duke of Argyll" is intended for Roubiliac's "Duke," in Durham, his capital set of bronze statuettes of young cricketers, valuable. Mr. Noble's "Duke of Argyll" is a commonplace statue of "But of a Youth" (898) than in the tassely-chiselled head of Mr. Foley's "Lady Godiva" (1,000), we appear to diverge unnaturally. "Little Flora" (897), a statuette in marble, by J. Macdowell, is graceful and lively. Other "subject" works of merit are "Hush!" (1015), by G. Ward, "Sleeping Beauty" (1,016), by Miss Durham (1021) a "Last Supper" (921), for a reredos, by S. W. Ruddock; "The Lord's Prayer" (1,023), by Miss Durham; "Ruth" (1,027), by J. Lawlor; "Lily Bud" (1011), by E. Davis; and "Ruth" (993), by C. B. Birch. We have also a number of busts of children bronze in equestrian statuette (947). Another example of toreutic art we have in the statue of the Duke of Cambridge, the commander of Sergeant Anderson, of "the Queen's" volunteers (946), by T. Fawke. Among busts of the Queen is one by the same sculptor, for another bronze statuette of Captain Field (998).

Of busts not yet noticed a distinguished place is due to T. Butler's very ably executed bust of Mr. Cockerell (868). Whatever may be thought of some of Marochetti's large monumental works, the bust of Cockerell (868). Whatever may be thought of some are certainly admirable for refinement and high finish. Although we do not, on the present occasion, intend to enter minutely into the subject, we may briefly observe that the Royal Academy has apparently, T. Woolner generally works calculated to lead to the conclusion that, in art, as in every other pursuit, success is attained (though it has apparently stepped him into exaggeration,) in that particular line in which he has made his "first hit." Mr. Woolner, together with peculiar lightness in the treatment of the hair and beard, and the delicate manipulation of the surface of the flesh, which, while it proves close and thoroughly earnest observation and conscientious execution, unfortunately repays the sculptor with hardness and rigidity in the whole appearance of the work. Mr. Woolner goes back to the mode of reproducing the soft, living, moving forms of nature which we find in the Egyptian sculptures, and which, we are aware, that it deprives the imitation of all possibly apparent susceptibility to motion. The "Puck" is a work which, from the fact of its not question the propriety of introducing the smoking-cap, and the fact of its being worn, has been made to serve as a peg on which room for the brain. Diametrically opposed to the method of Mr. Woolner is the more artistic manner of J. E. Boehm, seen in a bust of "Mr. C. Newton" and in the statuettes of the characters of Thackeray of Miss Edwards (equestrian, of course), and another, equestrian, of "Lord Lyons," these works are full of spirit, and "the English call "go," and the French call élegue; but they are not equal to the "Lord Lyons" of Mr. Foley, in which the leading point of character is exaggerated to caricature, texture is ridiculously imitated, and the horse's action, though spirited, is unnatural and open to animation and effect.

We propose to treat draw attention to meritorious busts of "Sir Joseph Paxton" (979) and "Mr. W. Fairbairn" (994), by R. W. Sievier, and to the highly-elaborated busts of "Mrs. Shirley Brooks" (1004)—called Mrs. G. Brooks in the catalogue—by W. C. Roberts, the promising young sculptor of a charming statue of "Eve and the Serpent," exhibited in the last year's and the present by Mr. and Mrs. Thornycroft, W. Davis, R. Acklom, A. Mcgret, W. D. Keyworth, J. Durham, T. Woolner, H. Weekes, R. C. Belt, Matthew Peter Slater, and S. B. Long. Of glyptic art, the best examples are the medals of C. Wyon, R.A., Pistrucci, Wyon, and A. B. Wyon.

THE PHOTOGRAPHIC EXHIBITION.

This exhibition opened on Monday at the gallery lately occupied by the French Gallery, in Pall Mall. The room is a large one, but the light is limited in interest, more even, in proportion, than the space for exhibition. The best position is occupied by a series of the Thames street last year. We must postpone a detailed notice till next week, but we may mention that the most important novelty is Swan's carbon process. This is described as giving a very much greater certain far more of the best qualities of photography than ordinary processes. Mr. Swan's "Petalling Flowers" are most hitherto produced. Other novelties (more or less) are the "studies" of Horsley Hinton and Mr. Wellington, and the large and fine tinted paper; specimens of Colonel James's photo-zincographic engravings, and of Mr. Cundall's photographic engravings on wood. Cameron's large heads out of "focus," which, however (for reasons which we hope to explain), we do not approve. Mr. Cameron is represented by Wynfield, lately reviewed, and which should have been here. H. P. Robinson's pictures are also represented, and exhibit the artist's of the day. She is a pupil of Professor Sterndale Bennett, from whom she has derived some of the best qualities of a performer—pure taste, sound judgment, and thoroughly good method of execution. The principal things she played were Rummel's variations to "Le Mosquetaire," in which she was accompanied on the violoncello by M. Paque; Beethoven's famous "Kreutzer Sonata" for the piano and violin, in which she was accompanied by Herr Janza, preludes and fugues of Sterndale Bennett, and one of Haydn's pianoforte trios. The entertainment was pleasantly varied by several vocal pieces sung by Miss Stabbach and Miss Palmer Lale.

The Musical Festival of the Lower Rhine was held at Aix-la-Chapelle on the 15th, 16th, and 17th of May. This music meeting, formed on the model of one of the old cities, was a magnificent scale, and proved a great success. The number of performers exceeded 500, there being 300 in the chorus and 200 in the instrumental orchestra. The solo singers were Mdme. Dustmann, from Vienna (now in London); Mdlle. von Edelsberg, from Berlin; Mdlle. Schreck, from Bonn; Dr. Gunz, from Hanover (also now in London); and Herr Karl Hill, from Cologne. Herr Joachim, the principal violin player, played his new Hungarian concerto, and Herr Lauchner's suite in E minor, Handel's "Bolsazzar," Sebastian Bach's "Magnificat," scenes from Gluck's "Iphigenia," Mendelssohn's 114th Psalm, Beethoven's Ninth or choral symphony. The conductors were Herr Julius Rietz and Herr Franz Wüllner. There was a great influx of visitors from all parts of Germany.

Meyerbeer was the first musician who received an Austrian order. Liszt, Mayseder, Böhm, Anschütz, and others who have received this honour did so after distinguishing themselves at the performance of the "Prophète" at Vienna that he received the cross of a Knight of the Order of Francis Joseph.

Mr. Vincent Wallace is now engaged in composing a work for the Grand Opéra of Paris. He is the first Englishman whom our neighbours have deemed worthy of so great an honour. Balfe has written several operas for the Parisian stage, but only for the Opéra Comique.

THE THEATRES.

STRAND.—Mr. Byron's prolific pen has been again employed for this theatre in the production of a farce, entitled "Timothy, to the Rescue." It has been performed under the assumed name Mr. Thomas Thorne, a favourite comedian of the Surrey, who performs the hero, named Mr. Timothy Spriggins. He comes to the rescue of his friend, a toadeater, one Samson Whiffles (Mr. H. J. Turner), who is persecuted by the unwelcome attentions of a widow, Mrs. Hall, his mother-in-law (Mrs. Macnish). Spangle, who is a provincial actor, takes advantage of his position, and uses the theatrical wardrobe in order to disguise himself as a smuggler, in which character and another of the fellows Diddler plays, so to prevent the mother-in-some lady that the desired object is effected. A new comic ballad, sung by Mr. Thorne with great humour, shows the new actor in a favourable light. The farce is a trifle, but is well performed, is well acted, and commanded applause at the fall of the curtain.

NEW GRANVILLE THEATRE.—This theatre opened on Wednesday week with three pieces—namely, "The Postboy" a new burlesque so presented, by Mr. Sorrelle, entitled "Faust and Imagine; or, The Doctor and the ——;" and the farce of "The Lottery Ticket." On the first and last of these dramas Mr. Sefton Parry, the manager and proprietor of the theatre, acted; in the former appearing as Joe Spurrit, and in the latter as Wormwood. The getting-up and performance were excellent. The theatre, which is an elegant brick structure, has been erected at the expense of Mr. Parry, from a design by Mr. Poole. The contractor, Mr. Vaughan, has completed the building in three months. The interior is neat and simple, and will seat about seven hundred persons. A act-drop has been painted by Mr. Fenton, and presents a circular picture, containing the leading of Granville Park at the old palace in Greenwich. Altogether, the arrangements of the new theatre are so good that there is every reason to expect a well-founded and permanent success.

Sir Richard Graves M'Donnell, C.B., has been appointed Lieutenant-Governor of Nova Scotia.

The latest advices from Buenos Ayres speak of inundations of the Sepharies, which are said to have interrupted communications with Bagdad.

The Zeazero of Florence states that at an assembly of the representatives of Piedmont held in that city on Monday last, Count Cavour elected Grand Master.

Some of the country postmen, who have long distances to travel to distribute letters to widely-detached houses, are using velocipedes to assist them in their labours.

A letter from Odessa, in the Northern Post, states that two vessels laden with Scotch granite for paving purposes have arrived in the port, and are shortly to be followed by others with similar cargoes.

A powder-magazine has exploded near the Tripoli station of the Malta and Alexandria telegraph. Every house in the vicinity and the telegraph station was much damaged. The communication with Alexandria does not, however, appear to have been interfered with.

The Board of Trade returns for April are very favourable. The declared value of the exports during the month of April, 1864, was £13,897,177 in April, 1863, and £9,922,888 in April, 1862. For the four months of the year the value amounts to £49,000,000, being £6,000,000 in excess of the amount for the four months of 1863, and £13,000,000 in excess of the corresponding period of 1862.

It is said that the Confederates captured at Mansfield two waggons loaded with gold, and that the former are being sent into the interior through a fog of trees, with a letter to General Banks, in which he said, "I have received, baked, and roasted the two waggons of gold sent to them. We cannot eat them. They are a luxury for which we have no use, and I would like, therefore, to exchange them for a few waggons of pork."

A Parliamentary return, issued on Tuesday morning, shows that the value of the gold exported from the United Kingdom in 1863 was £8,000; in 1859, £61,566; in 1860, £115,296; in 1861, £191,234; and in 1862, £113,749; making an aggregate of £681,845 in five years. In the same period the quantity of gold exported from New Zealand up to the 30th of September, 1863, was 1,000,000 ounces, and in 1863 alone 500,000 ounces, which, at the average quarter sessions price is valued at £2,127,500. In the first quarter of the year 1864 gold valued at £6,649,624 was exported. This is less than the quantity exported in the corresponding quarter of 1863 by £1,000,000 sterling.

The New York Herald announces that Mr. C. F. Hall, the already famous explorer of Arctic regions, has successfully launched, at a young open-sander expedition about the middle of the month. He is said first for King William's Land, by way of Lancaster Sound, in the steamer Prince Albert, the Monticello, Captain Chapel, of New London, and he will be accompanied by the Esquimaux who left England with him in the Monticello. He will make their first winter quarters at Repulse Bay, the extreme north-west of Hudson's Bay. During the bay 1864 he will explore the country to the west and shapes to Boothia and King William's Land.

The Independance Belge of the 22nd ult. publishes a letter from St. Petersburg, of the 14th, of which the following is an extract:—"The seventy-three persons who arrived from Nertchinsk on the 4th inst. have had in that of their brethren, the Emperor Alexander for having restored them their liberty and made them participate in the joys of their families and their villages. The same Court carriages which had taken them from the station took them back, penetrated with the same feelings of gratitude. The fête and the banquet which had been hurried upon them during the whole period of their stay in the Russian capital. They left in the same train as those in the station. They had scarcely descended from their carriages when a train arrived from Moscow, bringing a number of relations of the exiles. It was a crowd of frisky persons in chains—a crowd of wretches who threw themselves into each other's arms, shedding abundant tears and making bitter complaints. It was one of those terrible scenes of separation which we encounter, which baffle description. It did not last long, however; they were soon separated from their fellow-countrymen and conducted away."

OFFICIAL APPOINTMENTS.—The Queen has appointed the Hon. William Augustus Cotton Jerningham, Attaché to her Majesty's Embassy at Vienna, to be a Third Secretary in her Majesty's Diplomatic Service; the Hon. Richard Edwardes, Secretary to her Majesty's Legation at Madrid, to be her Majesty's Charge d'Affaires and Consul-General to the Republic of Venezuela; Denis Donohoe, Esq., British Consul at Buffalo, to be her Majesty's Consul at New Orleans; Thomas Fellowes Reade, Esq., British Consul at Tangier, to be her Majesty's Consul for the Republic of Paraguay; Wallis, Esq., British Vice-Consul in Cyprus, to be her Majesty's Consul at Larnaca in that island; Charles Alexander Murray, Esq., to be her Majesty's Consul in Cyprus; James Schatz, Esq., British Vice-Consul at Mostar, to be her Majesty's Vice-Consul at Serajevo.

CHESS.

TO CORRESPONDENTS.

MATHO DE RAMORA.—1. The problem No. 1015, by Miss Lina F., is perfectly correct. If Black play 1. Kt to K 6th, White obviously mates in two more moves, by 2. Kt takes P (ch), etc. 2. Kt takes Q P (ch) is not a move at all, as the Knight cannot move to that square. 3. I shall take no copy. No, although not very difficult, we shall probably find room for the enemy our Chess Enigmas. In future be good enough always to send solutions with your problems.

T. C. Fleetwood.—It hardly presents sufficient points of interest to warrant re-publication. Your solution of No. 1014 is correct, and your notes on the position are interesting.

SIGMA.—Not clear, as the mate which imposes against Red of double open lines we have undertaken the duty; but it is late hand.

CHESS-PLAYER.—We shall be happy to publish your problems in Correspondence.

Perpetuimus. Mr. F. Jeanbault, 3, Quai Voltaire, we believe, is fair blanch.

CHESTON.—The solution of Enigma No. 1014 even than —

WHITE.	BLACK.
1. Kt to Q 5th (ch)	K to Q 4th (best)
2. Q to B 3rd, and	K to B 5th, and
3. Q mates P

Problem No. 1015 has been examined by two or three competent persons, who pronounce it to be correct.

NEMO.—The solution of 1016 is quite right. If "2 Rules K" then we have "3 Q to Q4th" and mate next move.

CHESS-PLAYER.—Mr. Bellew's Tilt Match would be played on Monday, May 9th, and 9th, at the prize of the volume of "I. E. of Redspeech's Problems will only be 5s. Further communications should be addressed to Mr. Bellew, 5, Bedford Row.

S. B. Hattton.—When letters are received in time for notice they are invariably answered.

CHESS PLAYERS' CHRONICLE.—The Contents of No. 9, for May, are as follow:—Chess Tournament—Game between Messrs. Boden and Kipping—Game between Messrs. Ayre, Owen, Ayre, Owen, and Ayre—Game between Messrs. Ayre, Owen, and Ayre—Game between Messrs. Ayre, Owen, and Ayre—Game between Messrs.

BRIGHTON AND BACK for 5s.; EVERY SUNDAY and MONDAY, from London Bridge, Victoria, and Kensington, at 10 a.m. The Kensington Season commences on Sunday, June 5.

HASTINGS AND BACK for 5s. 6d., EVERY SUNDAY, commencing June 5, from London Bridge and Victoria, at 8.45 a.m. Three trains call at St. Leonards, Ecclesbourne, Tunbridge, and Lewes.

PORTSMOUTH AND BACK for 3s. 6d. EVERY SATURDAY, commencing on June 4, from London Bridge and Victoria, at 10 a.m. Three trains stop at Havant, Chichester, Barnham, and Arundel.

ISLE OF MAN.—HULL'S ROYAL HOTEL, DOUGLAS, overlooking the Packet Office, Steam Boats, and a handsome Bay. Table d'hôte at Seven. Coffee Room. Billiard Room. Baths. Hot and Cold Baths on each floor. Private Sitting Rooms. Wines and Spirits of the finest quality.

BANK of NEW ZEALAND, INCORPORATED BY ACT OF GENERAL ASSEMBLY.
Business in New Zealand conducted at the following Branches:

Auckland	Branches and Agencies in New Zealand	Kawarau[illegible]
Bay Plenty	Onehunga	Queenstown
Napier	Tokomairiro	Nelson
Taranaki	Waikouaiti	Wellington
Christchurch	Waimate	Wanganui
Hokitika	Dunedin	Westport
Nelson	Timaru	Marsdenville
Picton	Invercargill	Queenstown

This Bank grants Drafts on any of the above-named places in New Zealand, and undertakes every description of Banking Business connected with that Colony, on terms which may be learned on application at the London Office.

By Order of the Court of Directors,
F. LARKWORTHY,
7, Old Broad-street, London, E.C. Manager.

SHAKSPERE'S WILL, in fac-simile by PHOTOGRAPH. HERMOGRAPHIC COMPANY. Post-free for stamps.

ARTISTS. Hermographic Company, 34, Cheapside, and 24, Regent-street, S.W.

"Photos are the finest."—Art-Journal.

"Some are quite miracles."—Photographic News.

YES for TEN SHILLINGS.

Carte-de-Visite Portraits.

The light is now considered perfect, and the finest pictures are being produced. Old Family Portraits and other prints re-touched and copied. Specimens may be seen. The Establishment has lately been entirely restored and decorated under Mr. Owen Jones's superintendence.

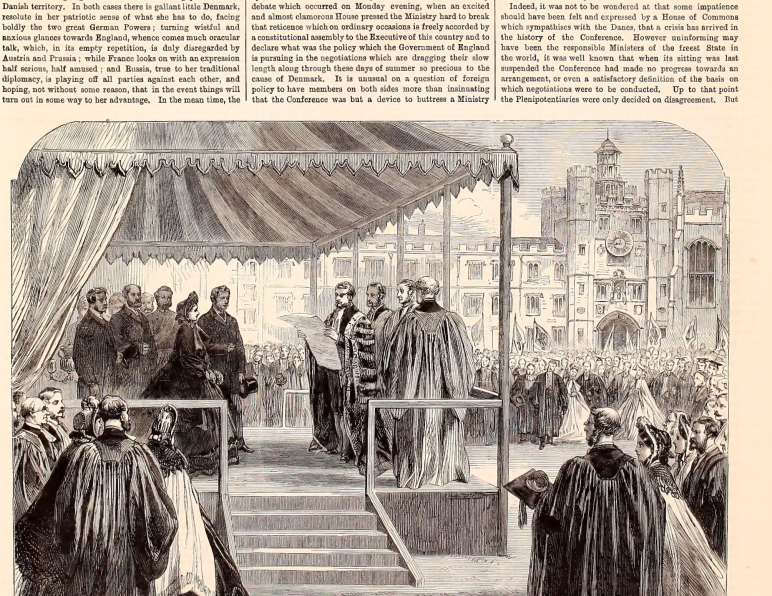
MAYALL'S PHOTOGRAPHIC PORTRAIT ESTABLISHMENTS, 324 and 325, Regent-street, and 10, Cornhill, London, CARTES DE VISITE and half-a-dozen PHOTOGRAPHS by sun-shine and shade, 10s. Specimens may be seen at the Establishments.

PHOTOGRAPHIC EXHIBITION.—There is being re-formed, at the Gallery of Ordnance Photographs, Pall Mall, by the Photographic Society, a new and extensive Exhibition of Photographs, to which Amateurs are invited to contribute. Address JOHN JEBBARD, 171, Piccadilly, London, from whom terms may be obtained.

PORTRAITS PHOTOGRAPHED on PAPER, rendered semi-opaque by LAPOT (a GELATINE), received conspicuous honour at the Photographic Exhibition, 1863. Specimens and Instructions, 2s. 6d. each. A Prospectus, with dates and terms, at A. MARION and CO., 22, Soho, 22, Soho-square.

ANCIENT and MODERN COINS, MEDALLIC, &c., of every description, and in the choicest condition, may be obtained on moderate terms of W. S. LINCOLN, Numismatist and Antiquary, 2, Rutland-street, Hyde-park-corner, and 2, Montague-street, Russell-square. An extensive collection always on view. Catalogues sent on application.

"RECONNOITRER" GLASS, 19s. 6d., 25s., 30s., 42s., 50s., 63s., 84s., 105s., 126s., 147s., 168s., 210s., 252s., 315s., 420s., 525s., 630s., 735s., 840s., 945s., 1050s., 1260s., 1470s., 1680s., 1890s., 2100s., 2310s., 2520s., 2730s., 2940s., 3150s., 3360s., 3570s., 3780s., 3990s., 4200s., 4410s., 4620s., 4830s., 5040s., 5250s., 5460s., 5670s., 5880s., 6090s., 6300s., 6510s., 6720s., 6930s., 7140s., 7350s., 7560s., 7770s., 7980s., 8190s., 8400s., 8610s., 8820s., 9030s., 9240s.,



THE ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS.

No. 1263.—VOL. XLIV. SATURDAY, JUNE 11, 1864. WITH A SUPPLEMENT, FIVEPENCE

THE DANO-GERMAN QUESTION.

THE ruling spirits, we will not say the peoples, of all, even the pettiest, States of Germany, have, probably, long ere this come to the conclusion that the Conference which has been nominally sitting is a delusion. Not that they apply this opinion to its influence on themselves—they are, no doubt, quite satisfied—but, unquestionably, they are not far wrong so far as Denmark is concerned. There may be imagined a curious similarity between the operations which are carried on around "the table with the green cloth," and the material and actual struggle which has been going on between the conflicting parties in the Danish territory. In both cases there is gallant little Denmark, resolute in her patriotic sense of what she has to do, facing boldly the two great German Powers; turning wistful and anxious glances towards England, whence comes much oracular talk, which, in its empty repetition, is duly disregarded by Austria and Prussia; while France looks on with an expression half serious, half amused; and Russia, true to her traditional diplomacy, is playing off all parties against each other, and hoping, not without some reason, that in the event things will turn out in some way to her advantage. In the mean time, the people of England, looking on the proceedings of a diplomatic body which, assembled for the purpose of transacting important and pressing international business, holds a sitting of two or three hours once a week, while in the intervals accredited Plenipotentiaries write and receive answers to long despatches which they address to their respective Courts, are fast coming to the same conclusion which the German political mind, whatever and wherever that is, had arrived, that the Conference is a sham. Nay, the House of Commons, as usual following, instead of leading, public opinion, seems absolutely coming to a like opinion. There was no little significance in the short but sharp debate which occurred on Monday evening, when an excited and almost clamorous House pressed the Ministry hard to break that reticence which on ordinary occasions is freely accorded by a constitutional assembly to the Executive of this country and to declare what was the policy which the Government of England is pursuing in the negotiations which are dragging their slow length along through these days of summer so precious to the cause of Denmark. It is unusual on a question of foreign policy to have members on both sides more than insinuating that the Conference was but a device to buttress a Ministry which, having failed on that which was its strong point, was tottering to its fall, and to find those hints received with assenting cheers from all parts of the House. It seemed to be almost accepted that Ministers were willing parties to the lengthened dalliance by the Conference with the affairs with which it has to deal, and had in view the postponement of any decision at which it may arrive—if it ever does arrive at one—until after Parliament has been prorogued. These are heavy charges, and imply generally, in the opinion of the House, that which was spoken out by one of its boldest members—namely, that the Government has betrayed Denmark.

Indeed, it was not to be wondered at that some impatience should have been felt and expressed by a House of Commons which sympathises with the Danes, that a crisis has arrived in the history of the Conference. However uninforming may have been the responsible Ministers of the freest State in the world, it was well known that when its sitting was last suspended the Conference had made no progress towards an arrangement, or even a satisfactory definition of the basis on which negotiations were to be conducted. Up to that point the Plenipotentiaries were only decided on disagreement. But it is more than believed that England has yielded all those points on which her policy in regard to Denmark was founded, and that the high-spirited declarations that were so often last autumn and in the beginning of this year, that the integrity of King Christian's dominions was to be rigidly preserved, have dwindled down to a humble proposition on the part of the Government of this country for a very considerable dismemberment of the Danish kingdom. It was after this suggestion that the Conference adjourned, for the purpose of allowing the representatives of the Powers to obtain from their respective Courts their Sovereigns, and it was believed that from that starting-point the negotiations were to commence on the resumption of the sittings on Monday last. At that meeting, however, it was understood that a decision had been arrived at on the vital matter of the basis of the settlement of the questions in dispute. New proposals, or rather new adhesions to proposals already made, were received, discussed, and accepted, as so many proposals have been accepted on each day since, for the purpose of referring by the German Plenipotentiaries to their respective Governments. The policy of postponement was again triumphant, and this at a moment when the suspension of arms had exactly seven days to run.

THE ROYAL VISIT TO CAMBRIDGE: PRESENTATION OF THE UNIVERSITY ADDRESS TO THE PRINCE AND PRINCESS IN THE QUADRANGLE OF TRINITY COLLEGE.—SEE PAGE 578.

Granted, that the preliminary question of a renewal of the term for the suspension of hostilities has been settled; and given, that the policy of England and her supporters in the Conference—if she have any—that the Treaty of 1852 should be the basis of negotiations, has been abandoned; the next point for consideration is that of boundary. The dismemberment of the Danish kingdom being taken as the fixed basis of the action of the Conference, the matter for consideration becomes one of degrees, and on that footing the diplomatic contest will proceed. There is no doubt that hitherto the Danish Plenipotentiaries, struggling for what they believed to be the rights of the country, have been what, since the defeat of the policy of our Government, it has become the fashion to call impracticable. It is, however, believed that, with praiseworthy reluctance, similar to that which the Danish forces have shown in the field, and with overwhelming force, the Plenipotentiaries of Denmark have yielded the necessary standpoint for negotiations. The Danish Government—driven to a stand with the loss, almost to the property of any reasonable settlement, and willing loyally to assist the efforts of those Powers whom they believe have done and are doing the best in their power for Denmark—has strained everything to the utmost limit. It has virtually consented to a hasty sacrifice of its claims, in the interest of European peace. Its diplomatic agents in the Conference have therefore been instructed to accept, contingently, a scheme which will substantially be that of the last proposal which has been made by the mediating Powers, and to which England was the last to agree. This proposition fixes the frontier line of Denmark between Scherrebeck on the east and Frederickstadt on the west; it leaves to the Danish Duchies will lose, besides Holstein, comparatively little territory. The objection which is felt to this cession by the Danish people, and which it is said, has been urged freely and even tumultuously expressed in Copenhagen, is that it deprives Denmark of the line of the Eider, which has been her frontier time out of mind; and, by cutting off Rendsburg and Kiel, takes away her chief inland means of water-borne harbour on the mainland. It can be well understood that this arrangement is received by the Danes as one which is hardly less degrading to them than if it had been the result of a successful war of conquest. As matters stand, this seems to be inevitable, unless the German Powers are to be allowed to go on with hostilities, and, by process of time, force of numbers, and superiority of means, to crush similar or worse terms out of prostrate Denmark. The adhesion of even a European war, seems to be put out of the question by the united opinion of the neutral mediating Powers.

The last phase in the position of affairs awaits the next meeting of the Conference, the decision is that all the efforts of the English Government to preserve the rights, or the best part of the rights, of Denmark have failed. The virtuous indignation in Parliament which has been so often alluded to, and which seems likely to culminate into a storm, may therefore well be excused; but, on the other hand, there is much to be said on behalf of the Ministry. In considering the case of her Majesty's Government, it is necessary to bring the question to a definite issue, and that seems to us to be whether it was their duty to embark England single-handed in a war with Germany. It must be remembered that in this matter England is in the situation of one of the parties to a contract—she has no authority to interfere except in her character as one of the signatories of a treaty guaranteeing a certain territorial status to Denmark. It was her duty to move in concert with the Powers joined with her in that contract, and, in case of a difference of opinion, to defer to that of the majority. This we believe to be the true state of the case. At the time when our Foreign Office was delivering itself of high-toned and even minatory despatches, the Government had reason to suppose that it was speaking for the policy, certainly, if not for the probably of Russia; and if big words were uttered, which implied war on behalf of Denmark as a foregone conclusion, they were, perhaps, justified by a very reasonable confidence that a combined statement of France, England, and Russia, over and above England and France, to the German Powers that such and such proceedings in regard to Denmark would be a "casus belli" would be sufficient to settle the question. Unhappily for this confidence, France has declined to take that course; and as to Russia, with her proverbial diplomatic astuteness, the world has been allowed to know little, and, indeed, nothing, of her views and intentions. England thus isolated, the Government had to consider whether the sympathy of her people with Denmark was such as to induce them to consent to her undertaking a war without allies—which would be practically having all the great Powers against her—and that on the most stupendous scale. In the belief that neither Parliament nor the country would sanction such a policy, her Majesty's Government have been compelled to cede their diplomatic pretensions, and to suffer the preponderance of influence of the Conference to prevail. Surely it is just and a generous people will understand and appreciate the greatness of this sacrifice on the part of a Minister whose political life has been identified with the great influence of England in the international policy of Europe. At least, we believe that, if there be a feeling abroad that this country in this matter has been baffled, and that for the time she has failed to impress her views on the Conference, there are few who will not sympathise with the mortification which Lord Palmerston must suffer under such circumstances. Generally, for the reasons we have stated, the Ministry, if they are found guilty of that grievous fault, of miscalculation, ought to have the verdict against them coupled with extenuating circumstances; but in the case of the Prime Minister we believe that there will be expressed, universally, a moral acquittal.

FOREIGN AND COLONIAL NEWS.

FRANCE.

Nearly all Paris rushed to Longchamps on Sunday to witness the great race for the Prix de Paris. This prize (£4000), given jointly by the City of Paris and the Jockey Club, competed for, with the entries and the piece of plate added by the Emperor, more than £6000. The French horse Gladiateur, Monarch, won the race—beating Blair Athol, the winner of the Derby, and Fille de l'Air, the winner of the Oaks. The Emperor and Empress were present, and the assemblage was immense. When it was known that the French horse had won, a crowd surrounded the Imperial stand and cheered their Majesties enthusiastically, as though the enemies of France had been routed. The Paris correspondent of the Daily News writes:—"Such a burst of patriotism I never heard, and I suppose I never heard before, greeted the victory of the French horse. The Emperor, who before the race was surrounded by a crowd, and seemed to listen to anyone about him, rose from his seat and exhibited an outburst of enthusiasm that was, I never thought, in him to exhibit. He laughed most heartily, shook himself in paroxysms of delight, and nodded to everyone in the stand, and to the crowd in front, in a way that had a personal appropriateness. The people in the Enceinte du Pesage paused as the Emperor in his excitement, unconsciously to them, stood upon their hats up in the air twenty yards high."

An Imperial decree has been issued according to which rice in grain and in straw may henceforth be imported into France from all parts of the world under any flag free of duty. A modification of the tariff of duties on the importation of cotton yarns and stuffs of all manufacture is also decreed.

Prince Alexander Murat (aged eighteen), the grandson of Prince Lucien Murat, of the Imperial family, has left Paris for Algiers, to join as a private soldier the 3rd regiment of Chasseurs d'Afrique.

"The French title of Duke de Chatelherault," says the Gazette de France, "claimed by the Scottish English families, has been confined to the young Duke of Hamilton."

The Journal de Paris says that the Emperor has given orders for the immediate execution of a statue of Marshal Pélissier, which is to be erected in one of the squares crossed by the Boulevard Sebastopol.

M. Rouan, author of "The Life of Jesus," has been appointed Assistant Curator of the Imperial library. M. Rouan declines the honour of the appointment. He declares that it is his wish to retain the title of Professor of the Hebrew Language in the Sorbonne, which he holds upon the double presentation of the College of France and the Faculty of Theology, and which he will continue to fulfil, without salary, the duties which this title confers upon him. He will, however, resign the chair, and leave the development of those studies intrusted to his charge. The Moniteur, however, announces that the resignation of M. Rouan is not accepted.

The Japanese Ambassadors gave a splendid dinner one day last week, at the Hôtel de Ville, to M. Rouher, the Minister of Foreign Affairs; Count de Chasselop-Laubat, Minister of Marine; and a distinguished party, consisting of many of the great nobles of the state, several persons connected with the Court, Senators, Councillors of State, and Deputies, and high officials belonging to the various Ministries.

A public dinner, at which the advocates for the abolition of the punishment of death were entertained, took place on Saturday, as announced by the police.

The Court of Cassation has rejected the appeal of La Pommerais, and he was executed on Thursday morning.

A duel took place in the Bois de Boulogne between two officers of a lancer regiment, one of them was mortally wounded.

A medical congress is to be held in Paris next October; it is to discuss scientific subjects only, and not professional interests.

The journal Le Nord has been suppressed for one month, on account of a libellous article upon the late Duke de Malakoff.

The new theatre, the Nouveau Cirque de la Garde, at Marseilles, was inaugurated on Sunday. Immense numbers of persons from all the surrounding departments arrived to take part in the ceremony. The procession, including the municipal body, the Imperial Marines, and cardinals, was two hours in passing, and only reached the summit of the hill on which the building is situated at eight in the evening.

Captain Hector, who commands the merchant-ship Felix Beraudy, of Marseilles, has received a letter of commendation from the English Government, accompanied by a letter of thanks, written in the name of the Queen, for the courage he displayed in rescuing in savage Captain Browning of the English ship John Linn, with a crew of thirty men, from the Malay pirates, off the coast of Borneo. Had it not been for the assistance afforded them by Captain Hector they must have been speedily murdered.

A continuous bar of sandbanks having blocked up from time immemorial any access from the Gulf of Lyons into the great navigable river that disembogues itself through Aigues-Mortes, which is in Marseilles, a grand surgical operation was resolved on last year, and a cutting sixty yards in length, through the bar, 100 yards long, was commenced from that point of the Rhoma course, where it describes an elbow, and runs parallel with the shore of the Gulf. The result is announced in Monday's Moniteur as now so far achieved that ships of large tonnage can enter the Gulf of Lyons direct from up the stream, along the quays of Arles and Arignon, while steamers of freighted and lighter draught can pass by the Camargue canal.

Monday's Moniteur announces more successes by the French troops over the Kabyles. But the large forces which years are advancing against the rebels show how serious the rebellion must be.

SPAIN.

The Queen was to return to Madrid from Aranjuez yesterday.

General Espartero will be in the new Progressist Committee.

Senor Olozaga has left Madrid for Paris.

General Prim is about to proceed to Vichy.

The bill regulating political meetings has been passed by the Cortes.

A telegram from Madrid states that the Peruvian Consul in that city has announced to the Government that he is empowered to arrange all the differences which exist between the two Governments. This statement has, however, been emphatically denied by the Peruvian Consul at Bordeaux.

ITALY.

The anniversary of the establishment of the Constitution was celebrated on Monday in every town in Italy. According to the Turin papers popular demonstrations took place in the Venetian and Roman provinces on the occasion, which the Austrian and Pontifical police were unable to suppress. In Turin the usual celebration, of course, took place; but it was rendered somewhat remarkable by the inauguration of a statue to a patriot, Santa Rosa, whose declamatory and cold clitadel from the French 158 years ago.

The Italian national rifle-shooting meeting will commence at Milan on the 19th. Prince Humbert is president of the executive committee in charge d with superintending the preparations. A large number of native and foreign marksmen are expected.

The Russian Ambassador, M. de Kisseleff, has been recalled from Rome. This event has caused some sensation, as people connect it with the recent alienation of the Pope, in which Poland was alluded to in terms so likely to offend Russian susceptibilities.

The Pope has received the Russian, the French Ambassador, who offered his congratulations upon his Holiness's restoration to health.

RUSSIA.

The Emperor was present, on the 27th ult., at the launch of the Cuirassé, Admiral Lazareff, at the new Admiralty Dock Yard, St. Petersburg.

An Imperial decree abolishing the duties on articles of export from Russia and Poland has been promulgated. There is a short list of excepted articles.

A despatch from the Grand Duke Michael announces that the war in the Caucasus is virtually terminated, and that no more remains to be conquered. The Government has sanctioned the free transit of goods through the Caucasus.

Baron de Meyendorff, the Russian Chargé-d'Affaires at Rome, has been instructed to deliver to Cardinal Antonelli M. de Kisseleff's letters of recall, by which, on the receipt of the letter, the Russian Minister at Rome, will be terminated.

It is asserted that a commercial treaty has been concluded by Mr. Hope, the manager of the International Financial Company of London, with the Russian Government for the construction of the Moscow and Sebastopol Railway. The works are to be commenced in the course of this year.

GREECE.

The cession of the Ionian Islands to Greece has been effected. On the 1st inst. the Greek flag was hoisted on the remaining forts of Corfu, amid great popular rejoicings; and on the 6th King George paid a visit to his new subjects. Royal visits, of course, were an enthusiastic welcome. The lord High Commissioner (Sir H. Storks) took leave of the islanders in a letter which found no sympathy, as in a conciliatory and dignified address, in which he was able to say, with becoming self-pride, "The honour of England, in ascertaining the protectorate" and in promoting the union of these islands with Greece, has been fully accomplished." The Senate met in reply to a wish so often expressed by the Ionian Legislative Assembly, and the resolution was carried unanimously by the people of the Ionian islands and of continental Greece, as conducive to national happiness." A new Ministry has been formed, Count Theotoky acting as the Vice-President of the Senate and, in a spirit of justice and of liberality; and mutual good feeling and respect have been elicited by the act.

AMERICA.

The chief interest of the war centres in Virginia. We have intelligence from Lee and Grant to the 30th ult. There has been no general engagement since our last, but the position of affairs is stated about twelve miles southward. This much we can perceive through telegraphic despatches, which are of course the unwearied work of clear. According to one view, General Grant, finding hard fighting of no avail to drive back the Confederates, has resolved on his task. He pushed forward his left, under Hancock, in a south-easterly direction by Bowling-green, attempting thus to pass to the right, and get in the rear of the Confederate army. In this manœuvre, however, he was closely followed by the Confederates, under Longstreet and Ewell; and the whole body of the Confederate army, leaving Spottsylvania, retired southward, keeping pace with the Federal advance. Another view of the situation, however, is, that General M'Clellan's programme, in pursuance of a settled plan of drawing the Federals on and wasting their energies, is being carried out deliberately and well. Spottsylvania, and that Grant's advance upon Bowling-green was a consequence, and not a cause. Up to this moment, however, nowhere these changes of position there was continual skirmishing, and the Federals claim to have taken 2000 prisoners. Despatches from General Grant up to the morning of May 30 state "that his movement was progressing," and that the army was in position "within four hours" General Lee's position covers Sexton's Junction, his right resting on Little Swamp, and his left on Little River. The Federals have abandoned their depôt at Spottsylvania Court-House, and have established another nearer to General Grant. Sexton's Junction is about twenty-five miles from Richmond, and, the grim reader will see the importance of the post to Lee, it is only necessary to state that a railway from Richmond to Fredericksburg here crosses at this point, running hence in nearly parallel lines to Richmond. It was rumoured in New York on the 31st that, though rumours, however, of little worth—that General Grant intended marching towards the peninsula, between the James and York rivers, to carry M'Clellan's programme, if possible, to effect a junction with Butler. The rest of the news is non idol. Butler's position is entirely unassailed in his entrenchments. Banks has struggled back to New Orleans; and Sherman is advancing, but without fighting, on the interior of Georgia. The Confederate guerrilla leader Mosby had been entirely routed, and one of the establishment of the Federal outposts into Washington, to destroy all the bridges and fortifications on the road from Union Mills to the Rapidan. The ironclad attack upon the forts in Charleston Harbour was to be renewed without delay.

The Confederate Congress had refused to consider resolutions proposing that an attempt should be made to exchange negroes, as in view to the conclusion of a peace.

The delegates from the three State Conventions of New York, Ohio, and Illinois have unanimously resolved to re-nominate Mr. Lincoln at the Baltimore Convention.

From New York we learn that the district attorney is about to submit the Federal effects of the late journal the New York World and Journal of Commerce; while the New York grand jury had indicted, on a charge of bribery, Messrs. Belmont and Cornell Accident Arguelles with a view to deliver him up to the Cuban authorities.

The price of gold had again risen in New York, the latest quotat on being 88 per cent premium.

CHINA.

Major Gordon, the English commander of the Imperialist troops has defeated the Taepings at Waizoo, and other important successes are anticipated.

NEW ZEALAND.

There has been more severe fighting in New Zealand. A telegraphic despatch from the scene of operations, dated Pekerena, April 30, forwarded to the Foreign Office by our Consul at Alexandria, states:—

"Brigadier-General Cameron has defeated the rebel position at Katikara, seven miles from Le Aramoue, on March 31. The enemy defended it for two days. Our loss was thirty-one killed and 100 wounded, including three prisoners. Our loss is sixteen killed and forty-two wounded. Colonel Weare has arrived at Auckland from the famous position at Kai Take, near New Plymouth, without loss. General Cameron is about to commence operations against Rangiriri, a strongly intrenched position of the rebels at Mangatawhiri, on the Upper Waikato. Captain Hay, 18th Regiment, killed; Captain Fisher, 40th Regiment, severely wounded; also Ensign Chayter, 65th Regiment." Another telegraphic despatch, through the same medium, states:—"In making a reconnaissance of the Mangatawhiri portion from the right bank of the river, on the morning of April 4, Lieutenant-General Cameron found that the rebels had just abandoned it, and retreated up the right bank of the river. General Cameron sent a detachment to occupy it." An unofficial telegram states that severe engagements had occurred at Mangatawhiri and Tauaki. The natives were defeated at the former place, which they abandoned; while at the latter the English troops suffered a reverse. The English loss is killed and wounded, in both engagements, amounted to eighty.

Abd-el-Kader has arrived at Cairo, and is lodged in the palace set apart for strangers.—Mr. Stevens, secretary to Sir Henry Bulwer, arrived at Alexandria on the 6th inst. from Constantinople, and has a long interview with the Viceroy.

METROPOLITAN NEWS.

The Sheriffs of the City—H. N. Nissen, Esq., and T. Cave, Esq.—entertained her Majesty's Judges on Monday at the Alien.

The Johnson Club, the club of Johnson and Reynolds, celebrated its centenary at the Clarendon on Tuesday last.

The Court of Common Council have voted 200 guineas to the Asylum for Idiots, 100 guineas to the Royal Hospital for Incurables, and 50 guineas to the London Society for the Protection of Young Women.

The annual dinner of the Royal Institute of British Architects took place on Monday, in the room of the Society, St. James's-street—Mr. Thomas L. Donaldson, Ph.D., president, in the chair.

The first of two exhibitions of Horticultural plants was held on Monday at the Royal Botanical Gardens, and, the morning being fine, there was a tolerably large attendance.

The site of the old Fleet prison has been sold to the London, Chatham, and Dover Railway Company for £30,000. The company intend to build their City terminus station upon the ground in question.

The thirteenth annual conference between the Council of the Society of Arts and the secretaries of the institutions in union and local boards will be held on Thursday, the 16th, at noon.

The London Scottish, having for object the support of a school in London for the education of children of Yorkshire parents, came off on Monday at Willis's Rooms, which were crowded with a brilliant assemblage, all the leading Yorkshire families being represented.

The Mayoress of Salisbury, Lord Lieutenant of Middlesex, gave his annual entertainment to the county magistrates and the officers of the several regiments of militia and yeomanry cavalry, at his mansion in Arlington-street, Piccadilly.

The last week of the Literary Society dined together at Morley evening at Willis's Rooms. The Right Hon. Spencer Walpole, M.P., was in the chair, supported by the Archbishop of York, Lord Justice Turner, and other notabilities.

An official correspondence between the Hon se Guards and the War Office records the fact that its Royal Highness the Commander-in-Chief has watched with the greatest zeal the discipline of the volunteers that were then blest in Hyde Park on the occasion of the marriage of the Prince and Royal Highness the Princess of Wales.

The directors of the Southwark Bridge Company have made an offer to the corporation of the City to open the toll-gates to the public on certain conditions, and the offer has been submitted to a committee, who prefer, to refer it to the Corporation for £200,000. The proposal is under the consideration of a committee.

The anniversary meeting of the charity children took place on Thursday at St. Paul's Cathedral. The number present was about the same as upon former occasions, supported by the partiality of the metropolis, was about 8000, and the collection at the doors, which was taken immediately after the service, amounted to £300. The length is 300 ft. in length, having three arches of 75ft. span for the river traffic; the centre arch is 100 ft. span, and 60ft. above it, as in old London Bridge. It will be 44ft. between the kerbs.

The Metropolitan Board of Works have ordered the name of Adam-street, Strand, to be abolished, and the line of thoroughfare extending from Upper Thames-street to the Strand to be called "Queen Victoria-street." The names of George-street, Cambridge-street, and Cambridge-road, Islington, are also to be altered, as there is already a Cambridge-street, Hoxton, and a road to Hoxton-street to be called "Morton-road."

The prizes awarded to the successful students in St. Mary's Hospital Medical School were distributed on Wednesday evening by the Archbishop of York, in the absence of Lord Stanley. There was a large number of the friends of the students present. The number of students for the past year exceeded their staff-rooms, and the number of new students, whose numbers had increased, both relatively and individually, during that period, as well as the general prosperity of the school in all that respect, among the older schools of the metropolis.

The passenger steam-vessel Argo, built for the Peninsular and Oriental Steam Navigation Company at the Thames Ironworks, Blackwall, was launched on Monday in the presence of a large number of spectators. The Argo will prove a valuable addition to the already numerous iron fleet of the Peninsular Company. Her engines of 400-horse power nominal were fabricated by Messrs. T. and G. Rennie, and the following are her principal dimensions:—Length between perpendiculars, 250ft.; length of keel for tonnage, 198ft. 8 in.; breadth for tonnage, 36 ft.; depth to top of keel, 27ft.; burden in tons, 1,800.

The supporters of the Artists' Benevolent Fund held their fifty-fifth anniversary dinner on Wednesday evening at Willis's Rooms, Mr. Thomas M.P., in the chair. The company numbered about one hundred. Since the establishment of the fund, in 1810, the sum of £21,000 has been distributed in relieving widows and orphans of British artists, fifty widows and children having been relieved during the annual year, to the amount of £1,000, and fifty-seven more will be relieved. The total receipts for the last year amounted to £1,626, against £800 expended. The committee have determined to invest £1,000 of the funds, including one hundred guineas from the Queen.

The eighth anniversary of the Great Northern Poultry Show and Calcdonian Ball was celebrated on Wednesday, at the Albion, Aldersgate-street—Sir L. Pale, M.P., in the chair. This Society, which has been established chiefly through the exertions of Mr. Baxter Langley, has for its object to enable himself, in order to supply what he considers a want long felt by the breeder of fancy poultry. The number of entries for the show, opened on May 31, 1864, amounted to 41207, the payments to £1291. The number of visitors who attended during the nine days exceeded 20,000. The show was open to the public for additional funds, which was responded to by subscriptions amounting to about £200. The charity is open to all who are willing to aid it to carry out its means of usefulness in the poor district.

The total of 7,950 children—4,000 and 974 girls—were registered last week in London. In the ten corresponding weeks of the years 1854-63 the average number was 7,950, while in 1863 the number in the same last week were 7213. The average number in the twenty-second week in ten years, 1854-63, was 7,950, while a correction for increase of 1,000 in population has been a clear increase in the last three weeks. From fifty deaths referred to the last week in April, 1863, the number rose to seventy-seven in the last week in October was eighty-six. Whooping-cough, which was fatal to about eighty children in the last week of April, 1863, was fatal to 150 in the last week in October, 1863, and to thirty-eight children in the last week in November. Measles, which in the last week in April, 1863, carried off 187 persons in the previous week, has declined to 148. Two hundred and eighty-six of the 974 deaths of girls in the last week were from zymotic diseases, was suffocated by having her mouth against the bedclothes.

The annual festival of the Royal Humane Society was held yesterday week, at the Freemasons' Tavern, under the presidency of Lord Ducie. The report stated that the number of persons rescued during the past year, of which the whole had been expended, with the exception of a trifling sum. The subscriptions announced during the evening amounted to nearly £300. During the past year 239 cases of rescuing or attempted rescue from drowning were reported to the committee, of which the committee 267 persons; of these, 246 were successfully treated, but eleven were brought when dead, and ten died after the application of remedies. For the same period, conferred and distributed to those who were instrumental in the rescue, or attempted rescue, of persons from drowning, or in the restoration of persons already rescued, were the thanks of the society on vellum, seventy-three thanks on parchment, and sixty-three pecuniary rewards.

A fearful accident occurred on Tuesday night on the South-Western Railway. One of the trains returning from Ascot race, heavily laden with holiday makers, ran into another train which was standing or discharging two carriages, killing five passengers, and more or less seriously injuring twenty-five others. The accident occurred at a point about a mile and a half on the down line, and arrived at Egham safe enough shortly after the collision. The trains were entirely filled with Ascot visitors, and when a second was made to the station authorities of some card-burners being in a state of intoxication, and that they had their personal, which, whether successful or not, was long enough to delay the train two or three minutes more. During this interval the next train came up, and, as the line is single, there was nowing off. The inevitable collision was so clearly described by the station called to the passengers in the last carriages to jump from them. The ground was in the break-van, the last of all, and his experienced eye carried no warning as he looked out and saw the next train coming on. He jumped out at once, through not a moment too soon, as the crushed fragments of his van swept his coat-skirts and tore them off. The collision crushed the engine of the down train, and the carriages next to it, and killed and injured another train. The usual scene of confusion and dismay succeeded. Assistance was at once telegraphed for to London and to Ascot, and the work of extricating those injured instantly began.

CHURCH AND UNIVERSITIES.

Dr. Moberly, Head Master of Winchester School, will preach the annual sermon to the children of Christ's Hospital on Whitsunday.

A new church for the hamlet of Wheeford, in the parish of Rempstead, was consecrated on Saturday by the Bishop of Gloucester and Bristol.

The foundation-stone of a new church was laid on Wednesday week, in the parish of Wokingham, by Mrs. Sawyer, of Ivavenswood Park, wife of Captain Sawyer, who gave the site.

The Bishop of Salisbury, on the 30th ult., laid the foundation-stone of a new church at Swindon, in the hamlet of Rope, in the north of Wiltshire, intended as a memorial to the late Rector, the Rev. G. Hayward.

The parish church of Thorpe, near Norwich, is about to be rebuilt. The expenses of the restoration of which, and of which alone, has been provided by subscription. The foundation-stone will be made up by Mr. Birkbeck.

The Archbishop of Dublin held his first visitation on Tuesday, in the Cathedral of Kildare, and in the evening entertained at dinner all the clergy in the diocese.

The Manchester Collegiate Church, dedicated to St. Mary, Ancoats, was consecrated on Thursday last by the Bishop of the see of Manchester, styled the Collegiate, is undergoing a thorough restoration.

The Bishop of Oxford, on Wednesday week, new schools in the parish of Cuddesdon, which have been erected under the "shadow" of York Minster, was opened by Cardinal Wiseman on Thursday week. The schools, which have been built on the west side of the chapel which has been used for many years by the Catholics. The new church will shortly be consecrated by Archbishop Errington.

At an inquisition de lunatico held at Dublin on Tuesday May, 24th, relative to the property of the Bishop of Down and Connor, the jury was pronounced a lunatic. It was proved that he was insensible from infancy, and that he was now in his seventy-fifth year of age; both speech and sight are defaced by making a serious matrimonial proposal to his ward. The petition was presented by his brother.

A new rectory club, on the plan of a Kit-Kat Club, restricted to the clergy, has been established in Dublin. Its numerous dinners took place there on the 4th inst., and went off very brilliantly. The members present were the Archbishop of Dublin, the Bishop of Meath, the Lord Justice, the Chief Baron, Dr. Todd, Sir Bernard Burke, LL.D., Dr. Lever, Dr. Maunsell, Archdeacon Stopford, Judge Hargreave, and Revds. Robinson, Lombard, and other notabilities. The Lord Lieutenant is a member.

There has been a great revival in Liverpool, and, of course, consequence of the prevalence of hydrophobia among them. It is estimated that there are 20,000 dogs in Liverpool. During the past month 1,000 have been killed by private individuals, while endless informations have been disposed of by the police. The Mayor has issued a proclamation ordering that every dog found on the public streets after the 15th inst. will be destroyed, unless it be in leash, or a muzzle. Dogs found straying without a muzzle at the end time are to be killed.

The monthly return, compiled for the information of the Central Executive Committee for the Relief of Distress in the Manufacturing Districts, has been issued. It shows that the statistics of 170 relief committees, the total number of operatives in full work and the number partially employed, as well as how many are entirely unemployed, are as follows:—Operatives at the factories, 1,000,000; partially employed, 1,000,000; wholly out of employ, ex-against 750,000 in January. The total number relieved during the month was 261,192; but the number had fallen to 247,000. This number is little more than one fourth of the number of persons assisted in January, 1863. The total amount received during the month and distributed or those relieved by the guardians and the local committees. The present amount of subscriptions is £1,000 per week more than the ordinary amounts at the corresponding time of the year. The total amount received and promised up to the end of May is £1,000,000. The Mansion House Fund, being surrendered the other in order to avoid overlapping, without incidents promised subscriptions still unpaid, amounting to £11,000.

SCIENTIFIC NEWS.

An Electric Light of unusual brilliancy was exhibited by Mr. Alfred Smee, F.R.S., at the house of St. Mary's tower, Cumbridge, during the visit of the Prince and Princess of Denmark. It has been invented by Mr. Staite, and was exhibited at the assembly of their Royal Highnesses on March 10, 1863. It would be interesting to know if he has still made visible.

A New Species of Chinese Silkworm has been laid before already introduced three species—M. Bois de Guerin-Menneville, who has Bengal, the Ailanthus silkworm; M. Pernyi, the Chinese oak silkworm; and Yama-Mai (from Japan). The fourth species now introduced is from Chili, and is the Bombyx Cynthia of Drury, which feeds on the castor-oil plant. It was sent to M. Guerin-Meneville by Captain Hutton, who obtained them from the Governor of Valparaiso, and from the Governor of Coquimbo. The worm feeds on the thick leaves of the oak, Quercus ilicina. The cocoon differs from the other three species in being pointed at both ends, and being surrounded at the silk, which does not differ essentially from that of the elevated parts of the Himalayas.

Hicks's Patent Maximum Mercurial Thermometer is designed to indicate the highest point of heat. The principle on which the instrument is constructed is as follows:—A short tube, or mercurial chamber, carried from the bulb of the thermometer to the scale, and is filled with a disk of cork rather smaller than that of the column tube, and the action is as follow:—The thermometer being placed in position, the mercury in the bulb expands, and forces the mercury in the chamber before it, which, when full, it is then placed in position horizontally, with the short tube or mercurial chamber uppermost. The mercury contracting, will cause the column of mercury to rise in the ordinary thermometer tube; then, upon a return of heat, the mercury expanding, will be in the centre and will rise, as in the ordinary, and recovery will descend from the short tube or chamber.

The Secretary of the Acclimatisation Society, Vautour Mesnier) is about to be naturalised in France, specimens having been forwarded to the Acclimatisation Garden in Paris by the Director of Acclimatisation, Capt. Colcoy. By its organisation this bird is wonderfully adapted to live in mountainous districts, and can easily support, not only strong heat, by which it destroys large numbers of reptiles, even the most venomous, but also extreme cold. It is a powerful flyer, and can carry off large animals. Its nest is built in the neighbourhood of Cape Town having a pair of three birds domesticated. The Secretary of the Acclimatisation Society has advised with the Ministers that Corsica, the Mauritius, and Algeria will doubtless be highly beneficial.

Curious Figures of Liquids.—In the June Number of the Philosophical Magazine will be published a paper by Mr. Plateau, Professor of Physics at Ghent, describing a number of new varieties of the phenomena, his object being to show that the figures of liquid masses are by no means confined to the spheroid and the ring supposed as certain forms in a chemically-pure glass. Some of these figures (many of which are new to physics) are introduced by Professor Tyndall into his lectures, and he has a drop of colchicial solution falls beneath the surface it expands into a ring, which in time breaks up into a series of separate portions, which form the spheroidal drops; portions of colouring matter are thrown off, in like manner, beyond; the drops, portions of colouring matter are thrown off, in like manner, beyond; drops on drop, from the original ring, are formed. The ring of alcohol and camphor is one can also be seen upwards, while it drops two other rings, which in their turn break up into drops. Plateau has studied the laws of these phenomena, and has completed to follow. In regard to the physical causes of these phenomena, Mr. Tomlinson has communicated to the Royal Society (31) of diffusion, which forms the ring; (2) gravity, which causes it to sink. The resistance is first overcome by the ascent of the ring. (3) the diffusion. In the case of a ring of alcohol and camphor are precisely the same, only gravity causes it to second and fifteen minutes to descend.

Four firms in Tasmania made last year 360 tons of jam for exportation.

The Peruvian navy consists of one steam-frigate, five steamers, and a brig, armed, in the aggregate, with about sixty guns.

The American shipyard has turned out during the last two years six iron-clad ships, the cost of which has been £2,500,000 sterling.

COUNTRY NEWS.

Lieutenant-Colonel Sir R. Anstruther, Bart., M.P., is appointed Lord Lieutenant of the county of Fife, vice Mr. Wemyss, deceased.

The Queen has approved of Don Enrique Fox as Vice-Consul at Plymouth for the Republic of Guatemala.

We are informed that the Duke of Georgia, so well known as a Confederate cruiser, has passed into the hands of a Liverpool merchant.

The Duke of Manchester has been installed as Provincial Grand Master of the Freemasons of Huntingdon and Northampton.

By a Parliamentary return just issued it appears that the total cost of the Royal Parks and Palaces, up to the present time, including all charges, is £36,738.

On Thursday week a horse belonging to Mr. Richard, farmer of Le-ack, Cornwall, broke over a fence into a pasture and spent a couple of hours in it. On the following day it severely that he died in a few hours.

Mr. Edward Beavan, of the North Wales and Chester Herald, has been appointed Recorder of Chester, vice Mr. W. W. Wehby, who has resigned that office after holding it 40 years.

The Lord Lieutenant of Ireland has quite recovered from his recent indisposition, and has returned to the Viceregal Lodge, Phœnix Park. He was very there greeted in the warmest manner.

During recent artillery practice at Plymouth, a shot struck a boat in the Sound in which were two men, one of whom was a Spaniard that he fell to the bottom. In consequence, by raising the ballast overboard, succeeded in keeping the boat afloat until succour arrived.

The Mersey and the Agincourt (target) both of which are Engraved on page 569) were launched on Wednesday in front of the Liverpool Exchange Buildings, it is said, to the gun being sent to Shoeburyness for Government experiments.

An old lady named Miss Betsy Miller recently died at Glasgow, who, in her younger days, had a fancy to marshal processions, and actually chartered an old brig, and became "sailing master." So successful was the undertaking that she cleared the cost of a ship of £700, maintained herself in comfort, and left a handsome sum besides.

St. Wilfred's Roman Catholic Church, which has been erected under the "shadow" of York Minster, was opened by Cardinal Wiseman on Thursday week. The schools, which have been built on the west side of the chapel which has been used for many years by the Catholic. The new church will shortly be consecrated by Archbishop Errington.

The Mersey and the Agincourt (target) both of which are Engraved on page 569) were launched on Wednesday in front of the Liverpool Exchange Buildings, it is said, to the gun being sent to Shoeburyness for Government experiments.

An old lady named Miss Betsy Miller recently died at Glasgow, who, in her younger days, had a fancy to marshal processions, and actually chartered an old brig, and became "sailing master." So successful was the undertaking that she cleared the cost of a ship of £700, maintained herself in comfort, and left a handsome sum besides.

St. Wilfred's Roman Catholic Church, which has been erected under the "shadow" of York Minster, was opened by Cardinal Wiseman on Thursday week. The schools, which have been built on the west side of the chapel which has been used for many years by the Catholic. The new church will shortly be consecrated by Archbishop Errington.

At an inquisition de lunatico held at Dublin on Tuesday May, 24th, relative to the property of the Bishop of Down and Connor, the jury was pronounced a lunatic. It was proved that he was insensible from infancy, and that he was now in his seventy-fifth year of age; both speech and sight are defaced by making a serious matrimonial proposal to his ward. The petition was presented by his brother.

A new rectory club, on the plan of a Kit-Kat Club, restricted to the clergy, has been established in Dublin. Its numerous dinners took place there on the 4th inst., and went off very brilliantly. The members present were the Archbishop of Dublin, the Bishop of Meath, the Lord Justice, the Chief Baron, Dr. Todd, Sir Bernard Burke, LL.D., Dr. Lever, Dr. Maunsell, Archdeacon Stopford, Judge Hargreave, and Revds. Robinson, Lombard, and other notabilities. The Lord Lieutenant is a member.

There has been a great revival in Liverpool, and, of course, consequence of the prevalence of hydrophobia among them. It is estimated that there are 20,000 dogs in Liverpool. During the past month 1,000 have been killed by private individuals, while endless informations have been disposed of by the police. The Mayor has issued a proclamation ordering that every dog found on the public streets after the 15th inst. will be destroyed, unless it be in leash, or a muzzle. Dogs found straying without a muzzle at the end time are to be killed.

The monthly return, compiled for the information of the Central Executive Committee for the Relief of Distress in the Manufacturing Districts, has been issued. It shows that the statistics of 170 relief committees, the total number of operatives in full work and the number partially employed, as well as how many are entirely unemployed, are as follows:—Operatives at the factories, 1,000,000; partially employed, 1,000,000; wholly out of employ, ex-against 750,000 in January. The total number relieved during the month was 261,192; but the number had fallen to 247,000. This number is little more than one fourth of the number of persons assisted in January, 1863. The total amount received during the month and distributed or those relieved by the guardians and the local committees. The present amount of subscriptions is £1,000 per week more than the ordinary amounts at the corresponding time of the year. The total amount received and promised up to the end of May is £1,000,000. The Mansion House Fund, being surrendered the other in order to avoid overlapping, without incidents promised subscriptions still unpaid, amounting to £11,000.

Lieutenant-Colonel Sir R. Anstruther, Bart., M.P., is appointed Lord Lieutenant of the county of Fife, vice Mr. Wemyss, deceased.

The Queen has approved of Don Enrique Fox as Vice-Consul at Plymouth for the Republic of Guatemala.

We are informed that the Duke of Georgia, so well known as a Confederate cruiser, has passed into the hands of a Liverpool merchant.

The Duke of Manchester has been installed as Provincial Grand Master of the Freemasons of Huntingdon and Northampton.

By a Parliamentary return just issued it appears that the total cost of the Royal Parks and Palaces, up to the present time, including all charges, is £36,738.

On Thursday week a horse belonging to Mr. Richard, farmer of Le-ack, Cornwall, broke over a fence into a pasture and spent a couple of hours in it. On the following day it severely that he died in a few hours.

Mr. Edward Beavan, of the North Wales and Chester Herald, has been appointed Recorder of Chester, vice Mr. W. W. Wehby, who has resigned that office after holding it 40 years.

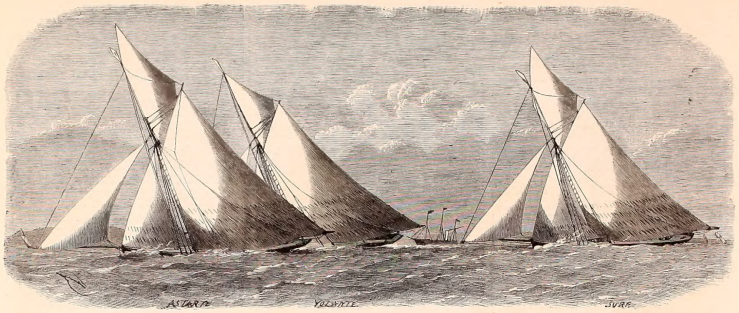
The Lord Lieutenant of Ireland has quite recovered from his recent indisposition, and has returned to the Viceregal Lodge, Phœnix Park. He was very there greeted in the warmest manner.

During recent artillery practice at Plymouth, a shot struck a boat in the Sound in which were two men, one of whom was a Spaniard that he fell to the bottom. In consequence, by raising the ballast overboard, succeeded in keeping the boat afloat until succour arrived.

The Mersey and the Agincourt (target) both of which are Engraved on page 569) were launched on Wednesday in front of the Liverpool Exchange Buildings, it is said, to the gun being sent to Shoeburyness for Government experiments.

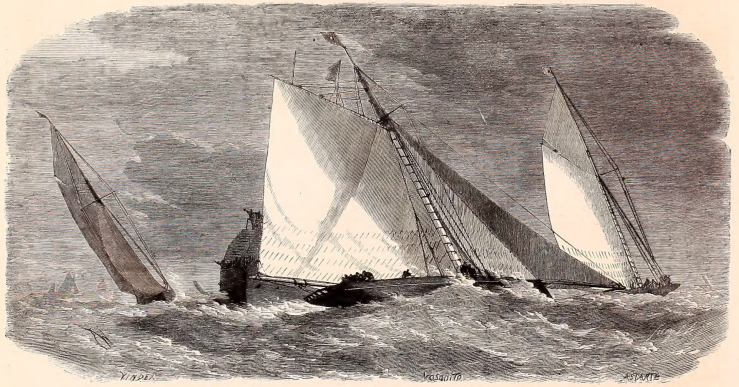
An old lady named Miss Betsy Miller recently died at Glasgow, who, in her younger days, had a fancy to marshal processions, and actually chartered an old brig, and became "sailing master." So successful was the undertaking that she cleared the cost of a ship of £700, maintained herself in comfort, and left a handsome sum besides.

St. Wilfred's Roman Catholic Church, which has been erected under the "shadow" of York Minster, was opened by Cardinal Wiseman on Thursday week. The schools, which have been built on the west side of the chapel which has been used for many years by the Catholic. The new church will shortly be consecrated by Archbishop Errington.



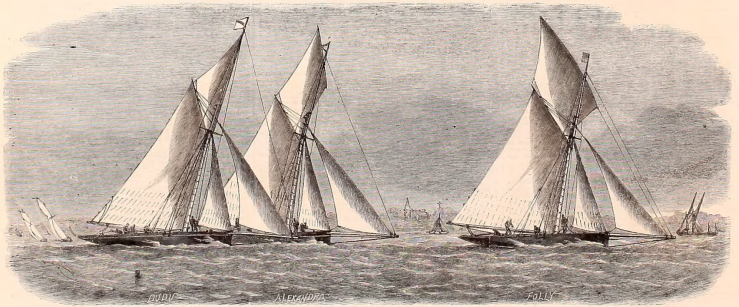
At an inquisition de lunatico held at Dublin on Tuesday May, 24th, relative to the property of the Bishop of Down and Connor, the jury was pronounced a lunatic. It was proved that he was insensible from infancy, and that he was now in his seventy-fifth year of age; both speech and sight are defaced by making a serious matrimonial proposal to his ward. The petition was presented by his brother.

A new rectory club, on the plan of a Kit-Kat Club, restricted to the clergy, has been established in Dublin. Its numerous dinners took place there on the 4th inst., and went off very brilliantly. The members present were the Archbishop of Dublin, the Bishop of Meath, the Lord Justice, the Chief Baron, Dr. Todd, Sir Bernard Burke, LL.D., Dr. Lever, Dr. Maunsell, Archdeacon Stopford, Judge Hargreave, and Revds. Robinson, Lombard, and other notabilities. The Lord Lieutenant is a member.



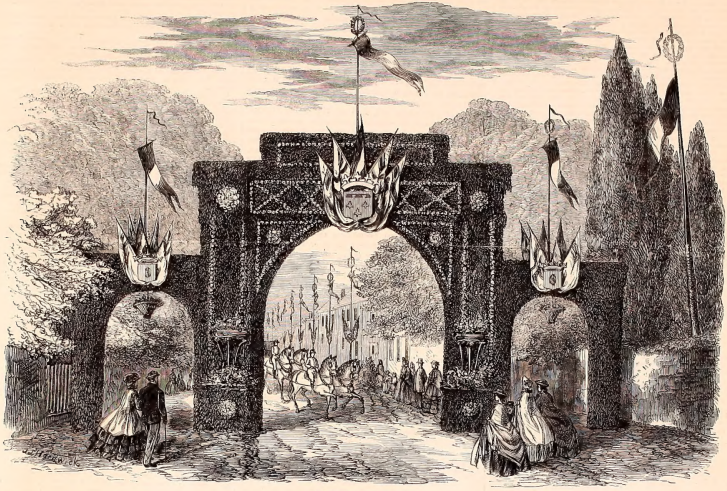
There has been a great revival in Liverpool, and, of course, consequence of the prevalence of hydrophobia among them. It is estimated that there are 20,000 dogs in Liverpool. During the past month 1,000 have been killed by private individuals, while endless informations have been disposed of by the police. The Mayor has issued a proclamation ordering that every dog found on the public streets after the 15th inst. will be destroyed, unless it be in leash, or a muzzle. Dogs found straying without a muzzle at the end time are to be killed.

The monthly return, compiled for the information of the Central Executive Committee for the Relief of Distress in the Manufacturing Districts, has been issued. It shows that the statistics of 170 relief committees, the total number of operatives in full work and the number partially employed, as well as how many are entirely unemployed, are as follows:—Operatives at the factories, 1,000,000; partially employed, 1,000,000; wholly out of employ, ex-against 750,000 in January. The total number relieved during the month was 261,192; but the number had fallen to 247,000. This number is little more than one fourth of the number of persons assisted in January, 1863. The total amount received during the month and distributed or those relieved by the guardians and the local committees. The present amount of subscriptions is £1,000 per week more than the ordinary amounts at the corresponding time of the year. The total amount received and promised up to the end of May is £1,000,000. The Mansion House Fund, being surrendered the other in order to avoid overlapping, without incidents promised subscriptions still unpaid, amounting to £11,000.

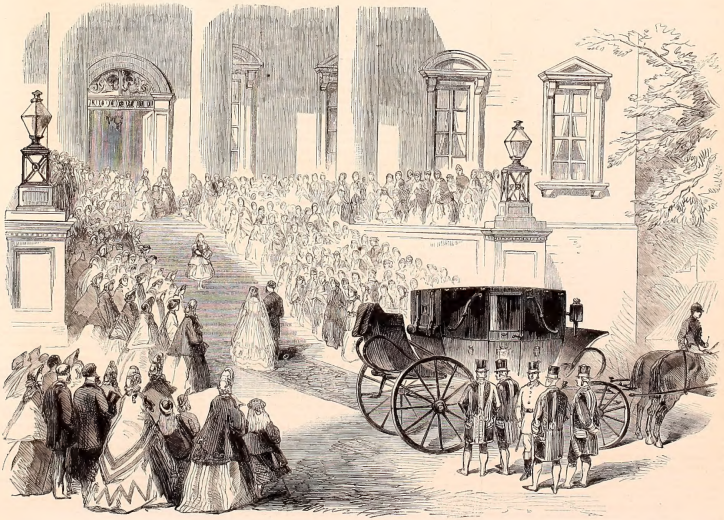


THE YACHT MATCHES IN THE THAMES LAST WEEK.

ROYAL LONDON YACHT CLUB, MAY 30: THE CUTTERS OFF SOUTHEND.



ROYAL THAMES YACHT CLUB, MAY 31: ROUNDING THE STEAMER AT THE NORE.



PRINCE OF WALES YACHT CLUB, JUNE 1: THE RACE OFF EAST TILBURY.—SEE PAGE 574

MARRIAGE OF THE COUNT DE PARIS WITH THE PRINCESS ISABELLE D'ORLEANS.

TRIUMPHAL ARCH AT EU.EU.

THE RETURN TO CLAREMONT.—SEE NEXT PAGE.

THE MARRIAGE OF THE COUNT DE PARIS.

WE have illustrated, by two of our Engravings, the proceedings in the neighbourhood of Claremont, Esher, and Kingston on Monday, the 30th ult., when Louis Philippe Albert d'Orléans, the Count de Paris, son of the Duke of Orleans and grandson of King Louis Philippe, was married to his first cousin, Princess Maria Isabella Francesca d'Assisi, daughter of the Duke de Montpensier, and niece, by her mother's side, to the Queen of Spain. The ceremony took place at half-past ten o'clock, in the little Roman Catholic chapel at Kingston. The venerable Cardinal Wiseman, Marie Amélie, and left her habitual seclusion to be present at the nuptial celebrations of her grandson. The Duke and Duchess de Montpensier, the Duke de Nemours and his sons, the Prince de Joinville, the sons and Princess de Joinville, the Duke and Duchess de Chartres, and other members of the house of Orleans, the Queen and Prince of Wales, with the Spanish, Belgian, Italian, Austrian, Prussian, Bavarian, and other foreign Ambassadors; Princess Mary of Saxe-Weimar, Earl Russell and Lady Russell, the Marquis of Charlemarle, Lord Houghton, Lord and Lady Ripon, Lady Stanley of Alderley, and other nobility besides many French and Spanish personages of rank. The Rev. Canon Oakeley, Roman Catholic Bishop Grant-Sandwich, assisted by several other clergymen of that church, performed the ceremony. the service being read in the French language. After the ceremony and signing the register, which was witnessed by the Duke de Montpensier, the Duke de Chartres, and the Spanish Minister, mass was performed, and then the young Count and Countess de Paris entered their carriage to return to Claremont, amidst all manner of festive demonstrations—cheering, and the firing of guns and ringing of bells—in the little town of Kingston-upon-Thames. The road all the way from Kingston, through Esher, to Claremont was crowded with people; and in some places it was adorned with banners and triumphal arches, one of which, the largest, was of a costly as well as tasteful design. One of our Illustrations is a view of this triumphal arch, with the carriages and horsemen in procession on their road to Kingston. The other shows the arrival of the bridal party at Claremont on their return, the young married couple alone have alighted, and are just entering the house. Immediately on their arrival they were visited by the Prince and Princess of Wales, the Princess Alice with her husband, and the Duke and Duchess de Mary of Cambridge, who came to wish them happiness. The guests, about one hundred in number, were entertained at breakfast under a marquee at the back of Claremont House; after which the bride and bridegroom left home to spend their honeymoon in the north of England.

CALENDAR FOR THE WEEK ENDING JUNE 18.

SUNDAY, June 12.—Third Sunday after Trinity. Massacre of the Armagnacs and other nobility by the mob of Paris, with the connivance of their sovereign, the Dauphin Burgundy, 1418.—Battle of Worcester, 1651.

MONDAY, 13.—Trinity Term ends. The great Metropolitan Cattle Market opened, the Prince Consort, president, 1855.

TUESDAY, 14.—Victories of Napoleon I., at Marengo, over the Austrians, 1800; and over the Russians and Prussians at Friedland, 1807.

WEDNESDAY, 15.—Magna Charta conceded by King John, 1215. First stone of Bow Church-house laid by the Lord Mayor, 1863.

THURSDAY, 16.—King George II. defeats the French at Dettingen, 1743. Accession of Queen Victoria, 1837.

FRIDAY, 17.—St. Alban, the British protomartyr, 3rd century. Death of Joseph Addison, essayist, English classical writer, 1719.

SATURDAY, 18.—Battle of Foleg; the English defeated by Joan of Arc, 1429. Battle of Waterloo, General Sir Thomas Picton killed, 1815.

TIMES OF HIGH WATER AT LONDON BRIDGE
FOR THE WEEK ENDING JUNE 18, 1864.

Sunday.	Monday.	Tuesday.	Wednesday.	Thursday.	Friday.	Saturday.
M. A.	M. A.	M. A.	M. A.	M. A.	M. A.	M. A.
h. m. h. m.	h. m. h. m.	h. m. h. m.	h. m. h. m.	h. m. h. m.	h. m. h. m.	h. m. h. m.
12 0 12 30	12 45 1 15	1 30 2 0	2 15 2 45	3 0 3 30	3 45 4 15	4 30 5 0

THE WEATHER.

RESULTS OF METEOROLOGICAL OBSERVATIONS AT THE KEW OBSERVATORY OF THE BRITISH ASSOCIATION.
Lat. 51° 29′ N.; Long. 0° 19′ 30″ W.; Height above sea, 24 feet.

DAY	DAILY MEANS OF				THERMOMETER				WIND	RAIN in Inches and Hundredths
	Barometer corrected	Dew Point	Relative Humidity	Amount of Cloud	Maximum in Sun	Minimum on Grass	General Maximum	General Minimum
	Inches	Deg.	Per Cent.	Scale of 0 to 10	Deg.	Deg.	Deg.	Deg.
1	Tuesday	29·5	49·1	4	53·8	40·4	66·6	NE. ESE.	NNE	0·00
2	Wednesday	29·6	48·7	4·3	58·1	41·2	68·2	E.	ESE	0·00
3	Thursday	29·8	51·8	4·9	59·0	48·7	64·2	NE. ENE.	ESE	0·00
4	Friday	29·8	47·9	3·3	61·0	43·7	68·6	NE. ENE.	SSE	0·00
5	Saturday	29·7	47·1	3·3	61·2	43·2	69·3	NE. ENE.	SSE	0·00
6	Sunday	29·747	47·5	4·1	59·2	42·9	69·6	SW. NE.	SW	0·00
7	Monday	29·928	49·2	3·8	62·1	44·8	70·8	SW. W. SW.	SW	0·00

The following are the readings of the meteorological instruments for the above days in order, at half-past nine a.m.:—

Barometer (in Inches) corrected	29·745	29·772	29·837	29·805	29·745	29·707	29·878
Thermometer (Fahrenheit)	57·0	60·0	60·0	61·0	61·0	61·0	62·0
Direction of Wind	NNE.	ESE.	ESE.	SSE.	SSE.	SW.	SW.

THEATRE ROYAL, HAYMARKET.—Last Week but Two.—This Evening, Shakspeare's Comedy of As You Like It. Orlando, Mr. Sothern; Jaques, Mr. G. F. Neville; Rosalind, Miss Kate Terry; Celia, Miss Ada Cavendish; Audrey, Miss Emily Fowler; Touchstone, Mr. Compton. After which, at Eight precisely, DAVID GARRICK. Mr. Sothern, Mr. Buckstone, Mr. Chippendale, Mr. Howe, Mr. Clarke, Mr. Braid, Mr. Rogers, Mr. Everett-Green, and Miss Amy Sedgwick. To be followed by a New and Original BURLESQUE entitled DON JOHN, in which Mr. Sothern, Mr. Buckstone, Miss Amy Sedgwick, and Miss Kate Terry will appear. Box-office open from Ten to Five. Doors open at Seven, and Performance commences at Half-past. Stalls, 7s.; Dress Circle, 5s.; Upper Boxes, 3s.; Pit, 2s.; Gallery, 1s. Second Price, 6d. and 3d. Private Boxes, £1 1s. and £2 2s. Acting Manager, Mr. H. CORNER.

ROYAL ST. JAMES'S THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. BENJAMIN WEBSTER.—This highly-successful new Comedy, by Miss Braddon and Mr. Augustus Dubourg, entitled LADY LISLE, EVERY EVENING at Eight. Mr. Webster, Mr. Addison, Mr. Arthur Stirling, Mr. Rogers, Mr. Chippendale, Mr. Howe, Mr. Charles Mathews, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Matthews, and Miss M. Simms. Old Of Course. Mr. Compton, Mr. Buckstone, Mr. Meadows, Mr. Rogers, Mr. Howe, Mrs. Chippendale, and Miss Caroline Hill. Doors open at Seven, Performance commences at Eight. Box-office open from Ten to Five. Stalls, 7s.; Dress Circle, 5s.; Upper Boxes, 3s.; Pit, 2s.; Gallery, 1s. Second Price, 6d. and 3d. Private Boxes, £1 1s. and £2 2s. Acting Manager, Mr. H. CORNER.

NEW THEATRE ROYAL, ADELPHI.—Sole Proprietor and Manager, Mr. B. WEBSTER. On MONDAY, and during the Week, THE DEAD HEART—Messrs. R. Younge, C. J. Smith, F. Robson, A. Wigan, Addison, Rogers; and THE AREA BELLE—Messrs. J. L. Toole, F. Bedford, and Miss Woolgar. Commences at Seven.

THE ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS.

LONDON: SATURDAY, JUNE 11, 1864.

ALTHOUGH the Permissive Bill, or bill enacting that an English town may, if it will, put another Englishman's right to drink a glass of English ale, could by no possibility pass a House of Commons of average sanity; and although its rejection, on Wednesday, was a form which the promoter, one would think, might have spared a legislative assembly on a hot day, we have no intention of joining the public-house interest and its sympathants in their insolent exultation that their craft is in no immediate danger of being interfered with. English liberty and Constitutional rights were the first things to be thought of, and the House thought of them precisely in the way that was to be desired; but in regard to the question of intoxication, the necessity of meeting it, and the means of doing so, there are considerations which may not occur to the hundred and forty thousand keepers of places where intoxicating drinks are sold, and which we trust that neither they nor their parasites will be offended at our examining, apart from the history of a very foolish attempt to promote morality by a scheme which arouses the indignation even of cold water drinkers.

How any man of ordinary sense could have completed the drawing of Mr. Wilson's bill as it was, or how one of those conundrums which we should feel inclined to reserve for our Christmas Number were it not an essential of domestic amusement that it should not be utterly absurd. He may, by possibility, have brought himself to the conviction that over-drinking can be prevented by law, and then, by a herculean exercise of imagination, and, shall we add, of forgetfulness, have brought himself to believe that his measure, who hate to do anything that anybody tells us to do, and would rather be run over by a railway-van than wait until a policeman bids us cross the road, could allow the "authorities" to lock up the British cellar. But when he came to consider the machinery that had been proposed to him, we can only wonder that he did not toss the foolscap inside the fender and regard himself as the victim of a bad practical joke. The idea of transferring the magistrates' duties to the police is too monstrous to consider. The author of the bill must be some recluse, who in scholarly retirement has read of the councils of classic days, of the municipal arrangements under the charge of mediæval theology. He certainly has never attended a Town Council of our days, or even read the country newspapers, which, for some reason, give verbatim reports of such meetings, thereby forcing on us a more than ordinary loathing both than much-enduring type has ever been compelled to register. The bill and its preposterous machinery are alike among the things that won't but, before any new attempt is made with regard to the sale of intoxicating drink—we humbly exhort those who dream that society will endure the conferring any additional powers upon Town Councils to attend half a dozen of their meetings, or to read half a dozen provincial papers in which their sayings and doings are chronicled.

Having said that such legislation as is proposed is simply Bedlamite, let us proceed to say that, in the first place, we refuse to plead for the drunkard, and that the motives of those who believe such legislation possible; and that, in the second, much that is urged on their side of the question deserves deep and serious consideration. There is a fearful amount of intoxication in this country; and the evil-doings which it leads it not—as we have on former occasions, and when no pernicious bills were in debate, strongly contended—re-studied with sufficient gravity. Now, in every one KNOWS, whatever may be the vices of educated people—and they are in no position to be pharisaical—the vice of drunkenness is not one of them. Mr. Bright informed the House that he had been dining out for a fortnight, and had not seen a drunken man. Possibly the worse for liquor. But in circles not so high as those in which Mr. Bright's aristocratic friends move the same evidence might have been obtained. We do not take too much wine in England, and we take too much drink in a Bedford or even Bloomsbury square. In fact, no gentleman drinks. Some years ago, if he could get up stairs at all after dinner, a lady was fortunate if he contented himself with telling her that he was very over and over again seven-and-twenty times, and if he did not mistake her for somebody else, though he had been sitting next her for three hours. Now, the second or at most the third glass of claret is quite unable to pester his elegant cynicism for the drawing-room, or to improve the colour of his epigrammatic anecdote. We should be intolerant of him if he left the room with the faintest difficulty. Even in the case of a gentleman who may come in after dinner, for music. But though the upper and upper middle class have adopted this social system for themselves, and observe it strictly, they have, with a consistency unparalleled in their peculiar inferiors from it, so long as the latter occasion them no personal annoyance. A drunken footman is expelled, a drunken driver is taken to the police-cell; but, for the mass of offences which make our streets—to use such painful reading—like a strange, wild tolerance when the word liquor comes in. Magistrates, judges, jurors, all join in the discussion, and do but reflect the feeling of society when it declares that, in the main, the more certain is the supposition that it was "drink," and equally certain is the light sentence. Day after day we read of the most abominable brutalities, committed especially on wives and children, before which the perpetrators of murder take place; and the criminal is considered as wronged when any eccentric magistrate cannot accept one crime as an excuse for another. The working classes are much complimented on occasion; but it is very questionable that they do not protest against this most uncomplimentary concession to their supposed habits. Now, we object to all law that can annoy the innocent; but we have by no means an unconquerable objection to law that reasonably increases the punishment of the guilty. Suppose that, instead of trying to prevent an honest man's taking an honest glass, we got out of the way of regarding a glass in connection with a felony. Suppose we doubled public punishment to offences committed under drink. Let us try to show that we do not regard sobriety as the monopoly of the rich, and let us see whether we cannot, with advantage, treat all drunkenness as something like an offence against general society.

THE CONFERENCE.—PROLONGATION OF THE ARMISTICE.—The Plenipotentiaries accredited to the Conference met on Monday and Thursday at the official residence of the First Lord of the Treasury. All the members were present on both occasions. On the latter day it was agreed that the armistice should be prolonged for a fortnight from the 12th inst.

THE COURT.

On Wednesday week the Queen, accompanied by Princess Helena and the Princess of Leiningen, walked in the grounds of Balmoral Castle. Subsequently her Majesty, accompanied by Princess Beatrice and the Princess of Leiningen, drove round the Lyn of Muick and by Birkhall.

On Thursday week the Queen, accompanied by Princess Helena and Princess Louisa, walked and drove out twice. Prince Leopold went fishing at Invercauld.

Yesterday week the Queen, accompanied by Princess Helena, Princess Louisa, and the Princess of Leiningen, walked in the castle grounds, and afterwards drove to Alma Cailhaach.

On Saturday last the Queen, accompanied by Princess Helena, Princess Louisa, and the Princess of Leiningen, walked in the garden twice. The Duke of Argyll had the honour of dining with her Majesty.

On Sunday the Queen, Princess Helena, Princess Louisa, Prince Leopold, and the Princess of Leiningen, attended Divine service, performed at the castle by Dr. Macleod, her Majesty's Chaplain. In the afternoon Lord Churchill, the Hon. Mr. Bruce, Lieutenant-Colonel General the Hon. C. Grey, Mrs. and Miss Grey, Colonel the Hon. A. Liddell, Mr. Duff, and Mr. Ball. Her Majesty posted to the Aboyne station of the Deeside Railway, and took her departure thence at half-past four. The Queen was met on the platform of the officials of the North-Western Railway. Perth was reached at eighteen minutes before six. Her Majesty remained a quarter of an hour for refreshment. Carlisle was reached at forty minutes past eleven, where a halt of ten minutes was made. The train arrived at the Banbury junction at a quarter past one. The Queen took an early breakfast over the Great Western Railway, via Leamington and Oxford, to Windsor, which was reached at half-past three. The Queen arrived on Monday morning. The Queen's journey was performed with the utmost privacy, no persons being allowed on the platforms along the route. The Prince of Wales received her Majesty at the Windsor station, and accompanied the Queen to the Castle, where she met in the Quadrangle Princess Louisa, accompanied by Princess Louis of Hesse, drove out.

Prince and Princess Christian of Hesse and the Princess Victoria of Hesse, attended by Baroness von Gramey, Captain von Westerweiler, and Dr. Wilms, arrived at Windsor from Kingston on Monday.

Prince Alfred, attended by Major Cowell, also arrived at the castle from Portsmouth.

THE MARRIAGE OF THE PRINCESS OF WALES.

On Thursday week the Prince and Princess of Wales left Marlborough House for Combermere. Some particulars of the Royal visit are given on page 565, with an Illustration of the mansion and views of illustrations of the auspicious event.

On Saturday last the Prince and Princess left Cambridge at three o'clock; and travelled with the Great Eastern and Great Northern Railways to Hatfield, the residence of the Marchioness of Salisbury.

On Sunday the Prince and Princess and Prince and Princess Louis of Hesse attended Divine service in the chapel at St. James's. The Rev. the Sub-Dean the Rev. R. G. Packman and the Very Rev. the Dean of Chichester officiated. In the afternoon the Prince and Princess, accompanied by Prince and Princess Louis of Hesse, drove to Kew.

On Monday the Prince, accompanied by Prince Louis of Hesse, rode on horseback; subsequently the Prince and Princess, accompanied by Prince and Princess Louis of Hesse, drove out. The Prince, accompanied by Prince and Princess Louis of Hesse, went to the German Legion Club, and afterwards visited Mr. Hall, Mrs. Clarence's marriage by Mr. G. H. Thomas, and Mr. William Simpson's watercolour drawings, in Pall-mall and Cadogan. In the evening the Prince and Princess had a dinner party. The company consisted of Prince and Princess Christian of Hesse, the Duchess of Cambridge, the Grand Duke and Grand Duchess of Mecklenburg-Strelitz, Princess Mary Prince Hohenlohe-Langenburg, his Highness Maximilian, the Prince Hermann of Solms-Lich, Count Erbach-Schomberg, the Turkish Ambassador, the Duchess of Sutherland, the Marchioness of Westminster, the Countess of Hertford, Earl Granville, &c. After dinner their Royal Highnesses had an evening party, at which the following had the honour of being present:—The Prince of Leiningen, Prince Edward of Saxe-Weimar and Countess Dornburg, Prince Teck, Count and Countess Gleichen, the Duke of Somerset, the Duke and Duchess of Wellington, the Danish Minister, M. De Quade, M. De Kerckhove, Lieutenant-Colonel Gubbins, Colonel Bigge, Major Kauffman, Earl and Countess Russell, Viscount and Viscountess Chesterton, and Lady Caroline Barrington.

On Tuesday the Prince and Princess, accompanied by the Duke of Cambridge and Princess Mary, were attended by the Countess of Morton, Lieutenant-General Knollys, and Lieutenant-Colonel Keppel, left Marlborough House at eleven o'clock for Ascot. After the races the Prince and Princess proceeded to Frogmore House.

On Wednesday their Royal Highnesses visited the Queen at Windsor Castle.

On Thursday the Prince and Princess went to Ascot.

Yesterday (June 11) their Royal Highnesses returned to Marlborough House from Frogmore. In the evening the Princess held a full-dress evening party at Marlborough House.

Her Royal Highness will hold a Drawingroom on behalf of the Queen, at St. James's Palace, on Tuesday next.

FASHIONABLE AND POLITICAL ENTERTAINMENTS.

Prince Edward of Saxe-Weimar and Countess Dornburg entertained a select circle at dinner on Sunday evening at their residence in Portland-place.

The Duke and Duchess of Wellington had early and quiet parties Friday week at her mansion in Belgrave-square. The Duchess of Cambridge, Princess Mary, and a select circle were present.

The Marquis and Marchioness of Clanricarde gave a grand entertainment on Saturday evening at their residence in Grosvenor-gardens and a distinguished circle.

The Marchioness of Downshire gave a dancing party on Friday evening week at the Clarendon Hotel, Albemarle-street. The Duchess of Cambridge and Princess Mary honoured the mansion with their presence.

Lady Cowley, during the absence of the Ambassador, gave his annual entertainment to the newly-engaged servants and the officers of the Embassy on Saturday evening last at his mansion in Arlington-street, Piccadilly.

Earl Granville entertained a select circle at dinner on Sunday evening at his residence in Carlton-terrace.

The Earl and Countess of Cawdor had a dinner party on Wednesday evening at their residence in Grosvenor-gardens.

Viscount and Viscountess Stratford de Redcliffe entertained a select party at dinner on Tuesday evening at their residence in Eaton-square.

Princess Countess Walburgwas and Prince Hohenlohe-Langenburg entertained a select dinner party on Wednesday evening at their residence in Carlton-gardens.

Lady Marian Alford entertained the Duchess of Cambridge, Princess Mary, and a select circle at dinner on Wednesday evening at her residence at Prince's-gate.

Lady Cowley had the honour of receiving the Duchess of Cambridge, Princess Mary, and the Grand Duke and Duchess of Mecklenburg-Strelitz on Saturday afternoon last at Craven Cottage, Fulham.

The Right Hon. Sir Robert Peel had a Parliamentary dinner on Wednesday evening at his house in Whitehall-gardens.

MARRIAGES IN HIGH LIFE.

The marriage of Lord Frederick Cavendish, secretary to Earl Granville, and second son of the Duke of Devonshire, with the Hon. Lucy Lyttelton, a maid of honour to the Queen and daughter of Lord Lyttelton, was solemnised on Tuesday, at Westminster Abbey.

The marriage of Lady Adela Hare, daughter of the Countess of Listowel, with Mr. Cuthbert Larking, late of the 15th Hussars, took place on Thursday week, at St. George's, Hanover-square.

A marriage is arranged between Mr. Mundy, son of Mr. W. Mundy, member for South Derbyshire, and Miss Emily Cavendish, daughter of the late Richard Cavendish.

MUSIC.

Nothing that calls for remark has occurred at Her Majesty's Theatre since our last notice of that house. But Gounod's new opera, "Mirella," is in rehearsal, and about to be produced forthwith, under the personal superintendence of the composer. This opera, our musical readers are aware, was lately produced at Paris, under the title of "Mireille," when there were conflicting accounts of its success. Another interesting announcement is the production of Beethoven's chef-d'œuvre, "Fidelio," with Mdlle. Titiens, for the first time, in the character of Leonora. We cannot imagine a part better calculated to display the dramatic powers of the lady who proves of this great artist. The character of Florestan has been assigned to Sig. Gunz, who, since his successful début on the 4th instant, thought of importing "Strudella." An English manager—the late Alfred Bunn—brought out an English version of it at Drury Lane some eighteen or twenty years ago; but it had no success, and was immediately forgotten. Mr. Gye has now had it "done" into Italian, and has produced it at his theatre with Mdlle. Lotti della Rocca as Strudella. Its performance on Saturday drew a full house. It was carefully cast, with splendid scenery and handsome dresses; but, nevertheless, its reception was cold in the extreme. On Monday it was repeated to empty benches, and finally withdrawn after the second act of "Strudella." This being the case, we shall remember the adage, "De mortuis nil nisi bonum," and, as we cannot speak well of it, nor in the way of criticism, we shall say nothing. Mr. Gye's subsequent stage has been much more judicious and successful. The first act of "Faust" was performed, with Adelina Patti in the character of Margaret. The announcement of her appearance in this part, which she had frequently performed with success in Paris, occasioned an excitement which reminded us of the début of Jenny Lind. That interest was literally realised. The reception was not an inch of even standing-room was to be found in any corner, and the multitudes of people were disappointed. But the performance, when achieved, perhaps, the greatest of all her triumphs. The whole performance was one long ovation—one continuous demonstration of delight and enthusiasm. In her conception of the character—in the truth of her feeling, and in the impassioned style in which she executed her singing—she rivalled the greatest of her competitors; and, beyond all this, she had the resistless charm of youth, beauty, and the freshness of early youth. Adelina Patti's Margaret will doubtless be the great object of attraction during the remainder of the season.

The Monday Popular Concert of this week was devoted to the benefit of the great violinist Herr Ernst. He has been for several years an almost hopeless invalid and, after having been under the "water-cure" at Malvern, is now in London, progressing. It is hoped, by constant convalescence, he may get rid of his nervous weakness. The proposal to apply one of the popular concerts to his advantage was cordially responded to, and the attendance accordingly was attended by an immense concourse of visitors. Joachim, Wieniawski, Sainton, Blagrove, Piatti, Vieuxtemps, Molique, Dando, Pratten, and Molique, Lucchesini used their best exertions; and Ernst himself, though the magic tones of his violin could not be heard, exhibited some of the fruits of the skill of the master of his delightful composition. A new quartet, for stringed instruments in particular, by Signor Cacchia, Milan, was also performed, the audience by its originality, masterly construction, poetical imagination, and varied expression, that the composer has in complete recovery of his health may enable this great artist and musician to name his place in the annals of the art he professes.

The chamber concert of the students of the Royal Academy of Music, on Wednesday week, brought forward several very satisfactory instrumental pieces, and the singing was also remarkable for performance. A sonata for the piano and violin, composed by Miss Drummond, and played by her and Mr. Carrodus, was highly creditable, and the performers were recalled. Mr. Walstein, a pupil of Mr. Walter Macfarren, showed great ability in the execution of a concerto of Thalberg's fantasia on the "Sonnambula." Miss Edith Wynne was encored in Costa's "Ave Maria," and Miss Lascelles in "Excelsior progs," sung by Miss Wynne, Miss Pitt, and Mr. Wells, was also encored. A selection from Edward Loder's unfinished English opera, "The Night Dancers," formed the conclusion of a concert which did our English Academy considerable credit.

On the same day Mr. Walter Macfarren gave the second of his pianoforte performances (or "recitals," as they are called) at the Harmony-rooms, Hanover-square. The selection was from Bach's fugues, from the famous collection, "The Well-tempered Clavier;" Mr. G. A. Macfarren's sonata in D, for piano and violin; one of Beethoven's fantasia, op. 77; several of Mendelssohn's "Lieder ohne Worte," and other magnificent compositions by Mr. Macfarren himself. There was a crowded audience.

The "Pyne and Harrison Company" have been performing for several weeks at Liverpool. Among the novelties in keeping for their repertoire, they have produced "She Stoops to Conquer, "Blanche de Nevers," and "The Rose of Ettrick." The company will resume their performances in London next season; but it is not known at what theatre they will have engagements.

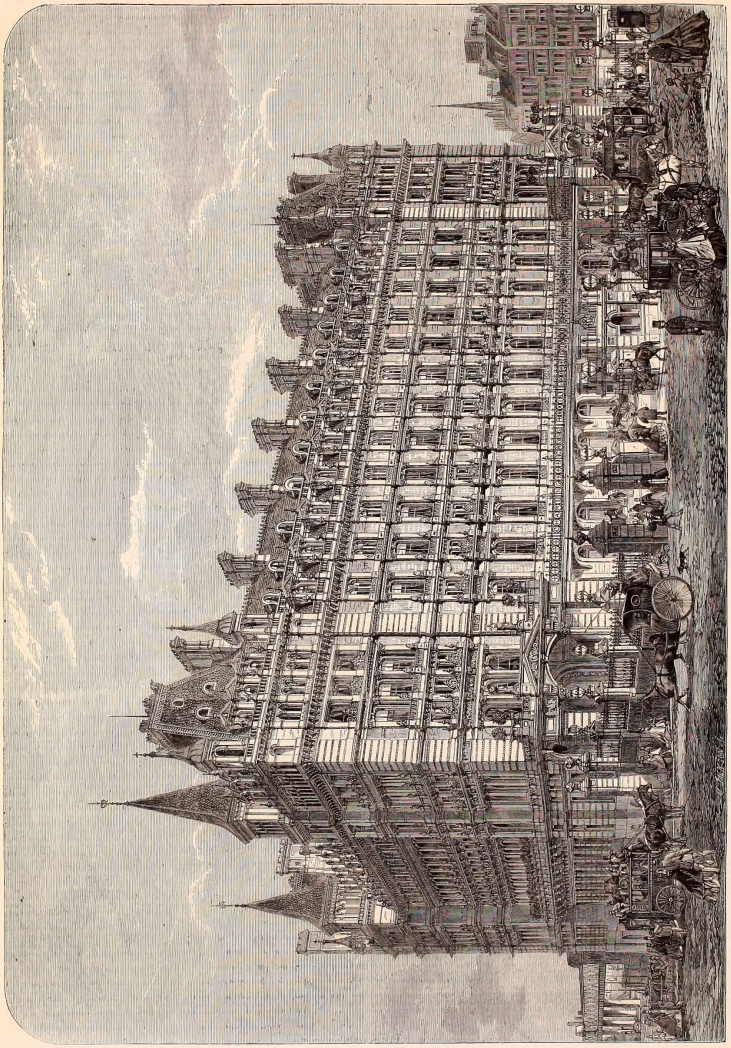
The distinguished young American pianist Willie Pape had the honour of playing at Marlborough House on Monday evening, by the command of Her Royal Highness the Princess of Wales.

It is now determined that the lamented Meyerbeer's long, locked-for work, "L'Africaine," shall be produced next season. The clause in the composer's will authorising the performance of this work after submitting the last finishing touches and improvements for that purpose to M. Louis Brandus, in conjunction with M. Perrin, the director of the Grand Opéra, is to be forthwith carried into effect. Of course the acceptance of the musical world are highly excited. Meyerbeer has left personal property to the amount of three millions of francs, or £120,000 sterling. He has left a widow and two daughters.

A new musician—Mdme. Marie Pacini—has appeared at the Grand Opéra. She made a very successful début last week as Matilda in "Guillaume Tell." The Parisian critics speak highly of her both as an actress and a singer.

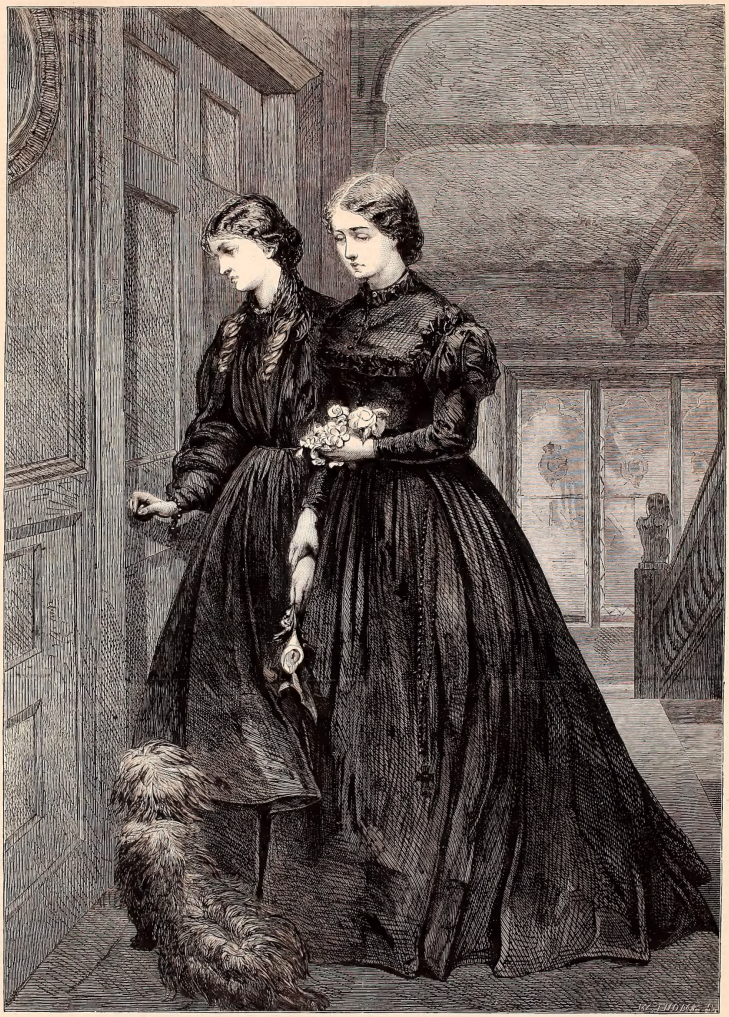
M. Fiorentino, the distinguished dramatic and musical critic, died at Paris last week. He had been a contributor to the Parisian literary world, and is the author of a highly esteemed translation of the great poem of Dante.

THE THEATRES.



PRINCESS'.—Mr. Dominick Murray, the gentleman who has undertaken to supply comedy at this theatre, is a writer of decided peculiarity. His performance of Irish character is exceedingly good, as he has lately proved by enacting the hero of "Born to Good Luck." On Monday he had the misfortune of appearing in an original part in Mr. Slous's new drama, entitled "Light and Shadow." The part, we believe, was originally intended for Mr. Belmore; but it has lost nothing by falling into the hands of his successor. The groundwork of the interest of the new play is identical with that of many other plays. Both the serf and the hunchback have been already traveled, and well trented, too, by Knowles and other dramatists. Mr. Slous in this play, or the French author from whom he has borrowed the story, has not novelty by combining the two. The hero of the new drama is a hunchback, who had become so deformed in the service of his master's daughter, Clarisse (Miss Carson), in whose behalf he happened to climb a tree, in pursuit of her favourite bird, and, falling, broke his back. Pierre, such is the lad's name, wears the portrait of Clarisse; but the lady, having been made acquainted with the fact by her aristocratic lover, demands the picture from him, and in return seeks to benefit her admirer. Her father has determined to pull down the cottage in which Pierre's mother resides in order to the improvement of his prospect; but, the old dame being upon her death-bed, both the lady and the serf plead, but in vain, for a little delay. The attempt to remove the sick woman causes her death. A boy in the employ of Monsieur le Vicomte is wounded through mischief, and Pierre is thereupon sentenced to imprisonment. In the meanwhile he has suffered incarceration in the Bastille. Redeemed from his hard fate by the Revolution, he returns to his native village in the fever in favour of the Mississipi scheme is raging in Paria, and lets out his hump for a writing-desk to the eager speculators of the period. The hump, however, is soon found to be useful to him in speculate, and, when the bubble bursts, he finds himself the winner to such an extent that he is thought fit to be made Prime Minister. Prime Minister at his command. Two noblemen who had insulted him become his debtors, and a duchess, who had been the cause of the loss of the latter, owe their lives or fortunes to his clemency. In all this there is an obvious resemblance to the plot employed for enabling it to defective in probability. Nor are there those gradations in the development of the story which are necessary to a thoroughly acceptable. There are three characters which certainly stand out as the central ones; but of these, two only, nevertheless, but sketches. The part of the Marquis, the heroine's father, was superbly acted by Mr. Bray; and Mr. Belmore, as a humble friend of this hero, who, defending his mother's cottage, had suffered as a galley-slave, threw great life into the outline. Mr. Murray perfectly understood his character, and brought forward his points well and a nice intelligence which mark him for an actor of superior merit.

NATIONAL SPORTS.



THE prices and the weather were in keeping last Saturday, when Mr. Tattersall sold twenty-four Royal yearlings at Hampton Court for £6076 gs., or £253 each. Leo, by Lanercost—Leo (an twenty-eight avenged only 212 gs., Lord Stamford giving the top price, 370 gs., for Alvediston, by Newminster—Naylah, and, both to the sale, as his nearly full sister in blood, a filly of immense substance, from Evergreen, by Melbourne—Nayland, was bought by Mr. Merry for 1200 gs., and finally knocked down to the last-named gentleman at 50 gs. more. An Orlando colt from Distraction (850 gs.) was second on the list, and Mr. Merry's Newminster—Queen Mary third-priced lot, a King Tom colt (470 gs.), of Mr. Greville's thirteen, which averaged 199 gs., and Mr. Merry's purchase of last year. The St. Albans stock were very bloodlike, and although none of them realised such prices as the Hampton Court lot, they were by far the best of the Dundas made 370. Time had dealt very gently with Orlando, who is rising twenty-one years old, and is as free a doer as foals by him next season. Lord Stamford merely bought an Idle Boy filly (Lovage), and Mr. Merry secured a chestnut colt by Lanercost at 330 gs.

Very few of The Wing were at Paris, but among "the distinguished arrivals" on Saturday night was the Turf Wimbs, "Joey Jones," who appeared on the Boulevards in a new suit of clothes of the latest Parisian cut, and with a huge white hat turned up with red, which her three skywards most enthusiastically in honour of the Emperor and Empress when they passed by in their carriage. The Turf Wimbs had exchanged greetings with Isabel, la beauptiste to the French Jockey Club, who now wears a pair of moustaches and a dyed beard, dressed in chocolate, red, and black, the colours of M. Delamarre. What Athol Blair, Lord Clanricarde, and Mr. Merry think of a steep gallop on its racecourse before going on to Longchamps. Only one of the Derby winners was there, and that was Blair Athol (Challoner), Fille de l'Air (A. Edwards), winner of the English and French Derbies, was not there, but Mr. Merry was at the French Two Thousand; Beau Brocard (Flatman), winner of the Two Thousand, was not there, Gladiateur (Harris) has only been cast once, and had beaten Saumise in a canter, so that France selected the four best out of the fifty who started for the battle. The Derby was run in the "west-bent" on the hard ground, by off at first, and, drawing gradually up, disposed of Fille de l'Air in entering the last mile, Gladiateur, Saumise, and Beau Brocard all from end to end, and the Derby winner was beaten cleverly by two lengths. The race was run in 2 min. 45 sec. The betting in this race was very bad, and the Sporting Life states that to this cause Mr. D'Aumont attributed the loss of his money. The Parisians are "tuitres" or "tonic," is by The Nabob (bred by the late Mr. Harvey Combe, Jr.), and was purchased by Mr. Merry for 1000 gs. on a confidence. He had not been tried with Bois Roussel, and the bulk of the stable's money was on that horse. Unfortunately, Vermouth is out of the race, and the Cesarewitch is open.

Ascot opened with an enormous attendance and one of the finest days's sport that has been witnessed for years. The principal race by Trial Stakes, but the best of them had no earthly chance of conceding 14 st. for an hour and a quarter, and Mr. Merry's colt won in a canter, creeping up as a sire. Birchbrook was last in a field of twelve for The Vase, in which Lurcher, Newminster, Mr. Merry's purchase, and Armstrong, &c., were all obliged to strike their colours to Mr. Craven's Newminster—Seclusion colt, ridden by Mr. Tatton Sykes's breeding. "The talent" picked the winner, King Charming, out of seven for the Prince of Wales's Stakes, but the wiseacres lost pulled them through by a neck. In the Queen's Stand Plate Zambesi, a winner for the Gentlemen Riders, carried off the Prince of Wales Stakes the Derby running was utterly reversed, as "the Epsom duke," Knight of Snowdon, although on 12lb. less than Lecturer, was not in the race, whereas the whose victory caused quite a jubilee. This beautiful son of Kingston, who was sold by Mr. Merry for 300 guineas after his win in the Derby (which was a fortune shorter), united Fille de l'Air and The Knight of the Garter in his pedigree, and, although he was just as he liked. Hollyfox was fourth and Hymettus seventh. Meeting of the Ascot Stakes was a splendid race, and for the original Derby cracks, Liddington and Salpinxes. She disposed of the latter easily enough, but Lecturer was the Goodwood horse, Mr. Merry is again installed with a first favourite for the Derby at 10 to 1. The Hunters' Stakes fell to Mr. Bowes's Lord Clifden, a winner for Mr. Gonter just as Job Marson rode Musician for the Grafswicks Stakes at Goodwood, and was strong in front, but Lecturer, who was never pull, and coming again at the finish. A vase and £1300 was run for on this day, or considerably more than is given at Goodwood during the whole week. The Ascot Stakes was one of the few previous to the Derby, and Mr. Merry's Newminster—Queen Mary colt, by Newminster—Queen Mary colt, by Newminster—Queen Mary colt, by

THE CHARING-CROSS RAILWAY STATION AND HOTEL.—SEE PRECEDING PAGE.

'FOR THE LAST TIME,' BY MISS E. OSBORN, IN THE ROYAL ACADEMY EXHIBITION.

SEE NEXT PAGE.

"FOR THE LAST TIME."

IN an article on the Royal Academy Exhibition we remarked that the picture by Miss E. Osborn, which is engraved this week, was the most refined work of that artist we had seen; but that its subject was, perhaps, too simply mournful in the interest it would excite. The last observation was, however, intended as referring rather to the popular taste than as expressing our own decided conviction. For our own part, we would extend the scope and functions of art as widely as possible. A purely painful domestic tragedy, indeed, or a subject calculated merely to harrow up the feelings of the spectator or to excite feelings of horror and disgust, such as many of the Spanish pictures of martyrdom, should, in our judgment, be proscribed as violating either morality or taste; but we would not, therefore, wish to exclude these scenes of pathos, even if founded on the sense of hopelessness, which appeal only to sentiments of the gentlest and purest pity. There are many things in the world which are not pleasant—they include the fierce tempers of the poet—and why not also of the painter? Life, in manners, as in morals, is a mixture of good and evil—the element of suspense and uncertainty—which is indubitably one of the chief sources of delight in the drama, and of excitement of interest while in poetry, in fiction, and in art. Question after question immediately arises in the mind of the reader of all these fair stories, dressed in the deepest mourning, passing before they enter the chamber—Nor, Lord help us, have they been traced? The drawn blinds of the house windows tell of one still unbreathed. The gate, whose open sea red with weeping, hand and one second clear. They are unattended by other members of the family in this last sad visit. They have no companion but their faithful dog. These circumstances would seem to indicate that the family is lonely orphans. We still ask the picture, whose lifeless form it is that they will meet with those three rooms? Is it that of a sailor? Is it that of a soldier? Is it that of a student? Is it that of a poet? Is it that of a painter? Is it that of a sister, or who may it be? Every one who sees it will be sure to see her interpretation of the picture. We cannot attempt to give a more explicit application to what is after all an impersonal subject. We may, however, direct attention to the old-fashioned carved wainscoting of the entrance; the homelike stained-glass windows; the old clock on the mullioned window, which are faintly seen through the drawn blinds; and the long, rampant supporting a cuirass at the bottom of the staircase. These should serve to intimate that this is the house of some ancient family; and the idea that these fearful, unnerving fits are the last of the race would seem to add a tribute to enhance the pathetic interest which their figures cannot fail to awaken.

SKETCHES IN PARLIAMENT.

CONSTITUTIONAL Government, in the sense in which it is interpreted in Parliament, seems to be temporarily suspended. We say, here, in that when Governments are unable to command majorities on small as well as great questions their Constitutional days are virtually over in their places. The practice at present established seems to be for Ministers to be constantly put into minorities, and then to recover from the numerical smallness of the division lists, and because of the hesitating political characters of those who form the Conservative and Liberals being always combined, and now and then calling on the expression of Opposition to vote with them, to carry the vote of want of confidence. On two consecutive days in this week Government has sustained a defeat, one predetermined and perfectly inevitable, the other, perhaps, unexpected and the result of the improvidence of whippers-in. The proposition to remove the National Gallery from Pall Mall to Kensington Gore, which House is connected, a little illogically, perhaps, in the minds of a number of persons with that large question of the Royal Academy's patronage of a body known as the South Kensington clique, to which all our public architecture within a certain circumference, and social circle, around which is inscribed the designation of the Department for Science and Art. The contest between the two sets of buildings and this organisation has been going on for ten years, and, with one exception, the former have been triumphant. It was not to be in any case the victory to the organisation was more fatal to it than would have been a defeat. It was no question of the Royal Academy, but that a direct negative to the proposition to endow the Royal Academy with an ugly building, but convenient enough for its purposes, should stir up the discontent elements of the country. The first debate raged in the old fashion, and was therefore not notable except in one feature. It showed that Mr. Gladstone, by the clever arrangement of harvesting impromptus, dropped on a speech of Mr. Gladstone, in which some dot points were carefully prepared, had been brought to bear on the department over which Mr. Cowper, the proposer of the scheme then in the House, was put. He was vested with immense effect on the House in general, and on Mr. Gladstone in particular, who looked as if he had been taken out with sardonic laughter. Now, it happens that Mr. Gladstone, evidently against his will, has had to support the scheme, except for South Kensington purposes; and his sympathies being, as it is believed, on this occasion with the malcontents, he was grimly delighted at being able to inflict, vicariously, a Parliamentary blow on the contrivers of the suggested arrangement, without the telling words coming in semi-civilian form from his lips. The long quotations of Gladstone in opposition to Palmerston are constantly turning up before Gladstone in office with Palmerston, and he seems rather to like it. The other discomfiture of the Government was less pronounced, and, as we have said, was unexpected, but it was one of a series of similar facts which must cause the First Minister to regret with eminent bitterness the unfortunate list of his satellites, and, at times, to antidesmatise the settled smile which, through good or evil report, plays over the face of the Right Honourable Member for Manchester.

Recent Parliamentary occurrences have been episodical in their character, and any chronicle of them must be discursive and unconnected. A sharp skirmish which took place one evening on the subject of the Sardinian Treaties proved that the Foreign Department must be to their occupants—the centre one being the weakest of all. Mr. Osborne, a gentleman conducted by Lord Palmerston into public influence, much after the manner of Zamiel hovering over Adolph in the opera of "Der Freischütz"—described Government about the Conference. Lord Palmerston replied tartly and refused obliteration. The House was evidently amused. Mr. Osborne was evidently wishing for bathing the Government—his present Parliamentary tactics—next for his chief follower and benefactor. Lord John Russell was held a whispered conversation with him. In consequence, at a convenient moment up rose Lord John, and delivered, in a cougar-ous controversy, and, as it were, shooting round a corner at the Government, Mr. Osborne, and the rest of the miscellaneous anti-Ministerial constitutionalism. The astute member for Liskeard, ostensibly insinuating that he was not inclined to be made a catspaw of the Opposition by anybody, even could such be the case, was causing him to become almost hysterical and his utterance to be choked by a succession of convulsive coughs. It was a painful exhibition, because, as we could not but be grateful to Lord Robert Cecil for provoking a laugh by his great reluctance that he had not been more successful. By-the-way, it may be observed that Lord Robert has mellowed into one of the most effective speakers in the House. He has a little of asperity—indeed, his bitterness—malignant and deteriorated his undoubtedly strong and original style; but into middle life he has put and epigram—point and epigram, be it understood, being always the Minister's logical argument—which, in all their pointed force, in the manner is tempered with a certain gravity which redeems his speeches from that tone of hard sneering by which they used to be characterised, and gives them an impressiveness and even a grace which fills up the measure of their completeness as specimens of first-class Parliamentary oratory.

Friday evenings in the House of Commons are even more distinctive than Wednesday mornings in the matter of their conversation. The Friday of last week was so notable as to deserve mention. The motions on going into Committee of Supply were so numerous that it was close upon two o'clock in the morning when they were brought to conclusion. Of their variety and incongruity some idea may be formed when it is said that a person, who magnanimously sat them right through, could only bring away a confused and disjointed and dreamy motion that, for some reason or other, certain persons wanted their dividends paid in municipal spots in the Royal forests in Essex; that the Masters in the Navy Office were entitled to a higher salary than they received; and finally, and that the Lord Advocate had been appointed Governor of Greenwich Hospital. One distinct recollection, however, the lonely individual in question did bring away with him, and that was that Mr. Childers will make nearly as good a Civil Lord of the Admiralty as Mr. Corry made a bad one, and Mr. Ward a great.

It is generally supposed that the object to which the Intoxicating Liquor Bill was directed was the prevention of drunkenness by taxing away their cakes and ale—ecclaes, is decidedly serious one, and considering the present and future state of the Bill, we fear it is, then, that the debate upon it on Wednesday ran into such a comic. Mr. J. Locke, who is known to be a water-drinker, and who can say on a humourist—say, a wit of the first water—while he displayed the true facility of turning every one of his opponent's points to tell finally and emphatically on his argument. Nothing is so erratically deceived by humour as the House of Commons. It is moved to laugh at the argument, for, though they may raise laughter, they do not satisfy argument, and so it was with Locke. Everything was accepted and accepted in a dual sense. Captain Jervis, too, who moved the rejection of the bill, was quite sportive for a rather heavy gentleman, and when Sir Stafford Northcote, Mr. Ayrton, and Mr. Roebuck roared laughter inglutinately, and not, as usual, by themselves, the House was in a state of hilarity. This arose from the cause of a very singular Parliamentary occurrence—namely, that of a discussion of Parliamentary matters in a Parliamentary speech. It was made in its favour, the half-dozen words which dropped from Mr. Locke and something for their sakes, but the facts and elements of antagonism being wanting, individual rivalry, such as it was, was the only thing left to excite the House. Mr. Locke, as many hon. gentlemen who had charged themselves with speeches against the measure, had expected, had to speak first, and Mr. Locke unequivocally the House has shown that it is unwilling to incur that condemnation which, in one of the proverbs, has been invoked on all who try "to rob a poor man of his beer."

IMPERIAL PARLIAMENT

HOUSE OF LORDS.—MONDAY.

The Diocese and Metropolis Curates Act Amendment Bill was read a third time and passed.

In answer to a question by the Duke of Marlborough on the recent accident in Plymouth Sound through artillery practice, Earl De Grey said measures had been taken to prevent the recurrence of such disasters.

The Lord Chancellor brought up two messages from the Queen—one recommending a grant to the widow of Mr. Sheridan, and the other a pension of £100 a year to Lady Ripon. It was ordered that the messages should be taken into consideration on Thursday.

Lord Campbell moved for papers relative to the imprisonment of the Rev. Arthur Wagner, Rector of Killaloe, who had been arrested in the Bishop's Court, Ireland, for debt, and refused bail. He wished to call the attention of the Lord Chancellor to the matter, as he had just become aware of it.

The Earl of Clarendon moved the second reading of the Public Schools Bill, the object of which was to enable the Queen in Council to frame the governing bodies of public schools subject to future legislation upon the question. After some observations from the Duke of Somerset, the motion was agreed to.

HOUSE OF COMMONS.—MONDAY.

The Government of New Zealand.—Mr. Cardwell, in reply to a question by Mr. Ayrton, said that the Governor of New Zealand had been instructed to call on the Council for the purpose of defraying the expenses of the war in that colony, and that it was not the intention of the Government to propose any fresh taxation to meet an Imperial guarantee for the amount sought to be borrowed.—In reply to Mr. Hadfield, Mr. Cardwell said that the Government had no information of the attack on the Revd. Mr. Lloyd, but believed a force from Auckland had been sent to the district.

The Volunteer Force.—Sir John Pakington brought up two messages from the Queen, one recommending a grant to the widow of Mr. Sheridan, and the other to the Revd. Hill; the second recommended a pension of £1000 a year to be settled on Lady Ripon. Mr. Hadfield, Mr. Ayrton, and Mr. Roebuck objected that the House should on Thursday receive itself into Committee to consider these messages.

THE CONFERENCE.

Mr. Osborne inquired whether the Government had arrived at any decision respecting the maintenance of the Treaty of London, and if the suspension of hostilities would be continued during the sitting of the Conference.

Lord Palmerston replied to the first part of the question that he could not add anything to the statement he had made on the subject on Thursday, and to the latter part that no arrangement has yet been come to with regard to the continuance of the armistice. He hoped, however, that it would be so, and that the Conference would meet on the 12th inst.

In reply to Mr. Griffith, Sir E. Pak, and Mr. H. Seymour, the noble Lord stated that the Government had no information beyond what was in the Gazette not previously received. No day had yet been fixed for the next Conference, but it was probable that it would be for about the 12th or 13th instant. There was no reason to doubt that the Conference would meet again before the 20th of the present month.

On the order for Committee of Supply, Lord H. Lennox wished to know whether Mr. Disraeli would be present at the sitting of the Conference, as the Premier on the subject of the Conference, and called upon the hon. member for Buckinghamshire to state whether he had any right to be present there.

Mr. Disraeli said he had no right to be present at the Conference, but the statements contained in foreign journals as to the proceedings of the Conference were wholly false. He had not left London since the close of the commencement of the session declared themselves so frankly in favour of the Government, and he had no intention of leaving London while the Conference which would not continue its sittings longer if it were not on the basis of the continuation of that vote.

Mr. Osborne said, with reference to the answer of the noble Lord, he viewed it as a most unsatisfactory one, and one which showed that the Government had been instituted more to preserve the integrity of the Treasury bench and the salaries of its occupants than to preserve the integrity of Denmark and the integrity and independence of the Danish monarchy. He was surprised at the reticence of the House, and thought that no time had arrived when the House could go into Committee of Supply with propriety.

Mr. Disraeli said he was disappointed at the answer given by the Prime Minister, but he could not say that he was surprised at it, because it had been calculary, wise, and politic on the part of the Government if they had been able to arrive at a settlement of the question at the Conference that night. The fact was that Parliament was not convinced that the policy pursued by the Government was the right one, consequently, as the policy they were now pursuing was a doubtful one, it was politic and wise that it should be observed. In saying this he did not wish to disparage the Government, but merely to state the facts of the circumstances; but he thought it would have been more satisfactory if the noble Lord had been able to make a statement upon the subject. The principle of policy on which the Government had entered the Conference were these—that they would not consent to the dismemberment of Denmark, the integrity of their sounding; and that, if they did not succeed, the Government would not continue responsible for the consequences. He was disappointed that when they heard that their course was one exactly opposite to their original policy, the Government had not been able to announce that they should not continue responsible for the consequences of their own opinion.

Lord Palmerston complained of Mr. Disraeli that he was taking him at a disadvantage, and that, although he was in the position of a Minister, he was his arms tied behind him. The right hon. gentleman knew that he was unable to say what the course of the Government would be, and that it was his duty to day what was taking place in the Conference would be to endanger the success of the pending negotiations. Therefore, in the position of the right hon. gentleman's hands, he should not be induced to violate what he considered his duty to the House and the country by making any statement in answer to the questions. When the proper time arrived he would make a statement which would prove that the Government had not been wanting in this matter.

After some observations from Mr. S. Fitzgerald, Lord R. Cecil, and other members, the subject dropped.

SUPPLY.—NEW NATIONAL GALLERY.

The House then went into Committee of Supply, and

Mr. Cowper moved a supplementary vote of £10,930, part of a sum of £62,000, for the erection of a national gallery on a site in the gardens of Burlington House—the determination of the Government to remove the national collection from the building in Trafalgar-square being the result of a careful weighing of the reports of numerous commissions and committees which had sat on the subject during the last twenty years.—Lord J. Manners moved the rejection of the vote, his object being to test the opinion of the House on the question whether the national gallery should be removed from or not from its central position in Trafalgar-square. After a long discussion the vote was carried by 174 to 122. The Government was thus defeated on their own proposition.

The Civil Service Estimates were then proceeded with, and several votes for the expenses of the public offices were agreed to.

HOUSE OF LORDS.—TUESDAY.

The Union Assessment Committee Act Amendment Bill was, after a brief discussion, read a third time.

A bill respecting the consecration of Diverse schools and colleges, brought in by the Bishop of Oxford, was read a first time.

The greater part of the sitting was devoted to a discussion in Committee of the clauses of the Penal Servitude Acts Amendment Bill. Some important amendments were made, and the bill passed through Committee.

HOUSE OF COMMONS.—TUESDAY.

New Bills.—In Committee of Supply on Mr. Hodgson Pratt's motion, leave was given to Mr. P. Howard to bring in a bill to repeal the duties on paper. Leave was also given to Mr. Mitchell to bring in a bill to consolidate the law of Ireland so far as that of England was consolidated by the measures in municipal reform, &c. Mr. Fault to consolidate and amend the Acts regulating procedure before justices of the peace out of quarter sessions in England and Wales. Mr. Williams to amend the superannuation laws as to officers of unions.

Consular Duties.—Mr. Lindsay moved for a copy of any correspondence between her Majesty's Government and the Governments of France, Spain, Portugal, Holland, and the Federal States, relative to the abrogation of the discriminating duties and tonnage dues upon British vessels and their cargoes trading with those countries. The hon. gentleman said that the object of his motion was to ascertain what steps had been taken to entered into treaties with other nations and asked them if they were prepared to follow our example. All other nations were willing to adopt the principle of free trade in corn, except ourselves, and these were Prussia, Spain, Portugal, Holland, and the Federal States of America. With regard to the latter, the probability was that the events now taking place would open the ir ade of America to the whole world. In Holland the Government was about to submit a measure to the Legislature of that country. If Portugal and Spain would remove their restrictions, the trade of the Mediterranean would be greatly benefited and encouraged. As to Prussia, he was sorry to say that the enlightened country should still maintain its restrictive policy, and he was quite sure that if the Zollverein could obtain the same concessions as regarding this country as the Netherlands, they had been swept away. He was aware that foreign nations were not much disposed to listen to our advice, but we could not help thinking that if the Government did their duty, these nations would not only see that it was just to grant us what we had granted to them, but that it was the way open for their own interests to do so.—Mr. M. Gibson agreed in the main with the sentiments expressed by the hon. member for Sunderland. The correspondence between Lord Cowley and Mr. Seward, U.S. Secretary, who urged upon the Government the duty of instructing their agents in China to prevent the exportation of arms to the belligerent parties in the United States. The motion was agreed to.

Agricultural Statistics.—Mr. Caird moved for the appointment of a Select Committee to inquire into the present collection and publication of agricultural statistics of Great Britain would be advantageous to the public interest. The motion was strongly recommended and supported by the persons engaged in the Ordnance Survey, and that the best would not accord fully with the views of the Government in this matter. Mr. Hardcastle, Mr. Dent, and Mr. Thompson.—Mr. Hubbard, Lord Naas, Mr. Bass, and Mr. Huggin spoke in favour of it.—Lord J. Russell said that the Government were quite satisfied that agricultural statistics would be advantageous, but they thought that the time was not quite ripe for it. Some useful data were collected for the United Kingdom, but not completely. He objected to the resolution that it did not advance by one step the information we now possess. The proper course to pursue was to adopt the plan suggested by a bill on the subject.—Mr. Milner Gibson, in moving the previous question, admitted that the object of the motion was good, but that it was premature in the interest of both the agricultural and commercial community; but resolutions and already existing data. He thought that the time was not yet when we ought to recruit for multiplying them. The question was, how these statistics were to be collected. If the plan of Mr. Caird and Mr. Pusey was calculated to solve it.—Mr. Caird replied, and, on a division, the motion was carried by 77 to 74.

HOUSE OF COMMONS.—WEDNESDAY.

The report on Supply was brought up and agreed to.

The Rebecca Riots (Ireland) Bill was read a third time and passed.

The Chief Baron (Ireland) Bill also read a third time and passed.

The Bankruptcy Bill was read a second time.

The Intoxicating Liquors Bill.—The second reading of this bill was moved by Mr. Lawson, who explained that its object was to provide that no license to sell intoxicating liquors should be granted or renewed unless in cases two thirds of the inhabitants of the parish were opposed to it.—Captain Jervis moved that the House should resolve that the bill be read a second time that day three months, and he had lived for several years in three States of America where such a law was in operation and found that it had no restriction in saying that drunkenness had increased under the system. He thought that the bill was a most unjust one for his place, and he should be sorry to see it become a law.—Mr. Locke supported the bill. There was great drunkenness in Ireland, and there he considered with the Permissive Bill. He was thoroughly sympathised with those who desired to promote habits of temperance, but he could not agree with those who wished us to justify the case for the bill. He feared that if it passed into a law it might be followed by violent, subtle, and dangerous agitation. The measure was unnecessary to the holders of property, and perhaps give rise to a pernicious reaction against the praiseworthy movement in favour of temperance.—Mr. Bowyer denounced the measure as a mischievous one, that would spread dissension and heartburnings throughout the country. He was sure that the effect of the bill would be to create a reaction in the retrenchment in the House of Commons. He thought that the most dangerous class of drunkards were the agricultural labourers, and that the bill would be to justify them to blame for what had taken place but themselves. At the same time he thought it was highly discreditable to the civil and military authorities of the United States Government that they had not fully investigated the representations which had been made to them by Lord Lyons. His noble friend (Lord Chandos) had requested that, if our remonstrances failed, the case was one for a declaration of war. Without going to that extent, he (Lord Russell) could not think that the case was one of that class which did frequently lead to war, and he sincerely regretted that the United States Government had not given that satisfaction which we had a right to demand for the violation of our representation. At the same time, he believed that we had quite as much reason to complain of the conduct of the Confederates as of the Federals. He could assure the House that the representations which had been made much would be continued, and he hoped they would be attended with success. Unfortunately, if we were to arrive at any satisfactory result, we must do so with such a reckless expenditure of life and treasure on both sides that all representations or remonstrances appeared to be useless.

The Marquis of Clanricarde said it was notorious that recruiting for the Federal army was going on in this country, and that the law on the subject must be altered, as it was difficult to obtain proof.

Earl Russell observed that if the noble Marquis would supply him with proof in reference to any of the instances to which he referred in the hands of the Home Secretary, in order that he might prosecute the parties. The matter was then agreed to.

HOUSE OF COMMONS.—THURSDAY.

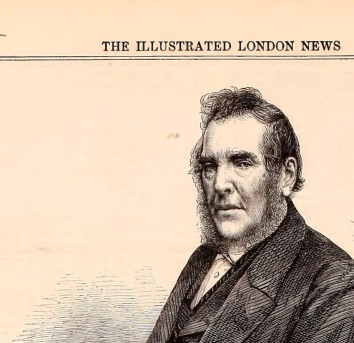
The Archbishop of Canterbury Bill passed through Committee.

The Solicitor-General moved that the Bill for the Amendment of the Law of Partnership be read a second time.

Mr. Hadfield objected to the Bill, as it would be impossible to carry out its provisions.

Mr. Bazley said that the Bill had been drawn with the greatest care, and he hoped that the House would not refuse to read it a second time.

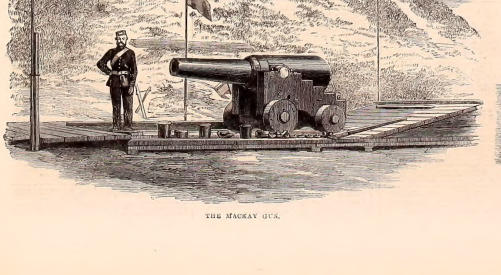
Mr. Bouverie said that the Bill would be found to be unworkable, and that it would be better to withdraw it.



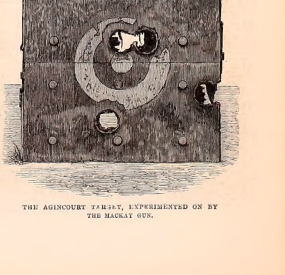
Mr. Gregory said that the Bill would be found to be unworkable, and that it would be better to withdraw it

1. FOX TERRIER. 2. SILVE TERRIERS. 3. POMERANIAN. 4. BLENHEIM SPANIEL. 5. IRISH WATER SPANIEL. 6. OTTER-HOUND. 7. FOX-HOUND.
8, 9, 10. HARRIERS. 11. BLOOD-HOUND. 12. FOX-HOUND. 13. KANGAROO HOUND. 14. NEWFOUNDLAND. 15. INDIAN MASTIFF.

PRIZE DOGS OF THE SECOND INTERNATIONAL DOG SHOW AT THE ISLINGTON AGRICULTURAL HALL.—SEE PRECEDING PAGE.



he applied himself to the invention and introduction of improved turret-clocks, gasmeters, electro-magnets, side-looms, and many other objects besides those already mentioned. In 1847, at the request of the contractor for the great tubes of the Conway Bridge, Mr. Roberts produced, almost impromptu, one of the most ingenious inventions known in metal-working. This was the "Jacquard punching-machine," an automatic tool of great power, whereby the rivet-holes in a large plate are punched to any required pattern and pitch without need of templates or marking, and with a precision enabling any two of a thousand plates to be riveted together without the subsequent correction of the rivet-holes, which had always before been necessary. Without this invention the tubes of the Conway Bridge could not have been completed in time; and by it, also, their strength was increased, and their cost of construction cheapened. The same punching machinery was employed in the construction of the Boyne Viaduct, the Victoria Bridge (the tubes of which are a mile and a quarter long) over the St. Lawrence at Montreal, and the great Japan Bridge of the East Indian Railway. In 1852 Mr. Roberts designed and made widely known his improved plans for ocean steam-ships of great size, with the improved cross section of bow now adopted by our own and by the French naval authorities. Besides this improvement, he at the same time invented that of the double keels and twin screws, with independent engines, which has now been applied with remarkable success in several steam-vessels of recent construction. An example of the double-screw steamer, which our readers will probably remember, is the Atalanta, built by Messrs. Dudgeon, of Blackwall, a sketch of whose race with one of the Dover and Calais packet-boats was engraved for this Journal two months ago. These plans were for some time up upon the Admiralty, and in 1855 they were submitted by Mr. Roberts, in person, to the Emperor of the French, who examined them critically, and in whose navy some of their peculiarities have been already adopted. In 1852 Mr. Roberts retired from the active pursuit of his profession, although, until within a few days of his death, he continued to practise as a consulting engineer. "His habits and mode of life were marked," say those who knew him personally, "by great simplicity and unceasing industry. A workman himself, he was ever the workman's true friend. Scientific and other institutions for the benefit of working men, especially in the locality of his early labours, found in him an earnest and liberal supporter. In his character Mr. Roberts's integrity shone conspicuous. He abhorred a lie, and hated dissimulation with a heartiness which could only be best appreciated when he was opposed by the least departure on the part of others from what he believed to be the exact truth. His memory of what was essential to truth never faltered, and it has been said of him by Lord Campbell, Lord Brougham, and other eminent Judges, that his answer would be always the same. At one time Mr. Roberts was in comfortable circumstances; but the loss he sustained by the forced sale of his property in Manchester when its value had depreciated, in consequence of the difficulties growing out of the stoppage of the American supply of cotton, left him with only his own exertions to depend upon. There he continued almost to the last hour of his long life; and only the day previous to his death, although in a state of extreme weakness, he dictated to his daughter, who had never left his side, a description of some improvements in the sewing-machine and in machines for cutting slate. Those who knew Mr. Roberts in private life spoke feelingly of the noble example of filial devotion which his daughter's conduct had presented. Her graces and talents would have easily won for her a different position, but she preferred to sacrifice, not only her prospects, but even her health, to the last hour, in order that her father's path to the grave might be smoothed by a daughter's affectionate care. Her case has excited an unusual degree of sympathy, and it is widely felt that the noblest memorial of the father's life and services will be a fitting provision for the daughter." These remarks we have borrowed from a statement, authenticated by the committee formed at an influential meeting, held in the house of the Society of Arts on the 27th of April, when a resolution, proposed by Mr. William Fairbairn and seconded by Mr. Bazley, M.P., was unanimously passed to open a public subscription for the object set forth in the last sentence. We observe the Duke of Sutherland, the Earl of Caithness, and Lord Stanley, with many of the best Manchester names, in the list of this committee.



THE LATE MR. RICHARD ROBERTS, MECHANICIAN AND ENGINEER.

EXPERIMENTS WITH THE MACKAY GUN ON CROSBY SANDS, LIVERPOOL.

We present two Illustrations of the experiments which have lately been practised on Crosby Sands, near Liverpool, with the gun invented by Mr. James Mackay, timber merchant, of that town, and manufactured by the Mersey Steel and Ironworks Company. It has been tried at various ranges against a target similar to the sides of the iron-clad steamer Agincourt, now building for government in the yard of Messrs. Laird and Co., of Birkenhead. One of our Engravings represents the Mackay gun; the other shows what holes were made by it in this target on the 12th of April and the 9th and 18th of May. These Engravings are from photographs taken by Mr. J. Wilson, of Castle-street, Liverpool. The principle of Mr. Mackay's invention may be easily explained. The ordinary system has been, in all rifled cannon, to allow as little windage as possible, and to make the shot fit the grooves of the piece, taking from them a rotation in its flight. Mr. Mackay, on the other hand, has conceived the plan of having his grooves so arranged that, while the shot fits closely to their outer edge, the grooves are left open for windage. By this arrangement the gas has to travel some feet further than the shot, and in doing this imparts a rapid and perfect "spin" to it. The shots are of cylindrical form, perfectly smooth, with conical heads, and capped at the other end in proportion, so that each shot is perfectly balanced from the centre of its length. Mr. Mackay in his patent also claims a peculiarity in the wadding, which is of sawdust. Hence, at the movement of the first ignition of the powder, the elasticity of the wadding moves the shot slightly forward; the effect is that the whole of the powder is burnt, and the shock on the breech of the gun considerably lessened. Mr. Mackay's gun is of wrought iron, weighs nine tons, has a bore of 8·12 inches, and in other respects corresponds with the general features of the ordinary 68-pounder. There are twelve grooves, and, as the shot does not enter these grooves, it allows of a much sharper twist than in ordinary rifled guns. The target consisted of an outer plate, 7 ft. square and 9 in. thick, of rolled iron; next came 9 in. of teak, then an inner plate or skin three fourths of an inch thick, then angle iron and ribbing, and finally a backing up with timber balks and supports 18 in. thick. The plates, also made by the Mersey Steel and Iron Company, were the best that can be made of rolled iron. On the last occasion the gun was charged with 30 lb. of powder, and with a cast-steel bolt 12 in. long, which weighed 153 lb., made by Firth and Sons, of Sheffield. Major-General Sir Edward Cust, Colonel Sir J. Jones, Captain Scott, R.N., and Colonel Youngbusband, R.A., of the Ordnance Select Committee, with other gentlemen, witnessed the trial on the 18th ult. Mr. Mackay himself laid the gun at 200 yards nearly point blank, and it was then fired. On an examination of the target the accuracy and power of the weapon were at once discernible. In the centre of the target was a 9-in. bull's-eye, and a centre ring about 18 in. in diameter. On the right upper corner of this centre the ball from the right edge, and 6 in. from the upper edge, and 6 in. from the top edge, and the man who picked up the shot states that it was lying in a straight line with the gun. So far as one could judge at the time, the flight of the bolt was not quite straight, but very nearly so, and its force unquestionable. The first grave was 325 yards from the gun, the second at 445 yards, and the third at 565 yards. The projectile was picked up at a distance of 1095 yards from the gun, and was quite uninjured, though it had been used before for ricochet firing with the Mackay gun. The range and accuracy of the weapon remained to be tested. With a view to ascertain this, the gun was loaded with a charge of 25 lb. of powder—7 lb. less than the regulation charge for firing such a shot as that used—and a cast-iron bolt with a square base, weighing 180 lb. The angle of elevation was 12 deg. This was a severe test, but the gun stood it well. The recoil was considerable. The shot screamed through the air, and at 3735 yards an immense hole had been excavated in the sand, and a column of sand and water thrown up to a great height. We observe that the Government have arranged to give this weapon a full and fair trial at Shoeburyness.

THE MACKAY GUN.

THE AGINCOURT TARGET, EXPERIMENTED ON BY THE MACKAY GUN.

 The charge for the insertion of Births, Marriages, and Deaths is Five Shillings for each announcement.

BIRTHS.

On May 30, at Brockwood, Co. Dublin, the Honourable Mrs. Forster, of a son.

On the 3rd inst., at Barking, Essex, the wife of William F. Fisher, of a daughter.

On the 17th ult., at Ipswich, at the residence of her brother-in-law H. Ridley, Esq., the wife of John Thurston, Esq., R.N., M.M.S. Camelion, of a son. Mother and child doing well.

MARRIAGES.

On the 1st inst., at St. Margaret's, Lee, Kent, by the Rev. J. D. Harding, John George Woodward, Esq., of Sutherland, to Charlotte Christine, eldest daughter of Louis L. De Vere, Esq., of Carisbrooke House, Lee, Blackheath, and granddaughter of the late Admiral Sir Thomas Hastings, K.C.B.

On the 1st inst., at Bolsire Church, Essex, by the Rev. and Ven. Charles Harris, Archdeacon of Wilts, assisted by the Rev. T. Ley, the Rev. Henry Salusbury Ley, of Bolsire, Witham Hussey, second son of the late Ambrose Hussey, Esq., of the Middle Temple, to Katherine, second daughter of Charles C. Barton, Esq., of Rope-hill, near Lymington.

On the 2nd inst., at St. James's Church, Paddington, by the Rev. T. J. Hoare, brother-in-law of the bride, assisted by the Rev. J. E. Kelly, Hamilton Wortley, only son of Mr. Stockbridge Kelly, Esq., of Mecklenburgh-square, to Ellen, youngest daughter of the late Mr. Thomas Hoare, of Broadhilly and Gloucester-road, Regent's-park.

On the 30th ult., at Witham-on-the-hill, by the Rev. R. E. Johnson, Rector of Lutterworth and Vicar of Claybrook, uncle of the bride, Wm. Goddard Jackson, Esq., Barrister, son of Wm. Goddard Jackson, Esq., of Lutterworth, Staddington, to Selina Burbank Marin, third daughter of the late Lieutenant-General Wm. Augustus Johnson, of Wytham Hall, Lincolnshire.

On the 1st inst., at St. George's Church, Hanover-square, by the Rev. Benjamin Walker Burke, M.A., Incumbent of Christ Church, Lancaster-gate, Hyde-park, Edward Lee, Esq., and of Golden Manor, Hanwell, Middlesex, late 1st Life Guards, to Gloucester-terrace, Hyde Park, widow of the late Major Edward Kentish, Esq., of Belmont, Kent, C.B.

DEATH.

On the 2nd of June, at Ashford, near Epsom Surrey, after a few days' illness, in the eighty-eighth year of his age, Daniel Maydwell, Esq. His numerous friends will please to accept this intimation from his bereaved family.

CRYSTAL PALACE.—Arrangements for next month June 1st.—SPECIAL ATTRACTIONS.

MONDAY and TUESDAY, The Water Fêtes in connection with Special Attractions, by Mr. Wyld.

WEDNESDAY, June 8.—Second Annual Archery of the Queen's Royal Company of Archers, Edinburgh, and Royal Scottish Archers. Band and Bl. K. Regiment, by permission, will accept of Crowns, Anthems, Madrigals, Part-songs, &c. Admission, 5s.

SATURDAY, JUNE 11.—The Shah of the series of Grand Open Days.

The Tri-Centenary Fête and Concert, with the Band of the Italian, Spanish and Portuguese Chapels.

Wednesday 15, Thursday 16, Friday 17, Saturday 18, Monday 20, Tuesday 21, Grand Concerts. New Picture Galleries also open. No rain checks.

CRYSTAL PALACE.—On Monday next a Popular Fête in Celebration of the 3rd Yearly Opening of the Palace, and in honour of the Marriage of H.R.H. the Prince of Denmark, upon which occasion Her Majesty the Queen and Royal Family will be present. The Fête-room Throne, with its beautiful canopy of crimson velvet and gold, will be used by Her Majesty and Royal Family on this occasion.

A special Rubber Entertainment on the Stage in the Ground-floor Refreshment-room, consisting of feats of strength and dexterity. Grand Ball-room for Second Annual Ascent of the Great High-level Balloon.

During the day and evening the Fountains and Cascades in the Grounds at various hours attended at the Crystal Palace.

Admission to the Grounds, Palace, and Ball-room, Sixpence.

CRYSTAL PALACE.—GREAT CHORAL and FLORAL FÊTE, in connection with the Royal Botanic Gardening Society, on MONDAY NEXT, WHIT-MONDAY, MAY 30. Conductor, Mr. W. H. MARTIN. Admission, Half-a-Crown; or by Season Tickets, free.

CRYSTAL PALACE.—PICTURE GALLERIES.—The Public are informed that the Picture Galleries are NOW OPEN. The Collection, prior to, equity to Mr. Wass, Superintendent of the Gallery.

All the Pictures in the usual Galleries are on view, and the Proprietors are happy to announce that the new colossal Living Agents, lent to the Crystal Palace Company for a limited period, are to be seen in the extra Chinese Gallery.

CRYSTAL PALACE.—GREAT ROSE SHOW of the SEASON, SATURDAY, JUNE 25. Schedules of Prizes of the Rose Show, Crystal Palace.

MR. SIMPSON'S WATER-COLOUR DRAWINGS of ITALIA, THIBET, and CAMBRIAN, at the German Gallery, 168, New Bond-street. Daily from 10 to 6. Six stamps.

ON VIEW, THE PICTURE of the MARRIAGE of H.R.H. the PRINCE OF WALES, painted from actual sittings, by command of Her Majesty the Queen and H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, and now in the possession of Her Majesty at the GERMAN GALLERY, 168, New Bond-street, daily, from One till Six. Admission, 1s.

 Invitation cards issued for the private view may still be received at the Gallery door.

INSTITUTE OF PAINTERS IN WATER COLOURS.—The Fifty-Eighth Exhibition is NOW OPEN at their GALLERY, 53, PALL-MALL (next St. James's Palace). Daily from Nine till Dusk. Admission, 1s.; Catalogue, 6d.

MR. ARTHUR SKETCHLEY will COMMENCE at the EGYPTIAN HALL, Piccadilly, in his New Entertainment, entitled PARIS and HER PEOPLE, MONDAY NEXT, June 6, and Every Evening (except Saturday), at Eight; and Saturday Mornings at Three. Stalls, 3s.; Area, 2s.; Gallery, 1s. Doors open half an hour before the Entertainments commence.

MR. and MRS. GERMAN REED, with MR. JOHN PARRY, will REMOVE every Evening (except Saturday) from the ST. GEORGE'S HALL to the LYCEUM THEATRE, on TUESDAY, the 7th inst., to open with a New Entertainment, by MR. CORNEY GRAIN, entitled GRAIN'S LYCEUM GAZETTE, by Mr. John Parry, Mr. German Reed, &c., &c. THE SEASON of Mr. German Reed Out of Town, by Mr. John Parry. Stalls, 3s.; Admission, 2s. and 1s. Doors open at Eight.

MR. W. S. WOODIN'S ELOPEMENT TO GRETNA, ENTERTAINMENT and SKETCHES from LIFE, EVERY NEW ENTERTAINMENT, EVERY EVENING at EIGHT (except Saturday), at the ADELAIDE GALLERY, Lowther Arcade, Strand. Stalls, 3s.; Admission, 2s.; Second Seats, 1s. Doors open at 7. Acts, 8s.; Amphitheatre, 1s.; Private Stalls, 21 3s.; Stage Box, 21 10s. To secure which seats, apply at the Hall from Eleven to Five.

MRS. JOHN MACFARREN'S "MORNINGS AT THE PIANOFORTE," ST. JAMES'S HALL, On THURSDAY MORNINGS, JUNE 9 and 23, at Three o'clock precisely. Programmes, Vocalists, and Instrumentalists, with full particulars of each piece remarks on the music. Vocalists, Miss Banks, Miss Palmer. Stalls, 5s. and 3s. each Morning.

MR. BUHE'S PIANOFORTE RECITAL will take place at the HANOVER-SQUARE ROOMS, on THURSDAY MORNING, JUNE 9, at Three o'clock precisely. Tickets, 10s. 6d. each, to be had of Mr. Buhe, 3, Hanover-street, W. Boxes, full performers will be duly announced.—3, Hanover-street, Hanover-square.

MONDAY POPULAR CONCERTS.—ST. JAMES'S HALL.—Sole Lessee and Manager, Mr. JOHN BOOSEY.—MONDAY EVENING NEXT, JUNE 13, the Programme will include Beethoven's Quartet in F minor, No. 11, Op. 95; Mozart's Trio in E flat, No. 1; Thalberg's, in F sharp minor, Op. 69; and Mendelssohn's in D minor, Op. 49; Pianoforte, Madame Arabella Goddard; Violin, Herr Joachim; Violoncello, Signor Piatti; Violin and Tenor, Mr. Blagrove; Violoncello, Mr. Reed; Vocalist, Mr. Sims Reeves. Conductor, Mr. Benedict. Stalls, 5s.; Balcony, 3s.; Admission, 1s. Doors open at 7. Commence at 8. Programmes and Tickets to be had of Cramer, Wood, and Co., 201, Regent-street; and Chappell and Co., 50, New Bond-street; and at the Hall, and Addison and Lucas, 2, Regent-street.

J. ELLA, Director.

JUNE 20.—ST. JAMES'S HALL

Under the Immediate Patronage of

His Royal Highness the PRINCE of WALES and

Her Royal Highness the PRINCESS of WALES.

MR. BENEDICT has the honour to announce that GRAND MORNING CONCERT, in commemoration of Half-year Services, Mendelssohn Orchestra Party, Violoncello, Lindsay Sloper, Trumpet, Harper, Mr. Benedict, Pianoforte, Madame Arabella Goddard, Mr. Charles Hallé, Miss Kate Loder, Miss Lucy Franklin, and Herr Joachim, Clarionet Signor Gardoni, Double Bass, Mr. Howell, Violin, Sainton, Mr. Blagrove, Mr. Willy, Mr. Carrodus, Mr. Watson, Mr. Zerbini, Violoncello, Piatti, Miss E. Wood, Messrs. F. Bodda, Montem Smith, Lewis, Thorley, Lawler, Sydney Jeromes, Lewis Thomas, Lawler, Sydney Smith, and Lewis Thomas, Harper, Signor Gardoni, Sydney Smith, Bodda, Lawler, Montem Smith, Lewis, Thomas, Lawler

ARCHERY.—A Ladies complete Set, 21s., consisting of full-size bow with ebonised handle, staghorn ferrule, arrows, arm-guard, glove, case, quiver, string, and pocket-book.—C. ARMSTRONG, 154, Oxford street, W.

CROQUET.—JAQUES' CROQUET GAMES. "Tea Price Medals, 1862.—Prices per Set, 21s., 31s., 42s., 52s. 6d., 63s., 84s., 105s., and upwards. Wholesale, Retail, and Export, 102, Hatton-garden.

UNIVERSAL MICROSCOPE, price £5 5s. SMITH, BECK, and BECK, 31, Cornhill, E.C. (late 6, Coleman-street). Catalogues sent on receipt of the postage-stamp.

KERSON and BENDON'S two-guinea Dressing-Case is the most complete and convenient to be obtained. The silver-gilt fittings are of the best description, are manufactured with twelve bonnes, at the same price, going in to a uniform, power, lights, and fuel, and combining in original in the following details: Each bonne or distinct chamber is fitted with a separate gas-burner, and is provided with a separate flue, which carries off the products of combustion, heat, and moisture, and thus prevents the deposition of moisture, and consequent tarnish. May be had of opticians and ironmongers throughout the kingdom. Wholesale and for Exportation, 24, Holborn-bars, London, E.C.

EVERY MAN HIS OWN PRINTER.—The PEOPLE'S PRINTING-PRESS prints from £1 to £4 in value per hour. Cards and Circulars, 1s. 6d. per 1,000. SCHOOL TYPE AND PRINTING, 1s. or 14 stamps.—R. D. SHARP, 11, Southampton-buildings, Chancery-lane, W.C. Agents, Reed, Hanbury, and Co., Watford.

70 SHIPPERS, MERCHANTS, DEALERS, AND STATIONERS.

C. BRANDAUER, STEEL-PEN MANUFACTURER, 4s. 6d. per Box. Sole-size Wove, Ruling-machine.

CHUBB'S PATENT LOCKS and SAFES, with all the newest improvements. Street-door latches, Desk and Steel Pens. Full illustrated Price-list sent free.—Chubb and Son, 57, St. Paul's-churchyard, London.

WILLIAM S. BURTON, GENERAL FURNISHING IRONMONGER by appointment to H.R.H. the PRINCE OF WALES, sends a CATALOGUE gratis and post-free. It contains Prices and Plans of 850 Illustrations of his Illimited stock of Sterling Silver and Electro-plate, Nickel Silver, and Britannia-metal Goods, Dish Covers, Hot-water Dishes, Stoves, Fenders, Marble Chimney-pieces, Kitchen Ranges, Lamps, Tea Trays, Urns, Kettles, Tea and Coffee Machines, Toilet Ware, Turnery, Iron and Brass Bedsteads, Bedding, Bedroom Cabinet Furniture, Gasaliers, Baths, Brushes, Mats, and Clocks. The Stock of Each Article is Enormous, Cutlery—not to be surpassed in the World. Table-knives, 3s. 6d. and 5s. per dozen; Carvers, 1s. 6d. and 1s. Newman-street; 4, 1, and 5, Perry's-place; and 1, Newman-yard.

FURNISH YOUR HOUSE with the best at ASPREY'S CELEBRATED ELECTRO-SILVER WAREHOUSE. Established A.D. 1781. New Illustrated Catalogue sent free.—ASPREY and CO., 165, New Bond-street, and 4, 5, and 6, King William-street, London-bridge.

COVERS for FAMILY JARS, Jar Jars and Jar Covers complete, for Preserving Purposes, &c. Illustrations and Prices sent free.—PEDLEY and CO., Manufacturers of Waterproof Canvas Goods for four years.

THE BURLINGTON FURNITURE GALLERIES, 99, Cockhill-street, W.

A SIDELY ASSORTED STOCK of NEW and RECENTLY-USED furniture, as above, from 20s. Keyless-street. Patentees of the Revolutionary Cane Seat, &c.

THE EQUILIBRIUM CHAIRS (Sedley's Patent), also the Victoria and Easy Sedentary Chair, unsurpassed for comfort and economy, are now to be had at the Manufactory, 3, Bedford-street, Strand, and 31, Oxford-street, W. Illustrated pamphlet free gratis by post.

HOWARD and SONS' SILVER-FUR FURNITURE, manufactured by steam machinery. Every description of upholstery Cabinet work in walnut-tree and Watercolours, 25 and 27, Berners-street, Oxford-street. Drawings and Estimates sent.

FURNITURE CATALOGUE.—The NEWEST, BEST, and MOST ECONOMICAL SELECTION EVER OFFERED. New Edition of their ILLUSTRATED CATALOGUE is now ready, containing 350 Engravings of Bedsteads, Bedding, Bedroom Furniture, Lamps, Baths, Fenders, Fire-irons, Kitchen Utensils, Turnery, &c.—HEAL and SON, 196, Tottenham-court-road, W.

A. ATKINSON and CO., CABINETMAKERS, CARPET WAREHOUSEMEN, UPHOLSTERERS, &c., have NOW OPEN their NEW and EXTENSIVE SHOW-ROOMS for HOUSE FURNITURE.

WALNUT DRAWING-ROOM SUITES, elegant and moderate in price.

DINING-ROOM SUITES in Oak and Mahogany.

BEDSTEADS of Polished Brass, Iron, and Japanned Furniture and Bedding of every description.

All BEDDING made on the Premises, and special care is given to the Re-making of Mattresses.

The Premises and Stock are under the management of CHARLES ATKINSON, late of Messrs. Jackson and Graham's, 76, Oxford-street, and 2, Chapel-place, Cavendish-square, which will be carried on by Manufacturers since the new year. The spacial Rooms Show of Messrs. Jackson and Graham's, 76, Oxford-street, and 2, Chapel-place, at which they will assume will be found in the Grand Hotel Companies and other large Companies of LINENS, DAMASKS, &c., and PRICES CLOTHS, and all other articles for the Furnishing.

Illustrated Catalogues sent free by post, or to be had by personal application at the Warehouses, 76, Oxford-street, and 2, Chapel-place, for Public Establishments, Offices, &c.

Address

198 to 204, WESTMINSTER-BRIDGE-ROAD, S.

WINES AND SPIRITS bought or sold on Commission. The ownership Cleaning and Fining of every variety to be obtained by applying to W. W. HOUGHS, Wine and Spirit Broker, 15, Great Tower-street, Adelaide-road.

CANDLES. Price Medal. PARAFFINE CANDLES, 7d. per lb. Manufactured by the Patentees, 1862. 2 and 4 FIELD, the original Manufacturers, and holders of the 1851 Prize Medal, respectfully call the public attention to the above. Their label is on all packets and boxes. Sold by all Dealers Grocers. Wholesale, 2 and 4, Field, Lambeth, and Export, 2, Field, Lambeth. Their Candles are also now delivered at the Queen's Royal and United Service Soap Tablets.

FIELD'S CELEBRATED UNITED SOAP.—SOLD EVERYWHERE, at 6d. and 8d. each, and by all Chandlers and Grocers throughout the kingdom, in the specially sealed and fac Patent, and see that the name of J. C. and J. Field is on each tablet.—J. C. and J. FIELD, Lambeth, S. Also at the Works, Upper Marsh, Lambeth, S., where also may be obtained Field's Patent Night-lights and Candles.

SHARP'S MANUFACTURING PRIZE MEDAL ARROWROOT.

TO HER MAJESTY THE QUEEN.

GLENFIELD PATENT STARCH, used in the Royal Laundry.

MR. LAWRENCE VANDERPANT, Dentist, M.R.C.S., personally and exclusively inserts Mineral Teeth, the Invention of the Tooth by means of the most modern system of practice. Fees strictly moderate. Attendance from 11 till 4.—Mr. Vanderpant, 5, Argyll-place, Regent-street.

INDIGESTION.—MORSON'S PEPSINE WINE, a perfectly palatable Solution of the Active and popular remedy. Manufactured by T. Morson and Son, 19 and 31, Southampton-row, Russell-square, W.C., and sold by Chemists, &c. Pepsine Lozenges, in boxes, at 2s. 6d. and 4s. 6d. each.

DR. DE JONGH'S (Knight of the Order of Leopold of Belgium) LIGHT-BROWN COD-LIVER OIL, prescribed by the most eminent Medical Men throughout the World as the most efficacious, speedy, and permanent remedy for is incontestably superior to every variety.

CONSUMPTION, CHRONIC BRONCHITIS, ASTHMA, COUGHS, COLDS, RHEUMATISM, GOUT, DISEASES OF THE SKIN, RICKETS, SCROFULA, INFANTILE AND ALL SCROFULOUS AFFECTIONS,

SELECT MEDICAL OPINIONS.

"Dr. de Jongh's Light-brown Cod-liver Oil is the only Kind in which I can place implicit confidence."—Dr. Granville, 20, Suffolk-street, Pall-mall East.

"I have used Dr. de Jongh's Light-brown Cod-liver Oil in my own practice, and have found it invariably efficacious."—Dr. Hassall, Author of "Food and its Adulterations," &c.

"I have frequently prescribed Dr. de Jongh's Light-brown Cod-liver Oil

NEW MUSIC.

FAUST.—The following are the most popular Airs and Melodies in the Opera, beautifully arranged:—
Bevan's Favourite Airs, in three Books ... ... 3s. 6d.
Rene's Recollections of "Faust." Illustrated with Portraits of the principal Artists ... ... 4s. 6d.
Calkin's Gemma of "Faust." In two Books. Duets. Each ... 3s. 6d.
Calkin's Favourite Airs. Duets. Performed in the Opera ... 3s. 6d.
Calkin's Favourite Duets. Duet ... ... 3s. 6d.
Villoeck's Favourite Airs. Duets. In three Books. Each ... 4s. 6d.
Wilson's Grand Valse ... ... 4s. 0d.
Wilson's Grand Valse ... ... 4s. 0d.
Brinley Richards' Soldiers' Chorus ... ... 3s. 0d.
Brinley Richards' Soldiers' Chorus (Duet) ... ... 4s. 0d.
Brinley Richards' Fantasia ... ... 4s. 0d.
Kuhe's Fantasia ... ... 4s. 0d.
Kuhe's La Fleur de Marie (Flower Song) ... ... 3s. 0d.
Osborne's Fantasia ... ... 4s. 0d.
Osborne's Valse ... ... 4s. 0d.
Osborne's Air de Ballet ... ... 4s. 0d.
Lavenzo's Fantasia ... ... 4s. 0d.
Lavenzo's Grand Valse ... ... 4s. 0d.
Little Duval's Fantasia on the Waltz ... ... 4s. 0d.
Duval's Grand Fantasia ... ... 4s. 0d.
Cramer's Waltz ... ... 3s. 0d.
Gounod's—the celebrated Waltz ... ... 3s. 0d.
Gounod's Fantasia ... ... 3s. 0d.
Smallwood's Grand Valse ... ... 3s. 0d.
Balmer's Fantasia ... ... 3s. 0d.
Godfrey's Airs de Ballet (as played by Jullien's Band) ... 3s. 0d.

No. 1. The Waltz. No. 3. Faust and Marguerite.
2. The Pas de Zephyr. 4. Marguerite's Waltz.
3. Kermesse. 5. Chorus of Old Men.
4. Finale. 6. Finale.

CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

BENEDICT'S "WHERE THE BEE SUCKS." Played by Mme. Arabella Goddard at the Hanover-square Rooms, and encored. Sung by Madame Sainton. Price 2s. 6d.—CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

M. TH. HALBERG'S NEW PIECES.

THALBERG'S BALLO IN MASCHERA. Just published, a charming Fantasia for the Pianoforte, on favourite airs from Verdi's Opera, by M. Thalberg. Price 4s.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

THALBERG'S RIGOLETTO, Just published, a Fantasia for the Pianoforte, on favourite airs from Verdi's popular Opera. By M. Thalberg. Price 4s.
CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

NEW DANCE MUSIC.

THE JOCKEY'S GALOP.—By A. F. GODFREY. Just out. One of the best Galops ever published. Illustrated with a capital Portrait of the Composer, and a Picture of the Start, and Race for the Derby. Performed with great success, with Portrait, by the Band of Brighton. Price 3s.
CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

NEW DANCE MUSIC.

HAPPY MOMENTS VALSE. By CHARLES COOTE. Just published, beautifully illustrated. Price 4s.; Orchestra, 3s.; Septet, 2s.
CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

THE FORGET-ME-NOT WALTZ By GUSTAVE LANEBERT. Just published. Price 4s.; Orchestra, 3s.; Septet, 2s.—CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

THE GUARDS' WALTZ. By D. GODFREY. Played at the Ball given to the Prince and Princess of Wales. Just published. Price 4s.
CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

THE MERRY TUNES LANCERS. Just published. A new set of Lancers, composed on all the favourite airs of the day. By D. GODFREY. Price 4s.; Orchestra, 3s.; Septet, 2s.
CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

THE HARUM-SCARUM GALOP. By CHARLES CAMILLE (Composer of the Bloomer Polka). Just published, profusely illustrated. Price 3s.; Duet, 4s.; Orchestra, 2s.; Septet, 1s.
CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

HELTER-SKELTER GALOP. Just out, a New Galop by MARTIN (Composer of the celebrated Galop, Cracking Crackers). Illustrated. Price, 3s.; Solo or Duet; Orchestra, 2s.; Septet, 1s.—CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

COOTE'S PAUST WALTZ, on Airs from Gounod's Opera. Beautifully illustrated. Price, Solo or Duet, 4s.; Septet, 1s.; Full Orchestra, 3s.
CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

COOTE'S FAUST QUADRILLE, on Airs from Gounod's Opera. Beautifully illustrated. Price, Solo or Duet 4s.; Septet, 1s.; Full Orchestra, 3s.
CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

COOTE'S FAUST GALOP, from Gounod's Opera. Beautifully illustrated. Price, Solo or Duet, 4s.; Septet, 1s.; Full Orchestra, 3s.
CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

FAUST POLKA. By F. WALLENSTEIN. Just published. Beautifully illustrated. Price 4s.; Orchestra, 3s.; Septet, 2s.
CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

M. BLUMENTHAL'S NEW PIECES.
1. Nimrodiad's LA BLONDE. Romeo. Price 3s. 6d.
2. Nimrodiad's LA BRUNE. Hermione. Price 3s. 6d.
Blumenthal's FISHER DEN MARGUITE. Price 3s.
CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

KUHE'S LEGGERO INVISIBLE. Just published, and will soon be Encored, every time it is Played. Vaguid with great success, arranged for the Pianoforte. Price 4s.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

BRINLEY RICHARDS' "I WANDER IN SEARCH OF A TREASURE." The favourite song from Balfe's popular Opera, "The Rose of Castile," arranged for the Pianoforte. Price 3s.—CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

H. W. GOODBAN'S EMMELINE. Nocturne for the Pianoforte. Just published. Price 3s. 6d.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

H. W. GOODBAN'S BRIGAND'S DANCE (Coquelicot Sonet). For the Pianoforte. Just published. Price 3s.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

THE STIRRUP CUP, MR. SANTLEY'S SONG, expressly composed for him by Signor Arditi, and beautifully illustrated, is now ready. Price 2s. 6d. Free by 3d. stamps.
CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

A THOUSAND LEAGUES AWAY. New Song. Written by W. H. BELLAMY, and composed by ROBERT ACKERY. Price 2s. 6d. Postage-free by 3d. stamps.
"The wind is blowing fresh, Kate. The boat rocks there for me. The time is up, and I must go. Kate, for you have promised
For two long years, to think of you, dreaming of you night and day.
To look for you across the sea, a thousand leagues away.
A thousand leagues away, dear Kate; a thousand leagues away;
While round the world I roam, dear Kate, I'll think of you each day."
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

NEW SONG, by Miss C. M. E. OLIVER.
"When first I met my love,
The sun was shining brighter,
The birds sang sweeter notes,
Than she hath farewell to me."
To be had of all Musicsellers in town and country. Price 2s. 6d.

Seventh Edition—THE GREATEST SUCCESS OF THE SEASON IS
THE MATRIMONIAL GALOP, by A. BERGER. Beautifully Illustrated in Colours with Portraits of the Resident Tradesmen ever seen, and is the very best Galop yet.

ANOTHER EDITION.—THE GALOP OF ALL GALOPS IS
THE MATRIMONIAL GALOP, by A. BERGER. "The most original Galop ever published." Post free, 2s. 6d.—CRAMER and CO., 57, Baker-street, Portman-square.

MUSIC, HALF PRICE and Post-free. Catalogues, Post-free of Music. All Music in print, or New Publication forwarded to any part of the kingdom on receipt of stamps. Country Orders executed the same day. Post-office Orders payable to CRAMER and CO., 57, Baker-street, Portman-square, London, W.

NEW MUSIC.

STRADELLA, by FLOTOW, complete, with Italian words, price 20s. Also, the whole of the Vocal Music in Duets, in the original and Transposed Keys. Pianoforte arrangements by Madame Oury.

Mme. Oscar Comettant.
Cramer.
Lavenu (Quadrilles and Waltzes).
Boosey and Sons, Holles-street.

KUHE'S GRAND CONCERT FANTASIA on RUBATELLI (Author of the celebrated Prayer and the beautiful Serenade). Price 4s.—BOOSEY and SONS, Holles-street.

MME. OURY'S STRADELLA, Fantasia on Flotow's Opera. Just out. Price 3s.
BOOSEY and SONS, Holles-street.

MME. OURY'S MERRY WIVES OF WINDSOR. Fantasia Brilliant on the new Opera. Price 4s.
BOOSEY and SONS, Holles-street.

GANZ'S MERRY WIVES OF WINDSOR. Fantasia for Pianoforte on the new Opera. By W. GANZ. Price 4s.
BOOSEY and SONS, Holles-street.

GOUNOD'S NEW OPERA, MIREILLE, is now ready, for Voice and Pianoforte. Price 10s.; also, for Pianoforte Solo, 20s.—BOOSEY and SONS, Holles-street.

THE MERRY WIVES OF WINDSOR. Fantasia on the new Opera. By OSBORNE. Price 4s.
CRAMER, WOOD, and CO., 201, Regent-street.

FORBES CAPERER.—CHANSON NAPOLITAINE, for the Pianoforte. A most fascinating little piece. By the Author of "Ingomar," "Les Cloches," &c. Price 3s. Just received.—BOOSEY and SONS, Holles-street.

MISS HAWLEY'S IVANHOE. New and effective Pianoforte Piece, just published. Price 3s.
BOOSEY and SONS, Holles-street.

KUHE'S MAGGIE'S SECRET. Gathered from Sketches by Mrs. Gaskell, which Miss Dolaro has stood so famous, has been transcribed by Mr. Kuhe in his happiest manner. Just published. Price 4s.—BOOSEY and SONS.

LITTLE BIRD, LITTLE BIRD ON THE TREE. Sung by CLARIBEL in her most popular style. Published this day.—BOOSEY and SONS, Holles-street.

BEHOLD MY LOVE! SHE SLUMBERS. The New Duet sung by Mdlle. TITIENS and LEVASSEUR. "A Pastorale." A most charming melody and effective song for tenors. Price 2s.—BOOSEY and SONS, Holles-street.

NORAH'S TREASURE. New Ballad, by WRIGHTON. Price 2s. Sung with the Irish Melody and sung by Miss Dolaro. Price 2s.
BOOSEY and SONS, Holles-street.

SUSAN'S STORY. A New Ballad, by the Author of "Jane's Choice." Price 2s.
BOOSEY and SONS, Holles-street.

SIGNOR CAMPANA'S NEW DUET, "Gli Amori Etruschi" is published in the Original Key, No. 14, Price 2s. Transposed Keys, No. 15, Price 2s.—BOOSEY and SONS, Holles-street.

CANST THOU NOT READ THE MUTE QUESTION? Sung by Mdlle. TITIENS and Mr. SIMS REEVES. Price 2s. By the same Composer, OH! GENTLE MAIDEN, sung by Mdlle. Titiens and Mr. Sims Reeves. Price 2s. Arranged for the Pianoforte, by W. H. CALLCOTT. Price 4s.
London: BOOSEY and SONS. Sydney: WILLIS and Co.

BOOSEY'S LIBRARY.—Two-Guinea Subscribers have the use of 1,000 Pieces of Music in stock, or twenty in the country, besides receiving gratuitously a guinea worth of Music monthly.—28, Holles-street, Cavendish-square.

NOTICE.—HALF PRICE.—All Music, and the best Editions, at half the published price. Country orders free on postage-stamps or Post Office order (small wants accepted).
CRAMER and CO., 201, Regent-street.

THE GEM OF THE SEASON.
GANZ'S BALLERINA MAZURKA. Price 3s. Just published. Illustrated with Portrait of the Composer and the celebrated Ballerina, Mdlle. Rosita Mauri.
CRAMER, WOOD, and CO., 201, Regent-street.

THE PIANO FIRM FOR 1864.
KUHE'S "SEE THE CONQUERING HERO COMES." Price 4s. (Brilliant), but not difficult).
CRAMER, WOOD, and CO., 201, Regent-street.

THE BEST SET EVER COMPOSED.
COOTE'S POLLY PERKINS QUADRILLE. Price 3s. Beautifully Illustrated. "Coote's" Infallible, Watertight Set of Quadrilles. Also, "Coote's" Polka Pathétique, &c.
HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

EASY AND VERY PRETTY.
COOTE'S INFANT PRIDE VALSES. 3s. Superbly Illustrated.
HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

SENSATION GALOP.
COOTE'S EXTRAVAGANZA GALOP. Price 3s. Second Edition. Now ready.
HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

THE BEST SET OF LANCERS ARE
COOTE'S CURE LANCERS. Price 4s. Introducing "Coote's Infallible Tune," "Coote's Polly Perkins," "Darby is in Morning," "The Cure," and other popular Airs. A real Cure for Dulness. Beautifully Illustrated. Also, "Coote's" Cure Waltzes, Galop, and Polka. Each 3s. Beautifully Illustrated.
HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

COOTE'S KATE KEARNEY WALTZES, introducing "Kathleen O'Moore," "Groves of Blarney," "Kate Kearney," "Rory O'More," "Kitty Solo or Duet, 4s.—HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

COOTE'S HUMMING BIRD. Price 4s. Considered the Most Difficult of any Piece by the same Composer.
HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

STUPENDOUS SUCCESS OF MR. TOOLEY'S NEW SONG,
NOBBLER HALL. By the Author of "The Suicidal Family. Price 2s. Encored five times nightly in "The Area Belle."—HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

NEW CHRISTY SONG. 2s. 6d.
OH! WOULD I WERE A BIRD, SWEET MARY!
HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

MERRY TUNES.
MERRY TUNES FOR THE MILLION. Price 2s. 6d. Illustrated with Portraits of Celebrated Performers. Contents:—
"The wind is blowing fresh, Kate. The boat rocks there for me. The time is up, and I must go. Kate, for you have promised
For two long years, to think of you, dreaming of you night and day.
To look for you across the sea, a thousand leagues away.
A thousand leagues away, dear Kate; a thousand leagues away;
While round the world I roam, dear Kate, I'll think of you each day."
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

NEW SONG, by Miss C. M. E. OLIVER.
"When first I met my love,
The sun was shining brighter,
The birds sang sweeter notes,
Than she hath farewell to me."
To be had of all Musicsellers in town and country. Price 2s. 6d.

Seventh Edition—THE GREATEST SUCCESS OF THE SEASON IS
THE MATRIMONIAL GALOP, by A. BERGER. Beautifully Illustrated in Colours with Portraits of the Resident Tradesmen ever seen, and is the very best Galop yet.

ANOTHER EDITION.—THE GALOP OF ALL GALOPS IS
THE MATRIMONIAL GALOP, by A. BERGER. "The most original Galop ever published." Post free, 2s. 6d.—CRAMER and CO., 57, Baker-street, Portman-square.

NEW MUSIC.

NICOLAI'S MERRY WIVES OF WINDSOR. The Solo Pianoforte Arrangements.

Book of Favourite Airs	...	Solo, 3s.; Duet, 5s.
Overture	...	...	Solo, 4s.; ... 5s.
Potpourri (for four hands)	...	...	Duet, 6s.
Fantasia on Popular Airs	...	...	E. Kuhe ... 3s.
Quadrilles	...	...	C. Coote ... 3s.
Valses	...	...	C. Coote ... 3s.
Galop	...	...	C. Coote ... 3s.

Fantasia de Salon ... ... 4s.
The principal Vocal Pieces, with Italian Words, as sung at Her Majesty's Theatre.

DANCE MUSIC.

The Festival Polka (illustrated) ... A. Mazas ... 3s.
Set of Waltzes ... ... 4s.
Set of Quadrilles ... ... C. Coote ... 4s.
CRAMER, WOOD, and CO., 201, Regent-street.

THE BRIDE OF SONG. Composed and Sung by HENRY PARKS. Orchestrated by W. C. DISLEY. Complete (Piano and Voice), with the Overture ... ... 4s. 0d.
Overture, Septet, and Chorus ... ... 2s. 0d.
2. Song—My Home in Cleadland, original key D flat; trans. ... 3s. 0d.
3. Song—Oh! Lady Fair ... ... 3s. 0d.
4. Trio—Welcome, Welcome, Bride of Song ... ... 3s. 0d.
4. Song—Dear and Noble ... ... 3s. 0d.
5. Song—Oh! Lady Fair ... ... E. ... and B. flat 3s. 0d.
6. Song—Land of Cadiack, "Under Moon" ... ... 3s. 0d.
7. Song—For her sweet sake ... ... 3s. 0d.
8. Song—In the midst of her fame ... ... 3s. 0d.
9. Duet—We waited late, we waited long ... ... E. and A. 3s. 0d.
10. Finale ... ... 3s. 0d.
CRAMER, WOOD, and CO., 201, Regent-street.

CHARLES SALAMAN'S "SPANISH CAPRICE," as Played repeatedly by the Composer, and received Unanimous Encores.
CRAMER, WOOD, and CO., 201, Regent-street.

RENÉ FAVARGER'S SCHERZANDO, Op. 6th.
CRAMER, WOOD, and CO., 201, Regent-street.

RENÉ FAVARGER'S MAZURKA, Op. 4.
CRAMER, WOOD, and CO., 201, Regent-street.

JACQUES SLUMENTHAL.
Le Chant du Soldat. Morceau de Salon ... ... 3s. 0d.
La Belle à la Fontaine. Romance Populaire ... ... 3s. 0d.
Adagio e Presto Agitato ... ... 3s. 0d.
CRAMER, WOOD, and CO., 201, Regent-street.

ARDITI'S GARIBALDINA. BRINLEY RICHARDS. Elaborated National March for the Pianoforte, Solo, 3s.; Duet, 4s.—CRAMER, WOOD, and CO., 201, Regent-street.

"SWEET SPIRIT WALTZES, by J. P. CLARKE'S LAST SET. Beautifully Illustrated, as Played by the Band of the Coldstream Guards. Price 4s.
CRAMER, WOOD, and CO., 201, Regent-street.

BRINLEY RICHARDS' LEAH'S SONG. 3s. The most popular song of the day.
CRAMER, WOOD, and CO., 201, Regent-street.

BOAT SONG. By VERDI. 2s. 6d. A splendid Baritone Air.
CRAMER, WOOD, and CO., 201, Regent-street.

THE MAIDEN'S PRAYER. By VERDI. Sung by Mdlle. Titiens in "The Rose of Castile."—CRAMER, WOOD, and CO., 201, Regent-street.

LITTLE GOLDEN-HAIR. A Venetian Barcarolle. By VERDI. 2s. 6d.
CRAMER, WOOD, and CO., 201, Regent-street.

GARIBALDINA. By ARDITI. Words by Henry Farnie. With capital Portrait of Garibaldi. 3s. CRAMER, WOOD, and CO., 201, Regent-street.

A NITA. By BRINLEY RICHARDS. 3s. (Founded on a melodic passage in the life of Garibaldi).
CRAMER, WOOD, and CO., 201, Regent-street.

ARDITI'S LA GARIBALDINA. 2s. 6d. Song with much immense success at the Crystal Palace, Her Majesty's Theatre, &c.
CRAMER, WOOD, and CO., 201, Regent-street.

"ARDITI." "TITIENS." "FALSTAFF." ARDITI'S "Amor dil Marido." By Julia. Introduced by Titiens in "Falstaff." Price 2s. 6d.
CRAMER, WOOD, and CO., 201, Regent-street.

NOT PUBLISHED,
MY HEART IS EVER THINE. New Song. With Words and Music by ALLITSEN. Price 2s. 6d.
ADDISON and PARRY, 75, Hanover-square.

THE PICNIC WALTZES. By MISS C. M. E. OLIVER. With Illustrations by LOUIS HUARD. Price 3s.
ADDISON and PARRY, 75, Hanover-square.

BOOSEYS' 17-GUINEA PIANOFORTE is the Cheapest Piano for the Money ever made, manufactured. It has the full compass, is in walnut, and possesses an extraordinary amount of power.

BOOSEYS' 26-GUINEA PIANOFORTE, in Rosewood, possesses a Sostenente Pedal, is in a highly finished, elegant case, suitable for any drawing-room; the workmanship is of the best description, the touch elastic, and the tone of that pure, full quality distinguishes Boosey's Pianofortes.

BOOSEYS' 35-GUINEA PIANOFORTE in Rosewood, with Trichord Treble, Check Action, and Repeater, is a Pianoforte of the highest class, and the tone is remarkably pure and sympathetic. Boosey's 35-guinea Pianoforte occupies 7 octaves—Boosey and Sons, 24, Holles-street, London.

THE COTTAGE, or SIX-GUINEA, HARMONIUM, for Church or Chapel, possesses a fine quality of tone.
BOOSEY and SONS, 24, Holles-street.

THE SCHOOL, or TEN-GUINEA, HARMONIUM has a rich, full tone, suitable for leading singing in Schools.—BOOSEY and SONS, 24, Holles-street.

THE CHURCH HARMONIUMS, at 20, 25, and 40 guineas. Very powerful, and admirably adapted for Churches.—BOOSEY and SONS, 24, Holles-street.

BOOSEYS' ENGLISH HARMONIUMS, by Evans, and other makers. An immense variety, new and second-hand, always on sale. Harmonium Instruction Books, and two sets of Airs for Harmonium.
Boosey and Sons, 24, Holles-street.

PIANOFORTES.—OETZMANN and FLUTE PLAYERS will acknowledge the best Instrument in Europe, about two thirds the price of the quasi-advertised French Flutes. Prospectus and Testimonials Post-free. Use in the windows second with pride.—Oetzmann, 27, Baker-street.

OETZMANN and PLUMB'S DRAWING-ROOM COTTAGE PIANOFORTE, with all the latest improvements, warranted—70, Regent-street. Prize cottages, 20 guineas.

PIANOFORTES.—OETZMANN and PLUMB'S GRAND COTTAGE, seven octaves, new registered check action, trichord throughout, warranted sound, full and equality of tone, and elastic in design. Warranted.—151, Regent-street.

OETZMANN and PLUMB'S INDIAN PATTERN PIANOFORTE in metal decoration, and inlaid. Specimens for display at their Galleries, 151, Regent-street, and 20, Baker-street, near the Metropolitan Railway.

PIANOFORTES AND HARMONIUMS. OETZMANN and PLUMB have all descriptions for Hire. Repairs will find at 151, Regent-street, all they can desire in good workmanship and moderate charges. Pianofortes for Hire. Pianos taken in exchange. Secondhand and tuning by experienced workmen.—151, Regent-street, the only address.

PIANOFORTES.—The best 20-Guinea Piano in the Trade. Rosewood case, with all the improvements and handsome carving—Packard and Co., 11, Conduit-street, Regent-street. A large selection of secondhand Pianofortes by eminent makers, from 10 guineas.

PIANOFORTES at CHAPPELL'S.—The largest Stock in London, by Broadwood, Collard, Erard, &c., for Sale or Hire.—50, New Bond-street.

CHAPPELL'S FOREIGN PIANINO (The only Pianino to which the Prize Medal was awarded).—A perfect miniature Grand, with all the latest improvements. Action and most perfect touch, admirably adapted for Concert, Teacher, Beginner, &c. Warranted to keep in tune, and to stand any climate. Pianofortes, with check action and trichord throughout.
Price in mahogany, rose-wood, or walnut, 35 and 36 guineas. A Pianino of very great power, 40 guineas.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

CHAPPELL and CO.'S ENGLISH MODEL COTTAGE PIANOFORTE, in rosewood or walnut, with the full compass of seven octaves and trichord throughout. The Model will be found the most perfectly satisfactory instrument for the money ever yet written in of the many elegant decorations in the above cabinet, and Pianofortes especially adapted to the country where the many vicissitudes of climate render it necessary that the tuning should be frequently repeated. Full fine quality of tone in every respect to other instruments at 60 guineas, price 50 guineas.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

CHAPPELL'S FOREIGN MODEL PIANOFORTE, price 42 guineas in rosewood; or in walnut, with the same compass of seven octaves, and trichord throughout, as the English Model. It is strengthened by every possible means to endure the extremes of climate, and is a most valuable instrument for exportation. The touch is elastic, and the tone is sound, full, and of such the power equal to that of a Richord Cottage. The case is elegant, and the workmanship of the best description. Such superior pianofortes, has hitherto been made in England at the same price. Every instrument will be warranted, and packed for exportation by experienced workmen.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

BROADWOOD, COLLARD, and ERARD. The best Pianofortes of every description, including all the latest improvements, warranted for any climate, may be had on hire and hired with option of purchase at the new Show-rooms of CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

CHAPPELL'S TWENTY-GUINEA PIANOFORTE, in solid rosewood case, with all the English manufacture, with perfect check action, the full compass, and all the latest improvements. Those who require improvements must be instrument as superior to any other pianofortes at about this price must see this Pianoforte before purchasing.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

CHAPPELL'S SMALL FOREIGN MODEL PIANOFORTE, at 32 guineas, a new Oblique Piano, with the full compass of seven octaves, trichord throughout, and similar valuable improvements to the Foreign Model, but of a lower price than any other oblique pianofortes. In rosewood, 32 guineas; in walnut, 34 guineas.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

A LEXANDRE'S NEW SWING-ROOM HARMONIUMS, at all the best Musicsellers. Illustrated Catalogues of Pianofortes and Harmoniums upon application to
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

SIX-GUINEA HARMONIUM, by ALEXANDRE, with five octaves, two footboards, and in oak case. Illustrated Catalogues of this and all others to be had at the above-named Establishments.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

SECONDHAND HARMONIUMS, by Alexandre, Debain, Evans, and other makers, at greatly reduced prices, at CHAPPELL'S, 50, New Bond-street.

THE ILLUSTRATED LONDON MUSICAL MODEL HARMONIUM, for the CHURCH, 13 stops, 4 rows of vibrators, 2 rows of reeds, 2 sets of keys, and 30 notes of pedals, in oak case, 70 guineas. A large assortment may be always seen at CHAPPELL'S, 50, New Bond-street.

SECONDHAND PIANOFORTES, by BROADWOOD, COLLARD, and ERARD, and other eminent PIANOFORTES for SALE, by Broadwood, Collard, Erard, &c., that have been Let on Hire, and are now Returned from Hire. Also, New Instruments of every description.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

EASY TERMS OF PURCHASE.—CRAMER, BEALE, and CO. (sole agents), undertake to supply Pianofortes to pay for a PIANOFORTE by INSTALMENTS. Terms may be had on application.—CRAMER, BEALE, and CO., 201, Regent-street.

CRAMER'S NEW SEVEN-OCTAVE, TRICHORD COTTAGE PIANOFORTES. Price 45 guineas in Rosewood and 50 guineas in Walnut. These Pianofortes are the result of many years' experience, and the Proprietors feel themselves entitled to observe that it is alike remarkable as regards power and quality of tone, and elasticity of touch. The tone is full and sustained, and the repeater action of the latest kind. The touch may be formed by the powerful finger of the artist, or drawn out by the delicate touch of the amateur. The case is of elegant design, and the workmanship of the best description, and warranted with this effect. The action, or mechanism, is of the very best description, and the workmanship of the best description, and warranted with this effect. The action, or mechanism, is of the very best description, and the workmanship of the best description, and warranted with this effect. The strings are of the best description, and warranted with this effect. The strings are of the best description, and warranted with this effect. The strings are GENERAL LONGSTREET.

IN the last Number of the ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS was engraved a portrait of General Lee, the Commander-in-Chief, and we now give that of another distinguished General in the army of the Southern Confederacy, who is perhaps, since the death of Stonewall Jackson, second only to Lee in the military reputation he has achieved by the campaigns between Washington and Richmond during the last three years. General James Longstreet, who is a native of Alabama, was regularly educated for the profession of arms. He entered the United States army in 1838. He was attached first to the 8th and then to the 8th infantry regiments. He served in all the battles of the Mexican war, and, like General Lee, was wounded at Chapultepec. He was twice brevetted for distinguished services in that war. In 1858 he obtained a post in the Paymaster's department, to which he belonged, with the rank of Major. When the civil war broke out, in 1861, he at once joined the army of the Confederate States. The brigade which he commanded at the fight of Bull Run, in July of that year, was one of the first bodies of Southern troops that came into actual collision with the Federals; and in the sanguinary battle of Manassas, which soon afterwards ensued, General Longstreet led the main attack, though General Beauregard was in chief command. As a General of Division, Longstreet acted under General Lee throughout the Virginia campaigns of 1862 and 1863. A British officer, Lieutenant-Colonel Freemantle, of the Coldstream Guards, who has written a very readable book relating his experiences in the Southern States during three months of last year, saw much of General Longstreet, and speaks of him with praise. He describes the General as "a thickset, determined-looking man, forty-three years of age, who is invariably spoken of by the soldiers as the best fighter in the whole army. He is never far from General Lee, who relies very much upon his judgment. The relations between Lee and Longstreet are quite touching—they are always together. Longstreet's corps complain of this sometimes, as they say that they seldom get a chance of detached service, which falls to the lot of Ewell. I believe these two Generals to be as little ambitious and as thoroughly unselfish as any men in the world. Both long for a successful termination of the war, in order that they may retire into obscurity." In another part of the same volume Colonel Freemantle tells us how many of the soldiers would run on a hundred yards during a long march to get one good look at Longstreet when he had ridden on in front of them. Some of them would call out to their comrades, as Longstreet passed, "Look out for work, boys, for here's the old bulldog again." It is generally regretted, however, that Longstreet will expose himself to danger in too reckless a manner. At Gettysburg, "he led a Georgian regiment in a charge against a battery, hat in hand, and in front of everybody." A few hours later, Colonel Freemantle found him seated on the top of a snake fence at the edge of the wood, and looking perfectly calm and unperturbed, while some of his troops passed by. The gallant Colonel, who scarcely knew what had been the result of the battle, observed to General Longstreet, "I wouldn't have missed this for anything." Longstreet replied, laughing, "The devil you wouldn't! I should liked to have missed it, very much; we've attacked, and been repulsed; look there!" Usually, says Colonel Freemantle, he is a particularly taciturn man. In a grave consultation with General Lee and two others, Longstreet was noticed "assisting his deliberations by the truly American custom of whittling a stick." He can be sarcastic. Thus, when General Pettigrew came up to him and reported that he was "unable to bring up his men again," Longstreet replied, "Very well, General; then, never mind. Just let them remain where they are: the enemy is going to advance and will save you the trouble." "Difficulties," says the English Colonel, "make no other impression upon Longstreet than to make him more savage—like a bulldog, as the soldiers call him. His physical endurance is most extraordinary; he seems to require neither food nor sleep." Two days after the battle of Gettysburg he was highly amused with a message brought to General Lee by the bearer of a flag of truce from the enemy, who announced that "General Longstreet had been made prisoner and was wounded, but would be taken care of." General Longstreet sent back word to the Federals that he was "extremely grateful, but quite able to take care of himself." General Longstreet is in all respects a worthy second to General Lee.

GENERAL LONGSTREET, OF THE ARMY OF THE CONFEDERATE STATES OF AMERICA.—FROM A PHOTOGRAPH.

GRAND FANCY BAZAAR AT ORLEANS HOUSE, TWICKENHAM, IN AID OF THE FRENCH SOCIÉTÉ DE BIENFAISANCE.—SEE NEXT PAGE.

FANCY BAZAAR AT ORLEANS HOUSE, TWICKENHAM.

IN AID OF THE SOCIÉTE DE BIENFAISANCE.

The bazaar which was held on Wednesday and Thursday week, in the grounds of Orleans House, the residence of the Duke d'Aumale, is the subject of one of our illustrations. Its object was to augment the funds of the Société Française de Bienfaisance. This society was formed in 1842, under the patronage of Count de St. Aulaire, the French Ambassador, for the purpose of affording relief to unfortunate Frenchmen in London, without distinction of religious faith or political opinion. Among the benefactors of this society have been the late King Louis Philippe, Queen Marie Amélie, the Queen of Chambord, and the Empress of the French. The existing president of the society is the Duke d'Aumale. The society allows weekly payments in money, clothing, and fuel, to the unfortunate members of those French subjects who are desirous of returning to their country; it also affords assistance to those who wish to obtain work or employment or trade in England. The society has already distributed more than £17,000 during its existence. Following out the object of the society, the Duc de Paris, the title at Orleans House patrols almost of a family character. The stalls were held by Her Highness the Duchess of Chartres, her Royal Highness the Duchess d'Aumale, the Duchess of St. Aulaire, the Marchioness of La Guiche, the Countess of Jarnac, the Countess of Waldegrave, and Lady Proby. An elegant marquee had been erected for the ladies in front of the house, filled with elegant perfumes, which also lined the road up to the grounds. The chief attraction was the stall of the Duchess d'Aumale, where the venerable Queen Amélie presided for some hours. The weather was pleasant, and a numerous concourse of visitors enjoyed this lively scene.

THE LATE YACHT-MATCHES IN THE THAMES.

We briefly announced last week the result of three of the principal matches of the season—those of the Royal Thames Club, on Monday; the 30th; the Royal Thames Yacht Club, on Tuesday, the 31st ult., and the Prince of Wales's Club, on the 1st inst., June 1. On each of those occasions our Special Artist attended the race; and we are now enabled to present, from his sketches, a page containing three separate Engravings, which will be perused with the most interesting moments. We shall publish next week a similar Illustration of the ocean-match of the Royal Thames Club, off Harwich, which took place on Saturday last. At present we have only to notice, in the order of their occurrence, the three matches depicted in this Number of our Journal.

ROYAL THAMES.—The course was from Rosherville to the Mouse and back. The prizes were, for first-class yachts exceeding 75 tons burden, a handsome silver tankard presented by the Club, on the first boat, and £10 to the second. An allowance of half a minute per ton was made for difference of tonnage. The only entries for the first vessels which started were—the Surf, 54 tons, common measurement, belonging to Mr. C. G. Harrison, Volante (30 tons), owner Mr. H. G. Macaulay; Astarte (45 tons), owner Mr. C. Seddon; Vindex (45 tons), owner Mr. A. Duncan; and Banshee (68 tons), owner Mr. J. Jones. This was the order in which they were moored in a line across the river, just above Northfleet Dockyard, instead of in Erith Bay, as formerly. The wind was S.S.W., very light, and the two three times, in thirteen matches, in the Irish seas. This year the latter half-year, the Surf gained nine matches out of ten. The Surf was built by Harvey in 1851, and sailed many a hard match in former days against Ingard and Mosquito. She has been a wet boat, and sailed often, but has now had her sternpost set upright and been otherwise altered by Harvey, and is much improved. She is now a very fine (90 tons) vessel, built by Mears, Day, and Co., from Hatcher's lines. The Vindex is of iron, built last year at Millwall, from Hatcher's lines, and was one of the prettiest sea-boats last year. She is now in the hands of Mr. Swift of steel, at Liverpool. Seldom has there been a more even match. The Banshee being much over the line, and Astarte also, at the others had conflicted backers. The start was effected soon after half-past one, when the Surf gained a lead of a few lengths on Vindex last. After clearing the high ground at Gravesend, the wind freshened a little on a south wind and was dead aft. Astarte and Banshee led up to the Volante; but, in attempting to bear away and past to leeward, the two in this black sheer lost the Surf and Vindex a few lengths. The Surf was about the same distance ahead of the Volante as left off Mooring, the latter ran up to the Mouse, and there they could not. Off Thames Haven, the Astarte ran up to the Volante and passed her to leeward. Both gained on the Surf. These three then vessels, moored closely through the water, and the Surf, with eye of Chapman Head, the Volante was leading by about 100 yards, Surf next. Astarte about the same distance astern of her, and Banshee and Vindex in the rear—a very close race. Off Leigh, Astarte caught a strong puff, and shot up to Surf quarter, and passed her to lee, and indeed performed the same unkind act for Volante. This is the moment which our artist chose to make his sketch. Surf was now the next thing, nearly a third of the distance had been run, and as yet Astarte had gained none of her time, nor had Volante gained very much upon Surf. If the latter two yachts could have got up to the line of three. The sun now shone out bright and clear, the wind was fresh and steady, and the pace tremendous. In the next row of the match were in a line, about 200 yards apart. In the same order they rounded the Mouse. The Astarte had gained a little more, and Volante lost her mast, and the latter twice lost portions of her rigging; they had no chance. The run up nothing worthy of remark occurred. The Astarte came in eight minutes before the Volante and twelve minutes before the Surf. The struggle between the Surf and Vindex for third place conduct towards each other was decided in favour of the Astarte. Previously, however, was the first prize and £10 for the second.

ROYAL THAMES.—There were two classes of yachts in this race—two distinct matches, indeed, going on at the same time. The prize in the first class, vessels above 75 tons, were a handsome silver epergne, value £100, for the first prize, and a piece of plate, value £50, for the second. The inferior class, vessels between 25 and 75 tons, had also two prizes of silver. Our illustration, however, refers to the first match alone. The vessels which competed were in the following order:—The Mosquito (50 tons), which is the property of Mr. T. Chamberlayne; the Surge (110 tons), Mr. J. Ellis; the Astarte, Volante, and Vindex, which have been described in our account of the previous day's match. The Surf, 54 tons, also entered, but did not run. The Mosquito is a famous vessel, known to every yachtsman, and frequently victorious in her time. The Surge had not appeared here before. The wind was nearly aft, and the Mosquito, at first moving off with the lead, followed Gravesend the Volante had her topmast broken by accident, one or her stays being caught by the boom-end of the Astarte. She at once went back. The others ran down very fast. The Surge led, and when they entered Sea Reach Mosquito was a quarter of a mile ahead, and Astarte well ahead of Vindex. Off Leigh the Surge and Haven Vindex had caught up Astarte, but was unable to get past. At Chapman Head Astarte had shaken off Vindex, but Mosquito led her load. There was now a good working topsail breeze, but not much sea. The Mosquito's mast should have been stayed and shipped her crew to sail her easily, and soon afterwards to send down topsail and topgallant yards. Astarte now went to leeward of the Surge, and Mosquito now came close up, and just at this point a large steamer with H the number 1 on her paddle-box put right ahead of the Surge, and would have carried away Astarte's jib-boom and topmast had not Astarte shaken off Vindex, and Vindex and Mosquito, we believe, overreacted themselves. They rounded the steamer's bows, as shown in our Engraving, the Astarte two minutes and a half before the Mosquito. Here matters remained for a quarter hour. In their hurry run up the wind had shifted to south-east, so that they came along at a fine pace, but not so fast as the Volante was in the same state in which they had rounded at the Nore—the Astarte having accomplished the distance to and fro in 5h. 5m., the Mosquito in 5h. 10m., the Vindex, 5h. 12m. 45s., and the Surge, 5h. 13m. 30s. Previously, in the class of small vessels was won by the Vampire, 20 tons, owner, Captain Commerell, and the second prize by the Dudu, 19 tons, owners Captain Baldock and Mr. W. Rudge.

PRINCE OF WALES'S YACHT CLUB.—The prize was for yachts not exceeding 15 tons, but exceeding 10 tons, a silver cup, value £25. Four entered cup for these vessels, but the Ella and Dudu were entered the Dudu, already mentioned; the Folly, 12 tons, Mr. W. J. Rigby; the Sunbeam, 12 tons, Mr. Hamilton; and the Ariadne, 13 tons, Mr. G. Harrison. The course was from Erith to the Nore Lightship and back. The wind was variable, and the weather fine, when they passed Gravesend, about half-past two in the afternoon. The Ella led, followed by Folly, Sunbeam, and Ariadne, 600 yards astern, then Algerine, then Satanella, Vision and Aerolite at distances. The Ella was soon passed by the Dudu; took a boat, and in the Lower Hope she passed Alexander and Vision up to Folly, which was perhaps carrying her big topsail too long, the wind being rather light, and she was passed by the Dudu, which, again, she was passed by Dudu, and in that order they continued until they rounded the Nore Lightship and came back to Erith. The Alexandra, however, soon relieved her antagonists by running on the edge of the Nore Sandbank, and was forced to leave Sunbeam. Meanwhile Folly had run up to Dudu, but for some time was unable to pass through the fleet. She had, however, Folly got a fortune, lurched across Dudu's bows, and fairly passed her. They flew up fast before wind and tide, bearing to join Gravesend, and over Dudu came up by very near to Folly several times. The race was, however, won by Dudu, Folly second, Ella third, Sunbeam fourth, and Ariadne the flag-buoy off Erith Pier. In the second class the winner was Algerine, 10 tons, beating the Ella by 2 minutes.

We will reserve till next week our Illustration of the great event of the Thames yachting season—the ocean race for schooners, cutters, and yawls from Harwich to Dundee, and back again to Harwich Harbour. The first prize, for cutters, was won by the Volante, Mr. H. Macaulay; the second by the Vindex, Mr. A. Duncan; the first prize for schooners or yawls by the Whirlwind, 77 tons, belonging to Mr. A. Fox.

ROYAL INSTITUTION LECTURES.

MR. RULLEY'S fifth lecture on "The Third or Transition Period of Musical History" was delivered on Thursday afternoon, the 2nd inst., in the Royal Institution. He claimed a high position for the musical composers of our own country, and instanced the names of Purcell, Arne, Boyce, and Greene, as some of the illustrious ornaments of the English school. Some even attributed the invention of counterpoint, and the violin was largely known to the English musicians of the seventeenth century. Purcell was the first English composer, and several of their pieces (e.g., "Since first I saw your face") are known throughout the world. Arne was the composer of "Rule Britannia" and taught our English music how to span Swords with just note and accord;" Boyce was celebrated for his cathedral music, and Greene for his glees. Of the two songs selected by Mr. Rulley from his numerous works, "Whilst I listen to The Voice of Love," and "Hark! the horrid sound," the latter was given by Miss Martin (soprano), the former was at a grave, the latter at a lively, movement. The other pieces performed were "Hail, bright Cecilia," by Messrs. Lawler, Martin, Cotsford, S. Webb, and E. Howell, exhibited the genius and skill of John Christopher Smith, who was a pupil of Handel, and who composed the music to "Rosamond," "Alexander Balus," and other works. The last piece performed, under the fatty," of all his numerous pieces, alone remained in the popular ear. It was composed in honour of the Duke of Cumberland's victory at Culloden, and was sung by Messrs. Lawler, Martin, Cotsford, and Howell, to the old school of the Tudors and sank youths to study under Lully, of Farinelli, and of Handel. Mr. Rulley concluded his lecture by a few remarks upon Handel, who completely revolutionised our music. Some amusing passages from Pepys' "Diary" were read by Mr. Rulley, and the musical illustrations were—a Sea Melody, "Hear, O Heavens!" was given by Misses Martin and Palmer and Messrs. Lawler, Martin, and Cotsford; a madrigal, "Sweet Honey-sucking Bees," by Messrs. Lawler, Martin, Cotsford, and Howell; and a glee, "Come, let us prove the most wisest mocks of his great influence over the Musical World."

On Tuesday, the 7th inst., Professor Tyndall delivered a lecture on "The Indian Queen," written by Sir Thomas Howard and Dryden—"O Thou Bright Goddess" and "Ah! how sweet it is to love," from Purcell's "Love's sickness to fly," by Mr. Wilbye Cooper (tenor); and Arne's songs (in "Artaxerxes") "The soldier tired of war's alarms" and "The lark now leaves his wat'ry nest," were sung by Miss Martin—each followed by its chorus.

Professor FARADAY delivered the first of a course of six lectures on the Metal, "On the Chemical Researches carried on by himself and Mr. R. Brett, F.R.S., on the Alkaline Metals, and on their Chemical Relations." Their object was to ascertain the composition of organic compounds—i.e., substances which are produced by the agency of vitality—and to determine the manner in which they are formed. Organic substances are composed of carbon, hydrogen, oxygen, and nitrogen; but to reproduce them from these elements (synthesis) is much more difficult than to analyse them and ascertain their composition. Until the great chemists of the day, whose labours have at length achieved great success, had succeeded in producing the organic compounds, they had to deal with sodium, zinc, and mercury, and the compound radicles methyl, ethyl, and amyl. These substances, by the action of chemical agents, were combined and modify their powers. The result has been the compounds sodium-ethyl, mercury-ethyl, zinc-ethyl, and so on with the other metals and compounds. In the radicle ethyl, for example, we have mercury-ethyl, one of these compounds, is the heaviest liquid known. Ethyl is a gas, and by the combination of sodium-ethyl we have a solid metal. Professor Faraday illustrated by an exposure to the air, emitting brilliant corruscations. By the agencies of these compounds, and by the action of water upon them, many of the new and curious acids of the boasic acid series have been obtained (ironic acid was previously found only in the animal kingdom), and the radicle ethyl. The radicle methyl or ethyl is added to water on organic substances, hydrate of ethyl, was immediately formed. Professor Faraday explained the nature of the new bodies, and a perplexing microscope, exhibited the beautiful varied forms evolved by the crystallisation of the salts of the new acids. Messrs. Brett and Faraday, and Mr. Dupre, and, finally, expressed a confident hope that by the application of the new bodies to the arts, many of the most important results would be obtained. The remainder of the course of lectures will be eventually rewarded by a crowded audience.

ECHOES OF THE WEEK.

On Monday night, in the debate on the Conference, the acerbities of Mr. Disraeli were for the moment softened into the usual jest of Lord Palmerston, as ancient Hotspur, tired and jaded with fighting, was moved to wager by the cheers. But Mr. Disraeli had the best of the argument, since he could quote Lord Palmerston against the Prime Minister, who had himself characterised the invasion of Zealand as "an atrocity." So much for Denmark, and the House felt it; and the speech of Palmerston against Lord Palmerston, and the irritation is against the Prussians, not against Lord Russell. Mr. Disraeli's business was to make party to adopted in this case, Government will lose the confidence of all people; and, in spite of professional cheers, the House and the country know, the belief gains ground that the very natural but very warm German sympathies of the Queen and Prince Consort have rendered further the destruction of Denmark possible. The month's grace expires on Sunday, and we are to have a Session. We are to have a truce—we are determined rather to die in battle than to be slowly killed by the poison of diplomatic intrigue.

How thoroughly the flunky loyalty of Royal tradesmen believes in the infallibility and omniscience of the Royal person is in this kingdom may be seen in the following anecdote—A well-known lady, who was presented at the Queen's Drawing-room, was spoken by Miss M. Oliver, in aid of the purchase of the Princess Theatre, on Thursday. The argument of the address was completely refuted by the dance at least, while all round the world, "From China to Peru," the flame of war burnt with a lurid brightness. Even the Court Correspondent of the Times, the writer who had literally started from China, concluded his travels thus:—

Bargaining has been carried on since Noah.

Wishing the deeds of Privasts to rehearse,

Each Prussian knows a little and says he knows more.

The point, you see, is obvious; but the loyal volunteers were alarmed. "We mustn't say a word against Prussia! Why, they're with the Court say?" cried the gallant citizen soldiers. The author explained that the Court Correspondent of the Times always stood by Prussia at the chance, and build the finest gallery in Europe for the military at the Tower. Then the Court and the Queen's Guards the Government render a single body of artists odious by their help!

So the Times has had a severe reverberation of public opinion, which, not in this small whispering gallery of the world, but throughout the civilised world ago, we gave a sketch of a teetotal attempt on the liberties of the Press, and one of the most important from the rules of a society which seeks to carry out its anti-intebration and information against "private tippling" was to be "Temperance Reading-rooms," and among such "Rules for Guidance and Management" "Permissive Bill"—a minor Maine law, which, if carried out, would be intolerable in every house in the land—the muzzle on the mouth of the working-man. Several of their friends had an interview with Lord Palmerston on the subject. How delightfully dry and bright—like a glass of fine amontillado—the old statesman's eye of that interview! He assured these legislative teetotallers that "he quite sympathised with them, but, at the present, begged to put a pausing and direct question. This question, like Mr. King Dick's question to Mr. Bright, "Who killed Cock Robin?" was, "Who shoulder" and fell upon the "frontispiece of the enemy." How was it (asked the Premier) that the Times, the most independent publishouses, so many hundred; and, if they loved houses where no liquor was sold, how was it that they had not a supply of water spring up to answer the demand? When will this old plan of getting on the back of John Bull and riding him to death be at an end? When from your own bobby be fully exploded? It is fully time that it were so; for, during the last week, the Times has many admirable letters from working men on the question of Reform have appeared in the Times. Now, we are not speaking of the question, but they are so clever, so much to the point, and so thoroughly sound, that we thought we had the best leader writer we have could not have exceeded them. Here is a letter from a working man! Who now quotes that vigorous poet?—paints a working man at home as he has right to paint him? Here is a letter from the pen of Penge who argues sensibly that the way for a working man to obtain reform is not to get it by force, but by himself who begins "I wish to dispute the self-elected leaders of the working man, being content to act as a tool in their hands, and to be led by the philosophy of Revolution) and the music of Mozart. Anyone who knows our working classes knows that this is nonsense. Let us not say that these two letters are the very best proof of the necessity, the duty, of an extension of the franchise? The safety, the more fairly and honestly, and with more discretion, than the tradesman who has just laundered a shirt, or a fisher who has just been wise.

Does anyone recall to memory the proud answer of the brilliant Pericles when some one asked, "Why have you not a statue?" "I had rather," said the statesman, "that men should ask why I have." Such may be the consolation of Shakspeare's ghost, for we believe that not even Garrick, with his wealth and idea of reward to the poet is abandoned. The loss on the tercentenary celebration was heavy, and many of the subscribers refused to pay the sums promised to the purpose of defraying the celebration expenses. And many ask what is to be done with it? The old-world Stratfordians, members of the National Committee, to whom alone, such was their want of tact and economy, the money was paid, have thought of a charitable duty is due, talk, we hear, of gathering in the poor remnant of the subscriptions and of giving the whole until a more convenient season. But, then, subscribers gave or will give their money for a definite purpose, and, that purpose being now beyond the question, they may refuse to pay it. The Stratfordians are to be cited in the last indignity, a waxen image of him, after the spurious Chandos portrait, having been set up in the Council Chamber. "Oh, the Council," you may see your poet with a glassy stare, a wiggy wig, sparely-sown pinkatees, like a mangy lion's, and after being cut to the knee, feathered, very pink cheeks, and an excessively waxy nose. There is the Corporation portrait of Shakspeare, and there is the waxen Jew which the mountain was so long in labour!

If a reader will take an interesting theatrical treat in the best kind of clear word-painting in verse with poetry in it let him take up Robert Buchanan's "Idyls and Legends of Inverburn" some happy triple and double rhymes on a "Portrait of a Lady":—

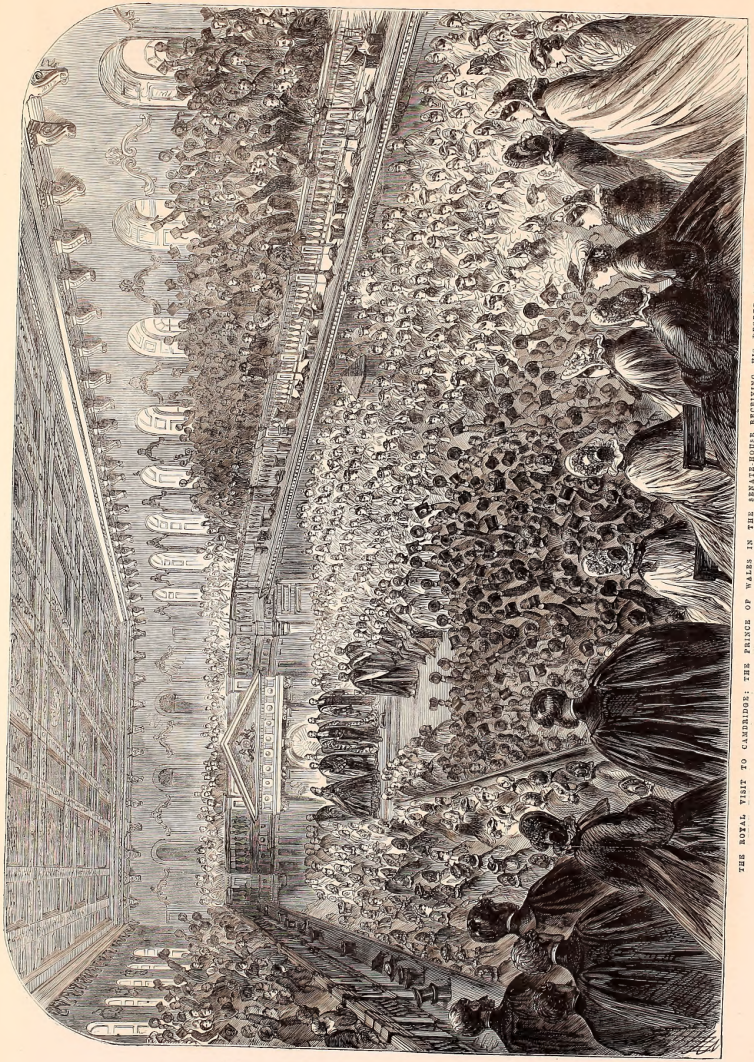
She sometimes sketches in the woods,
And remark a good deal of Jane Lamb in it;
That last is a joke of the Inverburn Council," you
But they've made the girl's nose a profession.
Her hair is a golden cloud tossed with a Tityl!
What, is she not Jane? Then she is she!

An artist on receiving the first proof sheet of Jane Lamb "in all his female figures—Kenny Meadows—having fallen into decay, has had a present of a pair of trousers presented to him, and has been graciously pleased to ask her "faithful Commons" to give Sir Rowland Hill's post-boy Jones and Lady Eigin £1000 a year. To this none of her bigots will object.

Englishmen in Germany write over to say that the Germans do not, as a body, sympathise with Denmark. Is that true? Then had better not bring any of his Derby-Day larks here." Cool, is it not? Four inoffensive, quiet English travellers, you are born to be pillaged, fleeced, and insulted. "Derby-Day larks!" Why, they would not live in malodorous Colorow any more than a British sparrow will in the Canaries. He scorns the action, and turns yellow in the attempt. "Derby-Day larks!" We like the phrase. Prince Coaxo, a bilious potentate, as tyrannical as Frank Matthews in a burlesque, has been playing his "Derby-Day larks" at Wallachia by overturning the constitution and effecting a small coup d'état, a coup-d'état à trois sous, perhaps, but one which is, nevertheless, ridiculously unfair, dirty, and tyrannical. We have nothing to do with this, but the Porte has, and we should back up our ally.

FINE ARTS.

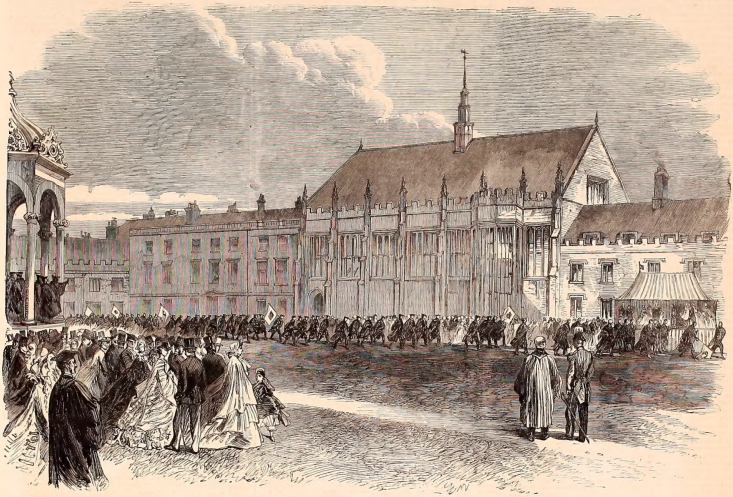
THE PHOTOGRAPHIC EXHIBITION—PHOTO-SCULPTURE, &c.



THE Photographic Society acted wisely in excluding from this exhibition all "touched" and all coloured photographs. The first has little better than frauds; the second conceal the true photograph. It was advisable, also, to open the exhibition later in the season than in former years. We cannot, however, congratulate the society upon the removal to the gallery in Pall-mall, lately occupied by the Female Artists, seeing it is so small that not one-third of the collection greatly diminished, but there is no space for stereoscopes, photo-microscopes, enamel-photographs, and many other applications of photography of popular and well-known interest. These are dropped out of the catalogue—such as those of Rejlander, Delamotte, Lake Price, Mudd, &c. We can also see the fine copies of works of art by Thurston Thompson, Caldesi, and the London Stereoscopic Company. The "instantaneous" photographs, or portraits of artists, called "The Studio," are not here, nor the photographs lately taken by Herbert Watkins, Colonel Stuart Wortley, whose views, last year, of the eruption of Vesuvius were of such extraordinary excellence, and many others.

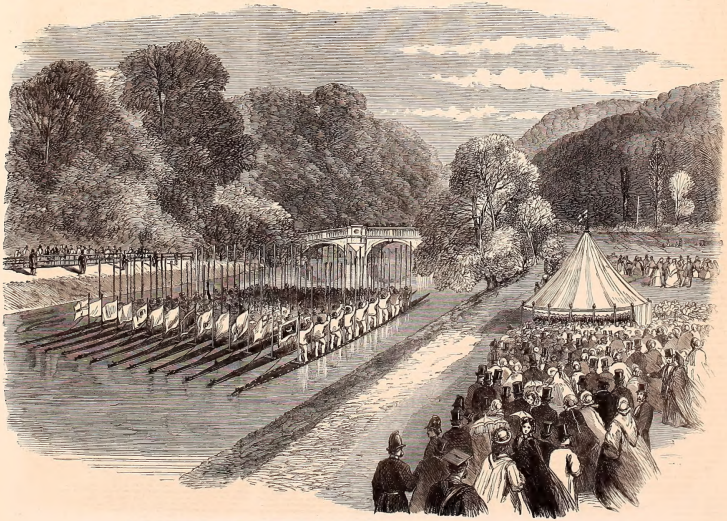
What would strike a gossiping chronicler most is the number and merit of the amateur exhibitors. Scores of the aristocracy and well-born officers win even greater triumphs in this art than the "Wandering Minstrels" gain in music; and ladies of rank, too, are free from fear to stain their delicate fingers, achieve the greatest successes of all.... It is however, not the scientific portrait, or, more especially, the landscape photography, we find few facts to record. Nevertheless, the carbon process is—as we intimated in our short notice last week—the greatest step yet made towards any permanent photography. The fact that we have the means of producing pictures—whether through water unfruly and with scant justice to her own charms, yet with some respect—unaffected by atmospheric accuracy and delicacy—it is deeply to be regretted that we cannot easily prevail upon her to be permanent pictures. Her photographs fade away, and certainly as her flowers. Every photograph in existence will in the course of years be a mere ghost of its former self, and, at no very distant period, vanish altogether. It is obvious, however, that if we could place in Dame Nature's hand some agent as fixed as carbon, which is indestructible, whether in the form of charcoal or the diamond, she would turn out permanent work. Hitherto, however, we have accordingly been made sober, look thoughtfully, but hitherto been in the preservation of the photographer's image. In Mr. Swan's process, however, by the simple expedient of printing from the back of the paper, and not from the front surface, this difficulty has been obviated, and the carbon, being represented in a film of gelatine, possesses, therefore, great depth and transparency which are absent when deposited only on the paper.

The process is most ingenious, and though it is out of our province to explain how the water sprouts, it is, in fact, a process described as consisting in printing, not directly on the paper, but on a film of gelatine which is held together by a coating of collodion. The two landscape specimens here have apparently been selected with a view to betray any inequality in the film, and the result is most happy. We quite convinced of the completeness of the process, and have only to desire to see it employed in a portrait. Another mode of securing permanency is to transfer the photograph from paper to glass, and such surface has such a way that it may afford impressions in common printer's ink. A specimen of this method is the beautiful mezzotint engraving, introduced by Colonel Henry James; but, as will be seen in the case of Mr. Keeley Halswelle's picture, the difficulties are at present missed. Sufficient, however, is indicated to show the value of the process, which, together with the carbon process, recently developed by Captain Scott, for the multiplication of the "Ordnance Survey," "Domesday Book," &c., gives to the same gentlemen are so value of his improved photo-lithographic process for copying rare old books, maps, and prints; but in heads from a living model the process seems comparatively worthless. Dallas's not finding expression illustrating the recent researches of Fox Talbot, the great English discoverer of photography.



We may mention, as other comparative novelties, the panoramic views of Mr. Thurston Thompson and the "Studio" of Mr. Lake Price, the employment in the former of panoramic lenses (the image from which is received on a curved instead of a plane surface), by which graphic field of vision, so to speak, is greatly widened. In the studies by the latter a peculiar effect resembling the tone of a sepia drawing, white, on tinted paper, is obtained by covering the developed negative, and arresting the margin by an arbori ritus.

Photography is, we freely admit, both a science and an art; but it is only by courtesy that it can be spoken of as "fine art," or that it is placed under the present heading. It requires a great deal of artistic knowledge and feeling in composition, "posing," and management of the light, before a picture can be displayed by the photographer. For these rare qualities there is nothing in this exhibition approaching, in merit to the works of the Viscountess Hawarden. By tasteful selection and posing of models, and arrangement of accessories, she has produced, in fact, pictures from the comparatively contracted aperture of a large window (which gives a command of light and shade), and the result is that her Ladyship secures the nearest approach to natural picture and effects, and with great delight like to see them. Not that a little of their charm is, however, due to the warm bistre tone. Strange to say, photography, copying as it does with a view of rivalling engravings, now unwisely seem to treat them as pictures, and not be displayed in



THE ROYAL VISIT TO CAMBRIDGE: THE PRINCE OF WALES IN THE SENATE-HOUSE RECEIVING HIS DEGREES OF LL.D.—SEE PAGE 575.

THE ROYAL VISIT TO CAMBRIDGE.

THE VOLUNTEER RIFLE CORPS MARCHING PAST THE PRINCE AND PRINCESS OF WALES.

THE BOAT PROCESSION ON THE RIVER CAM IN HONOUR OF THE PRINCE AND PRINCESS OF WALES.—SEE NEXT PAGE.

THE VISIT OF THE PRINCE AND PRINCESS OF WALES TO CAMBRIDGE.

THERE is a Royal Road to Learning, and the Prince of Wales is a member of both the great English Universities. The loyalty of Cambridge was exhibited on Thursday, Friday, and Saturday of last week, by its reception of the Prince and Princess, which surpassed, if Highnesses at the Oxford Commemoration of 1863. A special train conveyed their Royal Highnesses to Cambridge station at half-past three o'clock, using the luxurious saloon carriage built expressly for the Prince, and belonging to the Great Eastern Railway Company. On the platform were the Vice-Chancellor, attended by a marshal by his side, and drawn up in a line; there were also the Heads of Colleges; the band of the Cambridge Militia played the first few bars of "God Save the Queen." The Prince shook hands with the Vice-Chancellor, and then conducted the Princess to the carriage, stepped in himself. The train then moved out of the station, amidst the cheers of the crowd, who waved their caps and hats and handkerchiefs. The Duke and Duchess of Manchester and Earl and Countess Spencer accompanied the Royal pair to London.

OBITUARY OF EMINENT PERSONS.

THE PREMIER BARONET.

Sir Edmund Bacon, Bart., of Mildenhall, in the county of Suffolk, premier Baronet, was the eldest son of Sir Edmund Bacon, the second and ninth Baronet, by his wife, Anne, eldest daughter and heir of Sir Thomas Gooch, fourth Bart., first Baronet of Langley Park, in the county of Norfolk. He was born in 1801, and was educated at Rugby. He was a Deputy Lieutenant for Suffolk, and served the office of Sheriff for the borough of Orford. He died, unmarried, at his father, Sept. 1, 1820. He married, Aug. 28, 1828, Sir Simon, Clapham, Bedfordshire, Dashwood Bacon, Esq., of Ostrey St. Mary, Devon, who died before him without issue, and three sons survived him, of whom the eldest, Edmund, married, and the youngest survives, Frances, who was married, 1851, to Sir Thomas Wyndham Neville, and secondly, to Hamilton Francis Cunningham, Esq., of Woodlands, Kent. Sir Edmund died from an accident, Nov. 28, 1863. Sir Edmund Bacon died at his seat, Ravenyngham Hall, Norfolk, on the 9th ult., and was succeeded in the title and estates by his eldest son, Edmund Bacon, Esq., of Mildenhall, late of Ostrey, second daughter of Alexander Bowker, Esq., of Layer) of Sir Edmund's late brother, Nicholas Bacon, Esq., of Shrubland Park, Suffolk. The late Nicholas Bacon, who has already inherited the estate of Thorpe Hall, in the county of Lincoln, from the will of Sir Henry Hickman Bacon, Bart., who died April 7, 1859, and married, March 17, 1853, Elizabeth, younger daughter of Sir Thomas Beaumont, third and present Baronet, of Stockeld Park, in the county of York. Sir Henry's only brother, Francis Bacon, Esq., becomes heir presumptive to the Baronetcy and estates of Mildenhall. The Bacon Baronetcy is one of the Baronetcies of Nova Scotia, but the still greater honour of counting among its ancestors the great Lord Bacon, Viscount St. Alban, Lord Chancellor of England, who died March 9, 1626, and Anne Barnham, his wife, who survived by James I., May 22, 1611, and the philosopher's mother and coequal receive pensions each his Sovereign, Queen Elizabeth, cheers that the Lord Keeper Bacon, and his second wife, Jane, daughter of Sir Anthony Ashley, the first Baronet, obtained another baronetcy, that of Mildenhall, and the two Baronetcies united in Sir Henry Hickman Bacon, the present male head and representative of the race.

LIEUTENANT-COLONEL SIR EDWARD BRACEBRIDGE.

Lieutenant-Colonel Sir Edward Bracebridge, Knight, was born in the county of Lincoln, Kni., Knight of St. Fernando and of Isabella the Catholic of Spain, Knight of the Tower and Sword of Portugal, Commander of St. Bendo d'Avis, of Portugal, died at his residence, Shendaley Hall, Spalsby, on the 4th ult., in the 64th year of his age. He entered the army in 1815, and served with the 51st Regiment in Canada, in Calabria, at Scylla Castle; and at Gibraltar, in 1827-8; in Portugal, in 1832-3-4, and in Spain, in 1835-6-7, including the battles of Arlaban, Hernani, and the siege and subsequent feats of Pentecostal glory. He, at the storming and capture of Bilboa, had his horse shot in action with the enemy, and was himself severely wounded in the left arm, and received a gold medal for his services. He was also a member of the Royal Company of Archers, Queen's Body Guard for Scotland. He married, 1st, Miss Elizabeth Bracebridge, of Atherstone, Warwickshire, by whom he had issue one son, Edward Bracebridge, who died 1841, and two daughters, Elizabeth, married to Edward Bracebridge, Esq., of Kingsbury, Warwickshire, and Emma, married to Edward Bracebridge, Esq., of Colehill, Warwickshire, and secondly, to Miss Elizabeth Bracebridge

COLUMN FOR THE CURIOUS.

THE Charter of London, which the Master of the Rolls has just asked permission of the Court of Common Council to have photographed for the work, now publishing under his auspices, of national documents, from the Norman Conquest to the accession of the house of Hanover, is the charter granted by William the Conqueror to the city of London in 1067. It is beautifully written in Saxon characters, in four lines and a half, upon a slip of parchment 6 in. long and 1 in. broad, and is, in English, as follows —

William the King friendly salutes William the Bishop, and Godfrey the Portreve, and all the Burgesses within London, both French and English. And I declare that I grant you to be all law-worthy, as you were in the days of King Edward; and I grant that every child shall be his father's heir after his father's days; and I will not suffer any person to do you wrong. God keep you!

The matter has been referred to the Library Committee of the Corporation, to act in it as they may see fit, which, having especial regard to the care and custody of this ancient monument during the process, the Charter was engraved, in 1855, at the head, as the titlepage of the "Curiosities of London," published in that year. Of this work, there may be purchased, at the same time in preparation a new and enlarged edition.

We regret to have to record the death of John Yykeham Archer, the able artist and illustrator of antiquities. Mr. Archer was a pupil of John Scott, the celebrated animal-engraver, but, subsequently, after turning his attention to water colours, he sketched a series of our metropolitan antiquities with such success as to have brought to notice this class of subjects in a permanent manner. To his unwearied industry and love of his pursuit we owe the representation of many fragments of Old London, which the hand of improvement has long since laid dealt with of late years. For Mr. Twyney Mr. Archer executed, from time to time, a large collection of these picturesque memorials, a selection from which was etched by Mr. Archer and published some years ago under the title of "Vestiges of Old London." He also published the Duke of Northumberland to commission Mr. Archer to sketch the interesting antiquities which are so thickly scattered over his Grace's extensive estates; and a fine collection of drawings is the result. Mr. Archer likewise contributed many to the late Mr. Hall's pencil and pen. His sketches are full of character and vraisemblance, and his information upon antiquarian matters was equally sound and to be relied on. Of late, to his brother artists he was also known for his ever courteous and willing to communicate. (An interesting memoir of Mr. Archer appeared in the Builder of Saturday last.)

Dodsley's Annual Register for the past year has just appeared, with certain improvements in the compilation, in order to bring it nearer to the requirements of the present day. This stir has already brought suggestions for still further change—we hope not to embarrass the proprietors. One subscriber, we perceive, calls for a general Index for the volumes since 1815! The Register was first published in 1759, as a view of the history, politics, and literature of the year. This, and several of the succeeding volumes, were so popular that they ran through five or six editions. Edmund Burke wrote the historical chapters and superintended the publication for which he received £100 a year, as proved by receipts in existence signed by Burke. Burke's editorship lasted seven or eight years, and he is believed to have been subsequently succeeded by Robert Bisset, "of the War," which Burke wrote, was reprinted from the Register, and went through more than one edition. The Annual Register contains a review of "Rasselas," in which Burke made the first public suggestion of Johnson's pension, which was granted in the following year. We have scarcely an instance of such sound writing in any annual register of our age as in Dodsley's. Of late years, the publishers of the Annual Register, to which Sir Walter Scott and Mr. Southey contributed.

A Mappemonde, by Leonardo da Vinci, has recently been discovered among the Royal Collection at Windsor. The map is thus described to the Society of Antiquaries by Mr. R. H. Major. This map contains three claims to priority over all maps previously known:—first, as to the first conception of the New World; secondly, the first showing the severance of the New World from Asia and of Cuba from Japan, in the belief of which Columbus died; and thirdly, as representing the ancient idea of a great southern continent. The date due to the map, from the evidence of the work itself, is between 1512. Leonardo's remarkable habit of writing from right to left, which Mr. Major found might prevent the map from being read, as it is written from left to right) to be Leonardo's, was the very means of his bringing that proof to demonstration. Mr. Major was of opinion that the map had a Vespuccian origin, from its containing the representation of a timber in the use of a Portuguese ship, and from the ex Sunsa, that word being a translation of an error in printing the original Italian of Vespucci where ex Sunsa was printed instead of Isabella. Mr. Major further showed, with great ingenuity, a highly probable connection between Leonardo da Vinci and Vespucci, through the medium of the Gioconda Family, and that the former was actually engaged on the famous portrait of Mona Lisa Giaconda, while at the same time a Giaconda was send from Lisbon to Florence by the King of Portugal to seduce Vespucci from the service of Spain to that of Portugal; and in the following year the same lady, Mona Lisa Giaconda was translated into Latin by another Giaconda, the celebrated architect who built the bridge of Notre Dame at Paris. In support of this connection, Mr. Major was able to illustrate, by a series of curious facts, the process by which the spurious and worthless coin of Vespucci was suggested and afterwards adopted in print by a small cluster of men at the little town of St. Dié, in Lorraine, under the special and immediate patronage of Rene, second Duke of Lorraine and Titular King of Jerusalem and Sicily.

The proud railway will, in a few days, be the means of demolishing one of the London houses of our great epic poet, John Milton, situated in Barbican, exactly opposite Aldersgate Street. "The house and several others contiguous thereto," says the Builder, "have been sometime occupied by the directors of the London and North Western (formerly Railway." It was in Barbican that Milton lived after his marriage with his wife, and also after her death.

Varying an old ditty, we may sing "Blackfriars Bridge is broken down," and is forthwith to be replaced by a new one. Blackfriars bridge across the Thames, which "for the present replaces the dangerous wooden structure which has hitherto done duty as well as may be a bridge at Blackfriars," has been opened to the public. "When the mighty flood," it was first announced, "by which it was soon dropped, though the popularity of the Minister lasted during the two years the bridge was building. It was the boys' sure bridge, from the balustrades being lower than those of the other bridges, and thus allowing the passengers of small growth to see the traffic on the river, which is the delight of children. Before the bridge was swept away the balustrades at Blackfriars, and in seven years' repair spent £74,000, so as to be contemporaneous with the new structure—even "the old bridge" (not a century), with its "broken-backed and dangerous arch," is to be pulled down, and replaced by a new one, which is close impending. It will hardly be worth while to look after the fate of the stone, engraved "Built in the year 1769," and the inscription in honour of Mr. Pitt, and drawn up in such bad Latin that it furnished ample matter of chaff to the wits of the day.

The site of the Fleet Prison has been sold by the Court of Common Council for the sum of £60,000, to the Metropolitan and St. John's Railway Company, who intend forthwith to erect here the London terminus of their railway, with convenient approaches. This large piece of ground had lain waste and unoccupied ever since the time the Fleet Prison was abolished and removed.

The Prince and Princess of Wales were present at the Chapel Royal, Whitehall, at the morning service, on the 29th ult. The occasion was an interesting one, being the 200th anniversary of the restoration of the Royal family in 1660. The Royal closet is described in the reports as being within a few feet of the spot on which King Charles I. was executed. This is hardly correct; for according to a memorandum of Vertue, a print in the library of the Society of Antiquaries, through a window belonging to a small building abutting from the north side of the present Banqueting House, the King stepped upon the scaffold, "which was equal to the landing-place of the Hall within side." The Banqueting House was converted into a chapel in the reign of George I.; it has never been consecrated, which fact was mentioned in the House of Commons several years ago, when it was proposed to use the Hall as a picture-gallery.

CHESS.

TO CORRESPONDENTS.

E. P.—The solution of problem No. 1658 is perfectly correct. See notice to "Nova" in our last number.

SOCIETY.—We have no recollection of having received the letter mentioned. The law in questions No. 1,357 was explained in last week's CHESS PLAYER.

J. T. TOWERS.—Your solution of the Enigma by Mr. Kling, under problem No. 1656 is right, as are your solutions of the enigmas of Messrs. Kling and Hill.

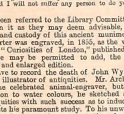
G. J. TOWERS.—The name, as previous, "Guinea," not "Conda."

J. H. MACKENZIE.—In the position submitted, the player of the White man has the best game.

BETA.—The key move of Enigma No. 1661 is, 1. B to Q R 7th: the remaining moves are sufficiently transparent.

AN OLD MEMBER OF THE WESTMINSTER CHESS CLUB.—The precise number of games played in the match by Messrs. Le Beaumarchais and M'Donnell in their matches has never been authoritatively published. The number, probably, will be. We are sorry to say that it is not in our power to throw any new light upon the subject.

SOLUTION OF PROBLEM No. 1658.



WHITE.	BLACK.
1. Kt to K 8th (sq)	P takes P (best)
2. B takes P	Kt takes B

(If Black play, 2. B to K 3rd's this follow, 2. . . . Kt to Q 4th (sq), and mate next move.

PROBLEM No. 1659.

By the late L. B. of Bedford.

BLACK.

WHITE.

White to play, and mate in three moves.

A NEW RECORD OF OLD GAMES.

The following very elegant little Partie occurred between Mr. Perigal, formerly Hon. Secretary of the London Chess Club, and a skilful Amateur:—

BLACK (Amateur.)	WHITE (Mr. P.)	BLACK (Amateur)	WHITE (Mr. P.)
1. P to K 4th	1. P to K 4th	13. Q to R 5th	13. Kt to B 3rd
2. Kt to B 3rd	2. Kt to B 3rd	(This apparently daring but really quite safe move exercised considerable influence on a very powerful attack.)
3. P to Q 4th	3. P takes P	14. Q takes P (ch)	14. Kt to K 2nd
4. P to Q 3rd	P to Q 3rd	15. Q takes Kt	15. Kt to K 4th (ch)
5. P to Q 4th	5. P to K 4th	16. Kt to K B 3rd	16. P to Q 4th
6. P to Q 5th	6. P to K 5th	17. Q takes K R	P to Q 6th
7. Kt to K 4th	7. P to K B 4th	(Fairly indefensible, is wort the threatened mate.)
8. B takes K B (ch)	Q takes B	18. Q takes R	Q takes R
9. P takes K B	9. P takes K B P	19. B to K 4th	19. B to K B 4th
10. Kt to Q 2nd	Q to K R 4th	20. Q to K Kt 8th	Q to K R 6th
		21. Q to K 7th (ch)	21. K to Q B 3rd
		22. B to K 3rd	B to K B 6th and Black resigned.

Another lively Game between the same Opponents.

BLACK (Amateur.)	WHITE (Mr. P.)	BLACK (Amateur)	WHITE (Mr. P.)
1. P to K 4th	1. P to K 4th	14. P takes Q R 5	14. Kt to K B 3rd
2. Kt to K B 3rd	2. Kt to Q B 3rd	15. Kt to Q 2nd	15. Q to K R 4th (ch)
3. B to Q B 4th	3. B to Q B 4th	16. Kt to Q 3rd	16. Q to K R 6th
4. P to Q 3rd	P to Q 3rd	17. Kt to Q 4th	P to Q Kt 4th
5. P to Q 4th	P takes P
6. P takes P	B to Q Kt 3rd	18. B takes Q Kt P	Castles on K's side
7. Castles	B to Q Kt 5th	19. B takes Kt	Q takes B
8. Q to Q B 4th	B takes Kt	20. Q takes Kt	Kt to K 4th
9. P to Q R 3rd	B to K R 4th	21. Q to Q B 4th	Q to K B 3rd
10. Kt to K 5th	Q to K R 5th	22. P to Q B 4th	Kt to K 6th
11. P to K B 4th	P to K Kt 4th	23. Q to Q 3rd	Q to K 3rd

(The game now becomes highly critical and unusual.)

11.	B takes K B P (ch)	24.	Q R takes B
12. K takes B	Q this K B P (ch)	25. Q to Q 2nd	R to Q 4th and White won.

WEST YORKSHIRE CHESS ASSOCIATION.

The ninth annual tournament of this Association was held on Saturday, in the Assembly-room of the Philosophical Hall, Huddersfield. Mr. Jaffe, Bradford, acted as umpire. The players were Messrs. Bottomley and Jas. Barker, Bradford; Messrs. Thomas Lathan, G. J. Taylor, and John Hirst, Huddersfield; Messrs. Jas. Rhodes, Dewsbury; Messrs. Thos. Jackson, Jos. Jackson, Jos. Brook, and Samuel Schlesinger, Halifax; Messrs. Cooper, Wm. Morrell, Jas. Rhodes, and F. Schlesinger, Huddersfield; Messrs. Hemingway, Wm. Hirst, and W. Young, S. Day, F. W. Parer, R. Shepherd, J. A. Fawcett, J. Matthewman, W. Green, and T. Oswald, Bradford; Messrs. W. Ellis, Robert Schofield, Huddersfield; Messrs. Winterbottom, and W. C. Myers, Leeds; Mr. Walker Parrott, Wibsey, near Bowport; and Mr. Alfred Rowbotham, Knaresborough, Secretary. Refreshments. The players assembled early in the afternoon and the requisite arrangements were made. The number of competitors rendered it necessary that the room being divided into two classes, according to their presumed strength. The first class was won by Mr. Bottomley, Bradford, who beat Mr. Jas. Barker in "Morphy's Game." As the second prize in the first class was given for classes, they were pitted against one another by lot, and play commenced. It was marvellously close, but Mr. Jas. Barker was successful and continued till the contests were decided. The results were as given below :—

FIRST-CLASS CONTESTANTS' TOURNAMENT.

1st Round.—W. Parrott, Wibsey; D. Marsden, Huddersfield, +2, W. Young, Bradford; R. Cartwright, Halifax, +2, Bottomley, Bradford; Jas. Barker, Bradford; G. Brook, jun., Huddersfield; +2, T. Lathan, Sheffield.

2nd Round.—T. Ackworth, Halifax, +2, W. Young, Bradford; J. Moorhouse, Bradford; +2, W. L. Robinson, T. Arkwright.

The tournament, awakening so much local emulation, were naturally the main source of interest during the day; but a contest wherein the celebrated German master, Horwitz, fought seven games at once against as many players, attracted a large amount of attention. In the struggle Mr Horwitz won four, drew two, and lost one of the seven games. At the termination of the play Mr. Turpeyn moved that the next meeting of the association be held at Bradford, and took the opportunity of observing that he had visited many of the provincial societies, and though their defeat in the second encounter with Huddersfield was unfortunate, they were not disheartened, still they were not discouraged, and hoped they should have the pleasure of meeting the Huddersfield players again, for they felt satisfied that in the next contest they should prove more successful.

* Winner.

THE FARM

As the Newcastle meeting approaches, the men of the north are becoming thoroughly stirred up, and 126 new members have enrolled their names on the Royal Agricultural Society's books, and will thus have free admission to the public judging, and throughout the week. Mr. Burgess, of the firm of Burgess and Key, 10, Newgate-street, puts the portfolio which has become vacant at the council board by the election of Mayor-general Hood to a vice-president. The society's balance at the bank on the 31st of May was £2001 11s. 3d.; and Mr. Henry Evershed, of Park Farm, near Godalming, Surrey, and Mr. G. Lucas, of Cribbish Grange, Saffron Walden; and the author who still blushes unseen under the motto "Unis amoreux Fuscius soleure jobenus," have won the silver medals for the essays on the best way to have two grooms in future in lieu of an assistant steward; and, on the motion of Mr. Hyde Clarke, seconded by Mr. Pusey, the distinguished foreigners are to be distributed, as at Battersea, under the direction of the president. A single bull is to be awarded as a special meeting of the council on the 15th inst. The standard of excellence in the various classes during the week is to be given to the exhibitors—"That the cowshed should cut the sole of the furrow perfectly true from the land side clean and level, and that the furrow slices will uniformly, with perpendicular cut of the land side, leaving a uniform and level bed for the seed, and that the open furrow couther be light in draught, simple, strong, and economical in construction." The prize for the information that will produce the most approved standard of excellence in ploughing, it will still be open to the judges to award a portion of the money to trials of ploughs intended to cut the same depth at different forms or by turns in various positions.

We cannot very fully, two or three weeks back, into the programme of the Islington Horse Show, and we have just received an intimation that a new feature is to be introduced in the hackney class, with three prizes of £25, £15, and £10. The entrance fee is not stated, but we conclude that it will be £5 5s., as there are to be a second prize in the hack classes—viz. £1, £5 5s. each. The entries for the whole of the classes close on or before June 20.

The fourth anniversary dinner of the Royal Agricultural Benevolent Institution, which is the youngest child of the family in the chair. Satisfactory progress was reported, as there are about forty pensioners on the list, and a reserve fund of £3,000 is in course of accumulation. The income from all sources is fully £3000 a year, and 75 per cent of that is derived from annual subscriptions. To show the activity and winning ways of the Benevolent Institution, the Duke of the society, we need only look to the list of subscribers, which embraces nearly 400 from Scotland, 200 from Ireland, and 1,200 in the whole kingdom. Ireland only furnishes two, Scotland six, Cheshire five, and Lancashire (including the noble subscription of the Duke) is also thinly set down as an immense amount of agricultural indigence to deal with, is as yet quite in its swaddling clothes. The Duke of Richmond let it be to the effect that he should like to see a friendly grafted on to the present charitable society, to which the majority of every agricultural dinner. In the course of the evening £3360 was subscribed, and the secretary, Mr. C. Shaw, announced that not less than £1,000 out on the same evening, and that he would not rest satisfied until he had honeycombed all England with them.

The Mercers Committee, of which Mr. Thomas Baring is now the chairman, vice Mr. Bruce, retired, meets regularly every Tuesday and Friday. The chief secretary, Mr. Catherby, Professors J. Clare and Simmonds, and Mr. Hall Maxwell, K.C.B., the secretary of the Highland Agricultural Society, have been appointed judges. The duties of the latter gentleman turned a good deal upon the value of the Edinburgh dairy show, which is annually visited by Professor Low's pupils.

The Lincoln and Stamford Mercury says, in allusion to the lambing season, that "the ewes have been remarkably quiet on the pastures, including Swallow, Croxby, Stanion, Kirmond, &c., have been enormous. One farmer, we understand, has had over three score and ten lambs (many from 400 ewes; and a collector of carcases at Swinhope, which is situated nearly in the centre of the wolds, has had a hundred and forty to fifty dead ewes brought in daily. He has had several hundreds of carcases gared for tallow. The Veterinarians confirms this statement as to the mortality, and the correspondents generally in the last fortnight have lost from eighty to one hundred ewes out of flocks of 300, and one gentleman has lost several with the same number than 150 lambs.

Mr. Hunt has been elected president of the Royal Veterinary College for the ensuing year; Messrs. Goodwin, Harpley, Pritchard, Harrison, Beaumont, Simonds, and Simpson by ballot. Mr. Cox, the Queen's secretary and registrar. It appears from the annual report that ninety pupils have received the diploma during the year, including the past year, and that the balance in hand after defraying expenses is £450. Professors Simonds and Spooner are the new members of the Court of Examiners, in the place of Messrs. Quain and Field. The North of England Veterinary Medical Association purpose giving a public dinner at Newcastle to their honorary professor, Mr. Simonds, with the Royal Agricultural Society, and a large gathering of the profession is expected. The late Mr. Marvin of Marvin and Sons, Holborn, viaduct, is dead. He retired a few years since from the profession, which he adorned for many years, and was also to rule the death of a very celebrated Smithfield salesman, Mr. Maydwell, which took place at his residence, Hornsey, on the morning of the 31st ult., in the eighty-third year of his age. It is some years since he appeared on the Smithfield market, having been succeeded as a fat-stock purchaser, but he still took a lively interest in stock and, more especially in "the heavy beasts." Mr. Maydwell was a Shropshire man and a practical stock and heifer stayed nearly four months in his Ashtead paddock, between the Epsom and Leatherhead roads, and he was always in the habit without a visit to them and their guardian angel "John."

Mr. Scrafford will bring to the hammer this summer not only a large portion of his own Yorkshire possessions, but several of his Grace the Duke of Devonshire's as well. The latter sale, which is fixed for September, will comprise the whole of the stock, among the ewes and heifers will be found all the Bartingtons, except a young heifer, and the Duke's Cambridge, Wiltons, Despatches, and Lancaster heifer by the same bull. There will also be all the Minstrels of the Gyrwas and Lady Fragrant tribes, the Gwynnes, the Lady Jemimas, the Julys and all the Cowies from Coy, of Mr. Wetherell's Aldborough sale. The bulls will include Lord Oxford, 3rd, three of Mr. Cruickshank's, Collective, the 10th, 12th, and 14th Dukes—from Sylph, of the Blanche tribe; Commander-in-Chief, of the Duchess of Gloucester, Among the rest is a Lord Oxford calf, from Dustie, of the Cobham sale. Several cows in the herd have calves at foot, and many of their lives are provided for by the same bull. There will also be all the Minstrels of the Gwynne

NEW BOOKS.

Just ready, Fourthpiece, 2s. cloth, a Fourth Thousand of

THE POST of HONOUR. By the Author of "Dolcino and Saffredina." "Hard Words," &c. "The whole work constitutes a charming picture of domestic life; and is pervaded throughout by a healthy moral tone, which cannot fail, with religious persons, to be deserving of a record."—Morning Post.

SEELEY, JACKSON, and HALLIDAY, 54, Fleet-street, London.

Just ready, a Second Thousand, Fourthpiece, 2s. cloth,

SCHOOL and HOME; or, Leaves from a Boy's Journal. By the Author of "England's Daybreak." "The Journal of a Boy is a very pleasant book. The whole volume is full of striking bits of truth and feeling, and of interesting kind. No boy who takes it up will readily lay it down again."—London Review.

SEELEY, JACKSON, and HALLIDAY, 54, Fleet-street, London.

NEW EDITION of the CONFESSION of a KING. MAURICE DERING, the new Novel, by the Author of "The Enterprise." In 1 vol.

Also, UNDER SENTENCE. A New Novel, by the Author of Mrs. Lorimer." In 3 vols.

STRIFE AND REST, the new Novel, by the Author of "Aspen Court." In 3 vols.

TREVLYN HOLD. By Mrs. WOOD, the Author of "East Lynne." In 3 vols.

HURST and BLACKETT, Publishers, 13, Great Marlborough-street.

Just published, demy 8vo, cloth extra, 6s. 6d.; half morocco, 10s.; morocco, 15s., free by post, LIFE: its Theory, Varieties, and Phenomena. Third Edition. By LORD H. SCOTT.

"The reader will find in it much thought and much reading. There is plenty to think upon, plenty to study, plenty to entertain."—Literary Gazette, May 14.

London: F. PITMAN, 20, Paternoster-row, E.C.

180 pp., cloth lettered, 3s., free by post,

VEGETABLE COOKERY. By PARDON, PRESLAND, & CO. "Cook needs it."—Spectator.

London: F. PITMAN, 20, Paternoster-row, E.C.

Now ready, demy 8vo, cloth, 358 pp., price 9s., the Second Edition of

A NTEDILUVIAN HISTORY AND MARVELS of the HEAVENS and the EARTH. By Rudy Fenton, of the Rock of Ossians. Critically examined and explained by the Rev. J. G. WOOD, M.A.

London: F. PITMAN, 20, Paternoster-row, E.C.

Just published, crown 8vo, price 5s.

HIDDEN SPRINGS. By the Rev. JOSEPH PARKER, Author of Greenfield Chapel, &c.

"Nature is ever-silent in the woodland, and hears no melodies; but the heart of man is full of music, and the Christian's heart may hold a symphony that is not even dreamed of by the ancient Stagirite."

London: F. PITMAN, 20, Paternoster-row, E.C.

NEW BOOKS to ASK FOR at the LIBRARIES.

HAUNTED HEARTS. By the Author of "The Daughters." 2 vols.

A Second Edition of

THE LOST SIR MASSINGBERD. 2 vols.

THE CHILDREN OF LUTETIA; or, Life Amongst the Communists. By the Author of "Mary Powell."

HANNAH THURSTON. By BAYARD TAYLOR. 3 vols.

MORE SECRETS THAN ONE. By Mrs. Edwards. 2 vols. Just ready.

STRATHCAIRN. By CHARLES ALLSTON COLLINS. 2 vols.

NOTICE.—In order to facilitate an early and full supply of Mudie's and the Athenæum subscription-lists, Messrs. Hurst and Blackett request that the names be restricted, each subscriber's name, himself, and the name of the nearest Mudie's Branch, as in the following example:—Mudie's Select Library, 30, Upper Baker-street, London.—HAMPTON LOW, 1859, and MARLBORO', H. Lodge-hill.

MAPS and GUIDE-BOOKS.

STANFORD'S PORTABLE GUIDE-BOOKS to London, containing This, Price, &c., of the Best Omnibus, Hansom, Cab, and Railway Routes; Hotels, Restaurants, Theatres, Public Offices, Churches, Hospitals, Post-offices, Banks, and Asylums. Price 1s. each, or free per post for one stamp.

STANFORD'S LONDON GUIDE, 6, Charing-cross, S.W. Agent for the sale of the Ordnance Maps, Geological Survey Maps, and Admiralty Charts.

This Edition, 10th Thousand, price 1s. 6d., post-free 21 stamps,

DISEASES OF THE SKIN: A Guide to their Treatment and Prevention, Illustrated by Cases. By ERASMUS WILSON, F.R.S., Lecturer on Anatomy and Surgery at the Museum of the Royal College of Surgeons, England. "Mr. Erasmus Wilson has transformed those diseases from the intricately close to the tractable."—Lancet, October 7. RICHARDS, 37, Sohe-square, London.

DR. YEARSLEY'S WORKS on the EAR. Price 1s. each. 1. On Throat Deafness. 2. On the Artificial Tympanum. 3. On Deafness, &c.

New Burlington-street.

POSTAGE-STAMPS.—A priced Catalogue of FOREIGN POSTAGE-STAMPS sent post-free for 12 stamps. LOWDELL, 240, 407, New Oxford-street, London. Set of London Issue Stamps, 1s., unused.

TO EXCURSIONISTS.—An Illustrated Guide to the Watering Places of England and Wales, and to the Isle of Wight, Channel Islands, and Ireland, with Maps of the Lakes, Chatsworth, Matlock, and Dovedale, and Plans of the Towns, Harbours, &c., to be had at all Railway Stations, Hotels, and Booksellers, and of the Publishers, WARD, LOCK, and BOWDEN, 158, Fleet-street, London.

PENCILS, Black Lead and Coloured Chalks, A. W. FABER'S POLYGRADE PENCILS, sold by all Stationers, Artists, and Artists' Colourmen. Agents—Rickinson and Rochussen, 9, Friday-street, London, E.C.

JENNER and KNEWSTUB, to the Queen, Manufacturers of Swords, Regimental Clothing, Accoutrements, and Military Outfitters, 69, St. James's-street, and 1, Bury-street, corner of King-street, Pall-mall, London. Every description of Regimental Clothing and Accoutrements made on the shortest notice and of the best paper. Lists free.—Jenner and Knewstub (late Prise Middlemarch and Co.), 69, St. James's-street, and 1, Bury-street.

THE Romans made LASTING PERFUMES, as do the NAPOLEON PRINCE. Prices from 2s. 6d. per bottle. Rose, White Rose, Damask Rose; each as natural as the flower. 2s. 6d. per bottle.

CREAM OF LILIES, for beautifying and improving the complexion, and delicately scenting freshly gathered flowers. 2s. 6d. per bottle.—RIMMEL'S Perfumed Vinegar, 2s. 6d. per bottle.

NAPOLEON PRICE'S REGISTERED GOLDEN OIL is the only article that really possesses the power of restoring grey hair to its original colour. Sold by all Perfumers. Rooms of the Napoleon Prince, 24, New Bond-street, Napoleon Price and Co., 97, Old Bond-street. 3s. 6d., 7s. 6d., and 10s.

WHITE and SOUND TEETH are indispensable to personal attraction, and to health and longevity. Sold by all Perfumers. Rooms, 24, New Bond-street.

BEAUTIFUL HAIR.—CHURCHER'S VIOLET CREAM is the best and cheapest Cream Tint for Ladies' Hair. Sold by all Hairdressers and Perfumers. Rooms, 24, New Bond-street. All of Hairdressers and Perfumers.

BEAUTIFUL HAIR.—CHURCHER'S VIOLET CREAM is the best and cheapest Cream Tint for Ladies' Hair. Sold by all Hairdressers and Perfumers. Rooms, 24, New Bond-street. All of Hairdressers and Perfumers.

S. ROTHENDEN and SONS, 3, Great Marlborough-street, W., and 45 and 46, City-road, E.C., London.

QUEEN ELIZABETH'S POMANDER. THESE and LIKES have produced a small copy of the Pomander of Sweet Cashet so worn by Elizabeth suspended from her girdle. It contains Sir Prophylactic Odours of rare excellence.

Pomander Copies have been made, by permission of the Lords Commissioners of Science and Art, according to the original in the Kensington Museum. Price 42s. On view—2, New Bond-street.

DIESSE and LUBIN'S HUNGARY WATER, paralysation, sclerosation, intermission. "I am not surprised to learn," says Humboldt, "that ancient Copernicus, tormented by Rheumatism, was cured by Hungary Water. I have myself proved its efficacy in a case of an attack, 1834, 56; single sapphire, 3s.; a New Scent—W. and J. SANGSTER, 140, Fleet-street, London.

THE LONDON and NORTHERN BANK (Limited).

3, Bank-buildings, London.

Branches—Norwich, Lowestoft, Yarmouth, and Sheffield.

Agencies—Margate, Alnwick, and Morpeth.

The Directors are prepared to open Accounts and Branches of this Bank, applied which Cheques may be drawn not exceeding any fractional part of £10. Interest will be allowed on the balance of those accounts at the current rate of 2 per cent.

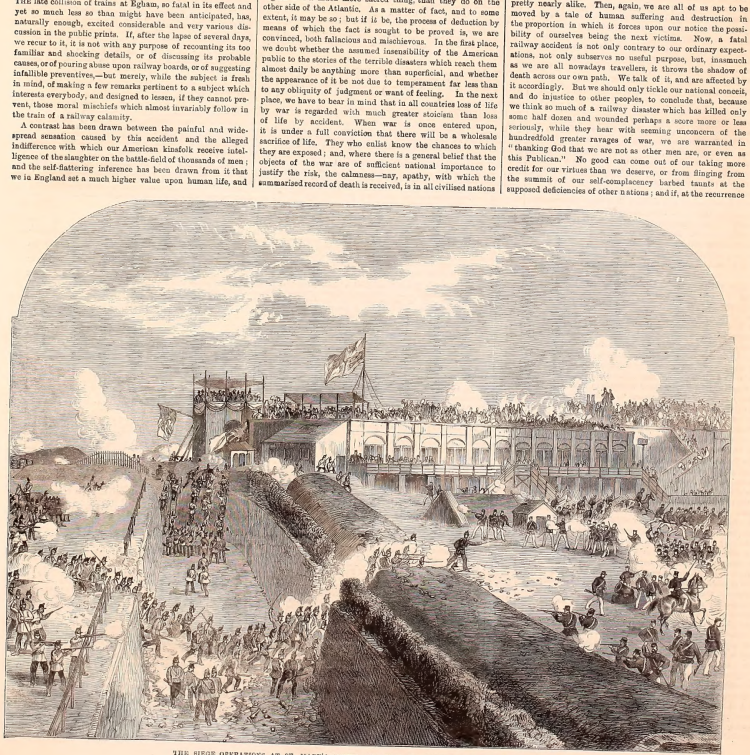
ISLE OF MAN.—HILL'S ROYAL HOTEL, DOUGLAS, adjoining the Packet Office. Board, lodging, and attendance, 7s. per day. Letters to insure a reply to be addressed Church of the Island and Map, free.

HOSPITAL FOR CONSUMPTION AND DISEASES OF THE CHEST, BROMPTON, S.W. Supported entirely by voluntary contributions. Information may be had at the OFFICE IN ENQUIRY to meet the current expenses of this Charity.

SAMUEL GURNEY, Treasurer. HENRY BURDETT, Sec.

FOR FAMILY ARMS—the LINCOLN'S-INN HERALDIC OFFICE, 61, Chancery-lane, W.C. Painted and Quartered. Sketch, 3s. 6d. on receipt. The Pedigree of Families traced. Fee, £2 2s. Arms painted, 5s.

LINCOLN'S-INN HERALDIC OFFICE. The established office of authority in England for furnishing Arms and Crests. Sketches, 3s. 6d. Engraving, 6s. Painting, 5s. Searching, 10s. 6d. Clergymen, Chapels, &c., Engravings, Seals, Dies, Rings, Plate, Books, Steel Stamps, Carriage Panels, Liveries, Gentlemen's Servants' Buttons, Ladies' Note Paper, Envelopes, Visiting Cards, Illuminations, Heraldic Decorations, Mottoes, Pedigrees, Genealogies, Crests, Arms, Quarterings, Supporters, Badges, Monograms, Books of Reference, Manuscripts, Deeds, Grants, Records, Rolls, Charters, Tombs, Hatchments, Funeral Certificates, Obituaries, Wills, Inventories, Boundaries, Tenures, Manors, Advowsons, Rectories, Vicarages, Glebes, Tithes, Commons, Forests, Parks, Chases, Warrens, Fisheries, Rights, Privileges, Franchises, Liberties, Offices, Appointments, Precedence, Ceremonies, Coronations, Processions, Funerals, Obsequies, Monuments, Brasses, Effigies, Inscriptions, Epitaphs, Arms, Crests



THE ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS

No. 1264.—VOL. XLIV. SATURDAY, JUNE 18, 1864. WITH A SUPPLEMENT, FIVEPENCE

RAILWAY ACCIDENTS

THE late collision of trains at Egham, so fatal in its effect and yet so much less so than might have been anticipated, has, naturally enough, excited considerable and very various discussion in the public prints. If, after the lapse of several days, we recur to it, it is not with any purpose of recounting its too familiar and shocking details, or of discussing its probable causes, or of pouring abuse upon railway boards, or of suggesting infallible preventives,—but merely, while the subject is fresh in mind, of making a few remarks pertinent to a subject which interests everybody, and designed to lessen, if they cannot prevent, those moral mischiefs which almost invariably follow in the train of a railway calamity.

A contrast has been drawn between the painful and widespread sensation caused by this accident and the alleged indifference with which our American kinsfolk receive intelligence of the slaughter on the battle-field of thousands of men; and the self-flattering inference has been drawn from it that we in England set a much higher value upon human life, and regard it as a much more sacred thing, than they do on the other side of the Atlantic. As a matter of fact, and to some extent, it may be so; but if it be, the process of deduction by means of which the fact is sought to be proved is, we are convinced, both fallacious and mischievous. In the first place, we doubt whether the assumed insensibility of the American public to the stories of the terrible disasters which reach them almost daily be anything more than superficial, and whether the appearance of it be not due to temperament far less than to any obliquity of judgment or want of feeling. In the next place, we have to bear in mind that in all countries loss of life by war is regarded with much greater stoicism than loss of life by accident. When war is once entered upon, it is under a full conviction that there will be a wholesale sacrifice of life. They who enlist know the chances to which they are exposed; and, where there is a general belief that the objects of the war are of sufficient national importance to justify the risk, the calmness—nay, apathy, with which the summarised record of death is received, is in all civilised nations pretty nearly alike. Then, again, we are all of us apt to be moved by a tale of human suffering and destruction in the proportion in which it forces upon our notice the possibility of ourselves being the next victims. Now, a fatal railway accident is not only contrary to our ordinary expectations, not only subserves no useful purpose, but, inasmuch as we are all nowadays travellers, it throws the shadow of death across our own path. We talk of it, and are affected by it accordingly. But we should only tickle our national conceit, and do injustice to other peoples, to conclude that, because we think so much of a railway disaster which has killed only some half dozen and wounded perhaps a score more or less seriously, while they hear with seeming unconcern of the hundredfold greater ravages of war, we are warranted in "thanking God that we are not as other men are, or even as this Publican." No good can come out of our taking more credit for our virtues than we deserve, or from flinging from the summit of our self-complacency barbed taunts at the supposed deficiencies of other nations; and if, at the recurrence of every railway accident, we get into the habit of planning ourselves upon our superior sensibility and rating others for their lack of human sympathies, we shall too surely do irreparable injury as well to our own nature as to our reputation.

THE SIEGE OPERATIONS AT ST. MARY'S CREEK, CHATHAM, ON SATURDAY LAST.—SEE PAGE 598.

We venture also to suggest that the loud chorus of indiscriminate vituperation with which railway directorates are apt to be assailed whenever loss of life occurs on the line, swelling, as it does, on each occasion into fortissimo, is likely to do harm rather than good. We speak merely as onlookers, without the smallest personal or pecuniary interest in the matter. A fool's no desire to deaden the keen sense of responsibility which directors ought to feel: quite the reverse. But, even in apportioning censure where we believe censure may be due, we can hardly deem it unbecoming to have some regard to the necessity to mitigate an adverse judgment altogether out of consideration. Considering the myriads of passengers that are carried daily over distances not greatly in excess of that from London down into a very respectable average, and considering the enormous traffic upon most of our leading lines, the comparative infrequency of calamitous accidents argues great administrative ability, and not a little vigilance and forethought. We have, it is true, every right to expect it. The managers of great railway undertakings cannot afford, even if so disposed, to be utterly insensible to the safety of either the passengers or the goods they contract to carry. Accidents are expensive, and eat largely into available dividends. But in our hurry to condemn we too often overlook the immense sum total of what is successfully achieved, and fasten upon exceptional failure as if it were a matter of daily occurrence. A fast train may run with marvellous punctuality from London to Edinburgh every day in the year for four or five years without injury to either person or property, and, when at length it breaks down, it is too often censured in a strain which implies that it can be accounted for only by assuming a reckless disregard, on the part of the directors, of the lives of those who have relied upon their care, as the ordinary result of every day's or every week's infrequency of disaster. Now, it is no part of our present object to point out the injustice of this; we animadvert only upon its impolicy. The very worst thing the public can do for its own comfort and safety is to withhold its confidence. A fool's gone wrong, to scribe it, without further inquiry, to culpable directorial negligence. It is equivalent to a proclamation that the most persevering and anxious care will count for nothing when the first mishap happens. Such a feeling must tend to character sooner than the gratuitous and constant imputation of one. By all means, let blame always fall where blame is deserved: but let it also have due weight, credit also must be contrarily and ungrudgingly given where credit has been earned.

Impartiality constrains us to add that some few accidents, and those the worst, are caused by the impatience of the public. Ten, twenty, fifty minutes' delay is a serious matter to a crowd spectacle or a singular exploit. They start from different points, and at different hours; and, although their very numbers necessarily expose them to a little inconvenient scrambling and pressure, they are sufficiently distinct to avoid the slightest collision without danger. But as soon as they have seen what they left home to see, which happens simultaneously to every one of them, they all become impatient to return. It requires a vast amount of self-control to wait for a train an hour later than that which, under the excitement of the moment, have no thought of their own risk, put an intolerable strain upon the stationmaster to coerce him into dispatching train after train as quickly as they get filled with passengers, which can be done in a very few minutes. Who can wonder that, now and then, under such circumstances, an appalling accident happens? and to whom is its responsibility properly attributed? As individuals, Englishmen do not want for self-control. In a crowd, they are singularly impulsive, wayward, and ungovernable. In no country in Europe, we fancy, is multitudinous intercourse so difficult. Most nationalities, even on close investigation, be found traceable to this fact as their primary cause. Nobody is content to wait his turn. Every one strives to be abreast of, if not before, his fellow. Blood gets heated, and sensations are keen in proportion as they are infringed. A crash ensues, and the very people whose impatience has overborne all regulations are the foremost to award blame to some other, perhaps innocent, party.

On the consideration of these collective and negative signals which a collision of trains is sure to bring up afresh for discussion, we shall not presume to give an opinion, which, indeed, would be of no value unless it represented a greater experience in the management of railways than any to which we can lay claim. We confess, we should be loth to stake our lives upon the infallibility of any system in which the agency of man is indispensable. The day may perhaps come when an exclusively self-acting mechanical system of signals will be discovered and adopted. But, while the world waits that desideratum, two things are imperatively needed. The first is, that railway companies should employ an adequate staff of servants, so that their physical powers be not broken down by overwork; and the second, that it be subject to the strictest discipline. The first is especially requisite on occasions calculated to test the vigilance of both officers and subordinates to the utmost, when great numbers have to be conveyed from point to point within a narrow interval of time. The precautions that suffice for ordinary traffic are insufficient for that which is extraordinary. And as to discipline, we see no reason why it should not be as strait and inflexible as the discipline of the Army. No infringement of regulations should be winked at, whoever may be guilty of it, even though it may not have been followed by evil consequences. There is room for improvement, we believe, in both these respects, and until such improvement has been made railway directors are not entitled, nor can they reasonably expect, to be absolved from all blame on account of accidents by collision.

FOREIGN AND COLONIAL NEWS.

FRANCE.

The Emperor and Empress, with the Prince Imperial and the Court, left Paris for Fontainebleau the day after the great international race at Longchamps. It was rumoured in Paris yesterday week that the Empress, while in a boat on the lake in the park, had met with a bad day, fell overboard, and was wounded on the head by a boat which pushed forward to pick him up. There seems, however, to be no reason to suppose that the accident, if it really occurred, caused any serious injury to the Empress, as on Tuesday Her Majesty ordered the reserved portion of the park at Fontainebleau to be thrown open to the public, and walked about for some time among the crowd, including the Prince Imperial by the hand. The Emperor returned to Paris on Monday evening, and on Tuesday morning his Majesty received Baron von Budberg, previously to the Baron leaving for Kissengen. The Emperor presided at a Cabinet Council on Wednesday.

The funeral of the Duke of Malakoff (Marshal Pelissier) was celebrated with military honours, on Thursday week, at the Invalides.

General Bedeau, who was formerly Aide-de-Camp to King Louis Philippe in 1831, and of the Hungarian troops in 1849, died on Monday morning at the age of seventy-two. He was a Deputy to the Assembly at Paris, aged seventy-three.

M. Rémon has been formally dismissed from his office of Professor at the College of France, and the decree appointing him to the senior Secretaryship of the Imperial Library has been quashed.

The King of Sweden, who is a member of a society of engravers in Paris, has lately sent to them a splendid line engraving which he executed in his leisure moments.

The Paris Credit Club, founded, on Thursday week, the return match against the Warwickshire Kuickerbockers by ten wickets.

An extraordinary swindling case has been brought to light in Paris. A Spanish adventurer, named Don Pedro Gomez de Arteche, got married to a rich and beautiful heiress and acquired an unlimited right of signature to her banking account. Then, on May 11, 1864, he was detected in time, the detection being followed by a sharp suicide, apparently with a view to avoid publicity, and not until 3000*l.* and suffer five years' imprisonment.

The Emperor has likewise formally dismissed from his office of Professor at the College of France, and the decree appointing him to the senior Secretaryship of the Imperial Library has been quashed.

The King of Sweden, who is a member of a society of engravers in Paris, has lately sent to them a splendid line engraving which he executed in his leisure moments.

The Paris Credit Club, founded, on Thursday week, the return match against the Warwickshire Knickerbockers by ten wickets.

An extraordinary swindling case has been brought to light in Paris. A Spanish adventurer, named Don Pedro Gomez de Arteche, got married to a rich and beautiful heiress and acquired an unlimited right of signature to her banking account. Then, on May 11, 1864, he was detected in time, the detection being followed by a sharp suicide, apparently with a view to avoid publicity, and not until 3000*l.* and suffer five years' imprisonment.

M. Rémon has been formally dismissed from his office of Professor at the College of France, and the decree appointing him to the senior Secretaryship of the Imperial Library has been quashed.

The King of Sweden, who is a member of a society of engravers in Paris, has lately sent to them a splendid line engraving which he executed in his leisure moments.

The Paris Credit Club, founded, on Thursday week, the return match against the Warwickshire Knickerbockers by ten wickets.

An extraordinary swindling case has been brought to light in Paris. A Spanish adventurer, named Don Pedro Gomez de Arteche, got married to a rich and beautiful heiress and acquired an unlimited right of signature to her banking account. Then, on May 11, 1864, he was detected in time, the detection being followed by a sharp suicide, apparently with a view to avoid publicity, and not until 3000*l.* and suffer five years' imprisonment.

The Emperor has likewise formally dismissed from his office of Professor at the College of France, and the decree appointing him to the senior Secretaryship of the Imperial Library has been quashed.

The King of Sweden, who is a member of a society of engravers in Paris, has lately sent to them a splendid line engraving which he executed in his leisure moments.

The Paris Credit Club, founded, on Thursday week, the return match against the Warwickshire Knickerbockers by ten wickets.

An extraordinary swindling case has been brought to light in Paris. A Spanish adventurer, named Don Pedro Gomez de Arteche, got married to a rich and beautiful heiress and acquired an unlimited right of signature to her banking account. Then, on May 11, 1864, he was detected in time, the detection being followed by a sharp suicide, apparently with a view to avoid publicity, and not until 3000*l.* and suffer five years' imprisonment.

M. Rémon has been in general, it has been found that the ova has reached alive in sufficient numbers to stamp the experiment with success. Immediately on the Norfolk reaching the pier the Government steamer Victoria was placed alongside, and the ice and boxes containing the ova transhipped. The Victoria then steamed away to Tasmania, where, in the Derwent, in that island, the experiment of acclimatising the salmon is to be tried. News has just been received that the ova have reached their destination in safety, and that a much larger percentage than was anticipated is found to be in a healthy condition.

Out in the colonies, as at home, when business, however good, is not quite fast enough to get rid of their capital, people go in extensively for bricks and mortar; and building has broken out in Melbourne on a grand scale. The streets are full of new and elegant building, publicly placed. The Townhall is about to be finished, Watchouse and private dwellings in the suburbs are springing up all the country the most monstrous scale in hand—the Murray mighty—has the verge of completion. A line of railway, long, on many very rare gradients, will place Melbourne next door to the river which is the most fertile of Australia. The effect on the trade of Melbourne will most likely be very great, as the regions of the interior, in the Murray basin, are immense; the Darling does not run navigable for steamers, and Adelaide, is a kind of Schleswig-Holstein embarrassment, always slumbering and threatening to break into a blaze, has to do with a country larger by forty thousand square miles than the United Kingdom. The whole region lying on each side of the Murray, a veritable Australian Mesopotamia, belongs principally to the Melbourne folk. It runs right off from the coast by the great barrier of the Blue Mountains, three-fourths of the trade goes to Melbourne, and only one-fourth to Adelaide. The struggle now is to which will be adhere. The three contending colonies had hard fare for a time, but they never were inclined to fall of its own accord to either; or, dropping metaphor, they of the colonies are trying hard to get rid of the Post Office, which is particularly unlikely to result. The political interest of the question has been much enhanced by the visit which there has been thrown of late on the real character of the interior of Australia. Hitherto the progress of settlement has crept painfully along the margin of the rivers. The country, in fact, on a straight cycle are periodically swamped with rains, become for four years out of five a wilderness, and, wanderers on the face of it, have a question what has become of the enormous periodical rainfall, and the answer is that it has been evaporated. Now, however, it is found that a large portion of this water, with much of that which is always falling on the coast ranges, penetrates through the surface and forms a permanent water-bed below. With the introduction of artesian wells, therefore, there will practically be found to be a new condition of the interior—a region half as large as Europe. The whole country is set out by nature in a system of large basins, each of which is a trifling cost. But whether the vast district known as Riverina seeks from the parent colony or stands for itself, there can be little doubt that it is destined to be the support of a large and thriving population.

The way in which our remonstrances against transportation—emanating from almost every community and constituted body in Victoria—have been treated by the Home Government has caused great dissatisfaction throughout the colony; and, to prove that we are in earnest in what we say, not only in a continuation of the infliction, it may be mentioned that there is a notice of motion at present on the table of the House of Assembly to the effect that a sum of £5000 be placed on the supplementary estimates for the purpose of sending by Government steamer to Perth a race not more than 300 a year.

Gardiner, the notorious bushranger, has been committed for trial at Sydney.

There have been severe floods in Queensland, which have done much injury to the crops. Cotton had not, however, suffered to much as other produce.

COUNTRY NEWS.

An Eisteddfod will be held this year at Llandudno, in the last week in August.

A vacancy is occasioned in the representation of the northern division of the county of Durham by the death of Lord Adolphus Vane-Tempest.

Mr. Edward Brocklehurst, of Swythamley Park, Macclesfield, has been appointed Recorder of Chester, vice Mr. W. N. Welsby, who retires from ill health.

Mr. James Edward Davis, of the Oxford Circuit, has been appointed stipendiary magistrate of Stoke-on-Trent, vice Mr. T. B. Rose, who has resigned.

The inhabitants of Pennane have raised £1500 towards a memorial to the Emperor Dacy, who was born there, and have agreed to raise £10,000.

The Yorkshire Gala, at York, began on Wednesday, with a festal fete in the Bootham Field, when prizes for flowers, plants, and fruits, to the amount of nearly £300, were awarded.

The Hull Working Men's Club was opened on Wednesday week, when a conversazione and a public meeting were held, and the assembly was presided over by the Mayor. The proceedings were of an interesting character, and the institution may be said to have been successfully started.

The old man-of-war Clarence, of 3000 tons burden, was towed on Sunday from Sheerness to Deptford. She will be set apart for the reception of juvenile delinquents of the metropolis, in lieu of other floating establishments in the Mersey, the property of the Crown.

The directors of the Dublin Exhibition Palace and Winter Garden Company have resolved to inaugurate their building, agricultural exhibition, by holding an International Horticultural Show and Conference next year. The exhibition will be opened in May, and will remain open for six months.

In the course of a sale last week of some unclaimed goods at the Customs-house station in Birmingham, a number of packages, marked for the manufacture of oil, were sold, not when being removed some of the packages were found to contain a considerable quantity of spirits. These were seized on several days, when the purchasers were summoned freely of these themselves and discharged them to several others. The consequence was that thirty-three were convicted, and the penalties amounted to £1000.

The summer fête of the Royal Caledonian Schools was held on Saturday. The announcements consisted, on the lawn, with cricket, foot-ball, quoits, and football; there was also a display of gymnastic exercises for prizes, competed for by boys engaged in the various branches of industry at the institution, and also on the lawn, and a band by the "Albert Edward," a fine-bullion. The band of the Coldstream Guards was in attendance, and gave up the Burwood sing-along-day in order that the Caledonian troops might enjoy the entertainment.

An interesting ceremony took place on Wednesday, in Bristol, on the occasion of the presentation by that ancient city of a splendid life-boat, fully equipped, to the National Lifeboat Institution. The boat is 34 ft. in length, 8 ft. in breadth, and 4 ft. 3 in. deep, and was built in London, under the superintendence of the inventor. The presentation took place on the occasion of the West of England Agricultural Show, and there were present at the time about 20,000 persons. The life-boat is to be stationed at Padstow, on the shores of the Bristol Channel, and is to replace a smaller boat that was previously there. The Bristol people have named the boat the "Albert Edward," in compliment to the Prince of Wales.

The Duke of Devonshire presided, on Thursday afternoon, at the formal opening of the Eastbourne Workmen's Hall. This building, which has just been completed, comprises in the basement floor a suite of apartments, consisting of a billiard and smoking room, library and reading-room, refreshment-room, lavatories, and the usual accommodation required. On the ground floor is a spacious lecture-hall, and the building is surmounted by a handsome clock tower. The building has been erected by Mr. W. Aird, of Sunderland, as a gift to the working men of Eastbourne, the ground for the site having been given by the Duke of Devonshire. The opening ceremony took place in the presence of a large and influential assembly. The Duke of Devonshire presided, and congratulated the inhabitants of Eastbourne on the success that had crept in the proceedings were Mr. Leaf, the founder of the institution; the Rev. Henry Solly, secretary of the Workmen's Club and Institute Union; the Rev. Stenton Hoodley, of Greenham; Mr. Samuel Beely, of Gloucestershire; and the Rev. J. Wakefield.

The recent explosion of gunpowder at Arshleal granite quarry, which was expected to be fired on the 6th inst., did not go off, owing to some error in the laying of the fuse. The whole of the materials in the shaft had to be removed with great toil and trouble, the men working night and day until the fuse was discovered, when it was found that it had been cut off from the powder. Three rollers of a new fuse were directly attached and were ready to be fired, the whole being cut off in half-an-hour's time. The charge consisted of no less than about ten tons weight of powder, and was supposed to be sufficient to blow about 4000 tons of rock into the quarry. The explosion was heard in Aberdeen, and the shock was felt in Perth, and the chamber in which the powder was placed was about twenty-five feet in length, and seven feet in width. The fuse was lifted on instalment, and was supposed to have been fired on the 6th inst. at about noon. The flame ascended in a column of smoke, and the report was heard for miles around. The stones were thrown to a great distance across the main road; and no damage was done to the houses situated within a few yards of the workings. The explosion, it is said, has not only caused a great deal of excitement in the neighbourhood, but the windows of the houses were crowded with people. The report was not loud, but deep and hoarse. At Aberdeen, on the contrary, the report was felt strongly agitated as though by an earthquake.—Scotsman.

METROPOLITAN NEWS.

The tenth anniversary of the opening of the Crystal Palace was celebrated on a large scale on Saturday.

The Hammersmith and City Railway, in connection with the Great Western and Metropolitan railways, opened a new station on Wednesday.

The Royal Academy Exhibition will be opened in the evening, and not open, as heretofore, at eight o'clock instead of ten in the forenoon.

The Prince of Wales has accepted an invitation from the master (Viscount Falmouth), the wardens, and brethren of the Corporation of the Trinity House, to a dinner in their corporate hall, on Tuesday, July 5.

A meeting of the City Garibaldi Committee was held on Wednesday evening, at the Mansion-house, when it was announced that for the present the testimonial fund should be closed.

The annual meeting of the Incorporated Law Society of the Metropolis will be held on the 2nd inst. at the lecture theatre of the South Kensington Museum, when the President, Mr. Wm. Nicholson, of Queen's Town Churches, both aristocratic and practically considered.'

The annual meeting of the Society for the Protection of the Royal Asylum of St. Anne's Society, Brixton—one of the noblest charitable institutions in the metropolis—was held on Wednesday, at the Mansion-house, the Lord Mayor in the chair, under the presidency of the Bishop of Rochester.

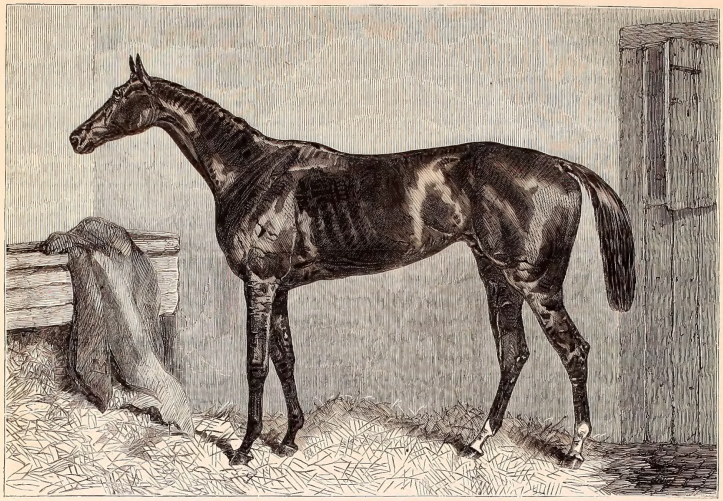
The anniversary festival in aid of the funds of the Royal Hospital for Incurables was celebrated on Thursday, at Willis's Rooms, under the presidency of the Duke of Argyll. A list of subscriptions and donations to the charity amounted to upwards of £1000.

The metropolitan schools festival took place at the Crystal Palace on Wednesday, when 40,000 children were present. The band, consisting of 1000 performers, was under instructions in singing from Mr. G. W. Martin, and the choir, which numbered 10,000 voices, sang the "Hallelujah" Handel orchestra, and sang, under his direction, a number of psalms, hymns, and anthems, the proceedings terminating with the National Anthem.

The group of five figures to represent "Europe" in the Horticultural Gardens, which was executed by Mr. Thomas Thornycroft by command of the Queen, offered to Mr. Gibson; but he having expressed his intention of retiring from the commission, on account of ill-health, her Majesty has signified her wish that it should be executed by Mr. M'Dowall, the Royal Academician, who has also received a commission.

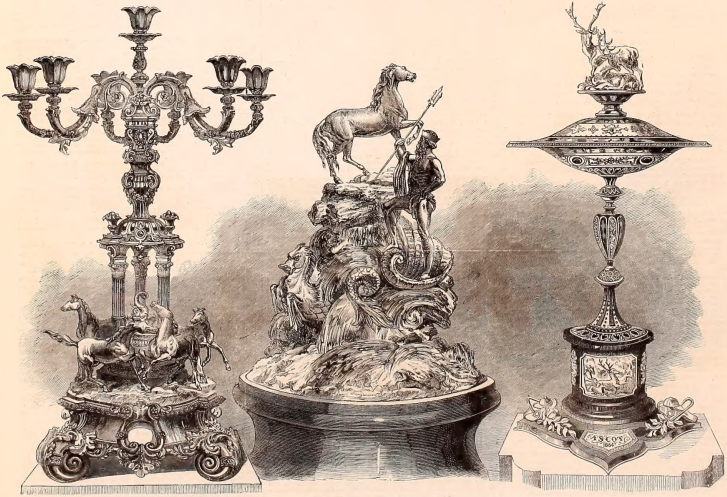
Mr. Warren de la Rue, the President of the Royal Astronomical Society, has received a communication from the Berlin Academy, which was honoured in the presence of more than 600 members of the learned body, to the effect that the gold medal of the academy, established together on this occasion was unique, and suffered to give a coup-d'œil of the triangle which was surveyed in Prussia.

The second summer fête of the Royal Botanic Society of London took place in the gardens, Regent's-park, on Wednesday afternoon. The weather was agreeable, the company numerous and fashionable, and the flower and vegetable shows, the band performances, and the exhibition of various articles delighted the eye with their varieties and beauty of colour and form. The gardens were open to the public at the usual charge for admission. Some, and many excellent and new plants, formed a magnificent display.



The annual festival of the Royal Benevolent Institution of King's College Hospital took place on Tuesday, at the Albion Tavern, Aldersgate-street, Mr. Alderman Q.C., M.P., in the chair. There was a large attendance. During the past year 17,402 patients had been admitted to the benefits of the institution, and 1,000,000 persons had received medical assistance. Upwards of £3000 were subscribed in the room, and £1000 more was promised by letter, and they are always accepted. The only payment to admission to the hospital is thirteen shillings per annum. The institution numbers upwards of 1000.

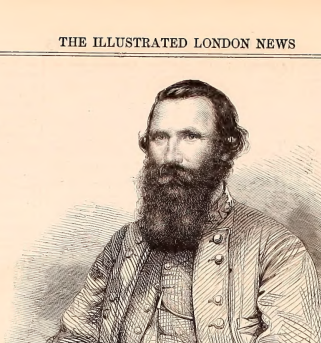
The births of 1923 children—985 boys and 938 girls—were registered in London last week. In the ten corresponding weeks of the years 1854-63 the average number was 1,388. In the week ending the 11th inst. which were registered 1,923 children were born in London, 541 more than the average number of deaths in the twenty-third week of ten years 1854-63, the average number being 1,382. The deaths in the previous time the most fatal complaint in the epidemic class is measles, to which 92 deaths are referred. Whooping-cough carried off 39 persons; scarlet fever-cough, 23; scarlatina in 17, diarrhœa in 19, diphtheria in 11, smallpox in 5.



The Duke of Cambridge, as president, presided over the Legislative Council of Boulogne, son of the late Sir Jamestjee Jeejeebhoy, placed some time since at the disposal of the Lord Mayor of London for the purpose of appropriation to charitable purposes in London, in connection with the mayoralty. The sum of £2000 has been invested in stock, which have in view the alleviation of the wants of the poor, the infirm, and infirm, and cases of a destitute character, especially in the winter season among hospitals and dispensaries, and the rest given to general relief societies.

The Duke of Cambridge presided, on Saturday, at the annual dinner of the Artists' Benevolent Fund, held at the Freemasons' Tavern. The company, number of the Legislative Council of Bombay

ASCOT RACES, 1864



SCOTTISH CHIEF, WINNER OF THE ASCOT CUP.—SEE PRECEDING PAGE.

THE ASCOT GOLD CUP. THE QUEEN'S GOLD VASE. THE ROYAL HUNT CUP.

THE LATE CONFEDERATE GENERAL J. E. B. STUART.

As a sequel to our Portraits of General Lee and General Longstreet, published in the last two numbers of this Journal, we have now engraved that of J. E. B. Stuart, who received his mortal wound in a cavalry skirmish with the detachment under General Sheridan at Ashland, in the neighbourhood of Richmond, on the 11th ult. This distinguished officer was born in Patrick County, Virginia, in 1835. He was educated at West Point Military Academy, where he graduated in 1854. He first entered the Mounted Rifles as Brevet Second Lieutenant, and was shortly afterwards made Second Lieutenant in the 1st Cavalry; eight months later he was promoted to be First Lieutenant; he distinguished himself in a fight with the Cheyennes, June 26, 1857, and received a severe wound; became a Captain in 1860, and was permitted by President Lincoln to resign three years ago, when the civil war broke out. He then entered the Virginia State service as a Colonel of cavalry, and had the command of that arm at the first battle of Bull Run. In September following, he acquired much credit by his daring and audacity in an attack upon a Federal force at Lewinsville, Virginia, a few miles from the Federal capital. Meanwhile he had been made a Brigadier-General in the Confederate service, and he was soon promoted to be Major-General. His next performance of conspicuous was on occasion within the Federal lines on the Pawnmy River, during M'Clellan's campaign of 1862, at the head of 1000 horse and two guns. He again created a sensation, on the 22nd of August following, at Catlett's Station, near the Rappahannock, where, in the midst of a thunderstorm, he came down upon General Pope's head-quarters, capturing his papers and private correspondence, and all the belongings of the staff. His greatest achievement, however, was during the month of October of that year, when, with 1800 cavalry and four cannon, he passed from the south of the Potomac, traversed Maryland, and, passing Mercersburg, Pennsylvania, at noon, entered Chambersburg after dark of the same day. The town surrendered without resistance. The troopers remained until next day, took all the spoil they desired, destroyed a great amount of property, and retreated across the Potomac on the left of General M'Clellan's army without serious loss. General Stuart had headed the cavalry of the Confederate army from the outset through all its battles. After the fight at Ashland, the wounded General was carried into Richmond, where he died at eight o'clock in the evening of the next day, in the house of his relative, Dr. Brewer. The Richmond Examiner thus describes his latest hours:—"He had occasional moments of delirium, when he reviewed in broken sentences all his glorious campaigns around M'Clellan's rear in the peninsula, beyond the Potomac, and upon the Rapidan; quoting from his orders, and issuing new ones to his couriers, with a last injunction to 'make haste.' At other times his mind was calm and clear. Mr. Jefferson Davis, the President, visited his bedside, and stayed a quarter of an hour. The President, taking his hand, said, 'General, how do you feel?' He replied, 'Sir, but willing to die, if God and my country think I have fulfilled my destiny and done my duty.' As his delirium returned, his mind again wandered to the battle-fields over which he had fought, then to his wife and children, and again to the front. A message had been sent for his wife, who was in the country, to make all haste. As evening wore on, the paroxysms of pain increased, and mortification set in rapidly. Though suffering the greatest agony at times, he was now calm and applied to the wound with his own hand the ice intended to relieve the pain. During the evening he asked Dr. Brewer whether it was possible for him to survive through the night. The doctor, knowing he did not desire to be hooped by false hopes, told him frankly that death was rapidly approaching. The General nodded, and said, 'I am resigned, if it be God's will; but I would like to live to see my wife. But God's will be done.' Several times he roused up and asked if she had come. To the doctor, who sat holding his wrist and counting the weakening pulse, he remarked, 'Doctor, I suppose I am going fast now. It will soon be over; but God's will be done. I hope I have fulfilled my destiny to my country and my duty to my God.' At half-past seven o'clock it was evident to the physicians that death was setting its clammy seal upon the brave, open brow of the General, and they told him so, asking if he had any last message to give. The General, with a mind perfectly clear and possessed, then made disposition of his staff and personal effects. To Mrs. Lee, the wife of General Lee, he directed that his golden spurs be given, as a dying memento of his love and esteem for her husband. To his Staff officers he gave his horses. So particular was he in small things, even in the dying hour, that he said to one of his Staff, who was a heavy-built man, 'You had better take the larger horse; he will carry you better.' To his young son he left his glorious sword. His worldly matters closed, the eternal interests of his soul engaged his mind. Turning to the Rev. Mr. Peterkin, a minister of the Episcopal Church, of which General Stuart was a member, he asked him to sing a hymn, and joined in it with all the voice his strength would permit. He then joined in prayer with the minister. To the doctor he again said, 'I am going fast now. I am resigned; God's will be done.' Thus died General J. E. B. Stuart."

THE LATE GENERAL J. E. B. STUART, OF THE ARMY OF THE CONFEDERATE STATES.

SCENE FROM "DAVID GARRICK."

Those of our readers who are curious to know how Mr. Sothern looks now that he has removed his moustache, and who have not lately been at the Haymarket Theatre, will be interested in the Engraving that we give of a scene in the new play of "David Garrick." Mr. Sothern, as all playgoers know, assumes the trying part of the great English actor, in which, without absolutely creating a sensation equal to that excited by his wonderful "Dundreary," he gives, perhaps, still higher proofs of his artistic power and intelligence. No two characters can be more unlike than that of the lisping, stuttering, stammering Lord in Mr. Tom Taylor's "American Cousin," and that of the great actor—thoughtful, polished, and refined—in Mr. Robertson's clever adaptation. In both, however, Mr. Sothern has ensured success by identifying himself, or becoming a true artist, with the part he has to embody: in both he individualises an ordinary stage type with a distinct personality, and in both he is equally attentive to the minutest details of his by-play and original in his general conception of the character. All London playgoers, and the vast majority of country cousins, are familiar with the grotesque antics of Dundreary; but in David Garrick Mr. Sothern has to rely far more upon the intellectual department of his art. Thoroughly well sustained, his impersonation is throughout easy and natural. It may seem a curious compliment to pay to one actor who represents another, to say that the performance is remarkably un-stagey—except, of course, when the exigencies of the scene require a display of theatrical art in its ordinary sense. In the first act Mr. Sothern has little more to do than to be gentlemanly and graceful, but these qualities are unfortunately not so common on the boards as we could wish; and in the calm, collected, easy demeanour of Mr. Sothern there is none of the traditional stiffness and self-consciousness of the ordinary "walking gentleman." In the second act the demand made upon him is far more severe; but in the scene where he simulates drunkenness he proves himself fully equal to the fresh call upon his powers. Were he a trifle less energetic he would be tame, were he a trifle more he would be extravagant; but he hits the happy medium, and in his occasional quiet utterances of sincere emotion he is at least as effective as in the broad practical fun of the scene. Our Illustration is taken from the third act, and in this the natural and unforced pathos of the actor soon convinces even those who, after first pronouncing his Dundreary a mistake, subsequently maintained that he could play nothing else. His powers are far more comprehensive and various than hostile criticism was once willing to admit. "David Garrick," which has served Mr. Buckstone's purpose by drawing crowded houses, will assuredly serve Mr. Sothern's also, by adding greatly to his reputation. The Sketch we have engraved represents that passage, in the last scene of the play, where Garrick, who has been feigning bad manners that he may cure Aga Ingot of her romantic passion for himself, considers her for the mortification she has suffered, and persuades her to go home to her father; while the father stands behind to listen.

SCENE FROM "DAVID GARRICK," AT THE HAYMARKET THEATRE: GARRICK (MR. SOTHERN) ENTREATING APA ROUT (MISS MOORE) TO RETURN TO HER HUSBAND.

CALENDAR FOR THE WEEK ENDING JUNE 25.

SUNDAY, June 13.—Fourth Sunday after Trinity. Opening of the General Council of the Church, under the auspices of the Pope, at Rome, 1875. Battle of Aetius, 30th, 451. Hudson, 10th, 68m. p.m.

MONDAY.—Queen Victoria created Queen of the West Saxons. Accession of Queen Victoria, 1837. Longitude, 15° 0' W.

TUESDAY, 15.—Foundation of the present St. Paul's Cathedral, 1675. Battle of Vittoria. Wellington defeats Joseph Bonaparte, 1813. Sun rises, 4h. 12m.

WEDNESDAY, 16.—The Duke of Monmouth defeats the Scotch Covenanters at Bothwell Bridge, 1679. Bombardment of Sevastopol, 1855.

THURSDAY, 23.—The Council Florentine defeated and slain by Hunniad, near the Iron Gate, September, 317 B.C. Battle of Crecy, 1346. Accession of Queen Victoria, 1837. Queen Victoria died at Windsor, 1901. Sun sets, 8h. 12m. p.m.

FRIDAY, 24.—St. John the Baptist. Midsummer Day. Victory of Robert Bruce over Edward II. at Bannockburn, 1314. Victory of the French and Spaniards over the English at Almanza, 1707.

SATURDAY.—Luther and Melanchthon present the Reformed Confession of Faith to the Emperor Charles V. at Augsburg, 1530. Accession of the present Grand Duke Ernest Louis Alexander Adolf-Adalbert, 1892.

TIMES OF HIGH WATER AT SANDWICH, FOR THE WEEK ENDING JUNE 19, 1886.

Sunday	Monday	Tuesday	Wednesday	Thursday	Friday	Saturday
h. m.	h. m.	h. m.	h. m.	h. m.	h. m.	h. m.
1 27	2 13	2 58	3 43	4 28	5 13	5 58

THE WEATHER.

RESULTS OF METEOROLOGICAL OBSERVATIONS AT THE KEW OBSERVATORY OF THE BRITISH ASSOCIATION.

Lat. 51° 28' 6" N.; Long. 0° 18' 45" W.; Height above sea, 34 feet.

DAY.	DAILY MEANS OF							THERMOMETER.		WIND.	RAIN.
	Barometer reduced to Sea-level and 32° Fahr.	Dew Point Temperature.	Humidity. Complete Saturation = 1000.	Ozone. Scale of 0 to 10.	Solar Radiation.	Terrestrial Radiation.	Cloud. Scale of 0 to 10.	Maximum in Shade.	Minimum on Grass.	General Direction.	Amount fallen in 24 hours.
	Inches.										Miles inches
6	29.910	51·6	0·87	*	0·39	*	*	72·2		SSW. to W.	0·00
7	29.939	49·9	0·83	*	0·5	6·8	6·8	72·2		SW. to W.	0·00
8	29.939	49·9	0·83	6	0·5	6·8	6·8	72·2	46·2	SSW. to W.	0·00
9	29.939	49·9	0·83	6	0·5	6·8	6·8	72·2	46·2	SSW. to W.	0·00
10	29.939	49·9	0·83	6	0·5	6·8	6·8	72·2	46·2	W. to SW.	0·00
11	,,	,,	,,	,,	,,	6·71	6·8	,,	,,	,,	0·00
12	29.937	51·6	0·87	6	,,	6·71	6·8	,,	,,	,,	0·00
13	29.937	51·6	0·87	6	,,	6·71	6·8	,,	,,	,,	0·00
14	29.936	50·8	0·83	7·0	0·5	6·8	6·5	72·2	46·2	SE. to SW.	0·00
15	29.936	50·8	0·83	7·0	0·5	6·8	6·5	72·2	46·2	SE. to SW.	0·00
16	29.936	50·8	0·83	7·0	0·5	6·8	6·5	72·2	46·2	SE. to SW.	0·00
17	29.936	50·8	0·83	7·0	0·5	6·8	6·5	72·2	46·2	SE. to SW.	0·00
18	29.936	50·8	0·83	7·0	0·5	6·8	6·5	72·2	46·2	SE. to SW.	0·00
19	29.936	50·8	0·83	7·0	0·5	6·8	6·5	72·2	46·2	SE. to SW.	0·00
20	29.936	50·8	0·83	7·0	0·5	6·8	6·5	72·2	46·2	SE. to SW.	0·00
21	29.936	50·8	0·83	7·0	0·5	6·8	6·5	72·2	46·2	SE. to SW.	0·00
22	29.936	50·8	0·83	7·0	0·5	6·8	6·5	72·2	46·2	SE. to SW.	0·00
23	29.936	50·8	0·83	7·0	0·5	6·8	6·5	72·2	46·2	SE. to SW.	0·00
24	29.936	50·8	0·83	7·0	0·5	6·8	6·5	72·2	46·2	SE. to SW.	0·00
25	29.936	50·8	0·83	7·0	0·5	6·8	6·5	72·2	46·2	SE. to SW.	0·00
26	29.936	50·8	0·83	7·0	0·5	6·8	6·5	72·2	46·2	SE. to SW.	0·00
27	29.936	50·8	0·83	7·0	0·5	6·8	6·5	72·2	46·2	SE. to SW.	0·00
28	29.936	50·8	0·83	7·0	0·5	6·8	6·5	72·2	46·2	SE. to SW.	0·00
29	29.936	50·8	0·83	7·0	0·5	6·8	6·5	72·2	46·2	SE. to SW.	0·00
30	29.936	50·8	0·83	7·0	0·5	6·8	6·5	72·2	46·2	SE. to SW.	0·00

The following are the readings of the meteorological instruments for the above days, in order, at half-past nine a.m.:

Barometer (in inches) corrected	29·910	29·740	29·907	29·933	29·915	29·666	29·936
Temperature of air	63·0° F.	63·0° F.	63·0° F.	63·0° F.	63·0° F.	63·0° F.	63·0° F.
Temperature of Evaporation	51·6°	51·6°	51·6°	51·6°	51·6°	51·6°	51·6°
Direction of Wind	S.W.	S.W.	S.W.	S.W.	S.W.	S.W.	S.W.

THE ATRE ROYAL, HAYMARKET.—Last Week but one of the season. Mr. Sothern and Lost Week but One of the season.—Mr. Sothern and Mr. Buckstone's comedy of DAVID GARRICK, which has now reached its 100th performance, will be continued with every night (TUES. excepted) during the Week, to commence at Seven, with THE BALANCE OF COMFORT. After the Play, at Nine, a Farce, by Mr. Arthur Law, entitled THE CHILDREN OF THE CHAPEL. Mr. Charles Wyndham, Mr. Arthur Cecil, Mr. Buckstone, and Mr. John Nelly. Seven. To be followed by LORD DUNDREARY MARRIED AND DONE FOR. Mr. Sothern, Mr. Buckstone, Mr. Arthur Cecil, Mr. Charles Wyndham, and Miss Ada Cavendish. Doors open at Half-past Six. Stalls, 10s. 6d. Dress Circle, 5s. Upper Boxes, 3s. Pit, 2s. Gallery, 1s. Box-office open daily from Ten to Five. Manager, Mr. Hare Buckstone.

THE ATRE ROYAL, DRURY LANE.—Under the Management of Mr. FECHTER.—Last Six Nights of HAMLET, and Last Week of Mr. Fechter's Season.—Every Evening at Seven, HAMLET. Hamlet, Mr. Fechter; Ophelia, Miss Ellen Terry; Polonius, Mr. J. Beauchamp; Ghost, Mr. G. Jordan; Laertes, Mr. G. F. Neville; King, Mr. Ryder; Queen, Miss Rose Leclercq; Horatio, Mr. Charles Harcourt; Rosencrantz, Mr. Forbes Dawson; Guildenstern, Mr. Percy Anderson; Osric, Mr. Lionel Rignold. The New Scenery painted by Mr. W. Telbin. Scenes.—The Grave-yard at Half-past Seven, and Elsinore Castle at Eight. Box-office open daily from Ten to Five.

ROYAL ST. JAMES'S THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. BENJAMIN WEBSTER.—The highly-successful new Comedy by Miss Beatrice May Butt, entitled MISS DECIMA, every Evening at Eight. Miss Decima, Miss Beatrice May Butt; Sir Richard Lovelace, Mr. Arthur Cecil; Mr. Ralph Bernard, Mr. Alexander Dean; Mrs. Charles Mathews, Mr. and Mrs. Brian Matthews, and Miss H. Sowerby. DOC'TOR BRIGHT. Mr. Wilfrid Shine—Mr. Charles Mathews. Preceded at Seven with DOUBLE DUMMY. At 10 Clock.

NEW THEATRE ROYAL, ADELPHI.—Sole Proprietor and Manager, Mr. B. WEBSTER. On MONDAY, and during the Week, THE DEAD HEART—Margot, Miss Genevieve Ward; Jacques Ferrand, Mr. Wilfrid Draycott; Wedgwar; and THE AREA BELLE—Henry, J. L. Toole; F. Bedford, and Miss Wallace. Preceded by

MRS. JOHN MACFARREN'S MORNINGS AT THE PIANOFORTE, ST. JAMES'S HALL, WEDNESDAY NEXT, JUNE 23, assisted by Miss Damian, Messrs. Robertson, Henderson, Henry Holmes, Thos. Lee, and Winterbottom. Pianoforte, Mrs. John Macfarren. Tickets, 10s. 6d., 5s., and 2s. 6d.; Stalls, 1s.; at Mitchell's Royal Library, 33, Old Bond-street.

MESSRS. HENRY and RICHARD BLAGROVE'S CONCERT, HANOVER ROOMS, MONDAY EVENING NEXT, JUNE 28. Pianoforte, Mr. Charles Hallé; Violin, Mr. Henry Blagrove; Violoncello, Mr. Richard Blagrove; Vocalist, Miss H. Isel. Conductor, Mr. C. Hallé. Tickets, 10s.; Stalls, 5s.; at Messrs. Cramer and Co.'s.

ATTOMASI'S LAST HARP RECITAL, TUESDAY EVENING, JUNE 29, at Eight o'clock, at Prince's Hall, Piccadilly. Vocalists, Miss Eleanor Rees, Mr. Edward Lloyd, and Signor Foli. Conductor, Mr. Alberto Randegger. Harp Solos Fantasia, and two of his own most popular compositions—"Il Bacio" and "King-cups."

HERR WILHELM GANZ'S MATINÉE MUSICALE will take place on WEDNESDAY, DEC. 29, at Three o'clock, at the Residence of LADY ANNE STEELE, by permission of Thos. Steele, Esq., Marchmont Park, Berwick, Herts. Vocalists, Madame Antoinette Sterling, Miss Damian, and Mr. Edward Lloyd. Tickets, Half-a-guinea each, to be obtained at the principal Music Warehouses and at Mr. Ganz's Office, 26, Pembridge-villas, W.

MR. KUHE'S PIANOFORTE RECITAL will take place at 49, HANOVER-SQUARE ROOMS, on THURSDAY MORNING, JUNE 24, to commence at Three o'clock. Vocalists, Madame Antoinette Sterling, Miss Damian, and Mr. Edward Lloyd. Conductor—Mr. Randegger. Violin, Herr Joachim. Violoncello, Signor Piatti. Pianoforte, Herr Kuhe. Tickets (Reserved Seats), to adult three, One Guinea; Unreserved Seats, to each—to be had of Mr. Kuhe, 9, Wigmore-street, W.; and at the usual Musical Repositories. Doors open at Half-past Two.

SIGNOR CIABATTA begs to announce that his GRAND MORNING CONCERT will take place at ST. JAMES'S HALL, on SATURDAY NEXT, JUNE 26, to commence at Three o'clock precisely. Vocalists, Mdlle. Clotilde Patti (her only appearance in London this season), Mdlle. Gabrielle Fatti, and Mdme. Fanny Moss (Mrs. Hutchinson); Violin, Herr Joachim; Violoncello, Signor Piatti; Pianoforte, Mr. Charles Hallé; Harp, Mr. Oscar Berthold; Flute, Mr. Wendland; Clarinet, Mr. Lazarus; Conductors, Mr. Randegger, Mr. J. L. Roeckel, and Ciabatta. Pianoforte, Mdme. Annette and Mdlle. Marie Krebs. Violin, Herr Ludwig Straus. Violoncello, Herr Daubert. Vocalists, Mdme. Antoinette Sterling, Mr. Frank Boyle, Mr. Santley, Mr. Maybrick, Mr. Edward Lloyd, Mr. Henschel, Mr. Thurley Beale, Signor Foli, Signor Pinsuti, Vera, and Visanni. Solo Violin (limited number only), Signor Ciabatta. Solo Violin, Mr. Carrodus; Solo Violoncello, Mr. Aylward. Tickets (Reserved Seats), Half-a-guinea; and at the principal music warehouses; and of Maiden, Chappell, and Co., 50, New Bond-street. Doors open at Two o'clock.

MR. and MRS. GERMAN REED, with MR. JOHN PARRY, beg to announce that they intend to enliven the Autumn Season by their Entertainment, at ST. GEORGE'S HALL, Tuesday, in his New Entertainment, entitled PARRY, and MR. BRIDGET AT THE PLAY, every Evening (except Saturday) at Eight; and Saturday Mornings at Three. Stalls, 3s.; Second Seats, 2s.; Gallery, 1s. The Box-office at the Hall open between the hours of Eleven and Five daily.

MR. W. S. WOODIN'S ELOPEMENT EXTRAORDINARY and SCHOLCHON BOY, or, entirely NEW ENTERTAINMENT, EVERY EVENING, at Eight o'clock, except SATURDAY, at MORNING and EVENING PERFORMANCES, at ST. GEORGE'S HALL, Mad Willie-street, Bloomsbury. Stalls, 3s.; Amphitheatre, 1s.; Private Boxes, £1 1s. A Few of the Stalls may be seen and secured at the Hall from Eleven to Five.

CRYSTAL PALACE.—Additional Attractions.—Park and Fountains illuminated on SATURDAY NEXT, JUNE 26, in addition to the Display of Fireworks at 9.30 p.m. Open Daily at 10 a.m. Admission, Sixpence. On Opening of New Fire-area, the Shakspere Mimes, &c., during the Midsummer Holidays, for the first Sixty Days of this Month. SIX PRIZE MEDALS, six years of age, to be awarded at Juvenile Boys'-dance, with display his wonderful feats daily at Four o'clock.

Guinea Season Tickets admit to Concerts, Fêtes, and 4.9
Promenade ... 2.9
Grand Organ ... 2.9
Open Monday to Friday, One Shilling; children, Sixpence.
SATURDAY, Half-a-Crown. Days of the Concerts, Grand Organ, and Great Fête. Half-a-Crown Tickets, at all Agents, at Crystal Palace, and at 2, Exeter Hall, up to Friday night; Payment at the Doors on the Day, Five Shillings. Children Admitted Half-price.

THE GREAT ROSE SHOW of the SEASON at the CRYSTAL PALACE, NEXT SATURDAY, JUNE 26. THOUSAND FOUNTAINS in Action. Admission, Half-a-Crown. Open at Ten. Guinea Season Tickets admit. Day Tickets, Five Shillings. Children Admitted Half-price.

GREAT ROSE SHOW, NEXT SATURDAY.—Palace open at Ten. Admission, Half-a-Crown.

MUSICAL UNION.—JOACHIM and LESCHETIZKI.—Third of Series, St. Petersburg on TUESDAY NEXT. Quartet, Herr Joachim, Ries, Straus, and Piatti. Quintet, Herr Joachim, Ries, Straus, Piatti, and Lindner. Pianoforte, Herr Leschetizki. On Tuesday, June 29, the Directors Matinée, the Septett of Beethoven. Herr Joachim, Ries, Straus, Piatti, Lindner, Pauer, and Lazarus. Pianoforte, Herr Leschetizki. Tickets, Half-a-Guinea, at the Hall of Chamber and Wood; Chappell, New Bond-street; Austin, at the Hall, and Ashdown and Parry.

SOCIETY OF PAINTERS IN WATER COLOURS.—The 30, PICCADILLY, NEXT DOOR TO ST. JAMES'S HALL. Open from 9 till 7. Last Week. Last Week but One. Pictures sent in Next Week will be received on Tuesday, June 22, from 10 till 5. Last Day for Receiving Pictures, Saturday, June 26, from 10 till 5. Admission, One Shilling. Catalogue, 6d. Season Ticket, Five Shillings. Secretary, H. T. ALEXANDER, Secretary.

INSTITUTE OF PAINTERS IN WATER COLOURS.—The Thirtieth Annual Exhibition is NOW OPEN at 5A, PALL-MALL EAST. Admission, One Shilling. Open Daily from Nine till Seven. Catalogue, Sixpence. JAMES ORROCK, Secretary.

MR. SIMPSON'S WATER-COLOUR DRAWINGS OF INDIA, THIBET, and CASHMERE, at the GERMAN GALLERY, 168, New Bond-street. Daily from Ten till Seven. Admission, 1s.

ON VIEW, THE PICTURE of the MARRIAGE of H.R.H. the DUCHESS OF ARGYLL, painted from Sittings, by Mr. G. H. Thomas, who was present at the ceremony, by gracious command of Her Majesty the Queen, at the Chapel Royal, St. James's, on Tuesday, March 23. Open Daily, 10 till 6. Admission, 1s.

Special admission cards issued for the private view may still be made available for two days.

TOURISTS desire additional pleasure in their rambles when accompanied with MINERALS, SOILS, and FOSSILS. Mr. TENNANT, Geologist, 149, STRAND, London, supplies parties, Collectors, Students, and Professors, with Specimens from his extensive Collections, comprising more thousand specimens, persons are visited, Lectures delivered, Museums arranged, Private Collections valued, Mineral Properties reported on, and all the Discoveries in Geology, Mineralogy, and Practical Chemistry carried out. Any supply, economical Geological Collections at 5, 7, 10, 20, 50, to 100 guineas each.

HER ROYAL HIGHNESS THE PRINCESS OF WALES WILL OPEN THE NEW BAZAAR IN AID OF THE ROYAL SOCIETY FOR THE RELIEF OF INDIGENT GENTLEWOMEN, at the ROYAL NORTHERN AQUARIUM, Regent's Park, on THURSDAY NEXT, JUNE 24, at 3 o'clock precisely, by kind permission of Mr. A. Lambton. By Tickets, 5s. each, to be procured at the Doors open at Eleven o'Clock, 7s. 6d.

THE ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS.

LONDON: SATURDAY, JUNE 19, 1886.

SOMETHING like a political sensation has been created during the past week by a reiterated announcement that the Session was not to be allowed to terminate without a great Parliamentary fight. It was all but officially stated by the organs of the Government that the Session was to be a short one, and to the conclusion that the forbearance which Lord Derby promised to extend to the Government, quamdiu se bene gesserit, had come to an end by reason of the non-performance by Ministers of their part of the compact. It was hinted to reconsider the whole Danish question, and to observe that the Government had violated all its agreements, and retreated from all its declarations. Lord Granville, on the other hand, who, dishonourable alike to the Cabinet and to the reputation of eloquence was expended in proving to the country that England had become the laughing-stock of Europe, and that Denmark was a disgraceful victim of the Powers, which had been mere jeering at our money-loving cowardice. We have rarely seen more pains devoted, on the part of the Opposition, to proving, by the most irrefragable arguments, that it was the duty of the Opposition to act.

The challenge was accepted, if rather sullenly, at least with resolution. The fact undoubtedly was that those who thus spoke and wrote had a grand facile case. The attitude of England, and especially of the Government, was successfully defended, but its dignity is certainly not its strong point. Early in the Session it was manifest that the Danish theme was a dangerous one for Ministers to touch on the right of the Speaker. There was much needless delay in the production of papers which it was known would be at once called for, and which would have been speedily ready had they been prepared in the beginning of the year. Answers for these delays were almost frivolous. At length, and by instalments, the documents were brought forward, and then there was an evident objection to discussing them, and Ministerial answers were vague or evasive. The impression was given which have got into a habit of using language more adapted to Transatlantic readers than to English people—who like decorum, even in a free-and-easy. Lord Palmerston of "insolence" and other objectionable qualities of speech or truth is then in accustomed to "wait for the end." Meantime, public events took their course, and the German invasion proceeded—we all know with what result. If the English Ministers had really been resolute in taking their stand on the Treaty of London, such stand was so shown to have been merely a theoretical and argumentative one, and the treaty was brought to pieces by the German Powers. If Austria and Prussia, as was originally stated, had determined to adhere to that treaty, federal considerations made them abandon the idea; and the correspondence will show to those who take the pains to study it that the German support of the treaty was even more theoretical than that of England. Ministers were pressed, and, not caring to be too frank upon the history of the business, confined themselves to exceedingly general language as to the wickedness of the invaders. The language spoke the feelings of Englishmen; but whether it was wise, at the very time that the Cabinet was getting a Conference together, is a question for diplomatists, who know how much or how little the amenities of debate affect the tone of Envoys at subsequent councils.

The grand facile case of the Opposition was not strengthened, perhaps, by the failure of England to procure an armistice until war had done its worst; but the people noted the fact, and it went to the account against Ministers. For the remainder of the Danish disasters our Government is, of course, not chargeable at all, having been consistent in taking its stand on the principle of non-intervention, though having been exceedingly unfortunate in the manner in which its resolutions were made known, or, we might better write, discovered; for at one time the Cabinet certainly allowed the idea to get abroad, both in Denmark and in England, that something might be done by the Germans that would amount to a justification of our intervention; and the manner which brought our ships into the Channel, and the Parliamentary notification that they could be sent "anywhere" in a few hours, were taken for something which they were not intended to mean. Altogether, the public mind was disturbed. We may add, for it is cold-blooded pedantry to ignore a popular sentiment, even while convinced that it should have little influence with the Government, that the nation was, and is, thoroughly with the Danes. The people do not inquire into the exact relations of Denmark and the duchies, far less into the claims set up by pretenders to the latter. They only saw that a weak nation—endeared to us by many ties, and chiefly as the home of the future Queen of England, a Princess whose popularity is as great as it is deserved—was being invaded, in defiance of treaties and of justice, and our sympathy was at first given to the gallant defenders of Denmark, as it is to those of Virginia. On the whole, therefore, as we have said, the Opposition had a good case, and a good deal of public feeling to which to appeal.

Therefore, when it was solemnly announced that the time had come, the Hour and the Man, and that the only thing remaining, before action, was to settle the terms of the challenge to be sent in, the attention of Downing Street was turned upon Westminster, and the topic occupied all tongues. That the terms in question were important to the challenger was known; for, though the Conservatives have gained a great many by-elections, and have a majority, if they can find a call of the House, would be but a very narrow one, and so many influences come into play on the eve of a battle that it is almost impossible to count probable votes with absolute exactitude. The object, therefore, was to frame such a resolution as should not only express the views of most members, but should be one which it would be difficult for reluctant Derbyites to avoid supporting. And it need not be said that it was needful to cover it with certain phrases which it is thought to vote, not so much with reference to the merits of an individual question as with regard to other objects and in obedience to non-Parliamentary considerations. The leadership, therefore, however, were supposed to be equal to the occasion, and mess looked eagerly at the notice paper.

The notice has not been given, and, while we write, it is understood that there is to be a battle after all. The Opposition is clearly convinced that the Government has pursued a policy disentitling it to the confidence of the country, and is as clearly convinced (and how could it be otherwise, in presence of the recent elections?) that which it has been pursuing for not a fortnight?) that it is the duty of the Conservatives to act. But, we are told, they will not act. Whether this announcement be a ruse, which we do not like to believe; whether it has been occasioned by the refusal of a small but influential section to co-operate with its supposed chief, or whether the plan has been given up from considerations which everyone comprehends, but which it is not necessary or would be painful more distinctly to refer, has yet to be explained. The party which boasts majorities in both Houses may reconsider its course, and, though "councils of war seldom fight," may yet confront us with Mr. Gladstone at present, we have only to record that a great sensation has been caused, and that it promises to end ignobly in a tacit confession by the Opposition that it distrusts its own strength, and that its convictions are stronger than its courage.

THE CONFERENCE.—The meeting of the Conference, which stood adjourned at its last meeting to Wednesday, the 16th, and was subsequently further adjourned to Thursday, was again put off till Saturday (to-day).

THE COURT.

The Queen continues at Windsor Castle, in the enjoyment of good health.

Yesterday week her Majesty held a Council, which was attended by Earl Cowper, Lord Privy Seal, Earl Beauchamp, and Viscount Grey de Wilton. Mr. Lumley was Clerk of the Council. At the Council an Order was made for proroguing Parliament from the 24th to the 29th inst. Riding of Yorkshire. Earl Granville, Earl Russell, and Sir George Grey had audiences of the Queen, as Members of the Council, before returned to town. Subsequently, her Majesty, accompanied by Prince and Princess Louis of Hesse and the Princess of Leiningen, drove out in a carriage and pair. Prince and Princess of Wales visited the Queen and remained to luncheon. Princess Helena, Prince Alfred, and Princess Christian Louis of Hesse returned the Prince and Princess of Wales to London, and were present at the state ball at Buckingham Palace.

On Saturday last the Queen, accompanied by Princess Louise, walked and drove in the private grounds. Prince and Princess Louis of Hesse, Prince Alfred and Princess Alice of Hesse returned to the castle from a visit to the private chapel of the castle. The Hon. and Very Rev. the Dean of Windsor, Prince Hermann of Solms, Prince Yorenburg Birdlingen, and Count Ribbach left the castle for London.

On Monday the Queen, accompanied by Prince Louis of Hesse and attended by the Hon. Mrs. Bruce and Lord Charles Fitzroy, went to London and visited the Duke of Newcastle. H.r Majesty afterwards went to the Deanery at Westminster, returning to the castle in the the afternoon. Princess Helena and Princess Louise, attended by Lady Caroline Barrington, the Hon. Horatia Stopford, Lieutenant-General Sir H. Bentinck, and Lieutenant-Colonel the Hon. D. Ba Ros, left the castle for Buckingham Palace. In the evening their Royal Highnesses honoured the concert of the Philharmonic Society with their presence at the Hanover-square Rooms. Princess Louise returned to the castle at night. Prince Alfred and Prince Louis of Hesse also went to London.

On Tuesday the Queen, accompanied by Princess Louis of Hesse, walked and drove in the castle grounds. Later in the day her Majesty, accompanied by Princess Louis of Hesse and attended by the Hon. Mrs. Bruce, Mdlle. de Gramey, and Lord Charles Pitzroy, went to Twickenham and visited the Duke and Duchess d'Aumale.

On Wednesday the Queen, accompanied by Princess Louis of Hesse, walked and drove in the grounds of the castle. Prince Alfred, Princess Helena, and Prince Louis of Hesse returned to the castle from London. Their Royal Highnesses afterwards rode out. The Duke and Duchess of Buccleuch and Lady Victoria Scott arrived at the castle, and had the honour of dining with the Queen.

The state ball announced to take place at Buckingham Palace on the 17th inst. is postponed till the 29th inst.

The Countess of Desart has succeeded Lady Churchill as Lady in Waiting. The Hon. Horatia Stopford and the Hon. Harriet Phipps have joined at the castle as Maids of Honour in Waiting to Princess Christian. Lieutenant-General Sir H. Bentinck are the Lord and Groom in Waiting. Lord Charles Fitzroy and Lieutenant-Colonel the Hon. H. De Ros are the Equerries.

STATE BALL AT BUCKINGHAM PALACE.

By command of the Queen, a state ball was given yesterday fortnight at Buckingham Palace, at which 1000 persons were invited and 1000 were invited. The Prince and Princess of Wales, attended by the Lord Mayor of Morton, the Hon. Mrs. Stonor, the Hon. Mrs. Edgcumbe, Earl Spencer, Lord Harris, Lieut.-Col. Keppel, and Mr. Wood, arrived at the palace at nine. Mrs. Stonor and Mrs. Edgcumbe, Their Royal Highnesses, accompanied by Princess Helena, Prince Alfred, Prince and Princess Louis of Battenberg, Princess Victoria of Cambridge, Princess Mary, and the Grand Duke and Grand Duchess of Mecklenburg-Strelitz, entered the ball-room shortly before eleven, and the Lord Chamberlain, and attended by the ladies and gentlemen in waiting, entered the ball-room soon after ten o'clock, when dancing was immediately commenced. The quadrille band of Messrs. Coote and Tinney was in attendance, conducted by Mr. Coote.

The Princess of Wales wore a rich white satin dress covered with tulle; bouffants of tulle and ruches of white crape; a veil of tulle over the dress, ornamented with pearls; and a tiara of pearls; white lilies; head-dress, a tiara of diamonds; necklace, brooch, and earrings of pearls. Her Royal Highness's dress was the gift of Prince Albert Iodge and the insignia of the Order of Isabella of Portugal.

Princess Louis of Hesse wore a dress of white satin, with crape flounces over tulle ruches, trimmed with pink roses and brown leaves; head-dress, a tiara of diamonds; a necklace, brooch, and earrings of diamonds.

Princess Helena wore a dress of white tulle over a rich glacé slip, trimmed with blush roses; head-dress of blush roses; pearl ornaments and necklace.

The Duchess of Cambridge wore a black satin dress, with rich lace flounces; head-dress, tiara of diamonds, with yellow roses; black lace shoulder; necklace and ear-drops of diamonds and pearls.

Princess Mary wore a white tulle dress, trimmed with ruches of Parisian embroidered with pearls; head-dress, a tiara of white lilies; head-dress, a tiara of diamonds; necklace, brooch, and earrings of pearls. Her Royal Highness also wore the insignia of the Albert Iodge and the insignia of the Order of Isabella of Portugal.

Princess Louis of Battenberg wore a dress of white crape, with flounces over tulle ruches, trimmed with pink roses and brown leaves; head-dress, a tiara of diamonds; a necklace, brooch, and earrings of diamonds.

Princess Helena wore a dress of white tulle over a rich glacé slip, trimmed with blush roses; head-dress of blush roses; pearl ornaments and necklace.

The Duchess of Cambridge wore a black satin dress, with rich lace flounces; head-dress, tiara of diamonds, with yellow roses; black lace shoulder; necklace and ear-drops of diamonds and pearls.

Princess Mary wore a white tulle dress, trimmed with ruches of Parisian, embroidered with pearls; head-dress, a tiara of white lilies; head-dress, a tiara of diamonds; necklace, brooch, and earrings of pearls. Her Royal Highness also wore the insignia of the Albert Iodge and the insignia of the Order of Isabella of Portugal.

Princess Louis of Battenberg wore a dress of white crape, with flounces over tulle ruches, trimmed with pink roses and brown leaves; head-dress, a tiara of diamonds; a necklace, brooch, and earrings of diamonds.

The Grand Duchess of Mecklenburg-Strelitz wore a blue satin dress, trimmed with point lace and diamonds; head-dress, a tiara of diamonds and flowers; stomacher and necklace diamonds.

The Princess of Wales wore the collar of the Order of Honour, with the insignia of the Order of the Garter and the Star of India.

THE DRAWINGROOM.

By command of the Queen a Drawingroom was held on Tuesday, at St. James's Palace, by the Princess of Wales, in the unit of her Majesty. Presentations at this Court are, by the Queen's pleasure, exceptions to the rule established in connection with the Court of the Prince and Princess of Wales, attended by the ladies and gentlemen in waiting, received at St. James's Palace by the Princess of Wales at two o'clock. Their Royal Highnesses were received by the Mistress of the Robes and the great officers of the Royal Household.

Princess Helena, Prince Alfred, Prince Louis of Hesse, the Grand Duke of Mecklenburg-Strelitz, Princess Mary of Cambridge, Her Highness Mauritzpha Pacha, Prince Hermann of Solms-Lich, Count and Countess Gleichen, and Count and Countess Bernstorff-Schoenburg were present at the Court. The Princess took her station at the top of the throne, accompanied by the Prince and the members of the Royal family. In attendance upon the Princess were the Countess of Dudley, the Marchioness of Ely, the Countess Dowager of Mount-Edgcumbe, the Countess of Caledon, Viscountess Sydney, Viscountess Hood, Lady Caroline Barrington, Lady Charlotte Copley, Viscountess Forbes, the Hon. Mrs. George Campbell, the Hon. Mrs. Edgcumbe, the Hon. Mrs. Codrington, the Hon. Lucy Kerr, the Hon. Caroline Cavendish, the Hon. Flora Macdonald, the Hon. Mrs. Stonor, the Hon. Miss Harriet Phipps, the Hon. Emma Lascelles, the Countess of Morton, the Hon. Mrs. Francis Stonor, the Earl of Rosslyn, Lieutenant-General the Marquis of Ailesbury, and the gentlemen in waiting of the Queen's and the Prince and Princess of Wales's households.

The Princess of Wales wore a petticoat of rich white silk with bouffants and ruches of crape, ornamented with white lilies and jet; a train of rich white silk with bouffants of tulle and crape, ornamented with white lilies; a corsage of diamonds, with diamond necklace, brooch, and earrings. Head-dress, a tiara of diamonds, with feathers and veil. Her Royal Highness also wore the Victoria and Albert Iodge and the insignia of the Order of the Garter and Star of India.

Princess Helena wore a train of rich white silk striped with green reeds, trimmed with ruches of green crape, and a petticoat of pale green tulle over green glacé, trimmed with ruches of crape and bunches of white roses and lilies of the valley; a corsage, with sash, feathers and tulle veil; diamond ornaments. Victoria and Albert Iodge, and the insignia of the Portuguese Order of Isabella.

The Prince of Wales wore the uniform of the 10th Hussars, with the insignia of the Garter, the Star of India, and the Victoria Star.

The foreign Ambassadors and Ministers having been introduced, several presentations in the Diplomatic Circle took place.

THE PRINCE AND PRINCESS OF WALES.

The Prince and Princess of Wales arrived at Sandringham House, on Saturday last the Prince, accompanied by Prince Alfred, Prince Louis of Battenberg, and the Duke of Buccleuch, and the Princess by Colonel Keppel, Major Cowell, and Lieutenant Haig, went to Chatham to witness the naval manœuvres.

The Princess, accompanied by Princess Mary, drove out. In the evening the Prince and Princess, accompanied by Prince Alfred and Prince Adolphus of Mecklenburg-Strelitz, honoured the Royal Italian Opera with their presence.

On Sunday the Prince and Princess attended Divine service at the Chapel Royal, St. James's. The Rev. R. C. Packman and the Rev. the Hon. Dalrymple officiated.

On Monday the Prince presided at a meeting of the Council of his Royal Highness, held at the office of the Duchy of Lancaster, Buckingham-gate. There were present Sir William Dunbar, Sir William John Alexander Cole, the Hon. Sir Charles B. Phipps, Lieut.-General Knollys, and Lord Portman. Later in the day the Prince, accompanied by Prince Alfred and Prince Louis of Battenberg, and the Princess, attended by the Countess of Morton, took a drive. In the evening the Prince and Princess, accompanied by Prince Alfred and Prince Louis of Hesse, went to the Caledonian Ball.

On Tuesday the Prince visited the Royal Albert Docks. His Royal Highness, accompanied by Prince Alfred and Prince Louis of Hesse, also visited the Duke of Cambridge at Gloucester House. Subsequently the Prince and Princess, attended by the Marchioness of Carmarthen and Lieutenant-Colonel Keppel, drove to Blackheath and visited Prince Arthur.

On Wednesday the Prince lunched with the Mercers' Company, and afterwards visited St. Paul's School (it being Apposition Day); and was present at the course of scholastic exercises common to the day. Subsequently the Prince and Princess went to Somerset House and inspected the Civil Service Volunteers. His Royal Highness afterwards rode out. The Princess, attended by the Marchioness of Carmarthen, took a drive. The Prince dined with the Duke of St. Albans.

The Prince and Princess will give their first ball on Monday, the 6th of July, at Marlborough House.

The Marchioness of Carmarthen has succeeded the Countess of Morton as Lady in Waiting to the Princess.

FASHIONABLE AND POLITICAL ENTERTAINMENTS.

His Excellency the Persian Ambassador and Countess Bernstorff gave a grand dinner party on Tuesday evening at Prussia House, Cambridge-gardens, which was numerously and brilliantly attended.

The Duke of Abercorn entertained with the company at the Prince of Wales's Theatre on Thursday evening, at his residence in Park-street, Grosvenor-square. A distinguished circle of friends met the Royal Highnesses.

The Duke of Devonshire gave his second assembly on Tuesday evening, at Devonshire House, in the Piccadilly mansion, which was largely attended by the fashionable world.

The Duke and Duchess of Bedford entertained the Grand Duke and Grand Duchess of Mecklenburg-Strelitz, the Duke of Cambridge, and a distinguished company at dinner on Tuesday evening at their residence, Woburn Abbey.

The Duke of Buccleuch gave an assembly on Thursday at the family mansion in St. James's-square. The reunion was numerously attended.

The Earl and Countess of Cork entertained a select circle at dinner on Tuesday evening at their residence in Grafton-street, Dublin.

The Duke of Beaufort gave a ball on Thursday at the family mansion in St. James's-square. The reunion was numerously attended.

The Earl and Countess of Dudley entertained a party, on Saturday last, at her villa residence, Holly Lodge, Campden-hill.

The Duchess of Buccleuch entertained, on Saturday last, at Carabroke House, which was attended by nearly 400 members of the political and fashionable worlds. Among the guests were the Lord Chancellor and her Ladyship, Knightsbridge.

Field Marshal the Duke of Cambridge and Viscountess Combermere entertained at dinner on Saturday evening last, at Gloucester House. On the evening her Ladyship received a numerous assemblage of the fashionable world.

The Earl and Countess of Rosslyn entertained at dinner, at Dover-house, on Saturday evening last, at their residence in Cleveland-square.

The Right Hon. Sir Richard and Lady Cross gave a dinner party on Thursday evening last, at her residence, Princes-gate, to the Duchess of Cambridge, Princess Mary, the Grand Duchess of Mecklenburg-Strelitz, and a distinguished circle of friends.

The Grand Duke and Grand Duchess of Mecklenburg-Strelitz have left for the season given by Mrs Benedict Coutts, on Tuesday evening, was numerously attended.

MARRIAGES IN HIGH LIFE.

The marriage of Sir Davis Baird with the Hon. Ellen Stuart, third daughter of Lord and Lady Stuart de Rothesay, took place on Saturday last, at St. Paul's, Knightsbridge.

The marriage of Edward Heseltine, Esq., of Hadnian Hall, Lincolnshire, and the Hon. Mary Agnes Hamilton Dalrymple, youngest daughter of Lord Stair, was solemnised on Thursday week at St. George's Church, Hanover-square.

The marriage of Mr. Arthur Wellesley Peel, second son of Viscount Peel, and the Duchess of Beaufort, took place on Tuesday at the Chapel Royal, St. James's Palace.

CALEDONIAN FANCY-DRESS BALL.

The annual Caledonian fancy-dress ball, at Willis's Rooms, in aid of the funds of the Caledonian Asylum, was held on Wednesday evening, in Wednesday evening, the festivity being honoured by the presence of the Prince and Princess of Wales, the Duke and Duchess of Edinburgh, and a distinguished circle of the Royal Family. The ball was conducted under the auspices of sixty-eight distinguished patronesses.

Among the guests were Baron de Worms, M.P., Baron Henry de Worms, Baron Grisebach, Baron Rosscurrant, M. De Rieger, and Major Kaulbaars, with the Austrian Military Commission. The Duke of Fife and Lord Lorne, but the Danish colours were conspicuous in every part of her superb costume. The Duke and Duchess of Edinburgh were present in Highland costume. His Grace wore the uniform of the Royal Archer Body Guard of Scotland. The Duchess appeared in a costume of white satin and lace. The Countess of Fife and the Marchioness of Ely, assembled in the lower saloon at ten o'clock, when the Prince and Princess of Wales, attended by the Duke of Edinburgh, took seats on the dais.

At eleven the Prince and Princess of Wales, accompanied by Prince Alfred of Edinburgh, Prince Louis of Battenberg, Princess Victoria of Prussia, Lord Stormont, and Sir James Ferguson, who conducted their Royal Highnesses and the Princess Victoria of Prussia, the Duchess of Edinburgh, the Duchess of Sutherland, the Duchess of Roxburghe, the Duchess of Buccleuch, the Countess of Dudley, the Countess of Caledon, the Countess of Fife, and other of the ladies patronesses were in attendance to welcome the Prince and Princess.

The Princess of Wales wore a petticoat and sash of the Royal Stuart tartan thrown over the shoulder, and fastened by an agate brooch. Her Royal Highness's head-dress was composed of white lilies and diamonds. The Princess wore the Highland costume, the Prince and Princess of Wales each wearing the Royal Stuart tartan.

The Prince and Princess were conducted to the reception-room, where the Countess of Fife, in the name of the ladies composing the Highland Quadrille, presented to their Royal Highnesses a magnificent bouquet of white flowers, of the choicest kinds arranged in the form of a Scotch cross, and contained in a basket of white heather.

The Prince and Princess of Wales and their party were then conducted, preceded by Sir Charles Forbes, the Duke of Buccleuch, Sir Henry Mildmay, and other officers of the Archer Body Guard of Scotland, to the ball-room, and conducted to the dais, where state chairs were placed for their use.

The leading dance was the Highland Quadrille, performed by Fife's Highland Quadrille, which was formed in the open space reserved immediately in front of the dais. The dancers wore the Highland costume of the Fife tunics of white silk bordered with tartan ribbon and edged with blonde, the belted plaid worn over the shoulder, fastened by a brooch, the gift of her family in the hair and the tartan of her clan. The gentlemen were in full Highland costume, with the exception of Lord Lorne, who wore the uniform and Sir Charles Forbes, who wore the uniform of the Royal Archer Body Guard of Scotland. The Marquis of Huntly's Highland Fling and the Reel of Tulloch, danced by Mr. Hoyte and Miss Hoyte, were also performed by professional dancers in the ball-room. The Princess appeared somewhat surprised at the exuberant style of some of the Highland dances. The Prince of Wales was observed to be in some great humour during the Princess, pointing to the general feeling, thoroughly appreciated the fun and enjoyed the scene.

The Marchioness of Ely's fancy quadrille was next introduced. This costume was composed of white satin and lace, the petticoat and train of which formed the distinguishing ornaments of white silk dresses of great beauty. The dancers were the Marchioness of Ely, Lady Agnes Yorke, Lady Caroline Forbes, the boys gave a general salute, and the juvenile band played the National Anthem, the company rising during their task. After the children had retired, the offices of the asylum and hospital were presented to the Princess.

A grand-day concert followed, in which the Royal visitors took part. The Princess gave her hand to the Duke of Buccleuch, president of the asylum. The Prince conducted the Princess of Wales to the dais, where the Duke and Countess of Fife, and Princess Louis of Hesse with the Duchess of Buccleuch, whose fairness was the theme of admiration, and Princess Victoria of Prussia with Lady Agnes Yorke. At half past twelve their Royal Highnesses left the ball-room, the Prince conducting the Princess of Wales to the door of their chosen guests. The Prince and Princess retired shortly after one o'clock.

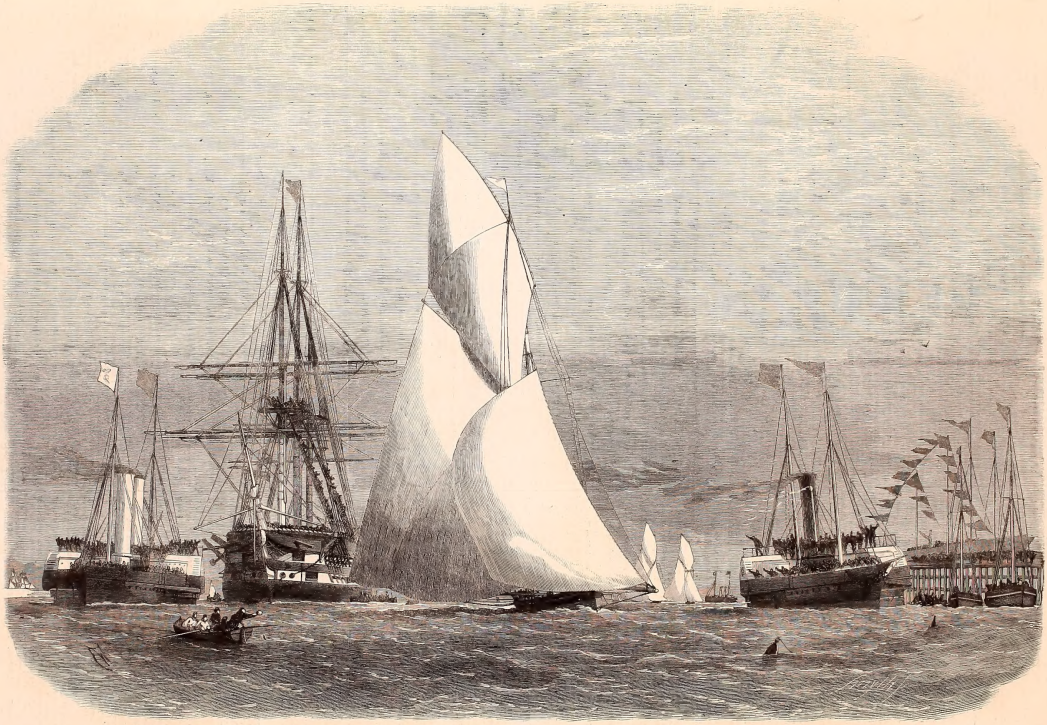
THE OCEAN YACHT-RACE FROM THE THAMES TO HARWICH.

By the last number of this Journal we gave an illustration of each of the three classes of yachts which started in the ocean race, from on three successive days of the previous week. The Ocean Race, the first of the kind ever sailed, was a handicap affair, which took place on Saturday, the 4th inst., was briefly mentioned in our last. We have since received particulars of the race, which has now been the great event of the yachting season. The first prize, for schooners and yawls, was the Queen's Cup, value £500. No less than twenty-seven yachts entered to compete in this race—thirteen schooners, seven cutters, five yawls, and two sloops—as follows: Glance, cutter, 36 tons, G. W. Charlwood; Vindex, cutter, 45, R. Thomson; Surge, cutter, 52, W. F. Hay; Zigan, cutter, 54, T. Lloyd-Baker; Vanessa, cutter, 60, H. C. Maudslay; Madcap, cutter, 65, J. C. Morice; Astarte, cutter, 75, T. Seddon; Heperus, schooner, 70, T. Marriott-Boddington; Amberwitch, yawl, 91, Captain H. Bacon; Aquiline, schooner, 85, H. Chamier; Clycie, schooner, 64, Captain F. S. Clarkson; Madcap, schooner, 71, J. S. Abbott-Dunlop; Medea, schooner, 70, W. J. Rideout; Whirlwind, yawl, 77, A. Fox; Fleur de Lys, schooner, 77, R. W. Birch; Jolanthe, schooner, 81, H. Brinton; Water Lily, yawl, 105, Commodore Lord A. Paget, M.P.; Albatross, schooner, 118, J. B. Tetley; Zoraide, schooner, 155, W. J. Pannett; Albertine, schooner, 155, Lord Londesborough; Zoe, schooner, 162, Sir Brook Brydges Sheridan; and Amberwitch, belonging to the Thames Club, except the Amberwitch, belonging to the Yorkshire Club, and the Zoraide, of the Royal Squadron. In addition to these, a large number of other yachts, not entered for the race, or belonging to different clubs, were assembled in the river. The weather was fine and pleasant; but, except when near Southend, and for a very short time, there was never sufficient wind to develop the best sailing qualities of the competitors, especially of such large vessels as the Albertine and Zoe, of the Water Lily, the yawl of the Commodore of the club, Lord Alfred Paget. In order to get so large a fleet into proper starting order, it was decided that they should start in tiers of three each, each class of vessels being started in the smaller ones taking the front rank. As well as the depth of water would permit, this arrangement was adhered to, the large vessels marked the stations extending along the Essex shore from Osea's buoy to the Blyth sand, while the smaller craft kept themselves well inshore themselves of the permission granted to boat their mainsail and to hoist their topsail as soon as they were clear of the shores their mainsail. At twenty-four minutes past five o'clock in the morning the signal was given to start, the Vindex leading on the Kentish shore; the headsails were hauled home in a very short time, and almost immediately afterwards the Vindex was observed to have overway for Harwich Harbour. The Fleur de Lys schooner failed to get her topsail sheeted home in time, and consequently she never had what which was not properly adjusted. For the first mile or so of the course the Albertine, Zoe, and Surge were closely handled, as also were the Astarte and Whirlwind. It was evident, however, that, though the Albertine, Zoe, Zoraide, and Water Lily had the advantage in order to enable them to draw the wind, there was not enough for them to carry their canvas to any great advantage, the Glance leading the cutters by a long stretch. Next to her, and evidently pressing her hard, was the Surge. The Albertine was not long in sight, which, in turn, was just ahead of the Vindex; the latter being to leeward, Vindex, Astarte, and the schooner Albertine, followed in close order, and then came the Zigan, Madcap, Amberwitch, and the rest of the fleet. Off Southend the wind began to rise and promise strength, and, though the Albertine was ahead of the Zoe at one time, it was quite evident to show how much its continuance would affect the result of the race. The Albertine, Zoe, and Zoraide were also among the schooners, pressed very closely by the Water Lily, Madcap, Amberwitch, and Fleur de Lys, while the Astarte began to diminish the distance between herself and the leading cutters. The Medusa had begun to show in the front, and, for a few minutes, there was wind enough left to carry her on, but the Glance was not to be denied, and her lead among the schooners to the Whirlwind, which thenceforth kept in front of the fleet. The Albertine was now fairly clear of the sea, and her example was soon followed by all the vessels. The race, from this time, was a fine one, and, though the wind was rather fickle, with scarcely any wind to help the yachts, and what there was coming in puffs, the competitors had a fine racing was very close indeed between the Volante and the Glance, and between the Albertine and Zoe. The Albertine, however, by fine and Surge long on the sand, and both the Volante and Vindex passed them, the Zoe, unfortunately, meeting with a piece of luggage now occurred for some time, except that the Astarte and Vindex, the Albertine and Zoe, and the Astarte began to diminish the distance the Glance trying repeatedly to get ahead of the Volante but, not being stopped, The Vindex now began to show in the front, and her chances seemed very good for the first prize, and she was soon far-ward out of the race. The Surge then became third boat, but the Glance, which had been leading for the greater part of the race, passing up, throwing the spray from her fine bows, and closing fast with the Volante, which was the first to round the Nore. The Glance was passed at 10.20, the cutters preserving the same order, and Whirlwind leading the schooners, followed by the Medusa, Water Lily, Albertine, and Albertine all of a cluster. At the Swin Middle the Volante increased her lead, Glance and Surge were next in order, the Surge, and Astarte and Marina nearly the same distance apart. A capital race, and although the Volante was first across the line, the latter ultimately passing her opponent, and subsequently rounding on the Glance for first place. It was not in the Surge's power, however, to retain her position, and, after a long and threatening fighter, the Glance took the first place after the Volante. From this time there was no change in the positions of the boats, the first of the boats passed H.M.S. Pembroke, which lay in Harwich Harbour, and served for the winning post.

	H.	M.	S.		H.	M.	S.
Volante	9	10	0	Whirlwind	9	24	0
Glance	9	19	31	Surge	9	34	17
Astarte	9	20	0	Madcap	9	34	30

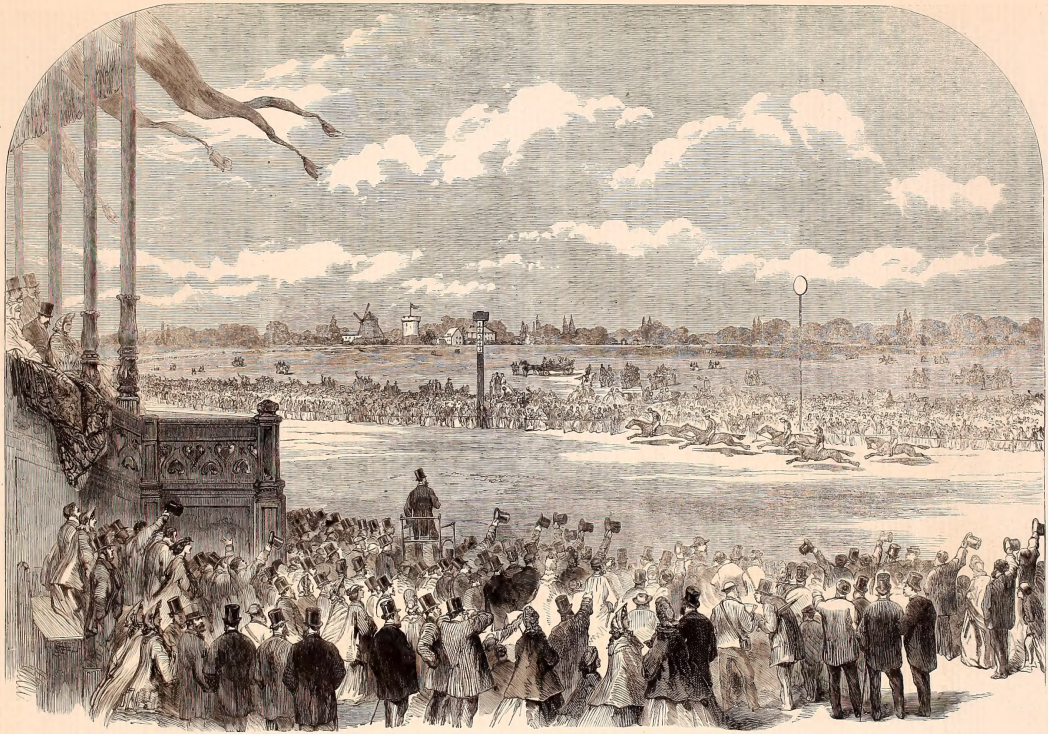
The Volante, therefore, won the prize for cutters, and the Whirlwind took the prize for schooners. The Commodore's yawl, the Water Lily, headed the rest of the boats, which came in long way astern. Our Artist has sketched the Volante just entering Harwich Harbour.

THE RACE FOR THE GRAND PRIX DE PARIS.



The statistical details connected with this interesting race were given in the last number of this Journal, and it is therefore unnecessary to reiterate them. For the present we have merely to occupy ourselves with the pictorial side of the affair, and to mention one or two particulars not alluded to in our last.

Some anxiety had been felt by the English residents in Paris as to the manner in which the Grand Prix would be run, owing to the recent unpleasantness at Longchamps in consequence of the disturbance caused by the Duke of Beaufort's horse Ellington, which won the Prix. The Parisian press, however, generously took up the question, and urged that the English competitors should be left to settle the matter to what nation he might belong; and at that time it seemed probable that Ellington, Mr. Leigh Bevan's horse, would be the only steed on the beautiful turf at Longchamps. However, owing to the Infelicity of the Turf, ultimately left, and the match "Internationale" was reduced to a match between England and France, the former having but one representative in the small field of five out of 126 entries.



Beforehand, there was less public interest manifested in the result of the Grand Prix than in that of the Derby, and it was not till the delightful course of the Bois de Boulogne the excitement became greater as the moment for the start approached. Betting is not allowed to be carried on by the French, and the masses do not seem very ready to be inoculated with this evergreen British institution. The race was witnessed, as by the more wealthy members of the Jockey Club, to whose secretary, Mr. Edmond Blanc, we are enormously indebted for the facilities afforded to our Artist for taking the sketch, an Engraving of which is in our possession.

Fine company or finer weather never favoured a race. It may be said without exaggeration that one hundred thousand "elegant" people were present on the course. The artistic and decorative, the brilliant equipages as they emerged from or drove towards the Bois de Boulogne by the Avenue de Longchamps, the joyful sight, under and intensity were observed.

The ladies, as usual, contented themselves in groups of artistically asserted colours, were gracefully clustered in front of the "tribunes" and their figures and dresses formed a most effective background to which we gave a view with our account of the first Great Race in 1886. While the Prince of Wales has proved himself, even by his running upon Great Britain, to be a first-rate animal, worthy of the honours he has carried off and of the very natural applause with which his triumph was greeted by the Emperor, the Empress, and the French people. May he continue successful, and, in the defeat of Minting, which they bore, let it be here emphatically remarked, with "exemplary" politeness and good feeling.

THE OCEAN YACHT MATCH FROM GRAVESEND TO HARWICH, ON SATURDAY, JUNE 4: THE VOLANTE WINNING THE CUTTERS' PRIZE.—SEE PRECEDING PAGE.

THE RACE FOR THE GRAND PRIX DE PARIS, AT LONGCHAMPS, ON THE 5TH INST.—SEE PAGE 587.

SKETCHES IN PARLIAMENT.

ACCORDING to Lord Robert Cecil, the reason for the setting in of "events out" in the House of Commons with unusual severity this year is that members overburdened with private business all the morning cannot find physical strength to attend to public all night. No doubt this may be part of the cause of the dwindling of houses down below the technical forty (why forty? Had the person who fixed on that number come fresh with the idea from perusal of the story of Ali Baba?); but it is not the whole cause. There are those who believe that the influences at work there in keeping a House are mainly climatic. It is contrary to all natural impulses to put men to do hard work during the summer, as they do in the Houses of Parliament. Nevertheless, and in spite of all adverse influences, the House has got into its regular June habit of sitting over the first and even two o'clock in the morning; and jaded, hollow-eyed, legislators going home regularly meet anxiously-astir men who have gone to bed at nine o'clock the night before; and these oddly-assorted waylarers in the still hours have the pleasure of seeing together the "dawn in russet mantle clad," &c.

Considering that there is no peculiarly-interesting business to do, Parliament is, on the whole, tolerably lively in June. The five o'clock daily the Prime Minister has to be baited by Mr. Osborne and pawed at by Mr. Darby Griffith. Sometimes he is left alone, and then the House what every man of them knows already about the Canadian Militia, or their encounters, and others with the Fenians, is dragged, we regret to say that the First Minister has shown a little temper, though one might be easier in the habit of bearing it, especially in reply to one of the snare-nesty interrogatories of dreamy Mr. Liddell about the boundary of Hyde Park, which was long ago expounded by the honourable member with the wooden magnets that he brought home from the last a good supply of "Ischemia."

A portion of the last week or two has been spent in the Scotch members have had the floor to themselves on more than one occasion, and discovered under the most considerate and, from a Scotch point of view, their good custom of stetting their particular Parliamentary business by accommodating members out of the House. Every Scotch member has distinguished himself in a great speech on a small grievance, and given the house an insight into the nature of those humorous powers which previous slight developments on lesser speeches have shown Mr. Smollett to possess. Mr. Smollett is undescent this gentleman claims kinship with the author of Humphrey Clinker, and therefore his decided turn for fun is intelligible from an hereditary point of view. Certain persons who have of late years taken leave to the propagation of a notion that Scotch humour is only intelligible to Scotland; but the writer of these remarks is a Scotch Whigs, whom Christopher North has declared to be always sour and "dour" (the latter adjective implying that the sourness of misery), he is a Tory. As Mr. Smollett professes that Conservatism which now stands for a name, and as no one ever saw him smile in his life, that did not set one's teeth on edge from any of the Scotch members on the Liberal side, it would seem that the Scotch humour which we above mentioned were both right in their theories. Mr. Smollett, who has been in the Civil Service in India, and has there made a considerable number of that body, has taken up the last, as we hope, of the grievances of India which remain to be brought before the House of Commons. We know how always either coats or waistcoats of the leaves them to be proved over between their agents and the Secretary for India. In the present case, however, the matter is not one of a light sense. As we have said, Mr. Smollett illustrated his case with a mixture of withering argument and humour, and was at once vigorous—humour; and it was expected that Sir Charles Wood would have replied in the same and vein. Instead of this he was in affection text year. To the surprise of every one, however, Mr. Henry Grenfell took the floor, and in a speech which was all the more because he had been once private secretary to Sir Charles Wood, and also because Sir Henry Kelly, who was the head of the Board of Curtoise in his advocating hands, was loaded with a tremendous speech, and it was expected that he would have risen at once to reply to him. If there be one thing that the House could not stand it was a combination of the learned, worthy, indefatigable, prolix member for Norfolk and Sir Henry Kelly. Sir Charles was in the pronunciation of that name would be indicative of what the majority of the House had to expect, and there was a sigh from the adherents of the sufferer from the beneficent rule of England in India, when Sir stupid Rajahs and Begums and Zenanas, that it is good for them to cease to be Rajahs and Nawabs, were equally determined to let all the world know that it is not. It happened that there was a rapid playing of satellites about the great luminary, Sir Charles and Sir Henry Kelly, but it so that happened to be Secretary to the India Board when Azam died, started into prominence, and encouraged the anti-Kellyites to bring on a division without any formal pronouncement. Fortunately for its honour and its good ordering, the House of Commons is composed of Mr. Hennessy, and, with that gentle, unobtrusive manner which distinguishes him, he, in a mildly-pleasant, but firm, way protested against such a violation of the established rule which makes it necessary for personal explanations to follow upon personal delinquencies. This was what might have been expected, and the House would have been disappointed if the honourable member had failed in his conscientious sense of the duty which he has, in the most liberal, free, and gratuitous manner, undertaken. He has always shown that it is the business of Mr. Hennessy to scold inexperienced or careless members of fifty years' standing and upwards, and this why should genial, rosy Mr. Mullins get into an abnormal rage when an existing Attorney-General ventures to chuckled because he had been called listening to a long speech from an ex-Attorney-General. Indeed, looking to the honourable, not to say irascible, tone which Lord Palmerston has taken up in the matter of the crafty Indian had contrived to infuse"a certain amount of moral "shang" into their systems, the introduction of a small dose of the actual and material inflammatory compound thus named on the other side of the water would be the thing which they desire to be fierce in combat. Nay, even the Premier showed a little of the temper proper to the Irish Celt when the thing was unusually combative and defiant. The worst of the matter is, that a Scotch Jan'ary wi' no anes aw' gi' in, and Lord Palmerston, withstanding, he has not even been "scotched," far less killed.

When Mr. Hennessy brings on, for the ninety-sixth time in three years, his motion for making the income tax fall upon income people whom he patronises, one understands what galvanism is. Both the man and the motion seem under the influence of the electric fluid. Somehow, the battery appears to be rather weakly charged. Probably the vivacious Lincoln-ite would have been equally powerful for Buckingham would have liked to administer a strong electric shock to Mr. Ridley Colborne as he put forward his motion, which, with his eyes closed, as his manner is when he desires to show a certain contempt of the opinion of the House, he proceeded to. What with this exhibition of official indifference, and the bare of conversation which makes a member feel as if he were in a house, and the attempt to count when most of them had gone, Mr. Hubbard had the pleasure of feeling that he was availing himself of that pleasant privilege of self-constituted cousin-hood of the Commons, of "shaw and demolishing reply to one's argument is annoying; but when one does at all is given one's sensations rise to the height of mortification. This is a manner which belonged to Mr. Hubbard on this occasion. When he concluded there was a long pause; Mr. Gladstone only moved one leg into an easier position, but did not change the look of weariness and attitude; and the Speaker, having given that latitude for which he is famous to his utmost verge, was about to put the question, when Mr. Whalley kindly intervened to save Mr. Hubbard from, perhaps, the most extraordinary Parliamentary incident that could be—that of a motion being disposed of immediately after the delivery of the speech in which it was brought forward. There was, however, a desultory novel Parliamentary incident—namely, that, the subject being finance, Mr. Gladstone made a short speech, speaking of it not in a comparative sense, but simply as a fact. We have heard him make a more Budget-like oration in answering a question.

The Queen has appointed Mr. John Budd Phear, barrister-at-law, to be a Judge of the High Court of Judicature at Fort William, in Bengal.

IMPERIAL PARLIAMENT.

HOUSE OF LORDS.—MONDAY.

The Irish Prisoners Act Amendment Bill was read a third time and passed. The Admiralty Lands and Works Bill and the Court of Justiciary (Scotland) Bill were reported with amendments.

The Public Houses (Scotland) Bill, the Scottish Sewage Clary Disabilities Removal Bill passed through Committee.

Lord CLARENDON presented the Queen's message, recommending the grant of a pension of £1000 a year to the Countess of Elgin, who takes into consideration, and, on motion by Earl Granville, seconded by the Earl of Ellesborough and supported by the Earl of Derby, their Lordships expressed their concurrence with the message.

THE NEW ZEALAND ASSETS.—Lord WRANGHAM, in moving that the Papers relative to the New Zealand Assets be printed, said the estate of the late Bishop of Lichfield, who left £140,000, instead of to Wakefield, he considered, pointed out what to considered the unsatisfactory state of the land-tenure—the want of a proper system of conveyancing, of Real Estates Vesting House, and other institutions being situated there.—The motion was agreed to.—Lord KINGSDOWN—Earl GRANVILLE, on the part of the Government, urged that the only motive for the selection was one of public convenience.—The Bill was read a second time, and ordered to be committed for consideration.—An animated debate took place, in which Lord Brougham, Lord Chelmsford, Lord Redesdale—Earl GRANVILLE, and others took part, and the Lord Chancellor took part.—On a division, the motion was carried against the Government by 61 to 41.

HOUSE OF COMMONS.—MONDAY.

Mr. H. Seymour postponed his Church of England Estates Bill to Wednesday week, and Mr. Hennessy his motion for an income tax on incomes.

The Lord Advocate obtained leave to bring in a bill to continue the Dupply Commissioners in Lunacy in Scotland, and for other purposes relating to the Poor Law Board in Scotland, and for the appointment of additional Lords of Lunacy, and the bill was read a first time.

The Tramways (Ireland) Provisional Order, the Superannuation (Union Officers) Bill, the Coventry Free Grammar School Bill, the Settled Estates Act Amendment Bill, and the Common Law Procedure (Ireland) Bill were severally read a second time.

The Public Health Metropolitan House (Metropolis) Bill and the Bath's Registration Bill passed through Committee.

The Metropolitan Police Courts (London) Bill were agreed to.

THE NEUTRALISATION OF LUXEMBURG.—In answer to Mr. COCHRANE, Lord the Royal Academy was prepared to remove to Burlington House, and that the Royal Academy was prepared to remove to Burlington House, and were allowed. But even if the Royal Academy vacated the building in question there would be considerable expense in adapting the premises belonging to the National Gallery. It would therefore be necessary to purchase the site in the rear of the National Gallery. The cost of the whole scheme would not be less than £100,000.

THE CONGO FREE STATE.—Mr. RICHARDSON, in reply to Mr. B. Osborne, said he had not seen the declaration of the Danish Plenipotentiaries at the last Conference, but he believed that it was to the effect that Denmark would not be bound by the decisions of the Conference, and had therefore the duty of determining the line that is to divide the mouths of the Danube.

THE CASE OF ALEEK JAH.—On the order for going into Committee of Supply, Mr. BRIGHT called attention to the case of Aleek Jah, and moved an inquiry into the claims of his Highness Azam Jah to the title and dignity of Nizam of Hyderabad. He said that Aleek Jah was the eldest surviving son under which the treaty entered into between his Highness's father, Azam Jah, and the East India Company, in the year 1853, on the 17th of July, had been declared void. After some discussion the House divided, and the motion was negatived by 124 to 49. Mr. Bright then moved that the House do now adjourn, and had been answered by the Secretary for India in declining any explanation on the subject.—Mr. MALINS said he should not have risen but for the indifference with which he had asked the reply of the Attorney-General with which he had asked the result of the division.—Lord PALMERSTON said that all the public had to do was to read the papers relating to the case to be fact that the right hon. and learned gentleman, Sir Fitzroy Kelly, who had been for so many years Attorney-General, and who had devoted much inquiry, was to entirely diminished by the arguments opposed to it that he had withdrawn from it. He (Lord Palmerston) had also been astonished by the tactics of the Government; but he now gave notice that, in justice to the memory of Azam Jah, he should bring the question before the House on the 27th inst.

SUTTEE.—The Incendium went into Committee of Supply on the remaining Indian estimates, and, after some discussion, the resolutions were agreed to before the Chairman was ordered to report progress.

THE CIVIL SERVICE.—In the Committee of the whole House, Mr. Cardwell, in moving a resolution as to a loan to New Zealand, gave a brief sketch of the steps which had been taken in reference to it. He said that the terms which had reached the Government was favourable; and although the Government would have preferred to have had the money from the Crown, as such sum had been received at the Colonial Office. If may reserve had been made in the Estimates for the expenses of the Volunteers, but the personal charge of the Volunteers would be borne by the Government had come to the resolution to recommend to the House a grant of £200,000 for the purpose of the loan, and to repay the money in 25 years.—Mr. LAING moved a resolution to that effect. After some discussion, the motion was agreed to.

HOUSE OF LORDS.—TUESDAY.

The Ecclesiastical Courts (Ireland) Bill, with the exception of certain clauses, passed through Committee.

The Court of Exchequer (Scotland) Bill was read a third time and passed.

The House went into Committee on the Union Assessment Committee Act Amendment Bill, and, after some discussion, several amendments were agreed to, and the bill was ordered to be reported.

The Report on the Mortgage Debentures Bill was agreed to; as were also the reports of amendments to the Public Schools Bill and the Scottish Episcopal Church Communion Bill.

LEASEY OF SIR ROWLAND HILL.—Earl GRANVILLE moved the concurrence of their Lordships in the resolution of the House of Commons to grant to Sir Rowland Hill a pension of £2000 a year, in addition to his present pension as Secretary to the Post Office, and after some eulogistic remarks upon the late Secretary to the Post Office, Lord Brougham moved that the resolution be agreed to.—The motion was agreed to.

HOUSE OF COMMONS.—TUESDAY.

The Valuation of Lands and Heritages (Scotland) Act Amendment Bill was withdrawn.

The Townhouses (Ireland) Bill was read a third time and passed.

The Valuation of Rateable Property (Ireland) Bill was agreed to.

The Public Health Act Amendment Bill was read a third time and agreed to, with the exception of certain votes, principally Irish, which were postponed.

The Dublin Police Bill was read a second time and committed.

THE INCOME TAX.—Mr. HENNESSY moved that it was inexpedient legislation affording the operation of the existing property and income tax disqualified it from consideration this session.—Mr. RIDLEY COLBORNE moved as an amendment the following resolution:—That it is expedient to amend the law relating to the National Debt.—The CHANCELLOR of the EXCHEQUER admitted that the present system was objectionable, but he was difficult to find a substitute any other that would be less objectionable and produce so large a sum as the present tax. After some discussion, the motion was negatived by 151 to 74.

NATIONAL EDUCATION IN IRELAND.—Mr. H. CAIRNS moved that the House resolve itself into Committee to consider the Irish Education Act, 1831, so far as regarded the distribution of the grants to denominational schools, in order to bring it into accordance with the principles of the system as originally established by the Commissioners.—Mr. CARDWELL, on the part of the Government, opposed the motion, and, after some discussion, the debate was adjourned.

HOUSE OF COMMONS.—WEDNESDAY.

The Servants Hiring (Scotland) Bill passed through Committee with some amendments.

The County Voters Registration Bill was read a second time, Mr. Dodson, who moved the second reading, explaining that it was intended to carry out the recommendations of Mr. Locke's Committee, with a view to the postponement to Sept. 1865.

The North Trunk connecting Railway Bill, after short discussion, was read a second time, ordered to be committed.

The Poor Rate Bill, the object of which is to remove the impediment to recovering debts in Ireland by persons living in England, was read a second time.

HOUSE OF LORDS.—THURSDAY.

THE BANO-DERMAH EXECUTION.—The Earl of HARROWBOROUGH gave notice that to-morrow he would ask the Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs whether measures have been taken to prevent the Bano-dermah vessel from being fitted out for the purpose of running the blockade of Guinea.—The Duke of SOMERSET, in answer to the Earl of Hardwicke, said that the Government had no information respecting the existence of any such steamboat.

The Mortgage Debentures Bill, the Public Schools Bill, and the Scottish Episcopal Clergy Disabilities Removal Bill were severally read a third time and passed.

The Attorneys and Solicitors' Remuneration, &c., Bill was read a second time.

HOUSE OF COMMONS.—THURSDAY.

THE PALACE OF SCIENCE.—Mr. COWPER, in reply to Mr. Doulton, said that it was not the intention of the Commissioners of the Palace of Science, drawings of which were being exhibited in the Fores' Gallery.

THE YORKSHIRE ASSIZES.—Colonel SYKES asked what steps the Government intended to take in consequence of the vote of the House of Lords with respect to the Yorkshire Assizes.—Mr. COWPER said that the vote was in the form of an address to the Crown. That address had been presented, and the answer which the Queen had been advised to return would be duly communicated to the House of Lords to-day or to-morrow; but until that was done he could hardly state its nature.

Mr. MACDONALD STEPHENSON.—Mr. LAYARD in reply to Mr. H. Seymour, said that Mr MacDonald Stephenson had been travelling in China, but he was returning to this country. It was clearly not at the expense of the Foreign Office. He understood that Sir H. Stephenson had prepared a report which had been sent to Earl Russell, but he had not seen it himself.

DARBY GRIFFITH.—Mr. DARBY GRIFFITH, in reply to Mr. Scholefield, stated that it was not intended to blast or place a lighthouse on Dassen Island, on the western coast of Africa, at the entrance of Table Bay, and also by erecting the light at Roche's Point.

THE ABYSSINIAN QUESTION.—The MARQUIS of HARTINGTON, in reply to Mr. Hussey Vivian, said that it was intended to complete a considerable force of Indian troops which had been sent to Aden before the rainy season, and were originally intended for breech-loaders on the wedge principle, and to that time was not expected to be over. He did not think it would be necessary to send any more troops, but would direct down the War Office to adopt this, or to withdraw the force of Mr. Vivian's suggestion. He was not aware that the Government had any knowledge of the intention of Theodore, but it was reasonable to suppose that he would engage for the trials, which only began two months since, and were not fully tried. He was not aware that Government had any fear of the Earl of Mr. Whitworth that they were not begun sooner.

THE ARMY ESTIMATES.—Mr. PEEL asked what steps had been taken to remove the troops engaged in the Athenian war, in accordance with the pledge given to the House on the subject of the Army Estimates. He said that a transport had at once been taken up, and the Gladstone would be dispatched to Malta to bring home the troops engaged at the Cape of Good Hope.—Mr. CARDWELL, in reply to a second question, said it was not true that 1000 men had been sent to Malta. The Gladstone had not been selected for the purpose of bringing home troops, but it was not true that the rest had died. Before the question was brought before the Government had decided to reduce the force on the Gold Coast to its normal strength of one battalion of between two and 800 men. He did not think it necessary to state what was the cost of the expedition thirteen had died and ten were invalided.—The Marquis of HARTINGTON, in reply to Mr. Peel, said that the Government had left on the Gold Coast, and ten had been invalided. The returns would be laid before the House to-morrow. He did not think it would be necessary to send that force to the Gold Coast. The Gladstone had not been received at the Admiralty on May 26, and the vessel was taken up before that time. The Government had not yet decided whether it was to be sent.

THE CONFERENCE.—Mr. B. OSBORNE asked whether it was true that the Conference was about to be adjourned, and whether the Danish Question is postponed until Saturday.—Lord R. CECIL asked whether the Conference was postponed until the 27th inst.—Lord PALMERSTON, by a majority of Ten, or upon the suggestion of the English Plenipotentiaries alone.—Lord R. CECIL asked whether the Conference was adjourned.—All I know is that the Conference has adjourned until Saturday.

PUBLIC PETITIONERS.

On the order for going into Supply, Mr. PEERAM moved for a Select Committee to inquire into the constitution of the Commissioners, and the Board of Charity Commissioners. He complained that the board was a secret one, that its proceedings were not laid before Parliament, and was not open to the public. Forty persons were connected with the board, every one of whom, without exception, had been a Tory. The Charity Commissioners had exercised a power in completing of the manner in which the business of the board was carried out. Their proceedings were characterised by secrecy, favouritism, delay, injustice, misappropriation of funds, political partisanship, neglect of duty, and drawing of salaries without performing any corresponding duties. He had heard that the Charity Commissioners had refused to come to the conclusion that the bill providing for its formation was a vile and unconstitutional one, and had only been brought into Parliament by the machinations of Lord Westbury.

Mr. MORRISON complained of the tone and language of the honourable member.

Mr. BUCKLE warmly defended the Charity Commissioners, and protested with the utmost indignation against the wild and vicious charges brought forward without any notice whatever, and upon authority almost unknown, against officers of the highest character. He (Mr. Buckle) considered in such a spirit the Government could not accede. He admitted that their proceedings were not laid before the House, but he did not think that was a matter of any importance, and he was not aware that any improvement they had effected in the charitable institutions of the country.

Mr. R. CAVENDISH SPENCER thought the honourable member for Finsbury's charges, which he believed to be wholly unfounded.

Mr. R. CARTER thought that the mode in the strangest manner the conduct of the hon. member for Devonport in making accusations of so grave a character against a body of gentlemen who were not present to defend themselves were bound, in justice to these gentlemen, to accede to the motion for a Committee, which would enable them to meet the charges fully and satisfactorily.

Mr. J. A. SMITH thanked the hon. member for Devonport with having brought forward the subject. He (Mr. Smith) had received many communications from persons who had been subjected to the most unfounded charges against the late Sir James Graham and Mr. James Weir Hogg. Considerable delay, he (Mr. J. A. Smith) admitted, had taken place, but the question was in a position to ask the House for a Committee of Inquiry into the conduct of any body of gentlemen.

Mr. MALINS expressed his regret that any hon. gentleman sitting on the Treasury bench should have thought proper to support the motion of the hon. member for Devonport had done, against a most useful, honourable, and meritorious body of men. He (Mr. Malins) should therefore vote against the motion and the fullest confidence.

Mr. E. P. BOUVERIE also disapproved of the conduct of the hon. gentleman.

The House having divided, Mr. Feeram's motion was defeated by a majority of 115 to 46.

The House soon afterwards went into Committee of Supply, when several votes connected with our colonies were agreed to.

NAVAL AND MILITARY INTELLIGENCE.

The 60th Rifles, so long quartered at the Tower and Kensington, have been relieved by the 1st Battalion 5th Fusiliers.

Captain Arthur Hamilton, late 43rd Foot, is appointed one of the Military Knights of Windsor.

The Channel Fleet left Plymouth Sound on Monday for Spithead. Should the weather be favourable for more extended cruising it is thought probable that they will be sent on a summer cruise round the British coast.

THE ROYAL NAVAL BENEVOLENT FUND.—The Commissioners of the Patriotic Fund has been heard. The Commissioners state that the total number of pensioners, widows, children, and officers, of seamen and marines, now placed on the list for relief, is 3136, and of children 4591, including 179 who have lost both parents. The number of widows is 1,000, and of children 1,591. Forty-two widows and 23 children have died since the last report, making a total decrease of 65. There has been an addition of three new pensioners of relief. It has been found necessary to discontinue 26 widows' allowances, owing to their marriage or misconduct, and 14 children, by their attaining the service or the age of 14. 3 have entered the Army, 31 the Navy, and 280 are now about the age of 14. The Commissioners have also been engaged in making a total of 1,000 grants to widows and 400 additional grants on receipt of allowances; 12 of the latter are in Wellington College Royal Naval School, Greenwich, and 3 in the Royal Hibernian School. The total amount expended in relief up to the 31st of December, 1863, was £501,091. The total amount subscribed to the fund up to that date was £1,000,000. The Commissioners have sanctioned the appropriation of £1000 to the building of a chapel for the Royal Naval School, Greenwich, and have contributed £500 annually with the main edifice, sufficient to accommodate about 400 persons. The Queen has graciously consented to have them remembered.

The half-yearly inspection of the cadets of the Royal Military College, at Sandhurst, took place on Wednesday. The Duke of Cambridge, governor of the college, distributed the prizes. The cadets were put through the manual, platoon, and sword exercises, performing the movements with remarkable precision. After the field manœuvres were gone through, the cadets were formed into line, and the Duke of Cambridge, in complimentary terms, the names of the forty successful cadets to whom commissions without purchase will be given in the course of the year. His Royal Highness spoke in instructive to the progress of the higher character of the college, and expressed his earnest hope that their future career would be as creditable as their conduct at Sandhurst had been. Subsequently the prizes were distributed to the successful pupils.

MILITIA STRENGTH OF THE UNITED KINGDOM.—A Parliamentary return was published on Monday of all regiments of militia in the United Kingdom, with the number of men raised and trained during the nineteenth of each company, the number of privates with the regiment at the time of the annual training, and the number absent from the 9th of May to the 8th of April, 1863, and between 1862 and 1864, and the sums paid in each regiment for each enlistment. From this return it appears that the number of privates present at the training of 1863 was:—For England and Wales, 40,510; for Scotland, 6,641; for Ireland, 24,200: total number, 92,351. Privates enlisted between the 9th of April, 1862, and April, 1863, for the United Kingdom, 27,000; number discharged, 25,000. Bounty paid, £1 10s. The sum paid for each enlistments were:—For England, £19,150; for Scotland, £991; for Ireland, £17,273: total amount, £64,316.—The Irish militia consists nearly all seasoned for training, and, as a general rule, the reports are satisfactory, both of the constitution and strength of the various corps. The number in acute inflammation is considerably increased. The Kerry was the only strong, and, although in not a few counties emigration has considerably reduced the number of men, that circumstance has also somewhat lessened the number of men, that circumstance has also somewhat lessened the number of men, that circumstance has also somewhat lessened

THE VOLUNTEER MOVEMENT.

The Prince of Wales, accompanied by the Princess, inspected the Civil Service Volunteers (of which corps the Hon. Baronet is honorary Colonel) in the quadrangle of Somerset House, on Wednesday. The spectacle was a very fine one. A large number of ladies were present, and the procession generally were of a most satisfactory character. The corps mustered 459 men, and were under the command of Lord Bury. After a series of marches, light infantry manœuvres, changes of front, and other portions of the drill, the Prince of Wales, who was in the room, complimented the corps upon the manner in which they had gone through the movements. The Prince then handed to Lord Bury the challenge cup, which was presented by Major Segal Hopkinson to be fired for at the Wimbledon; and, on the gallant Colonel, the winner of the cup, being presented, the Prince handed to him the cup, which was received by the regiment in the winner, accompanied by three cheers for the Prince of Wales, and the Princess, and expressing a hope that he might be again the winner of the challenge cup. The cups were three times filled with wine, and the toast of the day was followed by three hearty cheers for the Princess and Denmark.

The 1st Volunteer Battalion Admiralty Regiment was inspected on Saturday evening by Colonel Erskine, in the park at Ham House, the seat of Lady Dysart, near Ham. The commanding officer expressed himself highly pleased with the appearance and discipline of the 400 men present. Lieutenant-Colonel C. Buxton, M.P., was in command. The regiment having been formed into line, the several companies at long intervals of battalion movements were gone through with great steadiness and precision, and the various manœuvres executed with the utmost regularity and correctness. At the conclusion Colonel Erskine addressed the battalion, and, after a few remarks, complimented them upon the manner in which they had performed the various evolutions during the evening. Since its last inspected the regiment had increased from six to nine companies, and he expressed a hope that the ground not only in question but in the neighbourhood might be secured to the War Office. The Marquis of Normanby also addressed the battalion, and, in a short but humorous speech, descanted on the various duties from time of a volunteer militia army of 20,000 men in New South Wales during his government. The drill, after marching past, concluded with the usual cheers for the 1st Tower Hamlets.

The members of the Victoria Rifles competed at their range at Stanmore, on the 2nd inst., for the battalion challenge plate, which was won by Corporal Sherwood, No. 6 company.

A return match was fired on Monday between twelve members selected from the London detachment of artists, which resulted in the London Scottish winning by twenty-five marks, both parties having made the very large total by the artists. The ranges fixed at were those for the Queen's prize at the Ealing Butts.

A return match between ten sergeants of the London brigade and ten sergeants of the 20th Middlesex (Artists) was fired on Monday week, at the range of the Victoria Rifles, at Stanmore. The match originated in a standing challenge of the London Rifle Brigade to any ten sergeants in any one of any other corps. The sergeants of the London brigade have on two occasions been successful in these contests; but in the match last year with the Artists they were beaten by nine points. They have therefore challenged the Artists to renew their contest, and a third trial of skill was to decide the palm of victory. The London Brigade scored 285, and the 20th Middlesex 276.

The final competition for the Harrow cup took place on the 6th inst. at Harrow, for the competition between the members of the company, the Artists' Corps, the Civil Service Rifles, the Victoria Rifles, the Victoria Rifles, the Queen's Westminster Rifles, and the Inns of Court Volunteers, the 3rd company of the Victoria Rifles being the victors. The second company were very serious.

The 1st Suffolk Administrative Battalion of Volunteers, which has been encamped at Great Barton, about three miles from Bury St. Edmunds, for the past week, broke up their camp on Saturday. Lieutenant-Colonel Volunteers, broke up their camp on Saturday. Lieutenant-Colonel Volunteers, saying he had come down to witness the following remarks:—In the course of his observations he said that he was pleased to find a great precision of movement was all owing to the battalion having been so much drilled. A great precision of movement was all owing to battle, although it was a very important part of regular troops. He was glad to find that the battalion was a sober minded, God-fearing man, earnest, and determined to help his country at the proper time, to be mainly friends of mankind, to be peaceable and law abiding, to be obedient to his officers, and to trust to those officers placing him in a position where he could put his qualities to a practical test, and to be useful in the day of battle. Practice of movement might be thrown to the winds, and the battalion would not be ashamed of it, because the true use of movement should always be known, that they could be executed "at the double." Now that volunteers took a higher position than they did when he first had the honour of commanding them, he hoped they would, and he hoped they would work up to what was expected of them not only by the country but by the Government had also by their own standard of duty.

Lieutenant-Colonel Harman inspected the 3rd West Riding Rifle Volunteers (Artists) with the Richmond Rifle Company (more than 250 strong), under the command of Lieutenant-Colonel Hall, at Richmond, Yorkshire, on Saturday last. At the close of the inspection, which occupied nearly two hours, the gallant inspecting officer addressed the corps in highly complimentary terms, and said that he would report favourably of them as a very favourable report of the corps to the Secretary of State for War. The Prince of Wales's challenge cup was presented to the Richmond Rifles, but we thought this arose from their inability, in the wind which prevailed, to bear the target assigned; and on the whole, they were entitled to the highest credit.

At the Battersea meeting, on Monday week, the corps would be brigaded with the 1st Surrey Rifles, which had the credit of the first score of the day, and he hoped they would prove themselves equal to that corps, if they did not surpass it.

The Marquis of Westminster has given £50 to the Chester Volunteer Brigade.

The annual meeting of the county of Lancaster Rifle Association, which will extend over three days, will begin on the 28th inst. Wednesday. The meeting is a great improvement upon that of last year as regards the number of entries and the number of competitors, and also the prizes offered for competition.

The competitive trial of the rifles of the National Rifle Association will take place at Woolwich in the month of November next.

The Italian Rifle Association has invited the volunteers of England to take part in a great rifle contest which is to take place at Milan on the 19th inst.

MONETARY TRANSACTIONS OF THE WEEK.

(From our City Correspondent.)

ALTHOUGH the sales of stock for delivery are unusually limited, and although money is in the market in extraordinary abundance, the Bank of England has not yet felt itself justified in reducing the rate of interest. The Bank has, however, relieved the money market to the extent of £1,000,000 sterling, by the purchase of Government securities.

The decrease of the circulation at the Bank of England has been moderately extensive. In the open market it has rather increased, as the subjoined table will show. The rates were as follows:

Thirty days' bills	... ...	3½ per cent.	Four months' bills ... ... 3½ per cent.
Two months' bills	... ...	3½ per cent.	Six months' bills ... ... 3½ per cent.
Three months' bills	... ...	3½ per cent.

In the Stock Exchange money is more abundant, and short loans may be had at 2½ per cent. The rate for the Settlement is 3 per cent. The Stock Exchange discount is from 2½ to 3 per cent. The Bank returns favourable, the stock of bullion having increased to £19,000,000, and the reserve of notes and coin to £11,000,000. Very little gold is now coming to hand, and the Bank of England has been compelled to purchase the whole proceed of to the Bank of England. The amount for export purposes has fallen off considerably.

The Chief Secretary for Ireland has introduced a Bill into the Legislature Provisional, at previous sessions. The regulations within the limits mentioned to £1,000,000.

The Exchequer Bills Bill has been passed through Committee. The Bill empowers the Lords and Commissioners of the Treasury to issue Exchequer Bills to the extent of £3,000,000. The capital of the latter will be increased to £3,000,000.

The Bank of Egypt has declared a dividend for the year 1863 of 12 per cent. The Bank of Egypt has declared a dividend for the year 1863 of 12 per cent. The Bank of Egypt has declared a dividend for the year 1863 of 12 per cent.

The Bank of England has declared a dividend for the year 1863 of 12 per cent.

THE MARKETS.

CORN EXCHANGE, June 13.—The show of English wheat here to-day was limited, and the demand for it was extremely dull, at Monday's prices. Fine foreign wheat maintained a steady inquiry, but inferior qualities commanded very little attention. Barley was in moderate supply, and the trade ruled dull, at 1s. per qr. decline. Malt was in limited request, at the late trade rates. Beans and peas were quite as dear as before. Oats were in fair supply, and the demand for them was steady, at full prices.

June 15.—Both English and foreign wheat met a slow inquiry, at Monday's currency. Barley was in fair request, at 1s. per qr. advance. Malt was dull, at 2s. per qr. less money. Beans and peas were in good supply, and the demand for them was steady, at full rates. Oats were in limited request, at late prices.

Arrivals of wheat and flour from Essex, Kent, Suffolk, Norfolk, Yorkshire, Lincolnshire, and Scotland, 2,000 qrs.; from Ireland, 1,000 qrs.; from Belgium, 1,000 qrs.; from Holland, 1,000 qrs.; from Germany, 1,000 qrs.; from France, 1,000 qrs.; from Spain, 1,000 qrs.; from Portugal, 1,000 qrs.; from Italy, 1,000 qrs.; from Greece, 1,000 qrs.; from Turkey, 1,000 qrs.; from Russia, 1,000 qrs.; from Prussia, 1,000 qrs.; from Sweden, 1,000 qrs.; from Norway, 1,000 qrs.; from Denmark, 1,000 qrs.; from Germany, 1,000 qrs.; from Holland, 1,000 qrs.; from Belgium, 1,000 qrs.; from France, 1,000 qrs.; from Spain, 1,000 qrs.; from Portugal, 1,000 qrs.; from Italy, 1,000 qrs.; from Greece, 1,000 qrs.; from Turkey, 1,000 qrs.; from Russia, 1,000 qrs.; from Prussia, 1,000 qrs.; from Sweden, 1,000 qrs.; from Norway, 1,000 qrs.; from Denmark, 1,000 qrs.

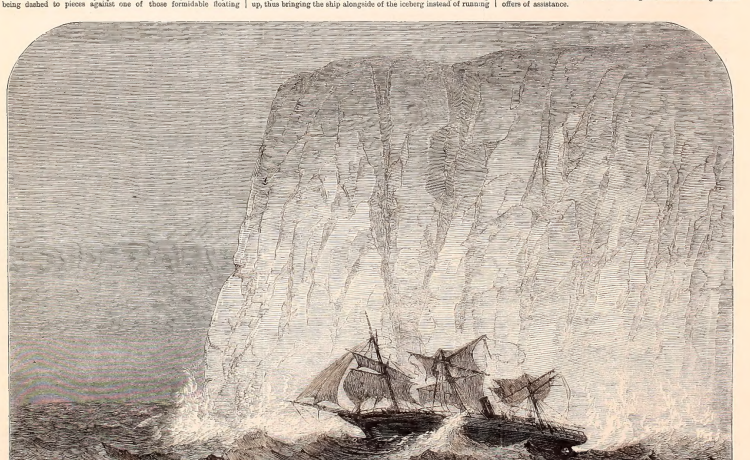
THE LONDON GAZETTE.

FRIDAY, JUNE 10.

BANKRUPTS.

J. MICHELL, Duke Street, Grosvenor Square.—A. GRAY, Liverpool-street, City.—Clearing-cross, grocery.—W. JONES, Commercial-road, Pimlico.—J. WOOD, of Manchester, Lancashire, cotton spinner.—J. BOOTH, Manchester, Lancashire, cotton spinner.—J. BOOTH, Manchester, Lancashire, cotton spinner.—J. BOOTH,

THE LATE SIR JOHN WATSON GORDON, R.A.



We announced last week the death of Sir John Watson Gordon, the eminent portrait-painter; we have now engraved a portrait of him, after a photograph taken from the life. He was personally much esteemed in the city of Edinburgh, where he was born and died; while he enjoyed a European reputation as one of the greatest of British masters in his line of art. He was born about 1790, the son of Captain Watson, R.N., of Overmains, Berwickshire; and could, through his father, claim kindred with Sir Walter Scott, through his mother with Robertson, the historian, and Falconer, the author of the "Shipwreck." Young Watson studied four years under John Graham in the Trustees' Academy, where Wilkie and Allan were also students. He early devoted himself to portrait-painting, and pursued it with unwearied diligence. During his long career he has painted many of the most distinguished Scotchmen—including Sir Walter Scott, Professor Wilson, and Dr. Chalmers. The acknowledged successor of Raeburn, Sir John Watson Gordon was no copyist or imitator of that artist. Raeburn took the poetical side of the Scotch character, Sir John the prosaic. The former idealised his portraits; the latter was strictly realistic. The workshop of Sir John Watson Gordon are wonderfully true to nature and full of the sagacity, shrewdness, and dry humour which often characterise the Scottish physiognomy. He was one of the earliest and most strenuous supporters of the Royal Scottish Academy. On the death of Sir William Allan, in 1850, he was elected its President: at the same time he received the honour of knighthood and the appointment of Limner to her Majesty for Scotland. In 1851 Sir John was elected Academician by the Royal Academy of London. In 1855 he sent to the Universal Exposition of Paris two portraits, for which he jury awarded him a first-class medal. Until his last illness Sir John preserved his firmness of hand and correctness of eye unimpaired. His pictures in the Exhibition at Edinburgh, which has just closed, showed no traces of failing vigour. By many of his fellow-citizens he will be remembered with affection and regret.

THE LATE SIR JOHN WATSON GORDON, PRESIDENT OF THE ROYAL SCOTTISH ACADEMY OF ARTS

THE SHIP ROYAL STANDARD IN COLLISION WITH AN ICEBERG.

We have been favoured by Captain G. H. Dowell, commander of the screw steam-ship Royal Standard, of the White Star line of Australian packets, refitting in the port of Rio de Janeiro, with the sketch from which our Engraving is made, and with an extract from his logbook describing this perilous adventure. It was on the homeward voyage, from Melbourne to Liverpool, on the 4th of April, when the vessel was in latitude 54 deg. 30 min. south, and longitude 145 deg. 27 min. west, which is somewhere about midway between Melbourne and Cape Horn, in the South Pacific Ocean. Our readers may remember that the Himalaya and other homeward-bound vessels in the earlier months of this year had found those seas beset with icebergs, of which an illustration was not long since engraved in this Journal; but the Royal Standard had a very near escape of being dashed to pieces against one of those formidable floating masses which in the summer of the Antarctic region are frequently detached from the frozen waters of the South Pole, and drift into the highway of Australian navigation. The weather was hazy at eleven o'clock in the morning; the vessel was sailing with a fresh breeze from the north-west, ten knots an hour; her steam-engines, therefore, were not at work, and her screw-propeller was raised, while she made use of the favourable wind. Suddenly she ran into a dense fog. The look-out man reported that she was in broken water, and immediately afterwards saw a large iceberg on the right hand, close under her starboard bow. The captain instantly had the helm put hard a-starboard, called all hands, and braced the yards sharp up, thus bringing the ship alongside of the iceberg instead of running into it, as she would otherwise have done, for it was impossible to stay her course. The iceberg lay just under her lee, its precipitous cliffs, 600 ft. in height, were towering above the ship on the right hand, their ends being concealed by the fog; the only question was whether the ship could get past without being driven against them. The sea, running high that way, gradually settled her against the iceberg broadside on. Each wave now knocked her against it; the rebound of each wave carried off her hull, but struck her yards against the iceberg above. They bore one or two of these shocks, while causing a shower of great lumps of ice to fall upon the deck. At length the mainmast and the mizen-top-mast snapped asunder just above the caps, and fell, bringing down with them all the upper masts, yards, and gear belonging to each, and breaking in their fall the brass bands of the lower yards. The ship meanwhile still moved slowly on. Next went the foretopgallant-mast, the jibboom, the foretopsail-yards, the studding-sail-booms, and all their gear, broken against the side of the iceberg; and the remaining sails were more or less torn or damaged by the fall of these spars. The ship, having thus lost much of her sailing power, could no more keep her hull from coming into violent contact with the iceberg. The life-boats, suspended by davits to her side, the lumpkin and all starboard bulwarks, were presently smashed. In several places the starboard quarter was stove in. The iron beams of the poop-deck, across the breadth of the vessel, were bent so as to bulge up the deck as much as one foot. The walls of the cabins were damaged, and the captain's cabin stove in, breaking up the case which contained the ship's chronometers, and scattering them, with other wreck of the cabin and its furniture, on the floor. By another crush, an upper plate amidships was split, with considerable damage besides. At this moment the destruction of the ship seemed quite inevitable; but, as she continued slowly to move ahead, under mainsail and foresail, there was still some hope. The Royal Standard had thus rubbed shoulders with the iceberg for about half an hour, scraping along half a mile of its length, when, happily, the end of it was seen through the surrounding fog, and at last the ship got clear. Captain Dowell immediately ordered the pumps to be sounded in all her compartments, and found that there was no leak, after all the rough usage she had passed. Here we may refer to a short note by Mr. Hugh Johnson, one of the passengers, who says that they all acknowledged their gratitude to Almighty God for their preservation from this fearful danger; and he adds that they would bear testimony to the good conduct of the captain, officers, and crew, by whom the discipline of the ship was perfectly maintained, and whose efforts to save her were at length crowned with success. As soon as she was clear of the iceberg, the captain ordered steam to be got up, and in an hour and a quarter the engine was at work. She thus made her way to Rio de Janeiro, steaming or sailing under jurymasts as best she could. Having, in this crippled and disabled plight, arrived in the Brazilian port, Captain Dowell wishes to thank the Commander of the United States frigate Onward for his generous offers of assistance.

THE SCREW STEAM-SHIP ROYAL STANDARD IN COLLISION WITH AN ICEBERG ON THE HOME VOYAGE FROM MELBOURNE.

BANK of NEW ZEALAND.
INCORPORATED BY ACT OF GENERAL ASSEMBLY.
Bankers to the Government of New Zealand, the Provincial Governments of Auckland, Canterbury, Otago, &c.
CAPITAL, £500,000. RESERVE FUND, £60,000.

Branches and Agencies in New Zealand.

Auckland	New Plymouth	Christchurch	Dunedin
Napier	Akaroa	Wellington	Wanganui
Nelson	Lyttelton	Timaru	Invercargill
Taranaki	Kaiapoi	Oamaru	Riverton
Nelson	Timaru	Manuherika	Queenstown
Picton	Oamaru	Taieri	Dunstan

The Bank purchases Bills and Drafts drawn on any of the above-named places in New Zealand, and transacts every description of Banking and Exchange business connected with the Colony, on terms which may be ascertained on application at the London Office.
No. 30, Abchurch Lane. F. LARKWORTHY, Manager.

THE LONDON and NORTHERN BANK
3, Bank-buildings, London.
Branches—Burnley, Leeds, Blackburn, and Sheffield.
Agencies—Barnsley, Keighley, and Horsforth.
The Directors of this Bank are prepared to receive Deposits of this Bank, against current account, and grant Drafts payable on demand, at any Provincial part of 4% Interest will be allowed on the balance of those accounts at the end of each half year.
J. F. TWEEDALE, Manager.

ALEXANDRA PARE COMPANY (Limited).
THE GREAT FLOWER SHOW will take place on WEDNESDAY, JUNE 22, and THURSDAY, JUNE 23. Tickets, 10s. 6d. each. SEVEN GUINEAS POUNDS will be given in Prizes. Two Military Bands will be in attendance. Admission, Fete Day, 5s. Tickets may be had of the Agents purchased before the day, Four Shillings. Second Day, by payment. Tickets to be obtained of the Company's Office, 49, West Strand; at Mr. R. Clarke's, 62, Threadneedle-street, City; or of the Company's Agents.
F. K. FAULKNER, Secretary.

ISLE OF MAN.—HILL'S ROYAL HOTEL, DOUGLAS, adjoining the Packet Office. Board, lodging, and attendance, 7s. per day. Table d'hôte at one o'clock. Superior Stock of the Island and Wines.

MONEY.—MR. W. F. MORRIS'S Offices are still at No. 31, Sussex-street, Sidney-Street, where unfortunate tradesmen can obtain bills, or, if not required, money, without publicity, immediate attendance, or delay, on an extended property, investment, or personal security. Apply personally, or by letter, as above, from 10 to 4. No preliminary fee. Commissions promptly paid.

REMOVAL.—Messrs. ALEX and JONES have REMOVED their PRACTICE to 33, Bruton-street, Berkeley-square, from their late residence, 1, Hanover-terrace, Regent's-street, being within easy distance of the London, Chatham and Dover Railway.

PHOTOGRAPHIC EXHIBITION.—There being no Exhibition of Coloured Photographs had this year by the Photographic Society, a new and extensive Exhibition of 1000 pictures of MINIATURES has been arranged at the Rooms of Messrs. LOCK and WHITFIELD, 183, Regent-street, where the Exhibition will remain open during the season, free to the public.

MAYALL'S PHOTOGRAPHIC PORTRAIT GALLERIES, 224 and 225, Regent-street (entrance of Annett-street). THE ONLY PLACE in London where the Likeness is taken by the Light Alone. Specimens on view. List of prices per post.

CREST, MONOGRAM, or ADDRESS. Engraved in Plain and Ornamental Characters, free of charge, for the Trade, by HENRY REED, Stationer and Heraldic Engraver, 57, Lombard-street. Every crest Registered and Searched.

BINDING the ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS.—Subscribers can have their Numbers bound in Appropriate Covers, with all titles, at 6s. each, if sent carriage-free, with P. O. order, to the Publisher, 198, Strand, London, W.C. Title and Index for Volume ending with the 31st December, 1863, now ready.

ANCIENT AND MODERN COINS.—MEDALS, &c., of every description, and in the choicest condition, may be obtained on moderate terms by application to Mr. C. E. TAYLOR, Numismatist and Antiquary, 41, his residence, Sydney-terrace, Gloucester-road, Brompton, where the collection may be seen. Attendance daily from 10 to 4.

ON SHIPPERS, MERCHANTS, DEALERS, AND STATIONERS.
C. BRANDAUER,
STEEL-PEN MANUFACTURER,
403 to 407, New John-street West, Birmingham.

PENCILS, Black Lead and Coloured Chalks.
W. P. FABER'S
POLYGRADE LEAD PENCILS,
unsurpassed for Softness, Smoothness, and Permanency.
Agents—Hindmarsh and Batchelor, 3, Friday-street, London, E.C.

HAIR JEWELLERY.—G. HOOPER, Artist in Hair, Gold Gold Lockets for Hair, Rings, Brooches, Hair Rings, Pins, &c.; Hair Chains, from 12s. each, &c. Illustrated Catalogues sent free. 312, Regent-street, London.

MUSICAL BOX DEPOT for the Sale of Superior Musical Boxes, with Tunes by the most eminent composers, from 4 to 24 guineas each. Cornopeans, Concertinas, Accordions, and other Musical Instruments, at the lowest prices. Lists of Tunes and Prices sent on application.

"RECONNOITRER" GLASS, 12s. 6d. post-free. This "Tourist's Favourite" shows distinctly objects 10 miles off, and is invaluable to Yachtsmen, Travellers, and Invalids, as it will show ships in the extended position of the fleet and steamers being simply due to increased size, which person refined by the Rev. J. Pringle, of Cape Town, and Capt. Smyth, R.N., Astronomer Royal.—Sample of Glass sent for Stamps. "A most excellent Glass."—Clifford. "Remarkably good."—Lord Carvan. "It gives no complaint satisfaction, but is wonderful."—Admiral Sir W. Symonds, Bart. Younger Tourist. "I never met an article so completely answering description."—Rev. J. Barlow. "Is a most valuable instrument."—Rev. J. Pringle. "Is very good, with so much clearness."—Rev. Mr. Barclay, &c. "Quite as powerful as that for which I paid £5 5s."—Rev. Mr. Hellard. "Is very good."—Rev. Mr. Bellairs. "Is very powerful and very small."—Rev. Mr. Bellairs. "Is very good."—Rev. Mr. Bellairs. "Accuracy of prize is not secured at the cost of efficiency. We have tried it ourselves, and as an out-door sugar spy-glass it is unrivalled."—Field. "Is very good."—Rev. Mr. Bellairs. "Is very good. I only regret it reaches us more than three months after I had ordered it

 The charge for the insertion of Births, Marriages, and Deaths is Five Shillings for each announcement.*

BIRTHS.

On the 27th ult., at Dynaag, Carnlgnarchie, the wife of Hercturt Vaughan, Esq., of a son.

On the 12th inst., at 10, Fountaines-place, Oxford-square, the wife of Edward Ashley Steel, Esq., of a son.

On the 13th inst., at No. 8, Rue Circulaire, Paris, the wife of Captain Wm. Brown, of a son.

At Warwick-square, Lady Honoria D'Ingerman, of a daughter.

At West-hill, Jersey, the wife of Colonel C. M. Dickinson, C.B., of a son.

On the 14th inst., at Queen's-gate, Hyde Park, Lady Isabella Schreiber, of a daughter.

On the 15th inst., at Richmond-gate, Lady Alfred Spencer Churchill, of a daughter.

On the 15th inst., at Fulston House, Lostwerwith, the wife of Captain Courtenay Curtis, of a daughter.

MARRIAGES.

On the 8th inst., at St. Matthew's Church, Jersey, by the Rev. Geo. Balleine, M.A., Rector, Lieutenant and Adjutant son of Captain Ainley (late 17th Regiment), to Anne Bennett, only daughter of the late Rev. R. Bennett, M.A., Ashbridge, Staffordshire.

On the 14th inst., at All Saints' Church, Odiham, by the Rev. Henry Rashleigh, Francis Paynton Pigott Cousmaker, late Captain 15th Hussars, eldest son of the late Major Francis Pigott Cousmaker, Lieutenant-Governor of the Isle of Wight, to Mary Anne, eldest daughter of Lieutenant-Colonel Hall Dare, of the Eight Hon. Lady Lucas, Dorchester, of Greywell-hill, Hants.

On Tuesday (August Church, Edinburgh, by the Rev. George Caverty, D.D., Incumbent of St. Peter's, Hilton-Bradford, assisted by the Rev. C. M. Fleming, M.A., Warcop, in Westmoreland, Charles Lawson, Esq., eldest son of the late Hon. Charles Lawson, Lord Burghley, and the Lord Provost of the city of Edinburgh, to Mary, eldest daughter of the late Alexander Wood, Esq.

On the 15th inst., at All Saints', Clifton, by the Rev. Thomas Boden, M.A., of St. John's, Cheltenham, assisted by the Rev. John Cook, M.A., Vicar of Clifton, Percival, Esq., 24th Regiment, the King's Own Borderers, eldest son of Colonel Hillsdon Percival, late of Ventnor, Isle of Wight, to Sarah, eldest daughter of the late Lieutenant-Colonel Hay, C.B., 78th Regiment.

At Cheltenham, P. Mowatt, Esq., of H.M.'s Treasury, to Lucy Sophia, widow of Colonel Rich Steinbeck, of Kelso, Estonia.

DEATHS.

On the 8th inst., at Hawkchurch, near Axminster, Devon, extremely regretted, after great suffering, Mary, wife of Mr. Augustine, Mrs. Ann Farwell Wiley, aged 57.

On Tuesday, the 11th inst., at South-street, the Right Hon. Lady Greville, widow of Lord Greville, in the 84th year of her age.

At Hollingbourne, on the 12th inst., Mary Ann, wife of Lord Bayning.

At Dingwall, Ireland, in her 71st year, the Hon. Louisa Scott, widow of J. S. Scott, Esq., Q.C., and daughter of the late Hon. and Most Rev. C. Dougall Stewart, Bishop of Dublin.

On the 11th inst., at Chester-square, Lord Adolphus Vane-Tempest, M.P., aged 39.

On the 12th inst., at his residence, Charles-terrace, Victoria Park, John Phillips Lees, Esq., in his 65th year.

On the 13th inst., suddenly, at 3, Cleveland-terrace, Friends will accept this intimation.

On the 3rd inst., at sea, on board the ship Natal Star, on passage from Natal to London, Mary Ann, wife of Captain Stitt Wilson, Esq., of Norwich, aged 43; also in London, on arrival of the ship Natal Star on the 13th inst., Captain Stitt Wilson, Esq., aged 50. Their numerous friends will please to accept this intimation from their bereaved relatives.

THE DUBLIN INTERNATIONAL EXHIBITION.—RAILWAY AND STEAMBOAT ARRANGEMENTS TO OPEN IT MAY. The products of all nations will be admitted, and the most liberal terms of space will be given to exhibitors. Any information will be furnished by HENRY PARKINSON, Secretary. Exhibition Palace, Dublin.

HIGHGATE HORTICULTURAL and AGRICULTURAL SOCIETY.—The Seventeenth Exhibition of Flowers, Fruit, and Vegetables will be held, by kind permission of the Right Hon. Lord Mayor, in the Egyptian Hall, Mansion House, London, on Friday, the 28th inst., from One o'clock till Six. Entries open at One o'Clock precisely.

Admission on and after One o'Clock, Half-a-crown; from Three to Six o'Clock, One Shilling; after the Show, Sixpence. Children under Twelve years of age, Sixpence.

The Band will be in attendance, by permission of the Lord Mayor, from Five till Six. The Band of the Scientific Corps, under the direction of Mr. Godfrey, will perform from Two till Five o'Clock, and from Five till Six during the day.

Refreshments will be supplied in the grounds.

Carriages to set down at the principal entrance on West-hill.

By order, J. WARD, Junior, Secretary.

THE CONSERVATIVE LAND SOCIETY, 33, REGENT-STREET, WESTMINSTER.—Parties desirous of BUILD and LEASEHOLD INVESTMENTS, or of a few acres of land, may either pay up the rent in full, which includes cost of conveyance and every charge, or pay four of the annual rents in advance, and after paying down a deposit on the purchase-money. Full particulars may be had at the Office, where plans and conveyances of several of the Estates, Farms, and Detached Building Lands, will be ready for inspection.

Applications to be made to the Secretary, HENRY PARKINSON, Esq., at the Office, 33, Regent-street, Westminster.

Office, No. 33, Regent-street, Strand, London, W.C.

Investors may be Shareholders, Depositors, or Landowners at their own option by taking up shares of land and building accordingly.

FIRE INSURANCE—REDUCTION OF DUTY.

ALBERT INSURANCE FIRE and MARINE COMPANY, 3, Waterloo-place, Pall-mall, London.—Notice is hereby given that from and after the 5th day of July, 1861, the Premiums charged will be estimated by the individual risk, and the utmost liberality will be maintained in every transaction. Prospectuses and every information may be had at the Company's Office.

For prospectus and every information apply at the Offices, 3, Waterloo-place, Pall-mall, London, or to the Agents throughout the Kingdom of any of the Agents of the Albert Life Assurance Company.

MORELL THEOBALD, Secretary.

MALVERN PROPRIETARY COLLEGE COMPANY (LIMITED).

President and Visitor—The Right Honourable and LORD BISHOP of WORCESTER.

Head Master—The Rev. ARTHUR FABER, M.A., Fellow and late Tutor of Trinity College, Oxford.

The General Course of Education at this College is that required for the examination of Pupils on WEDNESDAY, JAN. 29, 1862, for Direct Commissions in the Army.

The Classical Department of the College will be under the management of the Head Master, from whom information regarding it can only be had by addressing him at the College, Malvern.

Applications for Shares to be made to the Secretary, HENRY WILLIAMS, Esq., Malvern, from whom the Articles of Association may be had.

Malvern, June 12, 1861.

NAVAL CADETS, &c.—EASTMAN'S ROYAL NAVAL COLLEGE, Portsmouth.—Admiral EASTMAN, R.N., Commander-in-Chief, has received 14 Cadetships, 10 Midshipmanships, and 64 Candidates; and 64 Gift, of 10 Candidates; also all Captains Examinations of 17 Candidates. A Special Class for preparing Gentlemen for the Lieutenants' Examination. For every information apply to the Secretary, at the College.

SMART'S SOLE WRITING INSTITUTION, 337, corner of Oxford-street, Quadrant, Regent-street, London.—The 6th Mille Gaily. Persons of all ages can learn rapid, systematic, and elegant writing in a few lessons, personally or by post. Specimens sent gratis. Also the Author's Guide to Writing, 1s. Improved Pens, 1s. per dozen. Separate rooms for ladies, to which department Mr. Smart alone has access. Mr. Smart's system of penmanship, 1s. 6d., apply to Mr. Smart, as above.

Mr. Smart's Pens are the best in existence Company.

NO. 7, BANK-BUILDINGS, corner of Old Jewry, London, is the Head Office of the ACCIDENTAL DEATH INSURANCE COMPANY. J. W. OLAM, Secretary.

HOUSE, near HYDE PARK, to be ENJOYED, to be LET, Furnished, Unfurnished or Lease and Sub-Underlease. The bedrooms, suite reception-rooms, &c., are replete with every modern luxury. Apply, 3, Connaught-terrace.

APPRENTICE.—A VACANCY has just occurred in a PUBLISHING FIRM for a Youth of good address and education. Apply, by letter, to Messrs. Longman and Co., Paternoster-row.

NEW BOOKS.

THE NEW AND POPULAR NOVELS.

NOT DEAD YET. By J. C. JEAFFERSON, Author of "Clara Vesey," "Carlingford," &c. 3 vols. post 8vo.

"A pleasant, healthy book. We have read it through with interest, and can recommend it to our readers."—Athenæum.

MARTYN RESOLVED. By the Author of "No Church," "Cousin Stella," &c. 3 vols.

ADVENTURES OF A MAN OF FAMILY. By Lord WILLIAM PITT LENNOX. 3 vols. post 8vo.

JOHN GRESWOLD. By the Author of "Paul Ferroll."

JANITA'S CROSS. By the Author of "St. Olave's."

BARBARA'S HISTORY. By AMELIA B. EDWARDS.

ALCANDORA'S CRIME. By G. J. WHYTE-MELVILLE. 2 vols. post 8vo. [Just ready.

HURST and BLACKETT, Publishers, 13, Great Marlborough-street.

Now ready, in 8vo, with Portrait of the Author,

REMINISCENCES OF THE OPERA. By BENJAMIN LUMLEY, 20 years Director of her Majesty's Theatre. HURST and BLACKETT, Publishers, 13, Great Marlborough-street.

At all Libraries in 3 vols,

TOO STRANGE NOT TO BE TRUE. By Lady GEORGIANA FULLERTON, Author of "Ladybird," &c. HURST and BLACKETT, Publishers, 13, Great Marlborough-street.

At all Libraries, in 2 vols, post 8vo,

BREAKERS AHEAD! A Novel.

RICHARD ASHE KING, Author of "Bonnie Kate."

This day is published, illustrated with Engravings on Wood, price 6s.

THE FREE BOOK:

A Pictorial Treatise on the culture of the Rose, compiling the experience of many Amateurs, and containing Practical Directions for the Selection, Arrangement, Pruning, and Training of Roses, and preparing for exhibition; and the management of roses in all Seasons. By EDWARD JESSE, Esq., F.R.S.

LONDON: GROOMBRIDGE and SONS, 5, Paternoster-row, London.

This week, 10s. post, crown 8vo, price 6s.

HOUSEHOLD POEMS.

BY HARRY JONES, M.A., Incumbent of St. Luke's, Berwick-street, Soho, formerly Student of Christ Church, Oxford.

Fifth Edition, enlarged, price 1s. post-free, 1s 2d.

HINTS on the MANAGEMENT of HAIR and on ORNAMENTING IN GOLD AND METALS. By HENRY C. HUCKINS, Author of "Hints on Dressing the Head."

Second Edition, price 1s. 6d. post-free, 1s. 10d., illustrated with Diagrams, Portraits, and Plates, by the Author, LANDSCAPE PAINTING and SKETCHING from NATURE, in Water Colours, Oil, and Body Colour. By the late JAMES BARNES, M.A., Head Master of Henry VIII. Grammar School, Sheffield.

LONDON: GROOMBRIDGE and SONS, 5, Paternoster-row.

Third Edition, price 2s. 6d., with 37 Diagrams printed in Colours,

MIXED TINTS, with an ESSAY ON LIGHT and SHADE. By GEORGE FIELD.

London: J. BARNARD and SON, 336, Oxford-street.

UNIVERSAL CONCORDANCE, price £5 5s., SMITH, BECK, and SON,

65, Cheapside, London, E.C.

Catalogues sent in receipt of one postage-stamp.

DECALCOMANIE.—Instructions, 6d. Sheet of Transfers, 6d. Book of Transfers, containing 100 Sheets, 2s. 6d. Sheet of Transfers, Gold and Silver, 1s. STAINED WINDOWS (SAFRANED). Instructions, 6d. Case of Materials, 2s. 6d. Post-free.

WILLIAM BARNARD, 10, Cossmith-terrace, London, W.

LOUIS THALBERG'S LAYS OF CROQUET, with Twenty Illustrations. Second Edition. Twelfth Thousand. Price 1s. cloth gilt, 2s. 6d. "Croquet is a necessity."—Morning Herald. "Croquet is a necessity."—Morning Herald.

"Croquet is a necessity."—Morning Herald.

"Croquet is a necessity."—Morning Herald.

"

BRIGHTON AND BACK for 3s., EVERY SUNDAY and MONDAY, from London Bridge, Victoria, and Kensington, at 8.30 a.m.

HASTINGS AND BACK for 5s. 6d., EVERY SUNDAY, from London Bridge and Victoria, at 8.30 a.m. Three trains dail to Hastings, Eastbourne, Bognor, and Arundel.

FOR FAMILY ARMS—the LINCOLN'S-INN HERALDIC OFFICE, 25, High Holborn, Author and Engraver of Pedigrees and Quaternial Sheets, Search, 5s. 6d. or sta mps. The Pedigrees of Families, from Domesday Book to the present time, 5l. 5s. Plain Sketch, 2s. 6d.

LINCOLN'S-INN HERALDIC OFFICE.—The established office of authority in England for ascertaining arms. Plain Sketch, 2s. 6d. Search, 5s. Engraving, 5s. Painting, 5s. Heraldry, by the Author, 2s. 6d. Crests, Monograms, Livery Buttons, Dies, &c. Arms, Crests, and Mottoes, with Meaning, 5s. 6d.

FOR FAMILY ARMS and CRESTS, send to Gruning. No fee for search. Arms quartered and impaled. Plain Sketch, 1s. in Heraldic Colours, 5s. Family Pedigrees traced, with original grant of Arms, on vellum and warm granted, by T. CULLETON, Herald and Genealogist.

HERALDIC LIVERY.—The proper Colours to be used, &c., for Liveries, by what Barons and Knights Garrard is to be used, how the Carriage should be Painted, and the way Arms should be Emblazoned thereon. Fee, 1l. By T. CULLETON, 25, Cheshire-street, Lendon, W.C.

SEAL ENGRAVING.—Arms, Crests, and Monograms Engraved on Steel Dies, Wafers, and Seals. Arms found from Public Records. Arms, Crest, and Motto painted on Ring, 15s. Steel Seal, mounted, engraved with crest, 5s.—Clarence, 7, Strand, W.C. Steel Dies for Stamping Paper by appointment to the Queen, the Prince of Wales, the Princess of Wales, &c. Cranborne-street corner of St. Martin's-lane.

NO CHARGE FOR ENGRAVING DIES with Arms, Crest, Monogram, or Address on every Sheet of Paper or 5 reams of the very best PAPER and 500 ENVELOPES to match, all for 21s. Sample Sheet and Envelope, 2d. By T. CULLETON, Heraldic Artist and Engraver, 25, Cheshire-street, London, W.C.

A VISITING CARD-PLATE ENGRAVED, and 50 best Cards Printed, in one hour, 2s., wedding or dinner cards in proportion. Crests, 10s. Arms, 20s. Illustrated Price-Book Post-Free.—H. RODRIGUES, 42, Piccadilly, corner of St. James's-street.

CULLETON'S PLATES for PRINTING in LINEN prevent the ink spreading, and never weaken nor thicken even by 1,000 impressions. Set of Steel Dies, Crest, 7s. Post-free for stamps, with full directions.—T. Culleton, Seal Engraver, 25, Cheshire-street, corner of St. Martin's-lane, London.

PICTURE FRAMES! PICTURE FRAMES!

Best and Cheapest in London, Gilt, Rosewood, or Walnut, with the Paper framed in handsome Gilt Mouldings, from 1s. 6d., 2s. Drawings made, and 10, Hanover-street, Hanover-square.

THOMAS'S PATENT SEWING-MACHINES, for Private Family use, Manufactory, 143, Great Portland-street, Road, Brunl, Gather, Tuck, &c. Illustrated Catalogues and Samples of Work sent free by post on application. Agents wanted. Also, for Instructions, and Impressions, the Automaton Stitch.

HOWARD and SONS' EASY-CHAIRS and SOFAS.—The Public will find these Goods of the best possible quality, and in every variety of Style, at Manufacturers' Prices. Cabriolet-drawing and Dining-room Easy Chairs, Couches, Sofas, and Couches, best quality, made to any shape, on approval, at 7l. 10s. Spring-stuffed Mattresses, 2l. 10s. and 3l. Bedroom Chairs, Cabinet Furniture, &c. An Illustrated Priced Catalogue sent post-free.

FURNITURE CATALOGUE.—The CHEAPEST in the KINGDOM.—The most COMPLETE, RICHEST, and BEST in the ILLUSTRATED CATALOGUES ever published, and may be had upon application, free by post.—The General Furnishing and Upholstery Ironmongery Company, 393, Strand, W.C.

THE BURLINGTON FURNITURE GALLERIES, 76, Cornhill-street, W.

A. SEDLEY and CO., Upholsterers, have REMOVED to larger premises, as above, from 210, Regent-street, and invite the Nobility and Gentry to inspect their Stock, which is the largest and most complete in London.

THE BURLINGTON FURNITURE GALLERIES, 76, Cornhill-street, W.—First-class Furniture, Carpets, Decorations, Cabinets, &c. Manufactured expressly for the splendid collection of the above stores on view, at extremely moderate prices. Illustrated Catalogues sent free by post.—A. SEDLEY and CO., 76, Cornhill-street (late 210, Regent-street, as before).

SECONDHAND DRAWING-ROOM FURNITURE, of unusually good quality and condition, covered with Rich Brocatelle, comprising the prize drawing-room suite, in luxurious lounge, and pair of easy-chairs en suite; a splendid Cabinet Pianoforte, by Collard; Chimney Glasses, Pier Tables, and Pier and Table Ornaments; also a variety of Bedroom Furniture. ALL DELIBRATE PURCHASING COMPANY, 13, Blenn-street, Regent-street.

SILVER-FIR BED-ROOM FURNITURE, in beautifully Silky Wood, combining unusual strength with elegance of style. The SELBORNE FURNISHING COMPANY, 18, Rosoman-street, Clerkenwell, are manufacturing, and are now prepared to execute orders for, this Furniture, which is to be had in no other house in London. Illustrations and Prices on application to the Manager.

BATHS for all DOMESTIC PURPOSES. At an entirely new and complete stock. The best construction at the lowest prices. DEANE and SON PAMPHLET on BATHS and SHOWERS, with Engravings, Prices, and Plans of Rooms, sent free by post. Also, with prices of Hanging Baths, Hip, Plunging, and Foot Baths, and every description of Bath for family use. Shower Baths of improved construction. Hot and Cold Baths, with Pipes and Fittings complete. Estimates given for fitting up Bath-rooms. DEANE and SON, 46, King William-street, London-bridge. Established A.D. 1700.

WILLIAM S. BURTON, GENERAL FURNISHING IRONMONGER by appointment to H.M. the QUEEN, contains the whole of his Stock in Thirty Large Rooms, at moderate prices. It includes Cutlery, Nickel Silver and Plated Wares, Lamps, Baths, Bedding, Bedsteads, Fenders, Stoves, Kitchen Utensils, Tea Trays, Urns and Kettles, Clocks, Tools, Turnery, Iron, Brass, Copper, Wire Work, Bronzes, Table Glass, Glass Chandeliers, Gasoliers, Cabinet Furniture, &c., with lists of prices and plans of the immense premises at 39, Oxford-street; 1, 1a, 2, 3, 4, 5, Newman-street; 4, 5, and 6, Perry's-place, and 1, Argyle-street, W.

SLACKS' FENDERS and FIREIRONS. Every New Design always on Show. Bronzed Fenders, 5s. to 70s. Bronzed Fenders, 10s. to 70s. Polished Steel and Ormolu, 50s. to 70s. Fire-irons, 1s. 6d. to 70s. Chimney-pieces, 10s. 6d. to 70s. Improved Cheltenam, 6s. 6d. to 30s. Bathrooms, Stoves, and Kitchen Ranges. Coalscuttles, containing 100 Engravings and Prices gratis, or sent free by post. Orders per Post carefully executed.—Slack, 336, Strand, opposite Somerset House.

COVERS for FAMILY JARS, or Jars and Cases complete, for Preserves, Pickles, &c. Illustrations and Prices sent free by post. Manufactory, 4, Leadenhall-street, London. Warehouse, 41, Jermyn-street, St. James's.

PURE PICKLES, SAUCES, JAMS, &c., and Table Delicacies of the highest quality, pure and unadulterated, are sold by CROSSE and BLACKWELL, Purveyors to the Queen, 21, Soho-square, London. May be obtained from all Grocers and Oilmen.

CANDLES. Price 7d. per lb. PARAFFINE. Adopted by Her Majesty's Government for the Military Stations. 7d. and 8 PER LB. the original Manufacturers and holders of the 1862 Prize Medal, contain the purest explicit new apparatus inclusions. Sold by all Candle Dealers throughout the World, and Wholesale of the Kingdom. Wholesale and for exportation at the Works, Upper Mantel, London, S.; where also may be obtained their celebrated Self-Fitting Revolving Screw Candles.

FIELD'S CELEBRATED UNITED METTLED SOAP TABLETS, 4d. and 6d. each, for Toilet, Chambers and Grooms throughout the Kingdom; but the public should see that the name of FIELD is on each Tablet, as none are genuine without it. Also Field's Soft Soap, Sand, and Soda. Wholesale and for exportation at the Works, Upper Mantel, Lambeth, S., where also may be obtained their Prize-medal Paraffine Candles.

PATTERNS POST-FREE.

STRIPED SILKS—KING and CO. 4s. 6d. the Full Dress of 12 yards wide width. Address to King and Co., Regent-street, London.

PATTERNS POST-FREE.

CHECKED SILKS—KING and CO. are now selling at a large lot 4s. 6d. the Full Dress. Address to King and Co., Regent-street, London.

PATTERNS POST-FREE.

WATERPROOF FOULARDS.—KING and CO. are now selling at a large lot at £1 1s. the Full Dress. Address to King and Co., Regent-street, London.

PATTERNS POST-FREE.

MOIRE ANTIQUES.—KING and CO. are now selling at a large lot at £2 7s. 6d. the Full Dress. Address to King and Co., Regent-street, London.

PATTERNS POST-FREE.

BLACK SILKS.—KING and CO. are now selling at a large lot at 1s. 6d., 1s. 9d., and 2s. per yard, 12 yards, wide width. Address to King and Co., Regent-street, London.

PATTERNS POST-FREE.

BLACK BROCHÉ SILKS.—KING and CO. are now selling at a large lot at £1 5s. 6d. the Full Dress. Address to King and Co., Regent-street, London.

PATTERNS POST-FREE.

BLACK DRAP DE LYON.—KING and CO. are now selling at a large lot at 2s. 6d. per yard. Address to King and Co., Regent-street, London.

PATTERNS POST-FREE.

BLACK MOIRE ANTIQUES.—KING and CO. are now selling at a large lot at £2 7s. 6d. the Full Dress. Address to King and Co., Regent-street, London.

PATTERNS POST-FREE.

FRENCH MUSLINS.—KING and CO. are now selling at a large lot at 1s. 6d. to 12s. 6d. the Full Dress. Address to King and Co., Regent-street, London.

PATTERNS POST-FREE.

GRENADINE BAREGES.—KING and CO. are now selling at a large lot at 1s. 6d. the Full Dress. Address to King and Co., Regent-street, London.

LACE SHAWLS.—KING and CO. are now selling at a large lot at from 10s. 6d. to £3 3s. each. Address to King and Co., Regent-street, London.

SPECIAL PURCHASES for JUNE.—Novel Specialités in Fashionable Dress Fabrics. Rich Black Faces of New Muslins, Glace-cloths, &c. Write for the Album of Patterns, post-free.

MOTT and COMPANY, 74, Westbourne-terrace (late Arnott and Middleton), 61 to 65, Conduit-street, Bayswater.

NEW SILKS FOR JUNE. Patterns post-free. Rich Black Glacé Silks, 1l. 5s. 6d. the Dress. Rich Fancy Check and Striped Silks, 1l. 5s. 6d. the Dress. Rich Black Drap de Lyon, 1l. 5s. 6d. the Dress. The New Mixed Poult de Soie, 1l. 10s. 6d. the Dress. Rich Armure Checked Silks, 1l. 10s. 6d. the Dress. Magnificent Corded Silks, 1l. 10s. 6d. the Dress. The New Cord Imperial, 1l. 15s. 6d. the Dress. The Rich Glacé Imperial, 2l. 2s. the Dress. The New Mixed Poult de Soie de Londres, 2l. 2s. the Dress. Rich Chalky, Broadcloth, Diagonals, and other Rich Fancy Silks, 2l. 2s. the Dress. Rich Black Glacé Silks, 2l. 2s. the Dress. Special, 1000 yards of the richest Black Glacé Silks, in the new colours, usually charged 4 guineas, are all marked ALEXANDRE and CO., 245, Regent-street, W.

JAMES LOCKE and CO.'S SPRING and SUMMER NOVELTIES.

Ladies will find the above Establishment the most assortment of all the newest Fabrics for the present season, including Rich Black Glacé Poplins, and Summer Striplings. The Cloak and Shawl Departments are replete with every novelty in Mantles, Jackets, and Shawls with some elegant specialities, designed and manufactured expressly for JAMES LOCKE and CO., 154, Regent-street.

WATERPROOF CLOAKS. Walking and Travelling Jackets, Sporting Dress, Wine Vessels and Liberal Warranty for Quality.—Mackintosh Warehouse, 37, Piccadilly. Patterns forwarded free. Price List free. Established 1823.

By appointment to H.M. the Queen and H.I.H. the Princess of Wales. WATERPROOF CLOAKS.

SILKS, ORGANDIE MUSLINS, DRESS GOODS.

GRANT and GASK are exhibiting an immense collection of new Fabrics for the present season, including Rich Black Glacé Silks, at 1l. 5s. the Dress. Organdie Muslins, in every variety of design and colour, at 5s. 6d. the Dress. They are invariably very cheap this evening of the year, and are now selling a Rich Black Glacé Silk, of the first quality manufactured, thereby avoiding the extravagance of being required with a dress not nearly sufficient to enable fashionable dress. The Rich Black Glacé Silks, manufactured by Messrs. Grant and Gask, are far exceeded by any other house, and the fact has an established reputation of forty-five years.—MARVEY and CO., Lambeth House, Westminster-bridge-road, S.E.

BONNETS.—MARKS and GAVELL have received a large consignment of Bonnets in every material. Wedding Orders executed. No shop. Showrooms, First Floor, 51, Regent-street (four doors from Swan and Edgar's).

A PURCHASE OF 20,750 METRES OF FRENCH MERINOES, CHALLIES, &c.

Lot 1.—1000 ... Rich Black Glacé Silks, 2ls. 6d.
Lot 2.—1000 ... ... ditto, ditto, 25s. 6d.
Lot 3.—1000 ... ... ditto Brocatelle, all silk, 25s. 6d.

The above new all silk season's manufactures, are patterns, Continuation, and will be found the most extraordinary value ever offered to the public. Patterns for Paris model in the Show and Order rooms. A large assortment of patterns sent and may be returned free.

PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 108, Oxford-street, W.

NEW FOULARDS. Rich Black, Checked and Striped, from 2s. 6d. the Full Dress. Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

CHECKED SILKS, at £1 15s. 6d., £1 19s. 6d., and £1 19s. 6d., Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

A MANUFACTURER'S STOCK of Striped, Checked, and Brocatel Silks, at Half-price. Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

GROS GRAINS—KING and CO. are now selling at a large lot 4s. 6d. the Full Dress. Address to King and Co., Regent-street, London.

PATTERNS POST-FREE.

MOIRE ANTIQUES.—KING and CO. are now selling at a large lot £2 7s. 6d. the Full Dress. Address to King and Co., Regent-street, London.

PATTERNS POST-FREE.

BLACK SILKS.—KING and CO. are now selling at a large lot at 1s. 6d., 1s. 9d., and 2s. per yard, 12 yards, wide width. Address to King and Co., Regent-street, London.

PATTERNS POST-FREE.

BLACK BROCHÉ SILKS.—KING and CO. are now selling at a large lot at £1 5s. 6d. the Full Dress. Address to King and Co., Regent-street, London.

PATTERNS POST-FREE.

BLACK DRAP DE LYON.—KING and CO. are now selling at a large lot at 2s. 6d. per yard. Address to King and Co., Regent-street, London.

PATTERNS POST-FREE.

BLACK MOIRE ANTIQUES.—KING and CO. are now selling at a large lot at £2 7s. 6d. the Full Dress. Address to King and Co., Regent-street, London.

PATTERNS POST-FREE.

FRENCH MUSLINS.—KING and CO. are now selling at a large lot at 1s. 6d. to 12s. 6d. the Full Dress. Address to King and Co., Regent-street, London.

PATTERNS POST-FREE.

GRENADINE BAREGES.—KING and CO. are now selling at a large lot at 1s. 6d. the Full Dress. Address to King and Co., Regent-street, London.

LACE SHAWLS.—KING and CO. are now selling at a large lot at from 10s. 6d. to £3 3s. each. Address to King and Co., Regent-street, London.

SPECIAL PURCHASES for JUNE.—Novel Specialités in Fashionable Dress Fabrics. Rich Black Faces of New Muslins, Glace-cloths, &c. Write for the Album of Patterns, post-free.

MOTT and COMPANY, 74, Westbourne-terrace (late Arnott and Middleton), 61 to 65, Conduit-street, Bayswater.

NEW SILKS FOR JUNE. Patterns post-free. Rich Black Glacé Silks, 1l. 5s. 6d. the Dress. Rich Fancy Check and Striped Silks, 1l. 5s. 6d. the Dress. Rich Black Drap de Lyon, 1l. 5s. 6d. the Dress. The New Mixed Poult de Soie, 1l. 10s. 6d. the Dress. Rich Armure Checked Silks, 1l. 10s. 6d. the Dress. Magnificent Corded Silks, 1l. 10s. 6d. the Dress. The New Cord Imperial, 1l. 15s. 6d. the Dress. The Rich Glacé Imperial, 2l. 2s. the Dress. The New Mixed Poult de Soie de Londres, 2l. 2s. the Dress. Rich Chalky, Broadcloth, Diagonals, and other Rich Fancy Silks, 2l. 2s. the Dress. Rich Black Glacé Silks, 2l. 2s. the Dress. Special, 1000 yards of the richest Black Glacé Silks, in the new colours, usually charged 4 guineas, are all marked 1l. 5s. 6d. the Dress. ALEXANDRE and CO., 245, Regent-street, W.

JUNE FASHIONS in MANTLES and DRAWN for the QUEEN.—The NEW and ROTUNDE SURCOAT in Black and White. This elegant Mantle is composed of rich Glacé Silk, trimmed with Black and White Lace and Steel Passementerie, and lined throughout with Silk. The Black and White Lace Sleeve, from 42s. to 3l. guineas. Dust Cloaks, in a variety of Tweeds, Checks, and Colours, from 21s. to 3l. guineas. Waterproof and other fabrics for Summer wear, especially trimmed, from 42s. to 5l. guineas. Rich Black Glacé Silk Mantles, richly trimmed with lace and fringes, lined throughout with silk, from 3l. guineas. Fringes, Tassels, French, Paisley, and Norwich Shawls in all the new patterns. PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 108, Oxford-street, W.

JAMES LOCKE and CO.'S SPRING and SUMMER NOVELTIES.

Ladies will find the above Establishment the most assortment of all the newest Fabrics for the present season, including Rich Black Glacé Poplins, and Summer Striplings. The Cloak and Shawl Departments are replete with every novelty in Mantles, Jackets, and Shawls with some elegant specialities, designed and manufactured expressly for JAMES LOCKE and CO., 154, Regent-street.

WATERPROOF CLOAKS. Walking and Travelling Jackets, Sporting Dress, Wine Vessels and Liberal Warranty for Quality.—Mackintosh Warehouse, 37, Piccadilly. Patterns forwarded free. Price List free. Established 1823.

By appointment to H.M. the Queen and H.I.H. the Princess of Wales. WATERPROOF CLOAKS.

SILKS, ORGANDIE MUSLINS, DRESS GOODS.

GRANT and GASK are exhibiting an immense collection of new Fabrics for the present season, including Rich Black Glacé Silks, at 1l. 5s. the Dress. Organdie Muslins, in every variety of design and colour, at 5s. 6d. the Dress. They are invariably very cheap this evening of the year, and are now selling a Rich Black Glacé Silk, of the first quality manufactured, thereby avoiding the extravagance of being required with a dress not nearly sufficient to enable fashionable dress. The Rich Black Glacé Silks, manufactured by Messrs. Grant and Gask, are far exceeded by any other house, and the fact has an established reputation of forty-five years.—MARVEY and CO., Lambeth House, Westminster-bridge-road, S.E.

BONNETS.—MARKS and GAVELL have received a large consignment of Bonnets in every material. Wedding Orders executed. No shop. Showrooms, First Floor, 51, Regent-street (four doors from Swan and Edgar's).

SILKS! SILKS! SILKS!
ANOTHER DELIVERY of NEW SPRING SILKS,
Commencing at 1l. 5s. the Dress.
Several very cheap lots, worthy especial attention.
Wide-width BLACK FIGURED SILKS,
Commencing at 1l. 5s. the Dress.
Wide-width STRIPED and CHECKED in newest shades, 3s. 11½d.
3s. 6d., 3s. 11d., and upwards per yard.
Wide-width plain WEAVED in the new shades, from 2s. 6d.
per yard.
Wide-width FIGURED GLACÉS (very bright), in the New Colours
for Dress and Mantle, 2s. 6d. per yard, worth 3s. 6d.
MILLINERY SILKS in the Newest Colours, SATINS, THEIRY
GLACÉS, and GROS GRAINS.
Old Silks Dyed or Altered to Fashion.
Patterns post-free.
JAMES SPENCE and CO. (Limited), 247, Regent-street Milliners, &c.,
and 248, Regent-circus, Oxford-street.

SCOTT ADIE, by Special Appointment to her Majesty and H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, has on view the largest choice of Clothing ever collected, suitable to the most fashionable and useful shapes, suited for all seasons and climates, and adapted for every variety of exercise. Also the Scott Adie Irish Frieze, the most useful Rifle in the whole trade in order.—10, Regent-street (exclusive, corner of Vigo-street).

LADIES' WATERPROOF TWEED CLOAKS and JACKETS, of Scotch Cheviot, Saxony, and Angola Cloths. Patterns of materials and price sent post-free. Scott Adie, 10, Regent-street (exclusive, corner of Vigo-street).

WINDOW CURTAINS and PORTIÈRES. The nobility and gentry are invited to view a superb assortment of rich reveilles for the above, consisting of new Brocatelles, Silk Damasks, Velvets, and Tapestries, in the most elegant designs and colours, manufactured at the looms of G. BLACK, 313, Oxford-street, W. Patterns forwarded.

SANSPLECTUM CRINOLINES, Nos. 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11, 12, PRICE 2s. 6d. "Most admirably made."—Court Journal. "Perfection."—Queen.

CRINOLINE IN OUR PARKS AND PROMENADES.—Observe the graceful and elegant form modern inquiries have to meet, lowing,ness, and an elegance of form, which is only to be obtained in the Sanspareil Short Crinoline.

"Must be interesting to all our fair readers."—Dover Express.
"It is worth its weight in gold."—Court Circular.
"More express ive and pleasing."—Coventry Standard.
"The most graceful and becoming shape."—Court Journal.
"The best and most useful form ever brought before the public."
"The portals are well represented."—Bright Herald.
Sanspareil Corsets, 10s. 6d., 12s. 6d., 15s. 6d., 21s., Jupons, Oullins, and Crinoline Dresses graduated to measure.
H. PHILLIPPE, 37, Foundling.

SHIRTS.—FORD'S EUREKA SHIRTS, for Gentlemen to wear in spring and summer. The perfect-fitting shirt made.—Observe, the very superior quality of the Linen, the Improved Wristbands, the Collars, and the Fronts.—Ford's Eureka Shirt Rooms, 41, Strand.

FORD'S EUREKA SHIRT.—Patterns of the new French Colored Shirting, for making Ford's Eureka Shirts, sent free by post on application.—41, Strand.

THE IRON AGE! STEEL COLLARS! PERFECT WHITENESS! PERFECT COMFORT! Sold by the Trade, Wholesale and Retail. Lists of Sizes and Prices. Manufactory, 5, Bow-churchyard, Cheapside, London, E.C.; and 16, Rosemary-lane, Tower-hill.

THE HANOVIAN BOOTS. 214, King William-street, City. Messrs. Bridges, of this address, have the honour to announce that they have, with special advantages of its own—a facility and softness equal to a walking shoe—the Hanovian Boot.
Peruvian Dogs, Leggings, &c.

BY APPOINTMENT TO THEIR ROYAL HIGHNESSES THE PRINCE AND PRINCESS OF WALES.

WOOD and SON respectfully beg to solicit an inspection of their large assortment of SILKS, SATINS, and VELVETS, suitable for existing Fashions in Ladies' Hats and Bonnets.
16, Regent-street; | 94, Piccadilly;
and 1, Princes-street, Hanover-square.

HAIR JEWELLERY.—ARTIST IN HAIR. DEWDNEY beautifully mixes and mounts in the gold Hair Jewellery, Bracelets, Lockets, Rings, Brooches, &c., and has taken its name and style of Artist in Hair from the extensive and elegant display of specimens handsomely mounted kept for inspection. A splendid Assortment of Gold Lockets, Bracelets, Brooches, Studs, and Pins.—Dewdney, London-street, Fenchurch-street.

A. FORBER, HAIR JEWELLER to the QUEEN 2, Hanover-street, Hanover-square.

JENNER and KNEWSTUB, to the Queen, Manufacturers of Ecclesiastical Vestments, Church Plate, Brasses, Decorations, &c., 33, St. James's-street, S.W. Designs and Estimates for Memorial Brasses, Monumental Crosses, Communion Plate, Altar Cloths, Cassocks, Surplices, Stoles, Hoods, Scarves, Girdles, Tippets, Clerical Hats, Shirts, Collars, Bands, Cuffs, Gloves, Boots, Shoes, Clerical Cloaks, Overcoats, Trousers, Waistcoats, Clerical Jewellery, &c., with lists of prices and plans of the newly-arranged premises, 33, St. James's-street, S.W. (3 doors from Piccadilly).

THE SUMMER SUN and DUST.—Ladies are cautioned against using Spurious Imitations of ROWLANDS' KALYDOR, which, while it instantly relieves and refreshes in the face and skin, allaying all heat and irritation, and rendering it soft, fair, and blooming, produces on the neck, arms, and hands the most delicate purity and beauty of complexion. Sold at 20, Hatton-garden; and by Chemists and Perfumers. Ask for ROWLANDS' KALYDOR, 20, Hatton-garden, and avoid pernicious compounds.

THE Romans made LASTING PERFUMES, as does NAPOLEON FRÈRE. Prevents Hair, Moss Rose, Tuberose, Jasmine, Lime Blossom, Bouquet, Frangipanni, Violet, Musk, Rose, Ess. 1s. per bottle.

CHEMICAL COLLIES, for beautifying and improving the complexion, and effectually removing freckles, tan, sunburn, &c. Sold by all Chemists and Perfumers, at 1s. 6d. and 2s. 6d. per bottle.

THE Romans made LASTING PERFUMES, as does NAPOLEON FRÈRE. Prevents Hair, Moss Rose, Tuberose, Jasmine, Lime Blossom, Bouquet, Frangipanni, Violet, Musk, Rose, Ess. 1s. per bottle.

CHEMICAL COLLIES, for beautifying and improving the complexion, and effectually removing freckles, tan, sunburn, &c. Sold by all Chemists and Perfumers, at 1s. 6d. and 2s. 6d. per bottle.

THE CAP OF LILIES, for beautifying and improving the complexion, and effectually removing freckles, tan, sunburn, &c. Sold by all Chemists and Perfumers, at 1s. 6d. and 2s. 6d. per bottle.

THE Romans made LASTING PERFUMES, as does NAPOLEON FRÈRE. Prevents Hair, Moss Rose, Tuberose, Jasmine, Lime Blossom, Bouquet, Frangipanni, Violet, Musk, Rose, Ess. 1s. per bottle.

CHEMICAL COLLIES, for beautifying and improving the complexion, and effectually removing freckles, tan, sunburn, &c. Sold by all Chemists and Perfumers, at 1s. 6d. and 2s. 6d. per bottle.

THE CAP OF LILIES, for beautifying and improving the complexion, and effectually removing freckles, tan, sunburn, &c. Sold by all Chemists and Perfumers, at 1s. 6d. and 2s. 6d. per bottle.

SCOTT ADIE, by Special Appointment to her Majesty and H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, has on view the largest choice of Clothing ever collected, suitable to the most fashionable and useful shapes, suited for all seasons and climates, and adapted for every variety of exercise. Also the Scott Adie Irish Frieze, the most useful Rifle in the whole trade in order.—10, Regent-street (exclusive, corner of Vigo-street).

LADIES' WATERPROOF TWEED CLOAKS and JACKETS, of Scotch Cheviot, Saxony, and Angola Cloths. Patterns of materials and price sent post-free. Scott Adie, 10, Regent-street (exclusive, corner of Vigo-street).

WINDOW CURTAINS and PORTIÈRES. The nobility and gentry are invited to view a superb assortment of rich reveilles for the above, consisting of new Brocatelles, Silk Damasks, Velvets, and Tapestries, in the most elegant designs and colours, manufactured at the looms of G. BLACK, 313, Oxford-street, W. Patterns forwarded.

SANSPLECTUM CRINOLINES, Nos. 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11, 12, PRICE 2s. 6d. "Most admirably made."—Court Journal. "Perfection."—Queen.

CRINOLINE IN OUR PARKS AND PROMENADES.—Observe the graceful and elegant form modern inquiries have to meet, lowingness, and an elegance of form, which is only to be obtained in the Sanspareil Short Crinoline.

"Must be interesting to all our fair readers."—Dover Express.
"It is worth its weight in gold."—Court Circular.
"More express ive and pleasing."—Coventry Standard.
"The most graceful and becoming shape."—Court Journal.
"The best and most useful form ever brought before the public."
"The portals are well represented."—Bright Herald.
Sanspareil Corsets, 10s. 6d., 12s. 6d., 15s. 6d., 21s., Jupons, Oullins, and Crinoline Dresses graduated to measure.
H. PHILLIPPE, 37, Foundling.

SHIRTS.—FORD'S EUREKA SHIRTS, for Gentlemen to wear in spring and summer. The perfect-fitting shirt made.—Observe, the very superior quality of the Linen, the Improved Wristbands, the Collars, and the Fronts.—Ford's Eureka Shirt Rooms, 41, Strand.

FORD'S EUREKA SHIRT.—Patterns of the new French Colored Shirting, for making Ford's Eureka Shirts, sent free by post on application.—41, Strand.

THE IRON AGE! STEEL COLLARS! PERFECT WHITENESS! PERFECT COMFORT! Sold by the Trade, Wholesale and Retail. Lists of Sizes and Prices. Manufactory, 5, Bow-churchyard, Cheapside, London, E.C.; and 16, Rosemary-lane, Tower-hill.

THE HANOVIAN BOOTS. 214, King William-street, City. Messrs. Bridges, of this address, have the honour to announce that they have, with special advantages of its own—a facility and softness equal to a walking shoe—the Hanovian Boot.
Peruvian Dogs, Leggings, &c.

BY APPOINTMENT TO THEIR ROYAL HIGHNESSES THE PRINCE AND PRINCESS OF WALES.

WOOD and SON respectfully beg to solicit an inspection of their large assortment of SILKS, SATINS, and VELVETS, suitable for existing Fashions in Ladies' Hats and Bonnets.
16, Regent-street; | 94, Piccadilly;
and 1, Princes-street, Hanover-square.

HAIR JEWELLERY.—ARTIST IN HAIR. DEWDNEY beautifully mixes and mounts in the gold Hair Jewellery, Bracelets, Lockets, Rings, Brooches, &c., and has taken its name and style of Artist in Hair from the extensive and elegant display of specimens handsomely mounted kept for inspection. A splendid Assortment of Gold Lockets, Bracelets, Brooches, Studs, and Pins.—Dewdney, London-street, Fenchurch-street.

A. FORBER, HAIR JEWELLER to the QUEEN 2, Hanover-street, Hanover-square.

JENNER and KNEWSTUB, to the Queen, Manufacturers of Ecclesiastical Vestments, Church Plate, Brasses, Decorations, &c., 33, St. James's-street, S.W. Designs and Estimates for Memorial Brasses, Monumental Crosses, Communion Plate, Altar Cloths, Cassocks, Surplices, Stoles, Hoods, Scarves, Girdles, Tippets, Clerical Hats, Shirts, Collars, Bands, Cuffs, Gloves, Boots, Shoes, Clerical Cloaks, Overcoats, Trousers, Waistcoats, Clerical Jewellery, &c., with lists of prices and plans of the newly-arranged premises, 33, St. James's-street, S.W. (3 doors from Piccadilly).

THE SUMMER SUN and DUST.—Ladies are cautioned against using Spurious Imitations of ROWLANDS' KALYDOR, which, while it instantly relieves and refreshes in the face and skin, allaying all heat and irritation, and rendering it soft, fair, and blooming, produces on the neck, arms, and hands the most delicate purity and beauty of complexion. Sold at 20, Hatton-garden; and by Chemists and Perfumers. Ask for ROWLANDS' KALYDOR, 20, Hatton-garden, and avoid pernicious compounds.

THE Romans made LASTING PERFUMES, as does NAPOLEON FRÈRE. Prevents Hair, Moss Rose, Tuberose, Jasmine, Lime Blossom, Bouquet, Frangipanni, Violet, Musk, Rose, Ess. 1s. per bottle.

CHEMICAL COLLIES, for beautifying and improving the complexion, and effectually removing freckles, tan, sunburn, &c. Sold by all Chemists and Perfumers, at 1s. 6d. and 2s. 6d. per bottle.

THE CAP OF LILIES, for beautifying and improving the complexion, and effectually removing freckles, tan, sunburn, &c. Sold by all Chemists and Perfumers, at 1s. 6d. and 2s. 6d. per bottle.

THE Romans made LASTING PERFUMES, as does NAPOLEON FRÈRE. Prevents Hair, Moss Rose, Tuberose, Jasmine, Lime Blossom, Bouquet, Frangipanni, Violet, Musk, Rose, Ess. 1s. per bottle.

CHEMICAL COLLIES, for beautifying and improving the complexion, and effectually removing freckles, tan, sunburn, &c. Sold by all Chemists and Perfumers, at 1s. 6d. and 2s. 6d. per bottle.

THE CAP OF LILIES, for beautifying and improving the complexion, and effectually removing freckles, tan, sunburn, &c. Sold by all Chemists and Perfumers, at 1s. 6d. and 2s. 6d. per bottle.

THE TEETH and PAINLESS DENTISTRY.—Messrs. LEWIN, MOSELY, and SONS, 30, Berners-street, Oxford-street, W., continue to supply Artificial Teeth on Mineral Setting. Established 1828. Three Teeth are cheaper, more durable, and more natural than two. Fee for consultation, 2s. 6d. Pamphlet, "Advice to Purchasers," gratis, or by post for stamp.
* * No connexion with any one of the same name.

DR. DE JONGH'S LIGHT-BROWN COD-LIVER OIL, CONSUMPTION, CHRONIC COUGHS, INFANTILE DISEASES, AND GENERAL DEBILITY.
Pronounced by the Profession and Analytical authorities to be THE PUREST, MOST EFFICACIOUS, AND invariably pure, uniformly excellent.
Half-pints, 2s. 6d.; Pints, 4s. 9d.; Quarts, 9d.
Sold only in capsuled Bottles, with Dr. de Jongh's Stamp and Signature, by all Chemists. Pints, 4s. 6d.; Quarts, 8s.; by respectable Chemists everywhere.
Sole Consignees, ANSAR, HARFORD, and CO., 77, STRAND, LONDON, W.C.

YOUNG LADIES' CORK INSTEPS, in best YOUNG'S ARTICULATED BUSKIN PLASTER, in two sizes. Sent by post 14 stamps.
11, Shaftesbury-place, City.

LEET-OFF CLOTHES.—Uniforms, Livery, Miscellaneous Property, &c., of every description purchased most accurately, by Mr. and Mrs. D. DAVIS, 66, Mary-le-bone-lane, Oxford-street, W. Ladies and Gentlemen waited upon. Parcels from the country remitted for immediately on receipt.

TO MOTHERS AND INVALIDS.—ELAN'S PATENT INDIA-RUBBER SYRINGES, for the nursery and sick room. Directions for self-management by post free.—99, Upper Holborn. Elan's Improved Enemas, from 5s. 6d. each.

SILKS! SILKS! SILKS!
ANOTHER DELIVERY of NEW SPRING SILKS,
Commencing at 1l. 5s. the Dress.
Several very cheap lots, worthy especial attention.
Wide-width BLACK FIGURED SILKS,
Commencing at 1l. 5s. the Dress.
Wide-width STRIPED and CHECKED in newest shades, 3s. 11½d.
3s. 6d., 3s. 11d., and upwards per yard.
Wide-width plain WEAVED in the new shades, from 2s. 6d.
per yard.
Wide-width FIGURED GLACÉS (very bright), in the New Colours
for Dress and Mantle, 2s. 6d. per yard, worth 3s. 6d.
MILLINERY SILKS in the Newest Colours, SATINS, THEIRY
GLACÉS, and GROS GRAINS.
Old Silks Dyed or Altered to Fashion.
Patterns post-free.
JAMES SPENCE and CO. (Limited), 247, Regent-street Milliners, &c.,
and 248, Regent-circus, Oxford-street.

NEW MUSIC.

A THOUSAND LEAGUES AWAY. New Song. Written by W. C. BENNETT, composed by JOSEPH BARNBY. Price 3s. 6d. Finely illustrated.
The wind is blowing fresh, fair. The boat rocks there for me.
Sung by Miss Dolby at the Ballad Concerts.
For two long years, to think of you, dreaming of you night and day!
Sung for me across the sea, a thousand leagues away.
A thousand leagues away, dear Kate, a thousand leagues away.
While round his pole we toss and roll, a thousand leagues away."
CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

FAUST.—The following are the most popular arrangements for the Pianoforte from this admired Opera:—
Opera complete, with Italian and English words ... 3s. 0d.
Brod's Instructions of "Faust." Illustrated with Portraits of the six principal Artists ... 2s. 6d.
Galloway's Selection of Waltzes ... 4s. 0d.
Galloway's Selection of Dances. As performed in the Opera ... 3s. 0d.
Galloway's Quadrilles. Ditto ... 4s. 0d.
Wilhem's Album. Arr. in three books. Each ... 4s. 0d.
Wilhem's Soldiers' Chorus (Duet) ... 4s. 0d.
Wilhem's Waltz (Duet) ... 4s. 0d.
Briccial's Delightful Soldiers' Chorus ... 3s. 0d.
Briccial Brilliante Soldiers' Chorus (Duet) ... 4s. 0d.
Kuhe's Fantasia ... 4s. 0d.
Kuhe's Waltz ... 4s. 0d.
Kuhe's Le Portrait d'Amor (Flower Song) ... 3s. 0d.
Osborne's Fantasia ... 4s. 0d.
Osborne's Soirée Dansante ... 3s. 0d.
Osborne's Reminiscences of Balfe ... 4s. 0d.
Farmer's Fantasia ... 4s. 0d.
Leybach's Fantasia Elegante ... 4s. 0d.
Ascher's Reminiscences de Valse ... 4s. 0d.
Gury's Grand Fantasia ... 4s. 0d.
Coulon's Fac Simile ... 4s. 0d.
Coote's Celebrated Orchestral Waltz ... 4s. 0d.
Coote's Grand Procession ... 4s. 0d.
Gounod's Valse Brillante ... 3s. 0d.
Balmer's Fantasia ... 4s. 0d.
Godfrey's Grand Selection (as played by Julius's Band) ... 4s. 0d.
Ditto, Quadrilles ... 4s. 0d.
No. 1. The Soldiers' Chorus. | No. 2. Faust and Margaret.
3. The Kyrie Song. | 4. Soldiers' Chorus.
5. The Waltz. | 6. The Finale.
Complete in One Book ... 4s. 0d.
CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

KUHE'S TANNHAUSER. Just out, a New and Brilliant Fantasia for the Pianoforte on the favourite Airs from Wagner's Opera. Price 4s.
CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

TANNHAUSER. By WAGNER. All the Favourite Airs from this celebrated Opera, arranged for the Pianoforte, price 4s. each. Nos. 1 to 12 now ready.
CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

MRS. JOSEPH ROBINSON'S NEW COMPOSITIONS for the PIANOFORTE:—
THE SPRING MORNING Waltz ... Price 3s.
CONSTANCY. Mazurka. Dedicated to Miss Norman de Salis ... Price 3s.
CONSTANCY. Mazurka ... Price 3s.
STELLA. The Three Brilliants ... Price 3s.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

BENEDICT'S "WHERE THE BEE SUCKS," Solo and Duet, with Violoncello Obbligato, and Pianoforte Accompaniment. Price 4s. each. Violoncello Obbligato to each Number, Price 2s. 6d.—CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

M. BALFE'S NEW SONGS.
BALFE'S BALLAD MASCHERA. Just published, a charming Fantasia for the Pianoforte, on the favourite Song from "Les Vêpres." By K. Thalberg. Price 3s. 6d.
CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

THALBERG'S RIGOLETTO. Just published, a Fantasia for the Pianoforte, on favourite Airs from Verdi's popular Opera. By M. Thalberg. Price 4s.
CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

NEW DANCE MUSIC.
THE JOCKEY'S GALOP.—By A. F. GODFREY. Just published, a new set of Lancers, composed of all the popular and favourite Airs of the day. By GODFREY. Price 4s.
Orchestra, 1s.; Septet, 2s.
CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

THE HARUM-SCARUM GALOP. By JAMES CASSIDY (Composer of the Bordeaux Galop). Just published, price 3s. Illustrated by Brandard. Price 3s. Orchestra, 1s.; Septet, 2s.
CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

HELTER-SKELTER GALOP. Just out, the Latest Galop by CARL COWDEN (Composer of "Hurlingham Galop"). Originally Illustrated. Price 3s. Solo or Duet; Orchestra, 1s.; Septet, 2s.
CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

COOTE'S FAUST WALTZ, on Airs from Gounod's Opera. Beautifully Illustrated. Price, Solo or Duet, 4s.; Septet, 2s.; Full Orchestra, 1s.
CHAPPELL and CO. 50, New Bond-street.

COOTE'S FAUST QUADRILLE, on Favourite Airs from Gounod's Opera. Beautifully Illustrated. Price, Solo or Duet, 4s.; Septet, 2s.; Full Orchestra, 1s.
CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

COOTE'S FAUST GALOP, from Gounod's Opera. Beautifully Illustrated. Price, Solo or Duet, 3s.; Septet, 2s.; Full Orchestra, 1s.
CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

FAUST POLKA. By F. WALLENSTEIN. Just published. Beautifully Illustrated. Price, Solo or Duet, 3s.; Orchestra, 1s.
CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

FOUR ROMANCES by MENDELSSOHN. Transcribed for the violin and adapted to 12-line words by Egbert Whitaker. Price 3s. each. No. 1, Oh, for the wings of a dove! and No. 2, E pena troppo barbara; No. 3, Oh, quel tramonto di gioia! No. 4, Sei mein Herz, sei mein Leben.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

M. BLUMENTHAL'S NEW PIECES.
M. Blumenthal's LA MIGNON. Morceau. Price 3s. 6d.
Illustrated by BRANDARD. Price 3s. 6d.
Illustrated by PRESCOTT HEWITT. Price 3s. 6d.
CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

KUHE'S LEGGERO INVISIBILE. Just published, a Grand New Scherzo for the Pianoforte, on Verdi and Vogler's well-known arrangement for the Pianoforte. Price 4s.
CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

BRINLEY RICHARDS' "I WANDER IN SEARCH OF A TREASURE." The favourite song from Benedict's Opera, "The Lily of Killarney," sung by Miss Poole at the Ballad Concerts. Price 3s.
CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

H. W. GOODBAN'S "EMMELINE." Nocturne for the Pianoforte. Just published. Price 3s. 6d.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

H. W. GOODBAN'S BRIGAND'S DANCE. Hungarian tempo. For the Pianoforte. Just published. Price 3s. 6d.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

THE STIRRUP CUP, MR. SANTLEY'S NEW SONG, expressly composed for him by Signor Arditi, and expressly sung in new style by him, in the Opera in Rigoletto. Price 3s. 6d.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

NEW MUSIC.

KUHE'S SECOND FANTASIA on STRADELLA includes the celebrated Prayer and the beautiful Serenade. Price 4s.—BOOSEY and SONS, Holles-street.

MME. OURY'S STRADELLA. Fantasia on Prince's Opera. Just out. Price 3s.
BOOSEY and SONS, Holles-street.

FORBES' CAPRERA.—CHANSON NAPOLITAINE, for the Pianoforte. A most fascinating little piece, not difficult. Price 3s.—BOOSEY and SONS, Holles-street.

MISS HAWLEY'S IVANHOE. New and beautiful arrangement of "And Rebin Gray." By the Author of "Lilla," "Rosalie," &c.
BOOSEY and SONS, Holles-street.

KUHE'S LE PORTRAIT D'AMOR. SECRET. Charles's beautiful ballad, which Miss Sedgwick has rendered so popular, is published with the original words in his happiest manner. Price 3s.—BOOSEY and SONS, Holles-street.

LITTLE BIRD, LITTLE BIRD ON THE TREE. Sung by Miss Poole at the Ballad Concerts. Just published with the original Irish air.—BOOSEY and SONS, Holles-street.

BOOSEY'S MY LOVE! SHE'S BUT A LASSIE. New Song by WALTER CHARLES LEVEY. Price 3s. "Enchanting."—Morning Advertiser. "Full of charming melody."—Post. Price 3s. 6d.—BOOSEY and SONS, Holles-street.

SUSAN'S STORY. A New Ballad, by the Author of "Jessamine." Price 3s.
BOOSEY and SONS, Holles-street.

SIGNOR CAMPANA'S NEW DUET, "Gli amanti Trionfi"—a companion to and in the same style as "Tre mie Rivali." Price 4s.—BOOSEY and SONS, Holles-street.

BOOSEY'S PIANOFORTE OPERAS. Each Opera is in a complete form, printed from beautifully engraved plates, with Italian and English words, and a Pianoforte Accompaniment of the most simple and effective description by BRANDARD.

1. Somnambula	s. d.	11. Puritani	s. d.
2. Norma	5 0	12. Il Barbiere	5 0
3. Lucrezia Borgia	5 0	13. Don Pasquale	5 0
4. Lucrezia Borgia	5 0	14. Don Giovanni	5 0
5. Lucia di Lammermoor	5 0	15. Don Pasquale	5 0
6. Lucia di Lammermoor	5 0	16. Norma	5 0
7. Don Juan	5 0	17. Semiramide	5 0
8. Don Juan	5 0	18. Semiramide	5 0
9. Il Barbiere	5 0	19. Ernani	5 0
10. Il Trovatore	5 0	20. Trovatore	7 6
11. Il Trovatore	5 0	21. Les Vêpres Siciliennes (Verdi)	7 6

CANST THOU NOT READ THE MUTE WORDS? Sung by Miss Poole at the Ballad Concerts. Price 3s.
BOOSEY and SONS, Holles-street.

BOOSEY'S LIBRARY.—Two-Guinea Works for Two Shillings and Sixpence each. Each work is printed from the original plates, and contains a handsomely engraved Album of the scenes accurate of Music.—28, Holles-street.

NOTICE.—HALF PRICE.—All Music, and to the Profession, at CRAMER, BEALE, and WOOD'S, 201, Regent-street.

CZAR'S BALLAD MASCHERA. Price 3s. 6d. A bright and sparkling Morceau, by the Composer of the celebrated and popular "Czar Polka."
HOPWOOD and CRAW, 42, New Bond-street.

THE CZAR POLKA FOR THE ORGAN.
KUHE'S "SET THE CONQUERING HERO COMES" Price 4s. (Brilliant but not difficult).
HOPWOOD and CRAW, 42, New Bond-street.

THE BEST SET EVER COMPOSED.
COOTE'S NEW PERSIAN QUADRILLE. Price 4s. Introducing Clifton's celebrated song, "Isabella." "Waltzingers." "Have you seen the Ideal?" "Polly Perkins." &c.
HOPWOOD and CRAW, 42, New Bond-street.

EASY and BRILLIANT.
COOTE'S INFANT PRINCE VALSES. 4s. Impressive Illustrated.
HOPWOOD and CRAW, 42, New Bond-street.

SENSATION GALOP.
COOTE'S SANTA CLARA GALOP. Price 3s. Second Edition. Now ready.
HOPWOOD and CRAW, 42, New Bond-street.

THE BEST SET OF LANCERS ARE
COOTE'S CURE LANCERS. Price 4s. Illustrated by BRANDARD. Price 4s. Now ready in Septet, 2s.; Full Orchestra, 1s. Also ready in Septet, 2s.; Full Orchestra, 1s. A very many set. No dance programme complete without them. Introducing Clifton's celebrated song, "Isabella." "Waltzingers." &c.
HOPWOOD and CRAW, 42, New Bond-street.

COOTE'S KATE KEARNEY WALTZES, introducing, "Kathleen O'Moore," "Tommy's Farewell to Kathleen," and "Kate Kearney." Illustrated. Price 4s. Solo or Duet, 4s.—HOPWOOD and CRAW, 42, New Bond-street.

PLAYED AT THE STATE BALL.
COOTE'S HUMMING BIRD VALSE. 4s. Illustrated by BRANDARD. Price 4s. Introducing Clifton's celebrated song, "Isabella." "Waltzingers."
HOPWOOD and CRAW, 42, New Bond-street.

UPROAR GUARANTEED. COOLEY'S NEW SONG.
A NORRIBLE TALE; or, The Suicidal Family. Price 3s. Encored five times nightly in "The Area Belle." Illustrated. Price 3s.

NEW CHARITY SONG. 3s. 6d.
OH! WORK! WORK! WORK! A BIRD, That I might fly to thee.
HOPWOOD and CRAW, 42, New Bond-street.

SONG OF THE DAY.
POLLY PERKINS By HARRY CLIFTON. Price 3s.
HOPWOOD and CRAW, 42, New Bond-street.

SIGHING FOR THEE, by F. BUCKLEY. Price 3s.
HOPWOOD and CRAW, 42, New Bond-street.

THE MAIDEN'S PRAYER. Beautifully Illustrated. Price 3s.
HOPWOOD and CRAW, 42, New Bond-street.

THE NIGHTINGALE AND BUTTERFLIES. Ballad. Words by Longfellow; Music by C. M. G. OLIVER. Price 3s.
HOPWOOD and CRAW, 42, New Bond-street.

OH! BLOW ME A KISS ON THE WIND. Price 3s. 6d. This Composer's best effusion.
HOPWOOD and CRAW, 42, New Bond-street.

ITALIAN OPERAS.—Boxes and Stalls in the Grand Tier of the Italian Opera, Covent-garden, for the first and season. Tickets for "THE BEACON," BY J. ABSOLON, IN THE EXHIBITION OF THE INSTITUTE OF PAINTERS IN WATER COLOURS.

SEE NEXT PAGE.

"GRAPE GATHERING NEAR NAPLES," BY A. DE CURZON, IN THE EXHIBITION OF FINE ARTS AT PARIS.
SEE NEXT PAGE.

THE PARIS SALON OF 1864.

THE new annual Exhibition of Fine Arts in the Palace of Industry opened, as usual, on the 1st of May, and offered for the appreciation of the public nearly 4000 productions in the different categories into which the exhibition is divided—viz., Painting, Drawing, Sculpture, Engraving, Lithography, and Architectural Design. As a whole, it is but justice to observe that the present display of French talent is far below what might have been expected from the experience of previous years; but, perhaps, the "remarkable modernity" which characterises it should be partly attributed to the absence of contributions by Flandrin, Ingres, Rosa Bonheur, and others, whose good names met with of late years in the Explication des Ouvrages des Artistes Vivants. The number of pictures which the Jury have introduced each year would replace the talent which death or other causes abstract from the ranks of art; but this plan of filling up a void is, in their view, and would rather serve to prove that works of genius are becoming more and more rare, and that the realms of poesy and imagination are more completely exhausted. The Jury, nevertheless, now intent only on the production of works that find a ready sale with purchasers, has become more lenient. This, of course, will also explain the presence of the great number of nudities in the galleries of the Exhibition, which have given rise to many a nauseous, without having the peculiar merit of classical beauty to justify their presence. There are in the catalogue "Scenes between very low subjects having the slightest claim to originality; indeed, the jury has not been able to award the prize of honour, many of the pictures on exhibition being considered sufficiently good to merit it. The large 1864 canvas usually purchased by the Government to adorn the salon would have been comparatively poor. Indeed, Dubigney, Rousseau, Cerat, Francais, Bin, Hanoteau, Herman, and a few other artists of the same stamp, have well supported the reputation of synopsides, and furnish the salt which keeps the Exposition in tolerably good order with the Parisian public. The subject of portraits is greater than ever, and they are mostly uninteresting, with the exception of Winterhalter's portrait of the Empress Eugénie, left-standing on the easel, and that of the Prince Imperial, to which the place of honour in the centre room has been given. Of the generalities, an Oriental subject, ably treated by Gerome, deserves mention, as do also the rather large prints of "Napoleon on the Sphinx," by Gustave Moreau; the miniature tableau of "The Emperor at Solferino," by Meissonier; another, which is the pride of the congregate: "The Meeting of the Schools," by Lenard: "The Heroines of the Decameron," by Hillemacher. Foreigners, representing new Naples," by A. de Curzon. The last picture is the only one which our space will permit us to reproduce just as the exhibition closes. It is peculiarly meritorious on account of the rich and varied tone of colour, although it has not been crowned with the desired medal. For the same reason it is also the one to which we have given the place of honour in the engraving of the statues exhibited in the Palais d'Industrie. It deserves to be mentioned, however, that the statue of Joan of Arc, of 1864 is superior, on the whole, to that of the painting, and reflects considerable credit on the last pupil of Rude, M. Fremiet. Numerous artists who risk their reputation, and often their means of living, on the fate of their productions, have failed to please.

We have grouped to give a few details concerning the picture represented in the succeeding page under the title of

"GRAPE-GATHERING NEAR NAPLES," BY A. DE CURZON.

The subject of this picture, by an artist whose reputation has long been established, is suggested by the luxuriant vegetation, the exuberance of all picturesque description fitted to inspire a painter of sentiment. The scene depicted in Mlle. Emilie Gracchia is employed in grape-gathering with her two young brothers. The landscape portion of the tableau, though of secondary importance, has been painted with care, faithfully reproducing the scenery around the Procida, near Naples, where it is the custom, as indeed throughout Southern Italy, to train the vine upon trees. Illustrated by the simple, M. De Curzon has imparted such a truthful beauty to his figures that in gazing at his canvas we are irresistibly carried into the contemplation of these charming Italian faces. The colouring of this picture has been admirably kept in the tone of the key of the order of merit; and, altogether, M. De Curzon's "Vendange de Procida" may be looked upon as one of the rare examples of genius in the Salon of 1864.

"THE BEACON."

SELDOM have we seen anything by Mr. Absolon more dramatic in conception, more effective, or more truthful in colour than the picture engraved on the preceding page. It is essentially dramatic though representing one actor only, for though the stage boards and the footlights are replaced by torchlight and a wild, rocky foreground, it is so because it indicates a crisis of anxiety and danger, though indefinite as to the cause of the issue of the reader's fate. The face of the man, who, like his bronze, comely lass brought her torch, all alone, to this desolate spot, for whom, or for what, we are left to guess, is lighted up brightly in the torch fuse, is the craving over that stone and gazing so vehemently into the gathering gloom of a "dirty night and a storm-portending night." There was a time when an invading armada was looked for within a few days of the present date, and when the liberty and welfare of the nation seemed to hang upon the due vigilance and courage of the "Beacon Guard," or otherwise, during the English coast. But this is evidently a humble domestic beacon, to be sure, but not to alarm and rouse a nation. Moreover, the one is plainly, in the case before us, forged for, not dreaded; and it is fixed on the French, not the British, shore, as we learn from the concurrent testimony of the lighter petticoat, and blue trousers of the former marched the British Grenadiers. Is this the reader's fate, then, looking so intently safely to the haven of home a fisherman father, husband, brother, or lover, who has left the isolated or crowded home of his love on a fishing idea, perhaps, and certainly a moral one; but we suspect it would only extend to a handful. No: it is not the fisherman's return the painter intended to represent the wife, sweetheart, or relative of a French ruffian pirate. Most fair and gentle reader, you have been led to some harbourless part of the coast with her torch, the lighting of which is the concerted signal for some vessel to run in under the lee of English cotton or calico print, handkerchief, cutlery, or other articles liable to the French duonne. Even if this interpretation of the subject were not probable, we are fully confident that the painter's intention, though themselves the most loyal and inoffensive of mortals, have an extreme sympathy for pedlars, smugglers, poachers, gipsies, smugglers, poachers, gipsies, brigands, bandits, and such picturesque gypsy.

A letter from Alexandria states that Abd-el-Kader is about to take up his residence on the estate at Brousoubiah, in the Isthmus, which has been given to him by the Sultan of Constantinople.

The Registrar-General of Seamen and Shipping states, in his report on the Royal Naval Reserve at the 31st of May last, that 20,106 applications have been received, and 1,549 enrolments effected.

An address from the people of Palermo thanking the English nation for its sympathy given to Garibaldi was voted by the Senate of the House of Commons.

The Ancient Order of Foresters has forwarded to the National Life-boat Institution £255, to be appropriated in the purchase of a life-boat, to be named "The Foresters," and stationed at Port Nicholson, in New Quay, on the Cardiganshire coast.

POSTAGE ON LETTERS FOR AUSTRALIA AND NEW ZEALAND.—On the 1st of July next, and thenceforward, the postage of a letter not exceeding half an ounce in weight, addressed to any place in the Australian colonies of Victoria, New South Wales, South Australia, Western Australia, Queensland, and Tasmania, or to New Zealand, when forwarded by packet via Southampton, will be raised to 1s. 4d., when forwarded via Marseilles, to 1s. 4d. Simultaneously, the postage of letters forwarded to Australia or New Zealand by private ship will be reduced to 6d. the half-ounce letter. The scale of progression for additional weights remains as at present. Newspaper rates of postage will be modified and such letters will be charged as follows:—Via Southampton, above half an ounce and not exceeding one ounce, 2s., for every additional half ounce, 2s.; via Marseilles, above half an ounce and not exceeding one ounce, 2s. 8d., for every additional half ounce, 1s. 4d.; by private ship, above half an ounce and not exceeding one ounce, 1s., for every additional half ounce, 6d. All letters intended to be forwarded via Marseilles, or by private ship, should be superscribed accordingly. The postage on newspapers addressed to the Australian colonies or New Zealand, whether conveyed by packets or by private ship, must be paid in advance.

THE SIEGE OPERATIONS AT CHATHAM.

THE Engraving on our front page is an illustration of the rehearsal of siege operations against the fortified position of St. Mary's Creek, at Chatham, in the presence of the Prince of Wales, Prince Alfred, Prince Arthur, the Duke of Cambridge, and Prince Louis of Hesse, on Saturday last. Their Royal Highnesses arrived at Chatham about two o'clock, and were received by Major-General Sir Richard Dacres, the mess-room of the Royal Engineers; after which they rode round the works, and then took successively to a small casemated battery on the hill, overlooking the entire scene of operations both by land and water. The operations commenced at about half-past three months by the Royal Engineers, as part of their ordinary instruction, formed several works opposite the Prince's position on the Invicta, which were clearly visible at every point, with the troops lying close to would-be forts. The first work to be attacked was a redoubt on the Naval Reserve slope, lay several men-of-war. Conspicuous among them was the dark hull and four lofty masts of the Achilles, round which was a fleet of little boats, containing the attacking force of troops, waiting for the signal to make their dash at the creek and gain the position by storm. Upon the redoubt, which was manned with all men of the Marine Artillery and Volunteer Artillery, the besiegers directed their fire, the former being distinguished by reason of the uniforms of the latter and the blue undress of the former marked the first of attack and defence.

At three o'clock the attack began. The besieged had made preparations to meet it by counter-mines under the bank seaward of the enemy's works. They had also sunk torpedoes in St. Mary's Creek, across which they had a pontoon bridge. The attacking party, meanwhile, had erected a strong stockade to prevent their line being turned. The besiegers were to commence operations by blowing up the boom, opening fire along the line of the creek, and then storming the redoubt in boats. An assault by escalade on two points was to be made on the land side, where the formidable nature of the ground had escaped were sprung to make openings for the assailants to enter.

Under the cover of the smoke rising in the creek, each crew advanced cautiously up the creek and attached a bag of powder to the enemy's line of defence. The explosion was fine. The boom went up as it took them to get fairly out of harm's way a pillar of water shot up, carrying with it the remains of the boom and torpedoes. This seemed to be the signal for general firing from the batteries along the bank line. At the same time, the Royal Marine Light Infantry joined in the attack. The attacking battery, No. 5, on the right flank of the second parallel, manned by the 12th Kent (Gillingham) Artillery Volunteers, was then opened upon the redoubt at a fire line with 18 and 24 pounder guns. Meantime, from behind earth mounds, from rifle pits, from the Naval Reserve, from behind the fence, the cracking musketry kept up an incessant fire, which was answered by the enemy. Then, from the rear, a subterranean rumble was heard indicating that a mine had been sprung. A slight trembling of the earth was felt by the spectators, who crowded the roofs of the casemates. The engineers had put in four charges of powder, of 100 lbs. each, the explosion of which was at the distance of 70 lb. with one of 200lb. behind the escarp; to form the breach known in our military phrase as "the embrasure" near the mess room followed that of the first. The artillery and the rifles had not been idle all this time, but kept up a brisk fire. The mines of the besiegers having been fired, the troops advanced in their respective boats back to the rear of the storming party, and the gun-boats, or armed launches, were ordered to the front. At this time a black cloud, showing what sort of service they would render if called upon to serve in hostile waters, overhung the scene, and a thick mantle of rain fell upon the besieging forces. The engineers had put in four charges of powder, of 100 lbs. each, would, according to the perspective, be standing to the left, not (as it has been suggested) in the position opposite to Penelope. I may be that these books are merely omitted, but their introduction in the finished work is more likely to be one of those interesting after-thoughts which occur between the sketch and the final performance. There happens, however, to be a story that Philip, when he came into the painter's room to see "Las Meninas" finished was so much pleased with it that he took a pencil and painted on the breast of the artist's own portrait the cross of the noble order of Santiago; and as this knightly insignia occurs in both works it is inferred that the painter received the honour. If there be any truth in the story, it is decidedly more likely that the King ordered the accolade than that the painter did it for the sketch, although the latter was probably shown to him for approval; but, on the other hand, the cross may, perhaps, have been only then added sooner or later by Velasquez himself, or some less dexterous, though not Royal, hand.

But of far more importance than these speculations is the great, the almost unique, technical interest of this painting—equally so whether sketch or replica. The brilliant handling of Velasquez in his later style—the astonishing power of expression and suggestion revealed in a very touch—has been so frequently the study of every school, and numerous writers on art, painters as well as critics, have sought to discover the "secrets," as they call them, of his wonderful magic, many supposing them to exist in the earlier stages of his work. Here, in a close, intimate manner, we are led to the very key to the whole enigma. Here is an example of the most mature power of Velasquez let at the earliest moment of execution, and therefore not, as it were, a distance of not less than four to six yards. And what do we here see? Not, certainly, the carefully-elaborated work of authorities, but, on the contrary, execution the most rapid, yet without vigor lavurus; large spaces of dark, floating ground of a brown undergrainting, the impasto being carefully preserved for the passages in light, and touches let in where the intense dark of shadow, and numerous subtle gradations of tone, with the utmost truth and delicacy to a suppositious passer-by; the other, perhaps, a little behind the easement, partly conceals with her veil her merriment at being detected in betting her many admirers on the painter's success, indicating an involuntary adherence to the lingering custom of the Moorish women. The picture was called "Velasquez and his Spanish Women," and the dangerous beauty of these women was proverbial. There is a "Francis I." (46) by Velasquez, in the Madrid gallery, obscure of the master and of the cognate Neapolitan painters.

The northern schools are so well represented, as we presented, though there is no example of Rubens. A portrait of "Stratford" is ascribed to Van Dyck, in referer ce to the famous Earl of Strafford of the Earl with his secretary. In point of painting (though of a very different subject), Vandyke is not to be compared in the fine portrait of "Endymion Porter" (49), which has a glowing life and earnestness reminding of Vandyke's great master, Rubens. The three views in one picture of the same head (50) are the finished copy of the famous picture at Windsor. Portraits of a Burgomaster (107) and his wife (121) are fair examples of the Dutch school of Peter Dutch master Van der Helst. Other portraits of artistic or historic interest are the earliest work of Jan Steen, "Portrait" (11), attributed to Holbein; No. 24, a not very good specimen of G. Dow, Rembrandt's pupil: the portrait of "Charles II." (40), by Cuyp: and Charles the Fourth's "Duchess of Cleveland" (3), and the "Princess and Princess of Asturias" (4), by Sir Joshua, more mannerist Sir Peter Lely.

Facing a small picture of high quality, entitled "A Man Reading" (91), with oil, though perhaps only of the school of Rembrandt, is not unworthy of the master himself, we come to Lord Lansdowne's famous Reuben's, "The Mill" (112), an important picture of the master, exhibited at the British Institution, in 1806 (the year the institution was founded), and upon the sale of the Lansdowne gallery to the painters, including Turner, copied it. Ward, however, upon the suggestion of West, endeavored to show us how the picture could be more profitably and intelligently studied than by more or less mechanical and unreflective copying. And he has, therefore, painted a picture similar in subject and effect, but with sufficient modifications to test whether the principles of Reuben's have had been understood and applied. The result will probably surprise most of us. It is not fully appreciate James Ward's rare powers as an animal-painter. The relative force in the masses of light and dark, the breadth and ease of the brush, or reflected light in the latter are well preserved; while the figures in the boat and the cattle on the bank are worthy of the hand of a master. The picture lacks, however, the golden, genuine tone of the original; but for which, by the way, the engraving after Rembrandt is indebted in no small degree to the cunning hand of that greatest of all mezzotinters—Earlom. Among the "Modern Masters" we find Reynolds well exemplified in a "Landscape with Waterfall" (37), marked with all his studies, especially of the Venetian masters, in Lord Lansdowne's famous and most impressive "Seapiece" (101), with the waves lashing a solitary rock and breaking in foam along the fringe of the darkling sea, and a fishing-smack making for the shore before the gathering masses of black, ominous thunder-cloud. Turner paints half in "Van Buyckael" (31), and half in "Van Goyen" in picture. The consummate truth and lightness of touch of Tenniers may be studied to advantage in No. 13, "Peasants Regaling" (not with Princess' (59) is an extremely fine Both, in a cooler key of colour than usual with the painter. The "Landscape" of Cuyp would do well to study the descriptive handling of the foliage. Exceptionally fine, also, is the Rubens "Landscape" (110), which, however, is said to have purchased for £6000. The Cuyp, too, called "The Morning" (84), is a beautiful picture. Wilson, Gainsborough, and the marine painters, W. Vandevelde, Backhuysen, and Vander Capelle are likewise represented at their best. We have also an unusually fine pictures of birds, &c., by Hondekoeter; a very vigorous sketch by F. Boudins; and "A Landscape" by Ruysdael. It's a small but interesting picture by Langelback, we must close this notice, reserving a few remarks on the works by deceased British artists for a future article.

A veteran of the French army, General de Mylius, lately offered the Academie Francaise a foundation-prize of 1000 francs for the best annual essay upon "Religious toleration." The Academie, in accepting the generous present, the General writes to the Opinion Nationale that he is ready to repeat the offer in favour of any society in a position to appreciate and recompense the prize. The object he has in view is, "to encourage universal religious toleration, and thereby to extinguish religious hatred, the most fruitful source of mutual bewilderness among all peoples."

Further disclosures have been received relative to the explosion of a Government powder-magazine at Tripoli, on the 18th of May, by which more than 600 persons were killed on the spot. Besides the greater portion consisting of Ottoman soldiers, in a barrack in the vicinity of the magazine. It appears from a later telegram, received by the Ottoman Consul-General at Malta from the Governor of Tripoli, that the number of victims was 110 only; that none of the population had, as first reported, sought refuge on board the shipping in port, and that perfect tranquility prevailed among the people. The telegraphic communication had been temporarily suspended, being by any means to the station and from the necessity of removing the instruments, which were covered with the débris of the buildings. A subsequent telegram, received by Sir J. G. Le Marchant from the British Consul-General Colonel Harman, dated on the day of the explosion, which states that the communication in the Spanish fort had been re-established for six or seven days, and that the quantity that exploded was about 300,000, of powder, totally destroying the fort, the custom-house, and the adjacent magazines.

ECHOES OF THE WEEK.

Those pleasant officiers from which the general public gather their evening news have startled us lately by the different complexion which they make the truth wear. Jesting Pilate, as to Bacon's beautiful essay, might well inquire what truth was, nor be expected to "tarry an answer," if he had but one week's reading of the leaders of the pro-slavery and the pro-Northern journals. The pro-Southern journals give details which the pro-Northern journals omit, and on their placards—unpleasant details, and give a couleur-de-rose glow to the defeats and losses which the pro-Northern turn the eternal gratitude of that Caledonian Yankee, Thos. who hear that he has been reinforced and has advanced upon Richmond. The Federals outmarched, outflanked, and outwitted his enemy; and that the Southern army was dying away every day—while the Southern placards we have a very different tale. Federal defeats form the staple of the intercourse between the two parties, and in these four days, like the Stars, threw in a "horrid murder" to enliven the sympathies of its readers—when he was interrupted and killed. Mr. Mudie, in one horrid murder, committed by a half-saddened sot or love-stricken pothey, to the extent of "7000 Federals slain." Do we sufficiently comprehend numbers to realize the fact as to the loss? We fancy men killed as would fill one of our decent, pretty county towns, or the whole population of one of the smaller towns in the north of England—certainly about as many as garrison the south of our island; and then we have the same number of wounded, to withdraw from home and in an expedition which is pretty sure to be a failure. No wonder that the poets of the old grey land go up in the North, that the Government trembles, and that men prophesy a collapse, in which the Federal armies and Federal people will be swept away and burnt. Adversity will bear the same precious lesson to that very young nation which she taught to the old; and the Times' last bitter cry concerning defeat of Grant will bring an overture of peace. Opposed to victorious troops who are safe on ridge and intrenchment, while his are in the open, and obliged to purchase every forward movement at an exhausting loss, even the brave and obstinate General must in all likelihood yield. If, however, he is not to be overcome, he will be President of the North; if he fail, Mr. Lincoln will continue to be so, and we shall be at the end of the war in exactly that peace which he so ardently desires.

Foretold at the commencement of her war—by which, according to Cromwell's motto, peace alone is sought—make noise enough. Our peace-proclamation, the calling out of the militia, the Government agents in the Devil's act of destruction, and torpedoes throwing up decades of earth in the Channel. Meanwhile, the Channel and foreign armada might be just as well disposed of under Victoria as Elizabeth. Such torpedoes are not to be trifled with, but they are not the most desperate charges of hard words—are being prepared in the Tory camp to the new Reform Bill introduced by Mr. Russell, and to scatter the present Ministry to the winds. Mr. Disraeli is to be the Great Tawkee of the occasion, and will fire the train; the barrels of gunpowder are ranged under the Whig benches, and Guy Fawkes will lay the six blackened and mangled "corses"—corse is a good word and mistake it is generally used for corpse—of the Whig Ministry ready disposed of. As a precursor to this attack, the allies of the Tories over the water have made a demand for the recall of Governor Eyre. The Debate cuts it up root and branch, and constructs its statement with all the Cunning of a Tory. The Governor of Jamaica is a favourite France, and who extended the influence of England. We know well what Mr. Disraeli thinks of the value of the Tory ally in France, and we hope that their attack may go good. There is nothing like a Tory Government to destroy, and, as the preservation of Denmark is to be one of the points of the next coalition and one of will adopt a firmer tone in the matter. We have great hopes of this; the Danes are more confident and less yielding, and it is reported that the Duke of Augustenburg is in a position of military standing, and it is probable that a declaration by Lord Palmerston of the interested character of the Russian occupation will give the Danish power into their arm.

A case which occurred last week, in which a barrister who, being grossly insulted, had knocked a man down, and who was yet further assaulted by the bystanders, was fined for assault, has, it is to be hoped, so settled by magistrates and popular writers, have been so thanked and encouraged by the Bench, that the bully will be kept in order and walk, as schoolboys say, "taking down a peg." Of course, the whole lazy and abuse about "barristers" are exaggerated. Actually, we have in all England only about two barristers who are guilty of such an impeder. The rest are merely plain-clothes men attached to each Division of the Court, and who are, technically, "keeping the peace" in stupid they are. We know personally of a dozen robberies the actors in which they have helped to bring to justice, and in which the rule, success the exception; and upon that exception our "criminal-agencies" have been founded. Our criminal-agencies are composed of the "active and intelligent" officers who are sent in pursuit of the fugacious criminal. Now, if these agencies were to be private should be employed: in short, the real policeman is much more like the Bloodhound, or Scotch Collie, than the Bull-dog, and the natural general of brigade which novelists represent him. Inspectors in policeofficers are, as a rule, intelligent, honest, and once in the guilt of anyone accused. The poor, who are brought almost in contact with the police, suffer most; but the rich ought to see that those whom they pay to protect them from the poor are not their natural enemies. There is not much external similarity between a Prussian guard and a Bobby: but the Prussian guard is a policeman in military dress, and the person in buttons is very often as great a tyrant as the Roman mangerer could be to Shylock.

The Shakspeare Council has brought its labours to a close. Commended of Stratford, Earls Ellesmere, Carlisle, Dudley, and Ellenborough of the "intellect of Britain" and "the wealth of the world," having in addition to the Council, Mr. Hallam, Mr. Grote, and naturally, collected, in about five hundred days, eleven hundred pounds. All this is famous, and the Council has brought about a meeting of "nobles" were enormously liberal. Eight hundred pounds were spent in printing, postage, &c.; and now a poor three hundred is handed to Sir Emmet Tenent, M.P., to be spent in erecting a fitting side, or somewhere on the Thames Embankment, chosen. And so a little money is left for the Council to buy a cottage, and make it all that remains of this "movement," with its parochial, provincial, and fashionable flavor expected of it. Lord Ellesmere, Lord Carlisle, Mr. Gervinus, Bulwer Lytton, three Archbishops, several Ministers, one Prime Minister, Lord Dudley, Lord Ellenborough—and Admiralty, failure will long be talked of as a national reproach, and should long be a warning to all who would attempt to celebrate the memory of the once ungenial and unkillful.

A gentleman who has died, who is also a clergyman, has attached no less a body than the Portsmouth watchmakers. It appears that the children of watchmakers are entitled to claim that the charges of the unwieldly Mrs. Gamps who attend to them are enormous. Do not the gentlemen put forward his connection with the third estate we cannot hardly have expected to see the day when "Time" was "green." Alas! mistakes have something stronger than starch in their collars—and Mrs. Gamp's language and face—and Admiralty, to which our clerical penman has applied, will be puzzled to stop the progress of gout, and to "keep the Government clock regulated to the hour" men at sea."

"On ows autrade is, says some generous maxim, to be at once forgiven. If so, we claim forgiveness for an error. The pro-Danish gentlemen who, in the House of Commons, once knew everything, and spoken last week while our Impression was being rapidly worked off, the decision of the Conference upon the Danish question. The decision lines brought down a round of applause, and Miss Oliver and the prisoner across dish their very best to delight a select audience.

There is little literary news abroad. If anyone wishes to read an interesting book of travels, let him take up that by Colonel Campbell, in which the great question of tigers is admirably debated; or that, in two volumes, of M. Moulton—"Travels in Indo-China, Siam, and Laos"—admirably translated by Mr. Eden Greville, and abundantly illustrated. But why, oh! Messrs. Murray, Bentley, and Co., are all your books of travels so very much alike? Why are all your travellers such wonderful shots, and wherefore do they slay so many buffaloes, Bengal tigers, and rhinoceroses? Africa should be known only to the ever-present artist, and unrecognised in the Zoological Gardens?

OBITUARY OF EMINENT PERSONS.

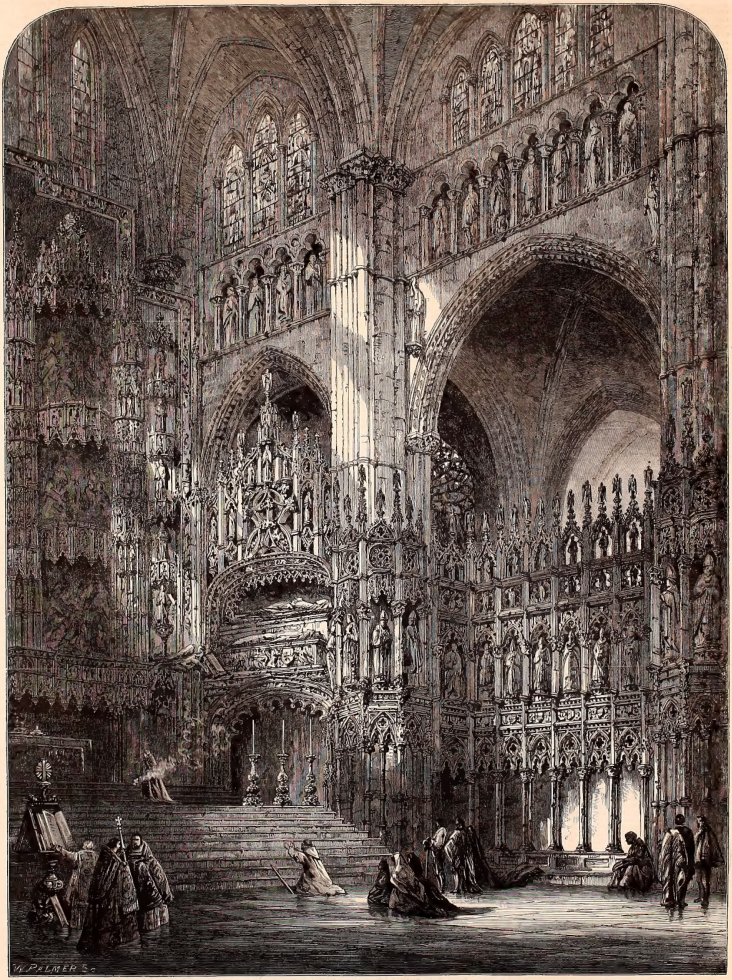
SIR EDWARD GRAHAM, BART.

Sir Edward Graham, ninth Baronet, of Esk, in Cumberland, was the eldest surviving son of the late Richard Graham, sixth Baronet, by his wife, Elizabeth, only daughter of John Young, Esq., of Latrig, Scotch. He was born Jan. 1, 1820. He succeeded his father in the baronetcy 2 n. 27, 1864, and was, in 1855, appointed to the Turkish Contingent as Assistant Commissariat, of the Crimea. He married, in 1847, Emily Mary, widow of Charles Henderson, Esq., of St. Andrew's, Holborn, Oxford, and County. Arms: Argent, a chevron between three crescents, each charged with a mullet, all sable. Crest: A demi-lion rampant, holding in the dexter paw a mullet, sable. Motto: Reason and Truth. The deceased Baronet died March 12, 1864, leaving issue one son, Richard, born Saturday, Jan. 31, 1863. Sir Richard Graham, by whom he had two sons, who died young, and one daughter, Elizabeth Mary, married, in Montreal, Canada, on the 15th ult., and is succeeded by his eldest son Sir Richard Lester Stuart Graham, the tenth Baronet, who was born December, 1851. Sir Richard Graham is the representative of the illustrious race of Graham, which was of note in Scotland as far back as the days of Malcolm Canmore, and Queen Margaret. The Grahams, chamberlains of Scotland, in their department of hatred, whose heroic deeds, rare qualities, and great power constantly illustrated the pages of Scottish and English history. The Grahams of Esk are a sept of the Grahams of the Border, Grahams of Netherby, Grahams, of the bright sword. The first Graham of Esk, who was created a Baronet, was the Cavalier Sir Richard Graham, who was created a Baronet of Nova Scotia, 1629, and was Secretary of State to Charles I., and in the Parliament which met at Oxford, 1644, was elected Member for Cockermouth. He married Elizabeth, daughter of Sir Henry Vane, and had by her Richard, who would have been executed, but the interest of his wife and friends procured his pardon from Charles II., and he was created Baronet of Esk, as confederated with John Fenwick, married sisters of the house of Howard, daughters of Charles, first Earl of Carlisle, who was descended from the Howards of Naworth, and had devoted endeavours to save their husbands. Viscount Preston's brother, Sir Richard Graham, was killed in a duel with Viscount Dundee. Sir Richard succeeded his father as Sir Edward Graham just deceased and the present Baronet is his grandson.

LORD ADOLPHUS FREDERICK CHARLES WILLIAM VANE, M.P.

Lieutenant-Colonel Lord Adolphus Frederick Charles William Vane-Tempest-Stewart, who was second son of the late and brother of the present General Sir Charles William Stewart (afterwards distinguished soldier and diplomatist of Londonderry), by his second wife, Frances Anne, daughter of Sir Harry Vane Tempest, and half-brother of Frederick William Robert Viscount Mayo of Ireland, by the late Countess of Mayo, Dowager Earl Canc. He was born July 2, 1818, and was educated at Eton. He entered the Grenadier Guards as ensign in 1837, and became a Lieutenant-Colonel in 1849, and Captain and Lieutenant-Colonel in 1854. He in that year assumed the additional surname of Vane. He served with distinction during the Eastern campaign, and received the medal and clasp for the siege and fall of Sebastopol, and the Turkish medal. He was also a Knight of the Legion of Honour. He retired from the army in consequence of his Parliamentary seat, but continued to be a Lieutenant-Colonel of the Militia. He was elected M.P. for North Durham in 1854, and had held that seat until the year since. Lord Adolphus was of the Earl of Derby's party; but, as Lord Londonderry, occasionally voted with the Liberals. He married, 1st, the Hon. Susan Rose Dunbar (Kelpie) of Captain Robert Cochrane, R.N., and, 2nd, Lady Adelaide Paget, daughter of the Rt. Hon. Sir Edward Paget, who was born at Gibraltar, in 1794; he entered the Welsh Fusiliers in 1807, and was transferred to the 7th Fusiliers in 1808, and served in the Peninsula, where he was in the midst of hard fighting in the Peninsula. He shared in the battles of Vimiera, Corunna, Talavera, including the battle of Arroyo dos Vittoria, the memorable retreat from Burgos, and the siege and fall of Badajos, and was at the battle of Salamanca, where he was severely wounded, and said in another engagement previously. He was also slightly wounded at Waterloo. He was A.D.C. to the Duke of Wellington in the Peninsula, and was also his aide-de-camp. He had succeeded another to the head of the advance guard of his regiment, and thus led the attack on the heights of Salamanca. He received the medal and clasp for Peninsula, and also the Waterloo medal. He was made a Military Knight of Windsor in 1846. He became a full General in 1862. The gallant officer leaves a widow and a young family of five sons and a daughter.

Lady Grenville, widow of the celebrated statesman William Wyndham Lord Grenville, died suddenly at her residence in Lord Lansdowne's estate on the Pitt family, died on the 14th inst. A notice of her Ladyship will be given next week.



"A TAVERN BRAWL."

That latter half of the sixteenth century, the seventeenth, and the first half of the eighteenth, were the eras to which John Gilbert's favourite subjects belong, but with a decided preference for the time of the great Elizabethan dramatists, as we all know from his series of Shakspeare illustrations, and his contributions to the Art Union. His period is precisely of the kind which would most attract and best employ all the resources of his facile pencil, and in the subject of the fine water-colour drawing engraved on page 600 is intended not, of course, as a representation of any particular occurrence, but as an incident characteristic of the time. Such brawls were common in the days when the sword was habitually worn by every gentleman, nay, There was really little cause to fear the civil power on account of the arrangement of the dress, especially that of the "gallant officer" at present; and it is needless to add that it was then even more difficult to find a quarrelsome person than it is at the present day. Every man above the rank of a peasant, artisan, or petty shopkeeper wore, if he chose, his long Toledo rapier, and the duello was considered the most honourable and satisfactory method of liquidating debts, proving wrong to be right, and wiping all stain, however black, from the escutcheon. Hence, in fact, the hundred young gallants, professional gamesters and bravoes, swaggering about Shoreditch, Whitefriars, and the purlieus of all large towns, Bankside and Ben Jonson, Beaumont and Fletcher, and Massinger have depicted in their comedies and tragedies. Which were the best places of universal resort—when the sack and canary had freely circulated and the cups were replenished for the last time—played, how quarrels and difficulties which would be sure to arise would certainly be settled on the spot, in many cases not to the end of the evening, by the convenient arbitration of the sword. The arbitration would also, though the parties were not killed or even dangerously wounded, frequently have, on at least of the parties to it, a fatal conclusion. If not the swordsbored that poor Kit Marlowe, the author of the original drama of "Dr. Faustus," met his death in a tavern brawl; and many other instances might be named. And such, doubtless, is the fate of the handsome young fellow in our picture, who now lies bleeding in his blood. But a little while ago he burst danced with gaiety and joy and when dancing with his gay and fierce companion, neither a mother's nor mistress's hand could stay its bleeding, and even a friend's sabre-blade fail to detect the lifeblade. He has staked his last card, played out his last desperate game—and lost. His young adversary—perhaps a friend of his—perhaps a mere face-to-face acquaintance—the heat of the encounter being past, looks on, coolly, and perhaps even regretfully, at the consequences of victory. We must not take leave of this very striking drawing without at least passing mention of the wife-like appearance of the whole scene, the appropriateness of the postures and expressions of every character introduced, as well as the furniture, hangings, and so forth, of the quaint old interior, and the skilful composition, admirable colour, and most masterly and facile execution of the whole work.

A Welsh fishing-boat belonging to Pwllheli trawled up a glass bottle on the night of the 10th inst., near Barn Befig or Cuisweny, in Carnarvon Bay, containing a strip of paper with the following inscription thereon:—"Joseph Collier, ship Matilda, last Coast of Africa," and the word "Liverpool" written across the slip. On the other side of the paper were the words "James M'Fadden."

"A TAVERN BRAWL," BY JOHN GILBERT, IN THE EXHIBITION OF THE SOCIETY OF PAINTERS IN WATER COLOURS.—SEE PRECEDING PAGE.

"THE CHAPEL OF THE HIGH ALTAR IN THE CATHEDRAL OF TOLEDO," BY S. READ, IN THE EXHIBITION OF THE SOCIETY OF PAINTERS IN WATER COLOURS.

SEE NEXT PAGE.

"CHAPEL OF THE HIGH ALTAR, CATHEDRAL OF TOLEDO."

MANY visitors to the exhibitions of the (Old) Water-Colour Society will remember that Mr. Samuel Read—whose name was first prominently identified with drawings of some of the fine but comparatively well-known church interiors of Belgium—has recently been experimenting chiefly by visits in and near Toledo. We have already had occasion to commend this artist for going so far from the beaten track. It is true that English painters generally, like true Britons as they are, are fond of travel; and since, every day and everywhere, there will be picturesque in life, costume, and architecture seems to be vanishing before the modern improvements which are but a fertilizer to the available materials. Spain being one of the last refuges of the picturesque in Europe, a number of English artists have of late brought to the delineation of that country, its monuments, and people, the results of many highly interesting visits, among which the Spanish painters themselves have always been so strangely deficient, but nearly all these English artists have confined their attention to recording the now well-known glories of Seville, Granada, and the Alhambra. Mr. Read is one of the few who have gone a little in any evidence in favour of the ancient Spanish capital—the poor, gloomy, almost desert, but still grand, Moorish city, Toledo. A sketch he exhibited two years ago showed us the extreme richness and sense of the Moorish art that city, standing as it does, like Rome, on seven hills; and last year we enjoyed Mr. Read's most elaborate and powerfully-painted finished drawing of the vast, the sombre and impressive interior of the great cathedral of Toledo, "The See of the Primate and Great Levitical City of Spain." The view of the cathedral exhibited this year was taken from from within the immense grille which divides the choir from the transept; and the spectator's eye is supposed to be placed about the great monument of the celebrated Cardinal Mendoza. Here as in every other part of the cathedral, subject and treatment are full of "an religious light," such is the massive character of the architecture and the quantity of stained glass, "which, according to Ford, is almost unique" says Mr. Ford, in his "Handbook for Spain," "for so early a date the former magnificence of this once splendid temple." Yet we may infer, even from the extremely bold and effective drawing, the carvings of the canopied niches of this chapel and part of the cornice of the high altar, that the former splendour of the cathedral must have been in the days of its prosperity. "The pure Gothic character of the choir," Ford says, "is remarkable even in Spain, where a really Divine service was performed. Then the vast space was crowded with sattike myriads, and the city of the sleepers awoke as by a touch of the wand and filled the streets, clanging into noise and crowds their usual deathlike monotony. Now solitude and melancholy brood enshrined, and sad is the irony of fortune." Now, as the painter shows us, only a few women hooded in their mantillas, with a still smaller number of the feeling their pensive, and occasional mendicant monk, assemble to the service from the great choral books which lie on the desks. We have only to add that Mr. Read's drawing is distinguished by the same excellent qualities as his large work of last year, while the tone is more serial and suggestive of space.

MUSIC.

The production of "Robert le Diable" on Saturday last, at Her Majesty's Theatre, introduced to the London public Mdme. Harriers Wippern, a lady of extraordinary merits. She has passed a long and laborious life as a great reputation in Germany. She is a magic of the Italian school. She is, moreover, an excellent actress, and her conception of the character of Alice showed great intelligence and poetical feeling. In the beautiful air, "Quando Alcinal la lascia," she was loudly encored, and sang it so delightfully called before the curtain in the course of the performance. Lady Wippern will be a great acquisition to the company. We understand that Mdlle. Titiens intends to resign to her several of her principal characters, in order to enjoy herself in private existence she has lately undergone. The character of Robert was sustained by Mr. Gardoni, who showed considerable dramatic power, and sang (we need scarcely say) beautifully. He was especially happy in the air, "Love an outlaw's chainless," which he sang with remarkable effect. Signor Junca was an admirable representative of the part of Bertram. His great stature, his dark and stern countenance, and the deep, sepulchral tone of his voice, gave additional force to the impressiveness of the incarnate demon. Mdlle. Lichtert, with a powerful and flexible (although somewhat hard) soprano voice, and a fair share of facile music in the part of Isabella; and the little but pleasant character of Rembaldo, Alice's friend, was agreeably sung by Mdlle. Lemaire. The opera was splendidly put upon the stage, and the chorus and orchestra displayed the results of Signor Arditi's skill as a conductor.

On the same night, at Covent Garden, Rossini's "Otello" was produced, for the first time these five years. This opera has long been of the popularity of the early days of Italian music, chiefly manufactured from Shakspeare's tragedy by a certain Marquis Berio, a dilettante friend of the day, who knew little of the Italian audience, however it may pass abroad; and the music, though bearing the stamp of Rossini's genius, is not, taken as a whole, in the composer's style. It has, however, many beauties; and the revival of one of the most celebrated works of so great a master is sure to give much pleasure. It was admirably performed; Tamberlik took Otello, Mdme. Lagrua Desdemona, Graziani Iago, and Mdme. Tagliafico Emilia.

The Philharmonic Society's seventh concert—the last but one of the season—took place at the Hanover-square Rooms on Monday evening. The chief feature of the concert was Beethoven's "Sinfonia Eroica," one of the greatest of that composer's symphonical works. It is constructed on a scale of extraordinary magnitude, being extended in every respect much beyond the usual limits of symphony, the merits of which have been the subject of so much discussion and criticism. The "Sinfonia Eroica" occupies three quarters of an hour in performance, but it is impossible to find it to be unnecessarily long. Under the able direction of Professor Bennett it was magnificently played, and the audience paid the greatest and the attention of the audience from the first bar to the last. There were two concertos—one for the pianoforte in E flat, by Mr. Hullah—a somewhat unusual thing; but in this instance it was justified by success. The first movement of this concerto is full of beauty of most eminent performers. Beethoven's concerto in C major was played by Herr Ganz, and Mendelssohn's concerto in G minor by Mr. Charles Hallé. Both were listened to with delight and enthusiasm. The only vocalist was Mdme. Rudersdorff, who sang the grand scena, "Ah perfido," arranged for a solo voice; Rossini's air, "Panus alla patria," from Mr. Balfe's "Talismano," and "Let the bright seraphim," a somewhat trivial air, from Signor Schira's "Nicolo de Lapi." The last two pieces could have been happier in her choice, but her performance was excellent. The concert began with Weber's overture to "Der Freischütz," and ended with Meyerbeer's overture to "Figaro." The Princess Helena and Louise honoured the concert with their presence, and were joined by Baroness Barrington, Lady Bentinck, the Hon. Lucy Kerr, the Hon. Mrs. Grey, the Hon. Dudley Ryder, Sir Henry Bishop, and Mr. W. Cusins. The room was crowded to the doors with fashionable company.

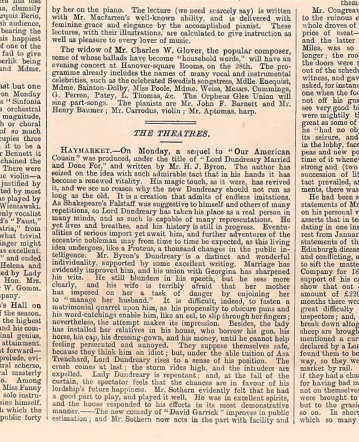
Mr. W. G. Cusins's annual concert took place at St. James's Hall on Wednesday evening, the 8th inst., was one of the best of the season. The accomplished young musician is rapidly rising to the highest eminence in his art. As a pianist he has few superiors, and his compositions are strongly marked with the stamp of original genius, while they show a high degree of learning and artistic attainment. At this concert several of these compositions were brought forward—the overture to "King Lear," an admirable dramatic prelude, evidently inspired by the study of the tragedy; an orchestral scherzo, called "Queen Mab," full of poetical fancy; and several masterly part-songs, which were sung by the Orpheus Glee Union. Among the vocal performers were Mdme. Parepa, Mdme. Trebelli, Miss Fanny Armytage, Signor Gardoni, and Signor Delle-Sedie. The solo instrumentalists were Herr Louis Ries, Mr. Lazarus, and the concerto-giver. He played Hummel's piece, "Le Retour à Londres," with the celebrated author used to charm the ears of the English public forty years ago. It lost none of its beauties in the hands of our young pianist, who possesses some of the fine qualities—the mellow roundness of tone, the clear and smooth articulation, and the refinement of style and expression—for which Hummel was so highly distinguished. The audience was musical as well as fashionable, for we observed the familiar faces of many well-known amateurs of distinction as well as eminent members of the profession.

Mr. John Francis Barnett's Concert at the Hanover square Rooms, on Wednesday evening, derived a special interest from the production of a new quintet for stringed instruments, composed by Mr. Barnett himself. It was performed by Herr Lauterbach, Mr. Blagrove, Mr. Webb, Herr Goffrie, and Mr. Paque. It was listened to with the attention and much warmly applauded. It deserved such a reception, for it is a work which does honour to the English school of composition. Mr. Barnett, moreover, played Beethoven's sonata in C sharp minor, called (we do not know why) "Moonlight," and Mendelssohn's pianoforte trio in C minor; and a piece, entitled "Canzonetta e brillante," composed by himself. Several fine vocal pieces were sung by Mdme. Lemmens-Sherrington, Mdme. Laura Baxter, Mdme. Weiss, and the Old London Madrigal Society. The room was crowded.

The meeting of the Pianoforte Quartet Association—the members of which are Messrs. Baumer, Carrodus, Barrett, and Petit—are going on prosperously. Two more concerts are given at Collard's Rooms, in Grosvenor-street, and the Rooms are always crowded with fashionable company on the last concert, on Thursday, the 9th of the month, a MS. quartet for stringed instruments, composed by Mr. Bacteria, was produced. It was admirably performed by the four gentlemen above named, and was received with acclamations—a reception which it well deserved. It is not a masterly work, which would have placed the author even in the name of a Mendelssohn.

Mrs. John Macfarren's "Mornings at the Pianoforte," which are given every Thursday afternoon at St. James's Hall, are being received with excellently. The entertainment consists of a lecture, written by Mr. G. A. Macfarren and read by Mrs. Macfarren, with musical illustrations performed by Mrs. Macfarren, Mdme. Rudersdorff, Mdme. Lemmens-Sherrington, Mdme. Sainton-Dolby, Miss Poole, Mdme. Weiss, Messrs. Cummings, Perren, Patey, L. Thomas, &c. The Orpheus Glee Union will sing part-songs. The pianists are Mr. John F. Barnett and Mr. Henry Banner; Mr. Carrodus, violin; Mr. Aptomas, harp.

THE THEATRES.



HAYMARKET.—On Monday, a sequel to "Our American Cousin" was produced, under the title of "Lord Dundreary Married and Done For," and written by Mr. H. J. Byron. The author has attempted an idea which was admirable but has failed in the way to become a renewed vitality. His magic touch, as it were, has revived it, and we see no reason why the new Dundreary should not run as long as the old. It is a creation that admits of endless imitations. As Shakspeare's Falstaff was suggestive to himself and others of many repetitions, so Lord Dundreary has taken his place as a real person in many minds, and is capable of many representations. He is yet lives and breathes, and his history is still in progress. Eventualities of serious import yet await him, and further developments of the eccentric nobleman may from time to time be expected, as his living has undergone, like a human personage, various phases of joy and intelligence. Mr. Byron's Dundreary is a distinct and wonderful individuality, inspired by some excellent writing. Marriage has evidently improved him, and his union with Georgina Vere Fitzherbert has given him a wife. He still blunders in his speech, but he sees more clearly, and is not so terribly afraid that he modest has imposed on her a task of danger by enjoining her to washing-day studies. Mr. Byron has found a fertile field for matrimonial quarrel upon him, as he promptly to obscure puns and a word-catching memory, and in an act, a scene, and a page; nevertheless, the attempt makes its impression. Besides, the lady has installed her relations in the house, and Dundreary has lost his horse, his cap, his dressing-gown, and his money, until he cannot help feeling persecuted and annoyed. They suppose themselves safe, because they think him an idiot; but, under the able tuition of Asa Trenchard, Lord Dundreary rises to a sense of his position. The crash comes at last; the storm rides high, and the intruders are expelled. Lady Dundreary is repentant; and, at the fall of the curtain, the spectator feels that the chances are in favour of his lordship's future happiness. Mr. Sothern evidently felt that he had a good part to play, and played it well. We have seen Dundreary, and the house responded to his efforts in its most demonstrative manner—every point was taken, and the character was a great estimation; and Mr. Sothern now acts in the part with facility and felicity. Mr. Chippendale and Mr. Buckstone are admirable supporters; and altogether the production may be safely added as a stock piece to the repertoire of the theatre.

NEW ADELPHI.—On Saturday Miss Bateman's engagement terminated, and a numerous audience assembled. Mr. B. Webster addressed the house, and bore testimony to the lady's merits as an actress. Miss Bateman was overwhelmed with bouquets, and was gallantly handed by the manager in bearing them home. On Monday Mr. Webster opened with Mr. Robert Lansdell, in the excellent and enduring drama of "The Dead Heart."

SHAKSPEARE'S TERCENTENARY AT MELBOURNE.—Shakspeare's tercentenary has been commemorated at Melbourne, and on occasion Mr. and Mrs. Charles Kean acted at the Haymarket Theatre. Mr. Kean delivered an address. On Saturday, April 23, a dinner and evidence assembled. The performances included the trial-scene in "The Merchant of Venice," "Katherine and Petruchio," "As You Like It," Mr. Kean supporting the part of Jacques. Then an address was read which had been sent from Stratford to Townhall to Mr. Kean. A scene from "Romeo and Juliet," in which Mrs. Kean personated the Nurse, and the play of "All is True, or Henry VIII." was subsequently enacted. The address presented to Mr. Kean was numerously signed by the citizens of Melbourne, the Mayor presiding at the meeting. After a neat speech by him, Mr. Kean acknowledged the honour which he had received in a manner that was associated with that of the tercentenary of Shakspeare's birth. "Apart from any personal gratification for the genius of Shakspeare, Mr. Kean truly observed, that "he had good cause to congratulate any of the pursuit of gaining that fame is unapproachable and imperishable; for as a representative of his marvellous creations, he had possessed a privilege which few others had." A Shakspearean scholarship is proposed to be instituted in the Melbourne University.

THE FOURCROYA LONGÆVA IN THE BOTANIC GARDENS, REGENT'S PARK.

THERE have been two plants of what is generally called agave and sometimes American aloe, growing in the Regent's Park Botanic Gardens for twenty years. Last year they were raised by a packet of seeds received from Mexico at the same time with the seeds of the Yucca gloriosa, which grew in some vegetable soil, lowered in the same gardens in 1826, and which figured in the ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS of 1851. In the last year also one of the Agave yuccoides, but which is probably a new species, and undescribed. It has since flowered. One of the two plants of the agave fourcroya, to which we now refer, showed its flower spike in March of this year. On the 23rd of April it was 9 ft. high; on the 25th of May it was 14ft. high; on the 19th of May the first flowers opened; on the 27th of May it had attained its greatest heavily, with a total height of 18 ft.; its rate of daily growth varying from 6 to 8in., being on the average about 6in. a day. This plant will, probably, flower immediately after forming; as is the case with the common Agave Americana. In its native country it is said to attain the height of 30 ft., but this has never been known to flower in England, or, perhaps, in Europe, before. An illustration of this rare botanical phenomenon has, therefore, been sketched and engraved for our pages.

THE FOURCROYA LONGÆVA, A SPECIES OF AGAVE, FLOWERING IN THE GARDENS OF THE ROYAL BOTANIC SOCIETY, REGENT'S PARK.

THE FARM.

WHILE the Low Lands have been daily engaged down stairs in furnishing Mr. Alderman Sylverton with a speech upon the Select Murmin Committee up stairs have had regular meetings every day except Sunday and Friday. Mr. Hickwell's examination was resumed, and he described in detail the precautions taken at Hickwell Hall to prevent the spread of disease. In reply to Mr. Holland, he stated that he would have imported, and would still, diseased cattle from Holbeach-houses; but that there should be an appeal from the decision of inspectors in favour of great societies of private surgeons, as Professor Simonds has suggested. Mr. Hogg, who is connected with the import trade, did not think that any check was necessary in the case of cattle with foot and mouth, as they will, generally, get well as his reason in the latter case that they were brought over for immediate slaughter. Mr. W. Simmonds, the deputy-inspector at Birkwell, stated that the general condition of animals imported from abroad had steadily improved, but considered that the Irish cattle should not be excluded from the operation of the bill. On that point Mr. Gillett totally disagreed with him; but he would have the sheep affected with scab to be sent to market. He had no objection to the sale of cattle suffering from disease in the wharf, but he would not permit healthy animals to be slipped through because there were a few diseased amongst them.

Mr. Cosgrove, the chairman of the Farmer's Central Club, spoke to the ruinous effects, both on grazier and consumer—by stopping the droves of beast on their way to market, and exhausting the price of meat—the foot and mouth disease were causing, and the latter part of his evidence, in answer to Sir William Miles, was on the subject the committee could not go longer; the room was cleared; and the chairman announced, when the doors were opened again, that the committee had struck out of the schedule. Mr. Congreave was a most excellent John Bull witness, and gave his opinions in fact out of his head. He was asked, for instance, if the Prevention of Disease Bill wouldn't be a good one when that Act was in operation—he answered that he was not off his guard, and replied, "it might be, but we don't often see very good Acts." He thought that the Irish cattle diseases were mightily tickled. His terror of pleuro-pneumonia was not so great as to prevent him from importing it that winter, and he said he "had no objection to dine off an ox" on the second day of its arrival. Mr. Gillett, who is a Birmingham M.P., was asked in the lobby, face to face with Professor Gamgee, "that he should like peas and new potatoes with it." The Professor had rather a busy time of it between the two days' sessions, as the papers declared strong and view of them at first not in the most civil way) made a succession of the Irish cattle which they brought over and tact prevailed, and whatever objection might be taken to his argument, there was at least skill with which they pressed it.

He had been specially summoned by the committee to reply to the statements of Mr. Gillett, which had been considered an attack on his personal veracity," as regards his Edinburgh diary data. He was asked if he had ever known Scotch sweeps drive cows, dating in one instance from August, in two from October, and in the next from January, and he replied that he never had known it. The statements of these two gentlemen respecting the evidence on which Edinburgh disease orders were based were totally irreconcilable and conflicting, and it would almost take "the marrow of a Gerrow" to sift the matter. The calculations of the Agricultural Insurance Company for 1863 and 1864 respecting damages from disease in support of his case as regards Scotland, are rather curious. They show that out of 117,220 horses there were 7344 insured to the amount of £220,320; and that out of 97,816 cattle above six months old there were 3,000 insured to the amount of £60,000. The great difficulty would seem to be in getting properly qualified inspectors; and Mr. Cosgrove, in answer to Mr. Gilpin, expressed a break down altogether when so many thousand score of cattle and sheep are brought to market as Baker Street or Fallow Fields. Mr. Simmonds mentioned a curious instance in '59, where 104 head of cattle were declared by a London inspector to be diseased. He was called in, and found them to be perfectly sound; but the inspector would not give way, so they were re-shipped to Hull and brought to the London market by rail. There were butcher witnesses on Tuesday anxious, if they had a chance, to impress upon the committee that the penalty for having had meat should fall on those from whom they buy it, and not on themselves; and one witness thought that if diseased cattle were brought to the Metropolis it would be a regular nuisance, but to the graziers themselves to inform against each other, and so on to the end of the chapter. A short session to deal with a subject in which so many sensitive interests and conflicting opinions were

CHESS.

TO CORRESPONDENTS.

F. T. S., Bath.—It shall have an early insertion.

H. (Leicester).—Correct solution received.

C. B.—They shall be given next week, and your own problem reported on.

A. De K., Brussels.—A reply has been forwarded by post.

R. B. R.—Extremely ingenious; but, unfortunately, not one pawn in a thousand ever is changed in a manner to suit the purpose.

Alpha.—Your solutions are always correct and ingenious.

F. B., of Hexham.—No. 1 is removed by an enrichment at too easy; No. 2 is defective.

C. H. Stanley.—No. 1 has to be solved in one move; No. 2 is passable, but very obvious to good players.

C. H. Oc, New Zealand.—Utterly wanting in all the chief relative requisites of a good chess problem.

Communications to reach us before the 25th inst.

ERRATA OF DIAGRAM.—Your name shall be handed to the publisher of "I. B. of Bridport's" also Q—Correct.

A. B. W.—Cannot find it; we believe it would apply any multiples of the task in question.

Solution—You will find, we believe, that the mate may be accomplished in half a dozen different ways. Your problem shall be looked to. Q R to Q B 3rd, &c.

Solutions of Problem No. 1032, received from Alpha, The Cottage, Percy Street, Bath; Agnes, The Vale, Cornwall, Percy, T. W. G., Holborn, Rex and Co., Percy, H. C. L., Gosforth, Percy, C. F., Edinburgh, Percy, A. B., Percy, J. W., Percy, W. E. S., R. T. S., Percy, C. T., Edinburgh, Percy, A. Z., Percy, A. Z. A., Percy, A. Z. B., Percy, Cutbush, Tunley, A. B. C., Percy, H., Fleet, or Lyon, Percy, Cherry-pie, Stanwood, Lyon, Percy, Lyon, Fleet, Percy, Lyon, Percy, Lyon, Percy, Lyon

JOHN HUNTER.

JOHN HUNTER, though far from being adequately appreciated in his own day, is, by common consent of his successors, esteemed the greatest man that ever practised surgery amongst us. Considered merely as a surgeon, he was the author of many discoveries of great practical importance. His improvement of the operation for aneurism was undoubtedly the most brilliant discovery of his century in the surgical art. But it was less by his particular discoveries than by the general spirit of scientific investigation which he imparted to surgical practice, and by his demonstrations of its great inductive value, that he rendered such incalculable service to the whole medical profession. Born in 1728, the youngest of ten children, his education was almost entirely neglected in youth. Yet, by indefatigable industry and by concentrating upon his subsequent studies a mind that was at once eminently practical and philosophical, he mastered all that was then learnt of physiology, comparative anatomy, and the allied sciences. He left a name and fame which are more truly illustrious than that of some of the greatest conquerors; and this was done by him in spite of ill-health, long-continued pecuniary difficulties, and the coldness of his contemporaries. His wonderful museum, the nucleus of the grand collection of the Royal College of Surgeons, in Lincoln's-inn-fields, was sold at his death to Government for £15,000, in order to pay the debts which he had incurred by its formation, and to afford the means of support to his family, to whom it was almost all that he had to leave. This great public benefactor was anxious to form a complete catalogue of his collection. When he died the task of making the catalogue was intrusted to Sir Everard Home, Hunter's brother-in-law and only surviving executor; but only a very small portion of the nineteen folio manuscript volumes left by Hunter ever saw the light. On removing several bodies from under St. Martin's Church about three years ago, that of Hunter was found by Mr. Frank Buckland; and it was subsequently removed to Westminster Abbey, where a monumental brass now covers the new grave. But a sense of the obligations under which the whole medical profession lies with regard to John Hunter led to a public subscription, amounting to a thousand guineas, for a monument to his memory. The commission was given to Mr. Henry Weekes, R.A., and the result is the very fine statue which we have engraved. It is now at the Royal Academy; but will be placed, at the close of the Exhibition, in the Museum of the College of Surgeons. The sculptor's authority for the likeness was the well-known portrait of Hunter by Sir Joshua Reynolds, now in the Council Room of the same Museum; and the sculptor has also adhered to the portrait in the general position of the figure. This closeness of imitation was approved by the Memorial Committee, and was the more desirable, as the attitude in the portrait is said to have been highly characteristic of the man; while, under the different conditions of the two arts of painting and sculpture, there could not in this be anything approaching to what might have been considered a plagiarism. The statue is somewhat above life-size. John Hunter is represented as sitting, with one leg thrown across the other, with a pen in the hand which hangs down, and with the chin supported by the other hand; with the body turned, as it were, aside, the eyes looking intently upwards, and the whole attitude most felicitously suggesting a pause in the act of writing, to follow a train of thought. A scroll of paper at the feet, with the outlines of several skulls engraved upon it, illustrating the facial angles, serve to indicate the direction of his thoughts and the nature of his researches. It would be well if others of our public statues were as admirable, either in conception or execution, as Mr. Weekes's statue of John Hunter.

STATUE OF JOHN HUNTER, BY H. WEEKES, R.A., IN THE EXHIBITION OF THE ROYAL ACADEMY.

"THE SWING," BY W. L. THOMAS, IN THE EXHIBITION OF THE SOCIETY OF BRITISH ARTISTS.

"THE SWING."

WHY has not the subject of the water-colour drawing here engraved been often painted? Here is an incident, we say no way of everyday occurrence wherever there are children and a garden; yet the representation of it strikes us as being quite novel. Such a subject one might have expected to see frequently repeated by many of the host of English painters of child life and character; yet we hardly remember to have seen it attempted before, or, at all events, treated with the brightness and spirit of Mr. William Thomas's charming little drawing. The only painting which occurs to us at the moment as in the remotest degree analogous in subject is Collins's picture in the Sheepshanks Collection of a boy riding on a gate and being swung to and fro by one or two other boys, which is felicitously entitled "As Happy as a King." Assuredly our artist might as appropriately have christened his picture "As Happy as a Queen," only that queens nowadays are not all happy, nor do they all care to reign. The chief difference between the two is that the boy sways by the consent and aid of a small but all-powerful oligarchy, while this little Queen of hearts has mounted and maintains herself in her airy throne—which we hope is a secure though unstable one—by, we may say, universal suffrage, if not also by "right divine."

In the way of direct description of this picture we have little to offer. Mr. Thomas has rendered his drawing on wood too well for it to stand in need of verbal illustration. Of course the reader will see from the mallet and balls that the little lady has come into the garden to play croquet. Very likely she has already been roquetting and croqueting most successfully, and, having made the whole circuit of the lawn, has come to pass the interval till another game shall be commenced on the garden trapeze, on which, you see, she performs as fearlessly as a female Blondin or Léotard.

It is not easy to paint a figure being thus rapidly whirled through the air. To represent, for instance, drapery in motion, or, as it is called, "flying drapery," has always been recognised as a great difficulty in art. In Haydon's "Autobiography" there is an amusing account of the number of times he had to paint out some flying drapery in his picture of "Lazarus," because it seemed always to want a prop. It is no small merit of this drawing that the whole figure does not seem to want a prop; especially at all the details of the dress are made out quite distinctly. The artist appears to us to have, in particular, observed and well recalled that straightening of the body at a particular moment, which—as nearly as we can remember the impressions we enjoyed long ago—is necessary to renew the impetus which keeps one oscillating. We must, lastly, call attention to the excellent colouring of this drawing, as, likewise, of the "Minding Baby"—another drawing in the Suffolk-street Exhibition by the same artist; for which those who know Mr. Thomas only through the medium of wood engravings might not have given him credit. It would, however, be a great mistake to suppose that many artists who work on wood are not also painters. We need not refer to the number of Dutch masters who have left works on wood, owing that a large proportion of the most eminent painters of the day are, or have been, employed as draughtsmen, and many of them as engravers of designs drawn on wood for books and periodicals.

THE ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS.

No. 1265.—VOL. XLIV. SATURDAY, JUNE 25, 1864. WITH A SUPPLEMENT, FIVEPENCE

THE POLITICAL SITUATION.

IN the beginning of this year there were no anticipations of political turbulence, in this country at least, and there was nothing to lead to a belief that anything would occur to rouse a listless Parliament and a torpid people. No doubt there was reason to expect that international questions would arise with regard to which England would have something to say; and, looking to the scribe-like tendencies of our Minister for Foreign Affairs, it was conjectured that a great deal of ink would be shed, and that sharp encounters with the keen points of pens might take place between him and some or all of the official diplomatists of the Continent. It was, however, taken for granted that the normal and fratricidal blood-letting of the contending States of America would be all of that kind of thing that peaceful and insular England would have to shudder at. If there were ingenious political mechanicians who put this and that together and produced war as the result, they were little heeded by the bulk of this nation, who were content to trust to the neutral-tinted policy of the present Government in foreign affairs, just as much as they were willing to confide in Lord Palmerston to dilute party politics and to preserve a safe and decent middle course, so well adapted to its purpose that Tories and Radicals conceived that the very slightest deviation from it in their own direction would at any time satisfy their requirements. The financial arrangements of the peace-professing Chancellor of the Exchequer were accepted as the best proof of jog-trot Ministerial policy in all things; and reduced taxation, and, above all, an income tax reduced to the lowest percentage at which it has ever stood, were naturally taken as the best indications of a quiet summer of "rest and thankfulness." A political crisis was as little dreamt of as a Ministerial crisis, it being a possibility, in these days of faint distinctions in party creeds, for the latter to occur without involving the former. But in the middle of this more or less pleasant month of June we have seen a great change come over the spirit of our dream of the year. It may be that we are not in the midst of an angry and turbulent people; but it is clear that there exists a distrustful, an uneasy, an almost excited Parliament; there are no days of a week in which a seems Ministerial defeat may not eventuate; and the talk of war obstruction by England, single-handed, on behalf of Denmark, is as familiar on men's tongues as household words. There could be no more decided proof of what are the expectations of the hour than the fact that the Admiralty have absolutely, at last, given orders for the construction of efficient broadside guns for the use of the British fleet, in order that it may really be able to fulfil the boast—sometimes empty at the time it was made—that our squadrons were ready to go anywhere and to do anything. Then, too, the national barometer in the City points to "change." There has been a gradual diminution in the rage for speculation which has characterised the period of dealing in suppositions, who make up the corporation which is known under the name of the Money Market; and this, we hear, is a set because of some exhaustion of capital, for in the end even money is not only easy, but plentiful; the rate of discount has gone down, and will go down further; and the means of investment or of speculation, too often convertible terms, are by no means deficient. But even the mercantile players at loans are brought to a stand by the presentiment of that abrupt check to the flow of commerce which inevitably accompanies the first announcement of war. In short, all things portend the approach of a state of things which is aptly and intelligibly described in the phrase—a crisis.

THE PRINCE OF WALES AT THE APPOSITION OF ST. PAUL'S SCHOOL, ON WEDNESDAY, JUNE 15.—SEE NEXT PAGE.

It has been for some time understood that the regular Opposition in Parliament have been urged by their chiefs to strike a direct blow at her Majesty's Government, as they have already been secret councils held, at which the propriety of moving a vote of no confidence in Ministers has been discussed by the leaders of the Conservative party. This may be supposed to augur that they are prepared to take upon themselves the responsibility of administering the affairs of the nation at the present moment, and that they believe that they are equal to dealing with difficulties, for the solution of which by their impeachment they would declare the Government to be incapable. It is true that there have been rumours which indicate a less direct course of proceeding. It is hinted that, trusting to the known courage of the Premier and his continued belief in his popularity in the country, they hope that a defeat of the Government in the existing House of Commons would lead to a dissolution of Parliament. In such a case the Opposition are under the impression that no great has been the reaction in the public mind, in a Conservative sense, a general election will eventuate in a positive Tory majority; that before the meeting of the new Parliament the Danish question will have settled itself in some way or other, and that a Derby-Disraeli Ministry might be installed on the ruins of the Palmerston Government after the latter had been decidedly crushed by a formal vote of a fresh and vigorous House of Commons.

But, whatever may be the tactics of the Opposition, if they really mean action the moment is at hand. It is no mystery that it was on the question of foreign policy, and especially on the Danish question, that Lord Derby and Mr. Disraeli actually, if assailed at all. Pending the sittings of the Conference, it was not within the limits of precedent—nor, indeed, of party prudence—to make a regular attack on the Government; but it was emptied in carrying on negotiations professedly on behalf of that nation with whose rights, or with whose cause, the sympathies of the majority of the House are supposed to be enlisted. It would scarcely be possible for a defence from the Treasury Bench in such a case; the House would, as a body, have interfered to protect the assailed. On the result, therefore, of the Conference has depended the movements of the party which avowedly watching its opportunity to make a bid for power. Unless anything can be made of the formal adjournment of the Conference from Wednesday to Saturday, for the purpose of starving off the threatened onslaught, we repeat that the Government has practically gained a victory. It is no longer concealed that the deliberations of the Conference have been brought to a close, and that the efforts of English diplomacy to obtain such terms for Denmark as were deemed sufficient to meet the exigency of the case have been entirely in vain. The last resolution which was made with a view to adjust the dissidence of opinion which hopelessly prevailed in the Conference between the friends and the enemies of Denmark has been contemptuously and haughtily refused by Prussia and Austria. Those Powers decline to submit the question of the line of boundary which was to mark the portion of territory which was to be wrested from Denmark and given to Germany, to the arbitration of some Sovereign of Europe. Truth to say, the Danish Plenipotentiaries as resolutely refused to accept this proposition, and on the ground that a foreigner conclusion with regard to any boundary line was inadmissible. Hence the Ambassadors' memorandum of Denmark, to which neither her King nor her people would consent. And here, it seems to us, will be the weak point of her Majesty's Government in our parliamentary discussions which may arise on this matter. The indictment will aver that England had been beaten from every stand which she made in favour of the Danes, and had at last accepted a compromise which was wholly inconsistent with her avowed policy. It will be strongly put that this could not have happened unless the just influence of this country in the international councils of Europe had been lost or frittered away by the inefficiency and the vacillation of her Plenipotentiaries, who represented not the strength and the firmness, but the feebleness and the instability of purpose, of the Ministry, which, while it is nominally responsible to the Crown, is, in truth and in fact, amenable to the judgment of the people of England.

It seems certain that the armistice, which expires on the 26th inst., will not be renewed, and hostilities between the Danes and the German Powers will recommence. The question therefore at once arises—what will England do now? It is held by many who are true lovers of peace that if this country interferes promptly and actively in behalf of Denmark anything like a permanent or general war might be avoided. It is conceived that the presence of a British fleet in the Baltic would strike terror at least into Austria, already somewhat lukewarm in an affair which, up to this time, has only tended to the glorifying—such as it is—of Prussia, and giving her an advantage in that race for supremacy in Germany which has long been in course of running between the Emperor and the King of Prussia. Such a step would be certain to put Hungary up into revolution and set Venetia into revolt; while such a thing as a rising in the Polish provinces, both of Austria and of Prussia, is not wholly an impossibility. In such a case, moreover, the attitude of Austria to do at home, and the active alliance between this State and Prussia against Denmark would lose half its vitality. Much more than this might be predicated as the result of a step in which England should show that she was willing to go to war in the case of Denmark ostensibly, but, in truth, with a view to recovering her lost prestige in the councils of nations. Doubtless this would be a grand and a chivalrous course; but it remains to be seen whether a peaceful people, conscious of their innate strength, of their vast resources, and their tenacity of purpose in whatever they seriously undertake, may not think it better worth while to await the issues of a national prosperity at its highest flow merely for the purpose of disabusing Germany of the notion that the power and the courage of England have departed. Surely this, of all countries, can look on from afar off and form a war for an idea, and to trust to time and events to prove that England has not dwelt so long in a political and social Capua as to have lost, or even weakened, her ancient qualities, which have won for many a stricken field and asserted in many a well-won victory. It may be that what is called a vigorous, that is, a warlike, policy at this moment may save the Ministry from a party conflict in which they may find it hard to hold their own; but we believe that the preservation of peace will ultimately be their salvation, and that they will be sustained in that policy by the unmistakable voice of the people of this country in any appeal which may be made to them.

APPOSITION DAY AT ST. PAUL'S SCHOOL.

THE public distribution of prizes and recital of speeches at St. Paul's School on Wednesday week was honoured with the presence of the Prince of Wales. The Right Hon. Spencer Compton, Lord Orby, Hon. and Mount-Edgcumbe, General Knollys, and Colonel Keppel were there about two o'clock. He was received by the High Master, the Rev. Dr. Kynaston, and the Rev. Dr. Gilbert, and by the Court of Governors' Company. They entertained him with a luncheon at a table spread in the covered playground, which was tastefully decorated with flags for the occasion and lit up with wax candles; for even on a summer afternoon that part of the building requires artificial light. On his royal Highness was conducted through the master's house to the school-room, which is the largest room in the house, and which for the numerous company invited, while raised seats were erected on each side, a platform at the north end, and a gallery at the south and for St. Paul's scholars, old and young. The galleries were specially filled with ladies and some of the masters and boys also commemorated the names of many illustrious men who have received their education at the school. At the north gallery was a platform for the Rev. High Master and many distinguished visitors, including the Archbishops of York and Armagh, the Bishop of Rochester, Lord Lyttelton, Lord Chief Justice Erle, Lord Campbell, and Lord Truro. Immediately below a space was reserved for the Prince of Wales, Duke of Cambridge, and some of the Governors of the Mercers' Company. When the Prince entered he was loudly cheered by the boys and on the Rev. Dr. Kynaston, the High Master, the Prince conducted to a magnificent chair of state, which he had once before occupied when he visited the City and Guilds Institute. The proceedings opened with the recital of an English version of an ode in commemoration of the Duke of Wellington, by Mr. Jackson, the assistant for his subject the precept which meets the eyes of every pupil in the school from the time he first enters it, and is inscribed, in the maxim painted on the glass windows of Dean Colet's ancient school, the Surveyor-Accountant of the Mercers' Company, the Rev. Markland Barnard, M.A., while the Head Master read the list of the awards in presenting the prizes as follows:—The Governors' prize for Greek verse, Alexander Hamilton Japp; Latin Essay, Charles E. A. Knox, and E. W. South highly commended. Latin hexameters, Richard Lee; Latin Alcaics, Charles E. A. Knox; Latin elegiacs highly commended. Sixth Prize for Latin Essay, F. Peck; C. Smith second prize; E. J. Knox, F. Peck, and C. Smith marked highly commended. Prize for English Essay, F. A. Upton; C. H. Taylor and E. Bowen highly commended. Prize for Latin for English Poem, Venables and Upton equal. The speeches, or Shakspere, Charles Edmund Jones; Principles of music and literature, were then recited by J. A. Kemps, M'Gill, Peck, C. Smith, C. B. Taylor, Dimmant, Bennett, Mason, F. A. Upton, M'Carthy, and Stewart. Others were in character from Shakspeare, one from Shakspeare's "King John," one from "The Rivals," and one from "Le Bourgeois Gentilhomme," translated into English verse (laughter). The Prince asked a holiday for the boys, but was told that, by the ancient usage of the School, none could only be granted at the request of the reigning Sovereign, or of some one of the Bishops, whereupon the Prince graciously granted the holiday, by the mouthpiece of the Archbishop of York, claimed each his day, and so obtained for the school a vacation of an entire week. We have engraved an illustration of these proceedings.

The King of the Belgians has returned to Laeken from the excursion in which he was accompanied to

The Hon. Robert H. Meade has been appointed private secretary to Earl Russell, vice Lord Wodehouse.

William Begg, the son of Burns's sister Isabella, well known to every reader of the poet's works, died recently at Dublin.

A provisional committee for the colonisation of Palestine by persons of the Jewish faith has been formed at Berlin.

The sale of the Hawkins collection, which took place on the 14th, the first three days on stock and nineths in trade took effect yesterday (Friday). The days on Saturday, Monday, and Tuesday next.

From a War-Office return it appears that, on the 1st of April last, there were 12,000 Roman Catholics, 10,000 Presbyterians, 1,200 other Protestants, and 56,000 Roman Catholics. In the Royal Marines, at the same date, there were 1,000 Presbyterians, 1,000 Presbyterians, 1,000 other Protestants, and 1,848 Roman Catholics.

The Journal de St. Pétersbourg states that the harbour of Sebastopol is being cleared of the hulls of the ships sunk at the entrance of the port at the beginning of the Crimean War. The same journal adds that in three years the railroad from Moscow to Kourak will be extended to Sebastopol.

Intelligence has been received in Liverpool of the destruction by fire of the New York river-steamer Berkshire. The intelligence comes via New York, and is dated June 8. The despatch says:—The steamer Berkshire was burned at Bogg Island, eight miles below Brooklyn. The fire originated in the lamp-room, caused by the explosion of a lamp. The steamer had about 150 passengers, forty of whom are supposed to be lost.

FOREIGN AND COLONIAL NEWS.

FRANCE.

The Prince Imperial, having been permitted by the Emperor to make a choice among the works at the Exhibition of Living Artists, has made his first purchase—"The Wounded Drummer," by M. Armand-Dumaresq.

The Japanese Ambassadors, having signed the treaty—the object of their journey to Paris—are on their way back to their own country.

The commercial treaty between France and Switzerland, the negotiations relative to which have been going on for some time, were signed on Tuesday.

Wednesday week was the last day of this year's exhibition of paintings in the Palais de l'Industrie. It was opened on the 1st of May, and has been well attended. On Sundays, when the admission was free, it was crowded to excess.

Dunciliary visits have been made to the houses of about twenty individuals, among whom are Mdlle. Carnot, Gambetta, Ollivier, Dorian, and Floquet. They are said to have been suspected of an illegal association at the late elections. These decisions, we think, will not be confined to Paris, but were made simultaneously throughout France.

An iron-plated frigate, named the Flandre, was launched at Cherbourg on Thursday morning.

A new line of postal steamers between Havre and New York was inaugurated at the former port on Wednesday with much ceremony.

Official despatches from Algeria represent that peace is daily becoming more decisive. General Deligny has penetrated to the centre of the Sahara, the capital of the province of Oran, and similar successes have been achieved in the Tell. It is thought that military operations will not be resumed before the autumn.

The Moniteur announces a series of engagements in Mexico, which have resulted in success to the French arms, with comparatively small loss of life. Juarez is represented to be wandering about unable to create any power in the country. The provincial states, indeed, that the progress of the French arms is so rapid and steady that the Supreme Assembly, on his arrival, will find the pacification of the country almost complete.

PORTUGAL.

In Wednesday's sitting of the Cortes Senor Pacheco, in reply to a question from Senor Molino, said:—"The squadron in the Pacific will be reinforced. The outrages which will be committed upon the assassins of Talaubo are punished and it is proved that the Peruvian Government is innocent." The sitting ended in the death of Alexandre, recently Spanish Minister in Peru."

General Prim has left Portugal and entered Espariero, with whom he had a long interview.

In the Senate several members have spoken against the ancient constitutional privileges enjoyed by the Basque provinces over the other provinces of the country.

ITALY.

The Senate on Tuesday adopted the bill for the capitalisation of the land tax by ninety-six against fifty-five votes.

Garibaldi's departure from Caprera on board the Duke of Sutherland's yacht for the baths of Ischia.

An association, under the name of the Alpine Club, has recently been established at Turin, the object of which is to facilitate scientific exploration of these vast fields of ice, perpetual snow, and abysses of muscles hitherto only penetrated in the Italian Alps, except by up so means inferior in scientific interest, as well as natural beauty, to those of the Swiss and Savoyard Alps.

The Pope took part, yesterday week, in a religious service celebrating the anniversary of his coronation. His Holiness subsequently received the congratulations of the Sacred College, the prelates, and other distinguished persons.

AUSTRIA, PRUSSIA, AND RUSSIA.

The Emperor of Austria arrived at Carlsbad on Wednesday. The King of Prussia, accompanied by Herr von Bismarck, left Berlin the that the meeting of the German Sovereigns and the Czar has any reference to a Holy Alliance or the slightest hostile feeling towards any Power whatever.

HOLLAND.

The King and Queen went last week to Loo, where the anniversaries of her Majesty's birth and marriage were celebrated. The first fell on the 17th inst., the second on the 18th inst.

The election for half the members of the States-General of the Netherlands took place on the 14th inst., and it appears that the Anti-Reformers have obtained a decided advantage over the Liberals.

DENMARK.

There have been some differences between the King, the Ministry, and the Privy Council, but they are settled. The Dagblad says no Ministerial changes are expected, and that the report of a Schleswig Cabinet is unfounded.

The Danish Government has not yet given the sanction of Schleswig.

AMERICA.

The battle of the 3rd inst. in Virginia, referred to in our last, was a more serious matter than was at first stated. Grant appears to have attacked the Confederate position on the left of the Rapidan river, with the view of driving them across that river. He was repulsed with a loss of between 7,000 and 8,000 men (some say 10,000, or even more), and the experience thus gained is stated to have convinced him that new combinations were necessary to effect the capture of Richmond. On the morning of the 4th inst. he was in full force on the left of the Confederates because the assailants, but, according to Federal statements, they were repulsed with great loss. The latest news from New York, to the morning of the 11th inst., adds little further information. Rumours were current that General Grant had moved his left from Lock's front, and passed a portion of his troops over to the south bank of the Chickahominy, at Jones's Bridge Station, and had threatened to besiege Lee's works. It seems certain that between the 3rd and the 10th Grant had not again attempted to attack Lee's lines.

In Western Virginia General Hunter has fought and routed a Confederate force under General Jones, who was killed.

Sherman had made a further advance, having got far on the road to Marietta. He had gotten to the opposite side of

A Federal pon-boats the Water Witch, had been captured in Ortaban Sound, Georgia.

In Kentucky the Confederates were making some show under Morgan; and on the Mississippi they held Fort Columbia.

General Franklin and Colonel Cochrane had accepted the nomination of the Cleveland Convention.

The news from Mexico is this, however, is the news that the Baltimore Convention has unanimously nominated Mr. Lincoln for President, and Mr. Andrew Johnson for Vice-President, and that Lincoln has accepted his nomination.

President Lincoln has approved the proposal to amend the Federal Constitution by the insertion of a clause prohibiting slavery.

The clause in the Enrolment Act which permits the commutation of personal service for a payment of 300 dollars had been expunged by Congress.

A sanitary fair was opened at Philadelphia on the 7th inst.

The officers of the Russian fleet had been entertained by the city of Boston at a grand banquet at the Revere House.

The citizens of Philadelphia had presented the wife of General Meade with a handsomely-furnished house in that city.

Gold, having reached 39, left off at 981 prem. on the 10th.

INDIA.

The intelligence from India by the Bombay mail is generally satisfactory. A strong speculative mania was raging in Bombay. Four new banks and two associations on the credit mobilier system had been started, and the capital all subscribed. Preparations were being made to exact retribution from the Bloodaxeese for the late insult to the British Envoy. The frontier tribes were pretty quiet, the Sultanas especially having yielded to all our demands. The convoy was at Simla, and would not return to Calcutta till October.

CHINA.

A telegram from Shanghai, dated May 7, states that Major Gordon and the Futai had three times assaulted Chang-Chow-Foo and been each time repulsed with great loss.

THE FIGHT BETWEEN THE ALABAMA AND THE KEARSARGE OFF CHERBOURG.

ONE of the most interesting naval engagements that has ever taken place near our shores was that of Sunday morning, November 13, 1864, between the Alabama and the Kearsarge off Cherbourg. It was there the Alabama arrived in Cherbourg on the 11th inst., for the purpose of refitting and repairs, after two years' cruising, chiefly in the East Indies. Our readers may perhaps recollect that we published in our Number of April 2 an interesting letter, with a sketch by Captain Allen Young, representing the Alabama in Malacca Straits on the day before Christmas Day, when she captured and destroyed the unarmed vessel Martaban, or Texan Star. A day or so after her arrival at Cherbourg the Federal steamer Kearsarge came in after her, and, instead of coming to anchor, continued to cruise backwards and forwards just outside the harbour, at Cherbourg, challenging the Alabama to fight. The Alabama accepted the challenge thus given, only asking for a few days to complete her arrangements. About two o'clock on Sunday morning, June 19, a steamer left Cherbourg harbour, and the Kearsarge was then several miles out to sea-ward, with her steam up, ready for action. The steamer piloted ship of war Couronne followed the Alabama out of harbour, and stayed within the vessels were in sight, and then left her, after being to see that there was no violation of the law of nations by a fight taking place within the limits of French waters. The English steam-yacht Deerhound, belonging to Mr. John Lancaster, of Bradley Hall, Wigan, Lancashire, and the steam-yacht Open, belonging to Mr. James Bryant, of the Royal Western Yacht Club, followed at a safe distance to witness the conflict. We are indebted to Mr. Bryant for the sketch from which our Engraving is taken. It is thus narrated by Captain Semmes, in his official report to Mr. J. M. Mason, Minister of the Government of the Confederate States in London :—

Southampton, June 21, 1864.

SIR,—I have the honour to inform you that, in accordance with my intention, as previously announced to you, I steamed out of the port of Cherbourg, on the forenoon of the 19th inst., and offered battle to the Kearsarge, for the purpose of engaging the enemy's steamer Kearsarge, which had been lying in the port for some days previous, and had sent a challenge to the Alabama to decide the enemy, with his head off shore, at a distance of about seven miles. We were three quarters of an hour in coming up with her. The enemy then turned my guns to starboard, and made all my preparations for engaging the enemy on that side. We were within about a mile of each other when the enemy suddenly wheeled, and, bringing his head in shore, presented his starboard battery to me. My battery was also presented at the same moment, and when I opened on him with solid shot, to which he replied in a few minutes with shell, the action became general on both sides.

The enemy was gallantly fought, his ship coming handsomely into action, and ever passing each other two and a-half times, at a distance from each other of from a quarter to half a mile. We fought the battle altogether with solid shot, reserving our shell. Some ten or fifteen minutes after the commencement of the action our cartridges began to give out, and many of our shot were spent. The enemy was immediately replaced by another at the nine-mast-head. The firing now became very hot, and the enemy's shot and shell were falling all over the ship, both shrieking down, killing, and disabling a number of men in different parts of the ship.

Perceiving that our fire was not telling enough against the enemy's iron sides, were doing him but little damage, I returned to the conclusion I had arrived at from the time consumed in coming up with the enemy, that I must run him down. After the lapse of about one hour and ten minutes our ship was ascertained to be in a sinking condition, the water having already come in over the lower deck between decks, opening large apertures, through which the water rushed with great violence.

For some few minutes I had hopes of being able to reach the French coast, for which purpose I had put the ship in motion, but the fire of the enemy did not fade as we neared the ship filled so rapidly, however, that before we could run her on shore, or get her into shoal water, it was apparent that we were certainly on the point of sinking. I now hauled down my colours, to prevent the further destruction of life, and hoped to save the lives of the remnant of our crew.

Although we were now but 400 yards from each other, the enemy fired upon me five times after my colours had been struck. It is difficult to suppose that a ship of war of a Christian nation could not have done this intentionally.

We now commended all our exertions to securing the wounded, and such of the boys of the ship as were unable to swim. These were dispatched in my second cutter, the only boat remaining in the ship, which succeeded in getting them to places of safety.

In seventy minutes after my furnace fires had been extinguished, and the ship had been cleared of everything, every man, in obedience to a previous order which had been given the crew, jumped overboard, and endeavoured to save himself.

There was no appearance of any boat coming to me from the enemy after my ship was destroyed. Fortunately, however, the steam-yacht Deerhound, owned by a gentleman of Lancashire, England, Mr. John Lancaster, who was himself on board—deserved to be the subject of special notice—steamed with a number of both officers and men from the water. I was fortunate enough myself also to escape to the shelter of this vessel, together with about forty others, all told.

The crew of the Kearsarge rent one, and then, tardily, another boat into the water, and succeeded in picking up a number of my men, who were swimming about alongside the enemy's ship with the wounded that her own officers who had fallen into the water had thrown overboard. Some of my wounded men were also picked up by the boats of the enemy, and, after having been conducted for the purpose, placed perpendicularly from the rail to the waiter's edge, the whole crowd rose by a line, and were thus hauled over the high sides of the armour beneath.

The plunking had been ripped off in every direction by our shot and shell, the chain hooks and iudeed in many places, and formed partly into the ship's side. She was most effectively guarded, however, in this manner from penetration. The enemy was much damaged in other parts, but to what extent I am unable to say, as I could not see his hull distinctly.

My officers and men behaved with great coolness and gallantry; and, though they have lost their ship, they have not lost honour.

Where all behaved so well, it would be invidious in me to discriminate, and I cannot stop myself the pleasure of saying that Mr. Kell, my First Lieutenant, deserves great credit for the fine condition of the battery, and for the fire which, with regard to her battery, magazine, and shell rooms, and that he rendered me great assistance by remaining at his station below until the ship sunk.

The enemy was heavier than myself, both in ship, battery, and crew; but I did not know until after the action was over that he was also iron-clad.

Our total loss in killed and wounded is thirty—to wit, nine killed, twenty-one wounded.

I have the honour to be, very respectfully, your obedient servant,

RAPHAEL SEMMES,
Captain, C.S.N.

The Deerhound brought to Southampton Captain Semmes, thirteen officers, and twenty-six men of the Alabama. Captain Winslow has escaped the fate of their comrades taken on board the Kearsarge and made prisoners of war. The crew of the Deerhound, numbering 16 all told, at the time she went out to fight. The Kearsarge returned to Cherbourg for coal and provisions in the afternoon. She had received no damage to the Alabama's crew, and nine more were saved by a French pilot-boat. Two of the wounded Confederates were subsequently landed and taken to the Cherbourg hospital.

We shall be able, in our next week's Number, to present some additional illustrations of this naval duel in the English Channel. The sketch taken by Mr. Bryant on board the Hornet is engraved on another page. It was received by us on Tuesday, accompanied with the following note from that gentleman, to whom we owe our best thanks for his prompt assistance so courteously offered :—

Ryde, Isle of Wight, Monday, June 20, 1864.

SIR,—Having witnessed the fight between the Alabama and the Kearsarge yesterday morning off Cherbourg, I inclose a sketch done at the time the Alabama went down. If you will kindly put it in your Paper I shall feel obliged. Yours, truly, JAMES BRYANT.

ECHOES OF THE WEEK.

AS action in the Channel upon a Sunday morning, when prayers for peace and good will were being put up to Heaven, and the English man was enjoying an amount of quietude in which he acknowledges his chief happiness consists, was an event not to be passed over by our numerous writers. Some determine to be moral about it, as if war could be judged by the canons of morality. "Sunday," says a writer in the Times, "is very often a day of business, and of pleasure to men of war." But diplomacy, let us instance the Conference, is to all intents a work of business and necessity, and was having for its end something special in the way of peace and restraint, is far above or below the ordinary rules of morality, which is necessarily of a low type. The exultation of the great body of the English are entirely with Captain Semmes and his gallant crew. Although the Alabama is a Confederate cruiser, it is probable that his attack on the Kearsarge was a necessity. The Alabama has been two years at sea, has lost her anchors by rotting chains, having no time to regret, at least, the brave English surgeon who, at his work of mercy, fell a victim to the Alabama's shot. Then comes her relief. So strong and sympathetic a note did this sea-fight strike that the Queen herself sent a telegram of welcome to the Kearsarge, a man unused to the melting mood, commences his leading article with a downright assertion :—

Fathers deep in Norman waters lies the good ship Alabama—

an accidental piece of erasure over so much better than many of the labored Latin-English verses of Southey and Coleridge.

A novel method of fighting General Lee has been adopted—if we believe the Morning Herald—by Sir Charles Wood, General Grant. That soldier has commenced "digging," that is, we suppose, the process of demrine Lee's position, which, by the-way, that prudent commander can, in the end, defy. But, if Grant succeeds, he will be playing really means retiring to a stronger position, tant pis for Grant. In the mean time, Sir Charles Wood, the Secretary for War, has found length of the telegram prep out. Ten thousand men have been lost in one fight, out of 120,000 men, and the loss of five thousand in a useless brush—an affair of no moment—with Lee; and gold has risen to 185 premium. Sir Charles Wood, the Times says, "does not look at the Northerners were very sanguine; and the knowledge that he has not been deceived by them will be one of the most valuable lives, does not give us any comfort. Cannot an attempt be made to buy Lee? It is not our duty to do so." Let our offer be that of a peacemaker, as humble as it can be, but let it be made. Let it be made before circumstances crop out which will render interference impossible for us.

The difficulties of the Conference, which by the time this reaches our readers will have been commenced, appear to have been amazingly increased by circumstances which are based upon two principles. The first is, that the Queen of Denmark in Germany this war of aggression is not owing to the King of Prussia or his Ministers, but to the Diet, which is the representative of the reality which the leaders of Germany have moved. What does the Emperor of Austria say to this? Is he not the leading power? And now the Conference has at last really ended. Both Prussia and Austria have declared war on England, and Denmark herself seems most willing to trust to war than to peace. It is clear, from every that mediation by the Emperor of the French had been offered, but that it was declined by the Austrian Government, which has represented at the Conference. So far as we can see, everything points to the fact that the Conference has been a mere farce, and that very last quarter whence two years ago we could have expected it.

The Conference, as we have said, has broken up, and the spectators, or a portion of them, are much more eager for the lively progress of Lambkin's Derby Day than the proceedings of Lord Clarendon's; and there is a capital story of two subalterns in an out-station who amused their leisure moments by betting on the number of flies between their toe-willing servants. Thaddy and Patrick at last fell to fisticuffs, which, however, were soon covered around them, each teaching his fellow how to plant a blow. "Come, Pat, you're down." "Down, is it?" cried the lieutenant, throwing out his fist as an example. The fight was renewed, and Pat was again victorious. The game is now changed from a duello to a parti-quarre, which was only interrupted by the arrival of the Times' Special Correspondent, who ordered both officers into arrest. Something like this has been the case with Denmark. The Times' Special, in a wonderful unanimity they all assert that English honour wants nothing more than to fight for the cause of the Danes with Germany. Bismarck flatters the French Emperor, and hints Dane, and Napoleon, remembering the Crimea, declines. We are more cheaply extended than by any Prussia coolly insults us, and we have no alliances to fall back upon. Our proposals even when we have won over the other parties; and to fight Prussia, with all the present belligerents are very likely to come to blows, like the subalterns, whilst the combatants are fighting, Austria will step in with a rule and settle the difference his own way.

Such, we fear, is the case. Prussia, we say, is cast, arbitration; and the Kings of Holland and Italy were proposed as arbitrators. Should it be so, we may be sure that Napoleon will contrive in every way to accrue to Lord Palmerston and his Foreign Secretary, who is at present in Paris, the odium of the quarrel.

A pleasant note comes from Italy. Garibaldi has at last spoken, and, in a letter to Mr. Peter Taylor, M.P., declares that the English of all classes most warmly and asserts that he left England "without any kind of bitterness." Another question between Mr. Gladstone and the working men—of whom, by-the-way, he is now the accepted leader—is therefore set at rest for ever.

The Queen has left Osborne for Balmoral. A few garrison guns were fired in honour of the day; the daughters of soldiers at that establishment presented bouquets to her Majesty, and Prince Arthur had a fete, the Duke of Cambridge made a very sensible speech, and the next morning the country read with pleasure the following letter from the Army List, of the surviving officers who fought at Waterloo, and are now on the full pay :—"Lieutenant-General Sir Hew Ross has followed as a consequence, and the English W before the names of only nine officers of the Waterloo army. The question then is, if we have, alas! only one major and two captains, and there is not the name of a single lieutenant-colonel, how long will the necessary oblivion will cause that anniversary to pass over as unnoticed as that of Hamilton or Malplaquet.

That Sir Hew Ross, the last Col. which is so very well informed that Jupiter Senior (as well as Junior) quotes it, has been misled, and has misled others, is proved by the appointment of Major-General Gossage to a "gallant Captain," and all the newspapers, which are glad to see Sir Hew Ross's information "so particularly interesting," sent the report flying over the country. But the "Son of Thunder" is not to be misled. Jupiter Senior, in the Army List of present date called—changes being rung according to the inpressy of the moment—has not a word to say to Sir Hew. The ringing lady does not retire from the stage, nor does she approach the High Mightiness. She is still at Brighton, but is expected at Liverpool in September, proceed to Edinburgh and elsewhere, and reappear in London, in January, in a new play, translated by Mr. Oakford from Casimir Delavigne.

Wellington College, as an aristocratic place of learning, although very young, is making a good race with Harrow, Eton, and Rugby. It would have been, perhaps, as well to have called it a school, but then it would have had to be called after a man, and Wellington there three hundred years; this, however, is apropos of boots only; that we should have had a Duke of Wellington, a Prince Arthur and Princess of Wales will lunch at the college, and afterwards listen to the speeches of the Duke of Cambridge and Lord Palmerston.

The author of "Adam Bede" contributes a story to the new number of the Cornhill Magazine, which is one of those delicious little bits which have made George Eliot so famous.

Mr. Tennyson's new volume of poems, so long announced, is to appear in the middle of July. Rumours say its title is to be "Idylls of the Beach."

The actresses are already beating up for contributions to their stalls for the Dramatic Fete at the Crystal Palace. Let us hope some good genius will extemporise something useful as well as pretty which can be sold for five shillings and yield half profit. Pen-wipers, autographs of their favourite authors, pincushions by pretty seamstresses, and bricks of hair cut from the oldest stage wig and sold as having once appertained to a prima donna, are scarcely worth carrying away.

LATEST NEWS FROM ABROAD.

The following telegram has been received through Mr. Reuter's office :—

THE DANO-GERMAN WAR.—Berlin, June 22.—The semi-official Nord Deutsche Zeitung of to-day, says :—Advices received here from Schleswig state that the troops are again moving northwards to take up their position. Thus we are again on the eve of war. A two months' prolongation of the armistice has been rejected, and the line of the Schlei is maintained as the utmost concession.

COUNTRY NEWS.

The Queen has approved of Don Cirilo de Barcalcegui as Consul at Liverpool for the Queen of Spain.

The Judge of the County Court at Sheffield has decided that a servant who has been in the service of his master a month is not a hired servant without notice.

Viscount Ossington, the Conservative member for East Sussex, has issued an address to his constituents, announcing his intention to retire from the representation of the county at the next dissolution of the present Parliament.

The Dublin Evening Mail understands that the Lord Lieutenant has appointed Lord Lurgan to the lord lieutenancy of the county of Armagh, vacant by the death of the Earl of Gosford.

A handsome testimonial was the other day presented to Mr. James Craven, senior, of Hopkinstown, Tyrone, Newcastle, by a number of subscribers interested in the commercial prosperity of that district, to which Mr. Craven has for many years been useful servant and representative on the Tyne Conservancy Board. The gift prepared for this occasion was a silver salver of Mr. Craven himself. The presentation, a local artist of considerable talent, Mr. William Armstrong presided, and delivered the picture to Mr. Craven, with a suitable address and his personal regards.

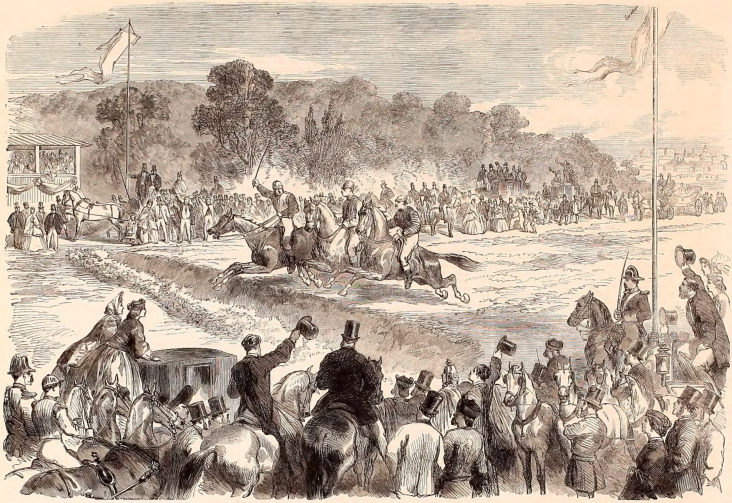
Colonel M'Murdo reviewed a large force of the Midland Counties Volunteer Artillery, numbering in all 1,200, on the seat of the Duke of Buckingham. There was a large attendance of volunteers of all arms—horse, foot, and artillery—many having come down from town, together with the South Middlesex, under the command of Lord Randolph, was conspicuous. There were twelve companies of artillery, and the manœuvres were very good. The evolutions were performed with the greatest precision, the movements of all the other arms of the service, and the celerity, steadiness, and precision with which they were gone through called forth the praise of the inspecting officer.

WILLS AND BEQUESTS.

The will of the most noble Elizabeth, Duchess of Gordon, of Trinity Lodge, Edinburgh, N.B., was proved in her Majesty's Court of Probate in London on the last inst.—the executors being the Right Hon. James Abercromby, Lord of Session, and Henry B. Cox and Charles Lancelot Prior, Esqs., both of Craig's-court, Westminster. The personalty was sworn under £20,000. The testatrix, the Dowager Duchess of Alexander Gordon, had married, in 1767, the fourth Duke of Gordon, who died in 1836; little stations. Her Grace's will bears date September 20, 1861, and appointed annuities, made charitable bequests, etc., she bequeaths a sum of £2,000 towards the building of the Gordon Schools and for the benefit of the Female School of Industry, Aberdeen, and the residue of her estate she bequeaths to her relatives and personal friends, and she has bequeathed the residue of her property to the Right Hon. Duke of Brodie. Legacies are left to servants—to two of them £200 each, to another £400, and to the others sums ranging from £100 to £50.

The will of Francis Edward Smedley, Esq., of Grove Lodge, Regent's Park, who died on the 10th inst., at Harley Street, Cavendish Square, the London Court under £20,000 personalty. The executors are the Rev. Henry Hall Dixon, Esq., of Bedford-square, and Messrs. Lee and Co., of Clement's Inns, Strand. The testator bequeaths to his wife, Mrs. Mary Ann Smedley, Burke, and George Montagu Hall, Esqs., of Jermyn-street, Piccadilly. The will bears date April 23, 1861. Among the legacies numerous, the testator has bequeathed to his mother his residence, Beech Lodge, and the furniture, plate, and wines therein, and also the sum of £500 per annum for her life, and to his sister Elizabeth and upon her decease an annuity of £250 to her mother. To other relatives he has bequeathed legacies amounting to £1,000. To Miss Rev. Herr, Lutheran minister, Reading and endowment fund, £1,000; to Miss Alla, Donegal, Ireland, in lieu of a legacy to her, at her own request. To several of his domestic servants he has bequeathed sums of £100 each; to executors £500 each; and to his servants liberal legacies. All bequests are to be paid free of duty. The residue, the testator directs, is to be realised and to said son-in, Mesrela Dute Smedley.

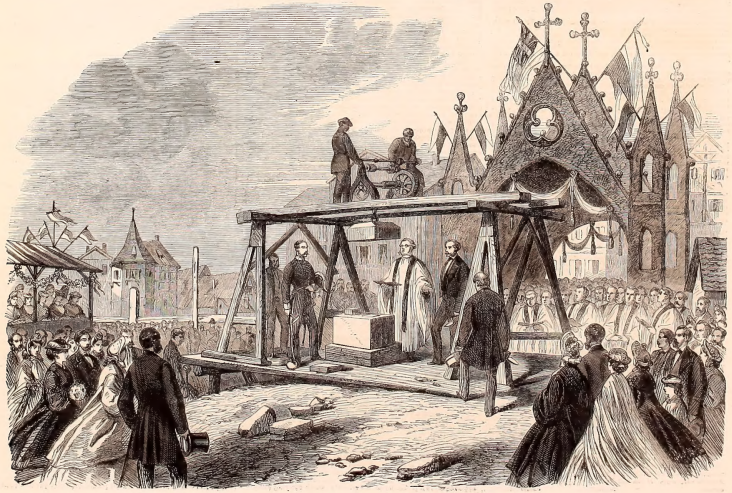
The will of the late Rev. John Pinckney, D.D., late of East Stour, Surrey, formerly of Lothian, Middlesex, was proved in London under £120,000 personalty, on the 10th inst., by the Rev. Edward Pinckney, Esq.; the Rev. W. P. Pinckney, and George Henry Pinckney, Esq. The will was executed in 1864. After bequeathing a sum of £6,000 East India Stock in trust for his son Horatio, and £3000 to his son Reipsman, and annuities of £40, £50, and £60 to his wife, Mrs. Elizabeth Pinckney, the testator directs the residue of his property, real and personal, into four equal parts amongst his three sons, who are his executors, and his daughter Elizabeth Pinckney, M.D.



The will of Mrs. Eliza M. Claridge, who died at Nice, in France, in the month of January last, has been proved in the Court under £35,000 ; the will of Thomas Boulton, Esq., of Mashingley Lodge, Kensington, under £60,000 personalty ; not that of Mr. Henry Bernard, of Chepne-walk, Chelsea, £20,000.

A STEEPLECHASE WITH GENTLEMEN RIDERS AT MADRID.

As an illustration of the growing taste among the Continental nations for our English sports and pastimes, we have engraved, from a sketch by Mr. A. Baumann, of Madrid, representing the steeplechase ridden by some Spanish and English gentlemen, which took place in the month of that city on the 26th of May. The prize was an elegant bronze vase presented by the Duke of Montpensier, the husband of the Infanta Fernando, and cousin to the Queen Isabella. The course was about a mile and a half long, with a double ditch, hedges, and some natural impediments of the ground to be overcome. The prize was one by Don Joaquin Cano, his competitors being Don Gonzalo Saavedra, and Don José Olivera de Zuñiga. A numerous and fashionable company witnessed the spirited affair.



FOUNDATION OF A NEW ENGLISH CHURCH AT STUTGARD, IN WURTEMBERG.

Few of our readers are probably aware of the rapid increase of English churches on the Continent. Seven years ago not a single church, properly speaking, existed in North Germany in which the Anglican worship could be celebrated. Hanover, established, in 1858, of the little chapel at Bad-Ems, in Nassau, which claims to be the first regular church in Germany, we have given an account of the movement. A fund was soon afterwards commenced at Wiesbaden, the capital of the Duchy of Nassau, and a handsome English Church has been crowned with as much success that the shell of the building is already completed, and the works going on so that probably this church will be ready for consecration in August. Simultaneously with the movement at Wiesbaden, a similar one was undertaken at Baden, and the first stone of the proposed church was laid on the 15th of last May. A fund is also being raised at Wildbad. In the autumn of last year the Chaplain at Stuttgard, in Wurtemberg, the capital of the kingdom of that name, having received an intimation from a lady who had been a member of his congregation for a short time, that she had at his disposal the handsome sum of £2000, afterwards increased to £2500, for the work which he contemplated. The Chaplain immediately set about the work of purchase of laying the foundation-stone of this church, which took place on May 20. The ceremony was performed in England with great solemnity. In the presence of the Minister of the Interior of the kingdom of Wurtemberg, the authorities of the city of Stuttgard, the English, Russian, Swedish, and Greek clergymen, the Prelate, King's Chaplains, and other ministers of the Lutheran body, and the English clergy from several neighbouring towns, and in number. These, with the chapel-wardens, architect, and others, moved in procession to the site of the church, after the celebration of holy communion in the Palace Chapel, where the English service has lately been held. The site was very tastefully decorated by the architect to whom great credit is due for such and hearty exertion. A triple Gothic arch of branches of fir, surmounted with the Crown and Cross of England and Wurtemberg, and covered with cloth of crimson and blue, was erected for the Clergy and others who formed the procession, and a pavilion similarly adorned was prepared for the congregation. Our sketch is taken at the moment of blessing the stone. On the right of the Incumbent stands the English Ambassador, ready to lay the stone; on the left, just above, the architect and clerk of the works assisting. There was a concourse of some 700 or 800 persons, who listened to the prayers and praises with attention and reverence. The whole ceremony was conducted with great order, and must have impressed the Germans with the edifying nature of our liturgical worship. The church, dedicated to St. Catharine, in memory of the daughter of the foundress, is to hold 150 persons. The style is Early English. It consists of chancel, nave, founder's chapel, and spire. The whole interior length is 80 ft., width 26 ft. The plans were prepared by Messrs. Smith, of Bloomsbury-square, but are necessarily executed and slightly modified by a local architect. It is expected to be ready for consecration at Easter next.

STEEPLECHASE WITH GENTLEMEN RIDERS AT MADRID.—SEE PRECEDING PAGE.

LAYING THE FOUNDATION-STONE OF AN ENGLISH CHURCH AT STUTTGART, IN WURTEMBURG

OBSEQUIES OF THE DUKE OF MALAKOFF AT ALGIERS ON THE 4TH OF JUNE.—SEE NEXT PAGE.

OBSEQUIES OF THE DUKE OF MALAKOFF AT ALGIERS.

THE ceremony which took place at Algiers on the 4th inst., when the mortal remains of the Duke of Malakoff, Marshal Pelissier, the late Governor of that province, were embarked on board a ship of war to be transported to France, is represented in one of our Engravings. An altar had been erected close to the shore, with a canopy, surmounted by a cross and supported by four pillars; the urns of the deceased, and the funeral wreath "Spain, Greece, Africa, Crimea," denoting the countries where he passed the chief part of his military career, were placed upon the pavilion. On each hand, across the whole width of the principal square of the city, was stretched a canvas screen, also black, striped by posts which were decorated with escutcheons, banners, and tablets bearing record of the several battles he had fought. The officers of the army, the civil government officials, the magistrates, foreign consuls, members of the municipality, professors of the schools, and various ministers of religion, took their station near the altar. A body of troops kept open the central space, marked by four cannons covered with flowers and forming a cortège, through which the coffin was to approach the altar. It was mounted upon a gun-carriage of the artillery, and the urns were covered with a black velvet pall, the corners of which were held by the persons of high distinction who had come from the city conveyed to Paris. On the top were laid the sword, the epaulettes, the Marshal's baton, the hat, and the insignia of Marshal Grand of the Legion of Honour, belonging to the deceased. His war-horse, fully caparisoned, was led behind. The procession, headed by Bishop Favy, with all the clergy of Algiers, having arrived at the altar, the usual religious service was performed, and the coffin was then removed on board the ship. A multitude of spectators, both of the European and the Arab population, thronged the spacious ground, or looked on from the windows and roofs of the adjoining houses. The steamer is from a sketch with which we have been favoured by Mr. Churchill, the Consul-General.

CALENDAR FOR THE WEEK ENDING JULY 2.

SUNDAY, June 26.—Fifth Sunday after Trinity. Assumption of Pizarro, the conqueror of Peru, 1841. Moore's last quarter, 1.30 p.m.

MONDAY, 27.—Birth of Charles XII., the warlike King of Sweden, 1682. Execution of Dr. Dodd, for forgery, 1777.

TUESDAY, 28.—Birth of Henry VIII. of England, 1491. Watteau, the great painter, 1677. Coronation of her Majesty Queen Victoria, 1838.

WEDNESDAY, 29.—St. Peter. Birth of Peter the Great, Emperor who founded the "Royal Literary Fund," in consequence of a poor scholar dying of starvation, 1715.

THURSDAY, 30.—Address taken by Gladrat for William III., 1691. The Great Western Railway from London to Bristol opened, 1841.

FRIDAY, July 1.—The victorious Wellington received with acclamations by both Houses of Commons after five years' absence abroad, 1814. Baptism of the three Guys across but indecisive battle of Gottsburg, in the United States, 1863.

SATURDAY, 2.—Battle of Marston Moor, 1644. Death of Sir Robert Peel, in consequence of a fall from his horse, 1850.

TIMES OF HIGH WATER AT LONDON BRIDGE,
FOR THE WEEK ENDING JULY 9, 1884.

Sunday.		Monday.		Tuesday.		Wednesday.		Thursday.		Friday.		Saturday.
H.	M.	H.	M.	H.	M.	H.	M.	H.	M.	H.	M.	H.	M.
0	36	1	0	1	24	1	48	2	12	2	36	3	0
12	57	13	21	13	45	14	9	14	33	14	57	15	21

THE WEATHER.

RESULTS OF METEOROLOGICAL OBSERVATIONS AT THE KEW OBSERVATORY OF THE BRITISH ASSOCIATION,
Lat. 51° 28′ N.; Long. 0° 19′ W.; Height above sea, 36 feet.

DAY.	DAILY MEANS OF			THERMOMETER		WIND.		RAIN in the 24 hours ending 10 A.M.
	Barometer reduced to 32° and sea-level	Temperature of Dew-point	Relative Humidity	Shade Temperature	Ground Direction	Estimated Velocity in miles per hour
	Inches		%	deg.		Miles	inches
June 19	29·633	59·6	64·9	62·2	S.W.	27·0	174	0·000
20	29·677	57·2	69·2	61·2	S.W.	25·2	177	0·000
21	30·107	49·4	61·1	59·6	S.W.	7·1·4	209	0·000
22	29·960	49·7	61·1	59·6	S.W.	10·0	209	0·000
23	29·772	54·5	74·1	60·9	S.W.	9·0	222	0·000
24	30·062	49·4	66·1	59·3	S.W.	5·7	207	0·000
25	30·220	49·3	64·1	59·3	S.W.	5·0	332	0·000
Means	29·919	52·8	67·2	60·3	S.W.	10·4	218	0·000

The following are the readings of the meteorological instruments at 9 A.M. on the above days, in order, at half-past nine a.m.:—

	June 19	20	21	22	23	24	25
Barometer (at 32° and sea-level)	29·633	29·677	30·107	29·960	29·772	30·062	30·220
Temperature of Air	63·9°	60·7°	61·9°	62·4°	60·7°	61·9°	61·7°
Temperature of Evaporation	59·0°	57·0°	57·0°	57·0°	57·0°	57·0°	57·0°
Direction of Wind	S.W.	S.W.	S.W.	S.W.	S.W.	S.W.	S.W.

THEATRE ROYAL, HAYMARKET.—Last Night but Three of Mr. Sullivan.—Last Night but Seven of Mr. Howard Paul.—Every Evening at Seven, the Original Farcical and Musical Entertainment, entitled MUM'S THE WORD, by Messrs. Howard Paul and Sullivan, with THE BALANCE OF COMFORT. At Eight, DAVID GARRICK. Mr. Sullivan; Mr. Howard Paul; Miss Fanny Brough; Miss Ada Dyas; Miss Lottie Venne; Mr. Conway Dixon, Lessee and Manager. In consequence of the crowded state of the House nightly, no orders can be admitted.

MR. BUCKSTONE'S ANNUAL BENEFIT and LAST NIGHTS of the SEASON.—HAYMARKET THEATRE.—Every Evening at Seven, ANDALUSIA.—Don Cesar, Mr. Weiss with the original song; "Flow thou regal purple stream"; Don Guzman, Mr. Bucklaw; Don Pedro, Mr. Lin Rayne; Don Caesar de Bazan, Mr. Compton; Lola, Miss Clitherow; Chiquita, Miss Vane; Marchioness of Rondo, Miss Wadman; Rosalia, Miss Wallis (with songs); Mrs. Sedgwick, the last night this Christmas, in a REPARTEE; and Mr. Buckstone will address a few words to those whom on similar occasions he has so often addressed. Box Office now open.

ROYAL ST. JAMES'S THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. John Hollingshead. Every Evening at Eight, during the Week, A DEBT IN WORDS and A DEBT IN DEEDS. At Eight o'clock, DUED UP.—Mr. Charles Matthews. To conclude with LITTLE HOUSEKEEPING. Box-office open daily from Ten to Five. Seats can be booked by letter.

NEW THEATRE ROYAL, ADELPHI.—Sole Proprietor and Manager, Mr. S. WEBSTER. On MONDAY, Tuesday, and Wednesday, THE ROAD TO RUIN. Mr. S. Webster, Mr. Arthur Williams, Mr. Leonard Boyne, Mr. Beveridge, JANET PRIDE.—Mrs. R. H. Webster, Janet. Miss Wallace, Dora. On Thursday, Friday, and Saturday, THE TWO ORPHANS. Mr. Webster, Mr. Leonard Boyne, Miss Wallace, Miss Cameron and Miss Webster.

CRYSTAL PALACE.—THIS DAY, SATURDAY, JUNE 28, GRAND COMBINED FETE.
GREAT ROSE SHOW of the SEASON.
Illumination of the Fountains, Future Gallery, &c.
Military Band, Mr. Dan Godfrey.
Military and Orchestral Bands, Mr. Manns.
DISPLAY OF GREAT FOUNTAINS at Three.
Mr. Leslie's Celebrated Military Band has been selected performers on Handel Orchestra, from four till half-past seven.
Great Gipsy Performance and Promenade.
Admission, by season ticket, to the Great Exhibition Palaces, Five Shillings; or by Guinea Season Tickets. Season Tickets at the entrances.

CRYSTAL PALACE.—ARCHERY FETES.—The Annual Archery Fete will be held on the beautiful Cricket-ground on THURSDAY and SATURDAY, JULY 3 and 5, 1884.
Judges—Charles H. Caldecott, Esq.
The Gentlemen will commence Shooting at 10 a.m.
The Ladies at 11 a.m. Shooting Distance at Each Fete.
Schedules of Prizes, Tickets, and other particulars may be obtained by written application to Archery Secretary, Crystal Palace, or personally at the Office of the Secretary, Crystal Palace, Sydenham, S.E., on and after Monday, June 23rd, between the hours of 10 and 4.
Admission to the Palace on either day. One Shilling each person.
A limited number of Tickets will be issued for the Fancy Dress Circle at Half-a-Crown each.

CRYSTAL PALACE.—Arrangements for week ending SATURDAY, JULY 5.—MONDAY, Concert. TUESDAY, Concert. WEDNESDAY, Concert and Illumination of Fountains. THURSDAY, Archery. Athletic Sports. Band Contests. Open-air Concert, with Fireworks. FRIDAY, Concert. SATURDAY, Concert in the new Handel Orchestra.

TUESDAY, JUNE 24.—Coronation Day.—Grand Fête—Full display of the whole series of Fountains. Fireworks. Concerts. Waterfalls, &c. Full Military Bands. Admission by one shilling only.

WEDNESDAY, JUNE 25.—All the usual attractions of the Palace, including Fountains, &c. Grand Concert in the Handel Orchestra. Fireworks.

THURSDAY, JULY 3.] Military Band.

SATURDAY, JULY 5.—Grand Open-air Concert and Afternoon Promenade.

From the enthusiastic welcome accorded to Mr. FRED. ARCHER, the marvellous Marksman, during the past week, numerous Engagements have been made for his APPEARANCE on MONDAY and TUESDAY, at four o'clock.

Also Grand Equestrian Entertainment, by entire change, Messrs. Cooke, Anthony, Proctor, Cridlan, Freund, Astelley, &c.

Admission to the Grounds, 1s. Reserved Seats, at Two Additional Shillings each. Private Carriages, Omnibuses, Cabs, &c., at very Moderate Charges. Programmes, Plans, and Tickets may be had of Mr. Thomas Verney Hare, Crystal Palace, Sydenham, S.E.

THE ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS

LONDON: SATURDAY, JUNE 28, 1884.

BOTH the Northern and Southern Americans lay so much stress upon their religious proclivities that it was a little remarkable that Captain Semmes and Winslow should select Sunday morning, in church time, for having a fight. Old World heathens like Napoleon and Wellington, might do such things, but we scarcely expected such flagrant anti-Sabbatarianism from our Transatlantic friends. But we are reminded that the same day has been several times during the war devoted to the work least suited to it. And on Sunday morning last the Alabama came out of Cherbourg for her first and last battle. The details are well known. It was not a fight between two equal vessels, as the vanquished ship was not captured; but, after an hour's fierce firing from the starboard side, the vessels describing large circles, the Alabama began to sink, and struck her colours. The columbiads of the Kearsarge had done their work fatally, but the Confederate commander ceased firing only because his ship was sinking. A little later, and the Alabama was safe at the bottom of the sea, in trouble mercifully no more for captain, with nearly all his officers and several of his crew, was safe on board an English yacht, hurrying to Southampton; and the remainder of the crew, with a not very large deduction, considering the nature of the fight, were picked up by boats sent off to the rescue by prisoners on board the Kearsarge, who took them back to Cherbourg.

Nothing could be bolder than the way the Alabama met her fate, and yet we do not like to say too much about the bravery of her men because so many of them were Englishmen, and the guns were learned their work on board the Excellent. They fought as English sailors always do; and, had the Alabama been a ship of equal force, there is no doubt that they would have fought her sides with extempore defences of iron, the result might have been different, and Captain Semmes might have had to burn the Kearsarge and her crew, and to be rescued by the crew of Captain Semmes and his officers, and to the seamanlike way in which they handled their vessel, we may dismiss compliment. We never, of course, could kindle ourselves into the least feeling of hatred for the Alabama, but we are contemporaries at the deeds of the Alabama. She was obtained by a trick which it is not now worth calling by a hard name, but here was the original blot on her flag. Then, a remarkably fast ship, she was sent out to prey on the ships of a power in arrears of merchantmen and to keep out of the way of the avengers. We have a right—we do not say that she ought to have had one, her business being to ruin Federal commerce—but she once lured the Hatteras into a gun-boat fight by flying English, and then sank her with a broadside. That was her only martial exploit until the day she came out to meet retribution. That she had destroyed great numbers of helpless vessels, and had been full of cheer and comfort to the crews of Indian keep his scalps, shows that she did her appointed work exceedingly well, but it is not work that Englishmen can regard with much pride or satisfaction. Nevertheless, we have proved that we could fight nobly, at the fitting time, has acquired a far higher claim to the admiration of this country than he ever had while he was only racing about the ocean and destroying what she could not fight. Even as a fighter, though it is permitted to Southampton to make capital of every celebrity or notoriety, it will be in better taste to avoid any public demonstration of homage to the Confederate Captain.

We hope that when the journals of the day reach America the delight which the Northerners will feel at the destruction of the Alabama will not be materially qualified by the news that her commander has escaped. At least we trust that no animosity will be felt against England because a Confederate rescued Captain Semmes from the sea. We are quite sure that the owner of the Deerhound did not intend to defy the Republic. He was asked by the officers of the Kearsarge to go to the help of the sinking Confederates, and did so, and, having happened to pick up the Southern captain, could do nothing else than take him away to Southampton. No one will say that Mr. Lancaster ought to have brought the wounded and exhausted man to the Kearsarge and handed him over as a prisoner. We think that Mr. Lancaster showed tact and consideration for both the Republic and England by hastening away; for had the Federals, flushed with victory, overhauled the Deerhound and taken off Semmes, we should assuredly have acted as we did in the affair of the Trent. All embroilment was saved by the Deerhound being in good steaming order. Captain Semmes can do the North no harm while he remains here. England will not allow him to obtain another war-ship if she can help it; and the Federals have but to look to their blockade, if they wish to catch him or to prevent his being placed in command of a real Confederate vessel. We are sorry, however, that he was not run the blockade, and will be heard of again upon the sea; and therefore we mention to mention that, if so, the fault will not be ours. The Deerhound could not leave him to be drowned, especially after having been asked to go to his aid; and all the rest will be the natural sequence of an act of humanity.

But there is one incident of the fight that deserves graver mention. Who can withhold a tribute of admiration to the real hero of that Sunday morning. He was not fighting in despair, or as an avenger, he had no honour and glory to win or lose, he had not even the excitement of mere combat. He was at his post, however, doing his duty to the last, and there was no sign of flinching in his face. This was Mr. Kell, the brave surgeon of the Alabama, and, we are proud to write, an Englishman, the son, we believe, of a country clergyman. While the terrible shells were dashing the Alabama to pieces, Mr. Llewellyn saw Mr. Kell standing on deck, and, when the ship was sinking, he might have been saved, had he chosen to accept a place in the boat in which the wounded were being removed. But he had got back an unhurt man, who was pressing into that boat, with the words, "See, I am as desirous to be saved as you, but I will not go in a boat which I might endanger;" and when the men cried to the "doctor" to come in with them, he refused. He was prize to aid the men down. The noble profession to which he belonged may well be proud of such a man, though it is nothing new to find the "doctor" the bravest of the brave. When the tale of the fate of the Alabama is told, she will be ill-treated if the bearers do not feel that the true hero of the day was Mr. Kell, the surgeon.

THE COURT.

The Queen continues at Windsor Castle, in the enjoyment of good health.

On Thursday week her Majesty, accompanied by Prince and Princess Louis of Hesse and Princess Helena, drove out in a carriage and four. Princess Beatrice and the Lucchesi Palli Household left the castle from London. The Marquis and Marchioness of Westminster also arrived at the castle and had the honour of dining with her Majesty.

Yesterday week the Queen, accompanied by Princess Louis of Hesse, went out. Princess Helena, Prince Alfred, Princess Louise, and Prince Louis of Hesse, rode on horseback. Princess Beatrice, attended by Mdlle. Rommel, Miss Hallowell Carr, and Miss Gordon, Major-Gen. Amélie, Prince and Princess Louis of Hesse, attended by Mdlle. de Grancy and Captain Cavendish Boyle, travelled, left the castle for Marlborough House on a visit to the Prince and Princess of Wales. Prince Alfred, attended by Captain Haig, also arrived at the London. The Grand Duke and Grand Duchess of Mecklenburg-Strelitz and Prince Adolphus, attended by Mr. Lobe, visited the Royal party and remained to luncheon. Viscount Sydney had an audience of the Queen to present three Addresses from the House of Lords. The Lord Chancellor and Lady Augusta Stanley had the honour of dining with her Majesty.

On Saturday last the Queen, attended by Lady Augusta Stanley, walked and drove in the castle grounds. Prince Alfred attended by Lieutenant-Colonel Ponsonby arrived at the castle from London. Prince Alfred, attended by Major Elphinstone, arrived at the castle from Greenwich Park. But for a slight attack of fever Prince Leopold would also arrived at the castle. The Duchess of Wellington left the castle for London.

On Sunday, the Queen, Prince Alfred, Princess Helena, Princess Louise, Prince Arthur, Prince Leopold, and Princess Beatrice attended Divine service in the private chapel of the castle. The Very Rev. the Dean of Windsor preached. Prince and Princess Louis of Hesse left the castle. Prince Alfred returned to the castle from Woodcotton. His Royal Highness attended Divine service at the Royal Mausoleum at Frogmore. Lieutenant-Gen. Earl Granville arrived at the castle and had an audience of the Queen. His Highness Mustapha Pacha, the Turkish Ambassador, and Mr. Noel Temple Moore arrived at the castle from London. Mustapha Pacha was presented to the Queen by Mr. Noel Temple Moore. Major-Gen. Monck-Mason had an audience of her Majesty; Lord Rivers and Lieutenant-General Sir H. Bentinck were the Lord and Lady in Waiting. In the evening Prince Arthur arrived at the castle, and had the honour of dining with her Majesty. This was the twenty-seventh anniversary of the Queen's accession to the throne. The day was celebrated with the customary rejoicings throughout the Empire.

On Tuesday the Queen, accompanied by Prince and Princess Louis of Hesse, Princess Helena, Princess Louise, Princess Beatrice, and Prince Arthur, and attended by Lady Caroline Barrington, Mdlle. de Grancy, Lord Charles Fitzroy, and Lieutenant-Colonel the Hon. D. D. Dewar, went in London Palace and Ascot Coach. Prince Albert Victor was taken to the palace to see her Majesty. Princess Beatrice, attended by Mdlle. Rommel, went to the nursery of Windermere and visited the Duke and Lady Augusta Stanley. Viscount Palmerston and Lord Sydney had audiences of the Queen. Her Majesty, accompanied by Prince and Princess Louis of Hesse and Princess Beatrice, left the castle for Marlborough House to visit Prince and Princess of Wales at Marlborough House. Thence the Queen, accompanied by Prince and Princess Louis of Hesse, Prince Leopold, and Princess Beatrice, and attended by the Marchioness of Ely, the Hon. Mrs. Bryan, the Hon. Caroline Knollys, Major-Gen. Probyn, Major-Gen. Probyn, Mdlle. de Grancy, Lord Charles Fitzroy, and Colonel the Hon. H. De Ros, proceeded in an open carriage and four to Buckingham Palace station for Windsor Castle, arriving at half-past seven. In the evening Princess Helena, Princess Louise, and Prince Arthur honoured her Majesty's Theatre with their presence.

On Wednesday the Queen, accompanied by Princess Louis of Hesse and Princess Beatrice, and attended by Princess Alfred, attended by Lieutenant Haig, went to London to be present at the Levée. Princess Helena, Princess Louise, and Prince Arthur visited the Duke of Cambridge. Their Royal Highnesses afterwards returned to Windsor Castle.

Franken Lewis, daughter of the Rev Kapellmeister at Dresden, had had the honour of playing before the Royal family.

The Marchioness of Ely has succeeded the Countess of Desart as Lady in Waiting. Lord de Tabley and Colonel the Hon. Augustus Liddell have succeeded Lord Rivers and Lieutenant-General Sir Henry Bentinck as the Lord and Groom in Waiting.

THE QUEEN'S COURT.

Her Majesty held a third Court at Buckingham Palace on Tuesday. The Prince and Princess of Wales, attended by the Marchioness of Carmarthen, the Hon. Mrs. Stonor, Earl Spencer, the Earl of Mount-

Edgcumbe, Lord Harris, Lieutenant-Colonel Keppel, and Mr. Wood arrived at the palace at four o'clock. The Queen entered the Throne-room shortly after four, accompanied by the Prince and Princess of Wales, the Prince and Princess Louis of Hesse, Prince Alfred, Princess Helena, and Princess Louise. In attendance upon the Queen were the Duchess of Wellington, the Marchioness of Ely, Lady Caroline Barrington, the Hon. Horatia Stopford, the Hon. Harriett Phipps, the Hon. Mrs. Campbell, the Hon. Mrs. Bruce, Viscount Sydney, the Earl of St. Germans, the Marquis of Abergavenny, and the gentlemen in waiting of her Majesty's household.

The Queen wore a black silk dress, trimmed with crape, in the same style as at the two previous receptions, with a similar cap and veil, and diamond ornaments. Her Majesty wore the collar and Star of the Garter, the insignia of the Order of Victoria and Albert, and the badge of the Imperial Order of the Crown of India. The Princess of Wales wore a dress of rich black silk, trimmed with plaited flounces of black and white tulle, and a white bonnet of tulle and jet. Head-dress of black velvet and diamonds; diamond necklace, bracelet, and earrings. The Princess Louis of Hesse wore a dress of pink moire antique, trimmed with ruches and with cords and tassels; a dress of the Alexandra; a white bonnet trimmed with lace and pearls, with brooch and earrings to correspond. Princess Helena wore a dress of pale green grenadine, with white spots and stripes, and over a blue glace petticoat. Head-dress of tinted roses and white heather; pearl ornaments. The Princess Louise wore the dress the Victoria and Albert badge and the Portuguese Order of Isabella. Princess Louise wore a dress and head-dress the same, with pearl ornaments.

The following distinguished persons had the honour of being invited to attend the Court:—The Archbishop of Canterbury, the Duke of Argyll, the Duke and Duchess of Beaufort, the Duke of Devonshire and Lady Louisa Cavendish, the Duke and Duchess of Marlborough, the Duchess Downger of Norfolk, the Duke and Duchess of Buckinghshire and Chandos, the Duke of Rutland, the Duchess Dowager of Somerset, the Duke and Duchess of Roxburghe, the Duchess Dowager of Rutherford, the Marquess and Marchioness of Bristol, the Marquess and Marchioness of Lansdowne, the Marquis and Marchioness of Abercorn and Georgeanna Hamilton, the Marquis and Marchioness of Westminster and Lady Victoria Cecil, the Marquis and Marchioness of Bath, the Marquis and Lady Theodora Grosvenor, Earl and Countess Blessington and Lady Mary Stopford, the Earl and Countess of Hardwicke and Lady Agneata Yorke, Countess Spencer, Earl and Countess Delaware, Earl and Countess Cowley, Earl and Countess Bathurst, Earl and Countess of Rosebery, the Countess of Scarborough, Lord and Lady Byron, Lord Rowton, Viscount and Viscountess Sydney, Viscountess Bury, Viscountess Castlerosse, Lord and Lady de Ros and the Hon. Mrs. Fane, Lord and Lady Foley, Lord and Lady Ely, the Bishop of London and Mrs. Tait, the Bishop of Oxford, the Bishop of Gloucester and Mrs. Ellicott, the Bishop of Winchester and Mrs. Sumner, Lord and Lady Bolton, Lord and Lady Foley, Lord and Lady Sagor, Lord and Lady Torrington, Lord and Lady Cranworth, Vice-Admiral the Hon. Sir Frederick Grey, K.C.B., and Lady Caroline Grey, Admiral Hon. James Drummond, C.B., and Mrs. Drummond, the Lord Chief Justice of England, Lord and Lady Martin de Molls, the Hon. Spencer and Mrs. Walpole, Major-General the Hon. Sir James Yorke Scarlett, K.C.B., and Lady Scarlett, Major-General Sir Charles Yorke, K.C.B., and the Hon. Lady Airey. The Archbishop of Dublin and Mrs. French, the Dowager Duchess of Sutherland, the Duke of Argyll and the Marchioness of Lansdowne, Viscountess Castlerosse, and Lord and Lady Belhaven, were prevented from attending the Court.

THE LEVEE.

By command of the Queen a Levee was held on Wednesday, at St. James's Palace, by the Prince of Wales. The Levee was held by Her Majesty, by the Queen's pleasure, considerably equivalent to presentations made to her Majesty. The Prince of Wales, in uniform of the Guards, wore in waiting, arrived at the palace from Marlborough House at ten o'clock, and was received by the gentlemen in waiting of the royal household.

The Prince entered the Throne-room, accompanied by Prince Alfred and the Duke of Cambridge. Prince Edward of Saxe-Weimar and Count Gleichen were present at the Court. In attendance upon the Prince of Wales were Viscount Sydney, the Earl of Rosslyn, the Marquis of Abergavenny, and the gentlemen in waiting of the Queen's and his Royal Highness's households. The Foreign Ambassadors and Ministers having been introduced, several presentations in the Diplomatic Circle took place. The Lord Chancellor, bearer of the Corpo Diplomatico were present. The general circle was attended by Viscount Palmerston, the Lord Chief Justice, Sir G. Grey, the Right Hon. Edward Cardwell, Earl De Grey and Ripon, the Duke of Somerset, the Duke of Marlborough, Earl Russell and Aldersley, the Bishop of Oxford, and the gentlemen in waiting of the Queen's household. The Court was well attended, and the presentations in the general circle were very numerous.

THE PRINCE AND PRINCESS OF WALES.

The Prince and Princess of Wales arrived at Sandringham House on Yesterday week the Prince, accompanied by Prince Alfred and Baron Carl Alexander, from Sandringham, and the Princess, with the Princess Louis of Hesse, took a drive. In the evening the Prince and Princess, accompanied by Prince Alfred and Prince Louis of Hesse, honoured the Marlborough Theatre of Westminster with a visit, and built at Grosvenor House.

On Saturday last the Prince, attended by Lieutenant-Colonel Keppel, rode out. Subsequently the Prince and Princess, accompanied by Prince Alfred and Prince Louis of Hesse, drove out. In the evening the Prince, accompanied by Prince Louis of Hesse, went to a concert at the Royal College of Music. On Sunday the Prince accompanied by Princess Louis of Hesse and attended by the Marchioness of Cornwallis, Mr. Mills, and Colonel Francis, proceeded to the Italian Opera with their presence. Mr. Engelhart, in the name of the Duke of Devonshire, attended at Marlborough House, and drove down to the Princess a gold casket, a bridal-gift from Lady Young and the ladies of New South Wales.

On Sunday the Prince and Princess attended Divine service in the Chapel Royal, St. James's. The service was performed by the Rev. the Hon. Canon Duncombe, R. C. Dashwood, and the Rev. J. Clayton. The Prince and Princess Louis of Hesse left Marlborough House for Windsor Castle.

On Monday the Prince, accompanied by Prince Alfred, rode to Lands-end-cottage. The Princess, accompanied by the Princesses of Carnarthen, drove out. In the evening the Prince and Princess, accompanied by Prince Alfred, honoured the Queen's Theatre, Drury Lane, with their company at dinner at Chesterfield House.

On Tuesday the Prince, accompanied by Prince Alfred, rode out. The Prince and Princess afterwards took a drive. In the evening his Royal Highness honoured the Adelphi Theatre with a visit.

On Wednesday the Prince, accompanied by Prince Alfred, rode out. The Princess, attended by the Countess De Grey, took a drive. In the evening the Prince and Princess honoured the Lyceum with the Viscountess Palmerston with their company at dinner at Cambridge House.

FASHIONABLE AND POLITICAL ENTERTAINMENTS.

His Excellency Baron de la Tour d'Auvergne entertained a distinguished company at dinner on Tuesday evening at the French Embassy.

The Duke and Duchess of Wellington entertained the Duke of Cambridge, Prince Mary, and a distinguished circle at dinner on Wednesday evening at Apsley House.

The Duchess of Beaufort had a dancing party at the family residence, in Belgrave-square, on Tuesday evening. Their royal highnesses the Duke and Mary of Cambridge and by upwards of 400 of the elite of society.

The Duke and Duchess of Cleveland entertained distinguished circle at dinner on Friday evening week, at their residence, in Gurzon-street.

The Duke and Duchess of Buccleuch gave a dinner party on Friday evening week at the family residence, in Montagu-square, to the Princess of Wales, Prince Alfred, Princess and Princess Louis of Hesse, the Grand Duke and Grand Duchess of Mecklenburg-Strelitz, the Duchess of Cambridge and Princess Mary, Prince Edward of Saxe-Weimar and the Countess of Dornberg, Prince de Polignac, and a distinguished circle of the aristocracy. The ball was opened immediately after the arrival of the Royal guests, the Prince of Wales dancing with Lady Constance Grosvenor, the Princess of Wales with Earl Grosvenor, Princess Louis of Hesse with Lord Richard Grosvenor, Prince Louis of Hesse with Lady Constance Grosvenor, Princess Louis of Hesse with Viscount Drumlanrig, and Princess Helena with Lord Elcho. The Duke and Duchess of Buccleuch gave a grand entertainment to the Prince and Princess of Wales, Prince Alfred, and Prince and Princess Louis of Hesse, on Monday evening at Chesterfield House, South Audley-street. After the banquet the noble Marchioness gave a grand ball in honour of the Royal visit, which was attended by the Duke and Duchess of Cambridge, Princess Mary, the Grand Duchess of Mecklenburg-Strelitz, Prince Edward of Saxe-Weimar, Countess Dornberg, Prince Paul Esterhazy, and a brilliant assemblage of the aristocracy. In the spacious quadrille the Princess gave her hand to the Marquis of Abercorn, the Prince of Wales dancing with the Marchioness, and Prince Alfred with Lady Constance Grosvenor.

Cornbury Castle gave a ball on Monday evening at 21, Rutland-gate, which was numerously and fashionably attended.

The Duke and Duchess of Buccleuch gave a concerto circle at dinner on Tuesday evening at their house in Grafton-street.

The Earl and Countess of Dunkeswell received a select party at dinner on Tuesday evening at their house in Charles-street, Berkeley-square.

The Baroness Cramer-Roberts gave a dinner party in Cadogan-crescent on Wednesday Bill, which was brilliantly attended.

The Countess of Jersey entertained a numerous and distinguished circle at dinner on Wednesday evening at her residence, in Grosvenor-square.

The Prince and Princess of Wales and a distinguished circle, on Wednesday evening, honoured the Princess Louise of Hesse with their company at a ball, given in her honour by the Duke and Duchess of Buccleuch, at Montagu-house, Whitehall. Prince Edward of Saxe-Weimar and the Countess Dornberg, and a numerous assemblage of the aristocracy. The Duke and Duchess of Marlborough entertained with Viscountess Jocelyn, and the Princess with Earl Cowper.

The Countess of Dunmore gave a dancing party at dinner on Saturday evening last at their residence in Cleveland-square.

The Countess Granville entertained a select party at dinner evening, at her residence in Piccadilly, which was numerously attended.

The Dowager Countess of Rosslyn, Lord and Lady Annesley, Prince Mary, the Grand Duchess of Mecklenburg-Strelitz, and a distinguished circle at dinner on Wednesday evening at Cambridge House, Piccadilly.

The Countess Cowley gave a successful dancing party on Wednesday evening in Stratton-street, which was attended by over 400 members of the political and fashionable world.

The Right Hon. the Chancellor of the Exchequer and Mrs. Gladstone entertained a distinguished company at dinner on Wednesday evening at their mansion on Carlton House-terrace.

MARRIAGES IN HIGH LIFE.

The marriage of Lady Gertrude Elizabeth Murray, second daughter of the Countess of Dunmore and sister of the present Earl, with Lord Glenlyon, eldest son of the Duke of Atholl, took place, on Thursday, at Dunmore, Stirlingshire.

The marriage of Mr. Henry Milbanke to Lady Susan Georgiana Godolphin Osborne, eldest daughter of the Duke of Leeds, was solemnized on Wednesday at St. George's Church, Hanover-square.

METROPOLITAN NEWS.

Monday was the twenty-seventh anniversary of the Queen's accession to the throne, and was observed as a general holiday.

The Alexandra Park practically opened for the season on Saturday, with a fine day and a numerous company.

Mr. Matthew Marshall, who has been connected with the Bank of England during the past fifty-five years, and who has for a long time held the responsible office of chief cashier, has resigned his retiral.

On Thursday week a conversazione in connection with the Society of Arts was given at the South Kensington Museum. It was computed that 8000 persons were present.

The annual meeting for the distribution and distribution of medals and prizes took place at the Royal Naval school at New-cross, on Tuesday afternoon, Admiral Sir Alexander Milne, K.C.B., in the chair.

The first stone of the internal cornice of the new roof at the Crystal Palace was laid on Wednesday, with considerable ceremony. The original roof will be entirely removed, and a new one put in its place.

The President and Fellows of the Royal College of Physicians have commenced the erection of their new college, in Pall-mall-east, when the Prince of Wales honoured them by his company. Above 300 of the Fellows were present.

A bazaar was held on Tuesday and Wednesday, at the Hanover-square Rooms, in aid of the funds of the Royal Asylum and Deaf-ness Children, Bread-street, Bloomsbury. The committee are seeking to raise £1000, and invited the public to assist them in their object.

Last week the births of 1776 children (925 boys and 851 girls) were registered in London. In the ten corresponding weeks of the years 1854-63 the average number (corrected) was 1856.—The number of deaths in London last week was 1172. In the ten years 1854-63 the average of fourth week in ten years, 1854-63, is, with a correction for increase, 1172.

A Grand Musical Festival was held at Exeter Hall on Wednesday evening, at the Freemasons' Hall, in reference to the extension of the franchise. The Earl of Shaftesbury presided, and was supported by many of the staff. Borough kind; they declared strongly against the present state of the representation of the people, and were unanimously in favour of the ballot, as the bright at once an organised movement to carry out the objects of the resolutions.

At a meeting of the Metropolitan Commissioners of Sewers held on Monday evening next, at Burlington House—Sir R. I. Murchison, president, the following resolutions will be moved:—"That the Report of the Works and Sub-and Adjacent Parts in the Parish of Hackney," by Lieutenant-Colonel Peile, "A Communication from the Vestry of the Parish of St. Mary, Islington, and by Samuel Bosanquet, through Rhiwa and Bokham," by M. Vambery; and "On the Cholera Epidemic of 1854," by Dr. Snow.

The Convocation of the province of Canterbury resumed its sittings on Tuesday, in Jerusalem Chamber, when the consideration of a report of a committee of their members condemning the erroneous doctrines put forth in "Essays and Reviews" was resumed. The Archbishop of Canterbury read the report, and the Bishop of London objected that it was unwise at that late period to revive the subject of "Essays and Reviews" in the present form. The report was, however, agreed to.

The Metropolitan Board of Works have altered the names of several streets in Somerstown; the name Great George-street is abolished, and is to be called Ossulston-street; Little George-street, Ossulston-place; Inkerman-terrace, St. Martin-le-grand-terrace, St. James's-cottages, Tod's-terrace, and Albert-terrace, Tod's-place; Hanover-place, Hanover-street; Caroline-place, the name Bolls-road. Gloucester-terrace, Alfred-terrace, and Victoria-terrace, Gloucester-road; and Victoria-cottages, Gloucester-place to be called Gloucester-road.

The Forty-fourth annual meeting of the Royal Westminster Ophthalmic Hospital, Charing-cross was held on Tuesday. The Marquis of Queensberry, K.G., the president, presided. The report read at the meeting during the past year, dealt in eloquent terms upon its usefulness to the poor and the large number of cases which had been relieved. The committee had received the bequests of the institution, exclusive of 705 operations for the extraction of cataract. He had endeavoured to administer the trust faithfully and trusted the want of funds would not compel the closing of a single ward in the extensive building which the institution occupied.

Next week will witness a little social revolution not unimportant in its effects. On the 15th inst. the toll-gates on the roads in and around the metropolis on the north side will disappear. Within a week the following gates will be removed:—Paddington, Kensington, Notting-hill, Kensington, Notting-hill, Kilburn, Camden Town, Kentish Town, Holloway, Highgate, Hornsey, Tottenham, Edmonton, Enfield, Stamford-hill, Stoke Newington, Green, Kingsland, Hackney, Bow, Limehouse, Shoreditch, Islington gates and bars will fall and fifty-one miles of road will be set free. The last payment of toll will be on the 14th inst.

An influential deputation of Australian colonists waited upon the Secretary of State for the Colonies, on Saturday, to urge the despatch of transportation of convicts to Western Australia. The deputation consisted of Mr. Todd, the overland telegraph superintendent, and several colonists. It was added that if the Government persisted in this step a very angry feeling would be excited. Mr. Cardwell replied that he could not give a definite assurance for what had been done in lessening the evils of which the colonists had complained. He would, however, lay the representations before the Cabinet for consideration. He promised the deputation that their representations should be carefully considered, and that they should receive an early answer from the Government.

The Princess of Wales opened a grand fête and bazaar, on Thursday, in the southern arcade of the Horticultural Garden, South Kensington, for the benefit of the Royal Hospital for Incurables, Putney Common, Blackmoory. A variety of theatrical and musical entertainments were given during the day, and the proceeds were expected to be large. The fête contributed by the most celebrated artists of the day. The clever company of Mr. Alexander Dumas's theatre, Paris, were engaged to perform. The Prince Imperial delighted the visitors by his presence, and by the kind and courageous description. Messrs. Toole and Paul Bedford presided over the "Cave of Harmony," and Mr. Charles Dickens over the "Shakspeare Shop," at which the original Old Dog Tray and other canine celebrities were exhibited, and Mr. Dickens sold his own books.

The general meeting and midsummer election of the Asylum for Fatherless Children took place on Monday at the London Tavern—Alderman Lusk in the chair. The Rev. T. W. Aveling (the hon. secretary) read the report of the committee of management, which stated that the total receipts from May, 1863, to May, 1864, amounted to £10,232, which sum had been expended, with the exception of a balance of £233. Since last year the building debt had been reduced by the sum of £3607, leaving now due £10,870 towards which £1000 are promised on certain conditions, leaving the full amount of between £1000 and £1100. As the debt diminishes the board trust that the friends of the institution will increase their efforts. The new wing of the building, capable of accommodating 200 inmates, completely filled. Five vacancies for the ensuing candidates, and ten boys, out of a list of fifty-four candidates, were elected.

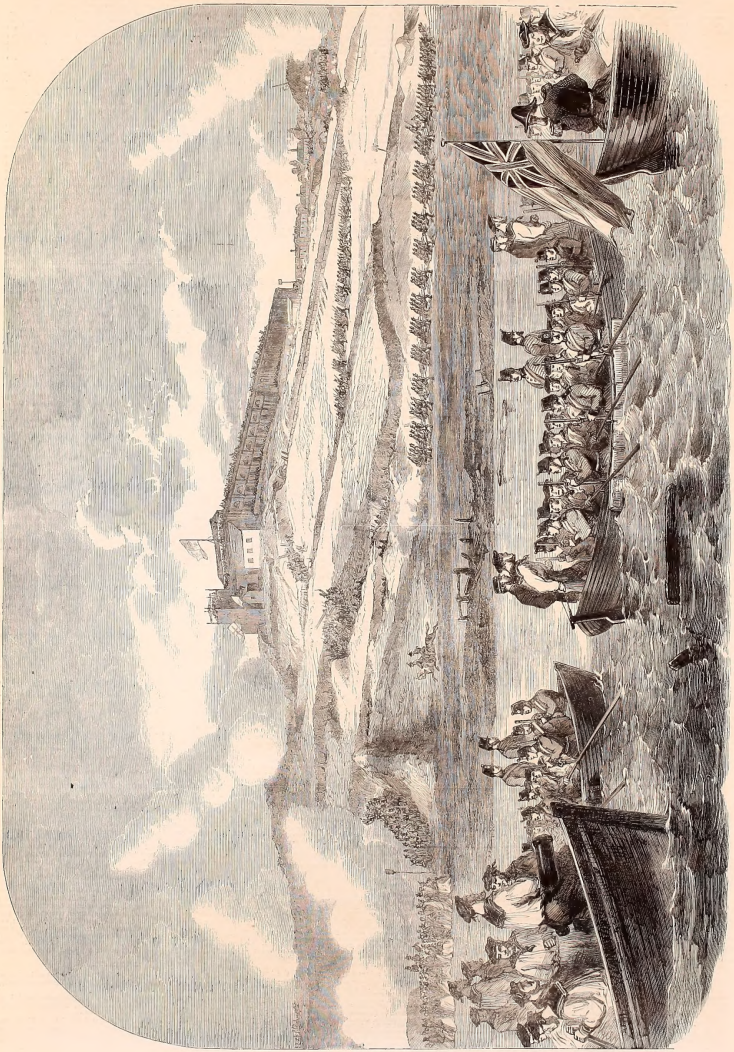
THE THEATRES.

The original Christy's Minstrels have had extraordinary success at the Standard, where, notwithstanding the long period they have continued before the public, the success has every appearance resembles more that bestowed on a successful novelty than on a time-worn entertainment. In other respects we have no theatrical news this week to communicate, no new drama having been produced as of old are revived. It may be mentioned, however, that Lord Byron's drama of "Manfred" is announced for the City of London this (Saturday) evening; and it is to be hoped that the gratifying that poetic taste should find a response in that quarter. In reviewing the past season we may not overlook the revivals at Drury Lane of "Macbeth" and "Henry V.," as steps in the right direction, and the adaptation of "Donna Diana" at the Princess's may also be stated as a true point. A perfect appreciation, also, was shown by the blank-verse production of "Deborah" at the Lyceum, the success of which was in itself a demonstration that a mixed audience can be reached by pathos poetically expressed if accompanied by a complete performance. The success of the same drama, under the name of "Leah," at the Adelphi, was another illustration on the same head. It is no strong because the version used was a prose one, and much of the dialogue partaking in the keenness was abridged. The purpose of the adapter was evidently to present a successful melodrama, not a tragedy. In other respects, though the theatres have proceeded in their old way, yet there has been some improvement observable. The last new piece at the Princess's—"Light and Shadow"—has a more well-defined purpose than one, and even Mr. Boucicault when "Paul's Return" shall no more be heard of. We may remark, also, some improvement in the Adelphi drama with reference to the new drama, founded on an apocryphal incident in David Garrick's life. The story of the playwright was indicated in the first scene of the piece. The same is the case at the St. James's with "Ours," a comedy in which comedy of the "Post-chaise," which is a curious example of dramatic combination, resulting in a plot not very probable, but still highly amusing. Should this public will recognise merit we have a brilliant example at the Olympic, in the success of Mr. Byron's drama of "The Ticket-of-Leave Man." One peculiarity belongs to this—namely, the wonderfully perfect manner in which it is enacted, each character appearing to be perfectly suited to its representative. The Strand has been, as usual, successful with its little pieces; and the standard of the Queen's has been kept up in a laudable manner. The Haymarket is about to be partly pulled down and re-erected, so as to enlarge its accommodation. The Lyceum has at present a genuine success to that of Drury Lane, and the house will be accommodated with change of bill every night. To the Haymarket it will be a matter of satisfaction that Old Drury does to the West. Both claim to be national theatres.

THE SIEGE OPERATIONS IN ST. MARY'S CREEK.

We have engraved another Illustration of the grand military exhibition at Chatham on Saturday, June 11, some account of which, together with the plan, appeared in our last number. The present view is one showing the advance of the Royal Marines in the boats which were sent up St. Mary's Creek to the point where they landed for the attack. The fragments of the boom, already destroyed by exploding a keg of powder against it, are floating on the water. The naval officer seated in a boat at the right-hand corner of the Illustration is the Commander of Her Majesty's ship, Wivern, the guard-ship to which these boats belonged, and likewise the launch, armed with a small gun at her bow, and manned by the bluejackets on the left hand. The intrenched lines of fortification, with several parties of the artillery engaged in repelling the attack and defence, are plainly distinguished on the face of the opposite hill, with the places where an enemy's battery and a mortar battery are to be made by quarrying, and where the ditch was passed by the aid of an extemporised bridge, and the barracks, and the commanding position of building on the summit of the hill, appears to be crowded with spectators; but the principal crowd of visitors to the field will be on the pavilion erected at one of the angles of this building, from which just they enjoyed an excellent view.

INSPECTION OF THE CIVIL SERVICE RIFLE BRIGADE BY THE PRINCE OF WALES.



We present an Illustration of the Civil Service Rifle Brigade, by the Prince of Wales, its honorary Colonel, on Wednesday week, in the Great Exhibition Building, House. This place had been tastefully prepared for the occasion, and a small quantity of bunting had been employed in the erection of several handsome trophies, in the decoration of the galleries. The building is of a beautiful kiosk, with raised dais, on the western side of the square, for the Prince and his suite. Outside of the building the quadrangles were arranged, accommodating a large number of spectators. The windows and even the roofs of the surrounding buildings were crowded. A strong body of the Metropolitan Police, in their new uniform of tunic and helmet, kept the ground, and a detachment of Grenadier Guards kept the ground.

The Civil Service regiment mustered strong, the following companies, equalised to twenty files each, being on the ground:—A Company, Captain Lord K.—B, Captain Wilkinson; B Company, Harrington Post Office; C Company, Captain T. Du Plat Taylor, Post Office; F Company, Captain Tom Taylor, Whitehall; G Company, Captain Wells, Woolwich; H Company, Captain Wilkinson; I Company, Captain Dalhael, Inland Revenue; K Company, Captain Ennis, Inland Revenue. Major Lord Bury was in command, Major Hill, late 26th Foot, and Captain and Adjutant Lombard, late 16th Foot, being the field officers. The Civil Service Rifles have now four hundred men, of whom sixty were recruits recently passed into the line. The rifle drill of the regiment is considered with creditable steadiness; but our Artist has sketched their appearance when they had faced to the front, formed fours, and prepared to receive cavalry in the way which, in future warfare, with troops properly trained to rapidity of movement, supersede the square. Four ranks kneeling, the two rear ranks ready for file firing. Soon after this, the regiment marched past the Prince of Wales, who, having advanced inwards, and the Prince addressed them as follows:—"Gentlemen of the Civil Service Regiment,—I have asked your Colonel to call you on parade, that I might see how you have progressed. I am to have been present at this inspection. I am quite sure that, under your Colonel, you have had every opportunity of learning your drill, for Lord Bury studied the duties of a soldier in the Guards, and has since commanded a distinguished regiment to which I myself belong. I have observed that all ranks have paid great attention to their drill, and have acquired a creditably satisfactory degree of steadiness. Your master to-day is very good; for I understand that only sixty men of the whole regiment are absent." His Royal Highness then handed the challenge cup, which he had presented for competition, to Captain Ennis, and then presented a smaller silver cup to Mr. Burroughs, private in the Whitehall company, who was considered the best shot in the corps. The regiment gave three times three cheers, and presented arms when the Prince and Princess retired, amidst the popular acclamations of the Strand.

The Prince and Princess of Wales have accepted an invitation to be present at the Harrow speech, which will be delivered on Thursday next, the 16th inst.

The Grand Duke of Mecklenburg-Strelitz, accompanied by Prince Adolphus, left town on Monday for Germany. The Grand Duchess will have to-day (Saturday) en route for the Continent.

The corner-stone of a new church, dedicated to St. Mark, was laid on Tuesday last. The new church is situated in the centre of a large and increasingly prosperous neighbourhood, being built on the Crown property in the parish of Kensington, and which adjoins the Horse-guard, Parkes, and abuts also on the Kingsland-road.

THE SIEGE OPERATIONS IN ST. MARY'S CREEK, CHATHAM: BOATS ADVANCING TO THE ASSAULT.—SEE PRECEDING PAGE.

INSPECTION OF THE CIVIL SERVICE VOLUNTEERS BY THE PRINCE OF WALES IN SOMERSET HOUSE—SEE PAGE 615.

SKETCHES IN PARLIAMENT.

THE HOUSE of Commons has got itself into a very satisfactory state of tribulation. The real objects and purposes which two-thirds of the members of that assembly seek in becoming members is just now attained—that is, they possess a better because more common and varied ground for gossip than any exclusive club, and because they are amused and excited between half-past four and dinner-time. Every evening of late Ministerial crises have been expected, and have gathered and wait, and hope, until Lord Fulmerston comes in, when they discover that that cunning old fox is too acute to be caught in the toil they expected, and the next break up. In early morning and late morning (that is after twelve at night) sittings the business of passing the Bills the Government into minorities is regularly performed before a select audience. Indeed, on normal late Wednesday nights members have to bear of the abdication of Mr. Brand and the resumption of the Parliamentary sway by Sir Charles Dilke. Even the Irish paragon of whippers-in has been observed lately to be much more about the House than he has been with some time entured to enjoy a dignified leisure beneath the shade of the pension-tree. Nay, more, even when Ministers are not driven out of office by a vote, or seen by a head, although the jockey had been flogging with a will, or might from the beginning of the race. People who retain traditions of the "English habit of Moderation" know that when they were beaten, continually reckon on a grand defiance from the Premier, and a statement that he will and the unanimous House to undergo the populace of a general election. But Lord Palmerston seems to have inspired his Parliamentary followers with a military principle of not knowing when he is beaten, takes his knockdown blow, and "comes up to time smiling."

Look at the instance of Sir John Hay's motion on the Admiralty war as a notable specimen of the Parliamentary sport which is now raging. The temper of the House was so uneasy on this subject that it was deemed by the Opposition a proper time for which to slide in a note of censure on Ministers; and though the pronounced and obnoxious word was taken out of the notice at the last moment, Sir John had not time, and probably was unwilling, to alter his speech, and accordingly he went in for downright condign judgment upon the Government in general. It was, however, quite clear from the first object that turned the tide which was setting so strongly against these flowing hair, all credit and all sympathy with the Opposition, the House could not or did not go all his length, and a reaction set in There is little doubt that everybody was glad to see the Government hostile divisions. But directly on duty all night, watching the course of events with deep attention, and ready to support the party in hand. There were, however, so many dissentients from his order of the day that many hours elapsed and many speeches made by Mr. Cobden and Bright, who were in presence early, and looked as if they were charged with anathematic thunder against Ministers. However, there came a moment when these two members, who represent in their advantageous position in the field. Soon after a most markedly change came over the scene. The Opposition and the Opposition saw a chance of doing more real damage to Ministers than by putting them into a snare, a very small number of votes on a division could be obtained. He saw it was better not to beat them technically, but by implication, by allowing them to win by a majority so small as to be ridiculous. Accordingly, at the right time, Sir John Pakington was put up to declare his intention of voting against the amendment as a whole, but of blaming heartily certain departments; and, as General Peel observed, Sir John's peculiar indignation was reserved for the sole absolute personality. At the same time it was left to the specially injured members, like Sir John Hay, to force on the division, as if from their private view. Of course, the Government would become aware of all this, and be set about—as it is to be regretted that is the word to use—to get their friends to come, and to crow, and to cry out, "Come on!" in a way that was anything but justified by what was going on, and was not warranted by the result, which was just a nick for Ministers. It must have been that the Irish had got wind of the one of the premises, and which caused them to retort on the triumphant Ministerial shouts which greeted their announcement of a majority of ironical yells, which lasted for full three minutes, and was continued, with diminishing sound but increasing energy, by Conservative members as they retreated in succession through the door close to the lobby. They were clearly the victors in the antiphonal contest.

It is like reigns after every battle, and the Irish were ready for the representative of the Opposition to demand of the First Minister to let the House, in view of the unsatisfactory result, what everybody had read in the newspapers that morning of the decay of a Bill which is now the property of the House of its members. Of course, as the reticence of the Government becomes more marked, the irritation of the Opposition increases, and the scene on Monday night was exactly of the kind which partakers and lookers-on delight to see. The House being full, and in a mood for the crowd, like all other excited crowds, swaying about physically a perpetual movement of individuals, with a dozen members jumping up at once to interrogate or remonstrate with the unacknowledged interpellation and madly solicitous to hear the reply, yet ringing from time to time sport by pretending not to hear, and their knowing exactly what has been asked and what answered. Mr. Stansfeld, in the midst of the excitement, rose and put the usual demand to know what the Conference had been doing; but Beaconsfield's chair was empty, and Sir Stafford Northcote was not there; and Mr. Gladstone rose with a well-assumed air of timidity and asked for notice on a question which everybody knew as if he would say, "If it was finance, now, I am your man." Dignified indignation from Mr. Chaplin, Mr. Gorst, Sir Henry Drummond Wolff, Mr. Osborne, under-secretarial astonishment from Mr. Seymour Fitzgerald, and then, at the happiest moment, Mr. Charley Griffith presented himself in a way which suggested, as he intervened, a reserve of the suggest, recollections of the manner in which the jesters of old, leaning on the back of the King's chair, would put in a word in the matter in hand into a light which was wont to set the counciltable in a roar. Still, when the Irish had got all the fun and information, the reply was—notice; and at last, just as Lord John Manners was about to speak, the words of the Chief of the Irish Minister from whom alone information is to be obtained, to be in his place," Lord Palmerston entered and at once put an end to the situation worthy of a sensation dramatist. There was a shrewd suspicion that the Premier had purposely delayed his entry to the House in the hope that questioning time would have passed and the business of the evening be entered upon; and just now a day's brushing time for a perplexed Minister is much as how many days' hay. But, having been checkmated, he yet showed himself equal to the occasion; he thought he never remembered a Bill in which but were distinctly repeated to him, and whereas if there be one thing more than another that he is averse to it is to be put on answering interpellations at once categorically and in a manner not to give too much information, he, with a sort of grim humour, declared that he could be confused—not to compelled—asked to be prompted from behind, till the edge of curiosity was taken off by the Bill's having arrived, when he took courage to state that he had nothing to say and could say nothing. The result was a curious illustration of the inquisitive demandants, and justified that air of pensive hopelessness which hung over Mr. Osborne's countenance as he sat in the corner with a sigh of resignation. Later that night vicarious vengeance was done on the First Minister by the Irish party—but the measure was ignominiously negatived; we say ignominiously, because the rejection was at the unusual stage of the third reading, and after no less than five solemn divisions had been taken.

On Tuesday the Government were again put to shame. There was a morning sitting and the business was commenced with the Irish Bill, which might have been expected to be fraught with no Parliamentary peril. But Mr. Whiteside naturally takes a Parliamentary and professional pleasure in combating the Attorney-General for Ireland, and he took occasion to try once more—as he had done re-eat times before—to strangle this particular measure. He came in at a moment when things were going very pleasantly for the Bill: took the decisive course of moving "that the Chairman do leave the chair"—fantastoon—a negative to the measure—and occupied the time for hours and a half, until such time as the Committees up stairs had adjourned and, when members came down to the House, it was that the numbers would have been equal but for a blunder on behalf of one of the special supporters of the bill. Sir Colman O'Loghlen on a new member, is, of course, therefore always in and about the House, is everlastingly flapping along the floor and trying the merits or demerits of different seats, has a special horror of "counts out," interfering with all his might to prevent them; and patronises the Government in a manner quite refreshing for its activity and decisiveness, for an Irish member. He contrived to get into the wrong lobby, was, as consequence, crucially compelled to vote exactly opposite to his intentions, and involuntarily cut off for this year his chance of the Vice-Chancellorship which was to have been created under the bill. Why is it that everybody laughs at the Irish? Is it not nobody's else fault that the honourable member had got into this dilemma? Of course, when a man is in a ridiculous position he is more inclined to laugh than to cry, and does not exactly what we mean to insinuate in this case. This episode naturally kept members from going out to dinner, and at 8.30 p.m. again said, in the mean time, the lobby was redolent of stories about Parliamentary proceedings, the resignation of Mr. Shaw, so that Mr. Berkeley thought that his motion on the Ballot had better be postponed, and Mr. Whiteside's Bill for the Irish Land which was assembled. There was never a greater mistake; for when no revelations issued from the oracle on the Treasury bench, gentlemen began to look at the Order Paper, and the Government found to treat his motion like a football; a re-gathering taking place when the Bill came on for review which sent the subject into the middle of next Session—perhaps!

IMPERIAL PARLIAMENT.

HOUSE OF LORDS.—MONDAY.

This being the anniversary of the Queen's accession, their Lordships did not meet.

HOUSE OF COMMONS.—MONDAY.

A new writ was ordered to be issued for the election of a member for Nairnshire in the room of Mr. Duncan Mackintosh, deceased.

Mr. Gladstone stated, in reply to a question from Lord Hotch, that it was not the intention of the Government to proceed with the Irish Land Bill after the limited liability undertaking.

The Solicitor-General and Mr. Milner Gibson said the Government intended to bring in a Bill to amend the Law of Partnership.

The second reading of the Railway Travelling (Ireland) Bill was negatived by 127 to 117.

The adjourned debate on the third reading of the Collection of Taxes Bill was resumed by Mr. Gorst, who moved that the Bill be read a third time. A long discussion followed, and, upon a division, the bill was thrown out by 122 votes to 118.

Lord Elcho moved the second reading of the Naval Defence Bill, the object of which was to create a certain naval and military stations.

The Earl of Morley moved as an amendment that the Duchess of Elgin's Annuity Bill, the Naval and Victualling Stores Bill, and the Divorce and Matrimonial Causes Bill be read a second time that day three months.

The Earl of Kimberley moved the second reading of the Ground Game Bill.

The Government Annuities Bill, the Burials Registration Bill, and the Bankruptcy Appeals Bill were read a second time and committed.

The Lords' amendment to the Common Law Procedure (Ireland) Act Amendment Bill, the Ecclesiastical Courts and Registries (Ireland) Bill, the Court of Justiciary (Scotland) Bill were considered and agreed to.

Lord Cowper moved the second reading of a measure to obtain from the Government a confirmation or a denial of the statement that at a meeting of the Cabinet on Saturday last, presided over by Mr. Gladstone, it was determined to renew the blockade, German privateers would be seen to be in the service of the Government. The noble Lord was also asked whether hostilities would be resumed on Monday next if the Conference should not have arrived at a satisfactory conclusion. The Earl of Granville said that the Foreign Secretary had informed him that on Friday night, that the fleet was ready for any service. With reference to the first of the questions put to him he had to state that the Government had declined to reveal the "secrets" of the Conference; the second question he answered by saying that the Government had no reason to think that the Conference were come to before Sunday; and he explained Lord Kensall's announcement by saying that he had spoken without authority from the Government, and had no intention of pointing to any particular service which our naval forces, if they were employed, would be called upon to render. He was also authorised from Mr. Bright, that the Government were anxiously exerting themselves to avert the resumption of hostilities.

HOUSE OF LORDS.—TUESDAY.

The Admiralty Lands and Works Bill was read a third time and passed.

The Bankruptcy Appeals Bill was read a third time and passed.

The Attorneys and Solicitors' Remuneration Bill was read a second time, and committed to a committee of the whole House.

The Vending of Seals (House of Commons) Bill and the Building Occupiers' Liability Bill were read a second time.

The Common Law Procedure (Ireland) Act Amendment Bill, the Ecclesiastical Courts Act Amendment Bill, the Ecclesiastical Courts and Registries (Ireland) Bill, the Court of Justiciary (Scotland) Bill, the Naval Stores Act (1864) Bill, and the Naval Prize Acts Repeal Bill, were severally read a third time and passed.

HOUSE OF COMMONS.—TUESDAY.

The Academy Compensation Act Amendment Bill and the Commons and Enfield Acquisition Bill were read a third time.

The Coventry Improvement Bill and the Local Government (Ireland) Bill were read a third time and passed.

The Corrupt Practices at Elections Bill was taken in Committee. Clauses up to 12 were passed after discussion, when Mr. Whiteside moved that the chairman do leave the chair, his object being to get the remainder of the bill be referred to a Select Committee. After debate, on a division, this motion was negatived by a majority of 4—numbers 74 to 70.

BALLOT.—Mr. BERKELEY raised his annual question of the vote by ballot, and moved a resolution in favour of the change. The debate occupied a whole sitting, and was tedious that our objective reporter declined to report it. The motion was opposed by Mr. Gladstone, who, however, said that he could not refuse to admit that the question had made progress since it was last brought forward. He was founded upon the erroneous assumption that the right of voting was a personal right, whereas it was a trust reposed in the elector for the benefit of all responsibility, whereas he held that the franchise was a trust that could be properly exercised only by the free, fair, and open vote and not inconsistent with the habits of Englishmen, and he denied that it would affect the relations between landlord and tenant, as the intervention of agency. After a few words in reply from Mr. BERKELEY, the House divided, and the motion was negatived by 276 to 89.

The Attorney-General moved the second reading of a resolution to the effect that the House observes with regret that the agricultural population of Ireland is not adequately represented in the Commission of the Peace, and that the Government will direct their attention to the subject with the view of obviating the existence of this state of things. Government would not be induced to devote their capital and labour to reproductive employment at home. Government would not be induced to devote their capital and labour to reproductive employment at home. He suggested as a remedy and as an inducement to the Irish population to remain at home the encouragement of the fishing industry of Ireland, and the establishment of public works.—Sir R. PEEL attributed the emigration which existed in Ireland to the fact that the land of Ireland, which formerly had a culture had passed in the last three years, and he controverted the assertion that emigration was a remedy for the evils of Ireland. Emigration was a drain that was perpetually going on; and, in conclusion, looking at the emigration from a humanitarian point of view, he regretted it; but in a political sense it was a blessing, because it relieved the country of a burden of a redundant population, for which adequate employment could not be found. Mr. SHAW said that the Irish people were emigrating, and had not been wanting. He urged that proprietors and occupiers of land in Ireland should be placed on an equal footing with regard to their legislation, and pressed the advantage of promoting the cultivation of flax in Ireland.—Mr. MACFARLANE said that emigration was a necessity in Ireland, and he thought that the Government should not be frightened. The matter would not be pressed to a division, after the feeling of sympathy in its favour which was shown.—It was a curious fact that the Irish Attorney-General for Sir G. Ouvry moved the previous question. On a division that motion was carried by 84 to 74.

HOUSE OF COMMONS.—WEDNESDAY.

The Weights and Measures (Metric System) Bill went through Committee, with some formal amendments.

Leave was given to bring in a bill to vest the site of the India Office in her Majesty for the purposes of Government offices.

The Superannuations (Unions Officers) Bill, the Pilotage Order Confirmation Bill, the Local Government Provisional Orders (No. 2) Bill, and the Duchess of Elgin's Annuity Bill were severally read a third time and passed.

The Joint-stock Companies Voting-papers Bill was taken in Committee, but, while the first clause was being discussed, Mr. Pomeroy moved that the chairman do leave the chair; and the motion was carried by 75 to 74 (count).

SIR J. HAY moved the second reading of the Bank of England Notes (Ireland) Bill, the object of which was to prevent the issue of £1 notes. The motion was declined; but, after a long debate, he consented to withdraw the bill in the hope that Government would not allow another Session to pass without introducing a measure dealing with the question.

COUNT OF DUNGANNY (IRELAND) BILL.—The ATTORNEY-GENERAL for IRELAND moved the second reading of a bill to confer certain powers for the purpose of considering the course to be taken with reference to this bill, which, having been unexpectedly read a second time, was opposed by Mr. Whiteside, when the bill was being discussed in Committee, which led to the chairman leaving the chair without reporting progress. After some opposition the motion was agreed to.

THE JERSEY COURT BILL.—Mr. LOCKE moved that the House should go into Committee on this bill, the object of which was to reform the constitution and practice of the Royal Court in that dependency.—Sir G. GREY said that the relations of Jersey had experienced their readiness to introduce the measure, and without their interference the Imperial Parliament, and more especially the House of Commons, would not be justified in interfering with the doing.—Mr. PAULL (for Mr. Reid) moved as an amendment that the affairs of Jersey be heard by their counsel, and be allowed to adduce evidence at the bar in opposition to the bill. On a division the amendment was negatived.

HOUSE OF LORDS.—THURSDAY.

ROYAL ASSENT.—The Royal assent was given by commission to the following Acts:—Supreme Court of Judicature (Ireland), September (2) Amendment; Local Government Supplemental, Naval Agency and Distribution, Naval Prize Acts Repeal, Bankruptcy Appeals, Duchess of Elgin's Annuity, Rules and Orders Procedure (Ireland), Isabel Princess Act Amendment, Court of Justiciary (Scotland), Sea Fisheries, and Burials Registration Bills.

The Royal Commissioners were the Lord Chancellor, the Duke of Argyll, and Lord Waveney.

THE DANO-GERMAN QUESTION.—EARL RUSSELL said that a few evenings ago he had asked whether the treaty between Denmark and the Powers would be arranged between Germany and Denmark or was would be recommenced. He had received no answer to that question, and he wished to know whether the question would probably be answered on Monday. Lord GRANVILLE said he proceed to lay on the table the protocol of the Conference, and to state the present state the present state of the negotiations.

BRIBERY AND CORRUPTION.—Lord BROUGHAM left upon the table a bill to prevent bribery and corruption in returning members to the House of Commons. The bill was read a first time.

FACILITIES FOR THE ERECTION OF COLLEGIATE SCHOOLS BILL.—The Bishop of OSSORY moved the second reading of this bill. Such of the clergy as had not the means of educating their children. The Bishop of CANTERBURY was not prepared for the extent of the bill. The Bishop of SALISBURY thought totally disapproved of the bill. Very few of the clergy, he was sure, would take the respect of the bill. The second reading was concluded by moving that the bill be read this day three months—The Archbishop of CANTERBURY was not prepared for the extent of the bill. The Bishop of SALISBURY thought totally disapproved of the bill. Very few of the clergy, he was sure, would take the respect of the bill. The second reading was concluded by moving that the bill be read this day three months—The Archbishop of CANTERBURY was not prepared for the extent of the bill. The Bishop of SALISBURY thought legalised an existing practice—Lord FORTMAN thought if the bill did not act upon any other principle than that of competition there was no objection to it.—Lord CHANCELLOR disapproved of the bill.—The Bishop of LONDON thought it would be premature to proceed with the second reading of the bill, and that it might be more thoroughly discussed.—After some further discussion the Bishop of OSSORY withdrew the motion for the second reading, on the understood that the preaching in the country churches exclusive to do the peasantry of the bill, and that it would be brought forward in preference to the Irish Land Bill.—The amendment was ultimately withdrawn and the bill read a second time.

HOUSE OF COMMONS.—THURSDAY.

THE CONFERENCE.

MR. DISRAELI said he would take this opportunity of inquiring whether the noble Lord at the head of the Government had any communica ion to make with regard to the Conference at London.

Lord PALMERSTON said the question was naturally a very important one, and he was quite aware that the anxiety not only of the House but of the country was very great for information from her Majesty's Government. (Hear, hear). The Conference met yesterday afternoon, after the Lords, and adjourned its sitting until this afternoon. It was understood that a plenary meeting would be the last and final meeting, and it would be his duty on Monday to give an account of what had taken place and the papers relative to the proceedings of the Conference, and he hoped, including those of Saturday next. He should deem it his duty, as would Earl Russell in the other house, to make a statement with regard to the questions relating to Austria which the papers here (Hear, hear).

MR. W. H. SMITH inquired whether the Conference would meet to deliberate on Saturday, or simply for the purpose of terminating the proceedings.

Lord PALMERSTON said he could not give an opinion, as he had already said, the meeting of the Conference on Saturday next would be the last. It was, of course, impossible for him to say what would be the result of that meeting, but on Monday next he should be able to give papers on the table, and also state the views of the Government on the subject.

Mr. RYLANDS asked whether the papers would be in the hands of members?

Lord PALMERSTON said he should lay them on the table on Monday, and the personal assurance that he would be directed to them as soon as possible.

The subject then dropped. During this brief conversation the House was filled with members, and the galleries were crowded to the doors. Both the Gallery and the Strangers' Gallery were crowded by people who evidently anticipated a debate.

WEIGHING OF GRAIN (PORT OF LONDON) BILL.

MR. CRAWFORD moved the second reading of this bill.

Mr. ALEXANDER Baring ground that the Corporation had received a monopoly of erecting markets in London within a radius of seven miles of the General Post Office, and of the weighing of all grain. He considered that this was a tax upon the working man, and a tax upon the poor man's food. The Corporation had built and established markets, and the money so borrowed was to be repaid by the citizens. He contended that the bill was more in the character of a private than a public bill, and that it was unfair to the citizens of London as much as the bill sought to enlarge and alter the powers of the Corporation of London. He thought that the bill ought to have come to the table and rates and duties on grain and seeds imported into the port of London, for the use and benefit of the Corporation of London. He hoped that the House would not bill ought not to be proceeded with until the standing orders relating to private bills had been complied with.

Colonel W. FAITHFUL appealed to the Speaker to say whether the bill ought not to be proceeded with.

The SPEAKER said that the bill was a private bill, and had been introduced from a private petition of the Corporation of the city of London, but was one which ought to have come to the table and which had been passed through all its stages without opposition. He thought it was a public bill, and suggested that, under all the circumstances it would be better to refer the bill to a Select Committee.

Mr. ALDERMAN of the EXCHEQUER appealed to Mr. Ayrton to withdraw his amendment and let the details of the bill be discussed before a Select Committee.

Mr. Alderman RUSH defended the Corporation from the charge of monopoly. The Corporation derived from the weighing of grain, not trade but from the Rates received from the Corporation.

After some further discussion, the amendment was withdrawn and the bill was read a second time, and was committed, and it was to be referred to a Select Committee.

NATIONAL EDUCATION (IRELAND).

The order of the day was then read for the adjourned debate upon the motion of Mr. Shaw, that the Bill be read a second time, the opinion of which was mentioned by the Commissioners of National Education in Ireland on the Rise and Progress of the Irish National System, and their operations which had served to convert and monastic schools, at variance with the principles of the system of national education.

Sir Richard CROSS moved the adjourned debate, and, in a speech of considerable length, explained the principles of the bill, which was the outcome of the Commissioners of National Education in Ireland.

The debate continued in the absence of the right.

Mr. Smith O'Brien died at Bangor on Saturday last, after a short illness, at the age of sixty.

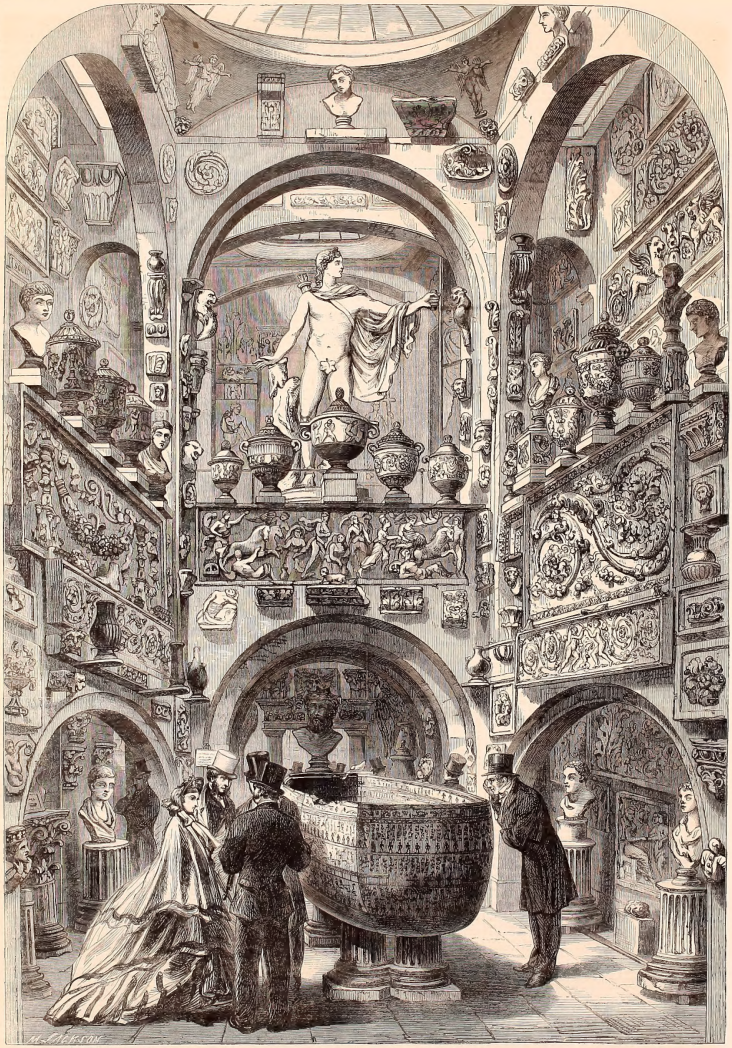
At a meeting of the Shaksperean Commemorative Festival at Stratford-upon-Avon, it was resolved that the time for the erection for the admission to the various performances amounted to over £400.

Sir Richard WARREN has been appointed to the position of chairman of the Board of Works in Ireland. He is nearly eighty years of age, fifty-four of which he has been in the public service.

Despatches received in Paris from Tangiers state that a decree has been promulgated granting religious freedom of trade to Europeans.

A telegram from Constantinople asserts that an understanding has been arrived at between the Porte and Prince Couza on the basis of the propositions submitted by Sir Henry Elliot.

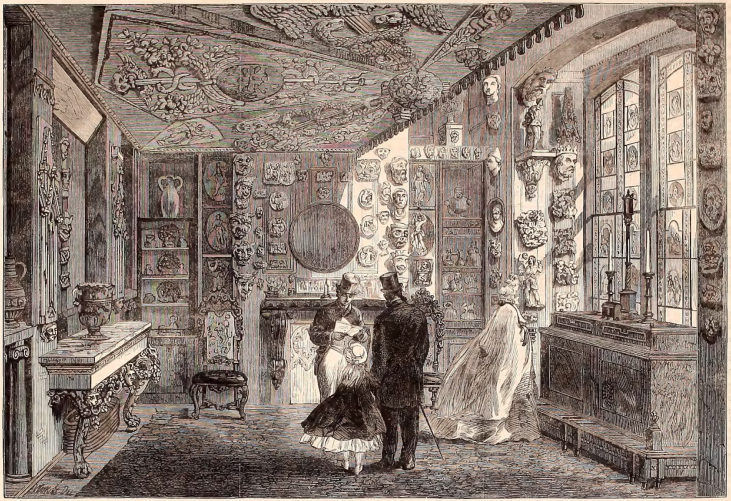
A statue of Jeanne d'Arc is about to be erected in the centre of the square at Vincennes which bears the name of the great composer, in the room of the fountain which now occupies it.



The Queen has approved of Don Miguel Jordan y Llorens as Consul-General in London for the Queen of Spain; and of Senor Juana Ibart as Consul in London for the Republic of Costa Rica.

THE DISTRESS IN LANCASHIRE.—The monthly meeting of the Executive Committee was held at Manchester on Monday—Sir Jos. Ray Shuttleworth, the High Sheriff, presided. Mr. Furnival read a report, which stated the decrease in the persons receiving relief in the last four weeks to be 4,918 persons. The Committee decided to close the Relief Committees from the cotton districts relief committee, and that the balance in the bank was £17,447. The Rev. Canon Rawnsley, the Secretary of the Central Relief Committee has decided to request Mr. Villiers to apply to Parliament for a grant of £50,000 for the relief of distress, particularly in the cessation of public works in the cotton-manufacturing districts.

COLUMN FOR THE CURIOUS.



CERTAINLY celebrations appear to be the fortuitous fashion of the current year. Last month was commemorated, in more instances than may creditably, the tercentenary anniversary of the birth of our great Dramatic Bard. Some ten days previously, at the ancient town of Lewes, was celebrated an historical event of twofold antiquity—the memorable Battle of Lewes, fought in 1264; and on the 14th inst. was held the tercentenary festival of Merton College, Oxford. This was founded of English colleges. To trace through the historic vista of six hundred years, from this dawn of modern civilisation to the wise and far-seeing Walter de Merton, would show an unbroken sequence of national benefits hardly to be paralleled. The original design of the new foundation of Merton was the union of secular studies with monastic discipline; and a recognition of general education at this early period of the college system has a sort of parallel claim upon our attention as the present moment. The brilliancy of the festival arises because the earliest home of science of a decidedly English school, and that for two centuries there was no other foundation, either in Oxford or Paris, which could at all compete with it in the various arts of the sciences. The Mertonians, in the gale of their recent festival, must have been pressed with legends of their predecessors, and the tightened foresight of their illustrious founder—the best tribute that could be rendered to his memory. Among the "old boys" and many a mass of buildings consecrated to sense wise and holy purpose; but neither of them succeeds in thoroughly blending the social college of Merton, with its six centuries of religious and secular history and civilisation, and its picturesque illustrations of the best features of English architecture. We have, however, not yet done with centuries.

The Johnson Club" celebrated its hundredth anniversary a few days ago at the Clarendon, whither it migrated from the Thatched House Tavern, in St. James's-street, on its removal from the west end in Sept. 26 last. The club was founded in 1764 by a knot of good and great men, who met at the Turk's Head Tavern, in Soho, first at the corner of Gerard-street and Compton-street, and subsequently in Gerard-street, the founders being Sir Joshua Reynolds and Dr. Johnson. The members were limited to nine, comprising Goldsmith, Burke, Hawkins, and Burke, and Goldsmith, notwithstanding Hawkins's objection to Oliver as "a seamy-faced fellow." The first meeting was one evening at seven for supper, in 1772. The supper was changed to a dinner, and the members increased by degrees, but not to any length revised that it should never exceed forty. In 1783 the landlord died, and the tavern was removed to Gerard-street. Some of the members then removed to Prince's, in Sackville-street; and on this house being torn down to make room for Regent-street, to Gaskin Thomas's, in Dover-street. In 1792 they removed to Parsloe's, in St. James's-street, and thence to the Thatched House, in the same street. From the time of the club's death, in 1784, it was noted as the "Literary Club," since which it has certainly lost its claim to this epithet. It was originally a club of twelve members; but as the numbers few exceptional members, which was very far from the intention of its founders. The writer of the article in the Quarterly Review, No. 8, however, says, complacently enough, "the Club still acknowledges no other law than the Sovereign Will of the majority, and the which binds together its members, whatever their rank and calling." We perceive that the latitude is now given to 21 honorary members. At the recent centenary celebration, at the Clarendon, there were present—In the chair, the Earl of Carlisle; on his right hand Mr. Justice Wilde, on his left Mr. Justice Willes; on the right hand of Mr. Justice Wilde, on his left Mr. Justice Willes; on the right hand of Mr. Justice Willes

SIR JOHN SOANE'S MUSEUM IN LINCOLN'S-INN-FIELDS: THE SARCOPHAGUS-ROOM.—SEE PAGE 622

SIR JOHN SOANE'S MUSEUM IN LINCOLN'S-INN-FIELDS.

THE MONKS' PARLOUR.

THE BREAKFAST-ROOM.—SEE PAGE 622.

* The charge for the insertion of Births, Marriages, and Deaths is Five Shillings for each announcement.

BIRTHS.

On the 8th inst., at Sandgate, the wife of John Lilley, Esq., of twin sons, the younger stillborn.

On the 4th inst., at Montreal, Canada, the wife of T. Morland, Esq., of a son.

On the 10th of February, at British Columbia, the wife of Colonel Foster, M.L.C., of a son.

On the 10th inst., at Tullow Tal, the Hon. Mrs. Robert Pennefather, of a son.

In Portman-square, the Lady Ardeconnly, of a daughter, still-born.

At Wimbledon, the wife of the Hon. Charles Howard Bruce, of a son.

MARRIAGES.

On the 31st inst., at the parish church, Clapham-common, by the Rev. H. B. Chamberlain, uncle of the bride, assisted by the Rev. J. J. Moore, father of the bridegroom, the Rev. Francis John Clay Moore to Emma Grace, youngest daughter of the late Wm. B. Chamberlain, Esq., of Barnes, Somersetshire. No cards.

On the 14th inst., at the Cathedral, Montreal, C.E., by the Very Rev. the Dean, George A. W. Welch, Esq., Commander Royal Navy, eldest son of Captain Welch, of Alle House, near Cheltenham, and North Shields, to Annie Louisa, eldest daughter of the late Hon. Peter Mitchell, M.P., and granddaughter of the late Hon. Andrew Mitchell, Senr., and niece of General Sir Richard England, G.C.B., K.H.

On the 16th inst., at Holy Trinity Church, Lee, Kent, by the Rev. Thomas Nolan, B.D., incumbent of St. Peter's, Regent-square, assisted by the Rev. W. B. Boyle, M.A., incumbent of Holy Trinity Church, Lee, Kent, Lieut.-Colonel Cox, of Colombo, Ceylon, to Marion Jane, second daughter of the late James Hartley, Esq., of Fairy Hall, Mottingham, Kent.

On the 17th inst., at the residence of the bride's father, by the Rev. R. Short, assisted by the Rev. the Hon. Sandford McVittie Lloyd, M.D., Surgeon-Major Army Medical Staff, of Dublin, second surviving son of the late Mr. Justice Short, Sherbrooke, Canada East. No cards.

On the 18th inst., at Chiddingstone, Kent, Patrick Henry Walsh, Esq., late Captain 19th Highlanders, to the Right Hon. Anne d'e Armadale Countess Cowley.

At Odiham, Francis P. P. Conant, Esq., late Captain 18th Hussars, to the Hon. Florence Caroline Grace, youngest daughter of the Right Hon. Guy Lord Dorchester, of Grey Neville, Bucks.

DEATHS.

On the 9th inst., at Inishcorkish, Portbalise, Lady Dongan, widow of Lieutenant-General Sir Neil Douglas, K.C.B., K.C.H., Colonel Commandant of the Royal Artillery, aged 77.

On the 10th inst., at his residence, Grosvenor-street, Auckland, Sir Frederick Whitaker.

On the 16th inst., at Great George-street, Westminster, Margaret, widow of the Right Hon. Sir Thomas Phinn, M.P.

In Montague-street, Russell-square, the Dowager Lady Tunstall.

On Sunday morning, the 19th ult., at the house of her son, at Leamington, Warwickshire, Elizabeth, the wife of Henry Bingham, Esq., of Kensington, Middlesex, and daughter of the Right Hon. Guy Lord Dorchester, of Grey Neville, Bucks.

DEATHS.

On the 9th inst., at Inishcorkish, Portbalise, Lady Dongan, widow of Lieutenant-General Sir Neil Douglas, K.C.B., K.C.H., Colonel Commandant of the Royal Artillery, aged 77.

On the 10th inst., at his residence, Grosvenor-street, Auckland, Sir Frederick Whitaker.

On the 16th inst., at Great George-street, Westminster, Margaret, widow of the Right Hon. Sir Thomas Phinn, M.P.

In Montague-street, Russell-square, the Dowager Lady Tunstall.

On Sunday morning, the 19th ult., at the house of her son, at Leamington, Warwickshire, Elizabeth, the wife of Henry Bingham, Esq., of Kensington, Middlesex, and daughter of the Right Hon. Guy Lord Dorchester, of Grey Neville, Bucks.

On the 23rd inst., Thomas Geary, Esq., of North End, Fulham, formerly of the Island of Jersey, in the 94th year of his age.

On the 16th inst., at Sunnyside, New Brighton, Cheshire, George Lamb, Esq., of Cunsborough-house, Penrith, aged 67. Friends will kindly accept this intimation.

MR. SIMPSON'S WATER-COLOUR DRAWINGS of the ILLUSTRATIONS to SIR WALTER SCOTT'S ROMANCES, GERMAN GALLERY, 168, New Bond-street. Daily from 10a till 6. Admission, 1s.

ON VIEW, THE PICTURE of th MARRIAGE OF H.R.H. the PRINCE OF WALES, painted expressly by command of Her Majesty the Queen, by Sir J. E. MILLAIS, Bart. Daily from 10 till 6. Admission, 1s. GERMAN GALLERY, 168, New Bond-street, daily, from Tue till Sat. Admission, 1s.

MR. ARTHUR SKETCHLEY will APPEAR at the EGYPTIAN HALL, Piccadilly, in his New Entertainment, entitled "MR. BRIGGS' HOLIDAY," on MONDAY EVENING, June 23rd, and Saturday Morning at Three o'clock. Stalls, 5s.; Balcony, 3s.; Area, 2s. 6d.; Gallery, 1s. Box-office open daily from 10 till 5.

MR. and MRS. GERMAN REED, with MR. JOHN PARRY, in THE PYRAMUS. To be followed by THE BARD AND THE BURGLAR, by MR. JOHN PARRY. Mr. John Parry's new story, THE SEASIDE; or, How Rosalind Got Her Husband, will be told at 3 and 8 every Wednesday and Saturday evening. Saturday next, Saturday at Eight; Thursday and Saturday Afternoons at Three.

MR. W. S. WOODIN'S ELOPEMENT ENTERTAINMENT, LAST NIGHTS, EVERY EVENING, NEW ENTERTAINMENT, EVERY EVENING at EIGHT (until further notice), at the ROYAL ALBERT HALL, Prince's-gate, S.W. HALL, Area, 2s. 6d.; Stalls, 5s.; Gallery, 1s. Doors open at Eight. Amphitheatre, 1s.; Private Box, £1 1s. A Free of the Hall may be seen and seats secured at the Hall from Eleven to Five.

HERR JOACHIM WILL APPEAR at MR. LINDSAY SLOPER'S BENEFIT PERFORMANCE of SACRED MUSIC, on MONDAY AFTERNOON, June 23, at Three o'clock. ARTHUR SULLIVAN'S Sacred Cantata, THE PRODIGAL SON, Conductor, Mr. ARTHUR SULLIVAN. Tickets, 10s. 6d., 5s., and 2s. 6d. of Messrs. Lindsay Sloper, 244, Regent-street, and of all Musicsellers, and at Mr. Austin's Ticket-office, St. James's Hall.

SIGNOR GIULIO REGONDI'S MORNING CONCERT, by ARRANGEMENT with MR. AUSTIN, TUESDAY NEXT, to commence at 3 o'clock. Artistes—Mme. Norman-Neruda, Mme. Sophie Menter, Mme. Antoinette Sterling, Signori Gustave Satter, Wilhelmj, Sir Charles Hallé, Mr. Santley, Mr. Lloyd, and Signor Giulio Regondi. Conductor, Mr. Frederic Cowen. Stalls, 10s. 6d.; Balcony, 5s.; Area, 2s. 6d. Programmes at Austin's Office, St. James's Hall; at the Concert, and of the Artiste.

MR. WILHELM GANZ'S SOIRÉE MUSICALE, at his residence, 9, Victoria-road, Kensington, TUESDAY NEXT, 24, at 8 precisely. Mr. QUEEN ANNE STREET, Mme. Antoinette Sterling, Mme. Patey, Mme. Trebelli, Miss Alice Mackenzie, Mr. Edward Lloyd, Mr. Santley, Mr. Henschel, Rosenthal, and Monsieur Lemaire. Master G. H. Wright, Franklin, E. Berger, L. Ganz, and Charles Ganz. Accompanyist, Signor Gustave Satter, to be continued at Mr. Wilhelm Ganz, as his residence.

MUSICAL UNION.—JOACHIM and HALLÉ, as the DIRECTORS' MATINÉE, WEDNESDAY, June 25, by permission of Their Royal Highnesses the Duke and Duchess of Edinburgh, at Clarence House. Quartets, Mendelssohn, Beethoven, and Schubert. Vocalist, Mme. Trebelli. Pianoforte, Mme. Schumann. Violin and Viola, Joachim. Violoncello, Signor Piatti. Conductor, Mr. Ella. Visitors can pay at the Hall, or present Tickets, Half-a-guinea each, at Chappell and Co.'s, 50, New Bond-street. Austin's Ticket-office, St. James's Hall; and Cramer, Beale, and Chappell, 201, Regent-street.

MR. JOHN THOMAS (Pencerdd Gwalia) will sing at the EISTEDDFOD, Llangollen, on Wednesday and Thursday next, and at Mr. Ellis Roberts's Concert, when he will be performed for the first time in London his Dramatic Cantata, LLEWELLYN, by the following vocalists:—Madame Edith Wynne, Miss Palmer-Bailey, Mr. Ben Davies, and Mr. Lewis Thomas. Conductor, Mr. Brinley Richards. Tickets, 10s. 6d., 7s. 6d., 5s., and 2s. 6d. Mr. Thomas's Concert, Wednesday, July 2, St. James's Hall. Mr. Wright, Mr. Chaffin, Mr. John Thomas, &c. Conductor—Mr. Alfred Gilbert. Tickets, 10s. 6d., 7s. 6d., 5s., and 2s. 6d. Mr. Ellis Roberts's Soirée Musicale, Wednesday, July 9, at 8, at Mr. Ellis Roberts's, Wellesley-street, Carmichael-square, W.; Halvorsen, Wolff-Andrieux, Lazarus, Lee, Ould, and Mr. Ellis Roberts. Leader, Mr. Sigismund Marie Wurzbach, and at Mr. Austin's Ticket Office, St. James's Hall.

MONDAY POPULAR CONCERTS, St. JAMES'S HALL.—Mr. HAS. HALLÉ'S ORCHESTRAL and MONDAY EVENING CONCERTS, 37, Princes-street, Manchester-square. Conductor, Mr. Hallé. Mr. Charles Hallé's Pianoforte Recitals, Monday Afternoons, June 23 and 30, at 3. Mr. Hallé's Orchestral Concerts, Monday Evenings, June 23 and 30, at 8. Pianists and Programmes at Chappell and Co.'s, 50, New Bond-st.

HERR JOACHIM'S LAST APPEARANCE BUT ONE at the MONDAY POPULAR CONCERTS, ST. JAMES'S HALL, at 3 THIS AFTERNOON and MONDAY EVENING, JUNE 23, when he will play BEETHOVEN'S Sonata "Kreutzer." Single Tickets, 5s. and 1s. 6d. Stalls, 3s., at Chappell and Co.'s, 50, New Bond-street.

MR. SIMS REEVES will sing "SOUND AN ALARM," CALL DOWN THE THUNDER," and "THE SAILOR'S GRAVE," at the Ballad Concert, this evening, at "John Macadam," EXETER HALL, JULY 8. Band and Chorus, 500 Performers. Conductor, Mr. WILLIAM CUSINS, Mus. Doc., 10s., 5s., 3s., 2s., and 1s. Crystal Hall.

MR. SANTLEY will sing "ARM, ARM, YE BRAVE" &c., "Judas Maccabæus," EXETER HALL, JULY 8. Tickets at 10 and 5s. Exeter Hall, where may be had Mr. Mapleson's Sailing Edition of this and other Oratorios, full score, with pianoforte accompaniment, published 1 vols., price 21s.

MISS MATTIE SPINNEY will play "A te o cara," Bellini's Fantasia, at the Concert of Mr. FREDERICK CHATTERTON'S MARS' BRITAIN, ST. GEORGE'S HALL, MONDAY EVENING, JUNE 23.

HORSE SHOW, AGRICULTURAL HALL, London.

OPENING DAY and PUBLIC JUDGING, FRIDAY, JULY 4, at Nine o'clock precisely.

HORSE SHOW—SATURDAY, JULY 5. Nine sub. Admission, Half-a-Crown.

HORSE SHOW—A Parade of Prize Horses Every Afternoon.

HORSE SHOW.—Each Class will be exhibited in the Ring Seven Days.

HORSE SHOW.—Forty Thoroughbred Stallions.

HORSE SHOW.—Twenty Roadster Stallions

HORSE SHOW.—Sixty-nine Hunters in Three Classes.

HORSE SHOW.—Thirty-five Weight-carrying Cobs.

HORSE SHOW.—Ninety Ponies in three Classes.

HORSE SHOW.—Arabs, Barbs, Turks, Champers, Mules, State Carriage Horses, &c.

HORSE SHOW, AGRICULTURAL HALL, London.—Admission on Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday, the 4th of July, One Shilling.

HORSE SHOW, AGRICULTURAL HALL, London.—Admission on Thursday, July 3rd, and Saturday, the 5th of July, One Shilling.

HORSE SHOW, AGRICULTURAL HALL, London.—Season tickets to be had in Omnibuses to view the Judging and daily parade, at One Guinea.

S. SIDNEY, Sec.

ROYAL BOTANIC SOCIETY'S GARDENS' FÊTE and FLOWER SHOW, Wednesday next. Grand Display of FIREWORKS and FRUIT this SEASON will take place on SATURDAY, JUNE 28, at 9.30. Tickets, 5s. each, to be had of the Secretary, 3, Hanover-square, W., or on the day of Exhibition, 7s. 6d. each. Gates open at Two o'Clock.

BRIGHTON and BACK for 3s., EVERY SUNDAY, by the 10 a.m. Train from Victoria, London Bridge, and Kensington, at 6d. each. No luggage allowed. Children under Three years of age free. Return Tickets.

HASTINGS and BACK for 3s. 6d., by the SUNDAY EXCURSION TRAINS from VICTORIA, SYDENHAM, London Bridge and Victoria, at 8.5 a.m. These trains call at Clapham Junction, Wandsworth, and Battersea-park. Children under twelve years of age half price.

DRAWING-ROOM SUITE for 2s. 6d., or Bedroom Suite for 1s. 6d. per Week. Good Selection. Cash Price Lists free. Note Address—HEAL and SON, 196, Tottenham-court-road. Established 1810. Entrance next to Warren, Chinaware, Sugar, and Metallic Bedstead Warehouse.

SMART'S SOLE WRITING INSTITUTION, for correct of treadless-street, Quadrant, Regent-street. Open from 10 till 5. Lessons, 1s. each. Testimonials from Principals of Colleges, Schools, &c. Circulars under twelve years of age not received. No classes. No extras. Improvement guaranteed in Eight Lessons. Private Lessons at Pupils' Residences. Lessons by Letter. Lessons in Shorthand. Specimens of writing and terms forwarded, free, on application to Mr. SMART, as above.

N.B.—Another Establishment at 97, Cheapside, E.C.

WINES AND SPIRITS bought or sold on commission. The highest Cash prices given for every description of Wines and Spirits. Apply to Messrs. HARRIS and SON, 10, Mincing-lane, E.C.

FOR FAMILY ARMS and Name and County in CULLETON'S Heraldic Library, the established Office for Genealogical and Heraldic Research, 25, Cranbourn-street, Leicester-square. Fees moderate. Plain Drawing, 5s. 6d.; in Heraldic Colours, 7s. Arms, crest, and motto painted on vellum, 12s. Pedigrees traced, Boundaries of Estates painted, Engraving and Illuminating executed in the Heraldic Manner. Libraries, "Decorative Book," and nearly every work published in connection with Heraldry, Family History, Topography, and Antiquities, arranged direct from the Heraldic College, by T. Culleton, Genealogist, Heraldic Artist, &c.

FAMILY ARMS.—CULLETON'S Heraldic Office for Engraving Arms and Crests, Pedigrees, &c., as the laws of Quarter and Under King-at-Arms, by authority. Crest and Name, 5s.; Engraving Arms with Crest or Address, 10s. Solid Gold Signet Rings and Name, 10s.

UNIVERSAL MICROSCOPE, price £5 5s., SMITH, BECK, and BECK, 31, Cornhill, 6, Coleman-street.
Catalogues sent on receipt of a postage-stamp.

RIFLE-GLASSES. BUTLER'S (Makers) 19, Cornhill.

KEYZOR and BENDON'S two-guineas RECTILINEAR FIELD or OPERA GLASS, greatly improved by the addition of six extra lenses. This celebrated instrument is now constructed with twelve lenses at the same price, giving to it unprecedented power and light. The field is extended to a brilliant circle of near or distant objects, and is equally serviceable as a countenance or adviser at an ode, ordinary objects distinctly at midway, suitable for the use of ladies, gentlemen, travellers, and tourists use. May be had of opticians and jewellers throughout the world. Wholesale of KEYZOR and BENDON, 22, Hatton-garden, Holborn, City-road, Finsbury-square, and Hall Richard-street.

ARCHERY.—A Ladies complete Set, 21s., consisting of a full-sized bow with Flemish string or reverse, 6 arrows, target, and pair of gloves. Illustrated price-list, post-free. ALLEN and ANDERSON, 174, Oxford-street.

NEW STYLE OF CARRIAGE, to open and close at pleasure, invented and patented by LAMBE and HEARNDEN, Coachmakers, Oxford-street, Uxbridge, Middlesex, Manufacturers, Worcester-square.

FLORAL STANDS and BASKETS for the BREAKFAST TABLE at Bentley-moor. An elegant assortment in Silver and Electro-plate. Messrs HOWARD and BULLOUGH, 11, Moorstreet, Portman-square. Vide "London Society."

EVERY MAN HIS OWN PRINTER.—The Best and Cheapest Machine for Printing Cards, Circulars, &c., is the Letterpress Printing and Lithographic Printing. SEARLE'S VICE AND ART OF PRINTING, 1s., or 14 stamps.—D. O. SEARLE, Engraver and Lithographer to her Majesty's Post Office, 24, High-street, Holborn, London, W.C.

TO SHIPPING, MERCHANTS, DEALERS, and STATIONERS.

C. BRANDAUER, E. 30, Finsbury-pavement, London, E.C., 403 to 407, New Johnson-street West, Birmingham.

PIANO.—A Seven-Octave Cottage, cost £30, in mahogany case, with sound back, will sell for £12 guineas. Also a seven-octave cottage, in handsome rosewood case, with fine, full, and sweet tone, and not touched, as supplied by Collard and Collard, between two and seven o'clock at 45, Blake-street, Portman-square.

ICE for TOWN or COUNTRY.—Refrigerators, Ice-cream Freezers, Pressing Troughs, and every article connected with freezing, of the best, most modern, and reliable construction, at moderate prices. Illustrated Price-list free.
WILLIAM LUSH and COMPANY, 141, Strand, London, W.C.

HOWARD and SONS' MACHINE-MADE CABINET WORK.—The introduction of Steam-power in the manufacture of Cabinet Work and Seats has enabled the proprietors to supply at 20 per cent under the usual prices. Designs and estimates free.

THE EQUILIBRIUM CHAIRS (Sedley's) Patented, are the Perfection of Rocking Chairs, and are unsurpassed for comfort and convenience, are now to be had at the Equilibrium Manufactory, 16, Conduit-street, Regent-street, W. Illustrated Catalogue gratis by post.

THE LEAMINGTON FURNITURE GALLERIES, 70, Grafton-street, W., A. BEDLEY and CO., Upholsterers, &c., HONOURED with the patronage of their Majesties the Queen and the Regent-street. Fabricators of the Equilibrium Chairs, Couches, &c.

COVERS for FAMILY JARS, or Jars and Frames for Glass Drawings, Pictures, &c., can be had at moderate terms from GEORGE BENSON, Palace-road Works, Lambeth, S. Enquiries by post for the same.

SLACKS' SILVER ELECTRO-PLATE is a perfect imitation of pure Silver Coin. Medals, Prize Cups, &c., by S. and J. Slack. The fact of twenty years' sale is ample proof of its durability.

	s. d.		s. d.
Table Forks	1 0 to 1 10	Fiddle, Bulmer Handles	2 6 to 3 6
Dessert Ditto	0 10 to 1 6	Dessert Ditto	2 0 to 2 6
Table Spoons	1 10 to 1 16	Tea Ditto	1 0 to 1 6
Dessert Ditto	1 6 to 1 10	Gravy Ditto	2 0 to 2 6
Tea Spoons	0 12 0 to 0 18	Kitchen Knives & Forks	0 8
Electro Cruets	12s. to 30s.	Electro Liqueur Frames	30s.

SLACK'S, 336, High Holborn, W.C., Strand, London, W.C.

FURNISH YOUR HOUSE with the best Articles at DEANE'S IRONMONGERY and FURNISHING WAREHOUSE, established A.D. 1700. The Illustrated Furnishing and Fender Lists gratis and post-free.
DEANE and ANDREW, 46, King William-street, London Bridge.

WILLIAM S. BURTON, GENERAL FURNISHING IRONMONGER by appointment to H.R.H. the PRINCE OF WALES, sends a CATALOGUE gratis and post-free. It contains a List of Prices and Plans of the 20 Large Show Rooms, containing a Stock of Sterling Silver and Electro-plate and Britannia-metal Goods; Dish Covers, Hot-water Dishes, Stoves, Fenders, Marble Chimney-pieces, Kitchen Ranges, Lamps, Tea Trays, Urns, and Kettles; Clocks, Tools, Culler, Baths, Toilet Ware, Turnery, Iron and Brass Bedsteads, Bedding, Bedroom Cabinet Furniture, &c., with lists of prices and plans of the 30 Rooms, at 39, Oxford-street, W.; 1, 1A, 2, 3, and 4, Newman-yard; and 4, 5, and 6, Newman-passage, London, W.

CANDLES. Price Medal. PARAFFINE. Caution.—Genuine Manufacture for the Patentees, Messrs Field, J. C. and J. FIELD, the original Manufacturers and Inventors of the Self-fitting Metallic Candle-tube, and Purifiers of Candle-material. The Price Medal was awarded to them for their manufactures exhibited last year in the Kingdom. Wholesale and for exportation at the Works, Upper Marsh, Lambeth. A wholesale only can be obtained of any Retailer. Unified Service Soap Tablets.

FIELD'S CELEBRATED UNITED SERVICE SOAP TABLETS, at 6d. each, and 7d. if perfumed, are the best and most economical Soap that can be used. They should sale for Taylor, and see that the name of J. C. and J. Field is on each piece, box, and wrapper. Manufactory, Belvedere-road, at the Works, Upper Marsh, Lambeth, S., where also may be obtained Sugar Candles and Composite Candles.

STARCH MANUFACTURERS TO THE QUEEN AND THE PRINCE OF WALES.
GLENFIELD PATENT STARCH, GOLD MEDAL.

DR. DE JONGH'S Medicine of the Last Century is LIGHT-BROWN COD-LIVER OIL, prescribed by the most eminent Medical Men throughout the world as the safest, speediest, and most effective

REMEDY FOR CONSUMPTION, BRONCHITIS, ASTHMA, RHEUMATISM, GOUT, GENERAL DEBILITY, DISEASES OF THE SKIN, GLANDULAR AFFECTIONS, AND ALL FORMS OF SCROFULA.

It is unexpensive superior to every other variety.

SOLE AND SPECIAL APPOINTMENT,
H.R.H. THE PRINCE OF WALES.

Medical Officer to the Queen's Dispensary, London.

"It is a pure oil, and may be recommended as the best."—Dr. Letheby.

Light-brown Cod-liver Oil has a nauseous flavour and even its most inveterate opponents, I have no doubt of its being a pure and undiminished article."

DR. LANKESTER,
Physician to H.R.H. the Duke of Saxe-Coburg and Gotha.

"I have frequently found the Light-brown Cod-liver Oil preferable to any other, and I have no doubt that its uncontaminated purity, activity and not a manufactured compound in which the efficacy of the true remedy is undiminished."

DR. DE JONGH'S LIGHT-BROWN COD-LIVER OIL is sold only in capsule bottles, labelled with his stamp and signature, WITHOUT WHICH NONE CAN POSSIBLY BE GENUINE, by all respectable Chemists throughout the World.

ANSAR, HARFORD, AND CO., 77, STRAND, LONDON, W.C.

ASTHMA; OPPRESSION, SUFFOCATION, and all Diseases of the Chest, Lungs, and Throat, are relieved by Dr. LOCOCK'S PULMONIC WAFERS. Sold in boxes at 1s. 1½d. and 2s. 9d. each, by all Medicine Vendors. Apply to M. Rose, 16, Alfred-place, Bedford-square, London.

YOUNG'S ARNICATED CORN PLASTER, 1s. 1d., YOUNG'S ARNICATED BUNION PLASTER, 1s. Sent over terminal. Sold by you in all towns.
31, Shaftesbury-place, City.

TEETH and PAINLESS DENTISTRY.—MESSRS. LEWIN, MOSELY, and SONS, 32, Sackville-street, Piccadilly, W., continue to supply ARTIFICIAL TEETH by their Method. Established 1820. These Teeth are cheaper, more durable, natural, and comfortable, than any yet produced. Consultation Free. For the "Dental Guide" and Pamphlet, containing Prices, &c., send Two Stamps for one impression with any one of the above name.

BRUCCIANI'S GALLERIA DELLE BELLE ARTI, Fleet-street, opposite Bridge-street, Blackfriars.—Mr. Bruciani respectfully informs the nobility, gentry, artists, and the public generally that his GALLERY OF FINE ARTS is now open (from 10 A.M. till 5 P.M. daily, and on Sundays from 1 till 5) with an extensive collection of Reproductions of Ancient and Modern Art, original Marbles and other Statues, busts, &c.

TOURISTS derive additional pleasure in visiting localities where associated with NEWSPAPER, BOOKS, and STORIES of the past. The Proprietors of the Times have given practical INCENTIVES to Ladies and Gentlemen to avail themselves of their Publications, comprising many thousand specimens of Literature, Science, and Art, by offering Prizes for the most interesting Letters descriptive of the Localities and Scenes described in the Times and Moxon used in the Arts. Mr. Tennent can also supply descriptive Catalogues of Moxon's Popular Poets, Shakspeare, Milton, Byron, Wordsworth, Tennyson, &c.

WATCHES.—A. B. SAVORY and SONS, WATCHMAKERS, 11 and 12, Cornhill, London (opposite the Royal Exchange), respectfully call attention to their Stock of Watches, the improvements of which in accuracy, appearance, and solidity have recently commanded for accuracy and durability.

Patent Lever Watch, jewelled in 4 holes, and capped	£5 15 0
Ditto, jewelled in four holes and capped	7 7 0
Ditto, jewelled in eight holes, and capped	10 10 0
Ditto, jewelled in 18 holes, and capped	15 15 0

GOLD WATCHES—SIZE FOR LADIES.

Patent Lever Watch, with gold dial, jewelled in 4 holes	£7 15 0
Ditto, with shell compensation balance, jewelled in four	12 12 0
Ditto, with gold dial, jewelled in eight holes	15 15 0

GOLD WATCHES—SIZE FOR GENTLEMEN.

Patent Lever Watches, jewelled, enamel dial and seconds	£8 8 0
Ditto, with shell compensation balance, jewelled in four	15 15 0
Ditto, jewelled in eight holes	21 0 0

Every Watch Warranted to Keeping Time. £3 3s. extra.
List of prices with remarks on watches sent post-free.

DENT, Chronometer, Watch, and Clock Maker by special appointment to her Majesty the Queen and H.R.H. the Prince Consort, to the Royal Observatory, Greenwich, and to the Board of Admiralty, 33, Strand (adjoining Coutts's Bank), and 34 and 35, Royal Exchange.

DENT'S CHRONOMETERS, WATCHES, and CLOCKS for Gentlemen, Ladies, Presentation, Home, Watch, Clock, and Chronometer Maker by special appointment to the Queen and H.R.H. the Prince Consort, and to the Royal Observatory, Greenwich.

GOLD CHAINS and FINE GEMELLEWERY.—A very elegant SPECIMEN of GOLD CHAIN, 18 carats fine, 10 inches long, 10 dwts. 12 grs., £5 5s.; 12 inches, 12 dwts., £6 6s.; 14 inches, 14 dwts., £7 7s.; 16 inches, 16 dwts., £8 8s.; 18 inches, 18 dwts., £9 9s.; 20 inches, 20 dwts., £10 10s. Sent free by post on receipt of Bank Post Bill. Gold Guard Chains, 10 to 16 guineas.—FREDK. HAWLEY, Goldsmith, 3, Great Marlborough-street, Regent-street, W. Gold Albert Chains, 5 to 10 guineas. Gold Bracelets, 5 to 10 guineas. Gold Lockets, 5 to 10 guineas. Established nearly a century. Merchants and Shippers supplied.

CHURCH, TURRET, and STABLE CLOCKS.—F. BENSON, 54, and 55, Old Bond-street, by Warrant of Appointment to H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, and maker of the Great Clock for the Royal Exchange. Clocks for churches, turrets, lawn and ornamental purposes, and for stables, with dead-beat escapements. Estimates given. Illustrated Pamphlet, with Prices, sent free by post on application. Clocks for the Home, of the most perfect description, especially adapted for the use of invalids, and those on any member of table. A descriptive pamphlet on choice of clocks post-free for one stamp. Clocks by all the best makers.

BENSON'S WATCHES.—"The movements are of the finest quality which the art of lever can at present produce."—Extract from the Illustrated London News. Benson's Illustrated Pamphlet, Watches, Clocks, Jewellery, Plate, and Keyless Watches. Benson's Illustrated Historical Pamphlet on Watches, with Prices, sent free by post on receipt of six stamps. The world to select a watch and have it sent safe by post.—W. BENSON, Old Bond-street and Westbourne-grove.

CLOCKS BY THE BEST ARTISTS. Clocks for Churches, Halls, Mansions, Offices, Parks, Gardens, and Warehouses, musical and astronomical. Benson's Illustrated Pamphlet, containing Prices, sent free by post on receipt of six stamps.—Old Bond-street and Westbourne-grove.

LOCKE'S GILT-EDGE DRAWING-ROOM CLOCKS, 40, 43 3s., 45 6s., and £5 5s.; chronometer escapement, Gothic Clocks. The shortest time on record. Also the Bijou and MUSICAL CLOCK Depot, 15, Cheapside (next door to Bow Church). Country orders carefully packed. Clocks repaired by steam.

HAIR JEWELLERY.—G. HOOPER, Artist in Hair Jewellery, begs to inform the Nobility, Gentry, and Public that he has REMOVED from No. 2, Bond-street, to No. 4, Old Bond-street, Piccadilly.

A. FORBER, HAIR JEWELLER to the QUEEN, 9, Hanover-street, Hanover-square.

HAIR JEWELLERY.—ARTIST IN HAIR. Brooches, Chains, Bracelets, Rings, Pins, Studs, &c., and Ornaments for Dress, Mourning, or Presents. Hair Work of every description. Ornamental Hair Jewellery manufactured by experienced assistants at 24, Berners-street, W. Illustrated Price-list post-free.

RODRIGUES' DRESSING CASES and TRAVELLING BAGS, with Silver and Ivory Fittings, in every variety. Necessaire and Cosmetic Boxes for the Toilet, in Morocco, Russia, and Crocodile. Dressing Cases and Travelling Bags Made to Order. 42, Piccadilly, W.

RODRIGUES' DESPATCH BOXES and Writing Desks, in Russia, Morocco, Crocodile, and Tortoiseshell, with Silver and Ivory Fittings. Work Boxes, Envelope Cases, Writing Cases, and Inkstands, at HENRY RODRIGUES', 42, Piccadilly, W.

CARTE DE VISITE PORTRAIT ALBUMS, to hold 12 Portraits, 2s. 6d.; to hold 20, 3s. 6d.; to hold 50, 5s. 6d. Tourist Photographic Apparatus and Materials. Portraits of Celebrities, 1s. 6d. each. Catalogues for stamp.—JOHN JABEZ EDWARDS, 123, Newgate-street, London.

NO CHARGE MADE for STAMPING Arms, Crests, Initials, Monograms, Dies, and Plates. Relievo Crest-Seal Engraving, 6s. per 100; Steel-Seal Note Paper, 4s. per ream; Wedding Cards, 50 for 4s. 6d. Price-list free.

A VISITING CARD-PLATE ENGRAVED, and 50 CARDS printed, for 4s. 6d. Wedding Cards and Envelopes stamped in the most elegant manner. Crests, Monograms, and Addresses Engraved. Price-list free.—T. CULLETON, Engraver, 25, Cranbourn-street, Leicester-square.

CARTES DE VISITE, 12 for 2s. 6d. Forward your carte de visite and 13 stamps, with address, to the LONDON PHOTOGRAPHIC COMPANY, 54, Ludgate-hill, E.C., and they will return you the carte and two well copies (!) the exact size of the original, and for every additional dozen required 1s. 6d. Cartes de visite, 1s. 6d. per dozen. Cabinet Portraits, 2s. 6d. each.

PENCILS, Black Lead and Coloured Chalks, of every description, POLYCHROMATIC SPECIAL, sold by all Stationers and Artists' Colourmen.
Agents—Reeves and Sons, 113, Fleet-street, London, E.C.

BY APPOINTMENT TO HER MAJESTY THE QUEEN AND H.R.H. THE PRINCE OF WALES.

J. WAT and SANDERS beg respectfully to announce the Opening of their New Premises in Lower Regent-street, Nos. 5 and 6, Waterloo-place.

[1, Pall-mall;	[5 and 6, Waterloo-place,
2, Regent-street,	Lower Regent-street.

THE IRON AGE! STEEL COLLARS! PERFECT WHITENESS! PERFECT COMFORT! Sold by Linen Drapers and Hosiers. Lasher or Dandenong Cuffs, 3s. 6d. a pair. Collars, 2s. 6d. each.

Sold by Mr. TURNBULL, 186, Leadenhall-street, E.C., and 31, Regent-street, W.
Also by the Trade, post from the Patentee and Sole Manufacturer, F. F. TURNBULL, Bradford.
A Collar for 31 stamps; Pair of Cuffs, 34 stamps.

NOTHING TO PUZZLE REFRESHING THAN RIMMEL'S EXTRACT OF LIME JUICE and GLYCERINE, which cleanses and suits the head, and produces a delightful perfume. Price 1s. 6d. and 2s. 6d. RIMMEL'S LILY OF FRANCE will also be found a perfect luxury this weather as an adjunct to the toilet and bath, and a restorative to the hair.
Depot Strand Pavilion, Strand; 24, Cornhill; and 128, Regent-street, W.

SALE of RICH FOREIGN SILKS, the Property of a Foreign Merchant, 250 Manufacturers' Order Silk Dresses, all really selected pieces commencing at 1½ guinea Full Dress Patterns, 2½ guineas. Also a large lot of Checked and Striped Glacés, all at 1½ guinea.
PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 107, Oxford-street.

A PURCHASE OF 20,750 METRES of FRENCH GRENADINES.
Lot 1.—500 Metres (Wool and Silk) 19s. 6d. Full Dress.
Lot 2.—1,000 Metres (Wool and Silk) 39s. Ditto.
Lot 3.—750 Metres (All Silk) 49s. Ditto.
The above are all this season's manufacture, are perfect novelties, and will be found unusually cheap. Patterns will be sent on application. Any length cut. Carriage paid to the country. Large assortment of patterns sent and can be returned free.
PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 107, Oxford-street, W.

NEW FOULARDS, this season's patterns only.
Chéné, Checked and Striped Foulards, 10s. 6d. Full Dress.
Chéné, Checked and Striped Foulards, 15s. to 21s. Full Dress.
PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 107, Oxford-street.

CHECKED SILKS at 21s. 6d., 21s. 9d., and 22s. 6d. Full Dress.
Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 107, Oxford-street.

A MANUFACTURER'S STOCK of Striped, Checked, and Plain Silks, from 2 guineas.
Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 107, Oxford-street.

GROS DE SUEZ, to many new shades of this season's introduction, 2½ guineas Full Dress.
Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 107, Oxford-street.

MOIRE ANTIQUE Black, White, and Coloured.
A new pattern, 2½ guineas Full Dress.
Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 107, Oxford-street, W.

FRENCH BROCHÉ SILK POPLINES, 2½ guineas Full Dress.
Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 107, Oxford-street.

MOZAMBIQUE BAREGE, the New Fabric for Ball Dresses, Half-colours and Stripes.
Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 107, Oxford-street, W.

ALL LAST YEAR'S FRENCH ORGANDIE MUSLINS, perfectly fresh, and many of the patterns equal to Embroidered Muslins.
Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 107, Oxford-street.

WASHING GRENADINES (Pure White), from 7s. 6d. to 14s. 6d. the Full Dress.
Also, Coloured Grenadines, from 5s. 6d. to 14s. 6d. the Dress.
Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 107, Oxford-street.

MUSLIN CURTAINS.
Sample Curtains, at any price, sent on approval.
PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 107, Oxford-street, W.

UNTEARABLE BAREGES, in Checks, Stripes, and Plaids.
Several New Makes this Season.
PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 107, Oxford-street.
Mourning Warehouse, 256, 258, and 260, Regent-street.

ESTABLISHED TWENTY YEARS.
NICHOLSON and CO. are Now Selling Patterns of their Wide Yards of Best Black Glacé Silks, Checkers, from 1s. 6d. to 10s. per yard; usual under rates.
NICHOLSON and CO., 50, St. Paul's-churchyard, London.

200 PATTERNS POST-FREE.
9236 YARDS of PLAIN COLOURED GLACÉ SILKS, many shades of each, 14 in. wide, 1s. 6d., 1s. 9d., and 2s. 11½d. per yard.
Write to RICHOLSON and CO., 50, St. Paul's-churchyard, London.

8230 Yards NEW CHECKED and STRIPED SILKS, all 14 inches, 2½ 3s. 6d., and 4½ guineas the Dress.
Write to RICHOLSON and CO., 50, St. Paul's-churchyard, London.

200 PATTERNS POST-FREE.
£3400 WORTH of MOIRE ANTIQUES, in Black, White, and Colours, 2½ guineas the Dress.
Write to RICHOLSON and CO., 50, St. Paul's-churchyard, London.

£2634 WORTH REVERSIBLE BROCHÉ SILKS, woven on a New Principle, by which the Pattern appears alike on both sides, 2½ guineas the Dress.
Write to RICHOLSON and CO., 50, St. Paul's-churchyard, London.

200 PATTERNS POST-FREE.
7640 YARDS of LAST YEAR'S SILKS, 1s. 6d. to 2s. 6d. per yard; all good makers.
Write to RICHOLSON, 50, to 51, St. Paul's-churchyard, London.

200 PATTERNS POST-FREE.
£3400 WORTH BLACK SILKS, Checks, Stripes, Plaids, Deep Drops, all of the celebrated Nuns Regrets, from 2½ guineas the Dress.
Write to RICHOLSON and CO., 50, St. Paul's-churchyard, London.

200 PATTERNS POST-FREE.
15,030 YARDS FOULARD SILKS of the Season, Checked, Striped, Spotted, and perfectly unfashionable. Beautiful plain colours at 1s. 6d per yard; usual price, 2s. 6d. Patterns post-free.
Write to RICHOLSON and CO., 50, St. Paul's-churchyard, London.

3000 YARDS of PLAIN COLOURED IRISH POPLINS, at 2s. 6d. per yard. Half price.
Patterns post-free.
Write to RICHOLSON and CO., 50, St. Paul's-churchyard, London.

NEW MANTLES.—MESSRS. NICHOLSON and CO. beg to inform their Customers and Ladies generally that they are now prepared to execute Orders for MANTLES for the Season. An Illustrated Manuscript of latest Fashions, post-free. Patterns of Materials, 1s. 6d., 2s. 6d., 3s. 6d., and 5s. per yard.
NICHOLSON and CO., 50, St. Paul's-churchyard, London.

100 PATTERNS POST-FREE of the NEW MATERIALS for LADIES' DRESSES, and all other pretty Fancy Dress Materials for the Season, from 6d. to 2s. per yard.
NICHOLSON and CO., 50, St. Paul's-churchyard, London.

DO YOU WISH YOUR CHILDREN WELL DRESSED?—Boy's Knickerbocker Suits to Cloth, from 10s. 6d. Boy's Knickerbocker Suits to Velvet, from 21s. Boy's Knickerbocker Suits to Tweed, from 12s. 6d. Boy's Knickerbocker Suits to Fancy Cloth, from 15s. 6d. Patterns, post-free.—NICHOLSON'S, 50 to 51, St. Paul's-churchyard, London.

SANSFLEUTUM CRINOLINES, 2s. 6d., 3s. 6d., 4s. 6d., 5s. 6d., 6s. 6d., 7s. 6d., 8s. 6d., 9s. 6d., 10s. 6d., 11s. 6d., 12s. 6d., 13s. 6d., 14s. 6d., 15s. 6d., 16s. 6d., 17s. 6d., 18s. 6d., 19s. 6d., 20s. 6d., 21s. 6d., 22s. 6d., 23s. 6d., 24s. 6d., 25s. 6d., 26s. 6d., 27s. 6d., 28s. 6d., 29s. 6d., 30s. 6d., 31s. 6d., 32s. 6d., 33s. 6d., 34s. 6d., 35s. 6d., 36s. 6d., 37s. 6d., 38s. 6d., 39s. 6d., 40s. 6d., 41s. 6d., 42s. 6d., 43s. 6d., 44s. 6d., 45s. 6d., 46s. 6d., 47s. 6d., 48s. 6d., 49s. 6d., 50s. 6d., 51s. 6d., 52s. 6d., 53s. 6d., 54s. 6d., 55s. 6d., 56s. 6d., 57s. 6d., 58s. 6d., 59s. 6d., 60s. 6d., 61s. 6d., 62s. 6d., 63s. 6d., 64s. 6d., 65s. 6d., 66s. 6d., 67s. 6d., 68s. 6d., 69s. 6d., 70s. 6d., 71s. 6d., 72s. 6d., 73s. 6d., 74s. 6d., 75s. 6d., 76s. 6d., 77s. 6d., 78s. 6d., 79s. 6d., 80s. 6d., 81s. 6d., 82s. 6d., 83s. 6d., 84s. 6d., 85s. 6d., 86s. 6d., 87s. 6d., 88s. 6d., 89s. 6d., 90s. 6d., 91s. 6d., 92s. 6d., 93s. 6d., 94s. 6d., 95s. 6d., 96s. 6d., 97s. 6d., 98s. 6d., 99s. 6d., 100s. 6d., 101s. 6d., 102s. 6d., 103s. 6d., 104s. 6d., 105s. 6d., 106s. 6d., 107s. 6d., 108s. 6d., 109s. 6d., 110s. 6d., 111s. 6d., 112s. 6d., 113s. 6d., 114s. 6d., 115s. 6d., 116s. 6d., 117s. 6d., 118s. 6d., 119s. 6d., 120s. 6d., 121s. 6d., 122s. 6d., 123s. 6d., 124s. 6d., 125s. 6d., 126s. 6d., 127s. 6d., 128s. 6d., 129s. 6d., 130s. 6d., 131s. 6d., 132s. 6d., 133s. 6d., 134s. 6d., 135s. 6d., 136s. 6d., 137s. 6d., 138s. 6d., 139s. 6d., 140s. 6d., 141s. 6d., 142s. 6d., 143s. 6d., 144s. 6d., 145s. 6d., 146s. 6d., 147s. 6d., 148s. 6d., 149s. 6d., 150s. 6d., 151s. 6d., 152s. 6d., 153s. 6d., 154s. 6d., 155s. 6d., 156s. 6d., 157s. 6d., 158s. 6d., 159s. 6d., 160s. 6d., 161s. 6d., 162s. 6d., 163s. 6d., 164s. 6d., 165s. 6d., 166s. 6d., 167s. 6d., 168s. 6d., 169s. 6d., 170s. 6d., 171s. 6d., 172s. 6d., 173s. 6d., 174s. 6d., 175s. 6d., 176s. 6d., 177s. 6d., 178s. 6d., 179s. 6d., 180s. 6d., 181s. 6d., 182s. 6d., 183s. 6d., 184s. 6d., 185s. 6d., 186s. 6d., 187s. 6d., 188s. 6d., 189s. 6d., 190s. 6d., 191s. 6d., 192s. 6d., 193s. 6d., 194s. 6d., 195s. 6d., 196s. 6d., 197s. 6d., 198s. 6d., 199s. 6d., 200s. 6d., 201s. 6d., 202s. 6d., 203s. 6d., 204s. 6d., 205s. 6d., 206s. 6d., 207s. 6d., 208s. 6d., 209s. 6d., 210s. 6d., 211s. 6d., 212s. 6d., 213s. 6d., 214s. 6d., 215s. 6d., 216s. 6d., 217s. 6d., 218s. 6d., 219s. 6d., 220s. 6d., 221s. 6d., 222s. 6d., 223s. 6d., 224s. 6d., 225s. 6d., 226s. 6d., 227s. 6d., 228s. 6d., 229s. 6d., 230s. 6d., 231s. 6d., 232s. 6d., 233s. 6d., 234s. 6d., 235s. 6d., 236s. 6d., 237s. 6d., 238s. 6d., 239s. 6d., 240s. 6d., 241s. 6d., 242s. 6d., 243s. 6d., 244s. 6d., 245s. 6d., 246s. 6d., 247s. 6d., 248s. 6d., 249s. 6d., 250s. 6d., 251s. 6d., 252s. 6d., 253s. 6d., 254s. 6d., 255s. 6d., 256s. 6d., 257s. 6d., 258s. 6d., 259s. 6d., 260s. 6d., 261s. 6d., 262s. 6d., 263s. 6d., 264s. 6d., 265s. 6d., 266s. 6d., 267s. 6d., 268s. 6d., 269s. 6d., 270s. 6d., 271s. 6d., 272s. 6d., 273s. 6d., 274s. 6d., 275s. 6d., 276s. 6d., 277s. 6d., 278s. 6d., 279s. 6d., 280s. 6d., 281s. 6d., 282s. 6d., 283s. 6d., 284s. 6d., 285s. 6d., 286s. 6d., 287s. 6d., 288s. 6d., 289s. 6d., 290s. 6d., 291s. 6d., 292s. 6d., 293s. 6d., 294s. 6d., 295s. 6d., 296s. 6d., 297s. 6d., 298s. 6d., 299s. 6d., 300s. 6d., 301s. 6d., 302s. 6d., 303s. 6d., 304s. 6d., 305s. 6d., 306s. 6d., 307s. 6d., 308s. 6d., 309s. 6d., 310s. 6d., 311s. 6d., 312s. 6d., 313s. 6d., 314s. 6d., 315s. 6d., 316s. 6d., 317s. 6d., 318s. 6d., 319s. 6d., 320s. 6d., 321s. 6d., 322s. 6d., 323s. 6d., 324s. 6d., 325s. 6d., 326s. 6d., 327s. 6d., 328s. 6d., 329s. 6d., 330s. 6d., 331s. 6d., 332s. 6d., 333s. 6d., 334s. 6d., 335s. 6d., 336s. 6d., 337s. 6d., 338s. 6d., 339s. 6d., 340s. 6d., 341s. 6d., 342s. 6d., 343s. 6d., 344s. 6d., 345s. 6d., 346s. 6d., 347s. 6d., 348s. 6d., 349s. 6d., 350s. 6d., 351s. 6d., 352s. 6d., 353s. 6d., 354s. 6d., 355s. 6d., 356s. 6d., 357s. 6d., 358s. 6d., 359s. 6d., 360s. 6d., 361s. 6d., 362s. 6d., 363s. 6d., 364s. 6d., 365s. 6d., 366s. 6d., 367s. 6d., 368s. 6d., 369s. 6d., 370s. 6d., 371s. 6d., 372s. 6d., 373s. 6d., 374s. 6d., 375s. 6d., 376s. 6d., 377s. 6d., 378s. 6d., 379s. 6d., 380s. 6d., 381s. 6d., 382s. 6d., 383s. 6d., 384s. 6d., 385s. 6d., 386s. 6d., 387s. 6d., 388s. 6d., 389s. 6d., 390s. 6d., 391s. 6d., 392s. 6d., 393s. 6d., 394s. 6d., 395s. 6d., 396s. 6d., 397s. 6d., 398s. 6d., 399s. 6d., 400s. 6d., 401s. 6d., 402s. 6d., 403s. 6d., 404s. 6d., 405s. 6d., 406s. 6d., 407s. 6d., 408s. 6d., 409s. 6d., 410s. 6d., 411s. 6d., 412s. 6d., 413s. 6d., 414s. 6d., 415s. 6d., 416s. 6d., 417s. 6d., 418s. 6d., 419s. 6d., 420s. 6d., 421s. 6d., 422s. 6d., 423s. 6d., 424s. 6d., 425s. 6d., 426s. 6d., 427s. 6d., 428s. 6d., 429s. 6d., 430s. 6d., 431s. 6d., 432s. 6d., 433s. 6d., 434s. 6d., 435s. 6d., 436s. 6d., 437s. 6d., 438s. 6d., 439s. 6d., 440s. 6d., 441s. 6d., 442s. 6d., 443s. 6d., 444s. 6d., 445s. 6d., 446s. 6d., 447s. 6d., 448s. 6d., 449s. 6d., 450s. 6d., 451s. 6d., 452s. 6d., 453s. 6d., 454s. 6d., 455s. 6d., 456s. 6d., 457s. 6d., 458s. 6d., 459s. 6d., 460s. 6d., 461s. 6d., 462s. 6d., 463s. 6d., 464s. 6d., 465s. 6d., 466s. 6d., 467s. 6d., 468s. 6d., 469s. 6d., 470s. 6d., 471s. 6d., 472s. 6d., 473s. 6d., 474s. 6d., 475s. 6d., 476s. 6d., 477s. 6d., 478s. 6d., 479s. 6d., 480s. 6d., 481s. 6d., 482s. 6d., 483s. 6d., 484s. 6d., 485s. 6d., 486s. 6d., 487s. 6d., 488s. 6d., 489s. 6d., 490s. 6d., 491s. 6d., 492s. 6d., 493s. 6d., 494s. 6d., 495s. 6d., 496s. 6d., 497s. 6d., 498s. 6d., 499s. 6d., 500s. 6d., 501s. 6d., 502s. 6d., 503s. 6d., 504s. 6d., 505s. 6d., 506s. 6d., 507s. 6d., 508s. 6d., 509s. 6d., 510s. 6d., 511s. 6d., 512s. 6d., 513s. 6d., 514s. 6d., 515s. 6d., 516s. 6d., 517s. 6d., 518s. 6d., 519s. 6d., 520s. 6d., 521s. 6d., 522s. 6d., 523s. 6d., 524s. 6d., 525s. 6d., 526s. 6d., 527s. 6d., 528s. 6d., 529s. 6d., 530s. 6d., 531s. 6d., 532s. 6d., 533s. 6d., 534s. 6d., 535s. 6d., 536s. 6d., 537s. 6d., 538s. 6d., 539s. 6d., 540s. 6d., 541s. 6d., 542s. 6d., 543s. 6d., 544s. 6d., 545s. 6d., 546s. 6d., 547s. 6d., 548s. 6d., 549s. 6d., 550s. 6d., 551s. 6d., 552s. 6d., 553s. 6d., 554s. 6d., 555s. 6d., 556s. 6d., 557s. 6d., 558s. 6d., 559s. 6d., 560s. 6d., 561s. 6d., 562s. 6d., 563s. 6d., 564s. 6d., 565s. 6d., 566s. 6d., 567s. 6d., 568s. 6d., 569s. 6d., 570s. 6d., 571s. 6d., 572s. 6d., 573s. 6d., 574s. 6d., 575s. 6d., 576s. 6d., 577s. 6d., 578s. 6d., 579s. 6d., 580s. 6d., 581s. 6d., 582s. 6d., 583s. 6d., 584s. 6d., 585s. 6d., 586s. 6d., 587s. 6d., 588s. 6d., 589s. 6d., 590s. 6d., 591s. 6d., 592s. 6d., 593s. 6d., 594s. 6d., 595s. 6d., 596s. 6d., 597s. 6d., 598s. 6d., 599s. 6d., 600s. 6d., 601s. 6d., 602s. 6d., 603s. 6d., 604s. 6d., 605s. 6d., 606s. 6d., 607s. 6d., 608s. 6d., 609s. 6d., 610s. 6d., 611s. 6d., 612s. 6d., 613s. 6d., 614s. 6d., 615s. 6d., 616s. 6d., 617s. 6d., 618s. 6d., 619s. 6d., 620s. 6d., 621s. 6d., 622s. 6d., 623s. 6d., 624s. 6d., 625s. 6d., 626s. 6d., 627s. 6d., 628s. 6d., 629s. 6d., 630s. 6d., 631s. 6d., 632s. 6d., 633s. 6d., 634s. 6d., 635s. 6d., 636s. 6d., 637s. 6d., 638s. 6d., 639s. 6d., 640s. 6d., 641s. 6d., 642s. 6d., 643s. 6d., 644s. 6d., 645s. 6d., 646s. 6d., 647s. 6d., 648s. 6d., 649s. 6d., 650s. 6d., 651s. 6d., 652s. 6d., 653s. 6d., 654s. 6d., 655s. 6d., 656s. 6d., 657s.

NEW MUSIC.

THOUSAND LEAGUES AWAY. New Song. Written by W. C. BENNETT, composed by ARTHUR SULLIVAN. Price 2s. 6d. Finely illustrated.

"Thousand leagues away, Dear, the boat rocks there for me.
One kiss and I'm away, Katie, for two long years to see:
For two long years, to think of you, dreaming of you night and day,
To long for you across the sea, a thousand leagues away.
A thousand leagues away, dear Katie; a thousand leagues away,
While round the mirror we two sat and wrote a thousand leagues away."
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

FAUST.—The following are the most popular Airs in arrangements for the Pianoforte, in the celebrated Opera, "Faust." Arranged in Brilliant Style, and Illustrated with Portraits of the Composer and Mdlle. Titiens.

Gounod's Faust Waltz ... ... 2s. 0d.
Gounod's Faust Quadrille ... ... 2s. 0d.
Gounod's Faust Galop ... ... 2s. 0d.
Gounod's Faust Polka ... ... 2s. 0d.
Gounod's Faust Valse ... ... 2s. 0d.
Gounod's Faust Fantasia ... ... 2s. 0d.
Gounod's Faust Duet ... ... 2s. 0d.
Gounod's Faust Valse (Flower Song) ... ... 2s. 0d.
Gounod's Faust Fantasia ... ... 4s. 0d.
Gounod's Faust Quadrille ... ... 4s. 0d.
Benedict's Fantasia de Salon ... ... 4s. 0d.
Kuhe's Fantasia ... ... 4s. 0d.
Kuhe's Fantasia on Faust (Flower Song) ... ... 4s. 0d.
Osborne's Fantasia ... ... 4s. 0d.
Brinley Richards' Fantasia ... ... 4s. 0d.
Benedict's Reminiscences de Faust ... ... 4s. 0d.
Rosenhain's Fantasia ... ... 4s. 0d.
Kuhe's Fantasia on Airs from Faust and Les Huguenots 4s. 0d.
Wallace's Fantasia on Airs from Faust and Les Huguenots 4s. 0d.
Duvernoy's Fantasia ... ... 4s. 0d.
Goddard's Fantasia ... ... 4s. 0d.
Kuhe's Fantasia on Airs from Faust and Les Huguenots 4s. 0d.
Wallace's Fantasia on Airs from Faust and Les Huguenots 4s. 0d.
Duvernoy's Fantasia ... ... 4s. 0d.
Goddard's Fantasia ... ... 4s. 0d.
Rosenhain's Fantasia ... ... 4s. 0d.
Goffrey's Fantasia (selection played by Jullien's Band) 4s. 0d.
Kuhe's Fantasia, in 2 Nos., each ... ... 2s. 6d.
No. 1. The Waltz. No. 2. Faust and Margaret.
Kuhe's Faust Waltz ... ... 2s. 0d.
E. Nauck ... ... 2s. 0d.
The Flower Song. G. Oscar Carolan.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

KUHE'S TANNHAUSER. Just out, a New and Brilliant Fantasia for the Pianoforte on favourite Airs from Wagner's Opera, "Tannhäuser," 4s.

A CHARMING SONG FOR THE DRAWING-ROOM.
QUANDO A TE LIETA. Romance. Composed by ROSSINI, and sung by Mdlle. Titiens in the Opera of "Faust." Price 2s.

CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

BENEDICT'S "WHERE THE BEE SUCKS." Valse à la Strauss. Played by Mr. Sidney Smith at the Shakespeare Festival, and other concerts, with immense success. Price 4s. 6d.—CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

M. TRALBERG'S NEW PIECES.
THALBERG'S BALLO IN MASCHERA. A fine Quadrille. Leading Dances and Airs from the favourite airs from Verdi's Opera, 2s. 6d. Thalberg. Price 4s.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

THALBERG'S RIGOLETTO. Just published, a Fantasia on Airs from Verdi's Opera, 4s.
Thalberg. Price 4s.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

NEW DANCE MUSIC.
THE JOCKEY'S GALOP.—By A. F. GODFREY. Just out. Grand Steeple Galop, very polished, yet beautifully bloodstock with portraits of the celebrated horses, H. M. of Grisewelde, Wild, Longcourse, and Challenger, from photographs by Fenton, of Brighton. Price 2s. net.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

HAPPY MOMENTS WALTZ. By GUSTAVE LAMBERT. Just published. Beautifully Illustrated. Price 2s. net. Orchestra, 3s. Septet, 2s.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

THE FORGET-ME-NOT WALTZ. By GUSTAVE LAMBERT. Just published, Illustrated. Price 2s. net; Septet, 2s.—CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

THE GUARDS' WALTZ. By D. GODFREY. Just published in the Key of F, and in the Pure Tone Scales of Wood. Price 2s. net.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

THE MERRY TUNES LANCERS. Just published, a new set of Lancers, founded on all the popular and merry tunes of the day. By D. GODFREY. Price 4s.; Orchestra, 1s.; Septet, 2s.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

THE HABUM-SCARUM GALOP. By JAMES CARLEY (Composer of the Bodmgore Galop). Just published, Illustrated. Price 2s. net. Orchestra, 1s.; Septet, 2s.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

HELTER-SKELTER GALOP. Just out, a New Galop, by CARLEY (Composer of the Bodmgore Galop). Captainly Illustrated. Price, 2s. Solo or Duet; Orchestra, 1s.; Septet, 2s.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

COOTE'S FAUST WALTZ. Airs from Gounod's Opera, beautifully Illustrated. Price, Solo or Duet, 4s.; Septet, 2s.; Full Orchestra, 1s.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

COOTE'S FAUST QUADRILLE, on favourite Airs from Gounod's Opera. Beautifully Illustrated. Price, Solo or Duet 4s.; Septet, 2s.; Full Orchestra, 1s.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

COOTE'S FAUST GALOP, from Gounod's Opera. Beautifully Illustrated. Price, Solo or Duet, 4s.; Septet, 2s.; Full Orchestra, 1s.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

FAUST POLKA. By F. WALLENSTEIN. Just published. Beautifully Illustrated. Price 4s. net. Orchestra, 1s.; Septet, 2s.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

FOUR ROMANCES by MENDELSSOHN. Transcribed for the voice and adapted to Italian words by Signor LUIGI ARDITI. Price 4s. each. No. 1. Oh quanto mi piace quel bel sembiante. No. 2. Oh, quale soave brezza spira. No. 3. Se tu sapessi. No. 4. Sul prato da cui vicino.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

M. BLUMENTHAL'S NEW PIECES.
Bloomfield's LA SONNAMBULA. Morceau. Price 3s. 6d.
Bloomfield's LA FIGLIA DEL REGGIMENTO. Price 3s. 6d.
Bloomfield's THE BELLES AND MAYTHORNS. Price 3s.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

KUHE'S LEGGERO INVISIBILE. Just published, Arthur Sullivan's Song, for Mdlle. Titiens and Vaitpel with great success, arranged for the Pianoforte. Price 3s.
LONDON and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

BRINLEY RICHARDS' "I WANDER IN SOME OF A TRISTE." The New Song of the Fine Brinsley Richards, "Richard Cœur de Lion," Arranged for the Pianoforte. Price 3s.—CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

H. W. GOODBAN'S BRIGAND'S DANCE. Grand Quadrille Russe. For the Pianoforte. Just published. Price 3s. 6d.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

THE STIRRUP CUP. MR. SANTLEY'S NEW SONG, expressly composed for him by Signor ARDITI, most successfully received, is now ready, in C, D, or E flat. Price 2s. 6d.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

THE WATCHING MOTHER. New Song. Written and Composed by CHARLOTTE M. E. OLIVER. Price 2s. 6d.—CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

NEW SONG, by Miss C. M. E. OLIVER.
"When first I met my love,
'Twas under the old beech-tree:
The sun was here, there, everywhere,
When she beside me stood."
To be had of all Musicsellers in town and country. Price 2s. 6d.

NEW MUSIC.

KUHE'S SECOND FANTASIA ON FAVOURITE AIRS in the celebrated Opera of "Les Huguenots." The very finest Airs are introduced. Price 4s.—BOOSEY and SONS, Holles-street.

MDME. OURY'S DIADELLA, Fantasia on Flowers from "Les Noces de Jeannette." Price 4s.
BOOSEY and SONS, Holles-street.

FORBES'S CAPRICE à la CHANSON NAPOLITAINE for the Pianoforte, on the popular sparkling theme by Mr. Sidney Smith, "Tarantella." Price 3s. It is in demand everywhere.—BOOSEY and SONS, Holles-street.

MISS HAWLEY'S IVANHOE. New and Brilliant Fantasia on the "Romance Song." By the Author of "Shakspeare's Home." Price 3s.
BOOSEY and SONS, Holles-street.

KUHE'S MAGGIE'S SECRET. Charming Pianoforte Morceau. Maggie, Maxims has rendered so famous, has been transcribed by Mr. Kuhe in his happiest manner. Price 3s.—BOOSEY and SONS, Holles-street.

LITTLE BIRD, LITTLE BIRD ON THE GREEN TREE. New Song. By CLARIBEL, in her most popular manner. Price 2s. 6d.—BOOSEY and SONS, Holles-street.

BEHOLD MY LOVE! SHE SLUMBERS. New Song. By the Author of "Thy Dear Voice" and "Recollections of Paradise." A most charming melody and effective song for Soprano. Price 2s. 6d.—BOOSEY and SONS, Holles-street.

SUSAN'S STORY. A New Ballad, by the Author of "Jessie's Choice." Price 2s. 6d.
BOOSEY and SONS, Holles-street.

SIGNOR CAMPANA'S NEW DUET, "GIL sensuil Timbre," sung by Mdlle. Titiens in her new style, "Una sera d'autunno." Price 3s.—BOOSEY and SONS, Holles-street.

BOOSEY'S PIANOFORTE OPERAS. Each Opera contains the Overture, Airs, Concerted Pieces, and Choruses, arranged for the Pianoforte, with Introductory Remarks and Description of the plot and scenes, by BRANDARD.

1. Somnambula	s. d.	4 0	12. Les Vêpres Siciliennes	s. d. 5 0
2. Norma		4 0	13. Lucrezia Borgia	5 0
3. Puritani		4 0	14. Martha	5 0
4. Lucrezia Borgia		4 0	15. Masaniello	5 0
5. Les Huguenots		5 0	16. Don Giovanni	5 0
6. Fra Diavolo		5 0	17. Nozze di Figaro	5 0
7. Fra Diavolo		3 0	18. Zauberflöte	7 6
8. Il Barbiere		5 0	19. Il Flauto	5 0
9. Les Huguenots		7 6	20. Guora Diamond	5 0
10. Il Trovatore		5 0	21. Ernani	5 0
11. Il Trovatore		5 0	22. Verdi's Flower of Violets	5 0

BOOSEY'S VOCAL OPERAS.
Balfe's "Somnambula," with Recitatives and Italian words 6s. 0d.
Bellini's "Norma," with Recitatives and Italian words ... 6s. 0d.
Donizetti's "Lucrezia Borgia," with Recitatives and Italian words 6s. 0d.
Verdi's "Ernani," with English and Italian words ... ... 7s. 0d.
Verdi's "Il Trovatore," with Recitatives and Italian words ... 6s. 0d.
Verdi's "Les Vêpres Siciliennes," with Recitatives and Italian words 6s. 0d.
Donizetti's "Lucrezia Borgia," with English and Italian words 6s. 0d.
Meyerbeer's "Les Huguenots," with Recitatives and Italian words 6s. 0d.
Mozart's "Don Juan," with English and Italian words ... 6s. 0d.
Mozart's "Nozze di Figaro," with English and Italian words 6s. 0d.
Rossini's "Barbiere di Siviglia," with Recitatives and Italian words 6s. 0d.
Beethoven's "Fidelio," with English and German words ... 6s. 0d.
Weber's "Der Freischütz," with English and German words 6s. 0d.
Weber's "Der Freischütz," with Recitatives and Italian words 6s. 0d.
Meyerbeer's "Dinorah," with English and Italian words ... 6s. 0d.
Balfe's "Bohemian Girl," with Recitatives and Italian words 6s. 0d.
Donizetti's "Martha," with English, Italian, and German words 6s. 0d.

BOOSEY'S LIBRARY.—Two-Guinea Works for the Pianoforte, Harmonium, and Concertina, each containing from 200 to 300 pages, handsomely bound, and forming a grand Album of the most admired of Music.—St. Holles street.

NOTICE.—HALF PRICE.—All Music, and no Music Books, sent by Post at half the price of postage-stamps or Post Office order (which must be crossed).
BOOSEY and SONS, Holles-street.

THE GEM OF THE SEASON.
GANZ'S BALLAD MARCH. Price 2s. 6d. A bright and sparkling Morceau, by the Composer of the celebrated Ballad, "Will you love me then?"
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

KUHE'S "SEE THE CONQUERING HERO COMES." Price 4s. (Brilliant but not difficult).
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

THE BEST SET EVER COMPOSED.
COOTE'S LILLY PAD QUADRILLE. Price 4s. Introducing Coffee's celebrated Songs, "Isabella," "Mabel Grey," "Sweet Lilly Dale," "Lilly Bell," &c.
HOPWOOD and CREVY, 42, New Bond-street.

EASY AND VERY PRETTY.
COOTE'S INFANT STEPS VALSES. 3s. Superbly Illustrated.
HOPWOOD and CREVY, 42, New Bond-street.

SENSATION GALOP.
COOTE'S EXTRAVAGANZA GALOP. Price 3s. Sound Edition. Now ready.
HOPWOOD and CREVY, 42, New Bond-street.

THE BEST SET OF LANCERS ARE
COOTE'S CURE LANCERS. Price 4s. Introducing "The Fairies' Dance," "My Pretty Jane," "Oh Lucy is the Darling," "The Carp," and other popular Airs. A real Dance Music Lancers, with Figures. Beautifully Illustrated.
HOPWOOD and CREVY, 42, New Bond-street.

COOTE'S KATE KEARNEY WALTZES, introducing "Kathleen O'Moore," "Terence Farewell to Ireland," "Shamus O'Brien," "Kathleen Mavourneen." Solo or Duet, 4s.—HOPWOOD and CREVY, 42, New Bond-street.

COOTE'S SWEET LILLY WALTZ.
COOTE'S HUMMING BIRD VALSE. 4s. Sacred to the Memory of Valses by this popular Composer.
HOPWOOD and CREVY, 42, New Bond-street.

UPBRAIDING SOUNDS OF MR. TOOLES NEW SONG.
NORMAN'S LOVE. Price 2s. 6d. Beautifully Illustrated. A Family Print. Beyond five times slightly is "The Area Sneak" Sentiment. Words and Music by Mr. TOOLE.
HOPWOOD and CREVY, 42, New Bond-street.

NEW CHRISTY SONG. 2s. 6d.
OH! WOULD I WERE A BIRD, Sung by Christy's Minstrels.
HOPWOOD and CREVY, 42, New Bond-street.

NEW BALLAD.
POLLY PERKINS By HARRY CLIFTON. Price 2s. 6d. Beautifully Illustrated.
HOPWOOD and CREVY, 42, New Bond-street.

NEW BALLAD.
SIGHING FOR HOME. By F. BUCKLEY, price 2s. 6d., is exceedingly pretty.
HOPWOOD and CREVY, 42, New Bond-street.

THE NIGHT IS CALM AND CLOUDLESS. Ballad. Words by Mrs. HEMANS. By C. H. RUTLEY. Price 2s. 6d.
HOPWOOD and CREVY, 42, New Bond-street.

E. M. E. OLIVER'S LAST PRETTY SONG.
THE MOONLIGHT AND THE WIND. Price 2s. 6d. This Song is a fine effective Morceau, and is published in two keys.
HOPWOOD and CREVY, 42, New Bond-street.

ITALIAN OPERAS.—Boxes and Stalls in the best situation for both the Opera. Tickets for every Concert, and Season Tickets for the Opera. Terms may be obtained of the Agents—HOPWOOD and CREVY, 42, New Bond-street.

SERENADE. By FLOTOW. Pianoforte Accompaniment.
THE SERENADE. Transcribed by Brinley Richards.
THE HYMN. Transcribed by Arthur O'Leary. 2s.
THE SERENADE. Duet for Flute and Violin. 3s.
THE HYMN. Duet for Violin and Violoncello. 3s.
London: ENOCH and SON, 67, Regent-street.

STRADELLA. By FLOTOW. The Vocal Music, Overture, and SERENADE in DIDDITTO'S Set, for Septet, for the Pianoforte, 2s. 6d.
London: ENOCH and SON, 67, Regent-street.

NEW MUSIC.

NICOLAI'S MERRY WIVES of WINDSOR. Price 2s. 6d. each.
Song of Parewise Ann ... ... Solo, 3s.; Duet, 4s.
Drinking Song ... ... Trio, 3s.
Fairy Song ... ... Quartett, 3s.
Fairy Song ... ... Duet, 3s.
Improvisation ... ... Solo, 3s.
Fantasia ... ... Concertante, 4s.
Fantasia ... ... Solo, 3s.
Fantasia in Valse ... ... Cavalli's Valse.
The principal Vocal Pieces, with Italian Words, as sung at Her Majesty's Th. 4s.

THE ILLUSTRATED MUSICAL HAND-BOOK. A Manual ... 3s.
Quartettes ... ... C. Czerny ... 4s.
Quintettes ... ... Cramer and Co. 2nd Series ... 4s.

THE BRIDE OF SONG. Written to the Music of Beethoven by HENRY PARDON. Composed by JULES BENEDICT. Complete (Piano and Voice), 5s.
No. 1. Introduction and Chorus. No. 2. Song. No. 3. Duet. No. 4. Song. No. 5. Finale.
N. Scene—My Mother is Troubled, original key D flat: 3s.
1. Prelude ... ... 3s. 0d.
2. Trio—Now, girls, come! ... ... 3s. 0d.
3. Song—Oh! Captain, I can see you ... ... 3s. 0d.
4. Duet—Ah! Captain, I can see you ... ... 3s. 0d.
5. Song—Oh! Captain, I can see you ... ... 3s. 0d.
6. Duet—We waited here, we waited long ... ... 3s. 0d.
7. Finale—Oh! Captain, I can see you ... ... 3s. 0d.
CRAMER, WOOD, and Co., 201, Regent-street.

CHARLES HALLE'S "SPANISH CAPRICE" as Played repeatedly by the Composer, and encored.
CRAMER, WOOD, and Co., 201, Regent-street.

RENÉ FAVARGER'S STRADELLA, 3s. 6d. A brilliant Fantasia.
CRAMER, WOOD, and Co., 201, Regent-street.

RENÉ FAVARGER'S MASANIELLO, 4s. A brilliant Fantasia.
CRAMER, WOOD, and Co., 201, Regent-street.

JACQUES BLUMENTHAL. Tarl: Tarl: Chosen Recollections ... ... 3s. 0d.
Bellini's Norma ... ... 3s. 0d.
Adagio in Form of Romance, from Beethoven Rapsodiane ... 3s. 0d.
CRAMER, WOOD, and Co., 201, Regent-street.

ARDITI'S GARIBALDINA, BRINLEY RICHARDS' Brilliant Arrangement, 3s. Founded on favourite Airs. Illustrated.
CRAMER, WOOD, and Co., 201, Regent-street.

SWEET SPIRIT WALTZES, 3s. By the Composer of "Sweet Spirit, hear my prayer." Illustrated.
CRAMER, WOOD, and Co., 201, Regent-street.

BRINLEY RICHARDS' LEAH'S SONG, 3s. The Most Successful Song of the Season.
CRAMER, WOOD, and Co., 201, Regent-street.

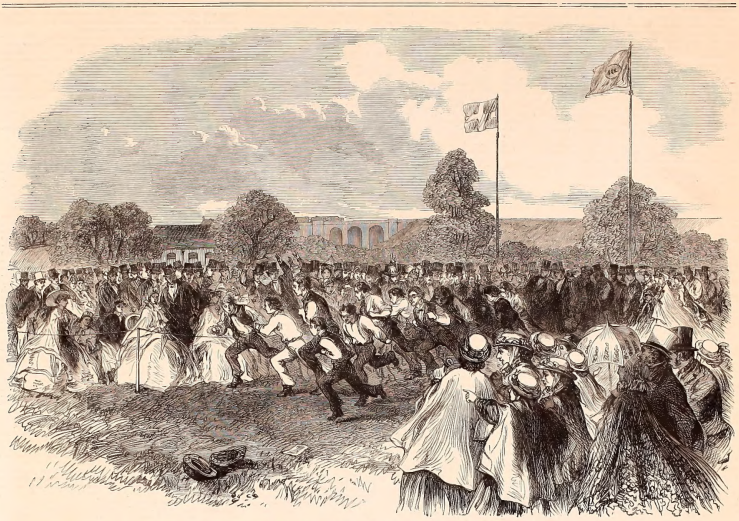
BOAT SONG. By VERDI. 2s. 6d. A Charming Song.
CRAMER, WOOD, and Co., 201, Regent-street.

THE MAIDEN'S PRAYER. By VERDI, 3s. The celebrated "Mabel prières" from "Un Ballo en Maschera." Illustrated.
CRAMER, WOOD, and Co., 201, Regent-street.

LITTLE GOLDEN-HAIR. A Venetian Ballad. By VIRGINIA GABRIEL. 2s.
CRAMER, WOOD, and Co., 201, Regent-street.

GARIBALDI. Song. By ARDITI. Words by Emily Faithfull. With capital Portrait of Garibaldi. 3s.
CRAMER, WOOD, and Co., 201, Regent-street.

ANITA. By BRINLEY RICHARDS, 3s. The celebrated Galop as played in the isle of Garibaldi.
CRAMER, WOOD, and Co., 201, Regent-street.



ARDITI'S LA GARIBALDINA. 2s. 6d. Sung by Madame Sainton-Dolby at the Crystal Palace, Her Majesty's Theatre, and elsewhere.
CRAMER, WOOD, and Co., 201, Regent-street.

"ARDITI." "TITIENS." "FALSTAFF." Three Portraits of Mdlle. Titiens, Sir Michael Costa, and Mr. Sims Reeves, 1s. each.
CRAMER, WOOD, and Co., 201, Regent-street.

THALBERG'S NEWEST FANTASIAS. Cruella, 3s. Traviata, 3s. Rigoletto, 3s.
CRAMER, WOOD, and Co., 201, Regent-street.

NEW COMIC SONGS, Exclusively Published by CRAMER, WOOD, and Co.
Arthur Lloyd's "Dutch duck song," 2s. 6d.
Arthur Lloyd's "Ballad on the Volunteers of mine," 2s. 6d.
Arthur Lloyd's "Ballad on the Volunteers of mine," 2s. 6d.
Harry Sydney's "In a quiet sort of way," 2s. 6d.
Albert Hebert's "I'm a rum 'un to look at," 2s. 6d.
D'ALCORN and CO., 8, Rathbone-place, W.

PIANOFORTES.—OETZMANN and CO. have much pleasure in announcing that the best and cheapest in Europe, about two thirds the price of the much advertised French pianos, are to be obtained only at their Galleries, 27, Baker-street, Portman-square. Pianofortes, 15l., Square-pianos, 8l., Pianofortes, 15l., Square-pianos, 8l., Pianofortes, 15l., Square-pianos, 8l.,

FOOT-RACES AT THE ANNUAL FESTIVAL OF THE ASYLUM FOR IDIOTS, EARLSWOOD.

THE annual festival provided by a kind and judicious management for the inmates of the Earlswood Asylum, near Redhill, took place on Thursday week. A numerous company of the friends and patrons of that institution, with other visitors, had come to witness the enjoyment of these poor young folks in the sports and pastimes of the day. There were games of cricket, football, and croquet, Aunt Sally, Punch and Judy, races, and jumping-matches for prizes. The patients appeared to enter into these games with considerable pleasure, and with an unexpected display of skill and intelligence. We have engraved a sketch, by our own artist, representing the foot-race. At half-past five o'clock, at a given signal, the whole of them sat down in a ring on the grass and had tea, which was partaken of in a most orderly manner, and at half-past six a fire-balloon was sent up, much to their delight. The proceedings were brought to a conclusion by several songs and glees being performed by the Eastwood singing class and negro troupe, the singers keeping excellent time and tune—being a proof of how much care must be bestowed upon their musical instruction. The band of the Coldstream Guards performed during the day, and the lawn in front of the building was gaily dressed up with flags and tents. The Eastwood Asylum now boasts of its name, who are divided into classes, and accommodated according to their rates of payment, those paying the lowest rate being placed at the same footing as the non-paying inmates. The visitors, who went over the whole house, were much pleased with the accommodation for the different classes—private bed-rooms and sitting-rooms for those who can afford them, large airy dormitories with separate cubicles for the second-class, and for the third-class and elected patients apartments quite as comfortable, but not quite so large. The gorgeous cleanliness and neatness of every part of the building, furniture, and appointments was especially admired by the visitors, as was also the very fine main cattle and some thriving pigs; but new farm buildings are much needed, a fact well known to the board, who are determined to pay off debts before incurring fresh expense. Such an institution, however, ought not to be left in want of funds.

EXHIBITION OF THE WEST OF ENGLAND AGRICULTURAL SOCIETY AT CLIFTON.—SEE PAGE 623.

THE MUSEUM OF SIR JOHN SOANE.

JUNE is one of the three months of the London season in which this treasure-house of art can be most fully visited by the public on which occasion, as well as on the two private nights of the Museum, the present time may be considered most opportune for its illustration. Although more than thirty years have elapsed since Sir John Soane munificently made this gift to the nation of the results of a long and successful professional life-time, the full appreciation of the value of the bequest has been of slow growth—which, indeed, has been considerably due to the by the increased attention paid to the culture of art and its diffusion among all classes of the people. That the son of a Berkshire brick-layer or petty builder should by his own energies have raised himself from poverty and obscurity to a position of opulence and celebrity is a remarkable triumph of "self-help," although the circumstances of Mr. Sadler in his popular volume bearing that title. To the circumstances of Soane, when a boy, being but such as a measure of the office of Dance, the architect, is to be attributed his following that profession. From an errand-boy he became a pupil in the office of one John Holland, another eminent architect; with the latter Soane remained to the time of his leaving it to visit Italy (where he made the acquaintance of Sir William Chambers, in consequence of Soane's design for a triumphal bridge having obtained for him the gold medal of the Academy pension of £60 a year was then conferred upon him that he might increase his studies in Rome; he diligently improved this privilege for a few years. After his return to England he was elected architect and surveyor to the Bank of England. Another timely advantage was his being profited to a very wealthy marriage by right of his wife. Other advantageous appointments followed, including that of architect to the Board of Works, which he resigned when which by fire he once uttered a sort of provision. He was kept in constant occupation for many years, in addition to his duties, making estimates, in knowledge of the value and quality of materials, in directing sound architectural taste, and in the superintendence of the buildings with study and taste in a remarkable degree. Subsequently he was elected Professor of Architecture to the Royal Academy, and in 1831 received the honour of Knighthood.

A few years before his death Sir John Soane retired from his profession, and obtained a parliamentary Act for the erection on the north side of Lincoln's-inn-fields, where he had resided since 1792, when he commenced the erection of his house, of a building to be entered towards Lincoln's-inn-fields conveys but an imperfect idea, since in case is of the simplest kind, and the front only is visible. The entrance is faced with stone screen of pleasing design, and, having a southern aspect (on to the open area, it is one of the most cheerful) far from rooms cool in summer and warm in winter: this embellishment was added in 1833. Sir John, having purchased the property on the British nation his house in Lincoln's-inn-fields, his Museum of Antiquities, his library of books and manuscripts and its collection of pictures which it contains, with a endowment of £30,000 and the freehold No. 12, Lincoln's-inn fields, for preserving the same and keeping it open for inspection, announced this determination at the end of his twelfth and last lecture at the Royal Academy, on March 11, 1834, and by an act of Parliament for this purpose, when some opposition to the bill was manifested; this failing having come from the nearest neighbours, but only surviving so to make this bequest to the country. Between father and son a most evident breach occurred, the former never withstanding many attempts at reconciliation. Mr. Peter Cunningham, in his new materials for the Life of Hogarth, tells us that the son died in letter written to him, in 1824, by the late Dr. Croly, the poet, to the son on the subject. The father was willing to forgive and forget. Kitchener refused; and the effect of the son's visit was to leave his son, through Kitchener, and in these terms :—"Let my son keep to my decided or regular pursuit for two years, and he will be provided for him." It is painful to think that the terms were never carried out, and that the reconciliation never took place. Mr. Soane's property was passed with a clause to enable Sir John Soane, at any time to bequeath his new house to the nation, with the reservation of allowing them to remain in the house in Lincoln's-inn-fields; they including Sir John's control over the whole, as well as the fabric of the mansion. Were the above clause carried into effect, and the relics merged into the British Museum collection, it would altogether defeat Soane's intentions: one of these was the separate existence of the museum, to show his great taste in the contrivance of his own house, besides the unique and picturesque effect of the present novel arrangement and plan for the mode of admitting light in interiors.

Sir John's alienated feelings from his son could not have extended to considerable legacies from him: but he did not realise such expectations. He also bequeathed considerable sums of money, and two descriptions of his Museum, to one of which Mrs. Holland contributed in legacy and votes. Besides these, he left many others to public bodies, as well as to private individuals. When Nash, the architect, left Sir John Soane a sum to a similar amount, and also to John Soane and some other friends. Advanced as he was in years, both his faculties and health remained unimpaired to the last, when he will scarcely be a more serious infirmity than the ill his views in Lincoln's-in-fields, on Jan. 20, 1837.

The Act of Parliament now came into operation, and the trustees were appointed to carry into effect the will of the founder.

As we approach the Museum entrance, the iron screen we see Doric cornice (twelfth century), and terra-cotta canephorm, copied from the capitals of the Temple of Jupiter Stator at Rome, and other eminently characteristic embellishments. As you enter you cannot fail to be struck with the multiplicity of the objects and the ingenious contrivances by which a house of very moderate size has been made to contain so large an amount of curious matter, and yet to appear altogether destroying its character as a private residence. The entrance-hall is decorated with casts from the antique, busts, bas-reliefs, models, and other sculptures; and the door leading to the staircase has some fine specimens of ancient painted glass. The vestibule and staircase are coloured with the Pompeian galaxy.

The Dining-room and Library, opening into each other, have their walls of deep-red Pompeian colour, in which hang the works of Hassan and Pompeii. The ceilings are painted in compartments by Henry Howard, R.A., with mythological subjects. In the Library, on cork, of part of Pompeii, showing the excavations: above are plaster casts of ancient bas-reliefs, and a fine antique vase: and underneath, in a case, is a collection of prints and architectural drawings, including Kent's design for a new Parliament House, made about 1740; and Sir William Chambers's design for Somerset House; while on each side are antique fictile vases, alabaster urns, and antique bronzes. On the east side, over the chimneypiece, is a portrait of Sir John Soane, almost the last picture painted by Sir Thomas Lawrence; beneath, on the chimneypiece, is a plaster model of the Board of Trade and Privy Council Offices, Whitehall, designed by Soane in 1830. Upon the bookcases are busts of Sir John Soane from the Englefield Collection; a bronze jug from Rome, and a chopin (1759) from Bath; also Greek and Etruscan vases, Wedgwood's Etruscan pottery; and on the chimneypiece a highly-finished model of the remains of the temple of Jupiter Stator at Rome. Upon a pedestal is a Greek painted fictile vase, 2ft. 8 in. high, from Lord Cawdor's Collection. Here the bookcases are surmounted with busts of Homer, Shakspeare, Ben Jonson, and Inigo Jones. On the west side, on the bookcase, are a model of the Soane family tomb, and bronze busts and vases. To the right of the entrance-door is Sir Joshua Reynolds's "Snake in the Grass," purchased at the Marchioness of Thomond's sale by Sir John Soane for 510 guineas. The adjoining room is the Monk's Parlour—formerly furnished to Sir Robert Walpole; and on this table is exhibited the celebrated Tyler Cabinet, the gift of Mr. Tyler, containing a perfect specimen of sacred history in ancient painted glass: the lions and here are eight chairs, with the arms of Sir John Soane. The Monk's Parlour opens to the street windows upon the large garden of Lincoln's-inn-fields and the picturesque Tudor gateway, which is the Museum entrance.

The Little Study, north-eastward, contains marble fragments of Greek and Roman sculpture, of sometimes very curious natural productions. Over the door is a plaster cast of the Apotheosis of Homer, from a bas-relief in the Villa Albani, at Rome. The chimneypiece is decorated with fragments of an antique altar; marble cornices, bases of columns, candelabra, cinerary urns, &c., and on the chimneypiece are models of the Temple of Vesta, and other sculpture, bas-reliefs in wax, a large bugna, a cornua ammonis, &c.

The adjoining vaulted room is called the Dome Room, or Breakfast Room, from which is seen the Monk's Yard, containing a collection of Gothic fragments from the Old Houses of Parliament, destroyed by fire in 1834. Over the chimneypiece is a picture by Canaletti; one, the Grand Canal, considered the finest picture of the master in this country, is in the Grosvenor Gallery Collection. Here are the study of a head from one of Raphael's compositions, and a portrait of Sir John Soane's mother, remained in the possession of the family of the weaver who originally worked the picture, and was purchased by Sir John Soane. The head, by Fiaxman; pictures by Watteau, Fuseli, Bird, Westall, Calcott, Hilton, &c. The fifteen Indian-ink drawings of Piestum, by Piranesi, are very fine.

We now descend to the Monks' Parlour, which has its ceiling and walls decorated with fragments of ancient Roman architecture and other structures, carvings in wood and ivory, and engraved brasses from ancient tombs. Here are Hogarth's pictures of "The Rake's Progress," and a fine Flemish carving, in wood, of the Crucifixion. A view of the Monks' Parlour, as it was in the time of Hogarth, is given. Another represents the Sepulchral Chamber, in the lower part of the Museum, which contains the sarcophagus of Seti I., King of Egypt, discovered by Belzoni in 1817 in a Royal tomb in the valley of Biban el Maloch, near Gournou. Seti I. is the Pharaoh mentioned in Exodus. Also the traveller, in 1824, for the sum of £2000. When first discovered, this sarcophagus was considered by Dr. Young to be the tomb of Pharaoh Osymandyas, of the 19th dynasty. Belzoni's excellent Curator of the Soane Museum, illustrated to the Syro-Egyptian Society of London, has published a most interesting account of the discovery and plan of the catacomb, which is executed to a depth of one hundred and eighty feet from the level of the entrance-hall, and contained with hieroglyphics and 650 figures, all of which were originally filled in with a blue composition, resembling the lapis lazuli in its religious character, while that on the floor of the sarcophagus is personal, representing the ancient Egyptian Heaven and Hell. Another represents the Sepulchral Chamber, in the lower part of the Museum, which contains the sarcophagus of Seti I., King of Egypt, discovered by Belzoni in 1817 in a Royal tomb in the valley of Biban el Maloch, near Gournou. Seti I. is the Pharaoh mentioned in Exodus. Also the traveller, in 1824, for the sum of £2000. When first discovered, this sarcophagus was considered by Dr. Young to be the tomb of Pharaoh Osymandyas, of the 19th dynasty. Belzoni's excellent Curator of the Soane Museum, illustrated to the Syro-Egyptian Society of London, has published a most interesting account of the discovery and plan of the catacomb, which is excavated to drop him like a hot potato. We cannot say whether it will appear in the binding, but he first bid of all for the MS. of the unfinished life of Sir Thomas himself. He would, will nilly, tell the Committee a story of how the Baronet had once sent one hundred heifers to Ballinasloe fair. "Beautiful heifers they were, Sir Thomas, ninety-nine of them—but the other, she was in such a dreadful state of pleuro." This little personal reminiscence, which was meant strictly as an Irish compliment, tickled the Committee and audience amazingly; but that wasn't all. Having done with the blushing Sir Thomas, who, however, need not "dread to speak of ninety-eight," or rather ninety-nine, he proceeded gracefully to recognise another countryman with, "Now, I say, Lord Mayo!" and would tell him a story, about Lordship's fresh and lords this time, but of his own contempt of pleuro. Because he had the grandchildren, blooming, and fresh, and fair, of an old one which nearly died of it. Lordship shook his head and said, "I wish my old livers are always so sound;" and when Mr. Hunt, of course, sounded him on the morning of the hunting, he had the same answer—and so he sent them to market. Scab, which he pleasantly compared to "a child with the Scarlet Fever," seized his great rival's sheep, and he got them "as free as that table there;" and then he appealed to Mr. Kilbee behind him, as the most free-and-easy of the Committee, to tell a story about a Shropshire ram. In fact, he wandered very much at his ease indeed, and how the auctioneer ever got him to proceed with him we know not. It was generally believed that he would be the last written, but the division-bell rang for the House to meet again, and changed the discussion with closed doors into a Scurry Stakes, more might have transpired. As the inquiry proceeds, it seems to be more and more evident that the only practical remedy required is the avowed object of the Legislature to protect are really those most deeply injured to the full. They must be able to conduct their own business at their own risk, without such official dry-nursing, and they regard the present as more than a farce, which would overturn the land in the shape of inspectors as an utter nuisance and blunder. They contend that the real questions have been blown into the most undue dimensions, and that it has collapsed into nothing now that evidence has been taken on both sides. At all events, if Professor Gamgee is satisfied with the inquiry, they most certainly are. The evil, as far as it exists, is one which can be self-preventive. Men dare not, for fear of the future consequences to their business, have a beast sheep to receive when their diseased condition is patent; and, if it is not, the endless litigation and quarrels which would arise from their being condemned on mere suspicion would be a more serious check to breeders than the Act itself, more than as army of inspectors, such as Professor Gamgee might propose to educate, would be physically powerful enough to do. Legislation here and practically powerless for anything but annoyance in a smaller sphere of action.

MEETING OF THE WEST OF ENGLAND AGRICULTURAL SOCIETY AT CLIFTON.

No less than 88,138 people visited the late Bath and West of England Exhibition at Bristol, and the total receipts were within seven half-crowns of 6,000*l*. The society at present has 1,600 on its subscription, and the total head of stock from 163 exhibitors was 776. We omitted from lack of room the authorised prize-list, but we may add that one of the Hereford yearling-bull class was awarded to Mr. Duckham's Commodore, a son of the old cow Lady of the Manor, who, we think, is purchased, as a speculative bargain, at Lord Berwick's sale. In consequence of his dam having "lost and mouth," he was only "rented at 5*l*. per month" for the week; but he improved in the eighths 7 ft. 6 in. at twenty-two months. In page 621 will be found a general account of the meeting of the Royal Agricultural Society and the Treaty of Berkeley between the All Red and White Face tribes will give the society's beneficent and national importance, and as it has never yet possessed.

THE SCHOONER-MATCH OF THE ROYAL THAMES YACHT CLUB.

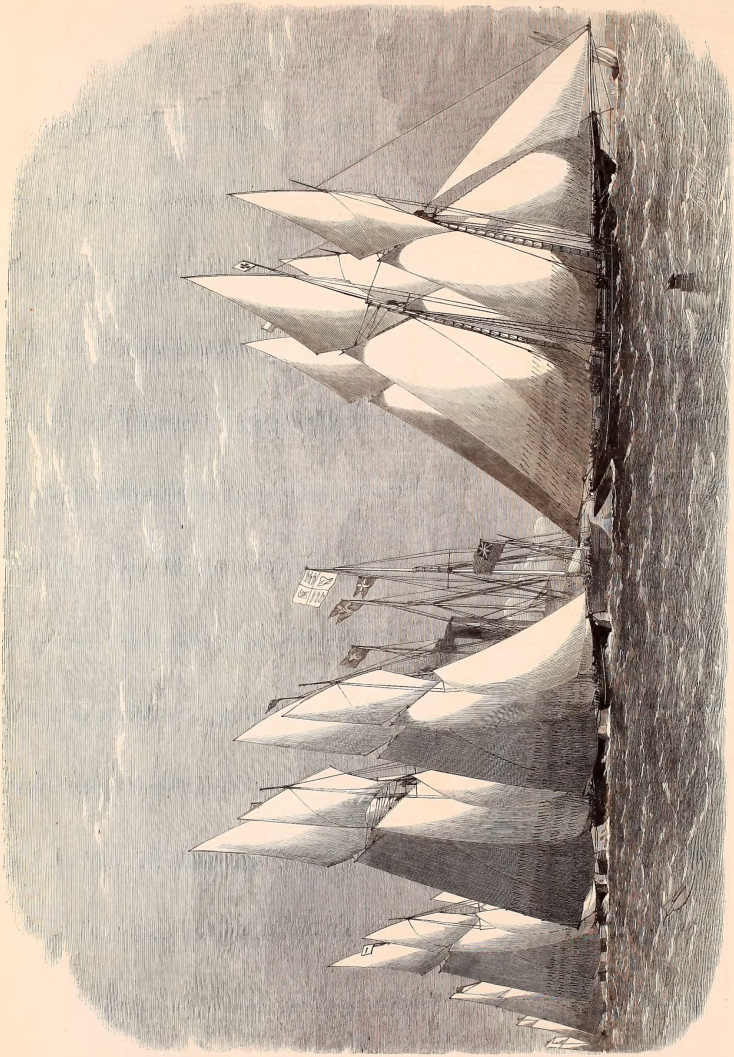
AMONG the spectators of the schooner-race, on Thursday week, from Greenhithe to the Nore and back again, were the Duke of Edinburgh, Prince Alfred, and Prince Louis of Hesse, on board the Water Lily, the yacht of Admiral Alfred Fagot, Commodore of the Royal Thames Yacht Club. Their Royal Highnesses arrived at Greenhithe by Tilbury, and there embarked. The Water Lily was towed by the steamer Eagle, which anchored on arriving at the Nore, to see the yachts competing in the race passed round the stern of the Water Lily, in the manner shown in the Illustration, as they turned to come up the river. They rounded the Water Lily in the following order:—The Intrepid, Mr. Ratsey; the Egeria, Mr. Mare; the Atalanta, 193 tons, Mr. H. Belben; the Alabaster, Lord Londesborough; the Arrow, 180 tons, Mr. Ratsey; Mr. J. S. A. Dunbar; the Galatea, 131 tons, Mr. T. Brassbud; the Clacy, 121 tons, Mr. F. Redman; the Vanguard, 180 tons, Mr. T. W. Birch; the Blue Bell, 70 tons, Mr. F. Edwards; the Flying Fish, 42 tons, Mr. G. Snow; the Medea, 60 tons, Mr. J. Rideout; the Aquiline, 59 tons, Mr. H. Chamier. Those above one hundred tons carried two burdee—namely, the Clacy, Alabaster, and Galatea—were in the first class, and the rest, for which they carried only one burdee, were not valued at £100; those of less than one hundred tons composed the second class, and their prize was a piece of plate valued at £50. The race was open to all yacht clubs. The wind was southerly, and very light; the tide, however, was favourable. As soon as the yachts had rounded at the Nore, they presented a beautiful sight; the Alberine, indeed, almost secured the race at that point, having got ahead of the Arrow. The third tide had just set in, and they tacked over to the north side of the river. The Alberine was followed closely by the other vessels, but the Intrepid still leading. The wind soon freshened, and the foremost yachts were lost to view. The Alberine and Water Lily followed. By this time, however, the competitors were dispersed so widely, and so intermixed with other yachts not in the race, that it was difficult to make them out. The first yacht that returned was the Alberine, which got home nine seconds before the Mackay and three minutes and a half before the Intrepid. The Arrow followed in five minutes later than the Intrepid at the last. The Water Lily was then brought alongside the steamer, and the Prince of Wales received the prescued his gratification at the race, presented the prizes to Lord Londesborough's yacht, the Alberine. Their Royal Highnesses returned to London by the Tilbury railroad, as they had come.

THE NEEDLES POINT BATTERY.

The Needles Point Battery, in the Isle of Wight, now mounts with six Armstrong 110-pounders.

The annual meeting of the Soldiers' Daughters' Home was held on Saturday last, in the theatre of the Royal Institution, the Duke of Buccleuch in the chair. The report was read, on the whole, satisfactory—inasmuch as so far as the progress of the institution was concerned—but the funds were reported to be in a very unsatisfactory state. On the other hand, the number of regiments that contributed to the fund was on the increase, and the amount of the contributions was also larger than the whole chairman and harangued the amount of their subscriptions.

THE NEEDLES POINT BATTERY.



We publish a few notes respecting this remarkable family from M. Komichrist's paper on Meuinus reptiles inserted in the Annals of Natural History. He says:—"The genus Salamandra includes the Iguana rhizolopha (the green Iguana), and the Cyclura (the thick Iguana). The former is essentially arboreal, frequenting trees with rough bark, and in its stomach has leaves and berries. The adult animals of both genera are about 30 in. long. The Iguana rhizolopha has a crest of long, flat spines, and being more fitted for swimming, the cyclura frequently dwell in forest streams and are occasionally covered with water. Specimens of both were caught and first captured by the Indians, who regard their flesh as a royal dish, and who export them to the Spanish Islands, where they are considered also the chief meal. When eggs mixed by the heat, the unfortunate cyclura exposes an operation which must deprive it of all power of locomotion for the time of flight. With the point of a knife the hunter cuts the skin of its cheek along the upper jaw, and passes through this aperture the slender and flexible twig of a limia, which he then unites firmly beneath the chin so as to prevent any movement of the lower jaw. This done, he half pulls off the last joint of the tail, twists on both the feet, attaches one to the other by means of the limbs which is then held here, and passes them behind the head. The same operation is performed on the iguana, which are also crossed upon the back. This particular, the animal is unable to bite, scratch, or make its escape. When taken young the iguana is easily tamed, and will feed from the hand; they are dread quadrupeds; but the black iguana is a very large one, and has even fled to man when an alligator has been in sight. This splendid are very beauties of life.

CURRENT LITERATURE.

William Shakspeare. By Victor Hugo. (1 vol. Hurst and Blackett.) This is the "authorised English translation" of that brilliant production to which M. Hugo has prefixed the words, "To England I dedicate this book, the glorification of her poet. I tell England the poet's boy, as a kind illustrious uncle tells a nephew, to read his psalms, I love her." It is pleasant to see genius paying homage to genius. Victor Hugo offering a powerful tribute to the memory of William Shakspeare; and the original and masterly, if, at the same time, somewhat fantastic, style in which the subject has been treated is worthy of the author's splendid reputation. The freedom of thought and language is perfectly in harmony with the poet's own genius. Shakspeare, the precise Englishmen will seem occasionally to border upon license. At the same time, his wonderful comprehensiveness, his vast and lofty originality of conception charm to his composition. And if his precursors of the period of the Elizabethan and Augustan Expectancy was not destined to be confined by the reality, it is the case to be expected that the Shakspeare, the poet of all time, should was not connected with the "Expectancy," but with a "desire of conducting, as it were, the Shakspeare." Hence the new translation of Shakspeare"—so wit, the translation by M. François Victor Hugo, of—as conclude with the following estimate of—"Shakspeare is the great gap of Spenser, Bacon, and in politics Cromwell, in philosophy Bacon, in science Newton—three lofty men of energy and genius. Cromwell is lunged with unity and harmony with meanness; as to Newton, his solace is now sloaking on its base. Shakspeare is the great Spenser, and Bacon and Newton, and inconvolable, which Newton is not. Moreover, he is higher as a genius. As the Newton of poetry, Shakspeare is the greatest of the great. Above his Descartes and Kant; above Cromwell there are Dantes and Shakspeare; above Shakspeare there is none. Shakspeare has equals, but not a superior." And this is certainly as complimentary an estimate as could be expected from a Frenchman of genius.

My Indian Journal. By Colonel W. Campbell. (1 vol. Edmonston and Douglas.) Colonel Campbell's book is, in its way, a good one, and a better breather to look forward to, than either the Mahometans of the Red Indian; but, were it otherwise, it is nearly certain that his approaches would be sold best by the sale of the Indian where Mohammed's almond-eyed houris are believed to minister to the faithful's bow; and, as for the Red Indian, he is not in the least the spirit is supposed to have in readiness for Red Indians who have penetrated into the Far West, and are supposed to be painting in a passion with the Englishman; and it is almost wonderful that in this age, which delights in the most extraordinary revelations, that such worthies whose names have become household words, no fitting tribute has been paid to Nimrod. As regards Colonel Campbell's book, in which the Englishman of our day finds the hunting-grounds which Australia best, and he who has never drawn a trigger or couched a spear loves to read of others' feats, there is much that will afford keen encounter with kingly lion and royal tiger, and rugged bear and wild boar; and, as the Colonel has evidently taken pains to make these work he reads is to accomplished a sportsman, so trustworthy a narrator, and so gentlemanly a writer, that he is a capital author of "The Old Forest Ranger." It is not too much, then, to wish, and even to prophesy, that Colonel Campbell will be as much appreciated as that which was accorded to Colonel Campbell's previous publication, "The Old Forest Ranger," and that he will find a host of hunting them, with notes by Mr. Walter Elliot, an experienced naturalist, and which excellent work has been published by Messrs. Hurst and Blackett, the chief themes of the volume which we have now the opportunity of recommending to public notice. He who hunts will, no doubt, read with pleasure, and he who does not hunt will learn much more; for the latter will have no favourite crotchets, no points on which to differ from the author.

Maurice Daring. By the Author of "Guy Livingstone." (3 vols. Routledge.) The author is evidently a man of his word. He asserts, in the preface to his romance of Transatlantic officials, diffuse narration of personal adventure, and, in the following pages, he has given us not the real or imaginary insult, such as one wondered at in "Border and Bastile," did not intend to be taken by the reader to him returning to the work which he shishes without a rival. There is no doubt a heathenish element in his masculinity; but his muscular heathens are gallant gentlemen. They are not to be compared to Homer's Greeks, who would have called "the devil's gentlemen," but dash (in a novel) covers a multitude of sins, and the author of "Guy Livingstone" is nothing if not audacious, and "the young idea," they are rather too strong meat for babes; but we have often seen the Bible and Shakspeare in such hands, and the coolgdpendent the perilous fascination which stories, wherein most of the human passions are developed, keep it out to the act of adultery, wherein the seducer is handsome as Paris and fearless as Achilles, and the gallant, and duelling, and pitiless vengeance are introduced in a manner which makes the commandments appear as mere dead letter. Adam, such books are really charming to read. They stir the blood and quicken the pulse, and are generally as full of fun as of fight. They are too really spoken, of a pure love genesed but never told, of womanly virtue and womanly vice, of the struggle of the soul with the flesh, of a resolute duty chastised, of a duel fought for friendship's sake, or of a secret sealed under the seal of honour. Such books are not the moral point of view, wrong; nor should we recommend "Guy Livingstone's" books to the young, or even to those who are not of mature years and of well-balanced minds; but they are rather too strong meat for babes; but we have often seen the Bible and Shakspeare in such hands, and the coolgdpendent the perilous fascination which stories, wherein most of the human passions are developed, keep it out to the act of adultery, wherein the seducer is handsome as Paris and fearless as Achilles, and the gallant, and duelling, and pitiless vengeance are introduced in a manner which makes the commandments appear as mere dead letter.

SCHOONER MATCH OF THE ROYAL THAMES YACHT CLUB ON THURSDAY, JUNE 16.—SEE PAGE 625.

THE DUEL OFF CHERBOURG BETWEEN THE ALABAMA AND THE KEARSARGE: THE ALABAMA SINKING.—SEE PAGE 626.

OBITUARY OF EMINENT PERSONS.

THE EARL OF GOSFORD.

The Right Hon. Sir Archibald Acheson, K.P., titled Earl of Gosford, Viscount and Baron Gosford, of Market-hill, in the county of Armagh, in the Peerage of Ireland, Baron Worlingham of Beccles, in the county of Suffolk, and Baron Acheson, of Clancarf, in the county of Dublin, in the United Kingdom, was born on the 19th of November, 1806, at Nova Scotia, was son of Sir Archibald, second Earl of Gosford, by Lady Sarah, his wife, Mary, only daughter of Robert Peel Dawson, Esq., of Worlingham Hall, Suffolk, and lineal descendant of Sir Archibald Acheson, who was created a Baronet on the 29th of August, 1628, and succeeded by his elder son, Sir Nicholas, as second Baronet, on the 29th of May, 1630. This Sir Nicholas, who was born on the 18th of August, 1621, was succeeded in his title in the family honours and estates on March 27, 1683, by his eldest son, Archibald, who died without issue. He expended a large amount of money on the improvement of his property in Ireland, and was deservedly esteemed by his tenantry. The first was made a Knight of the Order of the Thistle in 1703. He married, on the 22nd of June, 1682, Lady Theodosia Brabazon, only daughter of John Chambers, Earl of Meath, K.P., by whom he had two sons and four daughters. Of the latter, the eldest, Theodosia, was wife of Sir Archibald Acheson, Bart., of Gosford, Armagh, County, North; and 5, de Mary, wife of the Hon. Leopold W. H. Powys, second son of Thomas Atherton, first Baron Lilford. The Earl of Gosford died on the 13th June, and is succeeded by his elder son, now Sir Archibald Brabazon Sparrow Acheson, Bart., of Gosford, who was born on the 19th of August, 1841. This noble gentleman, a lineal descendant of the original Scots settlers, Haddingtonshire, Scotland, settled in Ireland early in the seventeenth century. The Sir Archibald Acheson, who was Secretary of State, General, Secretary of the College of Justice, and Secretary of State for Scotland, was created a Baronet of Nova Scotia in 1628. He married Margaret, sister of the great enemy of Ireland; and in direct descent from him are the Earl just deceased, and his son, the present Earl.

LADY GRENVILLE.

The announcement of the death of this venerable and universally esteemed lady, which took place at Dropmore, Bucks, on the 16th inst., will be received with deep regret. Her Right Hon. William Wyndham Grenville, Baron Grenville of the Privy Council of Ireland, and a Lord of the Treasury, was born on the 25th of October, 1759, and was created Lord Grenville, of Wotton Underwood, in the county of Buckingham, in 1790. He was educated at Eton and Christ Church, Oxford, where he graduated in 1781, and was elected a Student of that College in 1782, which vacancy he resigned in 1784, when he was created Lord Grenville, of Wotton Underwood, in 1790. He was named Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs in 1791, and seconded William Pitt as First Lord of the Treasury in 1806. Noble writers of Lord Grenville as "that able, vigorous, and well-informed statesman, and, as the friend of Wilberforce, the consistent opponent of the slave trade, and the chief supporter, for the preservation of the person and Government of our Sovereign, of the Treaty of Amiens." The remains of Lady Grenville will be interred by her birth patriotism—the Church of Thornton Hill, Lord Grenville's family burial-place, in the county of Pinkney Wilkinson, Esq., of Burnham, in the county of Buckingham, and co-heiress of the great William Pitt, Earl of Chatham, and sister of his last eminent son, William Pitt, the friend and conductor of her husband in his public and difficult times. Lady Grenville was married to Lord Grenville on the 5th of July, 1792. Her only brother, Thomas, second Lord Camelford, was slain by Mr. Best in a duel, in 1804, and, as that nobleman died unmarried, the earldom expired, and his sister became his representative; and after the death of her husband, Lord Grenville, in 1834, she succeeded to the Buckingham estates as the representative of the family. Her husband, Lord Grenville, died without issue in 1834. Their residence, Dropmore, is a handsome mansion, built by Lord Grenville, on the high road from Uxbridge to Beaconsfield, in the ninety-second year of her age. Her sister, Anne, married, in 1795, her cousin, Thomas Pitt, of the Privy Council, and, in 1797, was created Baroness Rivers. She died without issue in 1864. Her husband, Lord Rivers, died in 1803. Her sister, Hester, married, in 1797, her cousin, the Hon. George Matthew Fortescue, second son of Hugh, third Earl of Clermont, and brother of Fortescue, second Baron Fortescue, of Credan, in the county of Louth. Mrs. Fortescue is her husband's nephew, being the son of Lord Grenville's sister, Hester, who married, in 1772, Thomas, the first Earl Fortescue, and illustrates the other estates of Lady Grenville, including her beautiful seat of Boconnoc, in Cornwall, Boston, a seven-mile ride from Grimsby, Lincolnshire, Dorset, the most ancient of their day, most continuously to throng to enjoy Grenville, whose charity and benevolence caused her to be beloved by her neighbours, liberally allowed the public to visit her grounds at Dropmore, where any stranger was welcomed with a most courteous spirit. No doubt the new possessor, the Hon. Mr. Fortescue, of Dropmore, will preserve the genius when first Grenville was a mere stripling, will preserve the estate to the public the valuable privileges of free access to the plantations of Dropmore.

COUNT MAZZINGHI.

George Dominick Mazzinghi, a Count of the Ecclesiastical Court and Apostolic Palace in the Papal dominions, and a Florentine Patrician, was the only son of the late composer, Count Mazzinghi, by his wife, Mrs. Crouch, the celebrated daughter of John Leopold de Michele, and was half brother of the Baroness French, of Frenchpark, in the county of Roscommon. He was the son of Archibald, second Earl of Gosford, by Lady Sarah, his wife, Mary, only daughter of Robert Peel Dawson, Esq., of Worlingham Hall, Suffolk, and lineal descendant of Sir Archibald Acheson, who was created a Baronet on the 29th of August, 1628, and succeeded by his elder son, Sir Nicholas, as second Baronet, on the 29th of May, 1630. This Sir Nicholas, who was born on the 18th of August, 1621, was succeeded in his title in the family honours and estates on March 27, 1683, by his eldest son, Archibald, who died without issue. He expended a large amount of money on the improvement of his property in Ireland, and was deservedly esteemed by his tenantry. The first was made a Knight of the Order of the Thistle in 1703. He married, on the 22nd of June, 1682, Lady Theodosia Brabazon, only daughter of John Chambers, Earl of Meath, K.P., by whom he had two sons and four daughters. Of the latter, the eldest, Theodosia, was wife of Sir Archibald Acheson, Bart., of Gosford, Armagh, County, North; and 5, de Mary, wife of the Hon. Leopold W. H. Powys, second son of Thomas Atherton, first Baron Lilford. The Earl of Gosford died on the 13th inst., and is succeeded by his elder son, now Sir Archibald Brabazon Sparrow Acheson, Bart., of Gosford, who was born on the 19th of August, 1841. This noble gentleman, a lineal descendant of the original Scots settlers, Haddingtonshire, Scotland, settled in Ireland early in the seventeenth century. The Sir Archibald Acheson, who was Secretary of State, General, Secretary of the College of Justice, and Secretary of State for Scotland, was created a Baronet of Nova Scotia in 1628. He married Margaret, sister of the great enemy of Ireland; and in direct descent from him are the Earl just deceased, and his son, the present Earl.

William Pitt as First Lord of the Treasury in 1806. Noble writers of Lord Grenville as "that able, vigorous, and well-informed statesman, and, as the friend of Wilberforce, the consistent opponent of the slave trade, and the chief supporter, for the preservation of the person and Government of our Sovereign, of the Treaty of Amiens." The remains of Lady Grenville will be interred by her birth patriotism—the Church of Thornton Hill, Lord Grenville's family burial-place, in the county of Pinkney Wilkinson, Esq., of Burnham, in the county of Buckingham, and co-heiress of the great William Pitt, Earl of Chatham, and sister of his last eminent son, William Pitt, the friend and conductor of her husband in his public and difficult times. Lady Grenville was married to Lord Grenville on the 5th of July, 1792. Her only brother, Thomas, second Lord Camelford, was slain by Mr. Best in a duel, in 1804, and, as that nobleman died unmarried, the earldom expired, and his sister became his representative; and after the death of her husband, Lord Grenville, in 1834, she succeeded to the Buckingham estates as the representative of the family. Her husband, Lord Grenville, died without issue in 1834. Their residence, Dropmore, is a handsome mansion, built by Lord Grenville, on the high road from Uxbridge to Beaconsfield, in the ninety-second year of her age. Her sister, Anne, married, in 1795, her cousin, Thomas Pitt, of the Privy Council, and, in 1797, was created Baroness Rivers. She died without issue in 1864. Her husband, Lord Rivers, died in 1803. Her sister, Hester, married, in 1797, her cousin, the Hon. George Matthew Fortescue, second son of Hugh, third Earl of Clermont, and brother of Fortescue, second Baron Fortescue, of Credan, in the county of Louth. Mrs. Fortescue is her husband's nephew, being the son of Lord Grenville's sister, Hester, who married, in 1772, Thomas, the first Earl Fortescue, and illustrates the other estates of Lady Grenville, including her beautiful seat of Boconnoc, in Cornwall, Boston, a seven-mile ride from Grimsby, Lincolnshire, Dorset, the most ancient of their day, most continuously to throng to enjoy Grenville, whose charity and benevolence caused her to be beloved by her neighbours, liberally allowed the public to visit her grounds at Dropmore, where any stranger was welcomed with a most courteous spirit. No doubt the new possessor, the Hon. Mr. Fortescue, of Dropmore, will preserve the genius when first Grenville was a mere stripling, will preserve the estate to the public the valuable privileges of free access to the plantations of Dropmore.

COUNT MAZZINGHI.

George Dominick Mazzinghi, a Count of the Ecclesiastical Court and Apostolic Palace in the Papal dominions, and a Florentine Patrician, was the only son of the late composer, Count Mazzinghi, by his wife, Mrs. Crouch, the celebrated daughter of John Leopold de Michele, and was half brother of the Baroness French, of Frenchpark, in the county of Roscommon. He was the son of Archibald, second Earl of Gosford, by Lady Sarah, his wife, Mary, only daughter of Robert Peel Dawson, Esq., of Worlingham Hall, Suffolk, and lineal descendant of Sir Archibald Acheson, who was created a Baronet on the 29th of August, 1628, and succeeded by his elder son, Sir Nicholas, as second Baronet, on the 29th of May, 1630. This Sir Nicholas, who was born on the 18th of August, 1621, was succeeded in his title in the family honours and estates on March 27, 1683, by his eldest son, Archibald, who died without issue. He expended a large amount of money on the improvement of his property in Ireland, and was deservedly esteemed by his tenantry. The first was made a Knight of the Order of the Thistle in 1703. He married, on the 22nd of June, 1682, Lady Theodosia Brabazon, only daughter of John Chambers, Earl of Meath, K.P., by whom he had two sons and four daughters. Of the latter, the eldest, Theodosia, was wife of Sir Archibald Acheson, Bart., of Gosford, Armagh, County, North; and 5, de Mary, wife of the Hon. Leopold W. H. Powys, second son of Thomas Atherton, first Baron Lilford. The Earl of Gosford died on the 13th inst., and is succeeded by his elder son, now Sir Archibald Brabazon Sparrow Acheson, Bart., of Gosford, who was born on the 19th of August, 1841. This noble gentleman, a lineal descendant of the original Scots settlers, Haddingtonshire, Scotland, settled in Ireland early in the seventeenth century. The Sir Archibald Acheson, who was Secretary of State, General, Secretary of the College of Justice, and Secretary of State for Scotland, was created a Baronet of Nova Scotia in 1628. He married Margaret, sister of the great enemy of Ireland; and in direct descent from him are the Earl just deceased, and his son, the present Earl.

ADMIRAL SIR ARTHUR PANSHAWE.

Sir Arthur Panshawe, K.C.B., Admiral of the Blue, who died on the 14th inst., at his town house, 32, Chester-terrace, Regent's Park, was the second son of the late Rev. Henry Panshawe, Rector of Ardsley, Yorkshire, and was the fifth which his father had two hundred years best of note in our naval and military annals. He was the third son of the late Admiral Panshawe, C.B., by Mary, his wife, Christian, daughter of John Gonzye, Esq., of Whitehall Hall, Devon, and was grandson of Rear-Admiral Christian Panshawe, C.B. He was born at Plymouth the Royal Navy at an early age, and his career there was long and honourable. He served as midshipman on board the Ramillies, 74, under Sir Peter Gambier, in the expedition against Copenhagen, in 1807, and was at the capture of the Russian 74-gun ship Seconded, and the Danish 74-gun ship Christian VII., and was engaged in operating with the patriots on the coast of Spain; he also, in 1811, assisted at the reduction of Java. Panshawe was commissioned as lieutenant in the Ramillies, and, after a long period of service, was promoted to the rank of commander, and, in 1852, he was named Superintendent of Portsmouth Dockyard, which office he held for the usual period of three years. He became Captain in 1857, to the Bladderstream station; and, in 1860, to Devonport, but was obliged to resign the last command, on account of ill-health, and was not to continue to be seen in H.M.S. Royal Adelaide, flagship of the Admiralty Order of Leopold. Sir Arthur Panshawe became a Rear-Admiral on the Retired List in 1857, and was made a Vice-Admiral in 1862. Sir Arthur enjoyed a big officer's good-service pension of £100 a year. He married, in 1830, Margaret, daughter of Sir John Wilson, K.C., a Judge of the Court of Common Pleas, and nephew of Admiral Colpoys. Sir Arthur Panshawe's two nephews are the present Rear-Admiral Edward George Panshawe, R.N., Lieutenant-Colonel Rear Berrymple Panshawe, and Lieutenant-Colonel Charles Panshawe, R.A.

CAPTAIN DALRYMPLE-HAY.

Captain Thomas Hugh Vans Dalrymple-Hay, whose death was announced by the late Admiral Hay, was the fourth son of the late James Dalrymple-Hay, second Baronet, of Park-place, in the county of Wigtown, by his second wife, Ann, daughter of George Haldane, Esq., and was the half-brother of Sir John Charles Dalrymple-Hay, the third and present Baronet. He was born on the 7th of June, 1807, and did not enter the regular Army until he had attained his twenty-first year. During the Crimean War he held a command in the Militia of his own county; and at the close of that war he accompanied his elder brother, Sir John Dalrymple-Hay, who went to command the Indian Army, to the Punjaub, in India. Obtaining a commission in the Cape Mounted Rifles, he, in 1853, proceeded to the Cape of Good Hope. On the occurrence of the Ashantee War, in 1863, he volunteered his services in that country, to the great regret of the Cape Colonists. He reached Cape Coast Castle on the 14th of August last year, and for a long time even his special talents were called into play and he was appointed Political Resident at Dinsove. In November he was desired to raise a corps of native sharpshooters, to be called the Left of Colonial Volunteers, under Commissioner; and, during the month of January, he made a march with his force from Dinsove to Abrakampa, a distance of 100 miles, and thence to Prahsu, on the South of the Province of Akyemm, and his last private letter is dated, Jan. 21, from that place. So well was he esteemed by the natives of the country where gone he became known after the conclusion of the African King of the place, whose heart had been gained by Hay's consummate tact and intelligence of character, and who presented him with the crown of the murder and soldier; and, after nine days' suffering, a medical officer and party arrived to convey him to the coast. There he was carried in a canoe to the Cape Coast, and was carried in the mail-steamer, on April 14, for England. A relapse caused him to be landed at Madeira, on the 18th, and there, during the month of May, he continued and exhaustion, on the 26th of April, 1864. On the 2nd of February his Captain's commission in the Army was exchanged against that of Major in the 17th Regiment; but he did not live to know, far less to enjoy, his new rank. During his short career Captain Dalrymple-Hay had won the highest esteem of Governor, and those which would, had he survived, have probably led to high military advancement.

PROFESSOR FERRIER.

James F. Ferrier, LL.D., Professor of Moral Philosophy in St. Salvator and St. Leonard College, University of St. Andrew's, who died on the 11th inst., at Ardrossan, was born in Edinburgh, in the March year, was born in Edinburgh in November, 1808. After studying at Oxford, where he took the degree of Bachelor of Arts in 1832, and that of Master of Arts in 1835, he was in 1842 elected to the Chair of History in the University of Edinburgh, and in 1845 to hold till his death. He became a contributor to Blackwood's Magazine, in which he wrote numerous articles on philosophical and literary subjects; but his principal work is the well-known and esteemed, "Institutes of Metaphysics," in which he develops his "Ontology."

CHESS.

TO CORRESPONDENTS.

Q. E. F.—The collection of Problems by the late J. B. Pickford, will be published for the benefit of his widow and family, as soon as the list of subscribers is complete. Address, Rev. Walter Wilkinson, Chatham-place. The price of the volume is to be only 3s. 6d.

J. ARMANDO.—Many thanks for your kind communication. Problem shall receive due attention.

J. ARMANDO.—Many thanks for your kind communication. Problem shall receive due attention.

J. E. K.—A friendly game; it has variety of position, humour, and, many years ago, in the Paper. 2 to, collection of games by the same players would be delightful.

J. E. K.—A friendly game; it has variety of position, humour, and, many years ago, in the Paper. 2 to, collection of games by the same players would be delightful.

Correct Solutions of Problem No. 1 received from B. Q. B 2nd; R. H. 6th. The rest may be left for you to discover.

Correct Solutions of Problem No. 1 received from B. Q. B 2nd; R. H. 6th. The rest may be left for you to discover.

CHESS.—Is a good game played at private schools in this country, and is two or three of the boys are in a room, it is extremely amusing. For instance, in the old Westminster School, the boys used to play it in the Dormitory. Each boy receives sixteen men, the colours are by agreement, and the game is played according to the rules. Players for money or bettors are to be severely punished in schools. Here is a little combination for beginners to practise with their friends.

CHESS.—Is a good game played at private schools in this country, and is two or three of the boys are in a room, it is extremely amusing. For instance, in the old Westminster School, the boys used to play it in the Dormitory. Each boy receives sixteen men, the colours are by agreement, and the game is played according to the rules. Players for money or bettors are to be severely punished in schools. Here is a little combination for beginners to practise with their friends.

SOLUTION OF PROBLEM No. 1299, by W. N. G., Felix, Hallow, P. S. D., M. P., D. C. L., Rev. J. C. Ayre, Rev. J. Wayte, Rev. J. Wayte, Rev. J. Wayte

WEDDING GIFT TO THE PRINCESS OF WALES.

THE beautiful casket, made of the pure gold of New South Wales, which the ladies of that colony, led by the wife of the Governor (Lady Young), have sent as a nuptial gift to the Princess of Wales, is represented by our Engraving. It seems to us one of the most significant and appropriate, while it is not the least meritorious work of art, among the many exquisite presents she has received from her husband's future subjects in every province of the British empire. The artist and manufacturer, Mr. Julius Hogarth, of Hunter-street, Sydney, happens to be his chief's Dane. He has had a singular opportunity of working out the form of this graceful compliment to his amiable countrywoman, and doing credit at the same time to the distant land of his adoption by the liberality and fine taste which has conceived this noble design. As we have to thank Mr. D. Russell, the editor of the Sydney Morning Herald, for his courtesy in sending us the photograph (taken by Mr. Herten, of Sydney) from which our Engraving is made, we cannot do better than borrow his description of the work:—

"The casket measures 11in. in length, with a breadth of 6in., and a height of 9in., and it weighs fully 100oz. The principal portion of the front is occupied by a classical bas-relief, after Thorwaldsen, the Danish sculptor, representing Hymen and Cupid spinning the thread of life. To the right and left of this are the royal arms of Denmark and England, and the workmanship of these is extremely delicate and beautiful. Underneath the main device is an exquisitely-finished bunch of fern-leaves in frosted gold, and above it, over the keyhole of the casket, is the waratah. Next to the arms of England, and forming, as it were, a corner pillar to the entablature, is the figure of a native woman carrying a basket and a spear. This little statuette, as well as the three at the other corners, is unusually true to life. Under her feet, forming one corner of the pedestal, are the leaves and flower of the native honeysuckle, all differently arranged, and all equally beautiful and true. The other front corner consists of an aboriginal male, in the act of throwing the boomerang. The front corners of the lid are ornamented, that on the right by leaves of the cabbage-palm, and that on the left by the leaves and fruit of the native pear. Turning the casket round, we find, corresponding to the classical bas-relief in front, another device, superior, in our opinion, to the mythological subjects of the front. It is a representation of a native family group, A lubra, or native woman, carrying a [illegible] (a baby) on her shoulders, stands, with one hand on [illegible] where a black fellow is seated. The man is offering to his wife a bird's nest containing eggs, while the woman puts with her right hand to the little one on her back, as if remonstrating with him on the cruelty of depriving the poor parent birds of their young. The idea and the execution of this group are beyond all praise. To the right and left of this, corresponding to the Danish and English arms on the other side, are combinations of native weapons and hunting and fishing implements, including the boomerang, the nullah-nullah, the stone hatchet, and the fishing-basket, all intertwined with gum-leaves. The corners again are little statuettes of male and female natives in the act of defending himself with his shield, and holding the nullah-nullah in his right hand, the other resting on her wooden spear. The two handles, one at each end of the casket, are magnificent representations of the bold staghorn fern—a device happily seized upon and worked out with admirable spirit. We have now mentioned the principal fetures of this admirable work of art, except the crowning point of all—the apex of the lid. In the majestic figure of the old oak which surrounds the work the artist has even excelled himself. The attitude of the figure, the lifelike turn of the head, the all but actual motion of the legs, the symmetry of form, and the fidelity of every feature, stamp this portion of the work pre-eminently with the mark of true genius. The boy of the casket is most tasteful and unique, consisting as it does of a beautifully-finished little opossum, perched like a squirrel on the end of a short bough, and nibbling at a dainty seal of leaf and flower. The inside of the box is lined with crimson velvet. The hinges are constructed on a new principle, so as to be invisible, and thus not interfere with the continuity of the exterior surface. Mr. Hogarth has received a fresh order for a stand, to be made of myall wood inlaid with gold, which will no doubt add materially to the general effect of this beautiful work."

CASKET PRESENTED TO THE PRINCESS OF WALES BY THE LADIES OF NEW SOUTH WALES.

MR. COXWELL'S NEW BALLOON AT THE CRYSTAL PALACE.

We are engraved a representation of the new balloon, named "The Britannia," which has been constructed for the use of Mr. Coxwell and Mr. James Glaisher in their frequent ascents for the scientific purpose of exploring the upper regions of the atmosphere. The "High-Level Balloon," as it is sometimes called, was examined with much interest by numerous visitors to the Crystal Palace while lying half inflated on the floor of the western transept previously to its first ascent, which took place on the 11th inst. The balloon on that occasion rose to a height of two miles, and, after remaining in the air for nearly two hours, was allowed to descend, about nine o'clock, near Rainham, in Essex. Eight passengers were in the car, including Mr. Coxwell, who then made his 507th aerial trip. The second ascent took place on Monday, the 13th, at seven o'clock. Mr. Glaisher and C. Needham, the Hon. A. W. Cust, Captain Leslie, Mr. Myles, Mr. B. Adderley, Mr. F. G. Burnaby, Mr. H. Emerson, Mr. J. Boswell, and Captain Turner—accompanied Mr. Coxwell on this occasion. They did not, however, attain a greater elevation than 3500 ft., and, after crossing the Thames, as in the former trip, the balloon was lowered near Brentwood, in Essex, at a quarter past eight. Its capabilities, therefore, have not yet been severely tested, but, with the exception of M. Nadar's "monster," it is the largest that has yet been made.

MR. COXWELL'S HIGH-LEVEL BALLOON AT THE CRYSTAL PALACE.

"THE NORMAL MOTIONS OF THE EYE IN RELATION TO BINOCULAR VISION" was the subject of the Croonian lectures lately given at the Royal Society by Professor Reinhardt, which appears in the new number of the "Proceedings" of the society. We give a few points:—The eyeball may be regarded as a globe, which is capable of rotation round its centre of gravity. It is not fixed during its motion by the solid walls of an articular cavitation, like the bone of the thigh; but, although it is surrounded at its posterior surface only by soft cellular tissue and fat, it cannot be moved in a perceptible degree forward and backward, because the volume of the cellular tissue retained between the eyeball and the osseous walls of the orbit cannot be diminished nor augmented by forces so feeble as the muscles of the eye are able to exert. In the interior of the orbit around the eyeball, six muscles (recti) are situated, which can be employed to turn the eye round its centre. The internal and external recti muscles turn the eye round a sagittal vertical axis, so that its visual line is directed either to the right side or to the left. The superior and inferior recti muscles turn it round a transverse axis, either from the upper end of the nose to the temple, so that the superior rectus elevates the visual line, the inferior depresses it. Lastly, the oblique muscles turn the eye round an axis, which is directed from the fossa to the occiput, so that the superior oblique muscle moves the visual line outwards and downwards, but that same line two muscles not only raise and lower the visual line, but produce at the same time a rotation of the eyeball round its visual line. Thus, by the action of these six muscles, which can be combined in almost every conceivable mode of rotation, can be brought into every possible position consistent with the immobility of its centre. The motions of the eye can be compared to those of our arm. We can raise and lower the visual line, we can turn it to the left and to the right, we can bring it into every possible direction throughout a certain range—as far, at least, as the connections of the eyeball permit. So the movements of the eye are free on none of the arm. But when we have chosen any determinate direction of the eye, we turn the eye round the visual line, and this is the point in which the eye differs from the arm. This is a question the answer to which is connected with a curious peculiarity of our voluntary motions. Two [illegible] muscles by the action of which three rotations round the visual line can be performed. But when we ask, "Can we do it by an act of our will?" we must answer "No." We can voluntarily turn the visual line into every possible direction, but we cannot voluntarily use the muscles of our eye in such a way as to turn it round the visual line. Whenever the direction of the visual line is fixed the position of our eye, as far as it depends upon our will, is completely fixed and cannot be altered. This law has been satisfactorily proved by Professor Donders, who, in a very ingenious manner, controlled the position of the eye by those ocular muscles which are not subject to the will. Helmholtz, in 1854, had already found for even time upon a brightly coloured object. For Professor Helmholtz's own experimental illustrations, we must refer our readers to his interesting lecture, in which he describes several very remarkable and, to many, quite new phenomena connected with the sense of sight.

MUSIC.

The only remarkable novelty in the proceedings of the great Italian theatres has been the appearance, at the Royal Italian Opera, on Tuesday last, of Mlle. Désirée Artôt, in the character of Maria in "La Figlia del Reggimento." Mlle. Artôt has visited London more than once, and is well known to our musical public. She appeared in the same character at Her Majesty's Theatre last season with brilliant success, and she has now obtained a similar success on the Covent Garden boards. Mlle. Artôt, both as a French woman, is not a French singer. She has a beautiful voice, sweet as well as powerful, and her style has all the purity of the Italian school. She is, moreover, an excellent actress, and her picture of the little French vivandière is full of warmth, sprightliness, and grace. Her performance delighted the audience, who applauded her with enthusiasm. This pretty opera (originally Scribe, as it will be remembered, for the Parisian stage) was admirably put on and performed; the part of the young peasant-girl being sustained by Neri-Baraldi, Sergeant Sulpizio by Tagliafico, and the old Marchioness by the clever and intelligent Mme. Tagliafico.

Mr. Benedict's annual concert at St. James's Hall on Monday morning, was an entertainment of extreme interest and attraction. His high professional rank, and the general esteem in which he is held, both as a man and a musician, always have the effect of bringing together on the occasion of his yearly concert the élite of the musical world, and the old Marchioness by the clever and intelligent Mme. Tagliafico.

Mr. Benedict's annual concert at St. James's Hall on Monday morning, was an entertainment of extreme interest and attraction. His high professional rank, and the general esteem in which he is held, both as a man and a musician, always have the effect of bringing together on the occasion of his yearly concert the élite of the musical world, and the old Marchioness by the clever and intelligent Mme. Tagliafico.

Mr. Benedict's annual concert at St. James's Hall on Monday morning, was an entertainment of extreme interest and attraction. His high professional rank, and the general esteem in which he is held, both as a man and a musician, always have the effect of bringing together on the occasion of his yearly concert the élite of the musical world, and the old Marchioness by the clever and intelligent Mme. Tagliafico.

Mr. Benedict's annual concert at St. James's Hall on Monday morning, was an entertainment of extreme interest and attraction. His high professional rank, and the general esteem in which he is held, both as a man and a musician, always have the effect of bringing together on the occasion of his yearly concert the élite of the musical world, and the old Marchioness by the clever and intelligent Mme. Tagliafico.

Mr. Benedict's annual concert at St. James's Hall on Monday morning, was an entertainment of extreme interest and attraction. His high professional rank, and the general esteem in which he is held, both as a man and a musician, always have the effect of bringing together on the occasion of his yearly concert the élite of the musical world, and the old Marchioness by the clever and intelligent Mme. Tagliafico.

THE DUBLIN INTERNATIONAL EXHIBITION OF ARTS AND MANUFACTURES, 1865 (LIMITED). The Directors are prepared to receive Applications for Space and Forms of Application for same will be forwarded on application. HENRY PARKINSON, Secretary, Exhibition Palace, Dublin.

FIRE INSURANCE—REDUCTION OF DUTY.

ALBERT INSURANCE FIRE and MARINE COMPANY LIMITED by the Individual risk, and the utmost liberality will be maintained in every transaction. Prospectuses and interesting Instance on application at the Company's Offices.

For prospectus and every information apply at the Offices, 5, Waterloo-place, Pall-mall, London, S.W., or to the Agents in the Kingdom of any of the Agencies of the Albert Life Assurance.
MORRIS THOMAS, Secretary.

The Establishment, Fire Department.

THE LONDON and NORTHERN BANK LIMITED,
3, Bank-buildings, Lothbury, London.
Branches—Newcastle, Leeds, Middleton, and Spofforth.
Agencies—Morpeth, Alnwick, and Rothbury.
Deposits received at the London and Branches and Branches of this Bank, subject to which interest may be allowed, at the rate of Two per cent per Annum.
Fixed term part of £50. Interest will be allowed on the balance of those accounts at the current rate of the day.
J. F. TURNER, General Manager.

£100 IN CASE OF DEATH, and an allowance of £1 per week while laid up by accident or sickness, from any accident whatever, by road, driving, hunting, shooting, fishing, or at home, may be secured by an Annual Payment of £3, £5, £8, £10, £15, or £20, according to the Amount Insured. For particulars apply at the Offices, 64, Regent-street, and 64, Cornhill. WILLIAM J. VIAN, Secretary.

ISLE OF MAN.—HILL'S ROYAL HOTEL, DOUGLAS, adjoining the Sea-bathing Establishment, is replete with every convenience. Liberal and unctuous SUPPER is KINDLED every first current quarter at Eight o'clock.
PHILIP RIDGE, Hon. Sec.; HENRY DOBSON, Sec.

CANCER HOSPITAL, London and Brompton.—The Weekly Board of Management is most anxious to extend their accommodation. The Committee of Governors is capable of receiving about eighty patients but the Income of the Charity is not sufficient to maintain more than thirty-five beds vacant. The education of a nurse occupies a year, as may been ascertained, and the Board earnestly solicit further donations and annual subscriptions, that the Institution may be of the utmost service and enlarging sphere of usefulness.
Contributions are received by the Treasurer, William Latham Farrer, Esq., 3, Bank-buildings, Lothbury; by Messrs. Coutts and Co., Strand; and at the Secretary's Office, 167, Piccadilly, where further information may be obtained. By order,
W. J. COCKERILL, Secretary.

MONEY.—Mr. W. F. MORRIS'S Offices are for immediate Loans, on Mortgage, Reversions, and Life Interests, and particularly to estates, annuities, and every immediate accommodation on their bill, or on consignments of Goods, Imported, Shipped, Warehoused, or in transit, at 2½ per cent. No preliminary fees, unnecessary publicity, or delay.
Mr. Morris, 2, Bridge-street, Westminster.

REMOVALS.—Messrs. ALEX and JONES have REMOVED their Show-rooms from 4, Argyll-place, Regent-street, to more extensive premises, 7, Argyll-street, being required by the London, Chatham, and Dover Railway.

MAYALL'S PHOTOGRAPHIC PORTRAIT GALLERIES, 224, Regent-street, and 2, Royal Exchange-buildings, Cornhill. CARTES DE VISITE and highly-finished PHOTOGRAPHS up to life size in every style. Specimens can be seen at either of the above addresses.

PHOTOGRAPHIC EXHIBITION.—There is now OPEN, at the Gallery of the Photographic Society, 5, Pall-mall East, by the Photographic Society, a new and extensive COLLECTION of PHOTOGRAPHS, which have been arranged on the Screen by MESSRS. NEGRETTI and ZAMBRA, for Stereoscopes, which may be inspected every day during the ensuing week, from Ten to Five.

PICTURE FRAMES! PICTURE FRAMES!
Best and Cheapest in London. The Gentry and Public are invited to visit this Paper Framed in handsome Gilt Mouldings, from 6s. 6d., to Inspect our Stock, and Select Patterns. Observe the Address,
T. ROBERTS, 3, Leicester-square.

PLANT CASES, elegantly filled with ferns and rare plants, for window sills, and in every style, from 10s. 6d. to 70s. They were awarded prize at the Royal Horticultural Show and Flower Show, and at the Crystal Palace Show. Rustic window boxes, 10s. 6d.; Rustic window-gardens, 21s.; Rustic Flower Stands, 21s. and 30s. Sent to any part of London, or, Kings-cross, Covent-garden opposite the Great Northern Railway.

BILLIARD-TABLES.—MAGNUS'S ENAMELLED SLATE BILLIARD-TABLES are noticeable among proved furniture, superior in construction to all other tables, and are cheaper. They are in daily increasing demand for the Army, Navy, Clubs, and the Trade. Prize Medal, 1862, for the Slate Beds, the first Prize Medal at any Exhibition. 1862; a First-class Medal at the Paris Exposition; and the Medal at the International Exhibition, 1862, for the Slate Beds and Cushions. 52 and 53, Upper Ebury-street, Pimlico, London.

CROQUET.—JAQUES' CROQUET GAMES. Two Prize Medals, 1862.—Prizes per Set, 15s., 18s., 21s., 25s., 30s., 42s., 50s., 63s., 84s. All Jaques' Recreations, including Wickenden, Jaquine and Sets, Manufactories, 19, Hatton-garden.

STEWART'S celebrated PATENT CYCLOPEDE, £3 10s. Catalogues, with Testimonials of 100 first Astronomers, post-free.—Address, 66, Strand, London, W.C. Appointed Optician to the National Rifle Association.

"RECONNOITRER" GLASS.
Admiral Sir Charles Napier, Admiral of the Fleet, says, "I have used Captain Kitchin's Reconnoitrer Glass for many years, both at sea and landscape at thirty miles; the extraordinary power and clearness have kept me from purchasing any more expensive glass, the division of labour and small profits. "The Reconnoitrer is very good." Admiral Sir Thomas Hastings, C.B., says, "The Reconnoitrer is excellent." Remarkably good."—Lord Gambier. "It gives very complete satisfaction, and is wonderfully good."—Sir Digby Quiggin Pring, Commander-in-Chief. "I have had many opportunities of using the reconnoitrer, and can say that it is a most powerful and useful servant, for its size, with as much clearness."—F. H. Fawkes, of Farnley Hall. "Quite as powerful as that for which I paid £15 15s. to Dollond."—Henry Peal, Rawtenstall. Attached to the Glass is a Pocket-case, Sling, and Caps for the Object and Eye-glasses. "Reconnoitrer" of great size is not desirable. "The Reconnoitrer is beautifully tried it at an 800-yard size-range against all the glasses exhibited, and I am happy to say that it was the only glass which gave an object-glass that I can recommend."—Captain Kitchin. "I consider myself will ever sail without such an indispensable companion to the sailor."—Captain Kitchin. Sold by the Inventor, 2, Cross-street, Hatton-garden, London, E.C., which also will be found at the Stores of the Army and Navy Co-operative Society, and at all the other leading Stores.

OPERA, RACE, and FIELD GLASSES.—The largest and newest Stock in LONDON.—CHARLES HOW, Sole Manufacturer of the celebrated Double-Achromatic Opera Glasses, the most powerful glasses for general use. Field and Marine Glasses of Unique, though of the largest size, weight but a few ounces. Every Glass warranted. Opera Glasses Repaired. Second-hand and Foreign-made Glasses taken in Exchange.

THE PLANET JUPITER, when magnified 150 times with the new 45 TELESCOPE, appears seven times as large as the moon as it is seen by the naked eye, and other planetary bodies proportionately.—T. and F. SOLOMONS, 39, Albemarle-street, Piccadilly, Opticians, &c., Manufacturers of Microscopes, Compasses, Mathematical Instruments, &c.

A NEW High-power BINOCULAR GLASS, the cheapest, lightest, most powerful, and portable ever produced. Price 21s. Sent free by post on receipt of Post-office order. Prize obtained in ivory and gilt, 31s. Sent free by post on receipt of Post-office order. This glass is specially arranged for the sensitive purposes of the opera, race, and general observation. Sold by T. and F. SOLOMONS, 39, Albemarle-street, Piccadilly.

DOUBLE BAROMETER, COMPASS, and THERMOMETER, 21s. in one, the size of a watch, for following the weather and ascertaining the points of the compass, and temperature of the air. Guaranteed for 12 months. Price 21s. each, free.—T. and F. SOLOMONS, Opticians, 39, Albemarle-street, Piccadilly.

SPECTACLES.—The Patent Newly-invented DOUBLE SPECTACLES are patronised by the society of the Royal Family, the Nobility, and Gentry, as the most perfect assistance for far and distant to read, thin, and defective vision.
T. and F. SOLOMONS, 39, Albemarle-street, Piccadilly.

DEAFNESS.—The ELECTRO-MAGNIFIER, the most wonderful and effective HOME-INVENTION, is the only one that can completely restore hearing, and is the only and genuine Aural Apparatus to hear distinctly at church and at public assemblies.—6, and 9, Argyll-street, Regent-street, Piccadilly.

ELECTRO-SILVER PLATE.—MAPPIN, BROTHERS, WEBB, and CO., Manufacturers, guarantee the following to be of sterling quality, and exchange any article if not approved:—

	Fiddle Pattern.	Thread Pattern.	Pattern.
Table spoons or forks, per doz.	£1 7 0	£2 14 0	£3 16 0
Dessert ditto	0 15 0	1 12 0	2 8 0
Tea spoons	0 7 0	0 14 0	1 0 0
Gravy spoons, per set of three	0 12 0	1 10 0	2 0 0
Fish carving pair, per set of two	0 7 0	0 14 0	1 0 0
Fish skewers and forks, in cases	0 12 0	1 0 0	1 5 0
Sauce ladles, per pair	0 5 0	0 10 0	0 15 0
Soup ladles, per pair	0 10 0	0 18 0	1 5 0
Cruet and coffee services, per set	1 0 0	2 0 0	3 10 0
Tea and coffee sets, per set of four	2 0 0	3 10 0	5 0 0
Dish covers, per set of four	3 0 0	5 0 0	7 0 0
Dessert-cases, each	0 14 0	1 14 0	2 2 0
Tea trays, from	0 12 0	1 0 0	1 5 0
Corner dishes, every variety	0 12 0	1 0 0	1 5 0

Manufactory, 76 and 78, Oxford-street; Warehouse and Show-Rooms, 77, Cornhill, City; and 220, Regent-street, W. (next the Royal Colony Works, Hanbill, and are entrusted for the Sale of their Goods to the Agents—Collins, 56, Cheapside; Hopkins, Belgrave-place, Pimlico.—77 and 78, Oxford-street West; and 77 and 78, Cornhill, City.

DINNER, DESSERT, BREAKFAST, TEA, and TOILET SERVICES, in Porcelain, Stone-china, and Earthenware, also a beautiful variety of every description of Glass for the Table, at WILLIAM S. BURTON'S Show-rooms, which are the largest in Europe.
Fiddle pattern, quality superior taste, low prices.
ALFRED BURTON, 39, Oxford-street, W. Established 1760.

CHANDELIERS in BRONZE and ORMOLU for DINING-ROOMS and LIBRARIES, Glass and Ormolu Lamps, in Bronze, Ormolu, China, and Glass. Statuettes in Parian, Bronze, and Ormolu.—DEANE, DRAY, and CO., London-bridge.

OSLER'S GLASS CHANDELIERS, WALL LIGHTS, and Lustres, for Ball and Card Rooms, Gas, Wax, or Glass Shades. Glass Globes for lamps, from 2s. 6d.
OSLER'S Glass Table Lamps, from 42s.
OSLER'S Glass Figures.
Ornamental Glass, English and Foreign, for presents.
Show Rooms, 45 and 46, Oxford-street, W.
Manufactory, 100, Broad-street, Birmingham.
London—Showroom, 45, Oxford-street, W.

GASELIERS in Crystal Glass, Ormolu, or Bronze. Medieval Fittings, &c. A large sectional Stock always on view. Estimates and Designs free.
H. and L. EVANS and CO., Manufacturers, 24 and 25, High Holborn, W.C.

GARDNER'S PATENT ARGAND GAS BURNER and PANELLED TABLE-LAMPS from 4s. 9d. each. Glass Globes, Chimneys, and Materials to suit the above. Lamps fitted (four doors from Oxford-street) London. Established 1816.

FURNITURE.—A Complete Suite of Drawing-room Furniture, consisting of Couch, Two Easy Chairs, Six Chairs, Loo Table, Chiffonier, Pier Glass, and Pair of Curtains, all handsomely carved, and split sizes in morocco. The whole to be sold for £20. Also a Dining-room Suite, in Spanish mahogany, consisting of Sideboard, Extending Table, Six Chairs, and Couch, to match, for £20. Can be seen at 34, Montague-street, Russell-square, London.

WALNUT SUITE of DRAWING-ROOM FURNITURE, in rich figured walnut wood, consisting of Couch, Two Easy Chairs, Six Chairs, Loo Table, Chiffonier, Pier Glass, and Pair of Curtains, all handsomely carved, and covered in rich silk brocatelle and chintz loose cushions, and finished in the best manner throughout. The whole to be sold for £30. Can be seen at 34, Montague-street, Russell-square, London, W.C.

EASY-CHAIRS, SOFAS, and COUCHES, in great variety, for Drawing-rooms, Libraries, Smoking-rooms, Halls, Bedrooms, Dressing-rooms, Conservatories, Oxford-street, W. An Illustrated Priced Catalogue sent post-free.

FURNITURE CATALOGUE.—The Cheapest House for Furniture in London.—Purchasers should see the NEW EDITION of their ILLUSTRATED CATALOGUE (it now ready), which contains Designs and Prices of 250 Bedsteads, 150 Chairs, 100 Dining-room Suites, 50 Drawing-room Suites, and 50 Chimney-glasses, with Estimates for Complete Furnishing of Houses, Apartments, &c. Sent free by post.—HEAL and SON'S ILLUSTRATED CATALOGUE of Bedsteads, Bedding, and Bedroom Furniture, sent free by post.—196, Tottenham-court-road, W.

CARPETS.—Notwithstanding the late advance in the price of Carpets, T. VENABLES and SONS, Berlin and Patent Wool Carpet Manufacturers, Dyers, and Printers, Wellington-street, Turnham Green, Chiswick, and 31, Aldermanbury, City, B. A large Assortment of Patterns and Colours, Exclusive Designs, Moderate Prices, Prompt Delivery and Carpets, post-free.—20, 24, and 28, Wellington-street, Strand.

LEAF WARDROBES, 7 ft. high and 5 ft. wide, 2 ft. 6 in. deep, with Drawers and Shelves, 42s. each. Dressing-tables, 30s. each. Chairs, 6s. each. Bedsteads, 30s. each. Washstands, 12s. 6d. each. Chests of Drawers, 30s. each. Sofas, 40s. each. Tables, 10s. each. Carpets, 1s. per yard. Kitchen Furniture, Crockery, Glass, Bedding, Mattresses, Blankets, Quilts, Sheets, Curtains, Linen, Clothing, Boots, Shoes, Ironmongery, Oilcloth, Grates, Stoves, Fenders, Fire-irons, Tools, Gardening Implements, Perambulators, Toys, Games, Cutlery, Plated Goods, Lamps, Gas Fittings, Pictures, Books, Watches, Clocks, Jewellery, Trunks, Portmanteaus, Bags, Baskets, Saddlery, Harness, Guns, Rifles, Pistols, Fishing Tackle, Musical Instruments, Billiard Tables, Hardware, Timber, Slates, Bricks, Cement, Lime, Drugs, Chemicals, Perfumery, Wines, Spirits, Beer, Cigars, Tobacco, Snuff, Pipes, Groceries, Provisions, Corn, Flour, Meal, Seeds, Manures, Oils, Colours, Varnishes, Brushes, Leather, Hides, Tallow, Soap, Candles, Coals, Coke, Charcoal, Iron, Steel, Lead, Tin, Copper, Zinc, Brass, Gold, Silver, Precious Stones, Ivory, Bone, Horn, Shell, Feathers, Wax, Honey, Sugar, Tea, Coffee, Cocoa, Chocolate, Rice, Sago, Tapioca, Arrowroot, Pickles, Sauces, Mustard, Vinegar, Starch, Blacking, Matches, Tobacco-pipes, Fancy Goods, Stationery, Paper, Envelopes, Pens, Pencils, Ink, Sealing-wax, Wafers, Gum, Glue, Paste, Cards, Printing, Lithographing, Engraving, Bookbinding, Paper-ruling, Paper-making, Paper-hanging, Carpet-making, Weaving, Spinning, Dyeing, Calico-printing, Tanning, Currying, Boot-making, Shoe-making, Saddlery, Harness-making, Coach-building, Cabinet-making, Upholstery, Bedding, Mattress-making, Blanket-making, Quilt-making, Sheet-making, Curtain-making, Linen-making, Clothing, Boot-making, Shoe-making, Ironmongery, Oilcloth, Grate-making, Stove-making, Fender-making, Fire-iron-making, Tool-making, Gardening Implements, Perambulators, Toy-making, Game-making, Cutlery, Plated Goods, Lamp-making, Gas Fittings, Picture-making, Book-making, Watch-making, Clock-making, Jewellery, Trunk-making, Portmanteau-making, Bag-making, Basket-making, Saddlery, Harness-making, Gun-making, Rifle-making, Pistol-making